Tips Sent M'Carthy By Many

WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP)—Senator McCarthy said today he has "no idea" how many informants his investigations subcommittee has in the government, but each of his 14 investigators has individuals who supply information and tips.

A lot of tips also come to the subcommittee anonymously, McCarthy said, adding that many are worthless but some give valuable information.

McCarthy was questioned by army counsel Joseph N. Welch at the McCarthy-army hearings about the sources of his information from within the government.

Has Clear Hand Welch was having a clear hand in the fast-waning stages of the hearings to put his questions to the senator. Members of the hearings subcommittee were all passing their rounds, after the luncheon recess, leaving the field to the army lawyer.

Throughout the forenoon session, Welch had little time with the witness owing to prolonged political wrangling among the senators.

Charges Hurdled In often-heated exchanges, Senator McClellan, D. Ark., accused the Republican administration of "lack of capacity" to govern. And McCarthy, blaming the Democrats for "promoting" the charges against him, predicting they will "suffer and bleed" as a result.

Other senators also pitched into it. Welch, in his one main round of questioning McCarthy, went first into what relations the senator had with Mr. and Mrs. J. Meyer Schine, wealthy parents of Pvt. G. David Schine.

McCarthy said he had visited their homes in New York City and at a lake at Gloversville, N. Y.

Notes Dam Bill She noted that one of her first actions was to introduce a bill authorizing construction of the controversial dam, and her efforts in its behalf had earned her the nickname of "Hell's Belle."

Her announcement noted her membership on the house interior and insular affairs committee and a special committee investigating tax exempt foundations. She is president of an organization of first-term Democrats in the house.

Points to Action She also pointed to her introduction of a bill to prevent the secretary of agriculture from putting into effect his reduction in dairy price supports, and a number of mining bills.

Her efforts in behalf of the zinc and lead industry, she said, resulted in her being named to a house committee which conferred with the White House about the situation. She also worked for increased funds for forest access roads and forest pest control, she added.

Before her election, Mrs. Pfost operated a real estate firm and was deputy clerk and later treasurer of Canyon county. Her husband, Jack Pfost, is retired and is with her in Washington.

One of Bandit Pair Is Nabbed 35 Minutes After T.F. Holdup

Twin Falls police required only 35 minutes Wednesday night to nab Leo L. Young, 32-year-old ex-convict, four miles east of Murtaugh after he and an accomplice had taken $106 at gun point from the cash register of the Union Oil company service station on Kimberly road.

Young was apprehended at 11:20 p. m. in a 1951 Kaiser sedan stolen from the service station. An intensive search was made for the second gunman who escaped with all the money.

Melvin Cardwell, station attendant, said a man, about 35, dressed in levis, entered the station and asked to use the telephone. When he turned around, he said, "I was looking down the barrel of a gun."

While Cardwell was being held on the floor behind the counter with rope and white adhesive tape the robbers brought with them, John Hanchey, a customer, walked in to see why the attendant had not come out to the gasoline pump. The gun was turned on Hanchey and he was ordered to lie on the floor.

Hanchey said after the men left he lifted his head above the counter just in time to see the pair roar away from the station in the car he had been driving. The car, a two-tone gray 1951 Kaiser, is owned by a friend of Hanchey's, John W. Walker.

After Hanchey untied Cardwell, the attendant discovered $106 in change and cash had been taken from the cash register.

Request for Liquor Election Withdrawn

Petitioners withdrew petitions calling for a special liquor-by-the-drink election Thursday morning, reports Mrs. John Leiser, city clerk.

The move followed a decision by the petitioners to call the election later in the fall after the vacation period to minimize absentee voting and give city residents an opportunity to be in town for the election, reports Mrs. Leiser.

An election must be called within 30 days after the petitions are filed, explains Mrs. Leiser.

Contract Signed
SALT LAKE CITY, June 17 (AP)—A contract giving another holiday and 7 cents an hour more in pay has been signed by the AFL Teamsters Joint Council and the International Operators League.

Members of the league are 10 trucking firms in Utah and Idaho. The contract will go back to May 1. Drivers over long hauls now will get $2.14 an hour with an additional quarter-cent per mile. Fullmer II, latter, secretary-treasurer of Local 222, Teamsters union, said.

GENERAL TO REPORT
HANOI, Indochina, June 17 (AP)—Supreme Commander Gen. Paul Wey left Indochina today for Paris to report on the military and political situation in the struggle against communist rebels.

The Rev. C. H. Yaden, pastor of the First Pentecostal church, Twin Falls, Wednesday announced his resignation to take a post as district superintendent and pastor of the First Pentecostal church at Portland, Ore.

The Rev. Yaden came to Twin Falls from Lewiston, where he had served as minister five years. At Portland, in addition to ministerial duties and district work, he will help to administer Conqueror's Bible college.

He will leave for Portland about the first of July, he said.

The Rev. Earl Mallory, Platon, Ont., Canada, will succeed the Rev. Mr. Yaden as pastor of the Twin Falls church.

Pope said the trip, billed officially as a "scientific expedition," was organized by Baker to study stress and strain on the human system while at the same time observing various phases of oceanic life.

"We are not going to take a drop of water or a bit of food when we leave here," he said. "We've got it figured out that there are an average of six squalls over the Pacific between here and Hawaii during July. They will give us rain water to drink."

"And as for food," he added, "we'll just fish it out of the sea."

Pope said he and his fellow adventurers expected persistent oceanic conditions.

Demand Good For Brannan, Chairman Says

"Magic Valley Democrats were fortunate to get their bid in early for former Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan as speaker at a banquet June 26," says Barry Brannan, Twin Falls county chairman.

"We have just received word that bids for Mr. Brannan's time have become so numerous that any delay on our part could have cost us his valuable services," Barry explained.

The Twin Falls county chairman reported plans are complete for the event to be held in the Legion hall here. A capacity crowd is anticipated.

He said interest in hearing Brannan has been expressed across southern Idaho. Tickets have been made available through the county central committees in most of the counties.

Claiming that agriculture is one of the problems in which the administration has failed, Barry said Idaho's Democrats "will be looking with intense interest to the former secretary of agriculture's discussion of this problem."

He reported Brannan will arrive either early the morning of the banquet by plane or the night before by train. In either event a delegation of Twin Falls Democrats will meet him.

Kernell Allison, Filer, is chairman of the event which will start at 7:30 p.m.

Allowance Hike For Poor Backed

GOODING, June 17 (U)—Former Congressman John Sanborn, Hagerman, a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, came out today for increased allowances for persons on welfare rolls.

Sanborn said old people and others who are physically unable to earn sufficient livings are handicapped under present conditions to "squeak out a bare existence."

This is due primarily, Sanborn said, to the law which makes it mandatory for all earnings of those on relief to be subtracted from subsistence checks.

He called for a law making it possible for indigents to earn-up to at least 75 per cent of their subsistence checks before deductions are made.

House Agrees To U. S. Crop Surplus Sales

WASHINGTON, June 17 (U)—The house has agreed to give the Eisenhower administration authority to sell one billion dollars worth of surplus farm products to friendly nations and give away another 300 million dollars worth to promote U. S. foreign policy.

Before any part of it can become law the house will have to come to terms with the senate.

A senate bill already passed provides for only a 500 million dollar disposal program over a period of one year. These and other differences probably will be worked out by a senate-house conference committee.

The administration wants to incorporate the surplus food plan in its foreign aid program.

One of the major objectives of the legislation is to reduce the huge stocks of surplus farm products acquired by the government under price support programs — stocks which are costing an estimated $700,000 a day in storage charges.

Eisenhower discussed the surplus problem yesterday in an informal talk at the 55th annual convention of the National Association of Retail Grocers.

Asking the grocers to support his farm program, including a shift from high, rigid price supports to a lower, more flexible system, the President said the government must stop encouraging production of "things we don't need."

Otherwise, he said, no farm program in the world can resist "having its back broken—then we will have something disastrous for all of us."

Eisenhower said the thing that hurts agriculture more than anything else, in his opinion, is rapid fluctuations, particularly rapid downward fluctuations. "What goes up usually has to come down sooner or later," he said.

Asked whether he would veto

Masters Say He Won't For Governor
BOISE, June 17 (U)—State Sen. R. S. Masters said he will not be a candidate for governor on the ticket.

"Masters' statement came in the wake of the Democratic nomination of R. S. Masters to the office of governor. Masters was being nominated by the party's primary election. Masters' statement came in the wake of the Democratic nomination of R. S. Masters to the office of governor. Masters' statement came in the wake of the Democratic nomination of R. S. Masters to the office of governor.

Explains Action
The secretary of state's statement was "almost meaningless" for him to get into for governor, but his decision to run was based on a factor.

"The question, Masters would I defeat or lose in votes from one of the progressive candidates to nominate a reactionary on the Democratic ticket error."

Still Confused
"Therefore," he added, "I would not injure any candidate withdrawing my name race."

He said he still was at the general election. "Nevertheless," for the party harmony and for the of the Democratic ticket, drew my name as a candidate.

He also urged that a careful check be kept on polio outbreaks in the state and that the health department be kept advised of any such outbreaks. OKLAHOMA CITY, June 17 (AP)—Fire, pushed along speedily by a stiff south wind swept through the heart of the Oklahoma City university campus yesterday, destroying three buildings and causing $674,000 damage.

Help Pledged By Red Cross In Emergency

LOS ANGELES, June 17 (AP)—National Chairman E. Roland Harriman says the American Red Cross never will refuse to help disaster-stricken communities — including those which fail to pay lack funds spent by the relief group.

Harriman gave the reassurance in amplification of his charges that some cities shirked their financial obligations to the organization. In his Monday night speech at the Red Cross convention here Harriman had contended that several cities which accepted nationwide disaster aid did not reimburse the Red Cross, although they solicited and collected funds because of the disaster.

A Red Cross spokesman said Harriman's statement last night was a reply to any hints that the organization might refuse to help cities he accused of not living up to their financial obligations to the Red Cross. Harriman cited Flint, Mich., as a specific example and then said Waco, Tex., and Worcester, Mass., were guilty of the same practice.

THE REAL ANSWER

The fright felt by many Americans in the face of the communist menace is genuine. And there can be no doubt that it is soundly based. We have seen enough of the reds' pattern of world conquest and their internal depredations to realize we are not involved in a child's game.

Still, many signs exist that with a lot of us these fears play too great a daily role. One would think America had no strength, no resources of its own, to throw into the steady combat against the communist peril.

A Democrat walks out of a house committee hearing in protest against what he deems unfair hamstringing of men's reputations. A visitor, obviously equating the Democrat's action with treason, addresses him as "Malenkov" as he leaves.

This same group, the Keesee committee, appears to be engaged in trying to show that new ideas are to be dreaded like germ warfare. Its evident thesis is that men who dare to advance new ideas, or merely to accept them, are guilty of some sort of massive plot against "the public interest."

Over and over we are told of purported plots and conspiracies, in terms which suggest we are at the mercy of the communist devils and that our democratic ideals cannot stand to be held up beside the moth-eaten garb of tyranny.

What kind of people are we, anyway? Are we so timid that we must listen to jittery counsel which tells us there is a communist under every bed and maybe even under every army cot?

We hear much these days about men who are "soft on communism." Beyond doubt, some men have been just that. But the fears of that menace would not be so greatly magnified if there were not a lot of people in this country who are soft on Americanism.

This is a country renowned for nearly 180 years for the power and example of its democratic ideals, its devotion to liberty in all its forms.

This is a country which gives a higher standard of living to more people over a wider area than any other nation on earth.

This is a country which in its every characteristic act and mood is the living refutation of the communist myth. Americans prove every day they get up and work and think that the free do best in this world.

This is a nation, too, which must be acknowledged—when all its assets, the material, the human and the spiritual, are added together—as the greatest power on the face of the globe.

Let us be alert and prepared for our very real perils. But let us meet them as the men of strength and vision we really are, not as frightened children who imagine they have no safety from the world's cruelties.

WHY NOT BAG LIMITS?

While youthful drivers continue to screech their cars around downtown street corners in mad pursuit of each other and speed crazy adults barrel up and down our highways without regard for human lives or anything else, the toll of highway deaths continues to mount in Magic Valley.

It's the same story throughout the state, for that matter. The current copy of Safety News, put out by the Idaho chapter of the National Safety Council, reports almost routinely that figures for the first three months of this year "placed Idaho among the 18 states with an increase in traffic fatalities—Idaho with an 11 per cent increase in motor-vehicle deaths over 1953."

This increase for Idaho, the Safety News pointed out, "was registered against a 9 per cent drop for the nation as a whole."

With about the same determination that we are seeing demonstrated in all quarters these days, the Idaho chapter of the National Safety Council summed up its comment on the state's deplorable record by urging "increased diligence by the cities and safety workers in Idaho to again place us among the states with improved fatality records."

How long are we going to kid ourselves in Idaho, anyway?

Just how calloused can we get in our disregard for the human lives that are being lost on our highways?

How long will our law enforcement officials, our prosecuting attorneys, our courts and our juries continue their mamby-pamby attitudes toward these killers and potential murderers?

If human lives and broken bodies don't take precedence in importance any more—if our maudlin sympathies make us more concerned with the inconveniences these zany drivers might suffer from going to jail or losing their driver's licenses—let's just declare open season on everyone who might be foolish enough to venture forth upon our highways. Then we might try to keep the people of Idaho from becoming extinct by protecting them the same way we do pheasants, ducks, sage hens and the like—with individual bag limits!

After all, these screwball speed maniacs must have their fun.

And judging from the fact that Magic Valley's death toll from highway tragedies is almost double what it was at the same time last year, the screwballs are having plenty of thrills.

So, in the meantime, naughty-naughty.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON — Top Republican strategists on Capitol Hill are bringing tremendous pressure against Democratic attempts to force a public and official showdown on Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy's personal finances. They recognize it to be a peculiarly vulnerable issue.

Sen. Stuart Symington, Missouri, has agreed to reveal his back-story in the McCarthy-Stefans controversy, if the Wisconsin senator will submit to a senate committee examination of his sudden rise to wealth since his attack on communists began in February, 1950. Although their acrimonious arguments seem to have simmered down it still echoes in political circles.

Indeed, there is a suspicion that certain prominent GOP-ers would welcome a review of McCarthy's banking, borrowing and stock market operations. It was the White House which tried to discredit and weaken him as a political force in the P. G. David Schine comedy.

Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell, Jr., has cleared McCarthy of violating any federal statute. But his income-tax status is still under study by Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Dolman Andrews, who once entertained McCarthy at Richmond, Va., and praised him highly.

CHARGES CALLED RED'S SMears—McCarthy branks these charges as "Daily Worker and communist smears," designed to hamstring his exposure. But the fact is that they were brought after an exhaustive study of his financial deals by a special subcommittee of the senate rules committee. It is interesting that the subcommittee chairman was Sen. Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., Symington's Missouri colleague.

The anti-McCarthy report was signed by the full subcommittee, the other members being Sen. Carl Hayden, Arizona Democrat, and Sen. Robert C. Hendrickson, New Jersey, Republican. When McCarthy challenged it as a "smeary," the senate gave a 60 to nothing vote of confidence to the Hennings committee.

BASIS FOR SYMINGTON ACTION—Symington's revival of the issue now is based on the fact that, on six separate occasions, McCarthy refused to appear before the committee to testify where he obtained and how he spent the hundreds of thousands of dollars given to him to combat communism. He refused to answer formal charges that he had used the funds to pay off bank loans and for profitable deals in the stock market.

When his senate assistant, Ray Kiermas, was asked the same question on his late bank balances in a hearing on a libel suit against McCarthy, he refused to answer "on advice of counsel." McCarthy lived with Kiermas before the senator's recent marriage.

REPORT PIGEONHOLED—The Hennings report was the most severe indictment of a senator in recent history. It was promptly pigeonholed when the Republicans' 1952 victory gave the rules committee chairmanship to Sen. William E. Jenner, Indiana, a McCarthy pal. In fact, it is impossible to obtain a copy of the Hennings document.

The indictment charged, in brief, that McCarthy had accepted $30,000 in payments and loans from housing and soft-drink lobbyists at the very moment when he was trying to obtain special favors for them as a member of the senate banking and currency committee, which had jurisdiction over the two lobbyists' business.

LOBBYIST'S CONTRIBUTION—It charged that he used part of this money to put up required collateral for overextended bank loans, and part to invest in stock. He got the $20,000 loan from the soft-drink lobbyist, a virtual stranger, only one day after McCarthy had made a special plea on behalf of the beverage concern.

He had his first tangle with the army at this time over the military's excessive use of sugar wanted by the soft-drink industry, McCarthy became known as "the Pepsi Cola king on Capitol Hill."

Another official charge was that he had used anti-communist contributions for personal financial gain. It was supported by production of his bank and brokerage accounts and the testimony of key witnesses.

VIEWS OF OTHERS

CHANGES IN THE 'CENTRAL'

Robert R. Young's victory in the New York Central railroad battle for control apparently indicates stockholder dissatisfaction with financial returns. Young has been after control of the road for some time and last February demanded the Central's chairmanship. When the board of directors turned him down, he organized his forces for a spectacular battle which included everything from stock purchasing to full newspaper advertisements and a court fight.

Of particular interest to people of the Intermountain area is the fact that Young selected as president of the Central Alfred E. Perlman, now executive vice president of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad. It is a richly deserved compliment to Perlman to be chosen to head the nation's second largest railroad.

Perlman has done an outstanding job for the Rio Grande. A young man, well educated and well trained, he is extremely progressive in all transportation matters. The Wall Street Journal recently reported that Perlman's philosophy runs something like this: "After you've done a thing the same way for two years, you should look at it carefully. After five years, look at it with suspicion. After 10 years, throw it away and start all over." Since that matches Young's philosophy, the new chairman of the New York Central and the new president should get along well.

Perlman has helped less time and money-consuming problems in every department of the Rio Grande and likes nothing better than a challenge. He is a student of modern railroading, a recognized leader in the field and a splendid organizer with the courage of his convictions. If Young and the Central's board of directors leave to him the matter of operations, the railroad's problems will be in capable hands.

Young has won a notable victory and deserves congratulations. Perlman has many good friends in this area, both in and out of transportation. The Tribune wishes him every success in the new position in which his remarkable promotion places him—Salt Lake Tribune.

PAYING FOR PARKS

No one can logically object to the increase in national park use fees worked out by the Department of the Interior and the Bureau of the Budget. It would be more encouraging, of course, if the money from admissions that now goes in to the treasury could be earmarked with congressional approval for meeting some of the huge backlog of construction work needed to maintain and improve the national park system. Fully 50 million Americans are expected to visit the 28 national parks and similar areas this year, and the sum allowed the National Park Service to accommodate this tremendous number of pleasure seekers is at best inadequate. Fortunately, the senate has restored most of the funds cut by the house; and we hope the conferees will retain the full senate appropriation—which amounts to only a little over 50 cents per visitor.

It would make sense as a long-term proposition for congress to permit the national parks to pay more of their own way directly, as assuredly they would do. Meanwhile, it is wholly proper to ask admission fees at levels more commensurate with the value of the privilege enjoyed, as Secretary McCarry has phrased it. A $3 entrance fee for $24 for such magnificent vacation spots as Yosemite will still be nominal—and, for Washingtonians, the Shenandoah National park and the Skyline drive at 50 cents instead of 25 cents will still be a bargain—Washington Post and Times Herald.

NEITHER NUTS NOR DEAF

"I'm afraid, doctor," said Mrs. Brown, "that my husband has some terrible mental affliction. Sometimes I talk to him for hours and then discover that he hasn't heard a word."

"That isn't an affliction, madam," was the weary reply, "That's a gift."—Lewiston Tribune.

POT SHOTS

THE REAL MCCOY

Dear Mr. Pot Shots

"Wuz we in town last Friday? Well, I wonder! And Iffen some of your newshounds didn't see us, well, they wuzn't attendin' to there knittin'."

Why me and Zeke went in most every store in town up and down the streets 'bout a dozen times. Ask them nice girls in the dime store, or the boys at the police office or all them lovely people at Sweet's. They'll tell you we wuz the real, genuine Mirandy and Zeke. Anyone else is imposters and that's agin the law.

My, there is some real nice, friendly folks in your city. Most of 'em just smiled and said "Howdy" so nice when we spoke to 'em (and we spoke to 'em all).

And then there wuz some that must a had ulcers or no mofidy of family troubles 'cause they looked at us like we had a hole in our heads and then looked away without a smile or a "Hello."

My, my, it wuz a real interestin' study of people!

On yes, lots of folks thought we wuz some of the characters from that play, Tain't so. We wuzn't even connected with it. We wuz just plain, friendly, helpful and civic minded and we asked Mr. Sweet if we could help. Muska done some good 'cause they sure had a crowd the next night.

Zeke has went to Washington for three weeks to see the President about the price of hogs. Maybe I should look up Cousin Onky while he's gone. Goodbye from the one, the only

WHAT NEXT?

Dear Pot Shots:

I think most folks have been led to believe there's going to be something poppin' most of the time this summer in connection with the Golden Jubilee celebration.

But I was looking at a schedule of events the other day and it appears to me there's nothing much certain now until the water parade at Thousand Springs. And I see where that has been postponed until in August. What's happenin' between now and then? What's next?

I.M. Wondering (Twin Falls)

BOTH POTENT

Dear Pot Shots:

Can you supply the answer to a hot argument? We were discussing the relative number of fatalities on highways in the United States and the number of deaths resulting from the atomic bombs dropped on Japan to end the war.

We agreed that traffic fatalities in the U. S. approximate 30,000 to 33,000 each year, but no two people would agree on the number of deaths from the atomic bombs dropped at Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Can you supply the answer?

I. Argue (Twin Falls)

P. S. Note: The World Almanac says the bomb at Hiroshima left 78,150 dead, 37,425 injured and 13,083 missing. The second bomb dropped at Nagasaki three days later (Aug. 9, 1945) killed 73,884. No injury or missing figures listed.

FAMOUS LAST LINE

"... Somehow or other those radishes in the store don't look near as good as the ones in our garden!"

GENTLEMAN IN THE FOURTH ROW

"WASHINGTON CALLING" BY MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON — A the recent national security council meeting, clear Matthew Ridgway, as a soldier, did not discuss at any length the political implications of involvement in Indochina, but the army chief of staff did draw a striking analogy.

He pointed to America's problem in pacifying the Philippines at the end of the Spanish-American war. Subjected to long years of oppressive colonial rule under Spain, among the Filipinos there was a deep hostility toward any white governing power imposed by bayonets. The United States eventually sent 7,000 troops to the Pacific islands yet pacification was long-drawn-out and would have been much more prolonged had it not been for the policy of William Howard Taft, the first civil governor.

In helping the Philippines people toward independence and statehood, Gun emplacements in the Indochinese jungle, Ridgway told the NSC, would have to be surrounded by armed guards on duty 24 hours to prevent infiltration. The use of local forces in supply and transportation, as was done extensively in Korea, would be all but impossible because of the hostility of up to 80 per cent of the population.

Basic to Ridgway's thesis is the premise that America's main enemy is Soviet Russia. A corollary to this thesis is that the area essential to keep out of communist hands is western Europe with its great reservoir of industry and trained manpower.

In the security council discussion that followed there was no suggestion that Russia might even be happy to see the United States drawn into an Asian war that would, in the army view, inevitably become, and quickly, a land war. The American strength would be dissipated while Russian strength was conserved for the final test.

Ridgway will not discuss his views. Repeated efforts have been made to get him to talk about his differences with Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff. But he has refused to seal questions.

Since the controversy over Indochina developed in its acute form, something like a freeze has been put on information out of JCS and to some extent out of the Pentagon itself. Adm. Robert B. Canine had made a commitment to a national magazine to write an article, based on an extensive intelligence digest showing the impressive buildup of the Soviet navy. This was ruled out by a JCS order forbidding the chiefs, deputy chiefs, service secretaries and assistant secretaries from writing any articles.

But those on the civilian side of government who agree with the Ridgway thesis feel strongly that the public should know his views, particularly since the interventionist viewpoint has been so widely advertised. Radford said in a speech six weeks ago that no further area should be allowed to go behind the iron curtain no matter what the cost.

Vice President Nixon told the American Society of Newspaper Editors that if it became necessary, he would favor using American ground forces in Indochina. This was in response to a question asking him how far he would be willing to go if American intervention should be necessary.

Recently there have been signs of an effort by administration spokesmen to beat a strategic retreat from this advanced position, or, at any rate, they seem to be saying that circumstances in the immediate future will have to determine the course of American action.

Nixon, ordinarily so articulate, has been conspicuously silent. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, in his western speech-making tour, reproached Britain and France for failing to meet American pre-conditions to "united action" and said the United States would never fight for colonialism. He did, however, reserve the right to take action alone in the event of an attack plainly jeopardizing America's security.

Perhaps the shift, if there has been a shift, will never be officially and publicly proclaimed. Those of the Ridgway persuasion feel that the greatest test of intervention or non-intervention is still to come. It will come with the dramatization of the Hanoi and the dramatization of the loss of an area that, as Ridford has pointed out, is rich in resources the communist world can employ against the free world.

Man Who Sailed Ocean Alone Gets Stuck on Florida Beach

MIAMI, June 17 (AP)—Leopold Taparek sailed alone for 200 days across 6,000 miles of ocean and arrived at Miami fast asleep.

"It was ridiculous," the 31-year-old Polish-American sailor said. "After what I had been through, sailing through storms and seas with flying colors, and then this."

His 23-foot ketch ran aground smack in the middle of Miami beach while he slept. A coast guard patrol boat had to tug him free so he could prepare for the final leg of his trip from Long Beach, Calif., to the Virgin Islands.

Taparek is making his voyage alone with the exception of a small black four-footed mate named Boris. "A thoroughbred mongrel," Taparek said.

Boris was signed on at Long Beach when Taparek set out on what he calls his "grand voyage." He said he wanted to go to the Virgin Islands to write a book, and decided to make the trip alone by sea so he could "travel at leisure and make my own schedule."

It took him 40 days to get to Panama, and after passing through the canal the voyage to Miami took another 160 days. He believes he has set some kind of record for seaborne solitude.

"During the war a torpedoed seaman spent 130 days alone on a raft, but on this trip I have been out almost half a year," Taparek said.

When Taparek left Long Beach he figured he had enough food to last him until he got to Panama. Then he ran out somewhere off the boat.

"When the line became too would bark and I knew there was something wrong on the ship," he said. He said he came along to catch some scratch themselves.

The adventuresome sailor fixed up an apparatus to take water in a pressure cooker and steam outlet.

"I could get four or five gallons of water in three hours," he said. "The water was not so course the water was not so burnt hose."

Lawmen End Idaho Parley, Pick Officers

McCALL, June 17 (AP)—The Idaho Peace Officers association closed its annual convention last night with the election of Robert Pollock, Idaho Falls, as president.

Named vice presidents were Glen Mendenhall, Moscow chief of police; Police Sergeant Roger Tucker, Boise; state police Lieut. Clark Hand, Twin Falls, and state police Lieut. Bob McCall, Idaho Falls.

Madison County Sheriff E. A. Hansen, Rexburg, was elected sergeant-at-arms.

Role Discussed

Delegates were told by Col. John R. Mamerow, state civil defense director, that they would play a key role in the event of a sudden attack on the United States.

He said one of their main jobs would be to aid in the equipping and direction of an auxiliary police force to maintain order in such an emergency.

Percy Wily II, special FBI agent in charge of the Idaho-Montana district, said that a police training academy which began at Idaho State college this week is a forerunner of similar schools in the country. He said about 150 officers will be trained each year at the Idaho school.

Test Demonstrated

Dr. Glenn Forester, Niagara Falls, N. Y., demonstrated a device for testing the presence of alcohol in the bloodstream.

The delegates failed to take action on a proposal to favor increasing the term of sheriffs from two to four years. They voted to hold the next convention in Pocatello, the time to be determined at a later date.

Reports Given On Boys' State To Local Club

Activities of the Boys' state encampment last week at Boise were outlined by Lewis Bastian, Twin Falls Lions club delegate, at a meeting of the club Wednesday noon at the Park hotel.

Bastian reported delegates heard talks by Robert E. Smylie, state attorney general; Gen. William F. Dean, San Francisco, Korean war hero; Lieut. Gov. Edson Deal, Boise; and District Judge O. E. Winstead, also Boise, and saw a film of the H-bomb tests on a Pacific island in 1952.

Mrs. Richard Serpa, president of the Twin Falls Fellows club, announced the club will hold a social program for local Lions and Fellows at 7 p. m. Saturday at the Twin Falls Grange hall.

Members were reminded of the zone social at 7:30 p. m. June 26 at the Y-Dell in Burley. The June 23 membership meeting has been canceled in favor of the Burley meeting.

George Knowles, Jr., Boise, new district governor, will preside at the installation of new zone officers.

Award pins for perfect attendance were presented by Jay Merrill, district governor, to Faren Faler, Victor Millett, Donald Plinders, Talmadge Hawkins, H. G. Hayes, James Leighton, Joseph Latimore, Dr. O. T. Luke, Ralph McFarlane, Jay Merrill, Rex Montgomery, Jerry Moffett, Richard Serpa, Dewain Silvester, U. J. Simmons, William Slimp, Donald Steidley, E. E. Jellison, Larry Wheeler and Robert Tucker.

Guests were Glen Brado, Ketchum, and Arlon Bastian, Twin Falls.

Credit Setup Free Of Subsidy Urged

SPOKANE, June 17 (AP)—A production credit system, owned and controlled by farmers and free from "government control and subsidy," was advocated this week by Earl F. Brockman, director of the federal farm credit board from Boise.

Brockman explained the proposal at yesterday's conference of officers and directors of the board's Spokane district.

He said this is advocated in the 1953 farm credit act. And a bill has been introduced in this congress to accomplish such a system.

The bill would permit the 13 banks for cooperatives to issue three classes of stock, he said, one to be held by the federal government to represent its present investment in farm credit.

Secretary's Post Sought by Nedry

BOISE, June 17 (AP)—Britt Nedry, Coeur d'Alene, state director of occupational licenses, has filed his formal declaration of candidacy for secretary of state.

He will be opposed in the Aug. 10 primary by at least one other Republican candidate, James H. Young, a Fruitland merchant.

Nedry, former publisher of a Coeur d'Alene newspaper, said his experience has provided him with "a thorough knowledge and understanding of the Idaho government and the resources of the state," and valuable qualification in giving the people of Idaho information about their government.

Pentagon Has Big Probe on Open Window

That was 60 days, 8 memoranda and 1,000 words ago.

It seems that on the night of 14 April, at about 2000 hours, G-2 agents found a couple of windows unlocked—that means about 8 p.m. April 14, G-2 army intelligence, normally concerned with ferreting out information on the foreign power or spying on foreign agents.

The Pentagon has 7,600 windows. The unlocked ones were in the suite of offices used by H. Struve Hensel, assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs.

Big Stuff

Hensel's "international security" is high level stuff, including such things as the North Atlantic Treaty organization.

Came the night of 28 April, between 1000 and 2130 hours. Three more unlocked windows. These were in the pressroom.

By May 3 (or 3 May) a memo had been issued to the proper authorities, starting out "Subject: Security inspection of Pentagon perimeter, and discussing the matter of the unfurnished windows. Instructions were issued to 'notify occupants it is a violation of building security regulations to unlock or open any windows.'

Who Done It?

Who unlocked 'em?

Suspicion pointed first at the corps of window washers. But on 13 May the foreman of the janitorial staff dashed off a memorandum. "Subject: Unlocked windows." He said the window incident of 14 April couldn't have been his men, because they didn't wash those windows until 15 April. Moreover, his washers reported that a clerk in Hensel's office wanted fresh air.

Probe Rolls On

The interoffice communications rolled on and on and on—from the Pentagon building security office; to and from "Headquarters Commandant," another one from the "Administrative Facilities Planning Branch, Office of the Secretary of Defense."

Finally the file climbed to a 1,000-word total. The last issue locks up the case—and presumably the window. This one is a broadside, aimed at "all occupants of the Pentagon." The "Subject: Open windows." The order, keep 'em closed.

The reason: It upsets the air conditioning system—and also upsets the G-2 agents and security officials.

Candidate Hits Tax Proposals

BOISE, June 17 (AP)—State Sen. Clark Hamilton, D., Washington, a candidate for his party's gubernatorial nomination, said today that financing of new highway construction in Idaho should be done through bonds.

The senator said in any event he would be flatly opposed to any increase in gasoline taxes or license plate fees.

"The little people of Idaho already are about to the limit of the tax load they can carry," Hamilton remarked.

The senator said he had been against any increases in taxes for a number of years.

He suggested bonds could be raised to match federal-aid funds to build and better Idaho's highways, and then tourists could be attracted to the state to help pay for the roads through present gasoline taxes.

Denver Air Base Is Ready for Ike

DENVER, June 17 (AP)—Aides of President Eisenhower scheduled a return to Washington today after nearly 24 hours at Lowry air force base in what one described as preparation "for a possible presidential visit."

Eisenhower used the air base here for his summer White House last year from Aug. 6 to Sept. 17.

There has been no official announcement he will vacation in Colorado this summer—but several reports have been received that he and Mrs. Eisenhower will arrive in August after congressional adjourns.

Lieut. Col. William Draper, air force aide to the President, said, "We want to be prepared—just in case."

Miss Twin Falls Goes to Contest

Demo Claims GOP Is Torn By Confusion

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 17 (AP)—A national Democratic woman official claims the Republicans are "too divided and confused to accomplish anything." The kindest thing we can do for them is return them to the role they best understand—the role of the opposition party.

Mrs. Katie Louchheim, on an eight-state party pep tour, also claimed in a talk at a Great Falls Democratic women's meeting that the Republicans would spend 4 million dollars in the fall campaign.

The director of women's activities for the Democratic National committee added:

"We don't have a lot of money to flood the country with propaganda but in politics there's no substitute for the devoted party worker. I'll trade all the paid organizers for one good volunteer."

Whatever the Democratic party may lack in money and the machinery of propaganda, it can more than make up for in issues.

CLYDE, N. C. June 17 (AP)—Elmer Roosevelt Mason, 30, will be tried here July 13 on a charge of letting an unlicensed minor—his son—drive his car.

State Patrolman W. R. Wooden, who made the arrest, said he saw the Mason car going about 30 miles an hour with a driver who looked a bit short in the middle. Mason protested that his son is a capable driver who also runs a farm tractor.

The boy wasn't charged. He's 5.

Dixon Lee, Price, Utah, will receive the fellowships from United Cerebral Palsy.

The fellowships will entitle them to 10 weeks of special study in the neurology service, Veterans Administration hospital, Ft. Douglas in Salt Lake City.

Sister Is Rugged In Square Circle

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 17 (AP)—Fourteen-year-old Mack Garrett has decided two things: Wrestling isn't what it's cracked up to be, and women aren't the weaker sex.

It all started when Mack and his 11-year-old sister, Anna, decided to imitate a pair of wrestlers they had been watching on television. Anna applied an armlock and her brother went flying over her shoulders.

Hospital attendants reported that X-rays revealed Mack has a broken left arm.

Benefits Hiked

WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP)—President Eisenhower has signed legislation increasing benefits an average of $24 a month for about 36,000 pensioners covered by the Railroad Retirement act. The increases are retroactive to Oct. 30, 1961.

Grange Raps Liquor Sale; Voting Setup

The Knull Grange went on record as being opposed to liquor by the drink in Idaho at the meeting Wednesday evening at the Grange hall.

The Grange also is opposed to the present system of voting on such issues, feeling that people who live in rural districts should have the right to vote on any issue that concerns the farmer to such an extent as does liquor by the drink.

A resolution will be drawn up to send each Grange in the county to see if Granges in Idaho will join in the fight to make it possible for rural families to vote.

Gene Hul, agricultural committee, reported on dairying and the Grange voted to donate $10 to the national youth committee.

Noah Oliver, Pomona master, announced that state executive committee of the Grange will attend the next meeting of the Pomona Grange July 10 at the Cedar Draw Grange hall.

E. M. Dossert announced the Knull Grange will furnish the program for the Hollett Grange Wednesday and urged all members to attend.

A special guest was W. E. Adams, state Grange master, and a member of the Pierce Park Grange. Adams talked on the dairy industry and Grange insurance. He was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Terry Sullivan and Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Creed, Twin Falls Grange, and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon McCauley, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Van Ausdell and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sharp, Pler Grange.

Mrs. C. E. Grieve, Mrs. A. E. Harper and Mrs. Warren Williams, the graces, furnished the program. The flag salute was led by the children of the Grange members and Sharon Zlatnik played a piano solo. The women sang to the fathers and gifts were presented to the oldest father, Raymond Jones, and the youngest father, Lyle Jones.

Mrs. John Bargar and daughters, former residents, gave several musical selections.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Holloway and Mr. and Mrs. Caroll Holloway.

Cars Damaged in Minor Accidents

Minor damage was reported from a series of traffic accidents in Twin Falls Wednesday.

Damage was estimated at $100 to the front end of Louis L. Peterson's Buick sedan after a collision with an International truck driven by Robert J. Stevens at Eighth street and Main street.

Front end damage to two cars resulted when Caroline Hill's 1947 Chevrolet, swerved over into the left lane of Third street and slammed Samuel Olsen's 1954 Pontiac, police said.

The right side of a California car parked in front of the Reynolds funeral home on Second avenue west was scraped when Joseph Leclair swung his 1953 Plymouth around a truck Lloyd Reiger was backing from a lot and sideswiped the car.

Charles D. Blackette, Fliter, told police early Thursday morning that the left rear fender of his 1948 Chevrolet sedan was damaged when he backed his automobile into a power pole at 187 Main avenue west.

Board Will Fight Menace of Pests

RUPERT, June 17—In order to combat the grasshopper menace, if need arises this summer, Minidoka county commissioners this week voted to transfer one-half mill of the weed levy to the insect pest fund.

In other business the board approved county expenses in connection with drilling a new well at the Paul Labor camp, after meeting with the labor board headed by Tom Abo.

Commissioner Ron Hawks moved that Engineer R. D. Armstrong be instructed to draw new plans for the village of Heyburn.

The commission received resolutions from the villages of Heyburn and Acaquia requesting that their road apportionment be turned over to the county, due to a maintenance agreement reached by the villages with the county Highway board.

Bid Is Low

BOISE, June 17—The apparent low bidder on an Idaho irrigation district improvement project was listed today by the bureau of reclamation district office here.

Dewalter Brothers, Twin Falls, were apparent low at $18,241 for a contract to construct 16 pumping substations and fencing for wells in the northside pumping division of the Minidoka project. Bureau officials said construction of the project is contingent upon 1955 appropriations.

The average American is eating about 40 per cent more lettuce than before World War II.

Minidoka's Tots Will See Circus

RUPERT, June 17—Fourteen school bus loads of children will be transported from Minidoka county Friday to the Magic Valley Shrine circus at Twin Falls.

The circus is free for children, with tickets issued at the buses, but adults planning to attend should contact Spec Woodford, Al Gregory or Ken Tyrer in Rupert for tickets.

The buses will leave at 11:30 a.m. Friday. Children should bring from the civic building in Rupert, three from Paul school and two from Heyburn school.

They will go by caravan from Burley with a police escort. Several Shriners will accompany each bus.

Return Home

Mr. and Mrs. C. Ivan Price returned Wednesday from a vacation to Oregon.

In Boise they joined their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Price, and drove to Eugene, Ore. They attended commencement exercises at the University of Oregon where Sandra Price received her BA degree in speech.

Miss Price also received the Neill award for her performance as Elizabeth Proctor in "The Crucible." She is a granddaughter of the Twin Falls people.

The Fifth Freedom...

THE FREEDOM TO DREAM!

Ours is a land where a boy can dream—and his dream can come true. He can be captain of a ball team, captain of a ship... or a captain of industry.

No iron curtain blocks his path... no thought police silences his imagination... no commissar channels his energies.

In this land, he breathes the precious air of freedom, the only atmosphere in which imagination and vitality thrive. And those are the things that make dreams come true.

The most important guide to a young boy with a dream is his father.

From his father, a son gets to know the meanings of freedom, industry, integrity, fair play, tolerance, reasonableness—the concepts that make America great and wonderful! He learns them not from definitions, but from example.

If you, as a father, are reasonable, if you are tolerant, if you are moderate... in all things... the chances are that your son will be, too.

We of The House of Seagram, we who make fine whiskies, believe that reasonableness and moderation in your use of liquor will help your boy and his dream. We believe that if you are moderate, your son will respect you and the things you stand for. There's a good chance he'll be the man you want him to be.

For the past twenty years The House of Seagram has been publishing views on moderation. We believe it is our responsibility. In our opinion, the most significant of our Moderation Messages are the ones that appear on Father's Day... for the future of America depends on the idea of human behavior the young men of America inherit from their fathers.

Hank Finds He Can't Escape Parties Even in South Seas

BY HENRY MOLEMORE
KORO LEVU, FIJI—There is no escaping the cocktail party.

No matter where you go in the world you will find men and women gathering in the late afternoon to gossip and guzzle.

Fiji is no exception. Mary and I were taking a stroll along a jungle path the other afternoon and before we knew it we were guests of honor at a Fijian version of the cocktail hour.

In Fiji it is known as a kava party, kava being the natives of these islands what martinis, Manhattans, Scotch and sodas and Bourbon highballs are to Americans.

The party was in full swing when we came along and were waved in. It was being held in a small clearing, around which were clustered eight or 10 thatched bures, or huts. Spread on the grass were several large straw mats, and on the center one sat the Turaga, or big chief of the village.

The Turaga looked much like a South sea Buddha. He was a giant of a man with a stomach to match and wore nothing but a wrap-around skirt of bright cloth. Back of him, seated in a semi-circle, were lesser village officials and half a hundred small boys.

Knowing no Fijian protocol, I could think of nothing to do but hand the chief a package of American cigarettes. From the look on his face, and the way he reached for them, I apparently hit the protocol jackpot.

We then were offered kava, which was dipped out of a huge three-legged bowl and served in half coconut shells. When the Fijian who served us handed us the kava he cried, "Bula!" and then clapped his hands three times.

We later learned that "Bula" is the same as our "Cheers" and "Down the hatch," and that the hand-clapping was a gesture of respect. "Bula" should mean "Here's mud-in-your-eye," because kava resembles a sample of the Mississippi river taken from somewhere around Vicksburg. It has little or no taste, so if you close your eyes it isn't hard to swallow.

Oddly enough, it isn't alcoholic. Fiji must be one of the few places in the world where the natives haven't taken the trouble to brew themselves a spiritous drink. I was told that kava is a mild sedative, and if taken in large enough doses will eventually put a man's legs to sleep and keep him immobile until the effects wear off.

stick she covered her face with her hands and fled.

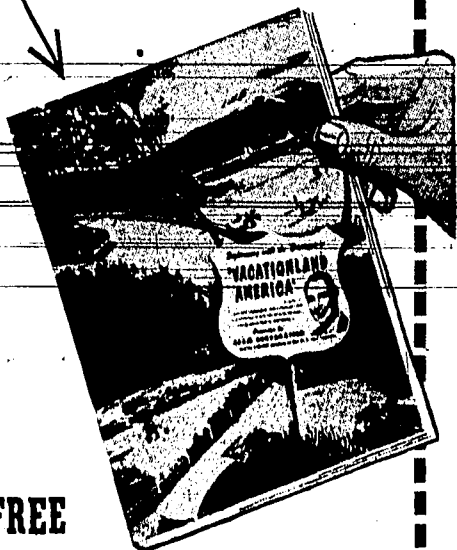

The chief furnished us with a guide to lead us down the trail to our hotel.

Roof Plans Make Big Roof Detailed

June 17 (AP) — A 600,000-sq-ft concrete roof, 38 feet long, 16 feet wide and 16 inches thick, will be poured at Mackay next week. The building contractor, D. Bowles, architect for the River Electric Coop head-quarter building, says it's the first concrete roof to be poured in Idaho. Allowed to "cure," and then poured into place in this manner, it will be virtually immune from cracking, but the contractor says it will be watched closely.

Architect's Drawing of School Project

Bids will be opened for a $220,000 bond issue to finance a remodeling project at Shoshone high school. The drawing, by Architect Andrew Bowles, Boise, shows the addition to the present school structure, which will face Highway 83. At rear is the older portion. Under present plans, the present gymnasium will be converted to classrooms, an auditorium and music rooms. The bond issue also provides funds for classrooms at Lincoln school. The bid opening is scheduled for June 28 by the Shoshone school district.

Couple Takes It Calmly When Road Threatens Dream Home

By CHARLES MERCER
GLEN RIDGE, N. J., June 17 (AP)—The spot where I am writing this may some day be in the middle of a six-lane highway. Or maybe it will be beside the highway. Or maybe the highway will be a block away. And possibly the highway never will come this way at all.

The spot is my desk in my house. After I got out of the army in 1946 we lived in furnished rooms while we hunted and hunted for a home. The places we could afford we did not like, and the places we liked we could not afford.

Then, one Sunday afternoon in 1947, we saw The House. The land curved around it and nine big oaks stretched their arms about it and people had dwelt happily in it for many years.

"This is it," I said after we'd been through it and learned the price.

"Yes, this is it," my wife said. "But we can't afford it."

"Oh, no," she said, "of course we can't afford it."

So we bought it and moved into it. All our possessions—a portable typewriter, a portable radio and wedding gifts that never had been unpacked.

Since that time we've been told by various people that it's a nice house but: 1. We can't afford it. 2. It's much bigger than we need. 3. I've got a coronary working on it. 4. "You're trying to go high hat or something moving in here?"

We always reply that we like it and view it as a permanent home. For in 1947 we were hunting permanence and certainty, after much uncertainty, and along with the rest of the world we still desire permanence and certainty today. So we furnished the house and lived in it and the sheriff has stayed away from our door. We've known happiness and sorrow here. It's become a place much lived in and attained in our minds the permanence we desire.

About a year ago we first heard the state was mounting an attack on us. Goths pushing bulldozers would invade from the west, we were told, driving a super-highway through us toward New York. Citizens of arms-bearing age were mustered in meetings of protest where it was impossible to lift wild rumors from military intelligence. The road would go here; it would go there; it would go anywhere.

Some people in the threatened zone of attack wanted to sell, but nobody would buy. One fellow stopped painting his house. A few optimistic strategists figured our positions were secured by a large cemetery a half-mile forward of us which also protected a wide admittance of our left flank. But a pessimist said he had it straight from the statehouse in Trenton that the highway would go all the way around the cemetery and then hit us.

Everybody felt that a good clean death—like having the highway driven straight through you—was far better than the crippling wound of the highway creasing your property. Nobody, in short, wanted to live by the side of the road and be a friend of mine.

Well I wish I could report a courier had just galloped in from Trenton with a message there never will be a highway coming this way. Actually, no new word has come. Actually, as we were saying last night on the porch, life isn't like that.

Yet I can report some good news. Nobody has talked about the highway in several months now. That fellow has finished painting his home. I have spread much fertilizer and top soil on our lawn.

The good news around here, I think, is that people now feel absolute permanence is too much to ask in this or any time. No one is bitter or hysterical about it any longer. The sense of permanence must be in us and not in our house. If it hits us we'll move and begin again somewhere else. If it misses us wide we'll stay.

Then, one Sunday afternoon in 1947, we saw The House. The land curved around it and nine big oaks stretched their arms about it and people had dwelt happily in it for many years.

"This is it," I said after we'd been through it and learned the price.

The sense of permanence must be in us and not in our house. If it hits us we'll move and begin again somewhere else. If it misses us wide we'll stay.

Then, one Sunday afternoon in 1947, we saw The House. The land curved around it and nine big oaks stretched their arms about it and people had dwelt happily in it for many years.

"This is it," I said after we'd been through it and learned the price.

"Yes, this is it," my wife said. "But we can't afford it."

"Oh, no," she said, "of course we can't afford it."

So we bought it and moved into it. All our possessions—a portable typewriter, a portable radio and wedding gifts that never had been unpacked.

Since that time we've been told by various people that it's a nice house but: 1. We can't afford it. 2. It's much bigger than we need. 3. I've got a coronary working on it. 4. "You're trying to go high hat or something moving in here?"

We always reply that we like it and view it as a permanent home. For in 1947 we were hunting permanence and certainty, after much uncertainty, and along with the rest of the world we still desire permanence and certainty today. So we furnished the house and lived in it and the sheriff has stayed away from our door. We've known happiness and sorrow here. It's become a place much lived in and attained in our minds the permanence we desire.

About a year ago we first heard the state was mounting an attack on us. Goths pushing bulldozers would invade from the west, we were told, driving a super-highway through us toward New York. Citizens of arms-bearing age were mustered in meetings of protest where it was impossible to lift wild rumors from military intelligence. The road would go here; it would go there; it would go anywhere.

Some people in the threatened zone of attack wanted to sell, but nobody would buy. One fellow stopped painting his house. A few optimistic strategists figured our positions were secured by a large cemetery a half-mile forward of us which also protected a wide admittance of our left flank. But a pessimist said he had it straight from the statehouse in Trenton that the highway would go all the way around the cemetery and then hit us.

Everybody felt that a good clean death—like having the highway driven straight through you—was far better than the crippling wound of the highway creasing your property. Nobody, in short, wanted to live by the side of the road and be a friend of mine.

Well I wish I could report a courier had just galloped in from Trenton with a message there never will be a highway coming this way. Actually, no new word has come. Actually, as we were saying last night on the porch, life isn't like that.

Yet I can report some good news. Nobody has talked about the highway in several months now. That fellow has finished painting his home. I have spread much fertilizer and top soil on our lawn.

The good news around here, I think, is that people now feel absolute permanence is too much to ask in this or any time. No one is bitter or hysterical about it any longer. The sense of permanence must be in us and not in our house. If it hits us we'll move and begin again somewhere else. If it misses us wide we'll stay.

Then, one Sunday afternoon in 1947, we saw The House. The land curved around it and nine big oaks stretched their arms about it and people had dwelt happily in it for many years.

"This is it," I said after we'd been through it and learned the price.

"Yes, this is it," my wife said. "But we can't afford it."

"Oh, no," she said, "of course we can't afford it."
