'Ike' Rejects Russ Proposal for New Friendship Treaty

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—President Eisenhower rejected Russia's proposed "friendship" treaty Saturday. He told Premier Nikolai Bulganin that a "change of spirit" is needed to promote world peace. Bulganin had written Eisenhower that present world tensions are "fraught with the possibility of breaking the peace," and plunging nations into atomic war. It would be "an act of great international significance" for peace, he said, if the United States and Russia would sign a treaty pledging to settle disputes peacefully in conformity with the United Nations charter.

Farm Union's Job Outlined At Area Meet

SHOSHONE, Jan. 28—An explanation of work of Farmers' Union was given members of the Lincoln county Farmers' Union at a meeting Thursday night at the Dietrich Grange hall. State Director Drexel Watson, Boise, spoke.

The meeting was conducted by Andy Freese, Dietrich.

Mrs. Carl Kerner gave the secretary's report and two films, "What Price Glory" and "Two Blades of Grass" were shown.

Watson explained the organization of Farmers' Union, stating that farmers belong to the organization because they realize the need of a spokesman.

"Across the nation, farmers are much the same, concerned with an important job, that of producing food to feed the world," the director stated.

"A few years ago," the director said, "a farmer received 54 cents on his $1 while today he only gets 38 cents on that dollar."

Watson said there is no surplus because two out of every three persons in the world go to bed every night hungry.

"If everyone in the U. S. ate as they should for proper health, there would not be enough food for the U. S. from the present production and surplus level. There are 20 million Americans who are not getting enough to eat due to lack of income."

In speaking of the proposed soil bank, Watson recommended taking 60 million acres of crop land and pasture out of production instead of the 25 million acres as proposed.

That would permit annual payments equal to the normal yield at full parity prices instead of an average of only $14 an acre.

He said the large farmer could better be paid for taking some of his land out of production than could the small farmer.

The Dietrich local served refreshments to the group at the conclusion of the meeting.

He has appeared many times on the Standard Hour in fact, he was the first vocal soloist to appear on the Pacific Coast program. He is widely known throughout the western states.

He also has appeared with noted orchestras, the San Francisco symphony, the Seattle Symphony, the Portland Symphony and the Los Angeles Philharmonic at Hollywood.

When asked whether he prefers recital, singing with orchestras, film roles or opera singing, Kemalyan answers, "Whenever I happen to be doing, I like them all."

But he does admit to being especially pleased by an operatic appearance in "Faust" with Richard Tucker and Nadine Carrier of the Metropolitan Opera company.

Rushed

BUHL, Jan. 28—The guest of honor was too busy Thursday night to attend the Buhl Rebekah lodge function to which she was invited.

What kept Mrs. Russell Lyons from attending the pink and blue shower planned in her honor by the Rebekahs was the rush trip to Magic Valley Memorial hospital, Twin Falls, for the same reason the Rebekahs planned the party. Some 30 minutes ahead of the shower of gifts, Mrs. Lyons' daughter was born.

The gifts were taken to the hospital by the honoree's husband and the guests who attended the shower enjoyed games and refreshments at the home of Mrs. Edgar Larsen.

The loans, he said, may be used to pay a wide variety of farm and home operating expenses and will be made only to farmers who are operating units no larger than a family-type farm, and who are unable to obtain adequate credit from other sources.

Applications may be filed at the county offices of the administration. The office serving both counties is located at the courthouse, Jerome.

Students Receive Talk on Careers

Qualifications necessary for a successful secretarial career were outlined for students of the Twin Falls Business college Thursday by Arlene Mueller, secretary to Mrs. Irene Oliver, administrator of the Magic Valley Memorial hospital.

Miss Mueller, a former Business college student, urged every student to take advantage of all opportunities while in school to learn and develop their techniques.

In order to qualify for a top position, Miss Mueller listed these essentials:

"Be a good listener, refrain from discussing your employer with anyone, look for the best in fellow employees, learn to give information accurately, do not accept gifts from customers, and above all have a neat, clean appearance in both dress and manner and keep the office orderly." There is "no excuse, Miss Mueller added, "for bad grammar or manners."

Magic Valley Hobbies—No. 5 Twin Falls Policeman Donates Spare Time to Teaching Judo Art to Class

In the sport of grunt and groan, when the villain pounds the canvas, and makes like he's being taken apart bit by bit, he's probably acting. But when he's toppled and slaps the floor as he falls, that's for real.

Slapping the canvas is a means of absorbing some of the shock of the fall and is one of the first lessons a wrestler learns. Twin Falls Policeman Wesley Dobbs maintains. Dobbs, a former member of the north California Judo tournament championship team, currently is teaching a group of high school boys the ancient art of Judo.

These classes meet every Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights at the junior high school if the time corresponds with the city recreation program. Dobbs donates his time to the classes because he "likes" the sport.

Wesley Dobbs displays the judo suit, Judogi, which he wore when he was awarded "Outstanding Judoist" honors at the northern California championship judo matches in 1951. Representing San Jose State college, he was a member of the team which won the tournament three consecutive years. Currently he is instructing a group of high school boys in his hobby and plans to hold matches with teams from other cities in Idaho and Utah in the near future. (Staff photo-engraving)

To keep from being hurt the novice must learn to fall, and learning to fall means he must learn to hit the canvas with as much of his body as possible to distribute the shock, Dobbs said. Slapping the canvas as the toppled wrestler comes down also helps to absorb the jolt of the fall, he said.

Most people view judo as a paralyzing, maiming sport, the patrolman continued. Actually, judo means "gentle way." While paralyzing and crippling holds are taught for specific purposes, as during the war, basic judo is no more than a sport that teaches a person muscular control and coordination between mind and muscle.

Using brute strength, a heavier man usually can push a lighter man around at will but if the lighter man "gives way," the man maintains his balance while the larger man is thrown off balance. The huskier man's strength and weight are reduced by his awkward forward position, thus equalizing the two men.

"It is through this gentle 'giving way' that judo gets its name," Dobbs said.

The origin of judo is not known but Japanese records show judo instructors held prominence in the days of hand-to-hand combat. With the advent of firearms, physical exertion in war was not useful and judo began to die out.

In June, 1882, Jigoro Kano started a one man campaign to restore the sport. Starting with six pupils organized under the name Kodokan, which translated means "school of studying the gentle way." Kodokan grew into the largest organization in Japan.

The University of California became the first U. S. college to hold classes in judo in 1917. In 1936 matches were held between San Jose State college and the popularity of the sport grew. During the war years participation was curtailed but was resumed in 1947 and reached its peak in this country in 1953 when the AAU sanctioned a national judo tournament.

Dobbs was exposed to judo at San Jose State. With eight other students he turned out for the team and after a few weeks of practice, met the San Francisco Dojos, a Japanese judo team.

Dobbs won one and lost one, but the team lost the match. It wasn't until 1949 the San Jose team got going, taking the northern California championship.

As though the team set a precedent, it went on to "cop" this crown for the next two years, receiving permanent possession of the trophy. In his last championship tournament, Dobbs was voted the "outstanding judoist trophy."

A heavyweight by just a few pounds, Dobbs was put-in-against some 230- and 250-pounders. During the tournament he was pitted against a six-foot, six-inch 250-pound Swede, who, Dobbs said, "had the finest build I've ever seen." Dobbs defeated him, but points out "it's much easier to beat a taller man."

Judo matches are arranged so every member of a squad plays "first string." The opposing teams, according to weight class, line up on each side of the mat. Then each man takes the opponent opposite him.

A win requires only one point or fall and these matches continue until everyone has been defeated but the champion.

In judo there are four ways to gain a point. The first is a throw fall. The second is called grappling and demands the judoist control the opponent's movements for 30 seconds. This is the hardest way to win, Dobbs reports. The other two are legal choke holds or joint holds.

Judo has its own method of ranking. The entire field is divided into two groups, the beginners and ranking men. Each is given a belt of a different color as he develops.

The beginners class is divided into five divisions with five corresponding belts. The ranking men have 10 positions and belts to mark their relative "ranks." Dobbs has a black belt, which designates the first-in-the-line of ranking men.

These promotions are not always won through contests, Dobbs said, but may be obtained through the approval of instructors, based on the amount of time spent in practicing or for an individual contribution toward the development of judo.

Under Kodokan rules, judo strives to develop three basic goals, physical development, proficiency in contest and mental development.

Of these, mental development is the most essential and the most difficult to learn, Dobbs said.

The contest is the final test of one's physical and mental training. Because it requires only one point to win a match or lose it, contestants sometimes get nervous with fear of losing. This will prevent the contestant from relaxing and being alert and may cost him a match, he added.

Granges Vote 'No' on Sales Tax Measure

RUPERT, Jan. 28—Members of the Pomona Grange and the West End Grange, meeting jointly Thursday, voted "no" to the resolution on a state sales tax. The West End Grange was host for the meeting. Roy Ramsey, master, was in charge.

Members of both Granges also decided to hold "gavel programs" in the near future. The Pomona Grange will meet March 28 with the Pioneer Grange.

Mrs. Willard Hayward, lecturer, announced the program. The program consisted of a polo film, "Remember Me," shown by Lewis Mayhar and Glen Anderson, a sextet composed of Ardis Carine, Sharon Sanford, Mary Jo Mertlich, Sharon Koch, Donna Hawk and Athene Klausner, accompanied by Darlene Platts, sang two numbers, accordion selections were played by Peter Knighton; an address on farm objectives was given by Roy LaRue; piano selections by Miss Platts and songs by Mario Acock, Bill Moelmer, DeMar Madsen and Delbert Catmull, accompanied by Ha Jane Acock.

In LaRue's address he called the crop surplus "a war casualty." He also stated that he thought the big operators are the ones who have flooded the market, rather than the family-size farmer.

Willard Hayward was elected assistant steward; Mrs. Mazie Knighton, Northside, was elected assistant lady steward; Mrs. Fred Rogers, home economics chairman.

FBI Asked to Aid Hunt for Missing Boy

CEDAR CITY, Utah, Jan. 28 (AP)—A 17-year-old service station attendant missing since Wednesday definitely has been kidnapped, from county Sheriff Arthur Nelson said Saturday. He has called the federal bureau of investigation into the case.

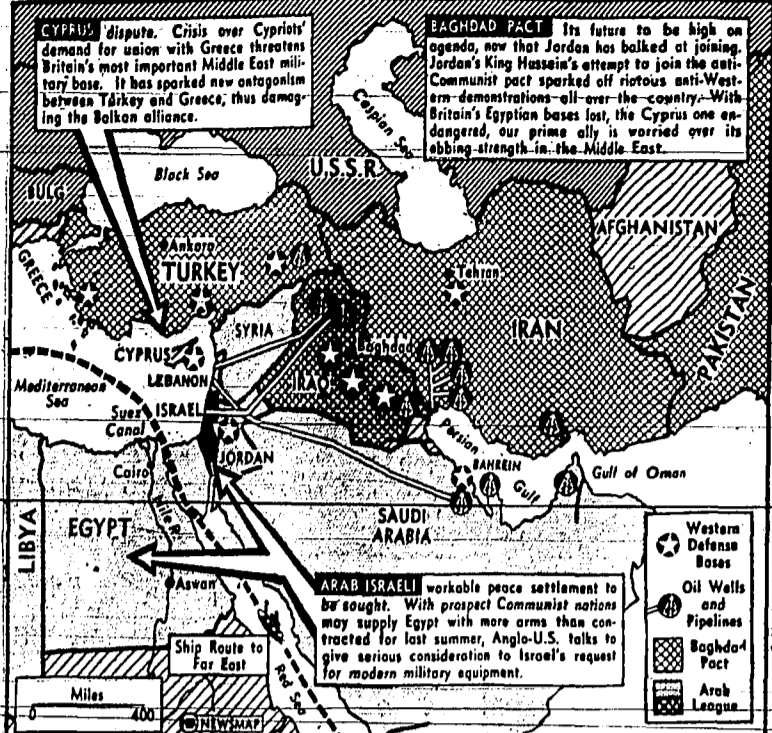

Young Arden Heap, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Heap, failed to return home from work Wednesday night. Police found his school books and car with the key in it near the filling station where he worked. The cash register was empty.

Nelson said Saturday that "it has been determined that the youth was kidnapped. Arden has always been a responsible youth and one of the finest young men one could meet."

A posse continued to search a wide area Saturday in hopes of finding the boy or some trace of him. Saturday's search was concentrated in Iron, Beaver and Washington counties, but small groups of men in cars went as far west as Glendale, Nev.

The All Stars handed the Kilo-watts their first defeat in Knoch-hole league play to the tune of 20-14.

Demo Dark Horse Hopeful Plentiful, But '56 Doesn't Seem Favorable Year

This is the last in a series on the 1956 Democratic presidential hopefuls. WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—This presidential election year is a bad one for dark horse Democratic candidates.

It was not always so. The phrase, dark horse, was coined in 1844 to describe the unknown Democratic nomination of James K. Polk of Tennessee for President. He was the first dark horse and he defeated Kentucky's Henry Clay.

Polk's platform demanded "re-annexation of Texas and re-occupation of Oregon." It favored tariff reform. Texas and Oregon will be factors in the fate of 1956 dark horses, but in conflict with each other.

Mrs. Slaughter has played with the Idaho State symphony in Pocatello, the University of Utah symphony, the Riley symphony and the Boise Civic symphony.

Bathtub Spot In History Is Now in View

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (AP)—Almost nobody can take a diaphanous stand on the place of the bathtub in human history and make it hold water. Some people say Rome fell because Romans spent too much time in the baths. Some say the empire would have gone down the drain anyway. Some people say the Romans' strength was in their baths. They even built portable baths for their legions in the field and kept their conquests clean. Back home, Roman men joined the local bathhouse gang and even transacted business in the public baths.

Goo Used
Some Roman ladies, in their private baths, allowed in donkeys' milk. Others bathed in a luscious milk. Others used up 20 pounds of goo made up of 20 pounds of crushed strawberries and two pounds of crushed raspberries.

The Greeks had a word for bathing that is translated "to drive sadness from the mind." The Greeks are said to have been fond of a home-style tub shaped like a modern bird-bath. Part of the glory that was Greece lay in eating and drinking while bathing—which is a nice trick if you can do it in a bathtub.

Scrapers Used
The Romans, who didn't have soap, used a scraper to cleanse their skin while bathing. Oddly enough, the barbarians who brought the dark ages to Europe also brought in the first soap, but on the subject of bathing they were rather wishy-washy. And the plain fact is that in the dark ages people were—as some philosopher has said—wishy but not overly wishy.

Well, as you might have imagined, it remained for the Americans to bring the bathtub to full flower. Benjamin Franklin is alleged to have brought the first formal bathtub to America—a tub in the shape of a shoe, with a grate in the "heel" to heat the water.

With that start, American imagination ran amok. There were shoe tubs, hat tubs, wooden showers, fold-away closet tubs, and convertible furniture tubs in this country in the 1880's.

14 on Display
The Association of American Soap and Glycerine Producers, Inc., a trade organization now in convention here, has gathered up 14 of these antique tub-uglies and put them on display in a "bathorama" at the Waldorf-Astoria, a hotel which has a bath for nearly every room.

Probably the most fascinating item of the display is the Virginia stool shower, believed to have been used around 1830-40. It's a walnut gadget with a revolving piano-stool-type seat beside which is a wooden lever. The bather worked the lever back and forth, sending water up a hose into a nozzle and onto himself. The lever action at the same time worked an old-fashioned stiff-bristle scrub brush up and down the bather's back.

Folds Up
An 1880 closet tub, framed in pine, folded up into its own closet, and thus was camouflaged as a wardrobe when not in use. It had its own hot water heater.

A Victorian sofa tub (1880-90) doubled as an overstuffed, living room sofa of carved, acrolled walnut and gold brocade, with a curved armrest. The sofa top was removable, disclosing a full-length metal tub composing the bottom half of the piece. It was advertised as "the common sense invention of the age."

Mother's Story on Grace Is "Enthralling," Avers Writer

By HENRY McLEMORE
Not since I used to meet the packet boat from England to get the latest installment of Dickens' "The Old Curiosity Shop," to find out how Little Nell was faring, has any story held me so enthralled as Mrs. John B. Kelly's account of the life and romances of her daughter, Grace.

Not only does her prose march with majestic tread—it reveals how close some of us were, without knowing it, to a chance of winning Grace's hand. It is tantalizing, to say the least, to know that one could have been a serious suitor had one but known what appealed to Grace.

In one installment of Mrs. Kelly's story—which I some day hope to own in the original manuscript form—she tells of how close dress designer, Oleg Cassini, came to making Grace Mrs. Cassini. Mrs. Kelly admits that Oleg was a charming man, and as proof offered the facts that Oleg's manners were continental, that he had a wide acquaintance in international society, and that he could tell a samba from a mambo.

I possess every one of those qualifications, and yet I didn't do one thing about them. Now, you take knowing a samba from a mambo. I doubt if there is a man in the world who dances them as differently as I do. The samba brings out all the Latin in me. As soon as I hear the first note of a samba I say, "All Gaud is divided into three parts, so let's get going, Madame."

When the lady makes a mistake, and puts her foot under mine, I lean tenderly forward, put my lips to her ear, and whisper, "E Pluribus Unum."

When dancing the mambo, I am a totally different species of pisces. The mambo is an offbeat creation, and there are few who can get more offbeat than I. During this dance my sideburns seem to grow, my complexion becomes more swarthy, my hips revolve like engines in a roundhouse, and I give the suggestion of a handsome pampaean riding devil-may-care through the wild gaucha country.

So much for the dance. Now for my acquaintance with international society. I know Elsa Maxwell, which proves it is wide. I once fell down a rise in the ground on the St. Andrews golf course and fell smack

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

By JIMMY WINKLE
(Pastor, United Brethren in Christ)

In the first and second chapters of Genesis, God tells of His creation of man. When God breathed the breath of life into the nostrils of His greatest creation, man became a living soul, a soul eternal and one which would never die; an eternal existence just as God Himself is eternally existent.

Shortly after the creation of man, God was to see His wonderful creation fall into the snare of Satan and sin against God. He had warned Adam and Eve not to partake of the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil. Disobeying the Lord, they did eat of the fruit and immediately began to die. Ever since that time, death passed upon all men, women and children who are born into the world (Ro. 5:12).

Death is greatly feared because it is one of the greatest enemies of man. It is the gateway to eternity for the eternal soul of man. Man's destiny in eternity depends upon his desires upon earth. If he continually rejects God and the eternal life through Christ Jesus (Ju. 3:16, Ro. 5:19, 21), he may well fear death as his spirit will be ushered through this gateway into an eternal destruction from the presence of God.

On the other hand, if man's desire is to seek after God, accept the Salvation He provided at Calvary through the death of His Son, Jesus

"Death, Gateway to Eternity"

Christ, then there will be no fear of death.

Heb. 9:27 says, "It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the Judgment." So, when death comes, it removes all hope for the eternal soul's salvation. Our decision to accept Christ's salvation must be made while we are alive. We must not put Him off! We must accept Him today.

In 2 Cor. 6:2 we read, "Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation." A further warning in Pr. 27:1 is "Boast not thyself of tomorrow; for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth."

It is your decision! You can have eternal life through Christ, just for the asking; or you can have eternal damnation simply by doing nothing, other than keep putting off Christ.

Christ is going to destroy the enemy of your souls, death, forever. (1 Cor. 15:26) He can destroy it right now as far as you are concerned, if you will accept Him as your Savior. Death is the gateway to eternity. Make sure you enter the gateway in the right direction.

New Building Dedicated for Church Work

RUPERT, Jan. 28—Nearly 200 persons attended the dedication services of the educational building of the Methodist church Wednesday evening.

The services and banquet marked the completion of a six-year program started under the direction of Rev. J. R. Crowe, continued by the Rev. Earle Terry and completed by the Rev. Wendell L. Coe. The building is valued at $130,000 and is the most adequate religious educational building in the Idaho conference, the Rev. Mr. Coe said.

Dr. P. Malcolm Hammond, Boise, gave the invocation and the Rev. Mr. Crowe read the scripture. A. C. DeMary presented the building and Fuller Fenton gave the benediction.

Music was under the direction of Mrs. Melvin Parr, who introduced the church quartet composed of Mrs. Ted Schorman, Howard Bruns, Tom Pierce and herself. A trio composed of Mrs. Hollis McClellan, Mrs. Schorman and Mrs. Parr, also sang.

The dedication services marked the end of a series of golden jubilee events conducted by the Methodist church in Rupert this year.

GOP to Hear Governor Lee

GOODING, Jan. 28—Utah Gov. J. Bracken Lee will speak at the Lincoln day banquet at 7:30 p. m. Feb. 11. The Gooding county GOP central committee reports GOP delegates from throughout southern Idaho are expected to attend the banquet at the IOOF hall.

Governor Lee is expected to speak on his views of the federal income tax law. He has refused to pay a part of his income tax for last year in hopes of drawing a court suit to test the government's right to spend tax money for foreign aid.

Chancellor Willard, Wendell, and Eugene Pugmire, Hagerman, are co-chairmen for the banquet. Mrs. William Pyle is chairman of dinner arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Hobday. The greeting committee is composed of State Sen. William Jackson, Wendell; State Rep. Pyle, Gooding, and Lee Wagner, Gooding precinct committeeman.

A luncheon in honor of Governor and Mrs. Lee will be served at 2 p. m. Attending will be precinct committeemen, precinct workers and elected GOP officials in Gooding county. James Peterson, Gooding county vice chairman, is in charge of arrangements.

Tuttle "Postman" Is Conservationist

Vernon Ravenscroft Tuttle, shapes a post in a machine he has adapted for field use. Ravenscroft uses lodgepole pine, once considered a weed tree, for his post and pole business. A former extension forester for the University of Idaho, he resigned to set up his business near Tuttle. He not only is proving the worth of the former "weed" but, through a preservation process, is prolonging the useful life of timber after the tree is dead. The plant is located between Bliss and Wendell. (Staff photo-engraving)

Magic Valley Tours Tuttle Man Puts "Weeds" to Good Use On Farm Converted to Poles and Posts

Tomatoes once were believed poisonous, uranium was described as a "worthless white mineral" and lodgepole pines were considered weeds. Now just about everybody eats tomatoes, uranium is the modern wonder mineral and more and more uses are being found for the lodgepole pine. That's progress.

Vernon Ravenscroft thought a lot about the lodgepole pine as he worked as an extension forester for the University of Idaho. He extolled the merits of the tree for corals and posts so long he finally quit his work with the university and went into the "pole" business.

Actually, there's a little more to it than that. Ravenscroft not only was interested in wood, but was interested in means of preserving it—prolonging its useful life after the tree was dead. Unpreserved, most wood will not last too long when in contact with the ground.

Ravenscroft returned to the home farm near Tuttle in 1951 to set up a plant to preserve poles and fence posts. The plant is located approximately 10 miles from Wendell—or six miles from Bliss if approached from the opposite direction—on highway 25.

A person doesn't have to be interested in poles or preservation of wood to find Ravenscroft interesting. His interest in the topics are infectious for, above all else, there is pride of accomplishment; finding another practical use for a tree that once was thought to be a weed.

The lodgepole pine hasn't helped its own reputation any. It's not a very cooperative tree, foresters contend. It's what they call an "intolerant species." It likes to grow in stands of other lodgepole pines to the exclusion of other species. And in a cut-over or recently burned area, it will rush in before other trees get a chance, take over all the available standing room and then all but stop growing.

Seldom does it attain a very large size although some trees three feet across have been cut. For the most part, though, the trees are small, suitable for corral rails, fence posts and the like. Techniques in the utilization of wood have changed in recent years, however, and more uses are being found for the slender trees. Science has discovered they make pretty good wood pulp and foresters expect this use to increase despite their size.

When large trees are found they can be used as saw timber and are just as good as other species, foresters claim. The only difference is that it took the large lodgepole pine a lot longer to attain its size than it would have taken some other species, growing under similar conditions, they add.

Ravenscroft is proud of the lodgepole pine but he is ever more proud of the uses to which he is able to put the trees. Even the chips are used in feedlots as bedding for cattle. Most of the timber Ravenscroft uses comes from around Galena and the like. Techniques in the lodgepole pine are located near Fairfield and in the south hills. The trees can be cut only with permission from the forest service.

Ravenscroft, with between 30 and 50 men, cuts the trees in the summer and sometimes peels them in the forest. The peeled logs are trucked to his plant at Tuttle where they are seasoned with steam or electric heat to reduce the normal seasoning period.

For the seasoning and preservation, the poles are placed in steam, electric or preservative vats until they are ready for marketing.

The former forester has a fence post peeler and sharpener he has adapted for use in the field. The machine is based on a commercial machine to which Ravenscroft has added improvements to make it fit his particular needs. The peeler, using a whirling planer head, removes knots and imperfections from wood along with the bark.

Ravenscroft's operation is not a large one, nor is it especially unique. But it is an example of what can be done when a man with an idea gets together with a plentiful supply of something no one else seems to want. The lodgepole pine may never be as popular as the tomato nor as valuable as uranium but, for a weed, it's doing all right.

JOINS FRATERNITY UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO: Moscow, Jan. 28—David Hogue, Burley, has been elected to membership in Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism fraternity, here.

If you can find Bliss or Wendell you can find Vernon Ravenscroft's post plant at Tuttle. It's just about midway between the two communities. (Staff engraving)

GI Insurance Bill Is Drawn To Help Vets

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—Sen. Herman Welker, R. Ida., today joined with Sen. Russell B. Long, D. La., in introducing a bill which would give both World War II and Korean veterans one year to apply for national service life insurance.

Senator Welker said he was convinced that many who had permitted their insurance to lapse or who had never applied for it would now like to be covered by its provisions.

Senator Welker also pointed out that the only cost involved would be that occasioned by administering the policies of the increased number of policy-holders. The bill would not make any additional persons eligible for insurance, merely establishing a limited period of eligibility for those already qualified, he said.

If the bill is enacted, persons who served between Oct. 8, 1940, and Sept. 2, 1945, would have a year to apply for insurance, but they would have to satisfy the veterans administration that they were in good health.

Senator Welker added, "I am sure that many of our young people now regret very much that they did not take advantage of the opportunity of continuing their GI insurance. I am very happy to join with Senator Long in giving these young people this additional opportunity, since many of them now have family responsibilities and I am sure they will want to take advantage of this insurance."

'One Worlders' Hit in Letter By Man Charging 'Betrayal'

Editor, Times-News: Those who oppose the Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower giveaway policy should read the address given by U. S. Sen. George W. Malone, before a conference of the western governors.

The conference called for the repeal of the 1934 trade agreements which, the senator said, "utterly and completely destroyed the mining business in the United States."

He declared congress, through the act, transferred its constitutional responsibility to regulate foreign trade and national economy to the President and the President transferred that power to the general agreements on tariffs and trade at Geneva.

"Twenty-three years of continuous reduction of the duties or tariffs on imports and the European national dishonest currency, the price of which has been continuously manipulated in terms of American dollars for trade advantage, completed the job," he said.

"All that the American working man and investors ever have asked," the senator declared, "is for an

State's Spending Draws Fire Of Wendell Woman in Letter

Editor, Times-News: So Idaho needs a sales tax does it? Money does not roll into the state purse as fast as it rolls into the capitol. Of course, no matter how much money rolls into the capitol it will not stay there. It will be spent. Why? Because things will be done a little faster and there will still be a deficit.

Responsibilities for Teaching Noted in Letter From Jerome

Editor, Times-News: I have read that... Mr. J. Lester Buford, superintendent of schools at Mt. Vernon, Ill., and president of the NEA, opposed the union role for teachers. He said the next 10 to 15 years will determine whether teaching will remain a profession or become a trade.

He also said with the merger of the CIO and the A.F.I., a big campaign is in the offing.

Labor has said it will organize the white collar worker, especially teachers, he said, and added that he had no personal fight against labor, but he is opposed to teachers being tied to any one segment of the country's economy.

State Mental Health Program In Need of Aid, Woman Notes

Editor, Times-News: I was very happy to read the report on Dr. Butler's discussion of the problems of breathing life into the state mental health program.

His idea of setting up clinics in the larger Idaho communities to help with their mental health problems is part of the dream Dr. Cromwell, of state hospital south, has had for years. But, as Dr. Cromwell has often said and Dr. Butler infers, the people of a community must be ready for such help before state hospital south or the state mental health director can do much to further the program.

To me, it seems to be an educational problem. There are still too many people in Idaho who think that only crazy people go to a psychiatrist. There wouldn't be so many "crazy people" if they would go to the psychiatrist as soon as they felt the need for help. A patient does not wait until gangrene sets in before he goes to the doctor to have his broken bone set. And yet, as a woman in a PTA meeting said recently, "Even a medical doctor is afraid to suggest that a patient seek the help of a psychiatrist. It would only result in insulting the patient who would immediately go to another physician."

Idaho citizens should be given more information on the work being done at state hospital south for "out" patients. Men and women who are having marital problems, employment or child parent problems, etc., go to the hospital for lectures and psychiatric help. They live at home and continue their various activities in the community.

What a boon a mental health clinic would be to our communities which are too far away from the hospital to take advantage of this service!

Day to Commemorate Heroic Chaplains Is Urged by DAV

Editor, Times-News: The Disabled American Veterans urged that the first Sunday in February be designated as "Four Chaplains Memorial day" in honor of the four chaplains who voluntarily gave up their lives for their men in the sinking of the troopship Dorchester 10 years ago.

The gallant act of these four chaplains of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths, who gave their life jackets to others and stood united in prayer as the Dorchester went down, symbolizes the many quiet deeds of heroism performed by chaplains in our armed services.

Feb. 3 marks the 10th anniversary of the troopship's sinking, and the DAV feels it is entirely proper that proclamations be issued by the President, governors and city and county officials, creating an official Four Chaplains Memorial day on the first Sunday of every February.

The DAV commander, Elmer Griffith suggests that pieces of religious worship in this community give special recognition on Feb. 3 to these four chaplains who sacrificed their lives in the cause of freedom and justice. DAV chapters have agreed to commemorate the occasion of their first meeting in February of each year. The National DAV organization has passed a resolution at its last national convention urging the memorial observance.

Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI

Every human being longs in his inmost soul to be perfect, to rise superior to all of his difficulties and, secretly, to stand above all others in his full power and dignity. But nobody yet has achieved that goal. There is no perfection in this world. Perfection means the end of growth, and that would be the end of all of us.

Yet we keep reaching for the perfect thing, the perfect man and the perfect child. That helps us to grow and keep growing, provided we keep in mind that it is the effort that counts and not the failure to reach the high standard we set. Effort toward a perfect job, toward a perfect character, is the very essence of a healthy, successful life. It is that we must encourage in children, and in ourselves, and keep trying—even though we fail again and again.

Children often are grieved and discouraged to the point of tears by teachers and parents who never seem to be satisfied with a nearly-perfect lesson or mark. "Ninety-eight in spelling. What was the matter with the last word? Seems to me that you might get a hundred in anything as easy as spelling."

This discouraging attitude is very common. A pupil writes a fine composition. He wrote it in high heat, the fire of creation burning brightly within him, but his penmanship was bad, very bad. And he had a couple of blots.

Without reading the composition, the teacher of English said, holding the paper like a banner, "My word! Looks as if a duck's foot had walked all over this. Can't you even be neat? A third grade child could hand in a better paper than this." But she hadn't read the story which, when she finally got to it, made her sting for joy.

But the boy had gone home to say, "I'm never going to write another composition for that teacher. Never. Get me a transfer to another school. If you don't, I'll quit school."

It is so easy to see the mistakes and not so easy to see through them to the effort the child made, the degree of success he achieved. And the struggling learner is easily hurt and discouraged and made to feel unfit.

Dr. Edward Johnson, of Vineland, used to say, "Why Tommy, you have four words right. Wonderful. You'll surely get another one tomorrow. Good boy."

Maybe if we tried that plan, praising the right word, the one fine sentence on the paper, the "B" on the card, we'd do better?

Does your child have bad eating habits? Is he a food fuser? Dr. Patri explains the importance of good eating habits for good health in his booklet, No. 303, "Feeding Children." To obtain a copy, send 25 cents in coin to him, c/o Times-News, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Winter Wardrobe Chooses Corduroy

Corduroy takes its place in the sun. These pictures, taken in St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, show a capsule travel wardrobe for a winter vacation. The Oriental touch appears, left, in slim corduroy pants topped by easy collar overblouse printed in gold. For dancing under the stars, there is pale corduroy, center, cut into separates traced with cotton lace. Fabric is the lightest pinwale. Coat, yes, you need a coat in the tropics, is an interesting treeshark pattern, right, cut trench coat style. We show it here in a lovely pale sand color. (NEA photo)

Map Plans for Mothers' March on Polio

Planning the coming Mothers' March on polio at the Boise filter center are Lieut. J. A. MacDonald, filter center; Capt. C. B. Reese, Idaho national guard; Mrs. Charles Blanton, Boise Mothers' March committee, and Mrs. Frankie Alworth, Twin Falls March of Dimes committee. Plans were made for coordinating ground observers, the Guardsmen pilots and marching mothers. (Staff engraving)

GOC Units, National Guard Jets to Aid Mothers' Polio Drive in Southern Idaho

BOISE, Jan. 28—A joint operation involving the ground observer corps, national guard jets and marching mothers of the March of Dimes drive was well into advanced planning stages Saturday. The operation will be coordinated through the ground observer corps headquarters center in Boise. The event will take place on the evening of Jan. 31, to bring to a close the 1956 campaign for polio fighting funds.

Residents in all participating towns in southern Idaho will be instructed to turn on their porch lights as national guard jets scream over their locality signalling all citizens to join in a last grand effort to strike polio down.

Five separate flights of jets will take off from Boise early enough to have them strategically placed across the southern part of the state by the time Idaho mothers are ready to begin their march. Each aircraft will follow a predetermined flight pattern, so that, with the terrific speed of a jet, each town in southern Idaho will hear the crackling blast of an afterburner within minutes of all the other communities. This will herald the march of a legion of mothers bent on smashing legions of mothers bent on smashing infantile paralysis as a threat to tomorrow's children.
