TOPEKA, May 12 (AP)—The communists' Peiping radio said today American prisoners repatriated at Pannuncheon have been "killed in 'imprisonment'" because they refused to produce "the so-called atrocity stories" United States army officers and officials demanded of them.

The propaganda broadcast, monitored in Tokyo by Radio Free Press, said some of the "killed" American repatriates had succeeded in holding their own press conference and had voiced their disgust at the American press for printing atrocity stories.

Repeal Discussed

BURLINGAME, May 12—At the Chamber of Commerce meeting Monday Herman King led the discussion of repealing the present postal bill which limits the size and weight of parcel-post packages to 30 pounds.

King said first class postoffices are operating at a loss because large shipments now are broken into smaller packages which necessitate more handling and more congestion. The chamber went on record in favor of repealing the present bill.

2 Seniors Receive Exchange Club Scholarships to College

Two $200 scholarships to the schools of their choice will be presented to Arden Nellie Howells and John Whitson Hughes, Jr., high school seniors, by the Twin Falls Exchange club.

The awards will be made Thursday at a high school recognition assembly, by C. A. Gore, Exchange club president.

Miss Howells and Hughes were selected as the most deserving boy and girl in the senior class by a group of high school faculty members headed by John Flatt, principal. Gore said scholarships were made possible by donations of merchandise from local merchants auctioned at a recent "Youth Opportunity" scholarship auction sponsored by the Exchange club.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—Secretary Douglas McKay's decision in favor of private rather than public development of Hells canyon has been denounced as a "sell-out to the power trust."

Private officials claim that his action was based on realties rather than ideologies. He prefers immediate construction of a dam needed over facilities in the growing northwest instead of a prolonged politico-economic controversy.

Opposition chairman program envisaged government development of Hells canyon resembling such projects as TVA, Grand Coulee and Bonneville. They argued that their plan would provide "far more electricity" than the McKay system which would permit the construction of several smaller private dams along the Snake and Columbia rivers by the Idaho Power company.

TEST OF NATION-WIDE ISSUE

As a result of agitation by Truman, Chapman and the Hells Canyon Committee, the political and newspaper dispute has been transformed into a sort of "ouster test stand" on the question of public versus private power. The Eisenhower administration decision had been awaited as a test on this major nation-wide issue.

With the quarrel over Hells Canyon, the Hells Canyon and its opposition since the election. "It's a test of national character," he has inaugurated a systematic policy of "ouster" of private interests—oil, power, land, mineral, timber, etc.

With related problems, it undoubtedly will become the dominant issue in the coming year, especially in the far west, south and southwest.

Indeed, since many other regions still have undeveloped resources, the Hells Canyon project is not a magnetically riveting Hells canyon, the question is as much political dynamite as disputes over taxes, tariffs, prices and foreign policy.

With the Hells Canyon project, the national and natural wealth, and the prospect of further exhaustion in a World War III, the conservation problem becomes a dramatic and dynamic issue.

COMPLEX QUESTION

Neither Eisenhower nor McKay view their decision on Hells Canyon as a radical departure from precedent and historical policy. In fact, there is a tendency in official quarters to feel their attitude has been reported faithfully, although they do not change and even perhaps to emphasize the question of power development is extremely complex.

In the first place, McKay has not taken a hard-line stand on the issue of private construction, operation and transmission of power. He believes each problem should be judged and handled separately, depending on economic, engineering and other factors which may be involved. His attitude in a few words, here is what he might say:

I. S. TO STAY IN FIELD—I favor private development wherever it will not interfere with the orderly development of natural resources. If it is profitable for the federal government, we will handle projects on the main river and several activities of flood control, navigation and irrigation. There also will be room for public power units, cooperative municipalities to handle their specific local problems.

"The United States is not getting out of the power and reclamation field!"

PRACTICAL SOLUTION SOUGHT—With respect to Hells Canyon, McKay says he seeks a practical solution rather than preserve it for the future. If the federal power commission grants the Idaho Power company's application to build several small dams, he points out, they will be built and placed in operation this year and the next. The growing northwest needs power NOW, or as soon as possible.

Congress has turned down the Hells Canyon project for many, many years. A major negative factor was money. Federal construction will cost almost $1.5 billion. McKay's private development will not add the treasury nor add to the public debt.

Unlike his predecessors, McKay prefers to solve an issue on a practical basis rather than preserve it for its possible vote-getting aspects.

VIEWS OF OTHERS

A SIGNIFICANT VICTORY?

The army engineers' budget for Columbia Basin power and navigation dam projects has been cut out $100,000,000. The budget cut will not permit any new starts in the basin and several projects under way may not be completed on schedule.

The most interesting commentary on this was found in the Oregonian. It is the fact that the new administration is carrying out on the Columbia river development without serious interference or delay. The approval by the bureau of the budget of appropriations continuing Columbia river development without abatement is a significant victory for Senator Guy O'Conor, the area's representative on the senate appropriations committee. He has been presenting legislation all the way to the budget bureau in connection with these appropriations.

It is as good as a surprise, we feel sure, to find that the dam would be a significant victory for Sen. Cordón to learn that he has secured a victory for Columbia Basin development. When Sen. Cordón was in the state of Oregon last October he assured "us" that the dam would be a significant victory for us. There must be a new start in the basin every year until we can catch up with the tremendous demand of our expanding economy. The national hydro-electric energy. He added that nothing must be done to delay the completion of The Dalles dam on schedule (the engineers' appropriation for The Dalles dam was cut by the bureau of the budget from $35,400,000 to $31,420,000—biggest slice of all).

Mr. Farmer may be speaking for the new administration, but he is not speaking for Sen. Cordón or in the interests of the economy of the northwest. This glowing job he is doing will not receive Oregon's senatorial endorsement who has fought valiantly for basin development ever since he has so long supported him in that fight.

The plain, unvarnished truth is that the administration must cut the budget to live up to its campaign promise that taxes would be reduced. And there has been no compromise. It seems apparent, given to whether budget cuts on the basis of the economy are actual economies. Sen. Cordón has said repeatedly that to delay appropriations for basin development is to delay the dam at The Dalles. It is not a matter of making a sound investment of the people's money in one of the people's richest resources.

The new administration promises to cut taxes and to "to that it must balance the budget. But it also promised to continue orderly and full development of the vast water resources in the Columbia basin. If Mr. Farmer can become clear at the turn of the year, he is welcome to do so. Few in the northwest will join him—Pendleton East-Oregonian.

SLIPPING ON UNEATEN BUTTER

The butter industry is on firm ground when some of its spokesmen suggest that they would be better off in being the only ones to have a government price support. This would presumably include more realistic prices. In such a competition long established preferences for and certain advantages of butter might enable it to hold its own.

Any change in government support policy would need to be made so as to insure an orderly transition from the present system to a free market. It is impossible to avoid damage to farmer or processor, if possible. But to go on plumping up federal butter is not only costly, but it is also a burden on the taxpayer. It is supposed to protect—Chicago Daily News.

GET OUT YOUR FAN!

Do. This is positively the last time I'm going to do this. After all, the weatherman has to make a living, and I'm sure he'll remember how-called that last hub of bad weather. Course, it lasted a bit longer than I figured so. After that, hang out your bonnet!

Yes, the Cowboys are going to be gone from May 14 to 20, including today. Now that everyone is hep to the way I call the weather, you can figure it out for yourselves.

WANTA LESSON, FELLAB!

In case you readers missed it, along about 10 days ago, there was a little item on the sports page. Probably at least one person benefited it shouldn't have appeared at all. And maybe a whole flock of women think the item should have been printed right on page one where no one could miss it. Wasn't much to it. Just found one Dorothy Sanborn friend 899 on the Twin Falls Rifle and Pistol range in an outdoor rifle shoot. Then if your eye wandered rather down in the story, you may have noticed that one Grant Sanborn was credited with 578 points.

In case you hadn't guessed it, Dorothy Sanborn is also known as Mrs. Grant Sanborn.

Maybe the connection never occurred to you, but not long ago there was a little story in the "N" about some guy who followed the theory that a heavy rifle was needed for accuracy. This guy hung lead out on the barrel of his rifle until it weighed 17 1/2 pounds. Yep, that was Grant Sanborn.

After the recent lesson he may have several pounds of lead for sale.

FAMOUS BET LINE

"You'd better not spend even so much as a penny for fishing tackle this year!"

THE GENTLEMAN IN THE FOURTH ROW

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

I find two startling points on income taxation in a publication. Practitioner Hall called "Federal Tax Journal" and an article in the "Wall Street Journal."

The "Federal Tax Journal" reports the monthly case of a man named Morse who was employed by a corporation and discovered to his horror, that the $7,000 salary for this 1953-54 year by the Chrysler corporation was income to him and taxable in his hands.

The "Wall Street Journal" article tells that "Fireside Bank" will be a tax target in months to come.

The problem of providing old-age security by private arrangement simply must be added with fairness to those millions of nonunionists who own the common stock.

The classical figure of these senseless men would be a frugal, saving fellow who, by self-denial, put away a little money after high income taxes until he was 65 years old. He then found that his family responsibilities were greater and more urgent than ever. His wife had a stroke. His elderly sister broke her hip and was bed-ridden. People do wear out and get brittle.

But George Spelvin, American with his few shares of common stock for income in his old age, must continue earning to meet his responsibilities. Therefore he forfeits a government pension. He has the same objection as the man who has to pay for his own old age.

And his dividends from his stock are reduced because the company executives, to distract hostile attention from their own lavish amusements, have taxed to all manner of employees—Spelvin's expense.

Mr. Spelvin, as a stockholder, pays portions to literally thousands much better off than he is. But he must forego the miserable social security dole because the law provides that if he goes on earning money he may not get it.

Ironically, a rich company executive with a pension of $50,000 a year provided largely by a first-chop-out company earnings, even before income taxes, may draw his social security pension. He has cut "earnings." He has bowed out of the "labor market, reeking a job for a younger man. So he is eligible for the government dole on top of all else.

Practitioner Hall continues a hypothetical parallel to the case of the Chrysler employee who was held liable for income tax on the company's profits. The income company provides him a monthly pension of $80 for a phenomenal number of years.

The hypothetical case assumes that John Doe earned $10,000 in 1953. It also assumed that his company endorsed to him an annuity policy with a value of $25,000. The total income is $35,000 which is reduced to $27,500 by conventional exemptions and deductions.

The example finds that the victor owed a tax of $1,775. His total assets, including cash from the sale of his home, his car and other possessions, was $15,000 and he came out of his fix with a tax debt of $2,775.

"John Doe is bankrupt," says Practitioner Hall. "He still owes more than $2,000 that must be paid out from his $3,000 pension."

"Clearly, this is not just lunatic! It is a catastrophe. Employees who are younger when their employer adopted pension plans are treated to a relief getting the same benefits as John Doe would pay a tax only on the annuity income amount he receives $3,000 a year."

True enough. But I still argue the case of George Spelvin—the stockholder who has to put his own money for all these benefits for millions of employees in private industry. These people do not deserve pensions from George Spelvin. They deserve full pay for their work each pay day. They have the same objection as the man who has to pay for his own old age.

As matters stand, Spelvin's little board of stock, his remainder after high income taxes down the years, is taxable again as "estate" when he dies.

His widow may have a sacrifice much value in order to raise the estate tax within this year that is allowed. But the pensioner may elect to leave a further pension to his widow, subject to no estate tax.

And most dramatic of all the phases of this wrong is the money set aside by the companies for pension funds is exempt from corporate income tax. This during the taxing years, Spelvin pays additional income tax to compensate that short-

EISENHOWER'S TECHNIQUE

Out of the many "first 100 days" appraisals of the Eisenhower administration, after presidential inauguration, the one that stands out prominently. One of these is Mr. Eisenhower's deep belief in the value of cooperation as a technique in successful governing.

His determined efforts to bridge the traditional gap between the White House and congress are a prime example. No President in history ever bent to such lengths to befriend the lawmakers. And, according to reports, he has given the entire executive establishment strict orders not to get into conflicts with congress, to remember that the legislature is a separate and independent branch of government.

The latest evidence of this Eisenhower article of faith was the two-day assembly of 45 state governors in Washington at the President's request, for a full, confidential briefing on the current problems of the federal government.

Only three times before in history had all the governors been invited to the capital for serious study of national problems. The most recent was in 1933.

Mr. Eisenhower asked the state executives because he believes such consultations will represent a "long step forward toward the kind of a unified government which can enlist the support and assistance of all elected officials in the prosecution of the nation's major purposes. He told the governors:

"All political wisdom does not reside in the White House, nor in the executive branch, nor in Washington itself. It comes from the minds and hearts of sincere and devoted men, wherever their field of action."

The governors' meeting unquestionably impressed the participants. Briefed by an array of top administration men, the governors returned home probably better informed about U. S. policies and world conditions than they have ever been.

The President is to be commended for his boldness and his earnestness in conceiving this device for drawing the people together. Some capital observers are raising doubts as to how effective "cooperation" will prove as a technique for dealing with congress over the long haul. They suggest continuing its inevitable and will-deepen sooner or later.

But few can question the merit of the governors' conference idea. Successful this time, it deserves to be used again and again.

THE CHARM OF CHANGE

In many a dactylic tetrameter the poets have been assuring us for centuries that what makes us so crazy about spring is that it is a season of growth. Processes rising through the snow, sap rising in the trees, everything rising.

In plain, unrhymed terms we would like to disagree with nature's poetic spring agents. We hold that spring's great attraction is change. The change from snow to sun, furnaces to flowers, mufflers to mosquitoes.

People get eternally bored with living in the same place, working at the same job, obeying the same people, that even the period of change between winter and summer is a welcome break in the old routine.

Comes the first sign of warm weather and men go scrambling for their garden tools down in the basement. The house was on fire—What's all the rush? The rain has gone. Nobody's going to walk off with the garden before the seeds can be sown.

What's the big hurry? It's just a desire for a change, any change in the old routine. Even if it only means a change from a snow shovel to a garden spade.

Women rush forth in spring frocks when the weather's still cold enough to frost a fleck. They're just tired of wearing their old winter clothes. Anything for a change.

Other women rush southward from northern climes to sit in the sun and bake themselves the color of champagne, while their southern sisters avoid the sun like the plague. You can bet your last carrot seed the northern ladies didn't go south to watch the flowers grow.

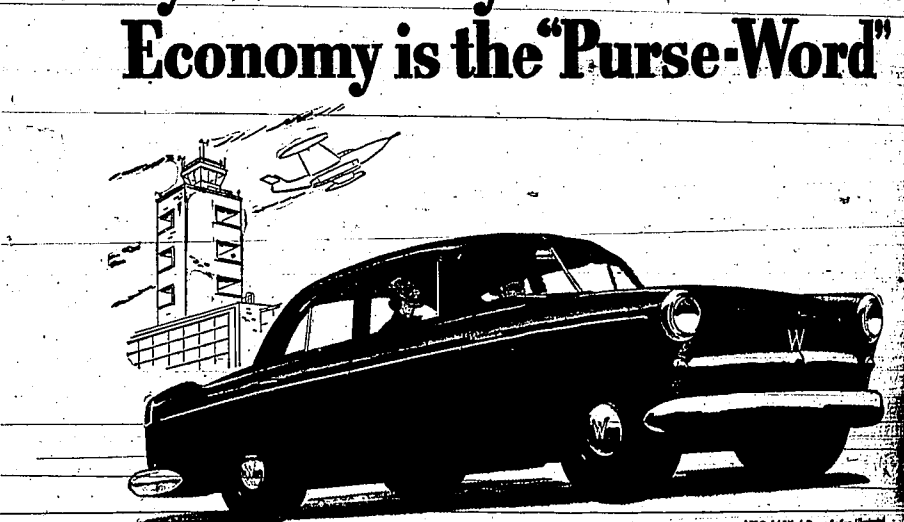

In some of the extreme northern states they say that spring is so short that the seasons run winter, Memorial Day, summer. But even in a state where you see people celebrating all the spring ritual that mean change from the old rut.

The clincher on this spring business would seem to be, what if spring followed spring instead of following winter? If it was spring all the time, we'd soon be trying to invent winter that we could sow in the sky from airplanes or manufacture as an atomic by-product.

EXPENSIVE SPEAKER

Independent Oregon Sen. Wayne Morse's record-breaking 22-hour speech against giving submerged-land mineral rights to the states filled some 86 pages of the Congressional Record. At $24 a page printing costs, that set the taxpayers back $7,200—but it was only a beginning. The next week Morse filed another 48 pages of the Record with congratulatory telegrams and letters. The printing bill for that was another $3,800. Total cost $11,000—or $500 per hour of speech.

Renovation, Cleanup of City's Parks Is Nearing Completion

Spring renovation and cleanup of the city park system is nearly complete, Ernest Craner, city recreation and parks director, said Wednesday.

Heading the list of park improvements is the installation of a three-seat swing, and children's 12-foot slide at the Sunrise park. Additional plans call for the purchase of a teeter-totter and set of bars for the park equipment. A backdrop for the baseball and softball diamonds also is being built.

Other city parks have been put in first class condition for the summer months. Baseball diamonds have been repaired and playground apparatus cleaned and painted. Plans have been announced equipment is being rushed to completion for the pool's opening June 7.

Tentative opening date for the municipal summer recreation program is June 8.

Senator Asks Rejection for USDA Revise

WASHINGTON, May 12—Senator Russell, D., has demanded Tuesday that congress reject a pending Eisenhower plan to revise the agriculture department. He said the President then could suggest another revision to former President Herbert Hoover, on the other hand, supported the plan as a move toward efficiency in that economy.

Russell has opposed from the start a broad general plan submitted by Eisenhower on March 20, and is sponsoring legislation to bring about its defeat.

Specific plans regarding the department's reorganization as a senate subcommittee opened hearings. He called the Eisenhower plan "nothing but a blank check" and said its approval by congress would be "the most complete abdication of legislative responsibility and power ever made by this body."

The department needs reorganizing, he said, but the President should propose it in a firm and specific plan.

Demo Agree

Sen. Olin Johnston, D., G. added that the plan would give the secretary of agriculture "unbridled power."

The reorganizing plan would become effective June 4 unless 40 senators or 218 house members vote to kill it.

It would give the secretary of agriculture broad power to reorganize and re-allocate the department and its various agencies. It would open the way for shifting soil conservation, crop production control, price support, agricultural conservation subsidy programs to state and local agencies, working on a cooperative basis with the department.

3 Aides Provided

"It also would provide three assistant secretaries instead of one, plus an administrative assistant secretary."

Secretary Benson has not yet outlined the changes he would make under the plan.

Russell insisted that politics had nothing to do with his opposition. The Eisenhower plan differs only slightly from one proposed by former President Truman, he said, and that one of those that opposed that grant of power.

Mr. Hoover, who headed a government reorganization commission whose recommendations the plan follows generally, filed a statement listing the advantages. It included streamlining and reduction in overlapping services at federal, state and local levels, more chance for cooperation among the three, and integration of related functions. This would tend to cut costs, he said.

Hells Canyon Rule Assailed By Mrs. Pfost

WASHINGTON, May 12—Representative Frost, D. Ida., said last night the interior department's decision in the Hells canyon case "crosses the way for power monopoly in this country."

Mrs. Pfost said the withdrawal of federal opposition to Idaho Power company's plan to build dams in the Snake river between Idaho and Oregon also "may mean the end of the lowest cost power developments which have lightened the work load of the farmer and the home owner and brought prosperity to business and industry alike."

Interior Secretary McKay announced one week ago his department was withdrawing opposition to the company's application pending before the power commission. The department under former Secretary Chapman opposed the application because a bigger federal dam was planned in Hells canyon.

Fight Against Public Power Slashes Urged

BOZEMAN, May 12—A fight against federal action which might adversely affect municipal and other public power projects was urged Tuesday by members of the American Public Power Association by its president, Ralph J. Duvall.

Supporting federal tax reduction, "but not through short-sighted action," he said.

"Federal Job

"In the realm of public power and water resources development there have been slashes here and there. It is doubtful if a crowd with a sword in each hand could do a more effective job."

Duvall said the 1953 convention of the association, which represents more than 700 locally-owned electric utilities, will take the election in November. "I feel sure most of you began to ponder its effect on public power."

Great economies were promised," he said, but added, "hope the public doesn't win too much, and endanger the safety or economy of the nation."

Duvall told the convention "all not lost. You still can do something about part of it if you will. You know your congressmen and their views on these matters. It is a certainty... the power lobby are well acquainted with your distinguished representatives and would not hesitate to influence them."

Support of Ike's Foreign Policy Is Urged by Truman

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 12—Former President Harry S. Truman urged the nation Tuesday to support President Eisenhower's foreign policy "so we can keep the peace of the world."

The President, he said, makes the foreign policy for the most powerful nation of the world, and it's up to the citizens "to get behind the President and back him up."

Truman did not mention his successor by name in a speech to the Missouri legislature—his first public address since leaving the White House.

He spoke in a reminiscent vein about the job of leading the world's greatest nation. Not only is the President the commander-in-chief, Truman told his home state legislature, but he is head of his party.

"A job 'til' they come," he said. "Actually, Truman said, the President has to spend about 75 per cent of his time being a public relations man—"persuading people to do what they ought to do without being persuaded."

Scouts Given Life Awards

Life and star rank were presented at a Scout court of honor held Tuesday night at the LDS second ward church.

The first life award went to Glade Bean and was presented by Ted Larson, a counselor to the bishop.

The second an Eagle Scout award, was presented to David Chatterton by Ted Weeks, post adviser.

Leo Larson received the star rank badge. It was presented by Charles Fielder, a representative of the Scout council.

Ralph Ward, troop committee chairman, awarded several merit badges earned by members of the troop. Larson received badges for citizenship in the home, bookbinding and horse-riding. Badges presented to Bean were: sell and water conservation, first aid and citizenship in the community. Gary Boyer received badge for scholarship and art.

Dick Heinz, troop commander, presided over the court.

Experts Aver Atomic Plane Far in Future

WASHINGTON, May 12—Informed sources say the atomic airplane is many years in the future and not just around the corner.

Lieut.-Col. John P. Pickering, Randolph air force base, Tex., said it is 1200-1500 MONTHLY "The aircraft industry is rushing to complete atomic-powered planes capable of flying indefinitely without refueling."

Informed sources here said Pickering was right about the prospective plane's theoretical possibilities. But any impression that it is close to realization is wrong, they said.

Roscoe T. Hooper, chief of Gordon Dean, chairman of the atomic energy commission, made a guess a year ago that the first atomic aircraft would be in the air in about 10 years.

General Electric said Pratt and Whitney are doing development work on nuclear power plants for airplanes. Consolidated Vultee and Boeing are working on designs of airplanes to carry the engine.

Culbuck's Chief

The defense department outbreak if it materializes, presumably will affect the Convair and Boeing work. Pickering, an air force doctor, said the crew of the atomic plane will not have to be a superman group, but will have to wear spun lead glass lining suits to protect them against atomic particles and rays in the plane.

Group Reports Plans for Area's First Lamb Pool

Plans for the first lamb and wool pool collections of the Twin Falls County Livestock Marketing Association were announced Tuesday afternoon by the committee chairman.

Marvin Lohr, lamb pool committee chairman, said lambs will be collected at the Twin Falls stockyards Friday for shipment to Spokane.

Committeemen began sorting the lambs at the yards Monday. They ask that growers having additional lambs for market make arrangements by calling County Agent Warren E. Smith at his office in the old hospital building.

"A couple of carloads" of lambs are expected to be shipped in the pool, Lohr reported.

Harry Holquist, Twin Falls wool committee chairman, said the wool pool will be collected Wednesday, May 20, at the Union Pacific freight depot in Twin Falls.

About 5,000 fleeces are expected.

Solon Advises Merger of All Red Inquiries

WASHINGTON, May 13 (AP)—Rep. Solon, N. Y., has called for a consolidation of congressional red probes in a special committee to be composed of members of the House and Senate.

"Such a committee," he said, "will be representative of both houses and composed of members from both parties."

Critic of Probe
Solon's statement was critical of the separate investigations now being conducted by Senator McCarthy, Rep. W. W. Hastings and Rep. J. P. Cullen.

"The fantastic length to which McCarthy can go," he said, "is demonstrated by his questioning of James A. Wechsler, editor of the New York Post."

America Is Growing up, Boyle Finds on Magnolia, Ark., Visit

MAGNOLIA, Ark., May 13 (AP)—America is growing-up. The period of raw-boned youth is over.

As the townspeople flocked to the courthouse square to watch a mammoth centennial parade—the biggest ever held in Arkansas—Boyle chatted with three leading citizens who are a link between the city's recent past and bustling future.

They were Col. Charles W. McKay, 81, a lawyer; John W. Colquitt, 72, hardware dealer for half a century; and Charles B. Lyle, 70, who has been filing prescriptions in his drug store for 64 years.

"We were more religious in those days. The whole town would close up for a week to go to a camp meeting."

"Yes, people used to like to do more things for each other then," said Colquitt. "They served each other then. Now so many people serve only for money."

Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI
 A high school pupil asks me to say what changes I would suggest in the course of study to enable young people to meet the changing world with greater confidence and more skill. That is a big order, for the world is like a shifting sandcastle, their desire and needs so different that only God knows what is wanted and will bring harmony out of discord, goodwill to all. However, there are some fundamentals that science has made the world seem small, bringing faraway countries and their people very close together. High school pupils must study the ways of other peoples—their history, which is very important to our understanding of the world's climate, products and economies. That would mean stretching the course here and there and taking a new approach to geography, history, literature and so forth. The coming generation of citizens will need to know more about other peoples than they or their fathers know today.
 Then, would like very much to see courses in high schools that would help young men and women for improved conditions in their own homes, their communities and their country. I would begin by giving them the rudiments of home management and care of household equipment. In our houses today are devices on which the family's work and well-being depend—if one goes out of order, which it certainly will do, somebody should be ready to mend it promptly and intelligently. Girls must know about stoves, beaters, toasters, faucets, and the repairman's charges by such tasks themselves. I think courses of instruction in these fields are essential.
 Equally important are classes in civics. This generation of voters has little about the machinery of their local governments and much less about the federal government.

The Magic Valley Cowboys, looking up from their place in the Pioneer league standings, get a chance to knock off the high-flying Idaho Falls Braves Thursday.

There are seven games off the post. On Wednesday night the Magic Valley team, Idaho Falls, Idaho, played the Braves in the second game of the season. The Magic Valley team, led by veteran team leader, Tom Pugh, has a record of 1-1. The Braves have a record of 1-1.

And there is a possibility of negotiating some of the trades. The Magic Valley team, led by veteran team leader, Tom Pugh, has a record of 1-1. The Braves have a record of 1-1.

The outfield is a definite problem with only Jim Scott in center fielding and only Jim Scott in center fielding.

Some of the fans who have watched the surprising at Jaycees park this spring have expressed doubt about the system of the men.

One fan has prepared several means in trouble. The pitcher, who is going to park hotel dining shop, is going to park hotel dining shop.

Boise high school will be a heavy favorite in the region. The Braves qualified 15 men in 16 events during their district meet at Stamps last week and gives them the balance of power.

Magic Valley baseball fans are in for a rare treat this summer and can thank Jerry coach Jerry Dellinger for his efforts in landing one of the annual high school sports basketball games at the Jerome court.

The high school cagers will play there Aug. 22. Directors of the series decided to play one game there and it is a direct tribute to Dellinger for his hard work in lining up the annual clinics and games.

Combs Friday evening and Bill Reuther will be situated on the outside butte with his portable television receiver bringing the Rocky Mountain and Joe Walcott and sports fans fanatical enough in their fight interest to brave the elements and sit on the hard cold ground.

The information of those who wish to attend, he will be setting up a receiver on the big butte east of the intersection of highways 25 and 26 east of Jerome, rather than on the east side of Tippecanoe corner as he did for the Max Payne-25 Charles fight last month.

Cowboys Rally in Ninth, But Drop 11-6 Decision To G.F.; Boise Here Tonight

The Great Falls Electric won the rubber game of their series with the Magic Valley Cowboys at Jaycees Park Tuesday night, winning 11-6, but those fans who left the ball park before the last inning, with the Cowboys trailing 11-0, missed most of the game. The Wranglers, held to two hits until the ninth by lefthander Sylvester Zacker, exploded for six runs, including a homerun by centerfielder Jim Scott, who had the bases loaded when the final out was recorded.

Wednesday night Boise moves to town for a one-night stand against the Cowboys. Game time is 8:15 p. m. Big Tom Hoffman probably will get the starting job for the Magic Valley team in the ninth inning Tuesday night Zacker had the Wranglers ejected from his hand and when he had two outs and a run on second it looked as if he were going to get his shutout.

Two explosive moments later he was in the showers and righthander Tom Pugh was on the mound trying to put out the fire. The first out which Zacker hit happened in that inning.

Spotlight Nick Merrill drew a walk on that inning but it wasn't enough for the Wranglers, but it wasn't gone for enough yet.

That was the end for Zacker with Pugh called in from the post. Pugh called in from the post.

The outfield is a definite problem with only Jim Scott in center fielding and only Jim Scott in center fielding.

REPORTS

Phillies Regain National League Lead; Yankees Clip Indians 7-0

A tense 1-1 pitching duel for eight innings erupted into a wild ninth inning Tuesday night as the Philadelphia Phillies took over the National League lead by defeating the St. Louis Cardinals 6-5 at St. Louis. A scratch infield single by rival pitcher Early Wynn hurled the New York Yankees to a 7-0 triumph over Cleveland before 55,469 applauding spectators, the largest crowd of the 1932 baseball season.

Wynn led off the Indians sixth with a roller down the third base line that eluded the charging Ford. Three Philadelphia batters came in fast and tried to make a banded pickup but the ball popped out of his grasp.

Phillie fans cheered for two runs in the 10th inning to provide the Chicago White Sox with a 9-7 victory over the Boston Red Sox at Boston. The game-winning hit was stroked against Bill Kennedy, a former pitcher, by the Sox.

Dom DiMaggio Follows Joe From Active Diamond Sport

BOSTON, May 19.—Dom DiMaggio, veteran Boston Red Sox centerfielder and the last of three DiMaggio brothers in major league baseball, announced his retirement Tuesday night.

DiMaggio's famous brother, Joe, retired as a member of the New York Yankees at the close of the 1931 season. His brother, Vincent, was at one time a member of the Boston Braves.

DiMaggio was considered one of the greatest centerfielders ever to wear the Red Sox uniform. Although his career was overshadowed by that of his brother, Joe, he was one of the team's top sluggers.

DiMaggio was a member of the Boston Braves. He hit better than 300 in four seasons. His best year was 1930 when he had an average of .328. In 1930—the year the Sox won the American League pennant—he hit .316 and was one of the keys in Boston's scramble for the title.

Gypsy Joe Pins Cummings in Grapple Match

Gypsy Joe pinned Bob Cummings twice Tuesday night to take the feature event in the weekly Radio Rowderoo mat card.

He took the first fall in 10 minutes and 46 seconds with a 20-man hammer. Cummings used a leg binder to take the second one in seven minutes 8 seconds. A block buster brought Gypsy Joe his second fall and the match in 8 minutes 11 seconds.

George Dusette whipped Mr. Bakala in straight falls in one of the semi-finals although the first one came when Bakala was disqualified by the referee after 13 minutes and 11 seconds. Dusette used a full Nelson to win the second fall in 9 minutes 10 seconds.

Apache Craig dropped the first fall to Gypsy Joe in 15 minutes. In a Japanese hip-lock in the opening match then came back to take the next two falls. He pinned Hayamaka with an arm and wrist lock in 5 minutes, 12 seconds then repeated the hold to take the deciding fall in 9 minutes 10 seconds.

Tom Odvick was referee and Junior Martin timekeeper.

THE BLOW INTO THE LEFT CENTER bleachers opened the Cubs long home stand before 8,977 paid customers in Wrigley field after a disastrous road record of losing 10 out of 12 games.

A heavy downpour forced postponement of the game here with the Pittsburgh Pirates leading the Cincinnati Redlegs 5 to 1 after two and a half innings at Cincinnati.

Jackson Hole Improvement Plan Is OK'd

WASHINGTON, May 13.—A contract has been signed for a five-million-dollar development program at Wyoming's Grand Teton national park, Secretary of the Interior McKay said Tuesday.

Under the contract, the entire present town of Moran will be removed five miles north to Colter Bay. McKay said the Grand Teton Lodge and Transportation company, which plans to move the town, also proposes to build a four-million-dollar, 1,000-guest lodge at the new site as well as a lake shore tourist village.

25-Year Project

McKay called the program "a culminating step in a project" which has been in progress for 25 years ago to preserve that part of Jackson Hole lying in the foreground of the most spectacular portion of the Teton range, and to make it and its lake setting readily accessible to the public.

McKay said the Grand Teton company is a subsidiary of the non-profit Jackson Hole Preserve, Inc.

All Buildings Moved

The announcement said all buildings now located in Moran will be moved to Colter bay. At the new site, on the shore of Jackson lake, plans call for the development of modern, low-budget tourist facilities.

In addition, the present Jackson lake lodge and Squaw-2 ranch buildings will be moved there.

The national park service will build roads and provide the necessary water supplies and sewerage facilities.

The former townsite of Moran will be restored to meadowland.

The new Jackson lake lodge will be prepared to offer accommodations comparable to any in the nation. It is scheduled for completion in 1935.

Gains Reported in Area Employment

Employment opportunities in Magic Valley showed a gain last week, according to R. S. Culler, Twin Falls employment security office manager.

Job openings received last week totaled 399 for an increase of 78 over the number recorded the previous week in Magic Valley. Of these openings, 201 were in agriculture.

The increase in employment opportunities was general throughout the state. State offices of the employment agency reported a total of 6241 job openings received last week. The bulk of the openings was in agriculture.

Cold and rainy weather delayed most thinning work in Magic Valley.

World tea production is estimated at 1,297,936,000 pounds annually.

Hearing Slated in Resident's Estate

A petition for probate of will of Jessie M. Frederickson, who died here April 27, was filed in probate court Wednesday and hearing on the petition was scheduled for 10 a.m. June 1 by Judge Everett M. Swesley.

The petition was filed by Carl W. Frederickson, husband and executor.

It lists property valued at not more than $6,750, including a $6,500 home and $250 worth of personal belongings.

Listed as an heir, in addition to Frederickson, is a son, J. Lawrence Hedin, Seattle, Wash.
