Johnson's Medical Audit of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Reported in Greater Detail

Dr. Johnson's medical audit of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital reported in greater detail today. The audit was completed Aug. 7, 1953, by Dr. Johnson, of San Diego, Calif., and was reported in greater detail to provide what some might regard as a more authentic, objective and dispassionate viewpoint.

Although the report is reproduced herewith with several omissions, the complete text is available at the hospital administrator's office for anyone who is interested. To avoid unnecessary length, however, certain sections with which the public already is familiar through previous quotations, and suggested precautions to guard against any possible legal technicalities in the operation of the hospital, have been eliminated from the following reproduction of Dr. Johnson's final report:

The medical audit has been made by arrangement with the governing board and its representative, the administrator. It was initiated, I was informed, by a request coming from the medical staff.

The audit has a three-fold purpose:

1. To estimate the professional ability and ethical character of each member of the staff and also his value as a member of the hospital team.
2. To provide a basis for recommending what privileges should be granted to each member.
3. To study all the professional aspects of the hospital and to make suggestions for the correction of its defects, if any are found.

The procedure in this case consisted of:

1. A study of all clinical records of patients admitted during a 12-month period (July 1, 1952, to July 1, 1953).
2. A review of the educational background of each physician.
3. A study of the minutes, programs and attendance records of the medical staff meetings.
4. A study of the records of the medical council meetings and the meetings of the governing board.
5. Consideration of things seen and heard within the hospital and the community.

In addition to this report, typed cards will be handed to the chief of staff, one for each member of the medical staff. Each card contains these entries:

1. An estimate of his education and training.
2. The quality of his records.
3. The percentage of normal tissues surgically removed by him.
4. The percentage of Caesarean sections.
5. The percentage of autopsies on his patients who died.
6. The percentage of attendance at medical staff meetings.
7. The percentage of consultations.
8. An estimate of his value as a member of the hospital team.
9. Recommendations for privileges to be granted to him.

Each card carries a symbol, so it can be designated in staff meetings without embarrassment to the individual. I recommend that each member be allowed to use only his own card. The chief of a division should study all the cards of members working in his division. The chief of staff should study all the cards.

In a separate sealed envelope, which will be handed to the chief of staff, is a key to the symbols, showing which card is related to which member.

Each item shown on the card has significance. Some help to estimate the doctor's professional skill and judgment. Others indicate the manner in which he fulfills his obligations to the organized staff. Others show his attitude toward rules and regulations of the hospital. When correlated with the information gained by a study of his clinical records for 12 months, his value as a member of the hospital team is clearly shown.

Many good hospitals now are adverse to allowing doctors to have privileges in departments where they seldom do any work. The reasoning is that a talent, like a muscle, quickly dwindles unless it is regularly exercised. This attitude is based on the desire for the best care of the patient. You will find it reflected in the recommendations for granting privileges.

I believe that this hospital stands high among institutions of its type and also in similar communities. Among its points of excellence are these:

1. A governing board that is aware of its responsibilities to the patients and to the public. The members give generously of their time and attention to the problems of the hospital and have their only reward in the excellence of the medical care in the institution.
2. A medical staff with an unusually high proportion of highly trained, experienced and conscientious physicians.
3. An administrator with an enviable background of experience in hospitals where the best standards of medical care were maintained. Her tact, patience and skillful guidance have already done much to improve working conditions here.
4. A new, modern, well-planned physical unit, the beauty and convenience of the building, its location and the public.

NEW STRATEGY MAY HELP
The real enemy in Indochina is, of course, red China. It is not involved to the extent it was in Korea, but it is providing the supplies, the military training of native rebels and even some manpower for technical operations and command.
Therefore, when we raise the question what to do about Indochina, we are really talking about a threat posed by China. No military observer looking at the far east imagines the trouble would end if a truce gave the reds a third, a half or even all of Indochina. Communist China would simply push for dominance in other sectors of southeast Asia.
Our military leaders do not believe we should allow this to happen, either in Indochina or anywhere else. But none wants to engage China with huge ground forces on its vast mainland.
What is emerging from their thinking is a totally new strategy that calls for neither of these involvements. NEA Correspondent Fred Sparks describes it as a "blueprint for the greatest commando operation in history." He says U. S. military men see it as a plan to "bleed China until it can no longer expand."
In a Washington dispatch which also drew upon much information gleaned in his first-hand coverage of the far east, Sparks spelled out the meaning of "Operation-Bleed."
A prime element in the plan would be a naval blockade of the Chinese coast. Evidently our navy knows every eddy and backwater. Effective blockade would force Chinese dependence upon the long overland supply routes from the Soviet Union and eastern Europe.
Air power would figure prominently in the plan, too, though there is no talk of all-out attacks on major Chinese cities with A- and H-bombs. Carrier aircraft could be used to smash the reds' railroad time table and thus be used to reduce the overland flow of materials to China.
Ground forces would not be left out of calculation. Whiplashing commando raids might bring blood at many points. As Sparks said: "While China is too big to conquer, it is also too big to defend." Endless miles of coast are vulnerable to commando bands landed by ship or dropped by plane.
Lonely patches of mainland mountains, already infested with anti-red outlaws, could also be fed by commando units and developed into healthy pockets of resistance.
As envisaged by our military leaders, Free Asia, including the Nationalist Chinese on Formosa, would furnish the manpower for all these hard-striking operations. More and more, too, we would rely on native forces in such major danger spots as Indochina, if only time can be purchased for their training.
It is the testimony of the experts that even before the A-bomb, U. S. sea and air power had done Japan in. That is one reason why military men have confidence in a plan which, while not new in its broad fundamentals, is novel in its proposed specific application to menacing red China.
The time may not be too far off when America will have to decide whether to try this "grand scheme" or fall back on some more conventional strategy if it wants to keep southeast Asia free from the reds' stranglehold.

TOUGH CUSTOMER
Geneva peace conference again brings face-to-face, as adversaries, Chou En-lai, Chinese communist premier-foreign minister, and Walter S. Robertson, U. S. assistant secretary of state for far eastern affairs.
At the end of World War II, Robertson was U. S. commissioner at the executive headquarters of the Marshall truce commission in Peiping. There, the principal communist he had to deal with was Chou En-lai. The two men came to know each other very well, and each gained a wholesome respect for the other's abilities.
There are two sharply conflicting versions of what kind of a man Chou is. The more favorable view is that Chou gained a great respect for Gen. George Marshall during the truce commission days.
There was a time, according to one source, when Chou was almost won over to accepting the American point of view on unification of China and an alliance with anti-communist forces. This period of collaboration ended when General Marshall came back to the U. S. as secretary of state.
The other view of Chou is that he is a completely dedicated communist. Acting under the communist principles of ethical conduct, he will lie, cheat, steal and condone mass murder, starvation and torture to attain his objectives. On several occasions, he double-crossed General Marshall outrageously.

Brig.-Gen. Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines gives this explanation for why India's Prime Minister Nehru behaves the way he does:
"Put yourself in his place," says the general. "He knows that the U. S. will never attack or invade India. He isn't sure of what Soviet Russia will do. It might order a sneak attack on India some night. So it is only natural that Nehru would appease Russia, which he does fear, at the risk of not appeasing the United States, which he does not fear."

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower's record in the public versus private power controversy was reviewed realistically by the nation's top utility experts here in recent days. The leaders of the so-called "power trust" staged their annual meeting in connection with the national convention of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, with which most of them are affiliated.
It may surprise the professional, political-agitators of this issue, but the private operators were not entirely satisfied with the White House achievements. Ike has not tried, as Truman liberals forecast, to hand over the nation's natural resources to them.
He has made no attempt to withdraw the government from this field, or to sell TVA, Bonneville, Grand Coulee and Central valley to the private interests. He has not opened the door to "selfish exploitation."

A FEW COMPLAINTS AGAINST IKE—As a matter of fact, the private utilitarians voiced a few complaints against Ike. Although he described TVA as "creeping socialism," the house killed amendments forcing TVA to pay taxes and liberalizing its contracts for sale of juice by closed-in-state. Eisenhower made no attempt to oust in the Republican votes for the restrictions.
Through the federal power commission, he handed the St. Lawrence project to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's New York state power authority. He has thrown his influence behind Dewey's demand for the right to develop Niagara River, as against the firm bid of five private companies. And utility-men regard state intervention as only slightly less distasteful than federal promotion.
Although Secretary Douglas McKay has killed the Truman-Chapman plan for federal development of Hells canyon, FPC has dragged out hearings on the Idaho power company's petition interminably. It looks now as if any decision may be deferred until after the November elections.
In these specific contests, Ike has not shown himself too friendly to private power. He had to give thought to such political considerations as the need to re-elect Dewey and a Republican congress next fall.

ROOSEVELT - TRUMAN - ICKES PROGRAM CHECKMATED—Being politico-economic realists, however, few utility bigwigs expected Ike to sabotage the vast public power grid built up through Roosevelt-Truman years. No utility corporation is in the market for existing federal systems, which are tied to such collateral operations as flood control, irrigation, navigation and other activities unsuited to private management.
In their summary, they credit the White House, congress and the courts with having checkmated the Roosevelt-Truman program of federalizing almost all the generating and distributing facilities now in private hands. Had that trend been continued for another four or eight years under a Democratic regime, they believe that Washington would have obtained a near-monopoly in this field.
Eisenhower, in short, has reversed the march of the public power parade.

A MIGHTY FEDERAL WEAPON—Equally important, they feel that a Stevenson in the White House would have insisted on exclusive government development of atomic power. All the traditional public power factions—Truman liberals and former aides, the OIO, the National Farmers' union—demand that Uncle Sam retain ownership and control of nuclear energy materials and facilities for commercial utilization.
Were this view to prevail, the United States would possess a weapon for destroying the private industry such as Roosevelt, Truman and Ickes never dreamed of in their most barmy and belligerent days. With exclusive control of all sources of nuclear and solar energy, Washington would have enjoyed life-and-death power over all industry, not merely the private utilities.
Under measures now pending before congress, however, these on-the-horizon forces will be developed and marketed under private auspices, with strict government supervision and regulations for safeguarding national defense needs.

VIEWS OF OTHERS

TAIL OF TWO COUNTRIES
Consider the contrast. In the Philippine Republic today the military potential of communism continues to decline.
According to President Ramon Magsaysay, there are now probably only about 4,000 fully-armed Huks (communists) at large, of whom fewer than 1,000 may be accounted fanatics. At its postwar peak the Huks' strength consisted of some 40,000 first-class fighting men.
In Indochina, on the other hand, communist power has just as consistently been growing.

As recently as 1949 the Vietnamese (communist) rebels were able to mount little more than local attacks on the French union posts along the northern frontier. The latest estimates indicate, in 1954, they have a force of approximately 360,000 regular and irregular troops and control possibly 11,000,000 natives out of a total population of 23,000,000.

Shortly after the Japanese surrendered Indochina back to the French a distinguished Philippine leader met Ho Chi Minh, who has since become head of the Indochina communists but then was known primarily as a nationalist. In the course of describing his difficulties with the French Ho said: "You Filipinos don't know how lucky you are. You have America. But we have France."

Events were to bear out Ho's fundamental distinction. The United States granted the Philippine islands full independence at a date stipulated in advance. France, having restored her sovereignty over Indochina, has not even yet offered the Indochinese complete freedom of choice between affiliation with the French union and independence, let alone set a firm date for the latter.

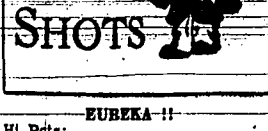

The Vietnamese forces have supplemented their military operations with political and economic warfare. The French have elected to base their resistance almost exclusively on arms.
In the Philippines Magsaysay conducted a "field laboratory" to determine the nature of the communist germ that had infected the Huks. He found it to consist of hunger, exploitation by landlords and bad government. He then combined an all-out military campaign with an offer of all-but friendship to correct these evils.

The results in both cases obviously speak for themselves. The Philippines today are an asset to the free world. Indochina is a prime liability.—Kansas City Star.

SECRECY IS OFTEN POISON
There is a disturbing trend toward secrecy in government in the United States. Last year, about 34 per cent of the meetings of congressional committees and subcommittees were executive sessions from which press and public were excluded. According to a congressional quarterly survey, 35 per cent of the 1,287 meetings held by these committees from Jan. 6 through April 10, of the current year, were behind closed doors. And these 1084 figures do not include the meetings of the house appropriations committee and its twelve subcommittees all of which were secret.
Rules of both senate and house require that "all hearings conducted by standing committees or their subcommittees shall be open to the public, except executive sessions for marking up bills or for voting or where the committee by a majority vote orders an executive session."

There are two reasons for public alarm over the increasing tendency of congressional committees to hang out "no admittance" signs at their sessions. First, that means more secrecy in legislation. The real work in drafting laws and making appropriations is done in the committee rooms. And second, when congress sets an example of secret government, officials at lower government levels are tempted to adopt a similar policy.
No one questions that some committee meetings should be held behind closed doors. But the reluctance of the people's elected representatives to transact more of their business in public merits censure. Free people have an inherent right to know what their government is doing.—Denver Post.

EUREKA!!
Hi Peds:
Dunno the gent's name, but he should have the nation's highest award. The gent runs a roadside cafe on the northern edge of Halley. He has come up with the perfect solution for the butter surplus problem. Maybe even for lots of other surplus.

His formula is simple: Ration it! Within days after rationing of butter goes into effect, there is no more surplus butter. Folks will flock to the stores to buy it—limit of one pound to a customer, naturally.

For support of his proposal, the gent just points to what happened when things were rationed during the Late Hate. If it was rationed, folks thought it whether they needed it or not.
Wait till Secretary Benson hears of this!

We stopped being surprised a long time ago over the variety of things referred to Pot Shots. But this one ALMOST surprised us.
Yep, a chance to spend the summer month looking after a farm located 40 miles from the University of Arkansas. There are no crops that require any attention. The folks on the farm just can't up and leave it because they have six calves, two cows and some feed they can't look up.
The house is a small, three-room affair—suitable for a couple. The farm is adjacent to a hard-surfaced road. It's eight miles to the nearest large town and one and one-half miles to a village. Fishing and lots of sightseeing. A quiet, Ozark summer is the way it puts.
If this intrigues you, just holler and we'll pass on the address.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

NEW YORK—Harry Truman has called the attention of his old friend, Max Lowenthal, to an article in Harper's blasting the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He suggested that Lowenthal read the story, done by Alan Barth, described as a member of the editorial staff of the Washington Post which sympathized with Alger Hiss after his conviction of perjury with plain implications of treason. Truman asked Lowenthal for his opinion of the story and offered to write his for Lowenthal.

Lowenthal is the Washington lawyer who outfoxed the house committee on un-American activities and managed to refrain from naming private forces which brought about his selection to go to Germany as an "adviser" soon after the victory. He has been shown up, in association with the late Carol Weiss Kling, who specialized in communist cases and with other questionable characters of the same hue.

Jonathan Daniels, the editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, who was Truman's personal assistant in the White House, wrote that Lowenthal was the first one to think of running Truman for vice president, realizing that Roosevelt's number was up and, in effect, was the king-maker of the Truman regime of almost eight years.

Cong. George A. Dondero, Michigan, made a long inventory of Lowenthal's personality and activities on the floor of the house on Sept. 1, 1950, in which he said: "Within a matter of weeks," after he landed in Germany after pulling strings in Washington, "the (Lowenthal) was known as the general counsel to General Clay and had as an assistant George Shaw Wheeler, the American traitor, communist and renegade who shocked all America when he denounced the land of his birth and asked communist-controlled Czechoslovakia for asylum."

Lowenthal later denied that Wheeler was actually his "assistant" but his testimony was very vague and evasive on many points.
Barth's article is a gratuitous attempt to discredit the evidence which the FBI turns up against communists. He says that in the mid-forties, the FBI's reports were "widely discounted if not disregarded by officials of the executive branch of the government."

That seems to have been true, but the reason might have been that a government infested with traitors under the patronage of both Roosevelt and Truman would have had base reasons to suppress information from the FBI and to refuse to act on it. Barth presents a small selection of utterly trivial reports which are attributed to the FBI and argues that these selected items are sufficient to discredit the bureau entirely.

On the other hand, he conceded that the FBI is very secretive with its information, which would mean that he has no means of knowing how substantial its reports are. Moreover, to discredit Elizabeth Bentley, an informant whose work embarrassed the whole regime which had truck with traitors and much of its inspired press, Barth reports that some individuals whom she exposed were not indicted and that some indictments were dropped.

Again the motive of self-preservation arises to explain the situation. For the department of justice was no less guilty than the treasury and the state department. And it possessed the power to protect reds by making weak presentations to grand juries and trial juries. Moreover, some partisan judges slanted justice toward the reds.

Judge Claude McCulloch, of the U. S. court, Portland, was quick to defend the FBI in a letter to the editors of Harper's.
"Mr. Barth's article is shallow beyond belief," he wrote. "Taking into account the most fragmentary data from the most fragmentary data from thousands of reports, comprising millions of words, the author concludes: 'Perhaps the reports made by the FBI, with their fuzzy mangle of unevaluated, compelled discounting.'"

"If Mr. Barth had wanted to make a fair appraisal of FBI reports, he could have obtained access to a mass of them by methods well known to newspaper reporters. No city editor on any paper of importance would stand for such a poor job of reporting."

In part I have to disagree with the judge there, for I have found the FBI uncommunicative and I believe few reporters have access to much of its information. However, I will string along on his opinion of Barth's "reporting," for it seems to me that he bases heavy conclusions on flimsy evidence.

Judge McCulloch continues: "Judge Thomas F. Murphy, who prosecuted Hiss, told me he had never been disappointed in an FBI agent or the character of his work. I can back Judge Murphy's statement from 16 years of working with these boys. Indeed, I have never heard any federal judge speak critically of G-men. The shallow effort of Barth to discredit them is laughable. Yet, you deemed Mr. Barth's article deserving of the number one spot in your publication."

Sen. William Jenner recently said the New Dealers in the Eisenhower administration, including some in the White House itself, had a plan now to abolish congressional investigations and to discredit the FBI.
Jenner holds that there is a plot afoot to change the basic nature of the government by creating a tolerance for Soviet Russia and forgetting

Is That So!

Little Klipspringer Is High Jumper
Who are the star jumpers among mammals?
Some simply cannot jump—they have no occasion to leap; a few like the lion crouch and spring tremendous distances to pounce on their prey, some—like the jackrabbit leap almost as far to avoid capture, others like the kangaroo leap long distances because it is their way of locomotion.
The horse, normally, is not given to jumping. The desert-bred Arabian horses simply cannot jump at all. But a well-trained horse can leap from 33 to 35 feet when a ditch has to be taken in the course of a run. Vertically, the late Heather Bloom cleared the bars at eight feet and two inches.

The larger kangaroos, who come by their jumping naturally, can clear nine-foot fences and in a long succession of jumps bound over the ground with 15-to-20-foot hops and even 30 when a burst of speed is called for.

A small edition of the kangaroo—the American kangaroo mouse, which has a three-inch long body, has been known to make leaps of 8 to 10 feet horizontally. The slightly larger kangaroo rat of four and one-half inches can jump from 9 to 12 feet. The jerboa, an old-world burrowing desert animal, which measures about a foot—including his seven and one-half-inch long tail—can leap nine feet easily.

Our western jackrabbit can uncork a 25-26 foot leap when in desperation.
Goats and sheep, members of a very sure-footed race, possess considerable jumping powers, using them in mountain places where it would mean sure death to most bulky animals. But instead of trusting to the muscles of one pair of limbs, they bring their four feet close together and then uncork the muscular powers of all the limbs in ting past acts of disloyalty. The degradation of congress to a minor status in the Washington scheme would be part of the scheme.

Lowenthal may be remembered as the author of a book abusing the FBI which came out during Truman's presidency. The FBI doubtless does possess a "dossier" on him in view of his associations over a period of more than 30 years. Truman's prompt reminder to Lowenthal and his offer to exchange opinions of the story indicate Truman's attitude toward the FBI as he has never revealed it before.

The great cats—lion, leopard—are all tremendous leapers. After a patient stalk, they will hurl themselves suddenly 25 to 30 feet, accomplishing the distance of the jump with prey in the air. It is yet another of their leaping powers. Leopards have been reported leaping to a 10-foot high wall carrying prey weighing four-fifths of their own weight. Animals, too, jump with the aid of their tails. The editor of the New York (Can.) British Columbia, the ty Taylor, told me that a cat leapt a fence with a heavy prize show cock.

Man—specially trained—does pretty well among cats. Les Steers, U.S.A., leapt the bars at 6 feet 11 for record. For the broad record of Jesse Owens, U.S.A., still stands: 28 feet 8 1/2 inches as for the nontrivial human?

Traffic lies ahead. That snarled, perplexing American traffic problem. Have we a solution? Not completely. But we call your attention to the car designed to ease traffic's burden on you.

It's the 1954 Mercury with a dynamic V-161 overhead valve engine.

The car with five optional power features designed to ease travel tension: a 4-way power seat that enables you to better see what's up ahead—and to more easily maintain full control. Power steering. Power brakes. Power windows. Two kinds of power transmissions.

These are the innovations that make Mercury so easy on you...under today's traffic conditions.

Group Slates Effort to Aid Ouster Move

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10 (AP)—Dr. Henry F. Grady, former ambassador to India, Greece and Iran, has announced the formation of a non-partisan northern California committee to assist a Wisconsin drive for the recall of Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

Grady said yesterday the group plans to raise funds to aid the Wisconsin campaign, led by LeRoy Gore, publisher of the Sauk-Prairie (Wis.) Star, a weekly.

Action Is Stated
Contributions would be used by the Wisconsin group to hire petition circulators and purchase small advertisements which will contain a return signature coupon.

Under Wisconsin law, the signatures of 404,000 registered voters must be obtained before a recall movement can be put into operation.

Menace Is Claimed
"Senator McCarthy and his tactics constitute a grave and unprecedented menace to freedom and civil liberties in the United States," Grady said in urging support for the local committee.

"All citizens of northern California, Republicans or Democrats, who disapprove of Senator McCarthy and his methods can rally support of this committee which is working actively and effectively now to recall the senator from office," Grady said.

Fiddling Idahoan Shows He's Good

WEISER, May 10 (AP)—Clarence Kemble, a Payette fiddler, proved last week-end he's almost unbeatable when it comes to handling a bow and strings.

He won the northwest mountain fiddlers championship from 40 contestants at the annual ceremony Saturday. But Kemble went down to defeat when challenged later by Frank McCraw, Macomb, Okla., who claims the title of fiddling champion from the 10 southwest states.

McCraw was given a medal as "all-west" fiddling champion. Runners-up in the northwest contest were Donald Keckler, Council, and Frank Sprague, who also was voted best fiddler over 70. The best fiddler under 16 was Bobby Stelling, 9, Ontario, Ore.

7 Autos Ferried Over Swift River

RIGGINS, May 10 (AP)—Seven Idaho motorists obtained their automobiles two years ahead of schedule, thanks to the daring of two central Idaho river men.

The cars were trapped behind the turbulent Salmon river March 10 by the collapse of the only bridge into the area. Completion of a new bridge was not expected until 1956.

Glen Rice and Al Otis, both Whitebird, brought the autos one by one across the swollen river Saturday by using two rubber rafts and a makeshift wooden platform, propelled by a 28-horsepower outboard motor.

The cars were ferried 40 feet downstream to a sandspit and then towed to safety.

Taylor Launches 10-Day Campaign

LEWISTON, May 10 (AP)—Former U. S. Sen. Glen Taylor launched a 10-day campaign through the Idaho panhandle today in his bid for the Democratic nomination for senator.

He declared here over the week-end that Idaho's 1950 election, in which he was defeated for the nomination by D. Worth Clark, was "as corrupt as anything that ever happened in Kansas City."

Taylor said that this year he was "very confident of election if I can get my votes counted."

She Loses Race For Lost Purse

COEUR D'ALENE, May 10 (AP)—Was there anything ever so frustrating?

Mrs. George Marks, Hayden Lake, told sheriff's officers her purse bounced out of her jeep as she was driving near her home Friday. She traced her way back to the spot, just in time to catch a glimpse of another motorist making off with the purse.

Solon Fears War By Arabs, Israel

BOSTON, May 10 (AP)—Sen. Wayne L. Morse, Ind., Ore., believes there is "danger" of war between the Arab states and Israel unless American policy toward those nations is altered.

The present policy "violates America's responsibility to the young democracy, and helps the enemies of the Jewish state," Morse said in a land for Israel dinner here last night.

Morse said the United States recently pledged impartiality between Israel and the Arab countries, but "at the same time... seeks to alay the deep (Arab) resentment that resulted from creation of the state of Israel."

The table on which Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation is in the Connecticut state library at Hartford.

Inquiry Slated Over Veracity Of Red Pledge

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The national labor relations board arranged its first inquiry today into whether a union leader filed a truthful non-communist affidavit to make his union eligible for NLRB privileges.

The inquiry, before an NLRB trial examiner, centers on affidavits filed by Secretary-Treasurer Maurice E. Travis of the Mine Mill and Smelter union, one of the labor groups kicked out of the CIO in 1949 on grounds it was run by communists.

Efforts Stopped
Previous NLRB efforts to question affidavits filed by certain union officers have been stopped by the courts, but both federal district appeals courts here refused to bar the Travis hearing.

The NLRB ordered the inquiry because it said it was informed Travis had written an article in the union newspaper on Aug. 15, 1949 saying he had quit the communist party "to make it possible for him to execute an affidavit" as required by the Taft-Hartley act.

Pledges Required
Under that law only unions whose officers file such anti-communist pledges are eligible to use NLRB facilities to acquire and enforce bargaining rights for workers with employers.

The NLRB has said that despite Travis' newspaper article he "nevertheless continued to believe in the principles of communism and the communist party."

The union is one of the oldest labor organizations in the country, representing workers engaged in mining and smelting copper, lead and zinc in western states.

Red Ousted

More Libraries Asked by Group

POCATELLO, May 10 (AP)—The Idaho State library association was on record today for establishment of county and regional libraries in the state and an expansion in the staff of the Idaho state traveling library.

Delegates were advised at the close of their annual meeting Saturday to look into the possibility of increased use of audio visual aids in education. Clarence C. Moore, associate professor of education at Idaho State college, said it had been argued that such aids are twice as effective as normal teaching methods.

Candidate Blasts Smylie Statement

MCCALL, May 10 (AP)—Cantrill Nielsen, Pocatello, says Atty.-Gen. Robert E. Smylie was "throwing rocks from his glass house" when he said Idaho's Democrats are divided.

In a statement also critical of closure of the teachers' colleges, the Bannock county commissioner said Smylie had "better start using a magnifying glass on his own party."

Nielsen is seeking the Democratic and Smylie the Republican nomination for governor. Nielsen's statement was in reply to a speech the attorney-general made in Spokane last Monday night.

Oil Isn't Remedy For This Squeak

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 10 (AP)—Glen Tomlinson, Blaine county farmer, "kept hearing noises" around his automobile. Finally he asked a young boy to look under the car.

The boy, Nolan White, discovered a nest of young sparrows was sitting atop the gas tank. The mother was no where to be seen. "I'm sure I don't know what to do with them," said Tomlinson.

Aandahl Sets Look at Dams

BOISE, May 10 (AP)—Assistant Secretary of the Interior G. Fred Aandahl prepared today to wind up his four-day visit to Idaho with a look at reclamation projects in the Upper Snake river valley.

With regional director Harold T. Nelson of the bureau of reclamation, Aandahl will inspect the Falls dam project near Idaho Falls and developments in the Pocatello area. He leaves for Washington late today by way of Salt Lake City.

Aandahl told a reporter yesterday local initiative displayed by Idahoans makes the state "one of the most forward looking of the states in reclamation work," and bears out the belief of President Eisenhower that water resources development can best be spearheaded by local groups.

He said that in the case of the northside pumping project near Rupert, which he inspected Saturday, "local interest are actually ahead of the federal government."

Bureau Plans To Build New Storage Barn

SHOSHONE, May 10.—A new storage building for the bureau of land management will be constructed before July 1, officials here announced this week.

Business transactions for the building followed sale of four old CCC camp buildings north of Shoshone which had been used by the agency for storage.

The four CCC buildings were the last at the site here and were sold at an average price of $236. They will be moved about May 21 by the buyers, Charles Pendleton, Guy Payton, Lorin Hubbs and the Shoshone highway district.

The new storage building for the bureau will be put on four lots south of the offices here. It will be 28 by 120 feet and constructed of aluminum. A chain link woven wire fence will be erected around the four lots.

E. W. McRoberts has the contract for building. Since the bureau of land management has no way of acquiring land by purchase, the four lots were secured from Domingo Solaaga, Shoshone, by trading him range land in Power county.

Pied Piper of Buhl Uses Auto And Is Getting Good Results

Buhl, May 10.—Mrs. J. B. Peterson, interest has been shown in the son, Buhl, has a following comparable to that of the Pied Piper except her following is made up of children and adults alike. The object which has made Mrs. Peterson the subject of so much attention is an Autoette Cruiseabout of which she recently became the owner.

Mrs. Peterson saw the midget car first while visiting in Long Beach, Calif., in March and decided it was what she ought to have for her transportation needs in and about Buhl.

The tiny three-wheeled, all-electric auto runs on batteries placed beneath the single seat. It is guided by means of a lever and has three speeds forward and reverse. At the end of the day the batteries are recharged by plugging in a charger which is supplied with the car.

Two adults and several children can be comfortably accommodated in the small auto.

The vehicle is capable of 15 to 20 miles an hour and will travel approximately 40 miles on one charge. The tires are regulation wheelbarrow size. The rear wheelbase is approximately three feet and the car is equipped with all the necessary accessories such as horn, lights and brakes and carries a regulation automobile license. The car, Mrs. Peterson pointed out, "can be turned around on a dime" and has the power to climb any incline that a regular automobile can take."

Mrs. Peterson says considerable
