Blocks Move of France to Get Indochina Truce

PARIS, May 8 (AP)—French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, his voice choking with emotion, asked for a cease-fire in Indochina in the Geneva conference today, 24 hours after the fall of Dien Bien Phu.

He immediately initiated a communist blocking action. Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, pointedly ignoring the French proposal, tied the conference up in procedural questions for the admission of the talks of red representatives of Laos and Cambodia—part of Indochina not directly connected with the current fighting.

France has called the so-called communist governments of Laos and Cambodia "phantom regimes." The United States and France promptly rejected the idea of issuing any bid to them.

Molotov then tried to bring red China into a proposed big-four discussion of the proposed invitations. This the United States rejected.

Huang Hua, press spokesman for red China, said Bidault's proposals for a cease-fire were "not reasonable." He said they amounted to "dissolving" the communist-led Vietminh army and the "resistance governments of Khmer (Cambodia) and Pathet Laos (Laos)."

The United States reserved its position on the Bidault proposals. An official spokesman said the United States would "do its part toward achieving restoration of peace in the discussions which follow."

Bidault addressed the representatives of the nine delegations which made up the Indochina section of the Geneva conference as they assembled for the first time in a small room in the old League of Nations building. He asked that the cease-fire be guaranteed by the nine delegations.

After the cease-fire, Bidault said, the political problems between Viet Nam and her Vietnamese foes could be tackled. But, he added, these problems could be carried out only through free elections carried out in complete independence.

Kimberly Mother Wins Honor

Kimberly Woman Is Selected as Queen Mother for Day During Saturday Fete

Mrs. Harry Wood, representing the Kimberly Grange, became queen mother for a day Saturday afternoon when she was declared winner of the second annual contest sponsored by the Twin Falls Retail Merchants bureau.

The lead changed four times before the final count of the ballots. Mrs. Parley Harmon, Castleford Grange, was runner-up, followed by Mrs. A. E. Kunkel, Hollister Grange; Mrs. Gordon Bennett, Deep Creek Grange; and Mrs. Willard Butler, Pleasant Valley Grange. Each received an armload of gifts ranging from wearing apparel through the gamut of household furnishings and courtesy services.

Obviously touched with the ceremonies, Mrs. Wood explained it was one of the highlights of her life since moving to Kimberly some 11 years ago.

Mrs. Wood added that although she and her husband had settled on their Kimberly farm only comparatively recently, they had been familiar with Magic Valley for many years and actually had lived in Kimberly for a short time as a young couple in 1916.

Mrs. Wood is the mother of two children, Mrs. Roger Thomas, Kimberly, and Joe Wood, Wenatchee, Wash.

Helping run the family farm and her activities for the Kimberly Grange, where she has been pianist for many years, take up most of her time and interest, she said.

Howard Moffat, Chamber of Commerce manager, conveyed the best wishes of merchants to the new queen and the other contestants. He added sponsorship of queen candidates would rotate between the 17 county Granges, five each year.

S. E. Running was general chairman of the sponsorship committee, composed of Mrs. Ollie B. George, Mrs. Martha Kennedy, Mrs. Eula A. Foye and Mrs. Marcella Snow. Members of the Retail Merchants

Talk by Governor, Strong Resolution, Election End Meet

Election of officers, adoption of resolutions and an address by Gov. Len Jordan climaxed final sessions of the two-day Idaho state reclamation association convention here Saturday. Governor Jordan reported on the progress of the Pacific northwest governors' power policy committee in its study of hydro-power needs in the northwest.

Among the resolutions was one strongly opposing the power initiative, the petitions for which are being circulated in the state. The resolution said the purpose of the act is to put the state in the electric power and communications business to the exclusion of private enterprise and is socialist in nature.

In his speech the governor said the power policy committee was formed to implement the power policy of the new administration.

According to the policy the primary responsibilities of the department of interior are the reclamation of semi-arid lands and the development of natural resources as authorized by congress, Governor Jordan said. The policy recognizes that the primary responsibility for supplying power needs of an area rests with the people locally, he added.

The committee includes representatives of British Columbia and public utilities and agencies, both federal and non-federal, that operate in the Columbia river drainage, the governor said.

One of its main purposes is to advance and support orderly construction of the projects needed to assure a supply of electric power to meet the needs of the rapidly expanding economy of the northwest, he said. An engineering subcommittee was set up to determine which projects have the best engineering and economic feasibility and to designate the order in which the projects should be constructed to best meet load requirements, he explained.

Governor Jordan reported the further load growth of the basin in the next 10 years is predicted at over six million kilowatts. Hydro-power capacity in the Columbia river basin and coastal basins in Oregon, Washington and British Columbia has been estimated at about 49 million kilowatts when developed to its ultimate capacity, Jordan noted.

As of March 1, 1954, slightly more than seven million kilowatts of this potential had been constructed and was in operation. Projects with installed capacities of about four million kilowatts more are under construction, he said.

"It is apparent," Governor Jordan said, "that with an estimate in 1964 of a load requirement of 13 1/2 million kilowatts, we may expect to have a deficiency of something over two million kilowatts which must be provided by new projects not now in building."

Commenting on how many new projects will be required, he listed 20 that probably will be started soon. (Continued on Page 5, Column 1)

Water Rights Contract May Go Into Court

RUPERT, May 8—George Breazal, 1994 settler on the Mindoka project and chairman of the waterusers protective association, served notice on reclamation officials Saturday that if the government forces the Mindoka project into a contract for an exchange of water rights in Jackson lake for rights in American Falls reservoir, the matter might go to court.

Breazal used the Chamber of Commerce-sponsored luncheon in honor of Fred G. Aandahl, assistant secretary of the department of interior, as the time to make his statement.

Aandahl replied by saying reclamation is opening new frontiers in the west and that there should be no clash between the government and private projects. He said there is room for both.

Breazal made his statement after he had given a history of the project from its beginning up to the present contract dispute. Water users on the project last fall turned down the exchange contract offered by the bureau of reclamation.

A. O. DeMay, another 1904 settler, also gave a history of the project from its beginning to the contract dispute. (Continued on Page 5, Column 4)

Safety Patrol Party Is Set On Saturday

Grade school safety patrol members from throughout Magic Valley will be guests of the Twin Falls Jaycees and city and state police Saturday at a free show and picnic, announced Glen Sheen, project chairman.

Between 400 and 500 youngsters participated in the event last year. All Magic Valley schools are invited to send safety patrol members to Twin Falls for the event.

Free Movie Set

Youngsters will be admitted free to a 10 a. m. show at the Orpheum theater. Following the movie they will assemble on the playground across Second street north from the junior high school.

From there they will parade up Second street north to Main avenue, along Main avenue to Shoshone street and down Shoshone street to the city park.

Band to Lead

The Twin Falls Junior band will lead the procession.

A picnic meal of sandwiches, fruit, milk, soda pop and ice cream will be given out by the Jaycees. Sandwiches are being prepared by the Twin Falls Jay-C-Ettes and Camp Fire Girls.

Honors Youngsters

Purpose of the program is to honor the youngsters for participating in the safety patrol program.

Safety patrol members are being asked to wear their uniforms and carry safety patrol banners for the parade. Sponsors of various safety patrol groups also are invited, says Sheen.

Schools will provide their own transportation.

Dean Mosher is assisting Sheen with arrangements.

No Governor Bid Planned, Deal Reports

By The Associated Press

Lieut.-Gov. Edson Deal, Nampa, bowed out Saturday as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination as governor of Idaho, saying he would not seek any office this year.

As Deal ended the speculation over his political plans, one of the Democratic gubernatorial hopefuls, Gantrell (Flash) Nielsen, Pocatello, declared that the Republicans were "split wide open" and criticized their closing of the state teacher colleges.

Deal's announcement came a day after Gov. Len Jordan ended speculation that he might resign soon to take a federal appointment; thus elevating Deal to the governorship. Jordan said he would remain in office at least until the primary, but declined to say whether he would offer Aug. 10.

Deal expressed appreciation for the offers of help in his possible candidacy, but said he had decided not to run because of "an appraisal of my personal situation and the interests of my family."

He said he had confidence in the "integrity and abilities" of the primary candidates and that the Republicans "have a record of accomplishment for the last seven years of which they can be proud and will be entitled to widespread support."

He promised his support to keep Idaho "on the constructive, conservative path it is now following."

Deal's announcement leaves three Republicans seeking the gubernatorial nomination: Mayor Larry Gardner, Coeur d'Alene; John Sanborn, Hagerman; and Atty.-Gen. Robert E. Smylie.

Uniform Rate Setup Is Opposed by State

SEATTLE, May 8 (AP)—Idaho does not want uniform class rail freight rates extended across the Rockies in the Mountain and Pacific states. Instead, the Gem state favors a railroad-backed proposal for reduced class rates.

The state's representatives announced the Idaho position at an interstate commerce commission hearing Friday.

Idaho was the last state to present its stand in the series of western ICC hearings. All of the 11 western states except Arizona, Nevada and Montana had presented their positions in hearings at Salt Lake City, San Francisco and here.

The hearings were called to discuss a uniform rate extension proposal. A statement read into the record on behalf of Idaho set forth its support for the railroad proposal, which calls for a lesser reduction in the rates than would be provided by extension of the uniform mileage class rates that have prevailed for more than a year east of the Rockies.

The statement, read by John Fox, longtime rate expert in the Idaho public utilities department, concluded:

"We favor the carriers' proposal as providing a basis of class rates which protects the existing commodity rate structure upon which Idaho depends."

Idaho's position conforms, in general, with the stands taken by spokesmen for Washington and Oregon. All expressed fear that any drastic cut in the class rates would force the railroads to boost their commodity rates. Washington and Oregon differed from Idaho in refusing to endorse the railroads' proposal for revised rates within the western region.

Project Laws Retain Limits On Water Use

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP)—Interior department officials said that recommended legislation to provide for government cooperation in non-federal reclamation projects would not open the way for widespread exemption from the 160-acre land limitation provisions.

Undersecretary Ralph A. Tudor and Elmer Bennett, legislative counsel, said that if substitute legislation proposed by the department is enacted, basic reclamation law would apply to any projects which obtain their water from federal projects.

The law forbids delivery of water from a federal project to more than 160 irrigable acres to a single owner.

The bill would provide for federal grants and loans to local public organizations such as irrigation districts, which have a legal right to contract with the government under the reclamation laws. This is intended to encourage local interests to construct irrigation projects within their financial reach.

Basis Outlined for Medical Staff Privileges at Hospital

Editor's Note: Here is the seventh in a series of daily articles on Magic Valley Memorial hospital and its operation. The Times-News hopes that the factual information in these articles will help the people in a better understanding of the hospital's problems and encourage full support of the institution.

Not only has this controversy caused dissension among the doctors, but it has confused the thinking of the public as well, with a combined result which has been detrimental to the hospital.

Realizing the seriousness of this problem and the importance of explaining it to the people, representatives of both the hospital administration and the medical profession conferred at length in deciding on the information to be contained in this article.

Those who participated in this conference included Dr. Malcolm Sawyer, president of the medical staff; Dr. Wallace Bond, chairman, and F. Wayne Schow, members of the medical profession's public relations committee; Ted Gihring, chairman, and Mrs. Gordon Gray, members of the hospital board's publicity committee; and Mrs. Irene Oliver, hospital administrator.

It was generally agreed by this group that a better understanding of what underlies the much-discussed topic of "privileges, limitations, restrictions and the like" with reference to the hospital's medical staff, is not only necessary to clear up misunderstanding and false impressions, but desirable in any attempt to promote better public relations.

It is unfortunate that the term "restrictions" has been used so loosely in most discussions on this issue," said Dr. Sawyer. "In reality, all members of the staff are privileged to practice in Magic Valley Memorial hospital to the full extent of their qualifications as determined by their education, training, experience, etc., according to well-established procedures set up by the nation's leading medical organizations. The term 'restriction' applies only to those who seek to practice beyond their qualifications and thus refuse to accept the privileges as granted them under hospital rules and regulations."

Dr. Bond offered the further explanation that the term "privileges" is often misunderstood to mean some line drawn between general practice and surgery.

"Privileges are granted in different fields," he explained, "such as obstetrics and medical cases, as well as surgery. Even within these individual fields, privileges are set up on the basis of normal and complicated treatment, in such a way that the patient will be assured the best care in any event."

"As was pointed out in a previous article in this series, for instance, there is no one on our medical staff who is qualified to do brain, heart and certain types of chest surgery. For the sake of illustration, it could be said that even our best surgeons (Continued on Page 5, Column 8)

Limit Sought for Senate Hearings On Army Dispute

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP)—Committee Democrats and army officials held out tonight against a Republican leadership proposal to cut short the McCarthy-army row by calling Senator McCarthy, R.-Wis., Monday as the final witness in public hearings.

Senator Dirksen, R., Ill., said, with the outspoken backing of Senator Bridges, R., N. H., the senate's president pro-tempore, that he will move in the senate investigations subcommittee Monday to supplant Army Secretary Stevens on the stand with McCarthy.

Dirksen explained that his proposal would open the way for the committee—if it chooses to do so—to take testimony later behind closed doors from Roy M. Cohn, McCarthy's chief counsel, Army Counselor John G. Adams and other present "principals" in the controversy.

Dirksen predicted he will have solid backing from the subcommittee's other three Republicans, although Chairman Mundt, R., S. D., said he had not been approached by his Illinois colleague about the proposal.

The Democrats, outnumbered 4-3, gave immediate signs that they would fight the move. They regard it as an attempt to end a public spectacle which seems politically damaging to the GOP.

Urge U.S. Help for Jobless

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP)—Labor today fired a new round of appeal for federal spending to reduce workers' taxes to help them find jobs.

The union leaders said a government survey Friday that the nation's total declined 200,000 between March and May, first drop in six months, was no real improvement.

2 Soviet Envoys Ousted as Spies

LONDON, May 8 (AP)—Britain accused two Soviet diplomats of attempted spying today and gave them 10 days to get out of the country.

A spokesman refused to go into detail about the espionage allegations but said no atomic information was involved. He would not divulge whether British subjects had aided the Russians.

The Russians, both married and with children, had been here since 1951. They were assistant military air attachés.

Asia Pact Talks Opened by Dulles

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles, following up an unusual Saturday meeting of the national security council, opened diplomatic talks on proposals for a southeast Asian alliance to block the communist drive in Indochina.

Dulles is prepared to urge potential southeast Asian allies—and the U. S. congress—to undertake firm pledges of action against red aggression in the strategic area. These pledges could lead to intervention in the war by the U. S. and other members of the coalition.

Dulles conferred Saturday with New Zealand Ambassador Leslie Knox Zuma, to push forward plans for a conference of proposed alliance members as quickly as possible. MUNRO is New Zealand's deputy member on a three-power south-west Pacific alliance which presumably will be one of the cornerstones of the projected new coalition. The alliance is composed of the U. S., Australia and New Zealand.

Plans for financing the 1954 campaign will be discussed, he said, and the finance committee chairman of the other 43 counties have been invited.

McKay also is scheduled to visit the regional office of the bureau of reclamation, and confer with Gov. Len Jordan and other party leaders here.

Farmers' Unit Hears Speech For Campaign

GOODING, May 8—Clark Hamilton, Weiser, Democratic candidate for governor, was special guest speaker at the Farmers' union monthly meeting held in the Sorosis clubrooms Thursday. He was introduced by Warren Thornton, Gooding.

In the absence of Frank Potter, president of the farmers' group, Kenneth Daniel, vice president, conducted the business session. During the program saxophone numbers were presented by Larry Lane, high school student, accompanied by Rita Potter, Norma Gentry presented two dance numbers. Mrs. Harold Henderson showed a film on cancer.

Reports were given on the membership drive, showing increase in members. Shoshone Farmers' union was present.

Hamilton said, "Many people cannot live in Idaho because there are not enough jobs for them. Each individual owes the other a chance to make a living—a good standard of living—not a bare existence.

"In order to preserve democracy we must have honesty in our state and national government. We must encourage more education and the freedom of expression in schools.

"Idaho has no drawing card for tourists, because we do not encourage it fully."

Hamilton continued, "We have an abundance of resources—underdeveloped—more than any other state in the United States. We must bring about hydro-electric power at low rates to bring industry into Idaho."

He said 68 per cent of all phosphate deposits in the United States are located in Idaho. "We must have cheap electric power to develop it. Idaho has 37 per cent of water potential. This great natural resource must be developed to the fullest extent," he concluded.

Refreshments were served following the meeting.

New Curbs Added On Use of A-Data

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP)—Rep. W. Sterling Cole, R., N. Y., said today tight new restrictions on the dissemination of atomic information have been added to a draft bill now before congress.

Cole is chairman of the senate-house atomic energy committee which begins open hearings Monday on a detailed new blueprint for controlling atomic energy.

It is designed primarily to carry out President Eisenhower's program of sharing more atomic information with allied nations and to lower barriers against private operation of atomic facilities.

But the committee-written measure also includes new clauses designed, Cole said, to impose "absolute liability" on officials who "re-strict" information and any person receiving it, including newsmen, who pass it on to unauthorized persons.

Army Casts Out Bids on Project

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP)—The army has announced rejection of all six bids, including the Japanese low offer, for construction of 16 hydraulic governors for The Dalles dam in Oregon.

The bids, opened Jan. 12 in the district engineer office, Portland, Ore., showed that Hitachi, Limited, Tokyo, had the low bid of $1,072,522.

The army said some of the bids contained ambiguities and failure to comply with specifications and that in order to be fair to all bidders, the equipment is to be re-advertised on a date to be announced.

"We find that the value of power alone would be one of a quarter of a million dollars if it should happen to be water year, the storage of immense value to that water are undertaking to keep tractor going at his most rate of progress."

In response to questions made these points:

1. The figure of $13,000,000 too low to permit the construction of a quarter of a million dollars.
2. About $32,000,000 has to be added to the total $18,000,000 required to complete the project.
3. An earlier completion means a saving in overhead charges to start getting power more quickly.

Regarding the $1,250,000 by the house for the pumping division of the project, Nelson said this:

"That amount will permit a progressive program to bring additional 10,000 acres in each next two years... There are under construction now to amount will allow continuing payments for drilling and ment, and also a start of action on the primary pumping that will use Snake river."

REQUIRES LEADERSHIP

Not long ago President Eisenhower lamented that the American people and the press seem to be captivated by the things that divide the country, rather than the things that draw them together.

Actually, this is an old lament in new dress. People are always interested in conflict, and editors know it. Furthermore, the newspapers cannot in any real sense control the content of the news. They simply reflect what is going on.

If there is conflict, it will be reported. It could not possibly be played down and other news played up and still leave newspapers any claim to doing a full and honest job.

Admittedly the divisive forces working within this nation are more powerful than any other time in the country's history except in the Civil war. Indeed, more than one observer of national affairs has gone so far as to say we are today engaged in a sort of cold Civil war.

Whether or not the matter has reached that extreme, the conflicts are sharp and the differences wide. And the combatants appear to grow more harsh and humorless as the days pass.

Mr. Eisenhower evidently wishes these unhappy divisions could all be brushed away and we could attack our problems as a unified people. It would be nice, but it is not so easy as all that.

To be sure, some Americans magnify and play upon these conflicts, for a variety of reasons, often quite personal. But at base this schism goes deep into the hearts and minds of the people. (How can they be expected to be disinterested in a contest in which they themselves are the main participants?)

The American people today are highly troubled by the world they live in. They see many things happening that they do not like, both at home and abroad. They are pressed in a hundred ways they never dreamed of a decade and a half ago.

The divisions we suffer mirror the tremendous tensions of the time. It would be odd if we all saw our problems the same way. No people ever does, least of all a people so varied in character and background as Americans.

Acknowledging this does not mean, however, that we must simply accept these divisions and do nothing about them.

We must do all we can to minimize our differences, to find new footing for broader harmony, to achieve solutions that are widely acceptable. This is a task for leadership at its most energetic and imaginative level, leadership that can come only from the White House.

The divisions cannot be wished away. To hit back and hope, or merely talk, is to abandon the field to men who find a stake in exaggerating our conflicts. They can only be healed by statesmanlike action which gains the confidence of the whole people.

GIVE 'EM TIME!

No one can say the McCarthy-army dispute does not have its little surprises. Who would have thought at the outset that a roomful of important U. S. officials would be debating the nature of a smile and the identity of a particular hat showing in a picture?

Those little digressions entered at the point when the army claimed Senator McCarthy's people had "doctored" a photograph to cut out others standing with Secretary of the Army Stevens and Pvt. G. David Schine.

The full photograph showed another army officer and the arm of a civilian, who held a hat in his hand. McCarthy scanned the picture intently and came up with his finding: "Not my hat." Well, if not, whose then? Or did it matter?

Then there was this business about the smile. Schine was smiling, they all agreed. But was Stevens? It was said to be important, as revealing his attitude toward the much-discussed Schine.

Roy Cohn of McCarthy's staff said Stevens was smiling. The army counsel, Joseph Welch, thought not. Cohn said maybe it should be called a "grim smile." To some people, Stevens looked just plain grim.

Underneath this talk of the smile and the hat, there are some big issues, folks. Just wait and you'll see. It may take a little time, but they'll come out—we hope!

DUMPGROUND EYESORES

It's an old problem—the offensiveness of tin cans, old worn-out mattresses, discarded chicken wire and what have you, strewn along the roadside in desert areas.

In spite of all the appeals to the public's good sportsmanship and the criticisms of its thoughtlessness, such slovenliness goes on with many dumpground eyesores continually getting larger and more disgraceful.

The town board of Hagerman has announced that steps will be taken to eliminate a nearby desert dumpground in Twin Falls county as a result of numerous complaints. Even though the rubbish is located in Twin Falls county, the village board will provide the bulldozer to cover it up.

All this unnecessary trouble because of these irresponsible individuals who will not go to the trouble of hauling their litter to established dumpgrounds. Don't they have any pride?

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

Every Sunday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' letters of general interest on national and international politics and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker, 6208 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—"Do you think that Congressmen Mundt is conducting the McCarthy-army investigation in a fair manner?" inquires T. F., Altoona, Pa.

"And is Counsel Jenkins bullying the witnesses, especially the Pentagon's, too hard?"

Answer: I think the member from South Dakota has been an extremely fair chairman in his rulings and in his attitude toward the various problems and the witnesses for each side. He is not a lawyer, and must depend on Counsel Jenkins for advice and decisions on admissibility of evidence, etc.

EASY-GOING CHAIRMAN—If anything, Mundt has been too easy-going, in the opinion of observers.

It lowers the dignity of the senate, it seems, to permit Senator McCarthy to refer regularly to the investigation as a "circus" and a "red minnow burlesque." The chairman should bar such demeaning descriptions of a senate proceeding. The only explanation is that he wishes the television audience to see and hear this sort of thing in order to judge the Wisconsin man's methods.

JENKINS BIT TOO HARSH—In view of the strong pro and con emotions on the question and personality of McCarthy, both the chairman and members of the committee are wise to show no partiality. Mundt must run for reelection next fall.

Counsel Jenkins does appear to be a bit harsh in his interrogations. Friends explain that it is his usual style, however, and he does not behave in a petty or mean manner. I think he is trying to do the best job he can. It is, of course, difficult for a criminal lawyer to change into a polished parliamentarian overnight.

"Has the system of monitoring telephone calls or of having stenographers take full notes on an extension always existed in Washington?" asks Mrs. K. L. Los Angeles. "It seems sort of 'sneaky' to me."

Answer: Some officials may have done it without my knowing of it, but the system did not become general or widespread until the advent of the Roosevelt administration. Numerous members of his official family were an uncommonly suspicious lot, especially Secretaries Harold L. Ickes and Henry Morgenthau.

WHY SECRETARIES LISTEN IN—I once asked a cabinet member of that day why he insisted that his secretary listen in and take stenographic notes. His answer expressed the official justification for this thing.

In the first place, it is easy for a cabinet member to be "sold down the river" by a lobbyist or a corrupt politician, and they frequently are. Except for a full record of any conversation, they have no way to prevent a dishonest fellow from attributing unworthy or unethical statements and promises to a high official. It is a safeguard against foolish or prejudicial blabbing.

DETAILED RECORD OFTEN NECESSARY—Secondly, a detailed record is often necessary because of the complexity of the subjects under discussion. This was especially true during FDR's years because of the huge financial transactions made over the phone, and because of the extremely important military and defense problems that had to be settled in that way.

"Will there be any major changes in social security legislation at this session?" asks W. B. C., White Plains, N. Y., and many readers.

Answer: I doubt it, although a house ways and means subcommittee is studying the question. President Eisenhower has urged that coverage be extended to about 10,000,000 not now in the system. Congress may increase the amount, now $75 a month, which a person may earn without forfeiting his payment. It may also place the forfeiture test on a yearly rather than a monthly basis.

However, the tremendous batch of absolutely "must" legislation piling up will probably prevent action on this complex problem before adjournment.

VIEWS OF OTHERS

THOSE ATOMIC 'SECRETS'

There should be little opposition at this late date to the President's proposal to share some of our atomic secrets with our allies. Indeed, the only problem involved would be that of determining how many secrets we really have left; not many, probably.

Hearings will begin this week on a bill designed to supplant the old atomic energy act, which has called for such strict secrecy in atomic matters that it has resulted in our hobbling ourselves, so to speak. If the new bill is enacted in anywhere near its present form it will allow this government to (1) share information on atomic weapons for offensive and defensive purposes with its allies; (2) share information on atomic development for peacetime uses; and (3) permit private industry to operate atomic facilities and thus speed the development of atomic power as a means of aiding civilization instead of harassing it.

There is no longer any question but that the Soviet Union has proceeded far faster than we expected in harnessing the atom for war. Russia now has developed nuclear power and presumably can build the hydrogen bomb. Assuming this to be so, we also must assume that in the event of all-out war, Russia will use atomic weapons against America's allies; the responsibility thus falls upon us to give those allies such protection as will enable them to fight back. They must have the benefit of whatever atomic information we can give them within the bounds of reasonable security.

And from the point of view of our own self interest we should not insist on the use of American brains only in the development of our own atomic programs—both peaceful and defensive. Much is gained in any field of science by the old system of pooling information and ideas.—Lewiston Tribune.

NERVOUS PAUL

Sen. Paul Douglas, D., Ill., must be very nervous about his election prospects this year or he would hardly indulge in the sort of balderdash he emitted in a speech at Chicago.

Douglas, for example, pointed to the Democratic party as the "strongest foe of communism" and added: "The surest weapon against communism is a good home, a good job, a family, individual liberty and a bank account." But Alger Hiss had all these, and Julius Rosenberg had them, and William Remington and Harry Dexter White. There are other examples.

Douglas pointed to the checking of communism in Iran, Greece, Turkey, western Europe and Korea, in which, of course, the Republicans had a share; but he failed to explain why the Democrat administration failed to deal with communism on its own doorstep and neglected the numerous communists that have been found in government departments.

He took a gratuitous ring at the bill restoring the tideland to the states and asserted—without offering proof—that private interests were the beneficiaries. The fact, of course, is that had the federal government exploited the oil it would have done so by leasing a royalty, to private interests. Generally speaking, the tideland laws are on more generous terms than the leases concluded by the states.

The senator does not add to his reputation by such comment.—Los Angeles Times.

LOUDEST NOISE

After studying noise for some time, the United States navy has announced that 26 jet planes, warning up at the same time, created the loudest sound ever heard by man. The sound was equivalent of that made by a full symphony orchestra multiplied 1,000 times, the report says.

We are not in a position to dispute the finding of the learned navy specialists and will accept their conclusions. It is hard for us to conceive of a noise louder, however, than that coming from the neighbor girl's boy friend's car pulling out of the driveway at 1 a. m.—Salt Lake Tribune.

POT SHOTS

IS IT NEEDED?

Dear Pot:

After listening to a session of that army-McCarthy row, I have a suggestion for a change in the usual procedure of administering the oath to a witness.

The new wording should be mandatory where politicians are concerned. It would go something like this:

"Raise your right hand and uncross your fingers!"

But then they'd probably cross their toes. Does anyone think either side is right?

SALT NEEDED

Dear Poles:

There's lots of hogwash floating around these days about the mileage recorded for cars. Every car owner thinks his car just makes about the best mileage possible.

There is a possibility some of these mileage figures could be nearly correct, but not the way the cars are being driven. You just don't make top mileage when you try to see how fast you can get your car up to 60 miles per hour and how fast it will go for an hour at a time.

Mostly, I think these people should give out a grain of salt or two with their claims.

Dear Poles:

Ever since the last World war when we were supposed to pick up all the old nails we saw lying around, I got the habit so strong I can't resist a nail.

My back gets so tired by the time I get from one end of the alley to the other I can't straighten up. To keep me from being a hunchback, I wonder if the boys who drive the white trucks up and down our alleys would mind fastening a big magnet under the truck to drag along and pick up all the nails.

"WASHINGTON CALLING" BY MARQUIS CHILDS

GENEVA—If the West has agreed upon a common position from which to face the communist challenge at this conference, it is not discoverable. The divisions and distractions are all too painfully evident.

Secretary Dulles worked manfully during the past weeks to put together an emergency Asian pact that he hoped would provide temporary cement for the disintegrating situation in Indochina, holding the West to a common objective.

But with this an impossibility it appears that the only alternative is to accept the best bargain the French can make with the communists to end the Indochinese warfare.

THE EISENHOWER press conference statement on an arrangement with the communists in southeast Asia ended the last chance for the kind of intervention Dulles proposed a week ago.

The surprise of the Eisenhower remarks served to accentuate Dulles' lonely position at Geneva. American delegates have been conscious that what was transpiring here has been overshadowed by the concentration back home on the McCarthy hearings. Without a continuity of interest and at least some support, even a man dedicated to his task as Dulles is must feel a sense of futility.

It was the state department that first felt the full force of McCarthyism, and one consequence has been the serious weakening of the foreign service—and, therefore, the major source of information on which foreign policy is based. It can hardly have failed to occur to American policy-makers here that the loss of Indochina could touch off a political barrage and a series of public castigations such as followed the loss of China to the communists.

In this connection it is noteworthy that the American experts who knew most about China and who might have provided valuable background knowledge at the Geneva conference have either been fired with congressional charges of pro-communism or even treason. Or if they were more fortunate they have been exiled to safe, meaning nonpolitical, posts.

If McCarthyism has distracted America, other distractions beset our allies. In a short time Australia is to have an election, and no one wants to rock the boat, particularly since the Soviets conveniently furnished the Petrov case as a campaign issue for the Menzies government. The Australians have followed a cautious line, but at least Foreign Minister Casey, alone among the western delegates, has made a speech on the Korean issue.

Within the American delegation it is a source of deep resentment that not a single European delegate has come forward to speak. The reason, of course, is that the delegates do not support America's all-out position behind South Korea and they do not, at least in the beginning phases, want to accentuate their differences. Nevertheless, feeling among Americans is strong.

While British Foreign Secretary Eden operates under a long-standing Churchillian injunction to go just as far as possible to get along with America, he must constantly bear in mind two things. One is the division of public opinion in Britain, where not only in the labor party but also among conservatives there is a deep dread of involvement in an Asian war which would become a third world conflict.

Second, Eden must never forget the obligation to try to hold the commonwealth together. That means the British must consider the sensibilities of Nehru in India and his insistence on both a line and a role in Asia that America cannot accept.

As for France, the distractions and divisions are so numerous that they can scarcely be catalogued. The wonder is that Foreign Minister Bidault, a tense up as well as he does. His troubles with the French assembly are like those of Dulles with congress.

Fortunately, the communists also have their troubles and their congealing, which get aired in spite of the Iron censorship behind the curtain. The Petrov case has been a Godsend to the West. It has once again exposed the unceasing conspiracy unopposed the Soviet totalitarianism. But this is an old story and a new vision scarcely compensates for the division and uncertainty, the lack of unity, prevailing among those who speak for the west.

Elephant Invented The First Snorkel

From the flat nose of the bloodhound to the elongated proboscis of the ponderous pachyderm, the snout has gone through best its possessors' fictions to serve best its possessor.

Besides fulfilling the dual functions of small and giving passages of air to the lungs, it may also serve as a prod, plow and pump. So, by taking a close look at it, much can be learned about its owner's life.

The flat nose of the meat-hunting animals such as fox, wolf, jackal and dog conveniently gets close to the ground where its possessor can learn more by scent alone than a human with his five senses combined. The Arctic fox has so far perfected his scent that he can even smell out mice buried under snow. (Meat-eaters, of course, are most susceptible to odors of other animals while plant eaters are to those of plants.)

To catch the slightest odor of what the passing breeze may bring, members of the deer family have nostrils that open sideways.

Creatures such as the zebra, which may be forced to spurts of great speed and must therefore be able to supply large amounts of oxygen to the lungs quickly, have nostrils which are large and, when occasion demands, can be distended widely.

For animals living in dry areas, nostrils must be narrow—to prevent losing too much moisture. So, see what happens to the camel. Appropriately, his nostrils are long and narrow, and set in soft skin. As a result he can expand them when traveling and contract them when at rest in the dry air or in the face of a prolonged choking sandstorm.

For food getting, the fleshy part of the nose has been extended for some animals. Such is the pig's. Besides being an organ of keen scent, it has also been converted into a plow by having a tough cutting edge at its tip. Backed with a strong head, neck and shoulders, this animal can plow in short order a sizeable piece of soil in search of roots and tubers.

Some of the underground burrowing animals have made of their nose a tiny pointed muzzle which helps them locate underground insects or worms. To develop this even further, the star-nosed mole has projected

Her Hails Mom's 'Grandeur, Tenderness,' Throughout Ages

Through all the long watches of the night, sits at the bedside of the loved one, sacrificing her own pleasure and rest, nursing it back to life and health. It is mother who stamps the coin of character. The grandeur, the tenderness, the everlasting and divine significance of mother, I fear, is too faintly appreciated by the human race. The mother's trust is greater than all the statesmen of our country. When you hear our great statesmen being praised, he is only reaping the reward of the everlasting care of mother. If it were in my power to gather together all the laurels of victory and chaplets of fame of the eternal ages, I would make them all in one beautiful wreath of appreciation, love and prayer, then I would place that wreath upon the brow of the patient, self-sacrificing, loving mother—the uncrowned queen of all the centuries.

Report of Stevens From Ike Draws Fire of Critic in Bliss

It's quite a job to try to straighten out our government and economy after 20 years of treason. You can't throw the bull unless you get him by the horns and sometimes it's a messy, dirty job. It takes a lot of skill and courage, I'll tell you. I think the idea of serving doctors (including dentists) let me in our armies without loyalty tests is either treachery or rank stupidity. I think how much harm a doctor could do when he is mixing the dope for folks who were given to millions of our young men. These doctors above all others should have been checked and rechecked. Instead the communist dentist was given an honorable discharge. This is just the beginning of that agonizing reappraisal of our home and foreign policy which is long overdue. The housing scandal being exposed by Senator Byrd of Virginia is also part of it. George Washington said, "Honesty is always the best policy." Anyway, senators, we wish you well and thanks a million.

Nation Hearing Project Stresses "Lazy Ear" Folks

Editor, Times-News:

This year, May 2 to 8 is designated National Hearing week, when national, state and county organizations existing in the interest of better hearing renew their efforts to acquaint people with the problems of the acoustically handicapped. It has been known for many years that impaired hearing often occurs among individuals who have suffered infections such as measles, colds, diphtheria, scarlet fever, influenza, whooping cough and pneumonia. There can be no doubt that many cases of impaired hearing are preventable through the efficient control of respiratory infections. It is probable that a considerable number of potential cases of impaired hearing might be prevented through frequent and regular examination of the hearing by competent otologists. Special attention to the hearing mechanism following attacks of respiratory infection might produce noteworthy results in the prevention of hearing impairments. If this attention included pre-school audiometric tests, valuable time might be saved in the application of treatment that would inhibit the development of the impairment, which might not otherwise be discovered until the child enters school. Special seating of the hard of hearing child in the classroom and speech reading instruction are important helps; individual speech and voice lessons and a hearing aid are necessary for individuals with more advanced losses. Impairment of hearing is a serious physical defect. It is a social as well as an economic and vocational handicap. Much of our learning, of our entertainment, of our inspiration, we receive through the sense of hearing. If the hearing is imperfect we lose much of the benefits that would otherwise be gained through each day's activities. Fortunately, much can be done to alleviate the seriousness of the plight of the hard of hearing person. In addition to hearing aids for those who need them, there are substitutes for hearing; there are sources of vocational guidance and instruction that may go far toward lightening the burden. Throughout the country there are 115 local chapters of the American Hearing society, with headquarters at 817 14th street, northwest, Washington, D. C. The society is a non-profit social service and health organization. Its objectives are prevention of deafness, conservation of hearing, and rehabilitation of the hard-of-hearing. They are publishers of "The Hearing News," a monthly magazine of special interest to those with lazy ears.

Gypped

BOISE, May 8 (AP)—It cost an elderly Boise woman $2,000 today to learn how to play "pigeon hole," a well known confidence game. The woman, who asked her name not be used, told police she was stopped on the street by another lady, who explained she had a lot of money and wanted to know a safe place to put it. Just then, "another woman" passed by. She said she had just found a wad of currency, and she promised that each of the other two could have $1,000 of it if they would only loan her some cash for a few hours. The victim, who is 71, drew $2,000 from her bank and turned it over. That was the last she's seen of the other two. Detective Lieut. Frank Boor said it was the first time the game had appeared in Idaho in several years. He promised to keep an eye out for both women.

Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI

This question, "Are you giving?" is directed to people who have free time. The conditions that we live under today furnish full fields of need that wait for the general help of those free to give it. The retired man or woman, in good health, gifted with the knowledge and skill of a lifetime of service in special work, can, if they will, bring relief and joy to many a needy soul.

There are many children in the country who are prevented from attending school by illness. Some live in wheelchairs, some must lie on stretchers one wearsome day after another. There are aged people whose eyesight is no longer strong enough to allow them to read. There are lonely people on whom nobody calls. There is a school that would be delighted to have a home visitor, a church in need of a district visitor to help the pastor. I could fill the space with the list of needs.

What are you giving? You see, when you cease to give you cease to have. That is a law of life and it never fails. If you are a musician and you do not share your gift, if you are a happy buoyant soul and do not share your happiness, you condemn your gift to death. If you share it, give it freely, you will increase it and keep it forever alive and ever more beautiful.

A small boy in the fourth grade could not read. The more the teacher tried to teach him, the less he seemed to grasp the idea. A retired teacher who was highly successful in teaching reading to children in her active days learned about this and tactfully won permission to take over the situation. The small boy was delighted to read. All those concerned were learned with themselves. The teacher rejoiced that she still could exercise her gift, the boy and his family felt relieved of a burden of grief, the boy's school teacher thanked everybody in the project because a failure had been turned into a success.

COWBOYS WHIPPED IN 11-6 GAME BY MUSTANGS FOR 12th LOSS

Big Shakup Seen For Local Outfit; Dayen up Sunday

The gears in the Chicago Cub machinery began to mesh Saturday as the Magic Valley Cowboys went down to their 12th loss in 14 games, losing 11-6 to Billings.

Business manager Ed Schaack announced the outright release of pitcher George Belme and said the Chicago front office, from Wid Matthews, head of the farm organization, on down had assured the Cowboys that three men would be here Monday.

The three new men, along with the two acquired from the Los Angeles Angels, will give the Cowboys a practically brand-new team.

In Saturday night's game, the Cowboys managed to take the lead in the seventh inning but blew it back to the Mustangs in the eighth.

The two clubs will meet again today in a game scheduled for 2:30 p. m. Manager Everett Robinson named Jim Dayen to hurl for the Cowboys.

It looked like the same old story again as Billings jumped to a 5-2 lead at the end of the first six innings, but the Cowboys threw together a rally in the seventh inning that was good for four runs and the lead.

In the Cowboy seventh, Jim Gilheart started things off by living on an error. McDade was also safe on an error and Lemmel walked to load the bases.

Hanny walked to force in Gilheart and McDade scored when Cybulski hit into a double play against Roger Becker who came in to relieve Gabe Quillen.

Robinson then picked one of Becker's last balls for a long homer, scoring Lemmel ahead of him. That was all the Cowboy runs in that inning.

The Wranglers got a couple more in the sixth after two men were out when Robinson singled and Gene Hooks, playing his first game for the Cowboys, doubled, bringing Robinson home. Bill Mills then lashed a long double to score Hooks.

Trailing by one run going into the top of the eighth, the Mustangs pulled it out on three straight singles and a sacrifice fly good for three runs. In the ninth they added three more on a base on balls, a double and Wilcox' second homerun of the night.

Knorser also clipped a homer for the Mustangs in the opening frame with no one on.

Jim Gilheart started for the Cowboys and went seven innings before being relieved by Jim Speer. Speer stayed around for an inning and was pulled for a pinch-hitter in the eighth with Sam Meyers completing the Cowboy hurling in the final frame.

Ned Garver Hurls Detroit Tigers Into First Place in American Loop

Sharp-pitching Ned Garver, who now has yielded only three runs in 37 innings, hurled the Detroit Tigers into the American league lead behind an 18-hit assault which blasted the Chicago White Sox 12-1 Saturday. The rampaging Bengals clawed five Chicago pitchers from start to finish, exploding for a six-run sixth after a four-run first, to wrest first place from the White Sox by 34 percentage points.

Detroit's 10-5 record actually is a half-game behind Chicago's 14-8 mark, but the Tigers lead on a percentage basis, .687 to .636.

Garver, 28-year-old right-hander, rattled seven hits in winning his third victory without defeat.

In Milwaukee lefty Chet Nichols stifled Chicago outbursts in the final three innings Saturday as he pitched Milwaukee to a 3-2 decision for his first major league victory after a two-year army stretch.

Nichols had a two-hit shutout for six innings, but was nicked for single runs in the seventh and ninth innings. The latter followed Eddie Mathews' boot of a double play grounder. The young southpaw, beaten three times earlier this year, threw only 89 pitches for his win. His control was so sharp he pitched just 24 called balls and did not walk a man.

The St. Louis Cardinals made seven hits good for seven runs in the first three innings Saturday as they pounded out a 7-3 victory over the National league-leading Cincinnati Reds in Cincinnati. Stan Musial's ninth homerun of the season drove in three of the runs.

Harvey Haddix survived a shaky start in which he allowed all three Cincinnati runs in the first two innings, to get his third triumph of the season.

The game had to be stopped three times because of rain and it was played in 50-degree temperature.

Pee Wee Reese banged a fifth-inning homer into the left field stands with one man aboard Saturday night as the Brooklyn Dodgers shut out the Philadelphia Phillies 3-0 in a game called after six innings because of rain in Philadelphia.

The Cleveland Indians dealt Baltimore its fifth straight loss Saturday night 5-3 as the Orioles opened an 11-game home stand before 20,301 fans.

In Pittsburgh Southpaw Johnny Antonelli pitched the New York Giants to a 2-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday night, giving up but five hits as he won his third game of the season.

Willie Mays led the Giants' attack, smacking his fifth-homer of the year in the second stanza and collecting a single and a walk.

The directors of the WFL met for more than two hours on the Calgary situation, and Abel said at the noon recess, "we are just getting into the meat of the thing now."

Some directors hinted informally at the recess that Calgary would stay in, and that the schedule for the 10-team league would be played out as originally drawn.

N. G. Lacey, president of the Calgary club, attended the meeting.

The league has operated the Calgary club after picking up the franchise, but had planned to carry it only through Sunday. There had been talk of dropping the Stampede and playing out the season as a nine-team league, or moving the franchise.

But there were strong indications that Lacey's new proposal was acceptable and that the franchise would be returned to Calgary.

Ted Burgess Hurls Second No-Run Game; Shoshone Wins 13-0

SHOSHONE, May 8—Teddy Burgess hurls his second no-hit, no-run game of the season here Saturday as the Shoshone Indians blanked the Hailey Wolverines 13-0.

Burgess faced only 22 men in the seven-inning game. He lost only one batter, Skid, walk in the first inning. The no-hit, no-run performance was the second for Burgess last three outings. In between his standout performances, he was shelled from the

by the Twin Falls Bruins last week.

Burgess struck out 18 in notching the win for Shoshone.

Besides pitching flawless ball, Burgess clipped a homerun in the second inning with one man on to help in the Indian attack.

Elwin Webb also belted a homer for the Indians in the first inning with one man on base.

The win moved Shoshone into a playoff game with Hagerman for the sub-district title. The two teams will meet Tuesday at Hagerman.

The winner of that game will play the Valley High Vikings for the fourth district Class B baseball championship at a time and site to be announced later.

Virus Search

POCATELLO, May 8 (AP)—A University of Pittsburgh researcher disclosed Friday, May 7, that a "sleeping" virus which to some degree at least, had been found in the body of a man who died of a virus.

Research Tied up
The virus was one of the east of the United States, and was in a strange story of the virus, which the Russians, intentionally or not, tied up in an American bacteriologist for about 10 years—runners of an apparently erroneous virus of the Russians, about the virus.

Scientists had contended that the virus, which they called "Russian B," and which had been found in the Soviet Union and called "Russian B." They said the alien virus, "Russian B," is different from previously known viruses.

Virus Confined
The virus was first in the United States, and later at Pittsburgh. The virus was identified as "Japanese B," but they argued by the possibility that it might be some brand new virus.

They Donated Site for Park

Relaxing during their visit to Twin Falls are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Adams, Omaha, Neb., who donated property at Shoshone falls to the city for benefit and enjoyment of valley residents. The property has been developed into an attractive park by the city. (Staff photo-engraving)

Former Owners of Shoshone Falls Site
Return to Inspect Park Development

"It's easy to see that the people of Twin Falls have accepted the park in the spirit in which it was given," commented Adams after the couple's visit.

The stipulation made by the much-traveled couple when they presented the property to the city was that it be used "for the benefit and enjoyment of all."

Mrs. Adams' father, the late Emerson L. Stone, with three partners acquired the property in 1908 and 1907 after a friend in Salt Lake City told him of a great beautiful waterfall in the Snake river canyon in southern Idaho. Adams relates, "Being a great traveler, he visited Shoshone falls and immediately took steps to acquire the adjacent land."

Stone interested Senator Clark of Montana in his project and they accepted two other partners, but Adams does not recall their names.

The couple who donated the site of Shoshone falls park to the city came to Twin Falls to see what had happened to their gift. They are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Adams, Omaha, Neb.

After spending three hours touring Twin Falls with Ernest Craner, city parks and recreation director, Mr. and Mrs. Adams were convinced the people of Twin Falls appreciate their gift.

The couple, he's 84 and she's 82, visited all the city parks, the city hall, schools and residential areas Friday morning as a guest of Craner. High point of the tour, of course, was the inspiring visit to the park at Shoshone falls, property for which they donated.

When his father-in-law died, Adams assumed management of the property. Equally as great admirers of spectacular landscape as Stone, the couple pondered for 10 years how they could share the beauty of the falls with the most people. It was then they decided to give it to the people of Twin Falls "for the benefit and enjoyment of all."

Admittedly a "stickler for manifestations of great beauty," Adams confesses he was disturbed by the Idaho Power company's developments in the canyon. Now he feels the firm has added to the beauty of the area "and the benefits they added greatly exceed the disadvantages."

Several years have passed since the last visit of the Adams—but they made up for lost time on their tour with Craner. They expressed amazement at the new city hall and were impressed particularly with its design and color scheme.

The tour also took them to Harmon park where they were impressed with the play facilities. The new high school they termed "an excellent school plant," which compared favorably with others they have seen on their travels.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams expressed pleasure with the progress of the Shoshone park and favored improvement plans outlined by Craner.

The couple flew to Twin Falls from Honolulu where they spent several weeks. Previously they had spent a month on the California coast. Leaving Twin Falls, they will go to Salt Lake City and from there to Denver to visit a son.

Better Mousetrap
Draws No Crowd

GRANTSVILLE, Utah, May 8 (AP)—Frank J. Hale, who claims to have built a better mousetrap, admitted today the world is not beating a path to his door.

Exhibiting "Hale's mighty mousetrap," a plastic box-like affair which uses no poison bait and which is built so that a person doesn't have to touch the rodent to remove it, Hale admitted to sales difficulties and said sadly:

"People don't realize that rodents do six billion dollars' worth of damage every year."

Hale, a veteran trapper, says he got interested in the mouse problem 30 years ago when "it became evident with all the hawks, badgers, coyotes and so forth we were killing off that we'd be overrun with mice."

The Cromagnon race of prehistoric men had skulls and presumably brains larger than those of modern men.

Bus Service May
Stop in Pocatello

POCATELLO, May 8 (AP)—The Pocatello Transit company has told the city commissioners bus service may have to be discontinued for lack of sufficient profits during the past three years.

J. E. Tarr, company manager, in a letter to the commission, said rather than continue on the present marginal basis, he would take the buses operated in Pocatello to Idaho Falls, where he also operates the city bus lines.

Tarr said the only way he could see to continue operation is by getting cooperation from the city and the school board to haul school youngsters within the city limits.

This plan, Tarr said, has worked in Idaho Falls.

The commissioners promised to "do what we can" but indicated they thought the request should go to the school board.

Following the banquet the Jaycees met for a business meeting. Plans were discussed for attending the national Jaycee convention June 14 to 18 at Colorado Springs, Colo. Dr. Charles Parker with Daryl Keck reported on the bicycle safety campaign now being conducted in the two elementary schools. A safety film was shown Wednesday to all pupils and safety tests were being given Thursday and Friday. Pupils passing the test are being presented with certificates of merit.

Kenneth Russell was named chairman of the Jerome road-e-o. Assisting him with the plans will be Dick Lowe, Glen Reddick, Kent Jackson and Dewey Gavin.

Members voted to sponsor Virginia Reed as candidate for Jerome county rodeo queen. Max Thompson was named to make arrangements for Miss Reed's appearance.

Plans for joint installation with the Jay-C-Ettes on May 17 were announced. Two "key man" awards will be presented as well as several "spark plug" awards to outstanding members.

Writer Lauds New Book on Snow Crystal

By J. HUGH PRUETT
Astronomer, Extension Division
Oregon Higher Education System

Nature seems to have been at the best of her artistry when she fashioned the bewitching and charming forms which we find in freshly fallen snow crystals. Most of our readers doubtless have seen occasional photographs, greatly enlarged, of these beautiful arrangements. Most of the pictures show six-pointed or six-sided forms, but with various differentiations among the individual crystals.

Ready for sale after May 3 by the Harvard University Press at Cambridge, Mass., is one of the finest books ever published on this subject. The author is Professor Ukichiro Nakaya of Hokkaido university.

Twenty years of study in the mountains of his native Japan and in his laboratory have produced what seems to be the most authoritative work ever put out on the forms and formations of snow crystals.

The Harvard Press says with enthusiasm, "It is rarely that a publisher receives a book undeniably scientific in purpose which is also of undeniable interest to men in general. This book, besides being a record of factual, physical discovery, is a gallery of beautiful structures and designs, a gallery of photographs of the crystals of such a snowfall and enhancing thing as snow."

"Snow Crystals" contains some 500 pages. The first 300 pages constitute the text, but it is profusely illustrated by many full-page pictures. The final 200 pages are entirely pictures, six to a page. Those who might not care to read the textual part, such as younger pupils, surely will find delight in the wonderful photomicrographs contained in this beautiful book. It could well be a desired addition to any library, grade school included.

Professor Nakaya mentions that all snow crystals examined under a microscope showed hexagonal tendencies. This meant they were six-pointed stars with various trimmings on the points or that they were flat plates, with six-angled edges. But he has found that other forms are about as abundant. These include needles, bullets, columns, besides irregular shapes. He says the star shapes are usually depicted, as they are the most beautiful.

After studying natural snow for a long time, the author attempted to produce artificial crystals in his laboratory. In nature the crystals start on a nucleus of dust or other matter. In the laboratory Professor Nakaya started them on a stretched rabbit hair.

He finally produced all the types found in the natural state. He found that any certain type depended principally upon the air temperature and the amount of supersaturation of the vapor.

Nakaya defines a snow flake as a combination of from 10 to 1,000 individual crystals. His work included ascertaining the average diameter, thickness and mass of the various kinds of crystals. This and many other interesting details are given in this fine book.

PROTECTION IS PART OF THE GAME

We all need protection against life's hazards: Protection against fire, accidents, sickness—protection for our families by providing them with a home that they can "call their own." And, dollar for dollar, the investment you make in "home-ownership" is still your best "mask" against financial insecurity!

Put your home financing problems up to us. We'll show you how a low cost loan can make you a "home-owner" sooner than you think!
