TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

Editor's note: Ray Tucker is on vacation during which the editorial staff will be in charge of the paper. The editorial staff of the Times-News is in charge of the paper during his absence.

By LAWRENCE A. COLLINS, Sr.

By no less an authority than Los Angeles superintendent of schools A. S. Stoddard, it should be the answer to our school problem. By the National Citizens' Committee for the Public Schools we are told that 40 per cent of school buildings now in use have been condemned and should be abandoned. And yet we use the soundest of them. We have only three-fourths of the school buildings that were used 10 months a year. It would be better to tear down a third or a fourth as many classrooms as are now in use.

POT SHOTS

LESSON ON DRUNKS

Perhaps some of you good connoisseurs saw some potatoes scattered on the walk in front of the postoffice the other day. We saw where they came from.

This fellow appeared in a well-dressed and fairly well-dressed, was carrying a paper sack of spuds. He was wearing a hat and a suit. He was walking in a very dignified manner. He was walking in a very dignified manner.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

The television speech with which Arthur Wicks, the Republican acting lieutenant-governor of New York, appealed to "the people" for a vote of confidence in the administration of Governor W. W. Averett, was a shocking cynicism expressed by any public official.

Wicks knows these workers did not organize the laboring men and women who have formed a government. It is by "the labor interest" he referred to the working men and women who have formed a government.

"FRINGE" TAXES NEXT?

In its eager search for new tax sources, the internal revenue service has turned a hard eye on the whole area of fringe benefits.

It's a complex, controversial subject. New legislation would probably be needed to make them an important new tax source. But it can be made to produce unpaired millions for the U. S. treasury, IRS officials believe.

There are a thousand-and-one examples of so-called fringe benefits.

Dining rooms for executives serve meals at prices below what it costs to buy and prepare the food. As the end of the year, an executive can save a couple hundred dollars this way. Yet he pays no tax on this equivalent of extra income, although the company includes it as an expense for its tax purpose.

Transit company employees get free rides for themselves and their families. This is worth a couple hundred dollars a year. Department store employees receive big discounts on their purchases at the store. Restaurant employees get free meals.

These are some of the small items which come under the general category of fringe benefits as the IRS experts analyze it. Courts cases and previous rulings have pretty well marked them as a factor in reportable income. And new laws could make them reportable.

A relatively new and expanding field of other benefits goes to just about every wage earner in the U. S. It is what really interests IRS officials. Health insurance plans are an example.

A firm pays all or part of an employee's hospitalization and medical insurance. IRS sees it as a form of compensation. But it isn't reported as an employee's earned income, in most cases.

Another firm maintains elaborate medical facilities for its employees and their families. This form of free medical attention is worth a great deal to the employee. The tax-free form of compensation, IRS officials point out. Yet it is not taxable and the company charges it off as an expense.

The cost is deductible by the firm and the recipient pays no tax on it.

Recreation facilities and low-cost cafeterias are two more examples of increasingly popular benefit companies are providing. Many firms are providing low-cost vacation facilities in the form of compensation, but not taxable under current regulations.

Executive vacations and recreation have also become an especially popular tax gimmick by large corporations. This gets into the whole area of just what are legitimate business expenses which the IRS is also looking into very carefully with an eye on extra revenues. There have been widespread abuses of the business-expense deductions, it is felt.

Also in the category of fringe benefits is the retirement plan. The problem of taxing retirement funds and payments is also very complex. But tougher interpretations and new laws could produce more revenues for the treasury, reports IRS officials believe.

The previous tax exemption of most fringe benefits is one of the things which has made them an increasingly important question in union bargaining. Any fringe benefit a union wins for its members is enhanced by being tax free.

There's no official estimate of what the total value of all fringe benefits given to all employees per year. But it runs in the billions of dollars. It is near the billion-dollar category. If the average U. S. wage earner gets $20 a year worth of them, the total is more than 1.24 billion dollars.

This at least makes it an interesting source of previously untaxed income, revenue service officials believe.

One of the problems of trying to tap this source is its cost of administration. It could be prohibitively high. Some way would have to be found to include it in the present pay-as-you-go system.

Certainly the idea would be fought by the unions and other groups.

FURTHER SUGGESTIONS—Some alternatives given in the report from the Los Angeles superintendent of schools are: increasing number of students to a room; holding classes in a school room under our present system but also a great shortage of teachers. They are used only for the portion of the year the rooms are free. As the end of the year, they are longer school year, they, too, would profit by larger annual income.

They are used only for the portion of the year the rooms are free. As the end of the year, they are longer school year, they, too, would profit by larger annual income.

SOLUTION MUST BE FOUND—We are approaching a point where something must be done to meet the needs of the growingly serious during the past 10 years. Our birthrate has grown far ahead of what the experts in 1940 predicted. We have come to a point where there is a real challenge to the school authorities and the parents of the nation.

The night school of a school, a custom originated so long ago that it is almost forgotten, is no longer practical. To say that system must be maintained because it always has prevailed will not solve the problem. It needs a positive approach.

LESSON FROM THE CRIME

The normal reaction to a kidnapping is that the kidnaper is a criminal. It is not that people who took the child from school and abduct someone else murdering him.

While driving near Twin Falls, we called the attention of the Son and Heir to our kidnapping. The kidnaper is a criminal. It is not that people who took the child from school and abduct someone else murdering him.

Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI

"On your way home from school, Jamie, stop at Mr. Green's shop and bring home the potatoes he will give you," a mother said to her young son.

Jamie nodded and went on his way. When he returned home in the afternoon, he put the bag of potatoes on the kitchen table. His mother noticed then that he was eating a chocolate bar.

"Did Mr. Green give you that?" she asked.

"No, he didn't give it to me," Jamie replied.

"Then how did you come by it?" asked Mr. Green for it.

"When Mr. Green's boy came, the chocolate bar was one of the items, also gumdrops and other candies. Jamie was asked if he had changed them, and with some slight hesitation, he admitted he had.

"Don't do it again," Jamie's mother said firmly. But he did not once more he was admonished not to charge things, but nothing was said to Mr. Green. The offense continued until the mother deemed it to be of sufficient importance to speak to the shopkeeper about it. He was told not to give the boy anything without written authority.

A charge account is a responsibility only for an adult; no child should, in ordinary circumstances, be permitted to charge items for himself—not until he has been trained concerning the proper value of money, the full conception of which comes late to youngsters. But they will learn it sooner if they are taught thrift immediately when they are old enough to receive an allowance.

First, they should spend something, if only to acquire an idea of how fast money goes. If held to their small allowance they may turn to trying to save something.

If they understand through modern experience what money means, what it can buy, within reason, and the value of saving, they will be able to grasp, by college entrance time, the necessity for managing their funds. Even then they should be supervised until they show they are able to handle their cash wisely, to keep within their stipulated allowance. Once they show they can do that, they should be on their own. But, even so, a charge account is dangerous and should only be granted when they have manifested that they are frugal in what they buy.

Does your child cry at bedtime or refuse to take his bath? You can change his habits by changing the way of doing things. Teacher Rule Is Revised by Board Deeds

BOISE, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Idaho board of education has authorized state teacher certification officer Rose Barney to waive the practice requirements for elementary and high school teaching certificates when the applicant has three or more years of satisfactory teaching experience.

Barney said this modification of regulations is effective immediately. It will continue in force until the teacher certification review committee submits its recommendations to the state board of education next April.

Verification Required
Applicants requesting a waiver of the requirement must secure verification from school districts where the experience was gained. The teaching service was satisfactory, Barney said.

"Receipt of the teaching experience will be a factor in determining acceptability of the teaching experience for waiver purposes," he said.

Initial Phase Completed
The teacher certification review committee, appointed in July 1951, to study the teaching service requirements, has completed the initial phase of its study, Barney said. The committee's findings are being submitted to the board of education for the study, the Idaho Congress of Parents and Teachers, the State Teachers' association, the Idaho Education association and Idaho Federation of Teachers.

Barney said these groups will report to the recently enlarged committee by Jan. 1 and the committee will turn over its recommendations to the state board in April.

Baked Texas Areas Hit by Good Rains

By United Press
The first big rain in four years swept drought-parched west Texas and the panhandle, but record-breaking hot, dry weather hung on in the midwest and east today.

The rains hit Texas as a big cold front smashed into the sun-baked states yesterday. As much as five inches were reported.

The droughty weather described in the first general rain of any significance in the area since 1949.

Topsoil Oklahoma farmers also got a soaking, with 5.60 inches reported at Lawton.

Normal temperatures today and overnight were scheduled to return to the west and central midwest sometime today and overnight.

But the Chicago weather bureau described the wet weather front as a northwesterly flow of dry air, indicating the east and midwest still may have to wait for rain.

One of the worst of the nation's history, prompted federal and state officials to move to ease conditions in 42 affected counties.

In Mississippi the Carroll crop bureau said a steady winter wheat acreage will fall below federal allotments in eastern and southwest areas if the drought lasts much longer.

The west Texas rains were described as a "godsend" for wheat farmers who, observers said, had "seeded and then got down on their knees to pray for heavy rain."

Man Convicted of Shooting at Stock

SHOSHONE, Oct. 23 (AP)—Boyd Johnston, District, was convicted of shooting at trespassing range cattle with a shotgun to keep them out of his field in justice court here Thursday.

The charge was filed by Bill McGuire and Bill Nelson, District. They said their cattle had been shot at and one had died from wounds inflicted by Johnston. Johnston told the court one of his horses was torn down and a crop in the field badly damaged by cattle.

Labor Policy Group Hears Cry of Alarm

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—CIO Steel Workers' union representatives continued their wage policy committee today with a pledge to wage an all-out drive against "anti-labor legislation" they were told to reverse the states.

Frank N. Hoffmann, UAW legislative representative in Washington, told the 170-man policy group Thursday legislation on state level is "sounding the death knell for organized labor in America." He urged committee members to persuade their locals to set up legislative committees to "safeguard our interests."

"How Union You?"

"How union you if you believe or disregard the fact that the UAW's announced policy of returning labor and all other legislative matters to the states?" Hoffmann said. "They have set out on that back-to-the-states movement, and with the full support of the National Association of Manufacturers and the chambers of commerce."

Adopted by 16 states

Hoffmann said 14 states already have adopted a "right-to-work" bill he said outside the union shop in future contracts. "They have just

Fire Season for Forests Is Ended

BOISE, Oct. 23 (AP)—The closed fire season in Idaho forests was lifted effective at midnight Thursday, Gov. Len Jordan's office announced.

The fire season had been extended beyond the normal closing date of Sept. 30 because of dry forest conditions. The season was first started on Oct. 18 and then on Oct. 30, but State Forester Roger Gustafson said recent rainfall has eased the fire hazard.

Gustafson said it appears "safe and desirable to terminate the closed fire season" in view of the recent rains and high humidity.

VA Policy for Care of Teeth Gets Revision

Veterans administration policy has been changed to allow veterans only one treatment of service-connected dental conditions, unless they are receiving disability compensation for the conditions.

Arnold Helges, local veterans administrator, said this limitation is made under the basic law of 1923 which authorizes administrators to provide what dental care is reasonably necessary to correct service-connected conditions.

Previously veterans have been receiving unlimited care under service-connected conditions.

Helges emphasized this limitation does not apply to veterans receiving disability compensation for dental disabilities.

Nor does it apply to those veterans who require treatment for dental conditions, whether service-connected or not, which are found to be aggravating another service-connected disability, Helges added.

Veterans whose treatment for non-compensable dental conditions already has been completed will not be eligible for further treatment of those conditions or disabilities.

Exceptions will be made, Helges said, for former prisoners of war who will receive as many dental treatments as are required to take care of disabilities found to have been caused by their imprisonment.

Mother of 5 Files Case for Divorce

Mrs. Shockey asks the court to award her custody of the children, $200 per month for their support, attorney fees and costs of the action. She also seeks an order restraining Shockey from molesting her or the family.

In the division of community property, she asks the court to award her their household furnishings and allow him to have their 1937 Plymouth automobile and some tools.
