

Court Names Local Man to Operate Firm

Probate Judge E. M. Sweetley appointed Harry Eaton special administrator for the $300,000 estate of A. M. Sande in order that Eaton may carry on Mr. Sande's business, the Twin Falls Feed and Ice company.

Eaton, represented by Stephan and Heap, pointed out that Mr. Sande died Thursday, but his will is in a safety deposit box and the key has not been found. Eaton expressed belief that he and Guy H. Shearer are named executors, but Shearer is away on vacation.

The estate is believed to exceed $300,000, including $172,858.87 in bank deposits, $147,000 in government bonds and the cold storage plant and produce warehouse believed worth at least $380,000. Eaton asked the appointment so he may carry on the business until the will can be probated.

Eaton expressed belief the estate was left to Einar and Per Sande and Arne Rommetvedt, nephews, all in one-tenth shares, and the remaining seven-tenths to children of the nephews.

He points out the nephews have been employees in the business and are capable of carrying on along with A. E. Williams, office manager, and have done so for several years while Mr. Sande was ill. If the business is not carried on, Eaton says there will be a great loss.

Appointment of Eaton was under $25,000 bond.

The color film showed forest wildlife and its habitat. Robert Tucker was program chairman.

President Dwayne Silvester announced new officers will be elected next Wednesday.

N. V. Sharp invited members to attend the 18th annual Idaho State Reclamation association convention Friday and Saturday.

Golden Jubilee minstrel show committees and participants were commended for their fine work by President Silvester.

Club guests were John Brimmer, Boise, and Sharp.

Choir Sings for Meeting of Club

A program of varied music was presented by the high school a cappella choir at the weekly meeting of the Rotary club Wednesday noon at the Legion hall.

Numbers varied from hymns to popular music. The 83-voice choir was directed by Belle Hessler.

It was suggested club members purchase a copy of the Scenic Idaho magazine containing a feature story on Twin Falls and Magic Valley and send the magazine to friends outside the valley, urging them to visit here.

Visiting Rotarians were A. E. Kilas, Buhl, and Alex Findlay, Boise. Club guests were James Lyle, Frank L. Young and Jay Patten, University of Idaho coaches and alumni officials, and Thomas McCarty, Chicago.

Ratings Won

PAUL, May 6—The Paul high school music department brought home six No. 1 ratings from the regional music festival in Pocatello. The band was the only class "D" band to win a No. 1 rating.

The girls chorus, the boys saxophone quartet composed of Raymond Spreiter, Jack Duff, Richard Sweet and Dennis Hunsaker, with a saxophone solo, Ronald Cole with a trumpet solo and Mary Sanford, who sang, also won top ratings.

Charge Dismissed

JEROME, May 5—William Chester Lewis, 21, Eden, who was charged with statutory rape, was released by Probate Judge Theron Ward Wednesday morning and the bondsmen discharged following a preliminary hearing. Judge Ward said the charges were dismissed for lack of evidence.

Judge Ward also fined a 13-year-old girl $50 for contempt of court for refusing to testify at the hearing.

Sentenced

GOODING, May 5—George D. Sproutles was sentenced to not more than 14 years in the state penitentiary Wednesday morning by District Judge D. H. Sutherland on a charge of embezzlement.

Sproutles was arrested for taking an automobile on trial from the Hub Motor company in Wendell and not returning it. The car later was recovered in Rupert with 10,000 additional miles on it.

Helicopter Delays Rescue

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)—A coast guard patrol boat picked up an injured fisherman today after the man was rescued by a helicopter because the whirling rotors threatened him.

Placed on Stern

Robertson was pinned in a small boat to the stern of the North Star helicopter could pick him up without damaging the 71-foot fish-vessel. But the little boat was so hard by the wind from the helicopter's rotor blades he re-leased him.

Robertson clung to the gunwale of the boat, the helicopter hovered over him. Finally, it turned back for the nearly gone, it turned back for the coast guard dispatched fastest patrol boat to the scene.

Savior Picked up

The patrol boat picked up Robert-son and returned him here at 12:30 EDT, nearly nine hours after North Star radioed its distress call.

He was taken to the U. S. Public Health Service hospital on Staten Island where the eye was treated.

Candidate Blasts Idaho's Senators

REXBURG, May 5 (AP)—Claude J. Burtenshaw, Rexburg, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for senator, has accused Idaho's two Republican senators of "near-sighted opposition" in taking a stand against the Eisenhower wool bill.

"It is a sad commentary on Idaho's Republican delegation to congress when it opposed the administration's honest attempt to solve the difficult farm problem," Burtenshaw said, referring to Senators Dworshak and Welker.

But he added that nonetheless he was "happy to see that despite this near-sighted opposition, the measure passed the senate."

Fat Stock Show Ends With Sales

IDAHO FALLS, May 5 (AP)—With sale of top grade swine, sheep and cattle, the 15th annual Idaho Junior Fat Stock show and sale ended last night.

High sheep sale of the evening was that of Delory Meppen of the Shelley chapter, Future Farmers of America. His animal was bought by the Rogers Bros. Feed company, Idaho Falls, for 49 cents per pound.

Floyd Morrow, Bonneville FFA, sold his prime hog to Floyd Skelton, Idaho Falls, for 39 cents per pound.

Top steer of the sale went for $29.25 per hundredweight to Skelton. The animal was offered by Richard Neff, Blackfoot.

Idaho Shorthorn Sale Is Scheduled

The Idaho Milking Shorthorn society will sponsor its ninth annual state sale at 1 p.m. next Wednesday, May 12, at the sales pavilion at Caldwell.

A buyers and breeders banquet is planned for 8:30 p.m. next Tuesday in the Dairyman's hall at Caldwell.

Everett J. Van Slyke, Wilder, will be the sale manager and Gus Heldebrecht, Inman, Kana, auctioneer. Bill Dixon, Hereford, Tex., national fieldman, will assist in the ring.

Consignors will be breeders from throughout the northwest, including several Magic Valley herds.

Thousands ask us why "It's the Water"

OLYMPIA BEER

This question first was asked prior to the turn of the century, when the rare flavor of Olympia Beer could be enjoyed only by the few pioneers living within a day's wagon-ride of Olympia, Washington. The answer to the question then holds true today...

The delightful, unvarying flavor and purity of Olympia Beer cannot be obtained without the naturally perfect brewing water from our own artesian wells. Olympia's skilled Master Brewers attempted, in years gone by, to duplicate the quality of Olympia Beer at other locations, using other waters. The results never satisfactorily approached the unchanging quality and refreshing flavor that have come to be the hallmarks of Olympia.

That is why we confine the brewing of Olympia Beer to our one plant at the site of our artesian wells, and why so many who appreciate a superb, sparkling beer agree...

CRIME RATE SERIOUS

When anyone views juvenile delinquency or crime in general with great alarm, he can always count on some earnest second-thinkers to arise and say:

"Now just wait a minute. We've always had these problems. It's no different today from what it was 20 or 30 years ago. You simply don't remember the old days. Let's not exaggerate this situation. Let's keep it in perspective."

Well and good. Perspective and balance and caution are fine things. But, taken as a whole, statements like the above are just not accurate any more. It is not true that the crime problem is no worse than in years gone by.

The latest FBI figures on major crimes in America are offered in evidence. If crime totals were shown to be rising at roughly the same rate as the population is increasing, that would lend substance to a contention that the problem isn't changing much. But the statistics don't show that.

What they do disclose is that since 1950 the population has risen five per cent, but crime has gone up 20 per cent. In other words, by a ratio of 4 to 1, it is increasing faster than the population. There is small comfort here for those who want to insist that the problem isn't any worse than it used to be.

Except for murder, all categories of crime increased in 1953. But there were nearly 13,000 cases of murder or negligent manslaughter, which is not much to cheer about.

Youths under the age of 21 account for slightly more than 50 per cent of all the nation's major crimes against property—robbery, burglary, larceny, automobile theft, and so on. Since there were in 1953 more than 1,700,000 such crimes, that means our young people were involved in some 500,000.

No one can say that there are not many Americans who are alert to both the general and the juvenile crime problem, though it is perhaps a question whether enough of us grasp the full seriousness of these matters.

But the real point made by these shocking statistics is that we do not seem to have found suitable answers, or, if we have, we are not applying them with sufficient vigor and breadth. The problem is not being licked. It is getting worse. And it's no good blaming it all on "postwar reaction." That doesn't stop it.

A lot of people scoff at presidential commissions, but there might be genuine value on one devoted to crime. President Eisenhower might well gather together members of the judiciary, law enforcement officers, criminologists, penologists, psychologists, all those who know anything about crime in particular and the social fabric of the country in general.

From their considered study we just might get the kind of sweeping, bold assault on this problem that it requires if law-abiding Americans are to remain masters in their own house.

PEACE HOPES DAMPENED

Foreign minister Chou En-lai of red China got the Geneva festivities off to a bumping start by stating demands on Asia which the west cannot possibly agree to.

He wants the west to get out of Asia altogether, to abolish all foreign military bases, withdraw all troops and stop remilitarizing Japan. He offers, in other words, a perfect prescription for the communist capture of the Orient.

Since Chou En-lai understands very well that the West will not meet these absurd demands, why is he bothering to make them?

Obviously he is thinking of the propaganda effect, for one thing. It is no secret that the western powers are not popular in Asia, even when they appear there in defense of Asian liberties. Everything they do is tainted with the memory of colonialism.

The communists, as we all know, have for years shrewdly exploited anticommunism and all the awakening urges of the long dormant Asiatics. Chou En-lai plays on this theme with a call for an all-Asiatic mutual security pact. "Asia for the Asiatics" is the slogan.

The only trouble, of course, is that he doesn't mean Asia for all Asiatics—just some. He means Asia for Asiatic communists, allied with the Soviet Union not in uplifting but exploiting the Asian masses.

Chou En-lai's demands also may be the signal that the reds do not expect or want any settlement to come out of Geneva. The spirited pre-Geneva campaign waged by Secretary of State Dulles has probably greatly lessened the prospect that the communists could successfully woo the French into an illusory truce which would in time prove to be a sweeping red political triumph in Indo-China.

Since that may be so, and since the communists would never agree to a really honest settlement, they may have decided to fall back on their old tactics of using an international meeting solely to puff themselves up and to try to discredit the west.

It is always conceivable, on the other hand, that Moscow and friends may later modify demands as a demonstration of "sweet reasonableness." Most nations, once having taken an extreme stand, are frozen in it. But communist countries put attitudes on and take them off like a change of clothes, depending on the tactics of the moment.

This element of unpredictability is never quite missing from any conference where the reds are in attendance. But on the basis of early appearances, as measured by Chou En-lai's extremism, the outlook at Geneva is not promising.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower's economic advisers have postponed until September the time when they will decide whether deteriorating business conditions require a "shot in the arm" in the form of a "stimulus" emergency program to check the so-called depression.

This decision furnishes a top-off White House thinking on this question. In the past, administration confidence that there will be a sharp upturn during the summer months. Industrialists attending the U. S. Chamber of Commerce convention here last week also forecast improvement. Some think it will start next month.

NO PARTISAN POLITICS WITH ECONOMIC SYSTEM—Secondly, it suggests that Eisenhower will not play partisan politics with the economic problem. For it is obvious that if he waits until September to intervene, it will be too late for government action to reverse the trend or improve the Republican position before the November elections. Democratic control of congress is generally conceded, if business does not pick up.

Yet every worthwhile politico in both parties believes that the November outcome will hang on pocketbook issues rather than McCarthyism, communism or even the war in Indochina.

"IKE'S" GAMBLE—"Ike" is admittedly taking a heavy gamble, reminiscent of his selection of a day for the Normandy invasion. He is motivated by his determination to try to substitute a full, peacetime economy for a system based on wartime and defense spending, artificial props and federal handouts of every variety.

He deliberately defies the challenge of the Democrats' extreme liberal faction, headed by Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt, New York, Sens. Paul H. Douglas, Illinois, and Hubert H. Humphrey, Minnesota, and Walter P. Reuther, OIO president.

They insist upon immediate application of first aid by Washington, such as greater tax reductions, easier money, public works, peak subsidies, increased unemployment and social security benefits. It is an extremely popular cry on voting eve.

FOR JR.'S SCHEMES—As a prospective candidate against Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Roosevelt has introduced what he calls an "all reconstruction" bill, embodying these schemes. It is a direct thrust at "Ike's" philosophy. However, it has not won the support of the Democratic leadership, which looks upon it as a political ploy for nomination and election.

In fact, conservative Democrats, even though they would profit politically from another slide, favor the White House policy. They agree that the transitional experiment of shifting from a Washington-controlled and financed system to a private peacetime economy should be continued.

IMPROVED STUDY—"Ike's" scouts, however, have sharpened and improved their study of unemployment figures. They consider this trend as the clearest indication of economic prospects.

They have finally fixed 5,000,000 jobless as the "peril point," or as evidence of a situation which would require federal action. Assuming that the labor force totals 60,000,000 now, that would constitute about 8.4 per cent of the working population, far less than the percentages on the street in previous depressions.

The current number of out-of-work people is estimated at 3,700,000, and the average monthly increase has been about 50,000. But it is hoped that the May-June rise in seasonal operations—construction, farming, vacations, etc.—will reduce that figure. New housing, road and private building may also furnish new jobs, absorbing thousands of June's high-school and college graduates.

THE BASIC MEANING—In short, Eisenhower avowedly strives at some risk to check and reverse a 20-year-old economic trend and philosophy. Since 1933, our production and consumption system has been sustained and expanded, to a great degree, by federal money and measures. They were employed because of the depression, the war, European and world recovery, the Korean conflict and the Russian menace.

Eisenhower insists that we must eventually stand on our own feet, with minimum government support. That is the broad and basic meaning of his greatest gamble.

VIEWS OF OTHERS

A HAPPY REUNION

One of the most intense human dramas in an era of struggle has come to a happy end. Peter and Constantin Georgescu now are in New York, reunited with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Valeriu C. Georgescu.

A little less than a year ago a communist Romanian diplomat, was expelled from the United States for having tried to coerce Mr. Georgescu into "political collaboration" with the Romanian "people's" government, possibly involving espionage, in order to obtain safety for the boys. The two sons had been left in Romania while their parents were on a business trip to America when the reds took over Romania.

Mr. Georgescu replied, "I don't intend to sell my conscience," and though they had not seen their children in six years, Mrs. Georgescu joined him in this resolution. They had become American citizens and sworn to support the United States government. They reported the matter to the state department.

They decided the only chance of protecting the boys lay in "letting the world know" what had happened. A Voice of America broadcast warned the communist government that the fate of the boys was "the sacred trust of the people of Romania." The mother begged them to understand that the price asked for their ransom was one "no honorable man can pay."

More recently President Eisenhower, at the recommendation of Representative Frances P. Bolton of Ohio, wrote a personal letter to the Romanian government requesting their release. On April 10 the boys were allowed to leave Bucharest with a member of the American legation to meet their father in Munich. The state department said no concessions had been made to obtain the release; all appeals were on humanitarian grounds.

The world can rejoice with the Georgescus at this happy reunion. All four have given an example of fortitude and of the courageous way to deal with blackmail.—Christian Science Monitor.

RISKS AT THE WHEEL

Don't threaten to divorce your back-seat-driver wife—she not only means it all for the best but may be succeeding better than you know. Reporting findings of the Better Vision Institute, Science Digest notes that "a reasonable amount of visual and auditory distraction is more a help than a hindrance while driving."

In other words, a moderate amount of distraction may raise your driving efficiency. The idea seems to be that it keeps you on your mental toes whereas otherwise you might doze off and land in a jam.

We have all heard that a child's powers of concentration are limited. Now it turns out that even with adults, it's normal to concentrate for only about 18 seconds at most on any one aspect of a situation. The scientists claim that anything taking attention longer will act as counterdistraction and become annoying, or bring on sleepiness by hypnotic effect.

Statistics show, according to Science Digest that the states with the most cars, pedestrians, crooked streets and general roadside distractions have the lowest accident rates.

It would seem that the most dangerous ride one could devise would be to tour Nevada at high speed leaving one's wife at home. But we'll fly in the face of experts by speculating that it would be even more hazardous to drive slowly into Las Vegas with a strange blond.—Denver Post.

WILL CORDON BE FORGOTTEN?

Washington correspondent Robert Smith writes that Secretary McKay is itching to get into the senatorial race next fall, especially if his bete noir, Wayne Morse campaigns for Dick Neuberger. We may expect plenty of fur to fly as the above three are redoubtable campaigners. Senator Cordon, up for reelection, has never done much campaigning; and if McKay, Morse and Neuberger get to trading punches, Cordon may become the forgotten man of the campaign.—Baltimore Statesman.

POT SHOTS

NOTHING!

Dear Potso:

I couldn't believe my eyes! I was reading all about the frost damage to fruit trees when I came across this little gem, and I quote:

"The pear crop was hit hardest but apricots, cherries and peaches seem to be all gone."

Fonder that if you will. The pear crop was hit hardest. So damage to any other type of fruit would be presumed to be less would it not? Okay—BUT, apricots, cherries and peaches seem to be all gone. Now the damage to apricots, cherries and peaches just has to be less than the damage to pears, because pears were hit hardest.

'Twould appear there just might be a few stumps left for a lot of apricot, cherry and peach trees.

COLLECTOR'S ITEM

The fellow apparently is a salesman from Boise. He was talking about his various trips around Idaho. Then he glanced nervously at his watch and announced, "I think I should have another ticket by now for overtime parking."

So he relaxed. Some time later, he was asked if maybe he shouldn't go see about his overtime parking ticket. "Oh, I got lots of 'em," he said. "Dunno where they're all from, some here, some at Pocatello."

But if you live in Twin Falls, it appears collecting overtime parking tickets could be a rather expensive hobby.

ANENT VALUES

A guy came in the other day, started talking about the big fire in the cleaning plant next door. Itemized all the clothing he'd lost in the fire.

"You know, that $12 pair of slacks cost me at least $50," he explained. "And I always buy $150 suits. Wouldn't think of wearing any of those cheap $75 suits."

Now don't you suppose the operators of that cleaning plant would have been just a trifle nervous if they'd known what expensive clothes they've been handling all these years?

ANY LEFT?

Dear Gent:

Looks like no one ever will get back to the point where private energy, capital and initiative will be used. No use of me being a rugged individual any more. Matter of fact, that's turning into ragged.

I realize I'm maybe just a few billion dollars too late, but if any of all that stuff is left, I would stoop to accept a few paltry thousands. In exchange for this, I would be willing to let "the government" tell me how to get dressed in the morning and what I should eat for breakfast.

C. C. ANDERSON'S

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

NEW YORK—Arthur J. Goldsmith, the mysterious political agent who lurks in the Waldorf tower, was interviewed during the war by a detective from a government intelligence agency regarding Francis Adams Henson, also known as Liggett, the educational director of the United Auto workers of the AFL.

This is an almost inoperative, standby union of the AFL, which issued charters to taxicab union Westbrook Parker racketeers in the city of New York. Six of these charters, held by Johnny Dio, a known ex-convict, now serving another hitch in prison, were revoked a few days ago after a delay of about two years since the expose.

Henson is an old-campus communist who also worked as a gum-shoe investigator in Washington during the war, mainly for a thing called Union for Democratic Action. His brand of communism was the Trotsky line. His leaders were Jay Lovestone and Irving Brown, stooges of Dave Dubinsky, of the Garment Workers' union, who also have connections with the sinister central intelligence agency of the Washington government.

Apologists for Lovestone and Brown insist that they have ceased to be Bolsheviks with a declared purpose of destroying the American government by bloody revolution, but none of these defenders has put forth a single word of proof of apostasy in more than two years of controversy.

Nevertheless, President Eisenhower has publicly endorsed Brown's clandestine interferences in the affairs of more or less friendly nations in Europe and the Orient, financed by our money and handouts from Dubinsky's union.

And the President also signed a mysterious testimonial, book gotten up by Congressman Hugh Scott, Philadelphia, and Clifford P. Case, New Jersey, and Sherman Adams, assistant to the President, stating that Goldsmith was a fine citizen. Scott and Case have seemed ashamed of their part in this, for nothing can draw a straight-forward statement from them of the text or of the provocation for it.

You probably are at least as good a citizen as Arthur J. Goldsmith, but the odds are many millions to one that you have no such citation nor feel the lack of one. Jim Hagerty, the President's secretary, said that if Ike did sign it, it was just a casual, hurried act in a busy day shortly after the election.

However, the fact keeps bobbing up that two brothers of the President, Milton, a reasonable facsimile of a Roosevelt New Dealer, and Arthur, the Kansas City banker, both made connections with Goldsmith, or vice versa, about that time.

They had rooms adjacent to Goldsmith's secret political headquarters in the Waldorf tower. That would seem to be an innocent coincidence but all concerned have acted as though they had something to hide. To that we may add the fact that Goldsmith, from his tower, has been trying to pick senators for the people of other states by hoisting money into their primaries and elections. His revealed purpose in Nevada is to get an "internationalist" in place of Pat McCarran, D., who is anti-communist and a constitutional nationalist.

Midget Stickleback Is Rabid Fighter

Despite size, most mature animals have their own home-territory, making its boundaries, one way or another, and fighting to defend it. With some, the territory is large. A mountain lion, which kills a deer a week, may roam an area miles in diameter; a bear may patrol four square miles; a cottontail may confine himself to an acre tract; a meadow mouse may be quite content with a quarter-acre or less.

Often, it is much easier to shadow a small animal—so let us consider the stickleback, a midget fish about 3 inches long, and found in most American streams. Without scales, he usually is matted with plates. On his back he has spines—sharp thorns. His life is short; three years is a lifetime and he usually dies as he lived, by the sword.

During the first year of his life—as with most immature mammals—he gathers with his own kind in small friendly groups. But with the coming of the second summer, when he is mature, each male selects a territory for his very own—and defends it fiercely against all comers, fighting intruding males to the death.

Territory established, he builds a muffled nest, about the size of a large hickory nut, on the bottom of the stream, composed of bits of straw, sticks, leaves and sand glued together with a silk-like strand which he produces from an internal gland as a spider does his web.

That done, he assumes his brightest nuptial colors, glowing shades of red and blue. Thus equipped, he importunes females to stock his lair. One after another, he entices them to follow him, pointing his head into the entrance of his home, and they obligingly deposit their eggs which he covers with his milt until the nest is filled. Then he enters it and mounts guard, his head thrust out to watch for enemies. When the young are born, he watches over them jealously for several days—meanwhile remaining remarkably voracious and extremely destructive to the unguarded fry of all other fishes.

Throughout this period he remains highly pugnacious. Cruel to the weak, insolent to the strong, this little tyrant is always seeking a fight and should even a much bigger fish approach, he will charge out with spines erect to give battle. And usually, he wins the invaders.

This, of course, is within the vicinity of his nest—his home-town territory. There he is strong—his home is his castle. There, with a fine contempt for death, he is a raging fury and will dart at his opponent recklessly and strive to get a position which will enable him to slit open his opponent with his sharp spines. In this action, the thrust and counterthrust is so fast that the eye can scarcely follow it.

His fighting success, however, is always in direct proportion to his proximity to home base. In the immediate vicinity to his nest, even the smallest stickleback is a giant and will rout a much larger interloper.

But the farther he strays from headquarters, the more his flags.

Now should he meet the stickleback, the outcome of the contest is certain—that one which is lost away from his nest will be the contest.

The vanquished invariably homeward, and the victor, away by his success, gives chase far into the vanquished main. But again, the farther victor goes from his own home, more his courage ebbs while the conquered rises. Arrived at his home grounds, the fugitive new strength, turns about, dashes with gathering fury at pursuer. A new battle joins, it ends with absolute certainty in the defeat of the former and off goes the chase again in opposite direction.

The pursuit is repeated a times in alternating direction, swinging like a pendulum, until last reaches a state of equilibrium at a certain point, the border at which the fighting potential of contestants are equally balanced. That line, then, becomes the border of their territories.

The stickleback's life, in miniature is much greater than just that of two tiny fish. Multiplied, the fence of territory—becoming er as the defense nears home—plays a principle of great importance in the make-up of great blooded animals. It is particularly noticeable in birds whose aerial lions can be observed quite who, for example, hunt for male birds chasing each other exactly the same manner? Or munks? Or squirrels? Or beart mountain lions? Or, need I say man beings?

Vote Set

Polls and voting hours for the proposed Buhl soil conservation district election are announced by C. W. Daigh, Twin Falls, polling superintendent.

Polls will be open from 2 until 9 p.m. May 18 at Jasper's service station in Filer, Clover school house, Castleford Grange hall, Liberne Grange hall and the Andy Anderson Motor company in Buhl.

All landowners and wife or husband in the proposed district are eligible to vote.

Bond Plan Is Proposed for State's Roads

KETCHUM, May 5—A 50-million dollar highway bond issue for Idaho, to be paid off with anticipated gasoline tax revenue, was recommended Tuesday noon by Clark Hamilton, candidate for Democratic nomination for governor, in a talk to the Ketchum Rotary club.

Hamilton told the club meeting at the Alpine club in regular weekly session, that tourists would pay off the issue in 20 years through gasoline taxes, giving the state free roads and the advantages of increased tourist business.

The potential tourist business is the greatest industry available to the state and could be increased 10 times "if only we had the roads and people were informed about Idaho," he asserted.

The candidate, introduced by Sen. Richard Ransom, R., Blaine, called for a return to the school districts, counties and cities the prerogatives of local government which, he said, the last two Republican administrations had taken away from them.

"All the unnecessary regulations and dictations from the statehouse in Boise are contrary to democratic government," he said.

Services Held for Lloyd Wesson, 15

GLENNS FERRY, May 5—Funeral services for Lloyd Raymond Wesson, 15, were held Monday at the LDS church with Bishop A. Carl Anderson officiating. The speaker was Elder Dale Goodson, high school teacher and adviser of the freshman class, of which Raymond was a member.

The opening prayer was offered by Elmer Wayne Jones and the obituary was read by Elder Earl Harmon. The mixed choir sang two numbers. Benediction was given by Elder Harmon.

Palbearers were Douglas Eggers, James Irving, Rodney Smith, Merrill Davis, Wayne Scott, all Hammett, and David Thompson, Mountain Home. Concluding services were held at Glenn Rest cemetery with Bishop Anderson dedicating the grave.

The Veteran of Foreign Wars annual poppy day will be observed Saturday, May 15, in Twin Falls, according to Mrs. James Berkeley, chairman.

The date has been approved by the city council and also will be VFW poppy day in Jerome and Kimberly, she announces.

Proceeds from the sale will go toward operating expenses of the home for widows and orphans of veterans at Baton Rapids, Mich., and assistance to local needy veterans.

The "buddy" poppies are made by hospitalized veterans who are paid for their work.

Rites Conducted

BURLEY, May 5—Graveside rites were conducted at Pleasant View cemetery Wednesday afternoon for David Lee Bailey, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Weston. D. Bailey, who died shortly after birth Tuesday at Mountain Home.

Surviving besides the parents are the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Evans-Burley, Mrs. Albert Harrison, Rupert, and Claude Bailey, LeGrande, Ore.

Concluding rites were conducted by LDS Bishop Sylvan Morley under the direction of the McCulloch-Burley funeral home.

Nights Unbearable to Itching Skin?

Relief beyond belief for fiery, itching, irritation, with specially medicated Resinol—the ointment rich in lanolin. Soothes and oils tender skin—lessens desire to scratch—thus aids healing.

Housework Easy Without Nagging Backache

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slow down of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some every day condition, such as a strain and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passage. Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 60 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's gives happy relief from these discomforts—helps the kidneys, helps the bladder and flushes out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Hospital Needs Loyalty, Not Criticism, to Achieve Success

all its exceptional facilities, it also should stand to reason in everyone's mind that no "quotas" are placed on the number of cases it will accept in any given time. Any such claims obviously are ridiculous.

"One criticism of our hospital has been its size. As was previously explained, the hospital's capacity was figured to fill a definite need not only in providing for future growth in population, but in making highly specialized services possible. We should not overlook the importance of the part the hospital would play in case of disaster, epidemic or some serious accident in which scores of people might be seriously injured.

"As to the claims that hospitalization in Magic Valley Memorial costs too much," that point already has been fairly well explained. It should be added, however, that the cost of hospitalization is determined to a large extent by the condition of the patient. In critical cases such as pneumonia, for example, the use of oxygen and antibiotics is costly, yet these treatments are saving human lives which otherwise might be lost.

"The people, to gain a clear picture of what hospitalization itself is actually costing them, should segregate the different expenses and classify them accordingly, instead of thinking of the total sum as the 'hospital cost.' They should realize, also, that the greater the threat, the greater will be the expense of saving that life. After all, who wants to tack a cost price on the saving of human lives?

"Another angle to consider from that same standpoint, for instance, is what it might have cost the same pneumonia patient 20 years ago. Likely as not he would have been in the hospital for weeks, possibly months. Many of such patients died and others had to undergo complicated chest surgery. Now that same patient is usually out of the hospital in approximately a week and back to work within two or three weeks without all the former danger, expense and loss of time.

"If we are going to consider costs alone, we must remember we are dealing with human lives, not a cow, a piece of machinery, or anything of the kind. When a patient becomes seriously ill you want the best possible care you can get. Besides, it's not always possible for a patient to go elsewhere for hospitalization. Every day, week after week, we have patients brought to Magic Valley Memorial who probably would have died had they taken the additional time to go elsewhere. Particularly is that true in emergency situations.

"It should also stand to reason that there is a distinct handicap in any emergency if a doctor has his patients in different hospitals. Where would the doctor be, for instance, if a patient were hemorrhaging in one hospital and another suffered a heart attack at the same time in another institution? If a doctor has his patients all in one hospital, with all facilities together, he can see them oftener, pay them closer attention and be closer at hand should emergencies arise.

"There is still another point both the patient and the doctor should consider—loyalty to the hospital in their own community. Magic Valley Memorial is our own institution, built and maintained by our taxpayers. Obviously it will be more economical for all of us to give our own institution first consideration whenever we think of hospitalization. All things being equal, not only the doctors but the patients as well should have pride and a feeling of responsibility toward their own hospital.

"Furthermore, if we hear rumors or criticisms about the hospital, let's first get the facts from the administrator direct, instead of being apathetic.

"We should all keep in mind that in working toward higher standards, it is not only necessary for the hospital board and the doctors to be interested in the hospital, but they both must have the support of the public. That's the goal we now are trying to achieve."

Dr. Schow also made some observations from his personal standpoint as a general practitioner, inasmuch as there has been considerable discussion in this vicinity about general practitioners (family doctors) and the specialists.

"A general practitioner is a man who has had broad training in all fields of medicine," he said, "even though he may have particular interests in certain fields. With his general knowledge about all medicine, he is capable of handling well

Swap

LANSING, Mich., May 5 (AP)—Mayor Albert E. Cobo traded jobs today with Robert Wallace, mayor of the tiny village of Britton, Mich., in Michigan's "operation big switch."

Mayors and village presidents of 392 municipalities exchanged posts as part of the observance of "Michigan week."

The one-day exchange is designed to give the officials an idea of the way other municipalities are run.

Cobo will spend the day chatting with Britton's 517 residents while Wallace takes over as the top executive in the nation's fifth largest city.

A majority of the cases coming to his office.

"But to be a good general practitioner requires humbleness and the ability to foresee complications beyond his qualifications, which will afford him the opportunity of calling in the certain specialist who may be required to handle that complication. In so handling that complication, the specialist in turn will take over only that portion of the care the general practitioner is not capable of providing. That makes for the best of working relationships between conscientious doctors primarily concerned with the welfare of their patients."

"As Dr. Johnson said in his report after making a medical audit of our hospital: 'One definition of a good doctor is that he is one who knows his own limitations and calls for help when he needs it ... for the benefit of the patient.'"

Public Assistance Payments Are up

BOISE, May 5 (AP)—Public assistance payments to 10,222 Idaho families totaled $700,321 in February, an increase of less than $4,000 over January. State Commissioner of Public Assistance Bill Child said yesterday.

Old-age assistance accounted for $493,614 of the total, as compared with $493,738 in January. The number of old-age pensioners declined 13 during the month to 9,973.

Hagerman Senior Events Scheduled

HAGERMAN, May 5.—Commencement exercises for 25 Hagerman high school seniors will be held at 8 p. m. May 13 at the high school gymnasium.

The program includes a march by the high school band under direction of Howard Humphrey, invocation by LDS Bishop D. H. Gold, address of the valedictorian, Garn Fenford, class presidency by John Green, class song by Janet Sherwood, song by the glee club, address of the salutatorian, Joyce Claiborne, and a talk by D. T. T. Tucker, Idaho State college, Pocatello. Benediction will be given by Elder Charles Vreeland of the Reorganized LDS church.

Baccalaureate services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the high school gymnasium. The professional will be played by Ann Evans. Invocation will be given by Bishop Gold. The speaker will be the Rev. J. D. Crego, pastor of the Methodist church. Elder Charles Vreeland of the Reorganized LDS church will give the benediction.

Leadership is many things

Inspiration, for instance, because Coca-Cola was born in the dream of an Atlanta pharmacist who believed a soft drink should be both delicious to taste and refreshing to the spirit. His inspired blending of "good things from nine sunny climes" created the favorite drink of four generations of Americans—Coca-Cola.

It was imagination that conceived the idea of world-wide distribution, bringing Coca-Cola within easy reach of those who seek refreshment. Today, Coke makes a pause refreshing anytime in a busy day. It brings a moment of relaxation after a seventh inning rally ... sets a goal for youngsters romping into the house after play ... becomes part of hospitality when guests arrive.

Vigilance ... constant vigilance ... maintains the continuous quality of Coca-Cola. Each ingredient is tested for taste, strength and purity. The water is treated and made neutral to taste. Trained personnel check each step in the bottling process.

Behind all this is the character of those who produce Coca-Cola.

Soil Is Topic
By Panel for
Jerome Meet

JEROME, May 5—H. E. Gundelinger, Hazelton banker, speaking as a member of the panel on soil conservation Friday night at the annual soil conservation program, stated that unless farmers prosper, by the adopting of good soil conservation practices, the whole community suffers from a health and monetary standpoint.

More than 250 persons attended the program at the junior high school auditorium. Boyd Freeman was master of ceremonies. William Lutz introduced the north side district supervisors and the personnel of the soil conservation offices at Jerome and Hazelton.

A report on district activities was given by E. E. Adams. He said soils maps for the district are nearly completed and that it is the desire of the supervisors to place them in the hands of every farmer as soon as possible.

A quartet composed of C. R. N. Shepherd, R. J. Reichard, Harold Rediker and Keith Johanson sang. Mrs. Kenneth Lavens, auxiliary president, introduced Mrs. Sam Eakin and Mrs. Lutz, who presented ribbons and prizes to winners of the annual poster contest.

Jack Farrar, Twin Falls, was moderator for the panel on soil conservation. He stressed the need for soil conservation in irrigated areas. John Wiswall explained the advantages and disadvantages of contour irrigation and demonstrated the contour plan for fields where potatoes are to be planted.

Virgil S. Cross, county agent, explained that farmers are losing up to five dollars an acre when they burn off the stubble which is needed to prevent soils from washing away.

Robert Hilliard spoke on pasture management. He said that through the use of good pasture and management he has been able to put cattle on the market with feeding a very limited amount of grain.

Guy Hunter stressed the importance of windbreaks to eliminate wind erosion.

Ross O. Lee, church leader, concluded the panel by discussing the moral responsibilities. He told of the number of civilizations which have been wiped out through misuse of the soil.

'Mayhem'
SYDNEY, Australia, May 5 (AP)—A small boy visiting the U. S. destroyer O'Bannon took only three minutes to throw the warship into turmoil.

The boy—one of 10,000 visitors—wandered to the vessel's bridge and pulled every lever within reach. In rapid succession he: Sounded the general alarm, calling the crew to battle stations. Sounded the chemical alarm, used only for atom-bomb attacks. Ordered full speed ahead all engines with the ship's telegraph. He was just about to send a message on the destroyer's heliograph to the U. S. carrier Tarawa moored astern when the O'Bannon's deck officer sprinted onto the bridge to find out what was going on.

The U. S. naval craft spent four days in Sydney to celebrate the Coral sea battle victory of May, 1942. They sailed yesterday for Melbourne.

Plans Completed
For Youth Camp

HAGERMAN, May 5—An all-day planning meeting for a youth camp was held Saturday at the Reorganized LDS church. Seventy Russell F. Ralston, Salt Lake City, was in charge of the meeting.

Other officers present included Seventy Houston Hobart, Billings, Mont.; Seventy G. Wayne Smith, Twin Falls; Elder Cecil Gilmore, Boise; Elder Tom Utlican, Rupert, and Elder Lyle Gilmore. Hobart was named camp director; Lyle Gilmore will be assistant director.

The church camp is located near Pocatello and will be held in June. Mrs. Howard Carlson was hostess to the youth camp committee at luncheon Saturday. Communion services were held Sunday with Pastor Lyle Gilmore in charge. Elder Lyle Gilmore was guest speaker.

GOODING, May 5—Home demonstration day for Gooding county will be observed Saturday, Wilma Talley, home demonstration agent, announces. Everyone in the county is invited to attend the event at the Bliss school gymnasium at 10 a. m.

Cecil Hobday, Gooding county prosecuting attorney, will be the main speaker. Exhibits of food and work done by the various clubs will be on display. Potluck lunch will be served at noon. The afternoon program will start at 2 p. m.

Mrs. Talley and the home demonstration council are in charge of arrangements. Mrs. M. A. McCloud, Wendell, is president of the council. Mrs. Damon Shultz, Wendell, is vice president and Mrs. J. V. Bumgarner, Gooding, is secretary and treasurer.

Speaker Tells of Fertilizer Sales

FILER, May 5—There have been reports of unlabeled fertilizer being sold in the county, R. H. Dalton, Twin Falls county Farm Bureau organization representative, told the Filer community Farm Bureau Monday.

The Idaho code states that every parcel of mixed commercial fertilizer shall have printed on it the net weight, name brand or trade mark, name and address of the manufacturer and the minimum percentage and source of nitrogen, potash, phosphorus and "any other material from which a benefit is claimed."

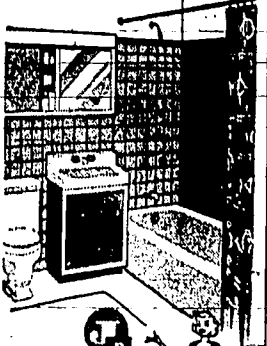

Monroe Hays, Twin Falls county Farm Bureau secretary, reported that state funds for the control of brucellosis and banga disease have been exhausted for the first six months period.

Government May Sell Surplus
Butter on Markets Overseas

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—The government appears to be looking to foreign markets—rather than to domestic consumers—as an outlet for most of its 350-million-pound stock of surplus butter.

Wilbur G. Carlson, agriculture department expert in charge of foreign market developments for livestock and dairy products, said in an interview the government already has potential overseas markets for 180-million pounds.

The butter was acquired under the government's price support operations.

Agriculture Secretary Benson told a news conference Monday that negotiations are under way for sale of some 40 million pounds to Great Britain.

Carlson mentioned Egypt and India as other possible butter markets.

Any such sales would be at prices considerably below the government's current selling price of about 59 cents a pound, Benson said. They would be at world price levels—about 47 cents a pound, wholesale.

The government has not yet come up with plans for disposing of some of the surplus butter to American consumers at cut-rate prices. Two months ago Benson said such sales would be made. But he told a news conference the government is having difficulty working out a plan that would prevent sales of surplus butter from displacing sales of new butter by the dairy industry.

Should this happen, the government would have to turn around and buy new butter under its dairy price support program. Thus, the government would make little or no headway in getting rid of its butter stocks.

Benson has been reluctant to cut domestic butter prices sharply lest such action develop both a producer and consumer demand for a permanent government-subsidized butter market.

Meanwhile, the government expected to start showing progress in sale of some of its surplus dried milk. It has offered this product at cut-rate prices to livestock and poultry feed manufacturers.

Reports received from department field offices indicated that orders for this milk were beginning to come in, but no figures were available on the quantity sold so far.

DISTRICT ENLARGED
BOISE, May 5 (AP)—Flood control district 3 in Washington county was expanded Tuesday to include certain sections of the Weiser river and its tributaries in Adams county. State Reclamation Engineer Mark Kulip reported.

Substance in Peel of Fruit May Be Boon

PITTSBURGH, May 5 (AP)—A substance derived from a material occurring in citrus fruit peel may have possibilities for increasing the power and prolonging the effect of certain vaccines, a Philadelphia scientist reports.

Dr. Jack Moss of the National Drug Company, research laboratories, said the substance is a phosphorus-containing compound based on "hesperidin"—a material found in citrus fruit peel.

He told the Society of American Bacteriologists he had employed it, in laboratory tests, in conjunction with vaccines against typhoid fever, whooping cough and one form of influenza. And he said there were indications that it enhanced the effect of the vaccines from the standpoint of potency and of duration of immunizing power.

The researcher added there also are more tentative indications of a similar possible effect on materials designed to produce immunity against lock-jaw, diphtheria and one form of polio.

Another doctor at the meeting told a reporter he had tried the same hesperidin compound in conjunction with the same influenza vaccine mentioned by Dr. Moss but had been unable to find any significant effect.

Board Acts to End Dumping

HAGERMAN, May 5—Steps to eliminate an eyesore in the desert in Twin Falls county near Hagerman were taken by the town board Monday night. The board plans to bury most of the rubbish that has been dumped in the desert near Roy Vaden's ranch and to take steps to prevent a recurrence of the problem.

The board acted because of the number of complaints it has received about the desert being strewn with tin cans and other junk. The village will provide a bulldozer to cover the rubbish even though the land is located in Twin Falls county, Mayor Emerson Pugmire reported.

Through arrangements with the bureau of land management a dumpground site has been obtained and signs will be erected by the village to direct persons to it.

The board also has reversed itself on a decision not to pipe an irrigation ditch near Mrs. Emma Jenkins' home. Investigation showed that the water was eroding the land near her house and that the ditch should be piped. As a result, 70 feet of pipe were purchased at a cost of $130.50 and already has been laid by village employes.

The board decided to burn brush and rubbish on West Spring street next to the grade school playgrounds.

Mine Aide Sees Production Soon

SALMON, May 5—Charles Kapp, manager of the Twin Peaks mine, 21 miles south of here, says production is expected to get under way "in the near future."

Kapp said company officials visited the mine during the end of April to prepare the plant for production. The new pumuckmill structure is completed and much of the equipment set up. Capacity is set at 100 tons.

Main offices are in Seattle. Kapp said the mine is open for public visits.

Aide Appointed Here

Washington Man Chosen New Entomology Bureau Aide Here

Appointment of Kenneth E. Gibson as assistant entomologist at the department of entomology-bureau here is announced by J. R. Douglas, entomologist.

Gibson arrived in Twin Falls Saturday from Union Gap, Wash., near Yakima, where he had been stationed for nearly six years. He lives at 513 Sixth avenue north.

Dr. H. C. Hallock, who has been in Twin Falls 15 years, has been assistant entomologist but requested replacement to devote time for other department activities. Douglas said Dr. Hallock will be in charge of preparing reports and of field and office work as before.

Gibson has been in the entomology department of the U. S. department of agriculture for more than 25 years. Prior to his stay at Union Gap, he had done research work with the department for 20 years at Walla Walla.

No stranger to Twin Falls, Gibson has done research here several times. He was here for six months in 1947, and for one month during 1953 for survey work, Douglas said.

Program Presented

VIEW, May 5—The annual Mother's day program was presented Sunday at the LDS church here. Edward Gibby was in charge.

Taking part were Mrs. Leo Bronson, Jr., Fred Johnson, Elton Hatch, Wilden Moffett and Gwen Banner.

Business in Chicago Feeling Cheerful Spring Upturn, Weaker Than Is Usual

CHICAGO, May 5 (AP)—That spring upturn in business—a salve or a cure?

Chicago trade and industry has felt the cheering seasonal quickening. But the surge hasn't been as virile as in some former years. And many say today they can't be sure whether the business and industrial decline has merely been slowed or whether it's touching bottom.

If the slump is leveling off, Chicago will have escaped with only a few bruises, its bankers and industrial leaders say.

But its industrial makeup, they add, because of a high concentration of industries that tend to wide swings in output, sales and pay rolls, may yet put the region in some jeopardy in the event the nation's economy proves merely to have slowed its descent temporarily.

Chicagoans aren't worrying. Many things look better here than in some other regions.

Construction is booming, Chicago says it's still underbuilt. Rents are high. Housing prices are firm and perhaps higher than some other places. Older houses are still selling, unlike many cities.

Retail trade here this spring after you even off the influences of different dates of Easter and temperamental weather—is holding almost as high as last year's.

An increase in the number of men out of work has been felt by certain merchandise lines—particularly appliances. But still high employment totals and consumer savings keep most stores sales healthy.

And retail prices seem more stable than in some cities to the east where price slashing promotions have been ballyhooed.

Steel output is down, meaning shorter weeks for workers—but here the production rate runs higher percentage-wise than the national average, because of the transportation cost advantage that steel mills hereabouts have over some of their distant rivals in reaching the large steel consuming market in the area.

But new steel orders haven't picked up as much this spring as the mills hoped.

Machinery and electronics makers have felt some spring upsurge and express confidence, with fingers crossed.

Some farm machinery makers are recalling laid-off workers because of a pickup in farmers' interest in money and labor saving equipment. But the output rate isn't back to what it once was and many dealers still complain of large machinery inventories.

Farmers' incomes (except for those in the dairy business) seem to have leveled off, at least, after earlier drops, and to be fairly well cushioned now by price support programs. There is considerable squinting, however, as they turn to other crops for the fields where this year they must plant less wheat or corn.

than a while back. Meat processors say their ratio of profit to sales remains fairly constant and small. But dropping cattle prices and large beef production have given packers the twin advantages of volume sales and easing in consumer price resistance. And few, if any, are complaining.

But some bankers aren't sure how all this will finally add up.

At the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago the economists note that the spring upturn hasn't been as strong as usual in this region.
