WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower's friends

rejoiced at an accident that his apparent determination to keep the nation's peace and order intact, and his assertive chief executive coincides with many Republicans' demand that he run for reelection.

What had happened is that the president has assumed the role which has been assigned him since the start. Since they have discussed his quandary with him, and he has been the subject of newspaper editorials and comment, it is virtually certain that he reached this decision by himself and without the aid of his cabinet members' experience in the White House.

WHAT VOTING DEMONSTRATED

is a probable that both practical political considerations and personal desires motivated him. As the 1952 and 1954 elections showed, he was elected to office not because he was a Republican, but in spite of that affiliation. He is stronger than his party and apart from it in the popular mind, according to this analysis.

Due to his military career, he had never been in or out of a political campaign before. He was elected because of frequent changes in residence, living abroad and in the volatile District of Columbia. No soldier's absentee ballot was forwarded to him in 1948. He was elected because of the Democratic two-pronged attack that he was the Democratic presidential candidate. Even such a fierce partisan as Henry A. Wallace, who was elected before him, FDR and Gen. George C. Marshall gave him the opportunity and the honors which led directly to his 1952 nomination.

As a clincher, many conservative GOP-ers still do not look upon him as a Republican.

WISER TACTICS

Even if he is merely indulging in smart political maneuvering, his assumption of an independent and party-less stand appears to be wise. He has been elected to office by a coalition of support from the Democratic majority on Capitol Hill. But there is a more important factor. As 1952 and 1954 elections showed, he was elected to office not because he was a Republican, but in spite of that affiliation. He is stronger than his party and apart from it in the popular mind, according to this analysis.

AN EYE FOR AN EYE

We had come to the conclusion long before S-D day that no effective solution to the nation's traffic problem would ever come from appeals to the American public.

To our way of thinking, the results of Safe Driving day, Dec. 15, bear out this conclusion. An appeal by the President of the United States himself, and a very popular President at that, has no more effect than reducing the number of highway fatalities by only 15 percent. There is no reason to expect that this ever-increasing national problem will ever be solved by such an appeal.

SAFE DRIVING DAY

Safe Driving day was designed to serve one principal purpose—to determine just how far the people will go on their own in bringing the bloodshed and destruction on our highways under control. Obviously it was staged as an experiment with no hope of the day having any lasting effect.

Mary Arrives at Manger in Nativity Scene

Mary, portrayed by Lynn Zornich, dismounts from the donkey as she arrives at the manger in the open air all-community celebration for the birth of Christ in Ruhl Monday. Holding the donkey's halter is Joseph, portrayed by Bill Weststein. Using a cast of only 12 persons, the story of the birth of Christ was presented before an audience of between 400 and 500. The production was backed by a 40-voice choir from various Ruhl churches. Sponsored by the Kiwanis club, plans are under way to make the presentation an annual event. The presentation was held in the city park. (Coast photo-staff engraving)

Game-Making Company Keeps Christmas Whole Year Around

NEW YORK, Dec. 23 (AP)—Christmas may be just around the corner for most people but for one outfit it's around all year.

The outfit is Parker Brothers, Inc., of Salem, Mass. Its business is games. Over the years it has turned out items almost as popular in the past as neckties—"Monopoly," "Sorry," "Risk," and "Clue."

Robert Barton, the company president, says the game business is almost as uncertain as a fat lady doing the mambo.

"It's a little like the record business," Barton says. "Thousands of items are submitted but only handful are worth publication. And of these, few become big hits."

Barton estimates his company had marketed some 5,000 games and turned down ideas for about 5,000.

Britain May Seek Diplomat's Recall

LONDON, Dec. 23 (AP)—Diplomatic observers said today Britain may recall its ambassador to the Soviet Union, for his part in the case of the "cut rate" British spy.

Barabanov was reported to have hired John Clarence, the 27-year-old communist clerk who was sentenced yesterday to five years in prison for spying on British defense installations for Russia.

The London Daily Mail also reported the foreign office was considering making the Soviets to recall Barabanov, the usual practice when a diplomat is named in a spy case.

Clarence became known as the "cut rate spy" because the Soviets paid him only a few dollars for his efforts in digging up information on coastal anti-aircraft batteries.

New Members for Senate and House Have Schedule Outline

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22 (AP)—New members of the senate and the house won't have to worry about what to do when the 84th congress convenes at noon, Jan. 3.

A timetable has been worked out for their guidance by the parliamentarians of the two chambers. It follows traditional opening-day procedure.

The senate, which usually takes about an hour to get squared away

President and Wife Give 700 Gifts to Staff

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22 (AP)—President and Mrs. Eisenhower gathered 700 members of the White House staff around the giant Christmas tree in the east room today and played Santa Claus to them all.

Everyone from the top executive aides to the telephone operators, guards and chauffeurs received a gift. The presents—the same for all—was an 11-by-15 lithograph reproduction of a portrait by the President of George Washington.

The Christmas reception was held before the Eisenhowers' departure for Augusta, Ga., where they will spend the holidays. Mrs. Eisenhower's mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, was to accompany them.

The east room Christmas tree was a 20-foot, ceiling-high cedar decorated with 400 white lights and pounds of tinsel. The President and Mrs. Eisenhower have a private tree of their own in their second floor westside living room.

The Eisenhowers opened a mountain of presents under this small tree last night at a small family gathering which included Mrs. Doud and Col. George Gordon Moore and his wife, sister of Mrs. Eisenhower.

Came in Folders

The gifts to the staff were contained in huge white folders bearing the President's signature and the words "Christmas, 1954."

Last year, the President gave staff members a Lincoln portrait done from an 1853 photograph by Alexander Gardner.

Other Christmas decorations in the White House include a 12-foot tree in the blue room, two miniature trees on side tables in the state dining room, masses of red poinsettias on the mantels in the east room, red poinsettias in the green room and white ones in the red room.

Mexican Burros Popular as Gift, Claims Official

ATLANTA, Dec. 22 (AP)—That boy who hears Christmas morning may be a present, and not somebody expressing an opinion.

H. C. West, general agent of the Railway Express Agency in Atlanta, reported yesterday he had six Mexican burros in a special corral waiting to be delivered as Christmas presents.

He said they were en route from western states to points in Georgia and other Atlantic coast states and that others had already been delivered.

"They're gentle little things," he said, "and I guess they make good pets."

The burros weren't trimmed with any Christmas decorations, but several carried messages on tags.

One of them went like this: "Here's that jackass I promised you. Merry Christmas."

DAUGHTER BORN

PILER, Dec. 22—Mr. and Mrs. John C. Barlow have received word of the birth of a daughter to their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Barlow, Jr., at Salt Lake City.

Other Christmas decorations in the White House include a 12-foot tree in the blue room, two miniature trees on side tables in the state dining room, masses of red poinsettias on the mantels in the east room, red poinsettias in the green room and white ones in the red room.

WACO, Tex., Dec. 22 (AP)—The 10th court of civil appeals has given Texas husbands a Christmas present. The court ruled yesterday that the states community property law works both ways—and a husband has the right to withdraw money from his wife's bank account.

Big Supplies Stopped Run in Grain, Supports Aided Price

CHICAGO, Dec. 23 (U-P)—Big supplies of grain stopped running up in grain prices in 1954 while the government support program prevented any price decline.

The result of the government's support program was that the government was added with huge supplies of grain and confronted with the problem of how to get rid of them.

Only exception to this pattern was soybeans where a decline was caused by a result of a poor 1953 crop.

A national wheat acreage allotment of 25 million acres was set for the 1954 crop. As a result, production was cut to 550,000,000 bushels from 1,150,000,000 in 1953. Prices were supported at 90 per cent of parity.

For next year, acreage allotments will be down to 55 million acres. The government support price also will be down to 85 per cent of parity. This lower support results from passage of the 1954 flexible price act.

The agriculture department expects the reduced acreage at least to slow down the price at which wheat stocks have been building up. Even so, it thinks the carry-over on July 1, 1955, will total about one billion bushels, up 100 million bushels from the record carry-over of July 1, 1954.

"Because of the very large supplies of wheat, prices will continue to be maintained by the support program," the department predicts. Wheat futures prices on the Chi-

Virus Prober Shows Peace Type of Polio

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (U-P)—Dr. Albert B. Sabin, one of the nation's leading virus investigators, said recently there now is evidence suggesting that a nonvirulent form of polio virus may exist in nature.

And, he said, this may be an important factor in explaining the fact that the vast majority of human beings develop immunity to polio without suffering paralysis. Dr. Sabin, a University of Cincinnati scientist, discussed his findings in a paper presented for a lecture at the National Institute of Health.

In the past, a major concept has been that differences in people themselves, rather than differences in polio virus, could help account for the fact that most people develop a natural immunity without getting a paralytic infection.

Dr. Sabin told about laboratory development of strains of nonvirulent or "tamed" polio virus, from virus that was originally highly paralytic to test animals. These tamed strains, he added, have been found capable of producing signs of polio immunity in chimpanzees and a few human volunteers.

The evidence that a nonvirulent form of polio virus may also exist in nature, he said, is as follows: "During the summer of 1953, material was obtained from the intestinal tract of approximately 1,500 healthy Cincinnati children who had no known contact with any case of polio. When this material was placed in a culturing medium, Sabin and his associates recovered five strains of polio virus. Later, when the virus was injected into the spinal cords of monkeys it was shown that the strains behaved similarly to the non-virulent strains previously accepted in the laboratory.

He said that eventually it may be possible to develop an antipolio vaccine employing the laboratory developed nonvirulent virus.

Don't Agitate!

DENVER, Dec. 23 (U-P)—Don't agitate, says the head of the Colorado Bricklayers association. "A bee doesn't go out looking for trouble—he must be agitated to sting."

Editha Bell added, however, that "If you sometimes wonder why a bee suddenly stung you, he was probably agitated by someone else."

Church Ruins Attract Many At Christmas

JERUSALEM, Israel, Dec. 23 (U-P)—The remains of a 1,500-year-old Christian church, newly discovered, is attracting visitors this Christmas season.

The church was situated near the well where, legend says, Mary and Joseph rested on their trek from Jerusalem to Bethlehem.

The mosaic floor of the church and the foundations of an adjacent monastery were unearthed in the precincts of a 3,000-year-old Judean town. The finds were made on a hill close to the Israel collective settlement, Ramat Rachel. From it one looks down on Bethlehem in the south, the Judean desert and the Dead Sea canyon in the east, and the towers of Jerusalem in the north.

The well is mentioned in the writing of the sixth century Father Theodorus. Recounting Christian legends of this time, he relates how Joseph and Mary quenched their thirst at that well, from then on known under the Byzantine-Greek name "Kathema"—resting place. The name recurs later also in Arabic. Arabs in the Holy Land call the place "Bir well Kadimou."

Another tradition identifies the well with a legend that the three wise men on their way to Bethlehem stopped there to drink.

Lonely American Youth Seeks Music of America in His Exile

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (U-P)—Behind the balcony curtain of red China, today there is an American boy who can't forget his home and those he loves.

Richard Tennessee turned his back on his own country, his family and his friends when he walked into the world of the communists rather than accept repatriation in the exchange of Korean war prisoners.

But the memories still are there. Even now he's haunted by memories of the music of America—melodies which will tear at his heart and conscience as long as he lives.

Recently Tennessee wrote his mother in Minnesota asking her to send him sheet music or such sentimental songs as "White Christmas" and "Kind Hearts and Gentle People."

Richard Tennessee is groping for solace in music as our people have for centuries, and as they always will. Even in war, they found comfort in music.

Mistletoe Is Shot From Tall Trees

MOUNT VERNON, Ind., Dec. 23 (U-P)—You can buy mistletoe for Christmas kiss-bait at a shop or you can get it the way hunters do here—shoot it down yourself out of the treetops.

The parasite green grows so high in elm, black walnut and shellbark hickory trees in the near-by river bottoms that shooting it down is easier than climbing after it.

The hunters use hollow-point bullets in a .22 caliber rifle, aiming a line of shots that will cut off a limb on which the mistletoe is growing.

music that night, those GIs. They exulted in the wild freedom of jam and washed away their loneliness in the blues from the Bayou country. Then they laid down the instruments, picked up their carbines, and walked into the night where the darkness was broken by the flashes of artillery fire.

I'm sure they were happier because the music had brought them nearer home and the things they would return to in a few months. They poured out their hearts in music.

TV of the Future

David Sarnoff, board chairman of the Radio Corporation of America, looks at a demonstration of RCA's electronic light amplifier which he says will extend the present bulky TV tube. The set of the future will consist of a control box the size of a juke box and a flat picture screen of any desired size which can be hung on the wall, framed like a picture, and carried from room to room. Light, amplified like sound, will produce the picture image on the screen by passing electric current through phosphor crystals on the screen. (AP wirephoto).

Merry but Dry and Quiet Yule
Fetes Slated for U. S. Workers

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (AP)—It's a merry but dry and unboisterous Christmas for the 225,000 government workers in the nation's capital. For the year is out once more. Remember, no booze in government buildings. Remember, no bawling up the boss by taking up collections for his Christmas present. It's against the law.

The commerce department plans probably are typical.

Each noontime carol is being sung in the department lobby. To-day, that well-known caroler, Sinclair Weeks, who also is secretary of commerce, will join in the singing. One of the Hobby, secretary of defense, probably gave the most exact instructions. Parties may be held provided they do not last longer than two hours. Her memorandum also includes the warning: "The regulations against indulgence in alcoholic beverages must be strictly adhered to."

Not that government parties ever could be accurately described as hellraising. The average government worker (male) appears to be sedate and settled, anxious to get home to the wife and kids. And the government girl all too often turns out to be a striking middle age, and, because she sits at a desk so long, she has bunched where it does her the least good.

Still, in the old days there were moderately lively parties, although an observer who has attended both claims a government party can't hold a roman candle to the ones put on by private industry.

Among the casualties: The annual Christmas party by the State Department Correspondents' association. Even though, as one state department reporter observed, "We felt extrajudicial rights should be observed in the press room."

State department reporters tend to talk like state department officials. All he meant was: Why apply government rules to us?

This year the party is being revived, and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has accepted an invitation for the shindig. Whether the toast will be drunk in carrot juice, or something stronger, isn't clear. "Retractions weren't put on the Young men must register for the draft on their 18th birthday anniversary or within the five days following, reminds Mrs. Pearl Aldrich, selective service board clerk. Selective service regulations provide registration must be completed within five days after attaining the 18th birthday, she explains.

Those who fail to register within the next ten days will be considered and processed as delinquent, unless the selective service board finds the registrant failed to register within the specified time due to circumstances beyond his control.

Men separated from active military service but who were not registered prior to separation must register within 30 days after separation. Late registrants will be considered delinquent unless evidence is submitted showing completion of active military service obligation.

Cars Damaged in
2 Small Accidents

JEROME, Dec. 23—Two minor accidents were investigated by Jerome police Monday night and Tuesday morning.

Mrs. John Kober, driving a 1948 Dodge, collided with the rear of an International pickup driven by Sam Hansen. Damage to the Kober car was estimated at $50. The accident happened at 3:15 p.m. Monday on East Main when Hansen stopped suddenly and Mrs. Kober was unable to stop.

A 1951 Oldsmobile driven by Dale Dodge, collided with the rear of a 1950 Ford driven by Stephen M. Henkels and the Oldsmobile collided at the intersection of Avenue B and South Adams street at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday. Henkels was going west and Dodge was going south. Henkels' vehicle was damaged to the extent of $150.

The penalty: Summary discharge.

Dose Prescribed
For Ailing Tree

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (AP)—If you find your Christmas tree wilting, fear not. Just give it a shot of sugar and aspirin.

This sweet advice comes from Dr. P. E. Hance, principal chemist for the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' association experiment station. He wrote up this prescription:

"When tree arrives in home, cut off lower portion of trunk at angle and immerse cut end in water to which tablespoon of sugar has been added. Stir in two aspirin tablets. The idea is to keep air from being drawn into the cellular structure of the trunk. It's the air, Dr. Hance said, that does most of the tree wilting."

Pennsylvanians
Get Coin Bonus

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23 (AP)—Sharp-eyed Pennsylvanians can collect from $2 to $17 for a silver dollar. Some 3,000,000 "rare" silver dollars accidentally were placed in circulation by the U. S. mint at Philadelphia.

It seems the demand for silver dollars during the Christmas holiday season sent mint officials here digging into their vaults for supplies. So they unknowingly tapped a section of the vault where the "rare coins" were stored.

Southern Snow

As predicted by the weather bureau, snow flurries fell on Atlanta, Ga., to lay a thin sheet of snow over the city. There was enough for 18-year-old Carolyn Lee to scrape snowballs off her coat. Elsewhere in northern Georgia, snow and ice caused the closing of portions of nine highways. (NEA telephoto)

Event Observed

SHOSHONE, Dec. 23—The 149th birthday anniversary of Joseph Smith, LDS prophet, was observed at the Sunday school services Sunday morning at the Shoshone ward. Lewis Holley, Sunday school superintendent, conducted. The sacrament was given by Calvin Knight and Dana Lee Anderson. Mrs. Velma Allen and Mrs. Charles Prugh played piano and organ duets for preliminary music.

Penetration Flight Attempts
Invasion of U. S. From North

By MURRAY MOLER

ABOARD B-29 OVER U. S.-CANADIAN BORDER, Dec. 23 (AP)—The thing that made it realistic was that the boys in the armed jets didn't know we were coming or who we were.

We tried to "peek" into the United States from Canada just before sunset in an airframe B-29 apply code-named "Wanderlust." It was a route enemy bombers most likely would take in attacking over the north pole.

Radar stations along the border nailed us promptly and within seconds the call to "scramble" was sounded to fighter pilots at the Great Falls air force base about 100 miles south of the border.

The treeless stripe marking the international boundary was still clearly in sight from our 17,000-foot altitude when a P-54 Buffalo all-weather interceptor caught us. The jet's guns and rocket pods were loaded and ready for action.

For a few uncomfortable seconds we were—in the jet pilot's eyes—a strange and unreported aircraft from the north.

Sgt. James Davidson, San Francisco, "scanner" in our right waist blitzer, spotted the Starliner and called it to the attention of Maj. James Gerwick, Toledo, O., the B-29 commanding officer.

Gerwick quickly gave the proper identification and response as the fighter challenged us. The Starliner banked and faded away back toward his base.

It was a swift, efficient job. Even Santa Claus will have to show his identification Friday when he heads his sleigh down from the north pole.

The radar network that picked us up was the southernmost of three the United States and Canada have built or are completing.

When our B-29 left the 11th air force base in Utah for the 2,500-mile, 12-hour flight, a flight plan was filed with the civil aeronautics authority. But our route was not given to the continental defense command force.

Air force planes are constantly performing these test missions. In the central air defense command alone, which includes all but the Pacific coast and northeastern states, B-29s have flown more than 3,000 hours of "penetration" flights. Half the flights were at night or in foul weather.

This was the first time civilian newsmen were allowed to go along on a "radar penetration" mission.

Male mosquitoes have poorly developed mouth parts and only females bite people. The males drink water and feed on flower nectar.

Speaking of Business, Things Look Good in Nation for 1955

By L. A. BROPHY
AP General Business Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 23 (U)—Things look good for 1955.
If you want a slogan for the new year as far as earning your living is concerned, that's how the business situation slumps up now.

A year ago, those who predict the cause of the economy were not as cheerful about the outlook for 1954. Some saw depression ahead. It didn't work out that way.

Business did slow down from its fast pace in the first half of the year.

It picked up speed in the fall and now is rolling along at a rate that means prosperity for most people.

And that is the way it should continue in 1955, predict the majority of private and public experts.

This year was the second best for business and industry in the history of the nation. Give or take a few soft spots, it was not too far behind the amazing record set in 1953.

There is a general air of confidence abroad in the land now.
That is one of the big intangible reasons why people feel good about the prospects for 1955. But there are hard reasons why the prospects for the new year are considered rosy. Here are some:

1—The 1953 economy was sparked by an amazing building boom, principally in private building.
Government starts were down. It is confidently expected the boom in building will roll along in 1954, and some believe it may top the 1954 record of 31 billion dollars.

There is some thought in government circles that 1955 may see new building set an all-time high of 39 billion dollars.

2—Expectation that the gross national product (the value of all goods and services) may top the 1954 figure of 350 billion by 3 per cent. Henry G. Rutter, 31, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, thinks it may exceed the 1953 record of 365 billion.

3—A slow decline in retail prices, perhaps 2 to 2½ per cent, stimulating sales.

4—A rise in consumer spending.
Prudential Insurance company economists believe there may be a pulse of nine billion dollars over 1954.

5—Continued high production in the automobile industry—and continued tough competition. Most industry sources see another big volume year with predictions that production of passenger cars may reach six million. It was 5,385,000
in 1954.

6—Expectation that first quarter sales will equal and perhaps top those of 1954 and the belief the pace will continue through 1955.

That's what many representative business men said at the annual meeting of the NAM.

7—Employment to equal the 1954 mark of 62 million. There likely ## will be some cause for concern in January and February when em- ployment is expected to increase more than seasonably and may reach four million. However, em- ployment is expected to pick up further more sharply than usual after an early-year slump.

Most all of the economists assert they see no boom, as such, in 1955. Rather, they envision steady economic conditions, sparked by lively competition, with the consumer taking a little better than he has in the last several years.

Agriculture is one soft spot. In 1954, there was a 6 per cent drop in net farm earnings. Real farm income, as measured by the farmers' buying power, was brought to the lowest level in 10 years. Net income in 1955 may be slightly better than that of 1954.

There was little question but that the 1954 fall pickup in business brought a state of relief from industrialists and the government.
The gradual downturn that started in the late months of 1953 continued on through the early months

America Pays Record Total On All Taxes

NEW YORK, Dec. 23 (AP)—Americans paid a record $105,551,000,000 in taxes to the government during the year 1954, despite cuts in federal taxes, it was announced recently.

Stiff increases in state and local taxes and the total tax to a new high, the tax foundation explained in its facts and figures on government finance.

Looking ahead, the foundation said the full effect of recent federal tax cuts in fiscal 1955 may reverse the upward trend of total tax receipts for the first time since 1940.

"However," the private research organization added, "the trend of local taxes is still sharply higher."

The combined tax take of all government for the latest fiscal year rose from $89,868,000,000 in fiscal year 1953. The 1954 fiscal year ended last June 30.

Even though the total tax burden increased, the foundation said, population gains brought per capita tax receipts down to $1,070.83 in fiscal 1954, to $1,072 in the latest fiscal year.

In 1954, it noted, state and local taxes took up more than half the total of $105,551,000,000.

"The average American will pay $1,070.83 in taxes in 1954, compared with $1,072 in 1953," the study stated. "The debt itself reached $231,200,000,000 as of June 30, 1954."

"The per capita debt was $1,070.83," the foundation said that the big-

Radiation Scare Stories Will Not Stop Future Atomic Tests

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (AP)—Atomic officials are frightened by what they call "radiation scare stories" forecasting the genetic doom of man many generations hence.

"These frightened last such 'predictions' make it politically difficult, if not impossible, to continue U. S. A-bomb and H-bomb testing programs."

These officials believe American atomic progress is the world's best peace insurance.

"They say this insurance cannot be taken up without the operation of the possible long-term hazards of such operations, they contend, are the possible long-term hazards of atomic weapons."

And such a war, responsible authorities believe, might well be the planet's fate if the United States should fall behind in its atomic arms race with Russia.

So far the United States has staged at least 50 nuclear tests. Russia a minimum of 11, and Great Britain three. This would total of 64 atomic explosions has added appreciably to the planet's general radioactivity level.

Some biologists believe the addition has been enough—even if no further atomic tests were held—to cause genetic damage that will increase the number of defective individuals born to future generations.

Officials do not, however, believe the possible long-range effects of atomic radiation. But high authorities hold this country nevertheless has no intention of abandoning its test programs—unless it is compelled to do so by considerations of international politics.

The atomic energy commission, the defense department and the house senate atomic energy committee have explored as thoroughly as they know how the radiation problems involved in testing A-bombs and H-bombs.

The AEC, while pushing genetic research in its laboratory, has made careful measurements of the increase of radioactivity in the United States after H-bomb tests in the Pacific and A-bomb explosions in Nevada.

The radiation exposure after such tests, the AEC has reported, is many hundreds of times less than what it would have to be to produce a detectable genetic effect.

The AEC has concluded that the available data do not warrant forecasts of catastrophe to the human race as a result of its tests.

The AEC has scheduled new A-bomb tests around the middle of February, and plans further H-bomb

Oldest Labor Union Will Mark 140th Anniversary

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (AP)—The nation's oldest labor union—and it will fight anyone who disputes its claim—was everything set for its 140th birthday party.

The Columbia Typographical union, made up of 3,500 printers, will hold a ball on Jan. 8. And they will look fondly at a history that dates back to the time when James Madison was in the White House.

Nineteen Washington printers met on Dec. 10, 1814, to form "one body for the mutual benefit of each, and their posterity."

On Jan. 7, 1815, the job was complete, with a constitution and by-laws.

"There were other unions in the country before ours," President Jesse B. Menbeck said, "but they'd come into existence for a particular purpose. Once they had won their point, they'd disappear. We've stayed here right along, and we've got the records to prove it."

These records show that in the early days, instead of prolonged negotiations, the printers merely sent around a "scale of prices" to their employers.

The printers were firm with Congress from the start. The scale was $9 for a 40-hour week, or 15 cents an hour. But if Congress were in town, the union price was $10 a week.

Menbeck thinks this was not an attempt by the composing room to show what it thought of congressional oratory. It was just that in those days printers had more work to do when the legislators were here.

Well, times have changed. The government printing office, begun modestly by Abraham Lincoln, now has 1,500 printers. Add to this the monthly magazines of unions and trade associations, and you see why printing is one of Washington's biggest businesses. Only New York and Chicago have more printers.

Driver Is Stung, But Not by Rule

SPokane, Dec. 23 (AP)—Leonard Wagner, 32, in court for running a red light, said it was his first traffic ticket in 42 years and told the judge he got pinched because he got stung.

It was this way, he said. He was hauling five bee hives in his car trailer. The hives tipped over and the angry bees swarmed on him.

Judge James B. McInturf took the story under consideration, then fined Wagner a modest $250.

New Process Keeps Steak Fresh Years

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23 (AP)—Philly a steak two, five, maybe even 10 years old?

Not now, but one of these days you probably will, says the Farm Journal.

What's more, the vintage steak won't taste much different from a fresh cut after a prime steer, the magazine adds in its December issue.

Admitting that it "sounds fantastic," the Farm Journal goes on: "But it's entirely possible—the result of a heretofore hush-hush military dehydrating process called freeze-drying, a process developed for the armed forces by University of California scientists."

Here is the process: The meat is frozen, then warmed slightly in refrigerated vacuum chamber. The moisture escapes, leaving the meat pliant and sponge-like. It is then sealed in glass containers or plastic bags containing carbon dioxide or nitrogen gas.

Meat, thus treated, the Journal says, "will keep two years at room temperature, or almost indefinitely at low temperatures."

When the meat is wanted for the table, it is simply dunked in water for 15 minutes to a half hour. Then it's ready for cooking.

Although the United States' territory of Pacific islands is as wide as the United States, the 2,000 islands have a total land area half the size of Rhode Island, says the National Geographic society.

Christmas Bonus Idea Booms This Year; Parties in Slump

NEW YORK, Dec. 23 (AP)—The Christmas bonus—that noble business institution enjoyed by many workers—is booming this year. And firms are sharing the business pick-up with their employees.

The Christmas office party, on the other hand, is in a recession. A number of firms have dropped that form of social mayhem. And some others have decided to have a company picnic next summer.

Bonus announcements are coming fast these days. Some store chains are distributing money to their employees across the country. The Great Atlantic and Pacific food chain is doling out more than two million dollars. Grand Union is passing out one week's salary as a Christmas gift. J. C. Penney is giving two weeks' extra pay.

Wall street is being extra generous this yuletide. Employees of the New York Stock Exchange and of the American Stock Exchange are getting three weeks' salary.

Brokers houses have been half will hold office parties this year.

Some are giving employees extra time off instead, or turning the firm's contribution to such a party over to charity. And some are substituting a party for the children of their employees.

Nationwide, a survey of more than 1,000 companies by the Foremen's Institute shows that fewer are holding parties. More than half are giving bonuses.

It's quite a different picture from a year ago, when bonuses were shrinking even faster than the federal reserve board's industrial production index. This Christmas the bonuses seemed to be based about as much on expectations of a good year ahead as on the pickup in business in recent weeks.

Christmas parties are another story. The office party still flourishes, of course. But the Employers Association of Chicago polled 260 corporations and reports less than

Area Works Together for Mercy Flight

MEDFORD, Ore., Dec. 23 (U.P.)—When 14-year-old Alexander Dunsamir, Calif., bumped heads with a playmate, she incurred a brain injury which brought her near death.

Doctors in the small, isolated community knew she had to have specialized care and facilities. But the nearest suitable hospital was in Medford, about 110 miles by highway from Dunsmuir.

A telephone call was placed to Medford and a community's plan for meeting such an emergency went smoothly into action.

An airplane with a big red cross on its side landed shortly at an airport near Dunsmuir. The little girl was loaded on a stretcher through a special door in the side of the plane.

In near record time she had been whisked to Medford and placed under the care of a brain specialist.

That plane was one of two which carry the big red crosses—the only privately owned airplanes in the United States which have the express permission of the American Red Cross to use that symbol of mercy.

They are owned by Mercy Flight, Inc., a nonprofit corporation organized five years ago. Ruth Alexander was the 100th patient carried by the planes of the air ambulance service.

It was in the fall of 1948 that the idea for an air ambulance service was born in the mind of George Milligan, a control tower operator for the civil aeronautics administration at the Medford airport. The idea came when a prominent Medford businessman died of polio in an ambulance en route to a treatment center 200 miles away.

Milligan, talking with doctors, friends, pilots and anyone else who would listen, doggedly, he promoted the plan until it had local newspaper support and enthusiasm throughout the community.

When organized rummage sales, children contributed dimes through their schools, benefit parties and square dances were held in the cities and Oranges of Jackson county, businessmen contributed money and advertising time and space.

The goal was $4,000. It was reached in late December, 1949. An army surplus twin-engine Cessna was purchased and adapted for first-aid service. It made its first "mercy flight" early in January.

Put on New Deals

After a year, the trustees of the service, mostly business and professional people, decided to put the protection on a prepaid basis. For only $2 a year, families were offered a guarantee of free air ambulance service in case of medical emergency. Several thousand families bought subscriptions, enabling the service not only to meet its expenses but to pay its volunteer pilots a few cents per flight mile.

As demands for service increased, a second plane—a single-engine craft better suited to small, country airstrips—was purchased.

Men for Church Entertain Guests

Debt Increasing

Threefold Increase for Debt Reported in U. S. Since 1939

PORTLAND, Dec. 23—The total debt in the country—including amounts owed by government, corporations and by individuals—increased more than threefold between 1939 and 1953, according to a study released today by the research office of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Furthermore, states the NAM, the portion represented by government (federal, state and local) debt increased from about one-third of the 1939 total to almost half of the much larger 1953 total.

The report says that the rise in the price level has meant that the real burden of the debt has not increased as much as the dollar figure would make it appear. Debts can now be paid off in dollars that are worth only 52 cents compared with the 1939 dollar.

The other side of the picture, emphasizes the NAM, is that credits are paid back in the same devalued dollars. Credits include savings bank deposits (whose deposits are invested in government and corporate bonds and in mortgages) and insurance policy holders (whose policies are backed by the same form of debt).

The report concludes with the statement that debt expansion—in excess of the amount called for by normal economic expansion—is the root cause of inflation.

New Deposits Of Vital Metal Are Reported

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 23 (U.P.)—High in the wild, sparsely-settled mountains of Mexico's Pacific coastal state of Oaxaca, Republic Steel Corporation has discovered what could well be a new era in the history of metal—titanium-bearing ore.

No one knows for sure how much rutile (titanium ore) is located on the 35 claims established by Republic, but mining consultant Donald E. Gillette says a "conservative estimate" would be about 400,000,000 tons.

Republic engineers at present are trying to rush mining equipment into the almost inaccessible region before the rainy season starts so as to put their company into the race for the new "wonder metal."

Why the mad scramble for "Ti" as it is known in the metals trade? Defense officials consider it a must for jets and supersonic aircraft, while engineers are crying for "Ti" in construction of refineries, chemical plants and other civilian projects.

"Ti" is six times stronger than aluminum and only 60 per cent heavier. It weighs only 56 per cent as much as steel but is as strong as stainless steel. It also retains its strength at temperatures up to 800 degrees while aluminum and magnesium soften about the 300-degree mark.

Jobless Fund Is Okayed for Civil Workers

Federal civilian employees who become unemployed after Jan. 1, 1955, because of reductions in force or seasonal conditions may be eligible for unemployment insurance benefits, according to R. S. Cutler, employment security agency official.

The last congress enacted an amendment to the social security act by covering employees in the unemployment insurance system, Cutler states.

Under provisions of the act, benefit payments will be made under the terms and conditions of the state law under which a claim is filed. To be eligible, a claimant must meet all requirements of state law.

The act will cover some 3,500,000 federal civil employees, about 8,000 of whom are employed in Idaho.

Under the program, federal service and federal wages will be treated just the same as service and wages in connection with the business and industry of Idaho. Applications for work and claims may be filed at any agency office in Idaho Valley.

Firemen Are Hit By Blanket Ban

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Dec. 23 (UP)—Electric blankets have been ordered out of all 27 city fire departments by chief George Courser.

He said firemen are supposed to be "robust, athletic and ready to jump out of bed" without the delay of turning off blankets or possibly tripping over wires.

Courser explained that most electric blankets do not have proper electric shields above beds. Firemen provide their own blankets for on-duty sleeping and growing popularity of the electric type led to the order.

Smith, who supervised the tests, placed the dummies in an auto mounted on a 300-foot runway and brought it to jolting, crashlike stops from speeds of 10 to 20 miles an hour. A high-speed camera on the left door panel recorded what happened to the passengers.

Here are some of the things that happened to the "Thick Man" and the "Half-Pint"—in real life possibly you and your child:

In one test, "Half-Pint" was thrown from the left rear seat, struck the back of the front seat, his head on the steering wheel and glanced off to strike the windshield—all in less than one second.

From the right rear seat, "Half-Pint" turned a complete somersault and crashed against the windshield.

In another test, "Half-Pint" was hurled from the rear seat through the windshield to the hood of the car.

From the right front seat, "Half-Pint" crashed into the dashboard of the windshield.

But protected by a seat belt in other tests, "Half-Pint" merely bent forward at the waist without striking his head anywhere. Statistics show that three out of every four fatalities in auto crashes result from head injuries.

The "Thick Man," in the driver's seat, took the major force of the crash impact through the steering post directly into his chest.

In the right front seat, he took a terrible beating in the head. Most often he hit above or against the windshield, now then crashed into the dash with his face.

Seat belts, it was found, not only prevented the adult dummy from being violently thrown about, but reduced the force with which its head struck the dashboard or windshield by restraining more than half the weight of the body.

What does it all add up to? Safety engineers say that until you demand as much safety as style in your automobile—until you convince manufacturers that you'll buy autos with such possible innovations as pull-out panels, crash bars and seats designed for greater safety—your best bet against death or injury is the simple safety belt fixed to the frame of your car.

That's a fact—scientifically tested and proven.

Rugged New Vehicle Made by Utah College for Rough Areas

LOGAN, Dec. 23 (U-P)—To workers of the Utah Scientific Research foundation, a St. Bernard isn't a big shaggy dog which often has a small sack of brandy tied around its neck for winter rescue.

To them, the St. Bernard is a new type of automobile just developed at the foundation, an affiliate of Utah State Agriculture college.

A spokesman says the St. Bernard is a lighter version of the Prandee Sino-shu snowmobile which was put into production by the foundation in 1948.

The new model is described as a "comparatively small vehicle, rugged, highly maneuverable and capable of traveling difficult terrain under adverse conditions."

Dr. E. G. Peterson says the St. Bernard will carry two passengers plus equipment and supplies. Peterson is managing director of the foundation and president emeritus of USAAC.

Officials decline to estimate the price of the St. Bernard. But they said they expected it to be within the purchase range of individual ranchers.

The larger machine, the Prandee Sino-shu, was named for its inventor, LeRoy Prandee and Emmett Devine of the USAO staff.

Midwest Experiment Puts 199 Children Under Microscopes

By TOM TURLEY
MIDWEST, Kans., Dec. 23—You won't find Midwest on the map. But on these rolling Kansas plains not far from the geographic center of the United States is a small community called Midwest by a team of psychologists. They are keeping its real name secret to prevent disruption of their project.

For the past seven years they've had the town under a microscope. They hope to learn something about what makes children, adults and communities tick.

Dr. Roger O. Barker and Herbert F. Wright of the University of Kansas think so. But they also encouraged that their findings, reduced from a staggering amount of information, are beginning to crystallize into concrete facts, especially on the community's children.

This is what started the project: "It occurred to us," Dr. Barker says, "that science knows in great detail how rats, monkeys and brook trout spend their time. But how about children? With the exception of artistic observations like Tom Sawyer there actually has been little recording of the daily lives of children. We wanted to make some minute-by-minute observations."

"Why? Because by scientifically observing a child we can obtain a measurement of his frustrations, satisfactions, freedoms and limitations. We can now see the daily challenges he faces and the amount of intelligence he exercises in meeting his challenges."

Dr. Wright says the team was also after some clues to these questions: "First, how does life differ for children in large and small families?"

"2. Are American children brought up differently from English and French children? And, if so, does this help mold a national character in each country?"

"3. How does life differ for rural, town and city children? Would these differences in turn influence delinquency?"

"4. What sort of life do adults lead in a small community?"

Before the psychologists could go to work they needed a suitable "laboratory" for observation and analysis. "We wanted an American community that wouldn't be too large, so that every resident could be included in the study. We wanted an up-to-date town, not a backwash. When we found Midwest, our code name for the project, we thought it was ideal," explains Dr. Wright.

Midwest, at the time of a recent survey, is a town of less than 1,000 people, including 199 children under 12 years of age. A county seat and a rural trade center for farmers, it covers an area of 400 acres and has 253 houses and 54 business places. It is within an hour's drive of five cities with populations varying from 10,000 to 50,000.

In a small community like Midwest, Dr. Barker says, children have a good deal of freedom because they are much less dependent upon adult supervision than in a big city.

They also have a feeling of importance since they hold an important place in the functioning of the community.

In comparison with big cities the variety of stimulating experiences available is far less. However, the small community provides a rich daily life, the study indicates.

Small town children have lost contact with the realities of life, the psychologists found. Almost every month there is a blizzard in a town like Midwest. Human weaknesses cannot be hidden from the children.

Weather also has a tremendous importance in their lives since the whole economy and social life of the town are dependent upon rainfall and temperature. The children consequently grow up knowing that misfortune can be just around the corner.

A small town like Midwest has little delinquency. An outbreak is dealt with swiftly.

"One of the things that has impressed us about a small town," Dr. Wright says, "is that children grow up feeling that people are good until proved bad. We're not exactly sure what we'll find in a big city."

There are also some drawbacks to living in a small town. On a Sunday afternoon children cannot visit an aquarium, a museum or attend a concert, since the town cannot support institutions of this size.

Because the children are under pressure to take part in so many diverse activities, Dr. Wright says, their levels of accomplishment are usually lower than might be attained if the children concentrated on a few activities they especially like.

"Nonetheless, our data suggest that there may be conditions inherent in small towns that make them potentially good places for children to live. However, I want to emphasize that these indications are only tentative."

Porpoise Trainer Is Hard to Locate

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 23 (U.S.)—After four weeks in which a "help wanted" advertisement in a theatrical publication failed to disclose a single job applicant, the Marine Studios of Marineland, Fla., sadly announced that the rarest thing in the United States is an unemployed porpoise trainer.

Several years ago the Florida "Oceanarium" decided that to show should include an act in which porpoise jump through hoops, ring bells, raise flags and go through other routines previously reserved for acrobats and monkeys. Through trial and error, a trainer finally was successful in teaching the aquatic mammals to become performers.

However, the extensive rehearsal required, plus five shows a day seven days a week, proved too much of a task for one man. A decision was reached to hire an assistant to share the training load.

The Marine Studios guarantee an assistant porpoise trainer plenty of fresh air and sunshine, as well as quite a few fish each week.

Polio Chapter Holds Parley

RUPERT, Dec. 23—Assistance received from the national polio foundation shouldn't be thought of as charity, Dr. R. C. Phillips, chairman of the Minidoka county polio chapter, said at a meeting of the chapter Monday night.

Dr. Phillips said contributions to the March of Dimes should be regarded as sort of a group insurance. He said that it isn't necessary for any family which includes one or more polio victims to bankrupt itself financially. Help from the polio foundation may be had for the asking, he added.

Rumors that favoritism rules the distribution of foundation funds are untrue, the doctor said, and emphasized that aid to polio victims is available to all those in need.

Fourteen showings of the Helen Hayes polio film, "They Shall Not Want," have been scheduled in Minidoka county thus far, Dr. Phillips said. Coin boxes will be distributed to business places on Jan. 3. Rupert Jay-C-Elles will assist in the distribution of posters. A house-to-house campaign will take place near the end of January, following "blue crutch" sales and other fund raising activities.
