Visitors Seek Top Fashions While Abroad

ROME, Italy, June 7 (AP)—Hundreds of American women shoppers will invade the high fashion salons of Europe this summer to splurge on a made-to-measure outfit.

A few will stop timidly into the carpeted style headshops to see if there are accessories, like scarves and costume jewelry, for sale with the imported label and a homeowning touch.

This is to advise the first-time visitors that they don't need to bother explaining their lack of knowledge. They'll be greeted by experts who not only speak several languages, but can spot an American woman the minute they lay eyes on her.

Looks at Feet
"I look at the feet," a friendly, smiling woman known only as Dottie said to explain her American-spotting trick at the fashion salon of the Fontana sisters here.

Bricks American women wear more comfortable-looking shoes with their "room in the toes," French and Italian women have accepted the extreme pointed toe and needle-tapered heel more rapidly than the Americans.

At the Fontana salon here, run by three sisters who come from a 100-year-old shoe-making tradition in Italy, the family women shoppers die over one floor in a tiny, wire cage elevator and step into the second floor faster to find Dottie waiting to greet them. She has been awarded by a bell rung by the doorman downstairs.

One of the three sisters, Zoe, Nicole or Giovanna, usually gets in on the clothes conference, since they like to "try them on."

Called "Chic"
"American women are very chic lately," Zoe said. "We find they are getting more European in their taste. They choose very wearable, very simple things."

"We sell 10 simple dresses to our American customers for every one we call a striking dress. That is typical European taste also."

Even simple dresses come high in these famous designer headquarters. But it is possible to buy with a little handwork and embroidery for prices much lower than similar handmade styles in the United States.

"We sell 10 simple dresses to our American customers for every one we call a striking dress. That is typical European taste also."

A hand-made straw-lace cocktail dress for summer, can be ordered for $10, which is about the least expensive dress in the shop. Other dresses made to the customer's measurements from a same size model, sell from $200 to $450.

Has Its Own Vocabulary

Over the years there has come into being what amounts virtually to a special Cadillac vocabulary. Certain words and phrases have so long and so often been used in association with Cadillac that they almost automatically call the car to mind.

When the talk is of motor cars, you can hear the word "prestige" without thinking of Cadillac.

It is likewise true of "distinction" ... of "luxury" ... of "pride of ownership" ... of "satisfaction" ... of "comfort" ... of "long life and dependability" ... of "beauty" ... of "imperviousness" ... of "value" ... and of dozens of other words used to denote superiority.

In a sense, these are Cadillac words and they are truly sound things when employed in any other and her automobile, they still suggest the "ear of a cat."

Naturally, words like these can become inseparable only from a product which deserves them. In the case of Cadillac, it has taken half a century of strictest adherence to the highest automotive standards to win this public approval.

External vigilance is the price of it. It is the words people, of course, realize that these words most apply to Cadillac. But too many have not personally found out why.

If you are among these—come in and see our We'll give you the keys to a new 1933 Cadillac and you'll know in a single hour why Cadillac is its own vocabulary.

You'll know, from personal experience, that you speak of "prestige" and "distinction" and "luxury" and "pride of possession" and "value" when you are speaking of the Standard of the World.

We have the keys—and the car—and a real one come waiting for you.

GRATITUDE WITH CAUTION

It is characteristic of Communists that they often speak for ungodly things that they never should have done in the first place. The release by the Red Chinese of four illegally held American fliers is such a case.

We are all grateful that these men are now free and reunited with their families. But we as a nation cannot make a deep bow of gratitude to Red China. For the Communists owed us these men, as they owe us 11 other prisoners and a sizeable number of civilian prisoners as well.

The return of the four, indeed the return of all, will not wipe out the crime. In the matter of the four released men, the Chinese did not in fact acknowledge that they had been guilty of the slightest injustice.

They "tried" the four — not previously charged with any specific crime — and ordered them "deported" for having violated Chinese territory. All had been downed, of course, during the Korean war, and as prisoners should have been released in 1953 under terms of the Korean armistice.

Eleven other fliers are held as "convicted spies," and it may not be so easy for the Reds to find a face-saving formula for their release.

But if they do release them, then the United States might well consider whether these moves reflect a new desire on Peiping's part to follow a path toward an easing of tensions in the Far East. If we should decide they do, then we might conclude that favorable conditions exist for negotiations with the Chinese.

Nevertheless, we would have to make it plain that we are not agreeing to talk in payment for the release of wrongfully imprisoned Americans. We cannot strike bargains which credit the Communists for undoing unjust acts.

Even as that is thoroughly clear, the American government cannot lose by sitting down at the council table to test the genuineness of Peiping's gestures toward a more relaxed Far Eastern situation.

As for the immediate achievement of the four fliers' release, America must extend first thanks to the long, patient efforts of U.N. Secretary Dag Hammarskjold. Ever since the U.N. resolved to act in the fliers' behalf, Hammarskjold has worked tirelessly toward this goal.

Krishna Menon, India's U.N. delegate, has publicly assumed full credit for the release. He has only recently returned from Peiping insignificant whose aid included freedom for the fliers, and he may indeed have played a significant role in the Red move. But this country will not forget the long-range negotiations of Hammarskjold. In all fairness we must credit him, as the fliers themselves do, with laying the real foundation for this heartening event.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—Only 24 hours after Lindbergh's mysterious disappearance, Tucker's National Whirligig lines will operate without a subsidy from the taxpayers next year, save for the single exception of Pan American World Airways. It is an accomplishment which President Eisenhower, it is extremely proud, although it was several hard-hitting Democrats who made possible this tremendous saving.

Despite the aviation lobby's protesting, the House of Representatives and the Senate have passed appropriations bills not injuring the companies. Pan American, for instance, which President Eisenhower's civil aeronautics board a report of $44,000,000 revenue for 1954's first quarter, as against $28,000,000 for the same period in 1953.

Now has the congressional economy demand dented Pan Am's ability to obtain new money. From the banked funds of the company, Pan Am has the "finest example of Eisenhower's insistence that private rather than public money underwrite commercial and industrial operations."

PAN AM'S BIG DEAL—Juan Trippe, Pan Am's president, has recently concluded a 25-year financing plan which will provide for a $40 million bank loan, the new credit will provide for additional aircraft, totaling 100 million dollars.

Thus, after tapping the public till for more than one billion dollars since World War II, America's greatest overseas air fleet—and there is none better—has come into the wings.

However, Sen. Paul H. Douglas, Ill., believes that Pan Am should be forced to reduce its expenditures and to pay off its debt. He has introduced legislation with Senators Kennedy of Massachusetts, Kilgore of West Virginia, and Representative Rooney of Brooklyn—all Democrats—the Illinois economist, who has introduced a bill to limit the size of the airline industry.

In a letter to Sen. Carl Hayden, Ariz., chairman of the senate appropriations committee, where the final subsidy struggle will be staged, Douglas demands that Pan Am be required to make a full accounting of its use of its luxury hotels, its South American and elsewhere. Pan Am has been negotiating to buy Cuba's swankiest hotel, the National, on the island's western waterfront.

SWANK HOTELS—These hotels, which have golf courses, swimming pools, the beaches and the finest food in the world, are being sold to Pan Am. They furnish an inducement to fly that is far more attractive than its non-hotels competitors.

Douglas first tried to get an accounting of Pan Am's hotel operations from the civil aeronautics board, but he was informed that "public disclosure of this information is not authorized by CAB." CAB has NEVER made an audit of these nonaviation expenditures.

INFORMATION FROM U.S. CONTROLLER—CAB justifies its failure to audit Pan Am's hotel books on the ground that it would be an "invasion of friendly nations' and children's privacy." CAB has NEVER made an audit of these nonaviation expenditures.

In his letter to Senator Hayden, Douglas declared that CAB had led to congress about Pan Am's hotel operations. He said that Pan Am had only 50 per cent interest in the International Hotels Corporation, Douglas learned from the United States controller general that its ownership is 100 per cent Pan Am.

Douglas also discovered that the parent airline and the hotel corporation have offices in the same building in New York City, next door to each other.

Since Pan Am lost $23,000,000 on its hotel operations in 1953, and now seeks expansion in this field, Douglas is not surprised that Pan Am should be so generous in its offer to sell its hotels. He points out that few taxpayers footing Pan Am's bill ever saw its lines or sank a putt or hoisted a highball at its luxury hotels.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—From June 15 to 17, newspaper readers will see a strange listing in the columns of their favorite dailies. It will be something like: "Information Headquarters, Operation Alert, 1953; Radio news broadcasts and telecasts will also purport to be from the same mysterious location. It will be strictly by a 'Somehow in America' date-line.

Its exact location is more or less an open secret in Washington. But to carry out the fiction that Washington has been atom-bombed out of existence and that the President and all the big shots of government have been killed for parts unknown, nobody is supposed to tell where the secret headquarters are.

Federal civil defense administration under Gov. Val Peterson and office of defense mobilization under Dr. Arthur Flemming will be in charge of setting up this information headquarters. No special correspondents for individual newspapers will be accredited to the emergency White House, which may be at several secret locations.

The President may move about. But an elaborate communications network has been set up so that the President can meet with his cabinet in conference, television phone calls. Signal corps and navy will handle this communication network.

Washington won't exactly fold up while this is going on. Congress will remain in session. And all the agencies will be open for routine business as usual.

Salk Works to Improve His Serum Against Type I

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 7 (AP)—Dr. Jonas E. Salk revealed today that he is working to make his anti-polio vaccine more effective against type one polio virus. Type one virus causes the most paralytic polio but is the type against which the vaccine now is least effective.

Salk, U. S. Surgeon-General Leonard B. Steacie, and other polio vaccine experts met at an annual program at the annual meeting of the American Medical Association, where Salk's vaccine was being tested by reassemble physicians as to both safety and potency.

The importance of the vaccine program is that it is the only one that has been shown to be effective against the disease. It has been shown that the vaccine is safe and effective against the disease. Red China Leaks Word of Ease-up

LONDON, June 7 (AP)—Red China has leaked word to the West she is ready to join in a bid by the United States to ease up on the Formosa area, diplomatic officials of three nations reported last night.

The Peiping regime has set out to give the West the impression at least it does not contemplate trying to force Formosa by force.

The Reds have balked at spelling out such assurances publicly, however, and have made clear they do not intend shelving their claims on the island held by Chinese Nationalists.

POT SHOTS

ANOTHER VIEWPOINT

Pot Shots: Your article of June 2 by Mrs. B. about people blocking the front of the drive-in at the postoffice brings me to inquire why it is that "we the people" have to tolerate snafus of any kind in front of the postoffice.

Don't the postoffice belong to the people? Are we not the government, for and by the people? Should we cover all postoffices and federal buildings? Why should we be tagged by the police for parking improperly or overtime when "we the people" own the postoffice and custom buildings, etc?

Remember the words of George Washington in founding the republic: "We the People."

I do not think it is fair for us (we the people) to have to pay the city to park at our own postoffice or any other federal building. Do You?

Constitutionality for Secret Accusers Still Undetermined

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP)—It is constitutionally right and fair for the government to fire a federal employee as a security risk without letting him "confront his accuser or even know who he is?"

The supreme court had a chance to give a final answer yesterday. But it took a detour. Some day it may face the question again. Meanwhile the government can continue using secret informants in security cases.

Critics of this practice argue a man whose job and future are at stake should be allowed to face and cross-examine his accuser. But the justice department says secret informants are sometimes necessary for national security.

The secret witness has been a problem under both Presidents Truman and Eisenhower. Both have had programs for getting rid of government employees considered a risk to the country.

Under Truman a man could be sacked if there were doubts about his loyalty. Under Eisenhower a man can be fired as a security risk without necessarily being disloyal. He might be disloyal or he might be drunk or a liar.

Rush for New Autos Seen as Costs Head up

DETROIT, June 7 (AP)—A continuing rush to buy new cars is one of the results expected from the newest agreements between management and the UAW United Auto Workers.

Many industry experts say higher prices for 1956 models will result from the increased labor costs involved in the new contracts. They returned to the contract which Ford and UAW agreed on Monday. They said the increases probably will not be applied by the factories to cars currently in stock. At the same time, they speculate that the heavy price discounts that have prevailed so far this year may be sharply curtailed.

Price discounting has been commonplace in the new car market during the last two years. Most new car buyers had come to expect price concessions. They got them, quite generally, either in direct reduction below the factory list or in heavy allowances on traded-in vehicles.

The factories built more cars in the last five months than in any previous like period—approximately 2,000,000 units. Some sources say the record output was stimulated by the manufacturers' desire to build up a stockpile against a possible prolonged shutdown.

The manufacturers, denying this, said output was geared to market needs.

and paving streets to be installed on a basis arranged by the city.
The necessary land will be deeded to the city from the property of widener Flier avenue east to the high school. Owners will install sidewalks, curbs and gutters on the north side of Flier avenue east to the high school line.

The company also states it believes the city would be benefited by the residents in the area and to the city in general. It states it has been contacted by a large number of residents in the vicinity who are in favor of such a development.

The proposed business district would cover the area directly adjacent to Blue Lakes boulevard north and Flier avenue east-southwest of the high school line.

According to the developers, present plans for the shopping center include a supermarket, haberdashery, flower shop and other similar stores.

It also includes the opening of approximately 12 professional offices. The company says several local churches have expressed their interest in the development. Plans included in plans. Types and number of stores will depend upon applications from interested parties.

The zoning plan of the 35-acre tract northeast of the course would be made into a residential R-2 zone. The commission will consider the proposal to the city planning and zoning commission for its consideration.

The commissioners also passed a resolution for the creation of local improvement districts. It includes the construction of sidewalks, curbs and gutters on portions of Flier avenue, Kinross avenue, Maurice street, Flier avenue east, Maurice street, Sunrise boulevard north, Madison street, Grant avenue, Grant avenue, Doran drive and Buchanan street.

Total cost of the improvements has been set at about $43,000. The money will be furnished by local improvement districts. The cost of the improvements will be assessed against property owners along the streets.

Commissioners received a petition from some 25 residents along Alexander street that the street be graded and allied this summer.

Another property owner on the west side of Alura drive north of Flier avenue asked the commission to grade the street on the east side of Madrona street. The street originally had been dedicated as a through street.

The commission also referred to this planning and zoning commission action. The matter was referred to this planning and zoning commission.

City Manager Joseph Lathrop approached the commission in regard to the possibility of using the city hall on Saturday mornings. The matter will be taken under advisement.

Rain and Mist Put Pall Over Large Region

By United Press
Rain and mist shrouded the nation from the great lakes to the Gulf of Mexico and eastward to the Appalachian mts. Heavy rains pounded the south and in Chicago a bus skidded on a rain-slicked street and tipped over.

The heaviest rainfalls reported by the U. S. weather bureau included 1.48 inches at Hopkinsville, and nearly an inch at Bowling Green, Ky., and Montgomery, Ala.

Earlier, hail stones three quarters of an inch in diameter battered the region. Quarter-inch hail stones hit Kansas City, Mo., and Joplin, Mo.

Torrential warnings were issued for the Midwest during the night, but were later lifted. The rain in the north early today was accompanied by thick fog over parts of northeastern Illinois and northwest Indiana. Job-bound motorists were urged by the weather bureau to drive with caution.

The damp weather was accompanied by slightly cooler weather, but further west desert areas were having trouble cooling off from yesterday's scorching. It was still a stifling 95 degrees at Needles, Calif., and a 91 at Blythe, Calif.

Regional Man Gets Director Post of Lions

Pa. president of the International Association of Lions clubs, spoke on the international aspects of Lionism.

Wherever Lions clubs have been established in South America, Canada or Europe, he said, a need of friendship and freedom has been planted. "This need is good," he pointed out, "the soil will be turned and the like crop will be harvested. In a small way this will hasten the day when ruthless aggression will disappear."

International Lion clubs are crossed when men unite in spirit of generous cooperation. This is particularly evident wherever Lions clubs have been formed in Europe.

Herbert Merrill, international counselor, Lehigh, Ala., member of the board of international relations, spoke on the significance of the friendly relations existing between the United States and Canada. "Our borders are guarded not by cannon but by flags standing together in friendship."

Fundamentals on Disarming Plans Told by Senator

WASHINGTON, June 7 (U-S)—Senator Symington said today that an economic disarmament plan which he is championing "gets down to the kind of elements every citizen and child can understand."

The Missouri Democrat said the plan "emphasizes that the world would mean more food, clothing and shelter and the good things of life."

Symington's remarks were prepared for the senate foreign relations committee in support of his resolution urging President Eisenhower to ask the United Nations to explore the possibilities of an economic disarmament plan.

Under the plan, Symington said, disarmament would agree to limit the production of basic resources such as steel, they would use for armaments, thus making more available to civilians goods and a higher standard of living.

A system of inspection and controls would be set up to guarantee against violations.

Pentagon Gets Excited; Asks B-52 Buildup

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP)—The Pentagon, which acted unexcited about Russian air power gains until three weeks ago, now is talking about ordering substantially more B-52 jet bombers than currently planned.

It also is considering whether it can speed up the rate of production of any jet fighter types now on order.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson revealed this yesterday. He said officials are "taking a very good look" at the present defense program.

Dates Given
No decision on extending the eventual B-52 hydrogen bomber force has to be made until the new budget is approved by Congress. The additional planes would be built after the approximately $600 million now planned for production under a speed-up contract.

But the fact that serious talk of ready hand starting shows how far the defense department's military heads have moved since their cryptic May 12 statement on Russian air progress.

The statement was followed by Pentagon assurances that America still holds an air power lead. It also said that although many believe the lead has been narrowed seriously in both bombers and fighters, the exact nature of the committee jumped into the fray and with other probing, the Pentagon made public facts on Russian planes not in its first statement.

Developments Listed
These developments followed:
1. Air Secretary Harold E. Talbot announced on May 23 that B-52 production rates would be increased 25 per cent. Just two days before, Assistant Air Secretary Roger Lewis had said air force planning could not be based on "a practice fly-by on the part of the Soviet Union."

Wilson said that P-100 Super Sabre fighter production could be stepped up if necessary, but a decision has been reached to do so. Russia is reported officially here to have "several thousand" MIG-17s comparable to the 850-mile-per-hour Super Sabre. There are fewer than 100 Super Sabres in combat units.

But some air authorities questioned that there would be a speed-up in production since large numbers already are on order at a high production rate.

Time Element Mentioned
4. While the possibility of stepping up other jet types is being studied, some authorities doubted that could happen at the moment. They said the air force's most advanced types are not yet sufficiently developed for faster production, "an analyzer, how many you need them" as one official put it.

5. The B-52 speed-up started last of the increased total number to be built. The speed-up will have a year from production time for the presently planned fleet, getting it ready possibly in 1958. The year saved could be used to build substantially more of the bombers. A decision will depend

Panel Rehires Golf Manager

BURLEY, June 7—Rulon Budge, manager of the municipal golf course who was suspended because of relationship to a member of the city council, was rehired Monday night by the council.

Budge was suspended about three weeks ago because he is a brother of former councilman Eugene Budge. Councilman Budge resigned from the council last week, clearing the way for his brother to be hired again as manager of the golf course.

No action was taken by the council Monday night to fill the vacancy created by the councilman's resignation. The council, in acting upon the resignation, set up rules for the municipal swimming pool but set no opening date. Weather conditions will determine the time the pool will be opened, Mayor Leonard Salmon said.

partly on the status of long-range guided missile development and the futuristic B-58 supersonic bomber's progress.

Wilson made it official yesterday at his news conference that the B-52 speed-up was "decided on after the May 12 statement."

Two weeks ago, the secretary had said the Russian progress "doesn't seem so important to us" because "we know it was coming."

Mescalero Apaches Work to Better Economy for Tribes

By HAL BOYLE
MESCALERO, N. M., June 7 (AP)—Tribal members of Geromino, leader of the last major Indian uprising in the United States, are thinking about starting a dude ranch.

Time has calmed the fierce Apache's, once the most dreaded raiders of the far West. They have decided there is more profit in raising ponies into battle than in raiding.

One of their latest ideas is to establish a dude ranch on their mountainous 719-square-mile reservation here, one of the most picturesque areas of New Mexico. It is a wild section plot to lure the white man here and reap him with resort rates.

"If we do start a dude ranch, we'll operate it on a high level," said Winford Chino, a distant relative of Geromino who is president of the tribe's business committee.

There is no doubt that if Chino has anything to do with it, it will have to be on a high level.

Chino is passionately devoted to raising the lot of his people. A short, powerfully built man of 32, Chino was the first member of the Apache tribe to become an ordained minister. He took a leave of absence from his pulpit post in the Reformed Church of America to direct the tribe's economic affairs.

Two decades ago the Apaches lived much as they did in Geromino's wild heyday. They had only a few hundred cattle. They slept as their roving ancestors had—in brush arbors or "wickiups."

Today many of the Indians live in neat four-room cottages built by the tribe with funds borrowed from the government. Many have become ranchers or cowboys. The

Five Day Week Slated by Court

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP)—The supreme court will go on a five-day week when it comes back to work Oct. 2. It has worked six days a week since 1941.

Chief Justice Warren, in closing a shop for the present term yesterday, said in the future court will hear arguments only on Mondays through Thursdays. The justices will hold discussion conferences on Fridays for discussion of cases they have up for decision.

Under the old plan, the court heard arguments Monday through Friday, and then held closed conferences on Saturday.

Those who criticize us don't realize the progress we have made. They forget that the Apaches were the last tribe to lay down their weapons, and that some who were led by Geromino are still alive.
