Party Is 'Jubilant' Over Ike

BOISE, Feb. 29 (P)—Idaho's Republican leaders were jubilant today when President Eisenhower said he was available for a second term.

"I am tremendously gratified that the President has decided that he still has a great task to perform for the peaceful prosperity of the world," said Gov. Robert E. Smylie.

He added:

"The President will be reelected with an overwhelming majority."

Theo. Wegener, Boise, national committeeman, echoed Smylie's sentiments in this statement:

"I couldn't imagine anything more disappointing to the people of the United States had the President decided not to run again because he hadn't had time to carry through the program he started."

"Naturally his being a candidate again will help our Idaho Republican candidates and the entire national Republican ticket."

Wally Burns, Idaho Falls, state GOP chairman, was vacationing out of the state and not available for comment.

On the other side of the political fence, Mrs. Ruth Moon, state treasurer and only Democrat holding an elective office in the statehouse, said:

"The fact that he has decided to run again isn't a surprise to me. But I feel we Democrats will be able to nominate a candidate who will win the 1956 presidential election."

$7,772 Asked In Case Over Pump System

Ivan Molyneux and Clyde Molyneux, Twin Falls, ask $7,772.50 from Paul R. Neumann and Glen Myers, co-partners in Electric Service company, in a complaint filed Tuesday in district court here over an irrigation pump installed in Blaine county.

The Molyneuxs claim that suit is due as result of a transaction with the company in the spring of 1953. They claim they engaged the defendants in the spring of 1953 to select, sell and install an irrigation pump which would lift 200 miners inches of water 50 feet from Silver creek to irrigate 200 acres.

It is alleged the company sold and installed an electric motor and centrifugal pump at a total cost of $3,378. During the irrigating season of 1953 the pump never produced in excess of 136 inches of water, it is contended, and it was necessary to overload the 30 horsepower electric motor to 36 horsepower during the pumping season. Preliminary to the 1954 season, a 40-horsepower electric motor was installed and during that irrigating season it had to be overloaded to 50 horsepower to deliver approximately 176 miners inches of water.

It was until May 15, 1955, that the Molyneuxs discovered the pump originally sold them was not an 8-inch by 8-inch but a 6 by 7 and incapable of delivering 200 miners inches of water.

They ask $788.75 as cost of the 8 by 8 pump; $5,700.36 for loss of at least 20 bushels of wheat per acre, loss of new seeding of clover and failure of a pea crop to yield properly; $1,000 as estimated rental they could have procured for 20 acres left idle although they had been prepared for crops, and $274.39 as power costs caused by overloading.

Roy E. Smith, Twin Falls, is attorney for the plaintiffs.

Hearings Are Set On Water Filings

BOISE, Feb. 29 (P)—State Reclamation Engineer Mark Kulp today set dates for three continued hearings on protests against applications for water rights appropriations.

Hearing was set for 10 a.m. April 23 for protests by U. E. Couberry and others against application for appropriation of water from Rock creek by the Salmon River Canal Company, Hollister.

Another hearing was set for 10 a.m. April 24 in the matter of, property of the Bruneau-Buckaroo Cooperative Ditch company and others against an application by the Salmon River Canal company to use waters of Clover creek.

A third hearing was set for 10 a.m. April 25 to hear arguments of the Bruneau-Buckaroo Cooperative Ditch company and others against the use of Bruneau river water by the Salmon River Canal company.

Girl, 10, Credited With Saving Companion, 9, From Drowning

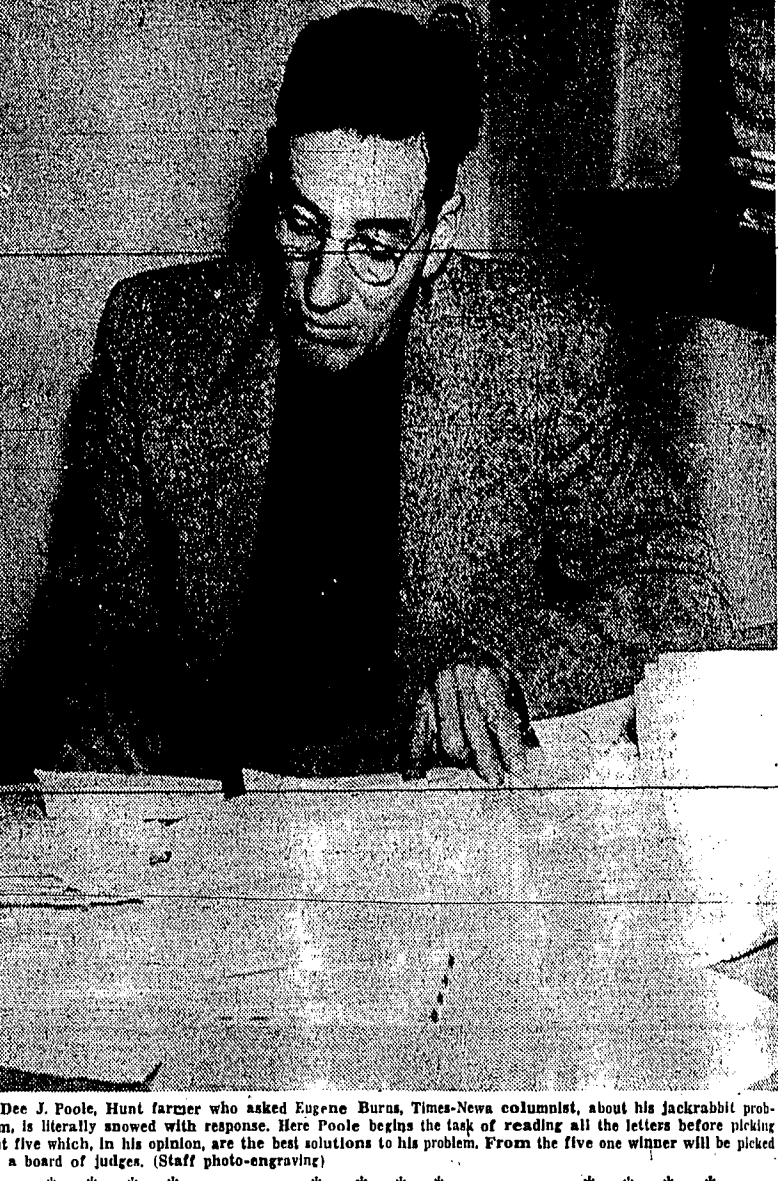

BIOSHOP, Feb. 29 (P)—Norma Jean Moore, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Mohr, who live in the town of Biishop, is being credited with saving her companion from drowning in the Little Wood river Sunday.

The girl, with DeAnn Walker, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Walker, were playing with the latter's dog behind the trailer court on the banks of the river at 5 p.m. Sunday when the dog ran out onto the bank. The Walker girl chased after her pet and the ice broke beneath her, dropping her into the icy water of the river.

Norma ran after her companion and clutched her by the arm to pull her from the water. As she pulled the ice gave way some more and even though she had to retreat she kept a firm grip on the younger girl.

Several times the Walker girl's head went beneath the water but Norma hung on. Unable to pull her companion from the water by an arm she switched her grip to the latter's hair and dragged the girl to safety on the bank.

Solutions Come in Reams

Dee J. Poole, Hunt farmer who asked Eugene Burns, Times-News columnist, about his jackrabbit problem. He is literally snowed with response. Here Poole begins the task of reading all the letters before picking out five which, in his opinion, are the best solutions to his problem. From the five one winner will be picked by a board of judges. (Staff photo-engraving)

Farmer's Jackrabbit Problem at Hunt Gets Wide Response; Answers Studied

The problem of what to do with jackrabbits on Dee J. Poole's farm on the Hunt project has brought a wave of solutions. Poole asked Eugene Burns, Times-News columnist, the moral and other aspects of infecting the rabbits with myxomatosis, a disease deadly to rabbits and other rodents.

Burns, in turn, asked his readers to offer solutions to Poole's problem and in response to that, hundreds of persons in more than 50 communities in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska, Utah and California had suggestions to offer.

Poole has been asked by Burns to select five of the letters as the best answers to his problem. These five letters then will be submitted to a board of judges and one will be selected as having "the best solution."

Most of the letter writers are against infecting the rabbits with the virus on both moral and economic grounds. Those in favor of using the virus seem to feel the end justifies the means.

In his original letter to Burns, Poole told of the "hordes" of rabbits which raid his farm in cycles. He has tried shooting them, has built rabbit-proof fences and has considered poisoning them. His chief objection to poison is that the poison also is dangerous to cats and dogs.

Most of the writers offering solutions to the problem claim the rabbits could be put to good use for chicken, hogs or fox feed. Some give Poole the addresses of places where rabbits may be sold, pointing out that dressed rabbits bring as high as 50 cents to $1 each.

France Shakes up Military Leaders

PARIS, Feb. 29 (AP)—France shook up its top military command today amid reports of a clash on policy for dealing with the rebellion of Algerian nationalists.

Premier Guy Mollet's government appointed Gen. Paul Ely, 68, former member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's three-man executive, as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff to replace Gen. Augustin Guillaume.

Gillaume, as resident general in Morocco two and a half years ago, ousted Sultan Mohammed V, Yusuf because of the sovereign's nationalist sympathies.

Spring Flood Threat Hides in Snow Pack

SEATTLE, Feb. 29 (P)—Increasing mountain snow packs—some already at record depths—brought official warnings yesterday of possible spring floods in the Pacific northwest.

Snow on the slopes surrounding the Yakima valley are 240 per cent above normal, said Murray Walker, water resources supervisor in the state department of conservation and development. Elsewhere along the eastern slopes of the Cascades in Washington, the snow pack averages 130 to 150 per cent above normal.

"The potential is there for a terrific flood," Walker said.

A spokesman for army engineers here said "things could be bad" if spring comes suddenly with warm winds and rain.

He said it is "too early to predict floods," however, and added that continued cold and a gradual thaw could minimize the threat.

But in Yakima, Mayor Gilbert W. Burns has met with county commissioners to establish emergency communications and put dike workers on a standby notice. Bert Guss, Yakima county sheriff, has ordered fire-jackets as standard equipment in sheriff's cars.

The snow depth is 368 inches—nearly 31 feet—at Mt. Baker. Mt. Rainier had 250 inches, Snoqualmie pass 197 and Stevens pass 190.

Economic Aid Aim Stressed By Italy Chief

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Italian President Giovanni Gronchi told congress today a broad, cooperative program is needed to win the new cold war of "economic assistance."

Gronchi urged the United States to move away from "emergency measures" built on military power and work for political, economic and social "reorganization of the western world."

The Italian chief of state warned the joint session of congress that the world now faces a "disquieting phase of confusion in ideas and political orientations and consequently of greater potential danger."

"It is sufficient in this context to look at North Africa and the Middle East and to listen perceptively to the rumblings which come from the remainder of Asia," he said.

Eisenhower States He'll Seek His Second Term if Party, Public Want Him

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he will run for a second term if the Republican convention and the people want him. Republican leaders left no doubt they want him. They took his decision as a firm yes, and jubilantly predicted "overwhelming victory" in November.

Mr. Eisenhower made his announcement at a record-breaking news conference. He will go on a nationwide radio-TV hookup at 10 p.m. EST to explain to the American people, he said, a number of factors bearing on his decision. Then he added:

"My answer will be positive. That is, affirmative."

"And I assure you of this; My answer would not be affirmative unless I thought I could instill out the five years."

Mr. Eisenhower said he did not know for certain whether the Republican convention would want him after his speech tonight.

But the Republican leaders were more than satisfied. To a man, they predicted the party convention in San Francisco next August will renominate Mr. Eisenhower by ac-

Bean and Pea Farmers Vote By-Laws Okay

By-laws, articles of incorporation and a growers contract were adopted as contract bean and pea growers completed a new organization, the Magic Valley Bean and Pea Growers association, at a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The farmers also elected officers for the new firm. Larry Irwin, Kimberly, was elected president; Melvin Sackett, Twin Falls, vice president, and Floyd Lincoln, Twin Falls, secretary and treasurer.

Elected to the board of directors were Sackett, representing Twin Falls; D. B. Hine, Filer; Irwin, Kimberly; A. C. Pettygrove, Hansen; Arthur Gawler, Murtaugh; C. D. Kleinmiller, Eden-Hazelton; B. L. Kleinkopf, Jerome-Wendell; Roy Smalley, Buhl-Castleford, and Ellis Fuller, Salmon tract.

Irwin reminded the group the new organization will serve only as negotiating agent between the producer and processor.

The group also made tentative plans to begin a membership drive within two weeks. Because officers donate their time and the organization needs no property, the membership fee is very low, Irwin noted.

Requests for Aid in Probe Gain Silence

GOODING, Feb. 29—Near silence greeted a request Wednesday from the Gem State Association of the Blind to state officials for cooperation with a national Federation of the Blind survey which is planning an investigation of the State School for Deaf and Blind at Gooding.

Frank Collins, president of the state association, said wires were sent to Gov. Robert E. Smylie, John Rensberg, chairman of the state board of education, and Dr. Burton Driggs, superintendent of the state school.

Both Rensberg and Dr. Driggs said, in substance, a decision on cooperation with the survey team would rest with the state board of education. Rensberg said the board will want to discuss the matter when it meets in Boise on Monday.

Collins said the three-man survey team would arrive in the state on Saturday and would contact Dr. Driggs at Gooding on Monday.

A group of Gooding business men met with Dr. Driggs Tuesday afternoon at the state school. Dr. Driggs said the meeting was called in the "interests of the welfare of the school" but would not state specifically what was discussed.

Agricultural Zone in City Is Discussed

Addition of an agricultural zone to the proposed city ordinance was discussed by members of the Twin Falls zoning commission Wednesday morning.

If approved, the zone will be limited to agricultural purposes excluded by permits given only for buildings "normally used in farming."

This zone would exclude feedlots, commercial granaries and other items which may prove "offensive to the surrounding areas."

The matter was tabled until further study and a written expert opinion could be prepared.

By unanimous vote the commissioners ruled no residential building permits would be granted for dwelling homes to be built in any of the industrial zones.

After lengthy discussion on the problem of floodlighting parking lots the commissioners decided to leave the ordinance as stands.

Thursday morning the board will turn their attention to preparation of development and city location maps.

Officer Slate Is Chosen in Rotary Ballot

John Angerbauer was elected president of the Twin Falls Rotary club Wednesday to serve during the 1956-57 fiscal year beginning July 1. He succeeds C. H. Higgins.

Dr. David A. McCluskey was elected first vice president and Robert W. Berg second vice president. James M. Cunningham, John Bishop and Warren Barry were elected directors. The three officers also will serve on the board of directors. The six were chosen from a list of 14 candidates.

The program following the luncheon at the American Legion hall was a color film, "Pump Trouble." It depicted an average man worrying over having a heart attack. It lampooned the many false symptoms some people believe indicate heart disease.

"The film urged all persons to have a checkup periodically and contribute to the Idaho Heart association campaign fund.

Guests were Harmon Stringham and Louis Schiele, both Boise, and T. H. Roth, Twin Falls.

Protests Pile up on Use of Two Springs to Irrigate Desert Land

Protests came thick and fast Tuesday and Wednesday to filings on water at Crystal springs and Niagara springs by the Crystal springs Irrigation company, Buhl. In addition to a protest previously filed by the State Fish and Game department, the Jerome Rod and Gun club and the Idaho Outdoor association filed protests on Wednesday and Idaho Power company filed a protest on Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the Wendell Chamber of Commerce met in special session to enter a protest to the filings but up to noon Wednesday had not filed its protest with Mark Kulp, state reclamation engineer. Today is the last day in which protests can be filed.

Plans of the irrigation company to irrigate 50,000 acres of land in the Bruneau desert west of Hagerman and south of Glenns Ferry by water from the two springs, Rock creek and Salmon falls creek were announced Tuesday by officials of the new firm.

The water from the four sources was to be gathered and impounded in a natural reservoir near the site of the land to be irrigated.

Water Rights Plan Needed, Lawyer Says

BOISE, Feb. 29 (AP)—William S. Holden, Idaho Falls attorney, said last night Idaho must embark on an "affirmative water program" if it is to protect its water rights.

Holden, who represents several scores of irrigation districts and canal companies in the upper Snake river, told a Gaidron club audience that "Idaho should have a state water plan approved by the legislature, which provides for the maximum utilization of our streams for all of the beneficial purposes of which they are capable."

If such a program is not inaugurated, he said, the state stands to lose its unappropriated waters.

"We have scarcely commenced with the development of our vast potential water resources," said Holden. "Our future development and growth are tied to putting to beneficial use under Idaho state water law the vast, unappropriated waters of our state."

The attorney traced at some length the threat of federal control of western water rights. He spoke particularly of the Pelton dam decision in Oregon in which the U. S. supreme court held that the federal government had control of non-navigable rivers on federal reserve lands.

Fred Klamm, Paul, is being held in Jerome while officials search his driving record to determine if Klamm ever has had a previous conviction on a charge of drunken driving.

Klamm was picked up Tuesday night by State Patrolman Roy Thomas and placed in the Jerome county jail but up to noon no complaint had been signed against the Paul man.

Klamm was taken before Probate Judge Theron Ward in Jerome Wednesday afternoon but the formal complaint against him is pending the outcome of a search of Klamm's driving records.

New Building Site in T. F. Is OK'd by State

The state board of examiners in Boise authorized the employment security agency Tuesday to pay $10,000 for a lot in Twin Falls for a new office building.

R. S. Cutler, manager of the Twin Falls office of the Idaho employment security agency, said it probably will be a year or 18 months before the building is constructed.

Cutler said he understood the building would contain about 3,000 square feet of floor space and would be a one-story brick structure similar to one recently built in Idaho Falls.

Cutler said three locations had been studied for the building, but he did not know yet which one had been decided on. He reported the three locations are a vacant lot at Fourth avenue and Third street north; on Third street east across from United Automotive service, and on Main avenue south at an undesignated site.

Cutler said he did not know the owners of the first two locations, but that the third contemplated area is owned by the federal land bank which is building on a portion of it.

The new building will be occupied only by the employment security agency, Cutler said.

He did not know who would occupy the present location of the agency.

Cutler said most details weren't definite yet in that "there is some financing yet to be arranged."

Eisenhower, 66, Is Oldest to Run

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—President Eisenhower, who will be 66 next October, will be the oldest chief executive to seek a second term.

Three other Presidents were older than Mr. Eisenhower at the time of their first inauguration—William Henry Harrison (68), James Buchanan (65) and Zachary Taylor (64). Harrison and Taylor died during their first term. Buchanan did not seek a second term. Mr. Eisenhower was 62 at his first inauguration.

If he is elected and serves out a second full term, Mr. Eisenhower will become the first American President to be in office at the age of 70.

Fifteen American presidents lived to be 70 or older—after leaving office. The oldest former president was John Adams. He was 90 when he died.

Use of Water From Springs Is Lambasted

Its protest that it owns the lands upon which the springs are located. The firm claims the form and contents of the applications on Jan. 11 failed to comply with the requirements of Idaho law.

The Idaho Power company protest adds the applications "do not contain information and facts sufficient to constitute a valid and sufficient filing to appropriate waters of the state of Idaho."

Among reasons given by Idaho Power for the insufficiency of the applications are that they do not contain any definite description as to the points of diversion and that they contain no information indicating a survey has been made.

The fish and game department's objection was based on a license it obtained July 30, 1953, from Idaho Power company. The license provides for the use of those lands of the Idaho Power company, from which Crystal and Niagara springs emerge, for fish rearing ponds, wildlife and for free public recreational use.

To further provide for maximum wildlife and public use of the area, the department's director, Ross Leonard, said the department purchased 80.68 acres of land adjacent to Crystal springs.

The objection also notes that continued wildlife use, public use and enjoyment of the lands, improvements and license use, are dependent on the waters of Crystal and Niagara springs.

Idaho Power company claims the waters of Niagara and Crystal springs are private waters and not subject to the issuance of a permit by the department of reclamation without the written permission of the owner.

Etna on Sicily Erupts; Lava; Smoke Belch

CATANIA, Sicily, Feb. 29 (AP)—Mt. Etna's snow-covered central crater erupted today with a mighty mushroom-shaped cloud of white smoke and a shower of red-hot lava.

The eruptions continued every two or three seconds but scientists said it still was too early to predict whether there was any danger to populous areas at the foot of the 10,741-foot volcano.

It was the first activity from the central crater of Europe's loftiest volcano since 1949 and appeared to be more violent than the 108-day outbreak last year from the northeastern crater.

The eruption was preceded by a deep rumbling at 10:10 a.m. (4:10 a.m. EST) but the actual eruption was not accompanied by the usual earth tremors.

During the night a reddish glow could be seen as far as 30 miles away from the summit and the heat melted snow for 1,000 feet around the top of the mountain.

The rest of the slopes still were covered with deep snow, making it difficult for scientists to climb the volcano to check on the intensity of the eruption. There appeared to be three separate explosions.

Slowdown Is Predicted for Boom in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Some highly-placed government economists believe American production already has reached the 400-billion-dollar-a-year rate forecast last month by President Eisenhower.

They agreed, however, that the long upward sweep of the production curve, charting the country's biggest boom, shows signs of flattening out. Whether the leveling-off will occur in the fore part of the year or in the second half is in dispute. Normally there is a springtime bulge reflecting the revival of farming, construction and other outdoor activity.

Some expect, however, that the current slack in auto and housing production and some other factors will "cause the gross national product," or GNP, to hover right around the 400 billion dollar during the first six months of 1956. GNP represents the value of all goods and services produced.

These economic officials foresee a last-half rise up to a possible annual rate of 408 or 415 billion dollars.

Total production in 1955 was $387,208,000,000. It rose from a rate of $367,100,000,000 in the first quarter of 1954 to a rate of $397,300,000,000 in the last quarter of 1955.

The President, in his annual economic report to congress last month said:

"We have reached the threshold of a 400 billion dollar economy and the recent advance has been accomplished without the specious aid of price inflation."

However, the recent climb in prices of basic industrial commodities—nearly four per cent since mid-1955, on the average—may contribute to the statistical rise, because GNP is a dollar measure of output.

Nations Vote For A-Power Network Bid

PARIS, Feb. 29 (AP)—Seventeen West European nations vote today to pool their resources for the development of an atomic power network which may be fueled initially by the United States.

They left room inside their new cooperative for a parallel development of an atomic power network which may be fueled initially by the United States.

They also decided to give serious consideration to President Eisenhower's offer of atomic fuel last week. At that time, the President authorized the sale or lease of 44,000 pounds of uranium 235 for the peaceful production of atomic power in the United States and the same amount for use abroad by non-communist countries.

Today's decisions were made by representatives of the organization for European Economic Cooperation, formed originally to administer Marshall plan aid from the United States.

'Battle Pages' Are Asked by Demo Figure

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler today challenged the nation's press to carry "battle pages" during the 1956 presidential campaign.

Butler said the "battle pages" should be open to the two major parties "giving them equal space in position, letting them present their cases in their own words in opposite columns."

Have Opportunity
"Those newspapers which object to the phrase one-party press will have an opportunity to show their fairness by carrying the battle page," he said in a speech prepared for delivery at a National Press club luncheon.

Butler released copies of identical letters to the American Society of Newspaper Editors and the American Publishers association, urging "the merits of the battle page" be considered at their national conventions this year.

He said in the letters the "battle pages" should be run in newspapers during the last "eight or nine weeks" of the presidential campaign. He also proposed they should be carried weekly from the ninth to sixth weeks.

Attacks Press
He coupled the proposal with a renewed attack on the press.

"When I came to Washington in January, 1955, I was of the opinion that we had in this country a very segment of the press that was one-party," he told the National Press club.

"Today, more than a year later, my view is the same—only more strongly confirmed."

Eisenhower Says He Doesn't Aspire to Be President - Back in 1951 in France

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower leaned back in his big office chair and said he would put duty before all other considerations. He said he didn't aspire to be President of the United States. But if duty called, hmmm.

"And another thing," he added with much emphasis, "I'll not be dragged into politics to bail out some political party."

All of that was back in November, 1951, in a little town outside Paris where was the supreme headquarters of allied powers in Europe. General Dwight D. Eisenhower, U.S.A., commanding. Your correspondent visited him there seeking the answer to a question almost as hot as today's.

The general was neither a Republican nor a Democrat during that conversation. And when he used the word "politicians" it was with the inflection with which Sir Winston Churchill in wartime used to scorn and scorch the word. Nazi. The general had voted in 1950 in New York City. But a trusted Missouri friend had tipped him, in response to a puzzled inquiry, that he need not register as a political party member.

And so it stands on the 1950 registration records today, unless someone has altered it: Dwight D. Eisenhower, Independent. It was less than two months after that conversation at SHAPE, however, that the general publicly embraced the Republican faith. The occasion was in acknowledgment of the entry by friends of an Eisenhower star in New Hampshire's March, 1952, presidential primary.

The general then indicated that he would run for President if he heard "a clear cut call to political duty." He heard it clearly enough, and all of the foregoing is significant today in demonstration of the fact that the current public yammer about his plans and Mr. Eisenhower's own self-searching for a decision are not new to him. He's been through all of this before, although with the circumstances somewhat altered.

The effort to launch him in politics began before the 1948 presidential campaign. It was squelched then by the publication of a statement by General Eisenhower which will stand as the best argument ever against a professional soldier going into politics. But the Eisenhower boom would not subside for long.

It was sounded again in 1950 by Thomas E. Dewey, then seeking reelection as governor of New York. It was revived six more than a year ago when word passed that the President might not aspire to a second term. The second term, boom stilled momentarily after Mr. Eisenhower's September heart attack. Then it grew louder than ever.

Among those who steadfastly believed he would run were persons with long memories for the footnotes to history—such as the general's statement on Jan. 7, 1952, in announcing he would bear a duty call but "would not seek nomination to political office." He would accept, he would not run.

"Under no circumstances will I ask relief from this (SHAPE) assignment in order to seek nomination . . . and I shall not participate in the pre-convention activities," he said.

But the pressure was great and the enthusiasm shown for the general in a series of presidential primaries was terrific.

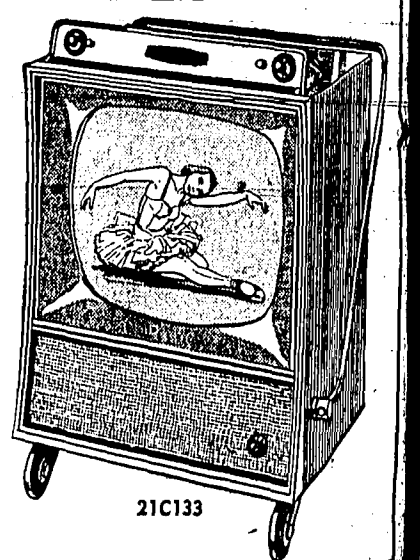

After 106,000 Minnesota primary write-in votes, the general indicated in March, 1952, he might come home to campaign. On April 2 he asked to be relieved and actually snuck his first political address at Abilene, Kans., the Eisenhower home town. Accusing the Truman administration of "graft and incompetence," he was off on his pre-convention campaign.

Mother Gives Opposition on Dam Building

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—A Crow Indian mother yesterday opposed construction of Yellowstone dam on Montana's Big Horn river, contending it would "increase juvenile delinquency and drunkenness" on the reservation.

The witness, Mrs. Eloise Pease, appeared before the senate interior committee at a hearing.

Her outright opposition to the dam was one of three positions heard by the committee in opposition to the five million dollar payment for land for the construction.

Fight Promised
Robert Yellowtail, a tribe member, said the tribe "would fight to the last" for payment of one million dollars a year for 50 years after which the dam would become Indian property.

He said the figure was based on bureau of reclamation estimates that the dam would have annual benefits at $5,788,000.

Senator Anderson, D., N. M., a committee member, described Yellowtail's proposal as "rainbow in the sky."

Other View Given
Another point of view was presented by Elmer Bennett and Ed Weinberg of the department of the interior. Although actual value of the acreage is estimated at around $50,000, they said, the department has offered the Crow tribe 1 1/2 million.

Both Bennett and Weinberg, however, described the department's position as "flexible." They testified that although the department instituted condemnation proceedings by this month to obtain the land, it still is willing to negotiate.

Slow Aging Process Forecast For People Hurtling in Space

BERKELEY, Calif., Feb. 29.—Men flashing through space at fantastic speeds may age more slowly than earthbound people but their hair may turn gray from cosmic ray bombardment. And they may not know which way is up.

Interplanetary ships may have to be rotated to produce a small amount of gravitational pull for the peace of mind and physical comfort of the people aboard.

These are some of the things which researchers in space medicine are talking about in a current symposium at the University of California.

The slow aging idea will be hard to prove or disprove unless there is an actual trial in space, said Dr. Nello Pace, University of California physiologist and director of the Whitney Mountain High Altitude Laboratory.

12,500 feet high in the California orientation depend on this property of nature.

The relativity theory has it that time slows for anything traveling at velocities approaching the speed of light, 186,000 miles per second.

At 161,000 miles per second an hour of space time is about two hours of earth time. For all scientists know, it may be several years at such speed might come back to earth and find that he had aged less than the people at home.

What to do about the loss of eyesight is another problem, Dr. Pace said. He, where she spent the winter with Mountain High Altitude Laboratory because two of the three series of relatives. She also visited in Iowa.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON — Two groups of racial extremists are jeopardizing American interests at home and abroad by their bold and almost unprecedented interference with the Eisenhower administration's solution of grave national and international problems. Their behavior has been the topic of serious discussion in cabinet and congressional circles, although haphazardly "blatant-box" consideration prevents needed ventilation of the situation.

The two groups are the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the overzealous advocates of all-out administration support of Israel in its recurrent conflicts with the Arab states. Besides stirring domestic discontent, unrest and hard feeling, they have caused a dangerous decline in American prestige and influence overseas, even among our allies.

FOOD FOR RED PROPAGANDISTS

Kremlin propagandists have seized upon the results of this interference to engender enmity and distrust of the United States, according to diplomatic advisers to Washington. The agency reports, now under congressional investigation, that "Russian-applauded" the cables and the mails with detailed and gaudy reports of these episodes.

The foreign press in friendly lands has highlighted the Auerhahn J. Lucy case at the University of Alabama. Having no racial problems themselves, they conclude that Eisenhower-Dulles professions of sympathy for downtrodden peoples behind the Iron Curtain is so much hogwash.

A Danish university has invited Miss Lucy to apply for admission. In short, the favored reaction abroad to the Supreme Court's decision has been supplied by the Moscow-fostered belief that the U. S. government practices discrimination against helpless citizens. Nobody reports that more than 2,000 Negroes have been admitted to colleges throughout Dixie.

AGITATORS BUSY

The NAACP's well-paid lawyers and agitators helped to inspire Miss Lucy's attempt to enter the university at Tuscaloosa. It was behind the Negroes' transportation boycott in Montgomery, Ala., which resulted in 115 indictments of the promoters.

It finances and provokes suits against cities, states, school districts, recreation authorities, railroads. It now proposes to bring action against what it calls "recalcitrant" southern states. Most of its lawyers and field agents are from the North.

Constitutional lawyers point out that NAACP's case is in complete disregard of the Supreme Court's ruling on racial integration procedure. That ruling, known as "Brown vs. Board of Education," is unevenly depending on local conditions and sentiment. For this reason alone, it fixed no time limit referring the problem to federal district courts for regional handling.

Finally, the NAACP's rash and provocative conduct has been condemned by such good friends of the Negro race as Adlai E. Stevenson and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

VIOLENT PROTESTS HURT U. S.

Likewise, the Zionists' violent protests against shipment of 18 tanks to Saudi Arabia has placed us in an extremely bad light. It has precipitated charges that the administration's foreign policy is a wishy-washy, on-again-off-again thing of poor repute.

The facts are distorted. It is not pointed out sufficiently that the tanks were forwarded under a 1951 agreement, made by Harry S. Truman, that permitted us to build a huge air base at Dhahran in Saudi Arabia. Not only is this the western allies' nearest airfield to vital Russian factories and oil fields, it is our principal defense of Anglo-American petroleum concessions without which we could not win a global war. This oil is Moscow's most prized objective.

ACCIDENTAL CONNECTION

It is only accidental that the controversial shipment coincided with current Israeli-Arab tension in the Middle East. Nevertheless, extreme Zionists picketed the docks, forcing the temporary embargo that placed the Eisenhower administration in a ridiculous position.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, Brooklyn Democrat, intimated that "oil interests" had reached the selling. Other Zionist spokesmen protested in undiplomatic terms. In language that might furnish justification for recall, Ambassador Abba Edan made heated and indiscreet charges against the administration.

So far, even though the two groups have tremendous political power in the great cities and electorally influential states, President Eisenhower has resisted their importunities with rare courage. He has been praised generally for placing the nation's welfare above thought of votes in November.

VIEW OF OTHERS

The great importance of adequate parking space to the stability, and perhaps even the survival, of downtown areas of large cities is well documented in an Automotive Safety Foundation study called "What Parking Means to Business."

Home interview surveys of women shoppers were conducted in three cities. They revealed parking difficulties to be the chief disadvantage cited for downtown shopping. Next came overcrowding, third traffic congestion. The National Retail Dry Goods Association reports that parking problems in more than 200 cities on urgent problems confronting downtown. Parking was cited in 81 per cent of the cases, with congestion (inseparable from the parking problem) cited in 78 per cent.

While parking and congestion are serious handicaps for downtown. It should be emphasized that they need not be crippling. "For the long pull," says the report, "downtown prospects are by no means as somber as they have been painted."

For instance, the same shoppers who pointed to the parking, crowd and traffic handicaps of downtown recognized that downtown has distinct advantages in a better selection of goods, the fact several errands can be done in one trip, and lower prices.

Many retail cities have made the most of these advantages by bold attacks on the parking and congestion problem. The cases of Oakland, Allentown, Pa., Ann Arbor, Mich., and Garden City, N. Y., were cited among others. Particular stress was placed on the story of Quincy, Mass. A municipal parking program which provided more than 1,200 metered off-street spaces sent retail sales soaring from 37 million dollars in 1940 to 114 million in 1954, with a sharp increase in trade coming from outside Quincy in the highly competitive Boston area.

The parking progress not only paid off in more Quincy sales and employment, but in large expenditures for store modernization and increases of up to 90 per cent in property valuations and assessments. The same increase in valuation, sales and employment is cited for city after city where civic effort has made parking adequate and convenient.

While Salt Lake City may not be able to match the achievements of Quincy and some other cities in dealing with the downtown parking and congestion problem, we are doing pretty well. Better utilization of curb parking space thanks to improved meter maid policing, and some major off-street parking developments in recent years, are moves in the right direction.

Preliminary reports on the $25,000 parking study made last summer as a joint project under the direction of Robert Kent, Utah traffic engineer, bear this out. That study showed an average turnover of 19 cars every eight hours in metered curb space. This includes many two-hour stalls and over-parking as well as vehicles using stalls for shorter periods. It also showed a total of 11,857 off-street spaces in lots and garages, a very substantial increase since the end of the war.

Out of this wealth of factual data as to our present parking facilities, their use, and the demand, will come information of the utmost value. It will help city planners, merchants, property owners and investors to take the kind of intelligent action which will assure not only the survival of downtown Salt Lake City, but its greater progress and prosperity.

This is the motor age. A man and his automobile are not soot parted. As a result, alert business and professional men have discovered that parking is as essential to customers and clients as a front door. For until the motorist has stored his automobile, he cannot become client or customer.—Salt Lake Tribune.

POT SHOTS

THEY LIKE GEORGE
 Dear Potale:
 Seems to me Hilbernatin Harry should wake up to the fact that the school strike at school the other day was in due course. George could have been the father of Yugoslavia (sic) for all the recognition the Idaho schools gave him. Either Idaho should secede from the union or try to be more patriotic next year. It was no revolt against the school faculty or board. We just like George and enjoyed singing "Happy Birthday" to him!

THEY MIGRATE

Pot Shots:
 Robins, since ages past, do migrate every spring and fall. Those which raised their young in the north and points farther north come this far and stay all winter. They are seen through the winter in most of southern Idaho. No doubt many are seen in Utah.

The robins which were here last summer left in the fall for Texas and other southern states. They should be back about the third week of March. Information concerning migration is found in the book, "Birds of America," edited by T. Gilbert Pearson, former president of the National Association of Audubon Societies.

In later years much has been learned of the migration of birds through the efforts of bird students who yearly watch for them in migration and nesting seasons.

These bird watchers work for the U. S. biological survey by trapping and banding the different bird species. The bander must have an official trap, a license and official bands and abbreviations, "Notch Biol. Surv." and the serial number on the outside and "Wash. D. C." on the inside. The date of banding, purpose of the band, locality and identification of the bird, with the name of the bander, is forwarded to the survey.

Whenever the bird is retaken, the bander sends that date, the number and locality of the find. Since systematic banding has been functioning, many surprises have been recorded.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

In the early phases of the new deal the medicine-men of the cult compounded a potion of boss-fix powder, buchu, branch-water and Maryland corn and, with jets of smoke spurting from their hairy ears, threw our people into a state. They said, in effect, that whoever had any money should spend it. It made no difference what whoever bought.

The big economic idea, an innovation which tortured the souls of all traditional and Biblical Americans, was that thrift was selfish and, carried to its logical extreme, would ruin a country which even then had some life-like aspects of devastation, especially along the Pennsylvania between New York and Washington where hundreds of idle men were huddling in hollow-eyed old factories and squatting over tired fires warming cans of Mulligan.

The old hobo jungles of the west had been mere hearsay for many years and anyway these people were not 'bos by the cut of their jib, but workers when they could get it to do.

That was a hard, hard time did not have to resort to spelling blocks to get across their message. If people who had money did not send it into action these ceaseless-looking characters and many others in all directions might fix them up a club and take it.

That, of course, would have been contrary to law but the cops had flinched in some sample disorders rather than lock up or shoot hungry men and cold and the next development might be revolution.

We were counseled, conjured, exhorted to practice extravagance so that a retailer would be emboldened to order new stock and put a clerk back on the payroll and the jobber and manufacturer would rub their hands and exclaim, "Ah! At last the 'rainbow' and snip the clutch of commerce into gear again.

Many Americans did send it in, too. Less glib individuals sat back and reflected that, just the same, if they should spend it all up they would be no better off than the busted guys whom they were admonished to relieve. Just they be looted by force and violence in that case, they too would be members of the rabble in good standing and so immune from its robust attentions but afflicted with the same want and woe.

The ultimate cure for this acute distemper was gifts of printing-press money by the government to individuals, especially farmers, war inflation, war again and then the two postwar booms: to renew the supply of things and stuff that people could not buy when they were loaded with inflationary wages during those wars, especially Roosevelt's.

Now we find our situation exactly the opposite and exactly the same.

We are in the throes of the greatest prosperity, the most lavish industrial and economic boom in all history but in danger of going to smash any minute unless we continue to spend our money. If we play cagey, saving our surplus, now that we have got the new car, the sales will slacken and the back-up will reach the factories and mines and prosperity will have done us in by loading us with every little thing our hearts desire.

Last summer, the British began to twitch and squirm because they were too happy. This is a weird phenomenon I assure you, considering how callow and grubby the soul of an English toiler with well-being.

He regards as a sampling of regal splendor a week-end or a fortnight at the seashore among strangers in a crowded boarding house with one w.c. to a floor and no bath because, after all, there's the sea, you see. He can close his eyes and tremble with sensual rapture over a pint of bitter beer and a kipper in billposter's paste, and he will settle for a motorized roller-skate to strand him on his serpentine highways with fumes of a million other cans like his own.

But he thought he was having a wonderful time and he certainly was spending millions and millions of quid less and less worthy for the first time since the industrial boom preliminary to World War II. He had bought or signed up for millions of little houses and flats which built-in squalor which is the true genius of English housing and he had borrowed far into his future.

Suddenly realizing all this, his masters in the exchequer said it would have to stop. This prosperity was a terrible menace because they were spending money they ought to be saving for hard times.

So, to bring the bewildered Britons up sharp, the exchequer said let there be hard times now with reduced spending and therefore reduced production. This reduced pay-rolls and curtailed employment which is the same thing as increased unemployment. Some of the pundits actually said England was suffering from over-employment.

At the General Motors luncheon in the Waldorf a few weeks ago, Alfred Sloan said one customer had complained that when he drove into his garage, his new car was so wide he couldn't open the doors to get it out. Then, backing out to open the doors, he looked back and saw that it wasn't all in.

"But," Mr. Sloan said, "if he had planned his house from the standpoint of the number of inhabitants he might soon be up against the same thing with rooms."

"Size is as much a satisfaction as any other thing when you buy a new car. The policy of the industry is to upgrade our customers, make them reach for something better. It is up to them to find the money to pay for it."

And so my message to mankind today is: Relax. It may be later than you think but time is fixed by law and we can always turn back the clock.

Is That So!

by Eugene Burns
 Mice Are Good Housekeepers

Many forest creatures are fastidious housekeepers and a letter which arrived this week from W. G. J. Buffalo, Wyo., via the Billings (Mont.) Gazette, presents a good observation of how clean some mice are.

(This letter, incidentally, won him the weekly award of the 30-volume set of the Encyclopedia Americana.)

Being a photographer, W. G. J. built himself a small dark room in his mountain cabin and to Eugene Burns make it both lightproof and mouse-proof, lined floor, ceiling, door and sides of the cubicle with sheet iron. Before snow fell, he put into it his provisions on shelves, locked the door and took leave for the winter.

"In spring," he says, "I opened the dark room and found that mice had entered the room. Unfortunately there was a tiny slit between door and floor—it was so extremely narrow that I had dismissed it, never dreaming that a mouse however tiny could have slipped in. But they did. However, none of the food on the shelves had been touched—after all, a mouse cannot climb vertical sheet iron.

"But on the sheet iron floor I actually said England was suffering from over-employment.

At the General Motors luncheon in the Waldorf a few weeks ago, Alfred Sloan said one customer had complained that when he drove into his garage, his new car was so wide he couldn't open the doors to get it out. Then, backing out to open the doors, he looked back and saw that it wasn't all in.

"But," Mr. Sloan said, "if he had planned his house from the standpoint of the number of inhabitants he might soon be up against the same thing with rooms."

"Size is as much a satisfaction as any other thing when you buy a new car. The policy of the industry is to upgrade our customers, make them reach for something better. It is up to them to find the money to pay for it."

And so my message to mankind today is: Relax. It may be later than you think but time is fixed by law and we can always turn back the clock.

Then I examined the third floor and had to revise all my previous mistaken notions about mice. This was just one room, like the second floor, but this one was the toilet, there was nothing else in it but mouse-spoor. Like the others, it had a small entrance but it had no toilet for the entire winter.

"Needless to say I had never heard of such a mouse habit before, nor had I ever read of it. Perhaps in one of your pieces you could discuss this question of animal house-keeping more fully. Or include it one of your fact vs. fallacy columns." (Copyright, 1956, by Eugene Burns)

HUDSON'S

LOBBY INVESTIGATIONS

There could hardly be a tougher assignment in an election year than membership on the projected bipartisan senate committee to look into lobbying, campaign contributions and all improper pressure applied against senators.

Lawmakers running for reelection and confronted with the problem of mounting campaign expenses can have no great enthusiasm for an inquiry now into the campaign fund issue. But if it should lead to effective revision of today's unrealistic laws governing contributions, they should welcome it.

By the same token, though a study of lobbying and other pressures may cause immediate discomfiture in some quarters, legislators ought in time to be happier if long-range benefits follow in the shape of lighter and more comprehensive lobbying laws.

To produce such a favorable outcome demands, of course, a committee lineup not only devoted to seeking out the whole truth but determined to translate its discoveries into solid legislative achievement.

Anything less than this may do more harm than good. For it may create the illusion that a thorough job has been done when it has not, and thus throw the American public off a track they have a right to travel to the very end.

Lobbying is a legitimate activity recognized by law. Individuals and organizations have a perfect right to present their point of view in the halls of congress and elsewhere in the councils of government.

But, on the other side, the people have a right to know the nature and extent of this activity, and who is involved. Present laws give them inadequate protection on this score. Lawmakers, whether at the local, state or national level, are the representatives of all the people. It is not right that laws should be drafted and adopted as result of lobbying influences partly or wholly unknown to the public.

Nor, obviously, could it ever be right that legislation is approved or killed because lobbyists hand lawmakers money or other favors, or threaten their defeat at the polls. The lobbyist's fair presentation of his views surely stops short of such excesses.

When money pressure takes the subtle form of campaign contributions, the difficulty becomes more complex. Until we get a system of public support for campaign effort, we will be relying on private contributions from individuals and corporations.

With no substitute method in use, we cannot complain of this so long as contributions are made with no strings attached. But there may be often a fine line between contributions in expectation of political favors, and those made as part of a firm deal to deliver a vote. The system is weak. The way to abuse is open and easily traveled.

The entire lobbying structure and the campaign financing setup badly need modernization and improvement to align them with the realities in 1956. Every American must hope the projected bipartisan investigation spawns these constructive results.

REDS EYEING BRITAIN

One needs only to read the comment which accompanied Britain's new defense budget proposals to realize that there are plenty of hard-heads among the British who know Russia hasn't lost sight for an instant of its goal of global conquest.

Yet it is also true that there are many in Britain who remember perhaps too fondly the wartime days of the alliance with Russia. They cannot quite bring themselves to believe that all cannot be "right" again if only the West will try a little harder to find the basis for an East-West settlement.

Soviet Premier Bulganin and Red Party Boss Khrushchev have many things in mind in making their scheduled visit to Britain this spring. But not the least is to strike once more this responsive chord, to convince many Britons that Russia really is to be trusted as a friend in spite of all.

We in America hope Britain's hard-heads can keep the Bulganin-Khrushchev visit in perspective by reminding their countrymen that all Soviet enterprises around the globe do not quite fit the "good will" classification.

HEAVY EMPLOYMENT

The tenth anniversary of the full employment act of 1946 is now being celebrated. Unemployment—now just under three million—is still regarded as too high. But the freudible minimum for unemployment due to job changes and seasonal layoffs is now put at around 2 per cent of the labor force. With 60 million in the labor force, unemployment should be under 1.5 million.

There are too many depressed areas of chronic underemployment, and their problems have not been solved.

Future technological unemployment from automation is probably the biggest unsolved problem.

But with 63 million U. S. workers now on the job relatively full employment has arrived.

The income tax is a matter of addition, subtraction, division and hating to write a check.

Priest, Police Coax Lad, 17, From Suicide

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 29 (AP)—A young man bent on suicide spent a lonely hour and 15 minutes atop a cable of the San Francisco Bay bridge early today, then walked off and fell into the arms of a priest and police officer who coaxed him down.

In a gloomy, drizzling rain, police and the priest carried the youth, identified as George James Bentley, Tacoma, Wash., to a squad car. He was taken immediately to San Francisco hospital for observation.

Cable Is Slippery
Bentley, about 17, walked up the slippery, 29-inch cable at 11:30 p.m. (PST) his only support on the cable 300 feet above the water was two light cables strung as hand lines. A passerby, Harvey McCall, Berkeley, made a grab for the youth, but was furiously shaken off.

McCall stopped the Rev. H. J. Ward of St. Albert's college, then phoned the police.

Talk Patiently
California highway patrol officer Luke Morley, who along with Father Ward convinced Bentley he shouldn't jump into the bay, stood in the rain talking patiently for more than an hour to the youth.

Wearing a brown jacket and grey pants, Bentley slowly started to walk down, then he stopped, and looked over toward the water as if he planned to jump.

"Come on down, Joe," Morley called repeatedly. "We'll go have a drink. We'll go to the Top of the Mark, and have a party."

"Go away," Bentley shouted down through the rain. "I'm not coming down. I'm going to jump and you can't stop me."

Adds Question
Then, as an afterthought, he added: "Can I have a Jaguar?"

"Sure you can have a Jaguar," Morley shouted back. "You can have anything you want. But come down. What would your mother think if she saw you up there making a fool of yourself?"

Slowly, cautiously, Bentley walked down the slippery cable, stopping about every 40 feet to look at the mob of newspapermen and police officers below.

Shout Encouragement
Father Ward and Morley walked along below him shouting encouragement.

When the youth reached a point just six feet above the main deck of the bridge, he stopped and talked softly to Father Ward.

Then, as though his strength suddenly left him, Bentley collapsed and fell into the arms of the priest and Morley.

Incentive Plan On Wool Fails In First Year

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—The administration's new wool incentive program failed to encourage increased production of wool the first year of its operation. The agriculture department reported yesterday that production of shorn wool in 1955 totaled 233,370,000 pounds or 2,437,000 pounds less than in 1954.

The department said that prices growers received for shorn wool of the 1955 crop averaged 44 cents a pound on sales made between last April and January. This compared with 52 cents a year earlier under the old program. The incentive level is 62 cents.

17-Day Revolt In Brazil Gets To Fire Stage

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Feb. 29—Brazil's 17-day pocket revolt got to the shooting stage yesterday.

Government troops killed one rebel and captured nine in a patrol action at Sao Luis on the Tapajos river 160 miles south of the Amazon.

At the same time the newspaper Ultima Hora said the rebel leader, Air Force Major Haroldo Veloso, had warned the government not to bomb his base.

The newspaper said Veloso had broadcast he was holding 11 enlisted air force men and a sergeant as prisoners and they were likely to be killed by a bomb. He declared the prisoners were staked out at various points on the air strip, the paper said.

Gustavo Silveira, a reporter of the Rio de Janeiro newspaper O Globo who accompanied the 30-man government patrol, said it engaged a 12-man rebel squad led by an aide of Veloso's named Cazuza.

Pastor Wants To Have Sun Tie Calendar

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 20—A Presbyterian minister here would like to see today's sun-tie calendar for 40 years. This would be the easiest way, he says, to let the sun catch up with our wayward calendar, which is running just a little too fast.

If we would abolish Feb. 29 until the year 2000 A. D. the sun and the calendar would be back in step.

Such a scheme is being advocated in scientific circles by the Rev. George Warren Walker, who is minister of Walden Presbyterian church and a student of the calendar on the side.

Every astronomer knows that our calendar is imperfect. It was set up by Julius Caesar 2,000 years ago and revised somewhat by Pope Gregory XIII in the year 1582. The pope had to drop 10 days out of the calendar to get it back in line with the astronomical year.

"There is a natural point astronomically when the year should begin," says Rev. Walker, a former president of the Buffalo Astronomical society. "Right now we need to make another adjustment of 10 days to get our calendar to begin actually at the time of the winter solstice—the shortest day of the year."

Indulgences Noted
"To put it simply, we have been indulging ourselves with too many leap years. The sun can't keep up with us. We can get back in step with the seasonal year if we just omit all leap years for the next 40 years."

Rev. Walker believes if the United Nations accepted his plan it would not stir up resistance anywhere. Other proposals for calendar reform have made little headway in the U. S. or elsewhere. Most of the objections are made on religious grounds. "But leap year," says Rev. Walker, "fortunately has no ingrained relationship to any religious habit."

Farmer of Year Will Be Chosen

POTLATCH, Feb. 29 (P)—Idaho's "young farmer of the year" will be announced at a banquet at Princeton Saturday night. Gary Morris, chairman of the competition, said today.

Morris said the three finalists for the honor are Thayne Onieling, BIRKBECK; Joseph Nishioka, Idaho Falls; and Willard Paskett, Bl. Anthony.

The contest is sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce with the state winner receiving an expenses paid trip to Pittsburgh, Pa. where a national young farmer of the year is selected. The candidates are chosen from among farmers in the 21-35 age group on the basis of excellence in farming practices, improvement of their farms and participation in community activities.

Boom for Most

1910 1920 1930 1940 1950
Farmers have not shared the boom prosperity of recent years. As chart shows, generally, when national income has gone up, farm income rose with it. But this "rule" was broken along about 1949 when national income started its steady zoom. As it did, farm income dropped sharply, has been dropping ever since except for the slight rise during Korean war. (NEA)

England Denies Soviet Tradings

LONDON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Britain denied today it was shipping copper and industrial machinery to communist countries in violation of the strategic goods embargo.

A foreign office statement contained the denial. It was issued as official records showed British exports of rubber and copper to the Soviet Union had soared to unprecedented heights this year.

The foreign office statement came in reply to American criticism of British policy in the East-West strategic trade field.

The announcement said that British exports to communist countries "have been carried out strictly in accordance with the internationally-agreed control list."

Plan Made to Airdrop Base At South Pole

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 29 (AP)—A U. S. 18th air force survey party of seven men is back from the Antarctic with plans to airdrop an entire scientific base at the South pole.

The base will consist of 484 tons of materials for buildings, radio towers, scientific equipment and supplies to sustain scientists at the polar station through January, 1959, for studies connected with the international geophysical year.

The region around the South Pole is a depression "like a saucer" some 200 feet deep and 15 to 20 miles wide, reported one of the men, First Lieut. Ernest Schmidt, Syracuse, N. Y.

Schmidt is the first air force man to fly over both poles, but he "couldn't see a thing" at the South Pole, he said, because of a "white-out" in the atmosphere, whose crystals shroud the horizon and deprive aviators their sense of direction and balance.

Schmidt said his plane tracked the contour of the ground by radar and that the pole is some 9,000 feet above sea level.

GOP Senator Thinks Party Chance Good

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Sen. Andrew F. Schoepel refused today to concede that the odds are against the Republicans in the 1956 contest for control of the senate.

"We've got our trouble spots," he said, "but they (the Democrats) have theirs, too."

The Kansas Republican was elected to head the senate Republican campaign committee for its drive this year to regain control of the senate.

Many Republicans have been gloomy about the outlook because most of the 17 GOP senate seats at stake this year are in doubtful states. Most of the 16 Democratic seats at stake are in the South or normally Democratic border states.

Schoepel told a reporter that he disagrees with pessimistic appraisals of Republican prospects. Speaking before President Eisenhower's news conference today, he said that he believed the President would run again and "that's going to be helpful" to GOP senatorial candidates.

Man Obtains U. S. Liquor; Not for Long

DENVER, Feb. 29 (P)—Ernest Hagler must be the first man in history to buy moonshine from the United States government. It cost him 15 cents a gallon.

The government took it all back yesterday—1,700 gallons of 190 proof grain alcohol. The alcohol tax division branch in Denver figured Hagler could have it cut with water and had 4,000 gallons of bootleg liquor, worth at least $10 a gallon on the black market.

But, Hagler protested, all he intended to do with it was thin paint. He bought the stuff, for 15 cents a gallon, from the army support center at St. Louis, Mo., last December for his war surplus store in Denver.

Hagler said it was sitting around the back of his store in drums, waiting to be mixed into paint, when a friend who once ran a liquor store warned him up. Hagler immediately called in the revenue men.

A chemical analysis was ordered, and when the laboratory reported the paint thinner was 190 proof, the alcohol tax division seized the whole lot.

Hagler, under the law, owed a tax of $16.50 on every gallon.

Noted U.S. "Red" Plans Russ Visit

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Feb. 29 (P)—Russia soon may be visited by one of the United States' top "reds."

Comedian Red Skelton said he had been invited to visit Russia by the Soviet government. Skelton said he would go if the Russians permit him to take his entire troupe. His answer was relayed to the Soviets through the U. S. state department.

"They're brave people, inviting me into their country," Skelton said. "If I go, it'll never be the same. But I'd gladly make the trip. If I can take over an entire show, that would be much more effective than just one comedian."

Move Is Under Way to Give Spending Power to U.S. Male

By HAL BOYLE
 NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP)—Who should control the spending of the family income—husband or wife? It is generally believed that women boss the spending of about 85 per cent of the expenditures in the American home.

A revolutionary new organization—"The Brotherhood of the True Man"—has been formed by publicist Carl Ruoff to challenge this figure and spread the doctrine that the American male is and ought to be master of his own paycheck. Operating under the slogan, "Never Underestimate the Power of a Man," the organization cites a magazine survey to make the following claims:

control over spending, Ruoff continues: "What man would admit that he lets his wife decide what books to read, what airline to fly, what lawn mower to guide?"

"Do you want your 1957 automobile to be painted 'licked pink' to match madam's new lipstick, or do you want one in which you can stretch out to your natural length?"

"Will you drink your whisky out of a bottle or from the makings of next year's lamp?"

Ruoff has invited me to join in his fight for "male freedom." He has also invited such other distinguished exponents of masculinity as Humphrey Bogart, Bob Conditine, Robert Ruark, Toots Shor, Ernest Hemingway, Errol Flynn and Papa Dione.

I don't know how they feel about it, but in me they picked the wrong fellow. This is one revolution I'm going to sit out.

It isn't true that I'm against subverting womanhood. But "The Brotherhood of the True Man" is going about it in exactly the wrong way.

You don't weaken women by trying to take money away from them. That only makes 'em stronger and more determined. The true way to cross up women is to hand the control of money over to them—and make them feel responsible for spending it.

A man doesn't get ulcers from earning money, which can be fun, but from figuring out what to do with it after he gets it. If he turns this problem over to his wife, maybe she'll get the ulcers instead of him.

Traditionally, it is the warrior's duty to bring home the bacon. But it's the wife's job to cut-it-up-into chunks, and pass the chunks around.

Any sensible husband ought to be content merely to lug home a satisfactory paycheck, and turn most of it over to his wife. Let the little woman then worry about how to pay it out.

As she gets wrinkles and writer's cramp struggling over the family paycheck, he is left free to indulge in such purely masculine joys as scratching himself, and reading the sports page.

Dead Engineer Is Blamed for Train Smashup; 13 Are Killed

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Feb. 29 (AP)—Investigators said today a railroad engineer who died with 12 others in the wreckage of two Boston and Maine commuter trains was responsible for the smashup.

Sixty persons were injured when the silver Budd Highliner smashed into the rear of a nine-car diesel passenger train in a blinding snowstorm.

A B and M Investigating board said the Budd Highliner engineer, Ernest Tourtelotte, 55, Winchester, raced his train past two signal lights and a frantically waving flagman moments before crashing into the halted diesel.

They termed it a "human failure." The aluminum-sheathed Highliner's first car split apart, the twisted metal shrieking under the impact as it up-ended two rear coaches. The two trains were jammed with about 1,000 passengers.

Bodies were strewn on both sides of the tracks. A few were trapped in the wreckage. Tourtelotte's mangled body was found alongside the fireman, Raymond F. Jones, 28, Lynn, Mass.

Officials, who called it the worst wreck in 38 years in New England, said the engineer had violated a railroad operating rule in running past the signal lights. Both were operating, a spokesman said, but were obscured by the blinding snow.

Both trains were on the B and M's main line which passes through this small north shore town, 12 miles from Boston. The wreck occurred about a quarter of a mile north of the Swampscott station.

A dual investigation was ordered immediately by members of the interstate commerce commission and the Massachusetts department of public utilities. The date was tentatively set for March 6.

Dazed and bleeding passengers were helped into nearby homes and LONDON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Charles Ibilster, 67, who sailed off on a round-the-world cruise in 1915 arrived home yesterday.

He liked his stopover in New Zealand so much he'd been there ever since.

He spent 10 months in New Zealand and 10 months in Australia before returning to his home in London.

He had a very good time, he said, and he would like to go back again.

Power Rates Hike Okayed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—G. Aandahl, assistant secretary of the interior, said today that a proposed boost in southwestern power administration rates is "fair and equitable" to users.

The average retail price for REA consumers is about 40 mills per kilowatt hour. The new rates, he said, would mean an increase of about 2.5 mills.

The proposed increases would result from a new formula for allocating the cost of multi-purpose dams. The formula boosts cost allocated to power.

Aandahl said the requirement that power users pay their "fair share" should make it easier "in the long run" to get new multi-purpose projects.

Columnist Envisions Nuptials Of Grace, Prince as "Event"

By HENRY McLEMORE

The Iowa State Fair with lovers—that's how the marriage of Grace Kelly to Prince Rainier seems to be shaping up, and I for one am happy about it. The general manager of the wedding has slipped the collar of his imagination and each day sees a new and inspired addition to the April festivities in Monaco.

The man Prince Rainier has placed in charge of the carnival is undoubtedly a genius with more than a touch of P. T.

Barnum and Florenz Ziegfeld in him. The show he has already lined up—and he has more than a month to go—proves that his interests range far and wide, like a bird dog at a field trial. Louis Armstrong's band; a corps de ballet; a football game between two American teams, and a stupendous array of tightrope walkers and trapeze artists.

I have it from my agent in Monaco that this is just the beginning. He claims there'll be a midway with ferris wheels, hoop pitching, guess-your-weight scales, salt water taffy counters, and a shooting gallery. The good ladies of Monte Carlo will be asked to quit playing the red and black for a while and to retreat to their kitchens and parlors to whip up cakes, pies, cookies, quilts, spreads, and sighans for judging. There'll be fireworks every night, with such spectaculars as Niagara Falls and the Last Days of Pompeii. There'll be dancing in the streets from dawn till dawn.

All this will provide a delightful change from the standard royal wedding, which is as stuffy as a day coach in midsummer. None of those somber, staid proceedings for Monaco! There'll be processions, but they'll be swinging, swaying, and strutting to Satchmo's "When the Saints Go Marching In" and "Muskrat Ramble."

The selection of a football game as part of the pre-nuptial gaiety was a stroke of pure genius, nothing less. In all the history of weddings, none has ever had a game of football as an integral part of it. The teams that will be playing have not been announced, but I imagine they have been notified of the honor and are already working on new and suitable plays for the game, such as "the honey-moon huddle" and "very fair catch." And in a game of this sort, there will be no penalty, I trust, for holding.

With the Kellys as Irish as they are, I would not be surprised if Notre Dame were one of the teams asked. It will be Monaco's first glimpse of American football, so Notre Dame would be a nice choice. It represents our football at its very best, and while all its players aren't named Murphy, Duffy or Callahan, all the boys conduct themselves as Irishmen when on the field.

I haven't heard whether or not the game will count in the 1956 national ratings, but I imagine it will. It would be a nice touch for a player to be able to say he earned All-American recognition at Grace Kelly's wedding.

The general manager of the wedding will be making a mistake if he does not invite the UCLA guard cheering section to be at the game. The Monaco folk would get a big kick out of seeing the students to their amazing tricks with the cards. They could form a big heart and then spell out "Prince Rainier Thinks Grace Is a Dear," and then, "Grace Thinks Monaco Is Simply Grand and Is Happy To Be the Number One Gal of the Land."

Miss Kelly wouldn't be a bad-looking cheerleader, either. Maybe that's what the general manager plans to do—have Miss Kelly, complete with pompons, lead the cheers during the game, and the Prince serve as drum major for the marching band between halves.

We're all crazy if we don't go to Monaco in April—even if we have to row over. It will be worth it!

Eden Official Plans Tour to Asian Region

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd took off today on a two-week peace-making tour of Asia and the Middle East, recently blanketed by the Russians with offerings of guns, butter and propaganda.

Lloyd's specific goal is Karachi, where a meeting of the "Asiatic pact" council opens Tuesday, but he plans to make half a dozen stops on the way there and back to confer with local leaders.

He hopes especially to smooth over relations between Britain and India, embittered by Russia's persistent wooing of nationalist Premier Jawaharlal Nehru.

An interview with the Indian premier printed today by the Manchester Guardian emphasized Nehru's opposition to the Southeast Asiatic Alliance and the Baghdad pact—the West's principal arrangements for the defense of Asia and the Middle East.

Lloyd said just before he boarded a special plane here that his only purpose is to try to preserve and extend peace. He said he has no intention of trying to match the Russians' offers of aid or their propaganda insults.

"I am not going to try to compete with the Russian leaders," the foreign secretary said. "I am not going to say anything unpleasant about Russia."

"The whole purpose of British foreign policy is peace... no other country has anything to fear from a British foreign secretary going abroad."

One major objective of Lloyd's trip will be a new effort to settle the eight-year-old feud between Israel and the Arab states. He has a compromise plan to offer, but it does not include any promise of increased arms for Israel.

National Guard Unit Adds Recruit

Willard C. Moore, seated, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Moore, route one, Twin Falls, completes the procedure for enlisting in the Idaho national guard with the assistance of CWO Chris C. T.F. National Guard Unit Hits Full Strength With Enlistment

With the enlistment of Willard C. Moore, a senior at Filer high school, headquarters company, third battalion of the 116th armored cavalry, Idaho national guard, again is at full strength, reports CWO Chris C. Fearheller.

This company had a full complement from May, 1955, to Feb. 14, 1956. On Feb. 14 the third battalion was authorized to increase its total forces or enroll in a military school, Fearheller says.

Advancements are rapid in the third, which won the Harris trophy for the outstanding armored unit in the state last year. Fearheller notes several men who joined as privates during the past year have risen to the rank of second lieutenants.

He pointed out these men are fulfilling their military obligations while living and working in their own communities.

Club Tax Cut Has Approval By Committee

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—A proposed reduction in the tax on night-clubbing has been tentatively approved by a house ways and means subcommittee, it was learned today.

Informants said the subcommittee by a split vote yesterday approved cutting the 20 per cent cabaret tax to 10 per cent. The tax is levied on food and drink consumed at places where entertainment or dancing is provided.

The secret action was taken as the subcommittee worked on legislation calling for numerous revisions in the excise tax law. Announcement of all tentative decisions was withheld pending final subcommittee action on the legislation.

The proposed cut in the cabaret tax would result in a loss of an estimated 20 million dollars a year in revenue. It faces tough-slogging in the full house ways and means committee, if included in the subcommittee's final report.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Alme J. Forand, D. R. I., was set up to study and recommend changes in excise tax law.

In addition to the cabaret tax reduction, informants said the subcommittee tentatively approved new excise taxes of 10 per cent on electronic transistors, and five per cent on gas-operated garbage disposal units.

Hotel owners and musicians have sought outright repeal of the cabaret tax. They contend it has caused unemployment among musicians and entertainers by forcing hotel dining rooms to stop offering entertainment to patrons.

Wedding to Delay Cannes' Festivals

PARIS, Feb. 22 (AP)—The Cannes film festival was postponed today on account of rain.

The wedding of Prince Rainier III of Monaco and American film star Grace Kelly April 18-19 in Monaco clashed with the original film festival dates of April 10-24.

The festival is held practically next door to Monaco in Cannes and its sponsors feared the wedding would drain off all the tourists.

The organizing committee met here today and decided the film festival now would be held April 23-May 10.

Help Wanted

KUMAMOTO, Japan, Feb. 22 (AP)—A motor company advertised today for new employees with these qualifications: Pimples, round face, broad fingernails and a liking for tepid tea and lukewarm baths.

Company officials said a survey revealed that a round, generously-fleshed face—guarantees a reliable character; pimples on the forehead indicate health and a cheerful disposition; broad nails and a liking for lukewarm tea and baths reflect generosity, diligence, endurance and broad-mindedness.

Hospital Tackles Nurse Problems

BALTIMORE, Feb. 22 (AP)—Armed with federal money and a unique plan of action, Baltimore's Sinai hospital will square off tomorrow with a nationwide problem—the shortage of nurses.

The U. S. public health service has agreed to gamble $35,190 that Sinai's battle plan will prove the solution to the shortage. The hospital's experimental program is the first of its kind to be backed by the federal agency's funds.

Facing up to what is expected to be a continuing shortage, Sinai's plan is to get the available nurses out of the linen closets and dietary kitchens and into the rooms with the patients.

Briefly, the scheme is this: To train "floor managers" who will relieve the nurse of her ever-increasing administrative duties so that she may devote almost full time to patient care.

Pravda Avers Dulles' Mind Being 'Upset'

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Moscow radio said today that Russian economic and political successes are upsetting the mental balance of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Moscow radio broadcast a boastful account in the communist newspaper Pravda on the recent Communist party congress at the Kremlin in Moscow.

"Dulles tried without success in his recent speeches to show that the policy of strength has led the congress to make radical changes in Soviet foreign policy and that the USSR was withdrawing under U. S. pressure," Pravda said.

"Soviet economic and political successes are clearly upsetting Dulles' mental balance."

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Feb. 22 (AP)—Alberto Zubiria will begin a one-year term as president of Uruguay tomorrow, replacing Luis Batlle Berres in the post.

Members of Uruguay's Congress federal council take turns acting as president of the country.

Care of Your Children

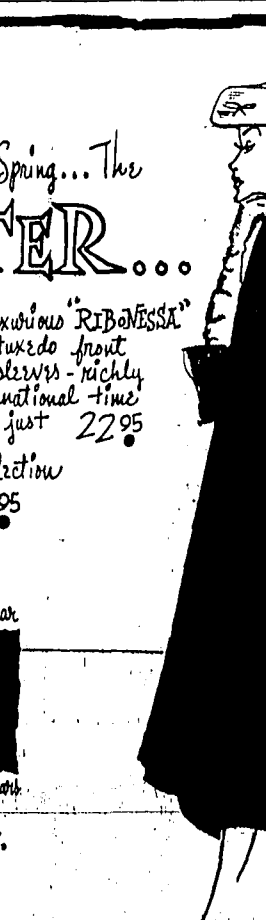

Poor vision in childhood can be very costly in terms of mental growth. Much of what we learn is learned through the eyes.

Such children need to be told just how much they need good vision and what poor eyesight will cost them in school and elsewhere.

They do close work for many hours, they study by artificial light, again for hours at night.

Many children for whom glasses have been described and furnished refuse to wear them.

Saying "don't" will not teach a child in obedience, but the proper training will.

Royal Named as Washington Coach By New Director

SEATTLE, Feb. 23 (AP)—University of Washington dipped into the deep south Tuesday and picked Darrell Royal, head coach at Mississippi State, to lead it out of the football wilderness. There were a few lifted eyebrows as George Briggs, in his first official action as Washington's athletic director, told a news conference he had signed Royal to a contract of "more than a year."

Sports FROM ALL ANGLES

Although only four of the 14 (possibly 15) class A tournament games were played at Buhl, spectators there saw as many thrillers as you'll ordinarily see during the whole season.

There was one game at Buhl which showed only a one-point difference between the competing teams. That was the Buhl-Burley battle Saturday night which the Indians won 46-45. There were a pair of two-point victories, Flier's 57-55 conquest of Oakley Saturday and Buhl's 48-46 triumph over Flier Tuesday.

The only winning margin that could possibly be called comfortable was Oakley's 50-43 victory over Burley Tuesday.

But you won't find many coaches who feel that seven points make a comfortable margin.

The tournament teams unbeaten after the second round have to be conceded a psychological edge. The pressure is really on a team if it loses a game in the early rounds of a double elimination tournament. There can be no slip-ups for a club if it wants to go all the way after losing an early game.

A team surviving the opening rounds, while it can't exactly afford to lose a game—no team ever can, at least knows that dropping a contest doesn't mean complete disaster.

In the class B tournament the winning club went all the way without a defeat, and a fine job those Glens Ferry Pilots did.

Coach Gordon Brown has a ball club that will make 'em sit up and take notice in the state playoffs. The Pilots have the ability to come from behind and win the close ones. Coach Murray Satterfield, whose Wendell Trojans were almost, but not quite, the peers of the Pilots in the tournament, calls the Glens Ferry quintet "great." We think he's right and we hope the Pilots go all the way in the state meet.

One of the best-matched boxing cards you could hope to see was staged by the Twin Falls Elks Lodge Monday night. Magic Valley has a number of excellent young scrappers who should do well in AAU and Golden Gloves competition during the next few years.

The Ft. Duchesne, Utah, Indian lads who appeared on the card are a bunch of hard hitters, but most of them did not display the fine condition shown by the local boxers. The kids from Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding and Mustang who appeared in the ring Monday were a real credit to themselves and their trainers. The bouts Monday night made us want to see those boys in action again soon.

Conservation Groups Trying To Block Dams

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—A spokesman for conservation groups said Tuesday they will try to block proposed dams on the Clearwater and Salmon rivers in Idaho.

Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson, chairman of the Citizens Committee on Natural Resources, said proposed dams in the Snake river tributaries "would wipe out important fish spawning grounds, inundate many thousands of acres of forest lands and destroy some of the country's finest elk and deer herds."

Gabrielson's statement said federal engineers have "well advanced" plans for the Bruce Eddy dam. Gabrielson said, conservationists "will need to act swiftly to block" it in the present session of congress.

"We are not concerned with the battle between public and power interests," Gabrielson said. "But it is apparent that reduction in reservoir capacity at the Hells canyon site is forcing power and water interests to advocate high dams on the Clearwater river, where a disastrous effect on fish and wildlife resources of national importance will needlessly result."

ROSTER COMPLETE
WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP)—Pitcher Lou Kretlow, the Kansas City A's last holdout, signed his contract Monday.

No-Coat, So Rookie Pitcher Misses Meals With Senators

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP)—It didn't figure when the Washington Senators discovered no meal checks for dinners were being signed by their rookie hurler, Garland Shifflett.

So club secretary Howie Fox did a little investigating concerning the 20-year-old youngster whose fast ball has brought a gleam into manager Charlie Dressen's eye.

The Senators are domiciled at a ritz hotel, where jackets are a must after 5 p.m. and in the dining room at all times. The food around the club is superb but no Shifflett. Fox quickly found the youngster, who had an 11-5 record and a .30 earned-run average with Erie, Pa., last year, was eating in restaurants and lunch rooms with holdouts part of his bill of fare.

Packsack Found After Three Years

BOISE, Feb. 23—Jim James of Fruitland told the state fish and game department Tuesday he found a packsack last October while hunting in the mountains near Pine.

The pack was traced through big-game tags to Arnold M. Larsen of Mountain Home, who lost it in 1952 when it fell off his packhorse.

The clothes and ammunition were reported in good condition despite more than three years exposure to wind, rain and snow.

Ford Defeats Danny McKay In Mat Match

Bob Ford kept his Twin Falls wrestling record clean Tuesday night by topping "Darling Danny" McKay in a short but rough match at Radio Rodeo.

McKay took the first fall in 11:16 with a knee lift and body press, but Ford came back in 50 seconds with a surf board hold to even the score. Ford then pinned McKay in the deciding fall with a body press in 5:10.

The other two matches on the card sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars were draws. In the semi-windup, Hardy Kruskamp and Don Moore went the full 45 minutes without a fall and Doug Donovan and Mike Mazurki worked for 20 minutes without a fall in the special event.

Wildlife in Idaho Having Easy Winter

BOISE, Feb. 23 (AP)—Idaho's big game animals have had a relatively easy time of it this winter, reports to the state fish and game department.

Director Ross Leonard said Monday that department personnel will get together at four regional meetings in mid-April to compare notes leading to the establishment of big game seasons.

This data, dealing with big game populations and wintering conditions, will form the basis of recommendations to be presented to the fish and game commission when it meets in Boise April 25 to set the seasons.

Leonard said routine field reports indicated that mild weather which followed last November's cold spell allowed animals to return to the hills, instead of concentrating in lowland areas where there would be danger of overgrazing.

Considerable green vegetation appeared during this period, also, he said, with a result that little emergency feeding was necessary. Extreme concentrations of animals occurred only in a few places, Leonard added.

Washington Deer Herds Hit by Winter

SEATTLE, Feb. 23 (AP)—From 40 to 50 thousand deer will die in five central Washington counties this year from the effects of the bitter winter cold and snow.

John A. Biggs, state director of game, makes the estimate and says the loss is a certainty in spite of the department's all-out efforts to save the deer.

The total is around half the 80 to 90 thousand killed by hunters in the entire state in the record season of 1955. It is far greater than the kill by hunters in any year prior to 1948, when the state began permitting limited shooting of does as well as antlered bucks.

Pushed down from the hills by the snow, the deer browse on the fruit tree twigs. Worried orchardists, knowing their trees were hard hit also by winter damage and mice, "have in the most part been extremely tolerant and helpful," says the director.

One orchardist has killed 111 deer, says Biggs, under the state law which permits the protection of property against marauding wildlife. But generally there has been very little of such killing, the director reports.

"The deer have had no place to go," he continues. "There was 50 inches of snow near the town of Twisp, for example. Only the tops of the fruit trees were showing. We fed as many deer as we can and hope they will pull through."

Princeton basketball coach Franklin (Cappy) Cappon, is putting in his 18th season as Tiger mentor.

Santee Works Out

Wes Santee, America's fastest miller suspended for life by the AAU over his expense accounts, continues to work out—this time at Philadelphia's Franklin field—as he hopes the AAU "will see the light." The Marine lieutenant says he plans to continue workouts while fighting the ban. (AP wirephoto)

Major League Teams Number Few Holdouts

The annual holdout season, which starts simultaneously with spring training Thursday, could end even before it begins.

A survey by The Associated Press showed five major league teams with all the hired hands already in line Tuesday. The only club faced with a serious problem in fact, is the American league champion New York Yankees. All told, only 30 major leaguers are unsigned.

The Bronx Bombers still must bring four of their top pitchers, one outfielder and one infielder into the fold. Whitey Ford, Bob Grim, Tom Morgan and Jim Konstanty of the mound corps, all-around fly-chaser Irv Noren and ex-GI Billy Martin are unhappy.

Ford, the ace of the staff, wants $30,000. He has been offered $25,000, an increase of $5,000 over his salary last year.

Grim and Konstanty are particularly bitter. Each has been asked to take a cut. Grim said in St. Petersburg that he had given Bill DeWitt, who negotiates the Yank contracts, a "hello" and nothing more.

"Facts and logic cut no ice with that guy," complained Konstanty. "I'm through making appointments. When and if they need a reliever, they know where they can reach me."

Kansas City and Chicago of the American league and New York, St. Louis and Cincinnati of the National league report their players 100 per cent signed.

The Milwaukee Braves still have not brought Ray Crone, George Crowe, Jack Dittmer, Wes Covington, Andy Pafko and Humberto Robinson into line.

The only problems, however, seem to be Crone and Dittmer. The former has been offered a raise "but not as much as I think I deserve," while Dittmer hasn't been in touch with the club recently and the talk is that he wants to be traded.

Pafko has been asked to take a cut and Robinson, en route from Panama, is bringing his signed contract with him.

The Philadelphia Phillies have five players yet to sign—pitchers Bob Miller, Curt Simmons and Ron Miznakal, shortstop Roy Smallard and catcher Gus Niarhos. But a club spokesman said "no problems are expected."

Reigel Scoring Mark Passes 1,000

MONROE, La., Feb. 23 (AP)—Bill Reigel, the nation's leading minor college basketball scorer, tossed in 53 points Monday night to boost his season total over the 1,000-point mark.

Reigel and his McNeese State teammates defeated Northeast (La.) State 91-76 in a Gulf States conference game.

The regular ended McNeese State's contest in the team's 29 games, Reigel scored 1,001 points, an average of 34.5 a game.

AAU Releases Full Report On Santee Case
NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (AP)—The Amateur Athletic union released a full 40-page report Tuesday on suspended miller Wes Santee, which declared that he was paid "in excess of $1,000" for his wife alone to attend seven track meets in which he competed last year.

The report was that of a special seven-man committee headed by Pinus Sober of New York looking into alleged excessive expenses paid to the Kansas athlete who was the top U. S. mile hope for the 1956 Olympics.

Details on the AAU charges were made public Feb. 19 when the AAU executive committee by a 14-1 vote accepted the special committee report and found that "Mr. Santee had rendered himself ineligible for further competition as an amateur."

Daniel J. Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the AAU, handed out copies of the report without comment at a luncheon of the Metropolitan Track Writers association.

At the Feb. 19 executive committee meeting it was brought out that in 1955 Santee was paid about $1,500 above the allotted expenses permitted during the year. This apparently doesn't include that paid to his wife.

Fullmer Calls Off Scheduled Ring Battle

WEST JORDAN, Utah, Feb. 23 (AP)—The Gene (Cyclone) Fullmer—LaBua fight scheduled for March 7 in Syracuse, N. Y., was called off Tuesday.

Marv Jensen, Fullmer's manager, said he notified Norman Rothstein, Syracuse promoter, and Billy Brown, matchmaker for the Intermountain Boxing club in New York, that Fullmer is ill and will not be able to fight.

In Syracuse, Rothstein had announced he had signed John L. Sullivan of Preston, England, to replace Fullmer. Sullivan is a former British middleweight champion.

Jensen said Fullmer has had flu—a recurrence of an ailment that has bothered him previously.

He added he still has made no decision concerning an offer of $25,000 for a fourth fight with Gil Green in Philadelphia next month because of the possibility of signing Gene Tiger Jones fight in March.

Jensen expects the Chicago fight with the winner of the Humbert-Green may lead to a shot at the middleweight title.

Two Aces Scored In 9-Hole Round

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Feb. 23 (AP)—Al Bacchi didn't come close to a birdie but—

Teeling off on the fourth hole at the William Land park golf course Sunday, Bacchi sliced his shot into a tree. Down came a squirrel, conked in the head by Bacchi's ball.

Two Aces scored in a 9-hole round.

DALLAS, Feb. 23 (AP)—Earl Stewart, Oak Cliff Country club pro, Tuesday made two hole-in-one's in a single nine-hole round.

Stewart holed out his tee shot on the 115-yard No. 3 and the 100-yard No. 7 on his home course. He was playing in a foursome.

Dons Lengthen Lead as Other Teams Falter

By The Associated Press

Led by the University of San Francisco, apparently heading for an unbeaten season, about a dozen of the teams listed in the first 20 in the weekly Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters figure to wind up in either the National Collegiate or National Invitation basketball tournaments.

Several others have outside chances to make the grade.

San Francisco, ranked first for the 12th consecutive week, merely has to go through the formality of clinching the California Basketball association title before starting defense of its NCAA crown. The Dons polled 68 of a possible 115 first place votes this week and a point total of 1,018 on the usual 10-9-8 etc. basis. Their bulge over runner-up Illinois, beaten last week for the second time this season, is bigger than ever.

Hunter Safety Training Course Attended by 40 Persons in T. F.

A National Rifle association hunter safety course designed to train instructors to conduct classes in careful handling of firearms was held Tuesday for approximately 40 Magic Valley residents and members of the state fish and game department. Classes were conducted at Idaho Power company auditorium by state fish and game personnel, NRA experts and members of Twin Falls Rifle and Pistol club.

The all-day classes were of a series which began in Boise Monday. The course will be repeated in Pocatello Wednesday.

Once an instructor has been certified by the NRA, on the basis of experience and a written examination, he may begin conducting classes in safe gun handling. Commissioner Ray J. Holmes, Twin Falls, representing the fourth district of the state fish and game department, welcomed the candidates and instructors to the meeting.

Following registration and introduction by E. Klies Brown, chief of the information and education division, the classes got under way.

The morning session was devoted to talks by Stanley Mate, NRA instructor, and Brown on history of firearms safety training, the hunter safety program and plans for the program in Idaho.

Marshall Edson, Boise, and Leonard Titmus, Twin Falls, discussed laws concerning firearms in Idaho and types of guns and ammunition. Guns for instruction purposes as well as various types of hunting clothing were provided by Bob Geer's West Five Points service station.

Following a break for lunch, classes were resumed at 1 p.m. with a hunter safety film. At 1:30 p.m. Ted Bladdeau, assistant federal coordinator for the fish and game department, demonstrated proper gun handling. He used and demonstrated every type of gun including 22 rifles, shotguns, high-powered rifles and an 1886 rolling block 7 millimeter rifle.

Preliminary instructions in prone, kneeling and standing positions were explained by Clyde Rosa, Twin Falls, State Patrolman M. J. Bays, Jr., demonstrated safe handling of handguns and gave a talk on gun safety

Single Males Are Fined in 4-Year Event

AURORA, Ill., Feb. 29 (AP)—The leap year over Aurora on leap year today and levied fines on single males found guilty of being single. Aurora's he man mayor Paul Egan refused to step out of the picture. He insisted that he is running the leap year day observance and the all-female committee in charge. Under the Egan-appointed slate, Aurora's single girls turned out in force to trap the town bachelors. The battle between the sexes started last night, when 128 censored bachelors gave themselves up for "police magistrate" Barbara Hill in city hall.

Fines Paid
They paid fines totalling $282. Each will be appropriately donated to the heart fund to combat heart disease.

A force of 20 "copperettes" set out to anare the rest of Aurora's men. Mayor Reinhart, a 29-year-old honey blonde, authorized "copperettes" to arrest all the bachelors they can lay their hands on and haul them off to jail. The bachelors will stay behind bars until they pay for being single.

Plans Made
Aurora has been celebrating leap day since 1923, but Egan proposes to make this year's observance to remember. First he had the arrangement committee, he was disappointed it didn't live up to his hopes. Then he ordered a parade through town, a dinner, and a beauty contest. The parade will be led by Chicago beauty contest winner and television stars will appear at the dinner, Egan promised.

The leap year battle was a slight change of pace for Egan who makes a habit of getting into colorful affairs. He took a whirl at international affairs last week, suggesting Soviet leaders that 200 American mayors tour Russia. The city council demanded that Egan quit making the proposal, but the mayor replied nothing doing. At any rate, Egan was immune from arrest today. He's married and has five children.

Low Rate of Pay Reason to Leave

BLACKFOOT, Feb. 29 (AP)—Dr. James O. Cromwell, who has resigned as head of State Hospital, said today low pay of psychiatrists in Idaho is the main reason he quit. He leaves his $9,300-a-year job April 1 to become head of the Iowa State Mental Health Institute at Independence, Ia., at an annual salary of $15,000. Cromwell said his own salary isn't the main issue but he regretted being able to pay only $7,200 annually plus maintenance to psychiatrists on his staff. However, in Boise, L. J. Peterson, health director, said three psychiatrists at the hospital are getting more than $7,200. He said one receives $9,800, another $9,200 and the third $7,800.

Church Pastor Is Chamber Speaker

BUHL, Feb. 29—The Rev. Woodrow Clay, pastor of the Assembly of God Church, spoke at the Chamber of Commerce meeting Monday. He said his church will be host to the convention of the Idaho district, Assembly of God convention, on March 28 to 29. Robert A. Erkins, district chairman of the economical development committee, said an effort is being made to direct tourist travel in Idaho. He suggested educating operators of service stations in directing tourists to points of interest in their areas and to hire students to greet tourists at ports of entry to tell them of scenic attractions. John Barker explained the 33-mill tax levy to be voted on Wednesday for Buhl schools.

Seven Judges Oppose Court Picture Rules

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 29 (AP)—All seven judges of the U. S. court of appeals here went on record yesterday as opposing photographing or broadcasting of court trials. Chief Judge William Denman issued a resolution by the seven judges which said "we strongly approve Canon 35" of the American Bar Association which holds judicial proceedings should not be photographed or broadcast. The canon was overridden in an order by the Colorado supreme court Monday. The appeals judges' resolution made these points: A photograph shows but a single moment in the appearance of the

Dog's Graduation Is Held too Late

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 (AP)—An 8-month-old Kerry Blue dog named Patty Finnegan was graduated yesterday after a two-month kennel course in burglar detection and capture. Taken home by his mistress, Patty Finnegan looked in and found it was too late even to bark. The place had been burgled of $3,000 worth of jewelry. Judge, jurors, witnesses and attorneys, and "cannot give to the newspaper reader the knowledge of their continuing conduct." Knowledge that they may be photographed at any time "is likely to distract everyone in court and make them 'consciously or subconsciously' pose 'for how they may appear in the next morning's newspapers'."

Studies Made On Successes In Businesses

CHICAGO, Feb. 29 (AP)—It still helps to be the boss' son, but not much is it did 25 years ago. This is shown in a study by two University of Chicago sociologists, W. Lloyd Warner and James C. Abegglen, who published their findings recently in two volumes. A fourth of the nation's top executives are the sons either of the owners of large businesses or of major business executives, their figures showed. But only one-eighth are the grandsons of the business elite. In general, the study disproves the common belief that American business is becoming stratified, and decreasing.

Law Extended

ANKARA, Turkey, Feb. 29 (AP)—The Turkish parliament voted today to extend martial law in Istanbul to June 7. The restrictions were imposed for six months immediately after the anti-Greek riots last September. RETURNING TO U. S. RUPERT, Feb. 29—Spec. J. c David Gouge, husband of Mrs. Leona Gouge, Rupert, is scheduled to return to this country from Germany. That the only way to get ahead is to marry the boss' daughter. According to popular notions, 50 years ago America was a land of opportunity in which the Horatio Alger and rags-to-riches yarns were really. But Warner and Abegglen found that opportunity is increasing, not business is becoming stratified, and decreasing.

Water Users Set Meeting

GHOSHONE, Feb. 29—The annual meeting of water users of Big and Little Wood rivers will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at the Lincoln county courthouse. At that time a watermaster will be elected and the budget for the year will be set. The advisory board will meet that morning at the office of Maus Coffin, watermaster. Coffin has held the position for 20 years and will be up for reelection Monday.
