Information Given On Tumors, Types

Stuart Hart, assistant professor of pathology at the University of California, San Francisco, reported today at a meeting of the American Cancer Society that the most common type of tumor of the thyroid gland is the thyroid adenoma, a type of benign tumor.

Stuart said recent studies indicated that carcinomas, adenomas and benign lymphomas may originate in the thyroid gland in the presence of Hashimoto's disease, a type of thyroiditis.

Stuart said Hashimoto's disease is a disease of the thyroid gland, characterized by a prevalence in women.

The scientist said that 300 patients with the disease, 35 of the glands had carcinomas and 39 had benign lymphomas. He suggested that these may have been caused by the disease of the Hashimoto growth of the thyroid gland.

Theory Offered For Differences

BERKELEY, Calif., (AP) — A University of California economist may have come up with the reason San Francisco wholesale prices for pork products are higher than those in Los Angeles. The two cities are approximately the same distance from Midwest's central-pork-shipping centers.

The economist is James H. Hasler, recent author of "Transportation Rates and Other Pricing Factors Affecting 40,000 Retail Goods Industries," a bulletin first published by the California Agricultural Experiment station.

Hasler wrote that prices quoted in Los Angeles may be covered in Chicago and San Francisco reports. It is also possible that the Los Angeles market is considered by some as the "dramatic economy" outlet in attempting to practice geographic price discrimination, according to Hasler.

The world's newest long-range airliner, a Pan American World Airways Super-7 (Douglas DC-7C) is seen in training flight over San Francisco preparing to go into trans-Pacific service today. With a range of 3,000 miles the plane of the airlines could fly from Japan to the U. S. non-stop and from Pacific coast cities to London over the trans-pacific route with only one fueling stop. TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG POT SHOTS

WASHINGTON—Hells canyon may be precisely what the Democrats need for the 1936 presidential election.

The final and conclusive defeat of the liberal Democrats by the federal power legislation is the center of controversy at the current session of congress, with the possible exception of the revenue bill. The senate's action is to prevent passage of a civil rights bill.

POLITICAL IMPLICATIONS—Here are a few of the political implications of the government ownership and operation program in the Hells canyon bill.

It robs the Democrats of their charge that the Eisenhower administration has embarked on a giveaway spree of national resources. Had it not been for the federal dam on the Idaho-Oregon border would have passed, and two other Democrats—Holland of Florida and DeLoach of California—would have been elected.

It stifles a complete repudiation of National Chairman Paul M. Butler, who had demanded passage of the bill without a vote on the Hells canyon. It means that he will be dropped at the Chicago convention for his inability to deliver. The senate also demands the wisdom of the Truman-Harris-Williams faction.

Two Democratic senators may have been placed in a predicament by the Hells canyon decision. Lehman of New York, or anybody who runs in his place, Lehman has indicated that he might resign.

HOWLS FROM TRUMAN-HARRISON BLOC—The Hells canyon result has far reaching repercussions. It means that the Hells canyon bill is not a federal dam on the Niagara river for the same fate, even though it is a pet project of Thomas E. Dewey.

The senate action has provoked howls from the Truman-Harrison bloc and Americans for reform. It means that the Hells canyon bill is not a federal dam on the Niagara river for the same fate, even though it is a pet project of Thomas E. Dewey.

DEMOCRATS UP HELLS CANYON—The indictment of course, is laid to anyone who knows the Hells canyon bill. It is a bill to give the federal government a monopoly on the Hells canyon.

Every Democrat in the south, including several conservative, voted for public power. Even 10 Democrats from the South went along with the Hells canyon bill.

It is a bill to give the federal government a monopoly on the Hells canyon. It is a bill to give the federal government a monopoly on the Hells canyon.

VIEWERS OF OTHERS—The younger generation may not realize what has happened. But to historians, the news that the "greatest show on earth" has called off its summer tour in mid-July is a real shock.

HEARD END OF A DREAM—The brutal, bruising battle of Hells canyon dam came to an abrupt and yesterday in the U. S. senate. The senate's decision obviously will be a great help for Southern Democrats.

GERMANY HELPS

Frequent complaints are heard that the free world assists the United States with too much of the burden of lifting economic levels in underdeveloped areas around the globe. Such critics should be pleased at the news that West Germany is beginning to assume some load.

Generals indicate that the Krupp steel industry sent engineers to Indonesia to study industrial development. American officials are not opposed to the effort, but are encouraging the firm in a program to help other regions similarly.

Krupp and another German Ruhr Valley company, Demag, already are building a 160 million dollar steel mill at Caltiro, in India. The mill is to be used for erecting a new city to house 100,000 people—the plant workers and their families. It will take 10 years.

Krupp also is busy right now developing a 75 million dollar steel mill for Pakistan, a 20 million dollar harbor modernization project for Bangkok, Thailand, a four million dollar bridge over the Nile at Caltiro, a 10 million dollar hydro-electric job in Greece, and mineral exploitations in both Greece and Pakistan.

The Indian steel project, the world bank is footing 25 per cent of the cost. German interests another 25 per cent and the Indian government the rest.

In most of the Krupp's chief contribution is engineering skill. Naturally, this concern or any other German companies cannot alone finance huge economic developments. They do hope, of course, to benefit by gaining contracts for some development work.

These firms realize that Germany's remarkably revived heavy industry cannot expect to find adequate markets any longer in Western European countries already saturated with heavy goods.

That West German industry is in a position to move onto the global scene in this fashion is astonishing if we recall the status of its steel output at the close of World War II.

In 1945 the German steel industry had been stopped in its tracks by war damage. Five years later much of its steel capacity had been dismantled.

But a new drive for 1955 show that West Germany today leads Europe in iron and steel production, and is third in the world behind the United States and Russia. The 1956 total may top 25 million tons, a gain of almost four million over 1955.

A typical steel producer in the Ruhr, August Thyssen-Hütte A. G., has come back stronger after suffering a major dismantling. Under postwar Allied occupation this company was given a production ceiling of 100,000 tons a year, normal prewar capacity. But the Schuman plan for a unified European coal-steel community gave the company an enlarged role once more, and today it is contributing a healthy share of the steadily expanding German total.

Whatever gripes some Americans may have about other free nations not pulling their weight, they clearly don't apply to the West Germans in charge of heavy industry.

DEMOCRATIC OUTLOOK

With less than a month to convention time, prospects for the various Democratic presidential aspirants are largely unaltered. Adlai Stevenson is the favorite of most voters, and his principal challengers do not seem to be drawing measurably closer.

Only a relative handful of convention delegates remain to be chosen. Of the more than 270 already elected, more than 200 are either legally committed or openly declared for Stevenson. Most independent delegates survey indicate he will have at least another 100 votes on the first ballot, pulled from his own strength by delegates from New York.

His presently most hopeful rival, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, still is eagerly searching for the strategy which could prevent Stevenson from going over the top and gain build the governor toward nomination in his place. Thus far the quest has not been too promising.

A few more favorite sons have appeared on the horizon, but their total vote in combination with the established vote of Stevenson and Senator Keaferson does not look great enough to build Stevenson. More to the point, there is no visible sign today that any such combination is in the making, anyway.

A man to watch in the Democratic August convention decline is Sen. Alexander Wiley of Oregon. A favorite son but not a serious candidate, he could determine the outcome very quickly.

Johnson has wide influence in the south, and a good deal of the vote reserve exists. Should the senator decide to put his weight on Adlai's side at an early stage in the balloting, southern delegates still hanging back would most likely follow and the vote would be over.

Friends of Stevenson now are endeavoring to create a "winning" atmosphere of the sort that might encourage Johnson to do just that. Naturally, Harriman backers react to any suggestion of Stevenson's possible withdrawal from the top-Harriman struggle, predicted recently that his man would fall down the combination on the fifth ballot at Chicago.

That eventuality must be rated unlikely. If the Harriman forces do not somehow lose Johnson's drive for nomination, they will under extreme pressure to devise tactics in the convention itself to achieve that end.

Even the pickpockets take it easy now. Most of the people who walk all over the city with their big wallets are out of the big show-offs and fakers, the hoodlums and the gangsters. Let that just leaves more fresh air in the streets.

But now is the time for all good people to come to Manhattan to see the busy water scene. It is a friendly—friendly—in the good old days, every night in like Saturday night back home.

Air Guard Reserves Capture, Silence TV, Radio Stations in Surprise Raids

DES MOINES, Ia., July 26 (AP)—An air national guard sergeant and 50 companions took over Des Moines for 15 minutes late yesterday morning "out-of-the-air." They seized the city's radio and television stations and silenced them.

The sergeant, who had attended the weekly meeting last night, said the purpose of the "raid" was to silence the city prior to a simulated bomb attack. They carried dummy rifles and hand grenades with them.

Reserve officials indicated that disciplinary action would be taken against the group, who kept their names from officers.

led by M/SGT. Don E. Flato, members of the 29th rifle company look over the filter center of the ground observer corps, the civil defense headquarters, the telephone company offices and equipment, the water plant and an emergency unit of the air national guard.

In addition to these activities, marines raided KRNT-TV and radio-WHO-TV and radio, KXVI-TV and radio and KICIA radio stations in Des Moines. They also silenced WIO-TV and radio station in Ames, Iowa.

Broadcasting and telecasting was discontinued for a brief period of time. Flato said they failed to silence one remaining radio station in Des Moines, because the door was locked, and the men didn't want to cause any property damage.

immediate superior, said the operation was "the direct surprise to me just as it was to everyone else in the town. However, I'm pleased with the boys because I understand the operation was a complete success."

When asked if he would take any disciplinary action against the men, Bradley replied, "No. In fact I'll defend them against anyone who does pull a square-wheeler on them. However, he added, "you'd think they'd let the actipier in on something like this."

The men originally planned to seize the house of Ben Fowler, Iowa civil defense director, but were thwarted by his absence. Instead, they commandeered the home of Des Moines CD Director Phil Weaver.

Powder, on learning of the actions, angrily declared "we're going to trace this thing to the bottom and find out who's responsible."

After hearing that the men were carrying dummy rifles rather than real ones, Fowler assumed a less vehement attitude, saying, "something like this will let the public loose from complacency."

"I'm glad the operation was a complete success. He said he certainly hopes it shows the vulnerability of the city."

He said that the leaders of the group had checked with attorneys before the "operation" to determine whether they might get into trouble by shutting down the radio and television stations.

Christmas Card Gets Delivered

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 26 (AP)—A. C. Staudt, 72, San Antonio yesterday received a Christmas card and a thank-you-note from a girl he once knew—44 years after she had mailed it.

The card, lost all those years in the basement of the San Antonio postoffice, was delivered to Staudt 40 years after he was married to another girl.

Staudt said the girl who sent the card was named Elleneth and that she lived in Space, Ind. He was 28 when the card was sent.

"I've never heard anything more from her," Mrs. Staudt, 70, said.

Space, Ind., does not appear in the U. S. postal guide. It is presumed the town or postoffice disappeared with the years.

Innocent Plea Is Entered on Embezzlement

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 26 (AP)—Ex-sate Doctor Orville E. Hodge today pleaded innocent to 48 indictments charging him with embezzlement of $671,000 in state money.

Hodge sat silent and unsmiling through his arraignment in circuit court and rose only to nod his acquiescence when his attorney entered the innocent plea.

Judge Dewey E. Crow set Hodge's bond at $10,000, which was set by Nathan Sturm, a professional bondsman, and William C. Henry, Lake Springfield neighbor of Hodge.

Before the plea, State's Attorney George F. Parkinson said he thought Hodge was "covering up" for someone else in the investigation. He said he did not know who Hodge was "shielding" but that he expected "new names" to enter the case before long.

The indictments also charged Hodge with forgery, and operating a confidence game in the bank check case involving his office. They contained a total of 276 counts.

Ike-Favored Nuclear Bills May Be Lost

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—Administration-backed atomic power legislation may be lost in the Senate today, according to a report from a source in the Senate.

The bills still waiting action in both houses would insure of a $500 million dollar to private developers of atomic power to protect them against damage that might arise from an atomic accident.

Waite action The White House has let the bills passed before the expected adjournment of Congress at the end of the week.

House Republicans served notice they might try to force a vote on the insurance bill. But if the Democratic leadership doesn't want it called up, it can be dropped.

In the Senate, Chairman Clinton F. Anderson, D. N. M., of the joint committee on emergency conditions indicated the question of taking up the bills will be decided by the Senate registered strong doubts that they would be considered.

Rep. Carl T. Durham, D. N. C., ranking House member of the committee, said he would introduce the lower chamber version and until the Senate acts on a similar bill he would not be in making.

Anderson said on a television program last night that the House will not take up the bill to let the atomic power be in the hands of the federal government, he said.

Tourist Finds Attraction in Food of Countries, Explores

By HENRY McLEMORE

Right in on an uncharted foreign land (and most of us do) are the unname explorers of our day. There is in us the same spirit of daring that sent Columbus forth and prompted Livingstone to leave home and death.

We look at an unintelligible menu, knowing not where it will lead us, and without blinking an eye we anchor on our palates, and sail forth. During my first few days in Greece I ate some bizarre dishes, say the least, and not the least bizarre was kokorezi. When I saw it on the menu I pointed at it and, in my best Greek, said "I'll start with that."

I could see them working on it in the kitchen, the restaurant being out-of-doors—and it was quite a ritual. Several cooks had a hand in it and a brazer of live coals was involved. It was pretty good, and it was not until later that I found out that I had enjoyed a specialty consisting of what tenipis, a Greek delicacy made of carefully washed and then stuffed with kidney and liver and all sorts of seasonings. I trust it will help my backhand and overhead smash.

For a while I ate many things that looked like the names of fruits and vegetables. I don't know what they were made of, but I had a sweetheart of a dish that had Siam. Oh, in it somewhere, and in honor of Mary's sorority I had something the name of which vaguely reminded me of Alpha Phi.

But after a few meals and quite a few experiments, the dishes fell into place, and I could order reasonably close to what I wanted, soon became quite a fan of dolmades, which is the rather familiar chopped meat and rice, rolled in vine leaves, and served usually with mayonnaise. I am now approaching the point where I know which Greek vine leaves have the best taste. I am also a strong omelette man, which is succulent and perfectly seasoned chopped beef and veal. The Greeks can do more things with a rabbit than Blackstone could with a pepper. You can have it stuffed into peppers, squash, eggplant, or swimming underwater in tomato sauce.

The fish is sweet, but not quite as good as in Madrid. The Greeks eat a lot of squid, but here it is white, its "ink" not being used as in Mexico. I never thought I'd become a connoisseur of squid, but I must say that I prefer it to any other.

Greek sweets are more than that—they are awe-inspiring. After they use all the sugar that the law allows, the Greeks like to saturate their pastries in honey. They'd be all right for a man who didn't mind carrying around an ice-pick to punch new holes in his belt.

Greece has a variety of fine wines, but for some reason that will remain a mystery to most foreigners, the favorite with Greeks is "retina," a white wine prepared with raisins on the wagon, and so I haven't tasted it this trip, but I remember it from an earlier visit, and I suggest you leave it alone when you visit Greece—unless, that is, you enjoy vintage furniture polish. It tastes like turpentine, but does not have turpentine's fine bouquet.

Tito Remains On Center for Political Role

By United Press
President Tito of Yugoslavia is building up a record for himself in the history of his diplomatic and political roles.

As a communist, Tito visited Russia, Bulgaria and Communist Party, Chief Nikita S. Khrushchev in Moscow last month. As a neutral, he conferred in Yugoslavia last week with Prime Minister Nehru of India and President General Masarik of Czechoslovakia. As a member of the Balkan alliance—originally aimed against Russia—Tito is now visiting King Paul and Queen Frederika of Greece on the island of Corfu.

Mr. Masarik then completed the patching up of his long, savage quarrel with the Kremlin which resulted from the late Josef Stalin's attempt to ruin him. He agreed to re-establish cooperation between the Russian and Yugoslav Communist parties. But Tito made it plain that he has no intention of putting himself again in the Russian line of communist countries.

In his conference with Nehru and Masarik, Tito slipped into the role of neutralist. The three leaders agreed in a declaration of the "unity of the world into powerful blocs of nations." They called for an end to the "policy of divide and conquer" and for an agreement to end their use.

Tito is present with the king and queen of Greece in the most interesting of the three meetings.

Of course, Tito is against everything that royalists stand for. In addition, only a few years ago Greece was a slave state and he was at the point of war. Tito openly supported the communist side in the Greek civil war. He permitted the Greek Reds to send their agents to Greece or more children whom guerrillas had kidnapped from their homes.

But all that is over. Tito is in Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey are allied in the Balkan bloc.

Wife and Farmer

Farmer's wife is the farmer. Mrs. George Wedel and children, George Wedel, Jr., James and William.

Difficult Decision for Couple Turns Wife Into Top Farmer

DEWITT, Mich. (U.P.)—In the eyes of 1934, George and Gladys Wedel made the most difficult decision of their lives. What they decided turned Mrs. Wedel into a top-notch farmer.

Both had been brought up on farms. Although Wedel had a full-time job in a DeWitt factory, they also had been making a success of a 30-acre farm since 1922.

At the end of his workday, when other farmers were putting their tractors away for the day, Wedel was getting his out of the shop to plow or cultivate the corn. Someday they hoped to have the farm built up to 100 acres. Wedel could quit his factory job and be a full-time farmer.

It was a small operation, but it had promise. A Cat tractor and two wheel tractors made it possible to do 30 acres of corn, 15 acres of oats, 25 acres of hay each year. They had 24 head of Polled Shorthorns and 15 Hagerman chickens.

More important, their three sons, George, Jr.; Billy, and Jimmy,

Lamb Placed As Best Buy; Fowl Is Good

By The Associated Press
Leg of lamb and a mixed green salad, or fried chicken and salad may be served in a good many American homes this week-end.

Lamb is down as much as 10 cents a pound in some areas, and frying chickens are four to eight cents cheaper—in many places. It is no surprise then, that both will be widely featured.

As for the wild, lettuce in several varieties—Boston, romaine and iceberg—continue to be an outstanding buy in the nation's produce markets.

Salad Items Down
The items which the housewife usually puts into a mixed green salad—celery, radishes, cucumbers, celery and others—also are variously rated as outstanding or good buys by produce men.

Potatoes, a traditional hot weather favorite, will still be a fairly expensive item, however. Potato prices stayed high in some areas this week.

Beefsteak and pork are two to six cents higher in scattered areas, and eggs continue to show higher prices in many areas.

Other outstanding buys for the housewife at the vegetable counter will be beets, squash, cabbage and beans, white carrots and corn. As yet, a little high in most areas.

Peaches and cherries are in a similar category, while lemons, blueberries and unacidulated watermelons look like the best buys at the fruit counters.

Out of 153 major air force bases, 27 are located in Texas.

Slated to Speak
WENDELL, July 26—The Rev. Chad Bolek, Rolo, will speak at the Presbyterian-Baptist church, Sunday as a candidate for the vacancy existing in the church.

The Rev. William Fredrick, Jerome, will deliver the sermon Aug. 5. The Rev. Mr. Perdue will moderate the congregational meeting to be held following the service.

Crashing Plane Harms Building
A new class of training planes. An air force jet trainer plane when two airmen bailed out, crashed into a two-story apartment building last night.

There were no fatalities as the plane crashed off the roof of the building and burst into flames, leaving only two walls of the structure standing.

Paper Bound Book Publishers Seek Answers to Two Riddles

NEW YORK, July 26 (U.P.)—Publishers of paper bound books are scratching their heads for the answers to a couple of puzzling riddles: How to make books as popular and easy to buy as paperback books and what brand of reading the public prefers.

The answer to these questions may decide whether paper bound books go on with their bonanza or turn into a bust.

The only thing consistent about the history of paper bound book publishers of the past (before 1933) is that they all went bankrupt, said Freeman Lewis, executive vice president of Pocket Books, Inc.

He concluded that the paper bound book industry which was revived 18 years ago had a better chance to survive than any previous ventures.

There are plenty of bright spots in the paper book publishing field and almost as many jet black ones. The bright spots include spectacular sellers such as Dr. Benjamin Spock's book on baby and child care. It sold only 50,000 copies in

Revivals Due For Plays of Witty Author

LONDON, July 26 (U.P.)—Theaters where George Bernard Shaw won his greatest fame are paying tribute to the acid-tongued playwright with a series of revivals of his best works.

The revivals are in honor of the 100th anniversary of his birth today. The familiar influence "G.B.S." appears frequently in bright lights on London's theater marquees for the centennial, which occurs just six years after Shaw's death.

But Shaw's own favorite spot, his lonely home, was ignored in the observance. It was said recently to meet chief public relations executive Christopher Casserley by the national trust after an attempt to make it into a national monument failed for lack of contributions.

The new owner of his old home, "Shaw's Corner," is taking no other part in the centennial celebration. He differs from Shaw in practically every respect. Where Shaw was a socialist, Casserley is a "conservative crusader" who smokes tobacco, hater, teetotaler, vegetarian and socialist. Casserley smokes, drinks, eats meat and is a practicing Catholic.

Shaw's old Victorian mansion was sold in Casserley's aid for an amount for 250,000 pounds ($700,000) to turn it into a literary shrine brought in only 40 pounds ($125) in 11 months.

Pole Seeking New Arms in Western Bid

WESTPHALIA, Germany, July 26 (AP)—A Polish refugee who fled to the West in search of a new belt of arms and today that western physicians are unable to accomplish what Communist doctors said was impossible.

Twenty-year-old Marian Szymanski fled to West Germany after the war and the communists. He told his story to his Polish countrymen in their newly settled homeland.

At Radio Free Europe yesterday, Szymanski told the Warsaw-based news agency that he was in the West since 1944. He was 16 years old when a set of hands carried them through German lines to resistance headquarters.

Polish partisan fighters dragged a wounded boy to an underground hideout in the basement of a church. Szymanski's mangled arms were amputated when blood clots developed.

Communist doctors fitted him with a pair of crude metal limbs, which he still uses. Later he was sent to a hospital in Poznan, Poland, where Soviet hospital physicians asked a Soviet doctor to help. But the Soviet doctor replied that his case was hopeless.

The Polish doctors filed an application for Szymanski to go to West Germany. Privately, one of them hoped that his only hope for the future would be at the naval research center in Oakland, Calif., at the Los Alamos Veterans hospital.

In East Berlin surgeons performed a series of painful operations and finally announced they could not help Szymanski with new artificial arms. The young man turned his back on communism last month and slipped across the border to the American zone of West Berlin.

The projects cannot be built, however, until Congress appropriates the money to pay for them. In some instances this probably won't be done for years.

Cantaloupes Are Given Out Gratis

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 26 (AP)—A farmer who wouldn't sell a truckload of cantaloupes at the market price of 25 cents a bushel gave them away.

Norman F. Saterfield left the Birmingham Farmers market yesterday when the price of cantaloupes dropped from 50 cents to 25 cents a bushel. He parked his truck downtown and passed out the cantaloupes to passersby.

"I believe in selling things, but selling them for two bits a bushel just wouldn't be selling," he said.

Saterfield estimates he gave away about 250 cantaloupes in 20 minutes.

1956's Polio Rate Is Running Low

WASHINGTON, July 26 (AP)—The public health service announced today that the 1956 polio rate is running lower than in any other year since 1947.

It said the 3,000 new cases reported so far this year fall considerably short of the 3,458 reported during the same period of 1955. Only in the low year of 1947 were there fewer cases—1,371.

But for some unexplained reason the paralytic rate this year is running nearly as high as last year. The big reduction has come in non-paralytic cases.

But he may not see. It is better to say, "I know, but the answer was a span of time for fulfillment. We will see. It is too early now to say."

Mother, you said we were to go with her next Saturday. She and her mother are going shopping in the Walden Can 101.

Mother says "Yes." Now, Saturday is three days off. There seems to be no way for the child to stay in her place? That happens. Daughter, feeling secure in the present, is on the trip. The disappointment is hard to take, although daughter sees the necessity for it.

Dad prepares for a day's fishing and his son asks, "Can I go? Dad?"

"No, today. The car is in the next time you can go."

But the next time happens to be even more of an impossibility. What then? The boy loses faith in his father's word, although father meant what he said at the time.

Altogether, one must take time before answering any request a child may make. Parents' word should be the child's main support. He relies on it and acts on it. Once he knows, in that word, he is false and insecure. Even a brief or a yes is important. It makes for strength or for loss.

Take a second to think before uttering a word for or the child will see we try to say yes as often as we can. There are times when we

Care of Your Children

Children ask for things, all sorts of things, from a "Can I have a toy?" to "Can I have a trip to Europe?"

It is easy to say "Yes, of course," and then you find the child on the table in 10 minutes. Wash up now.

But how about the bigger, the more important things, like quick eye or no, a promise, can become a serious difficulty when the child demands what was implied in the answer.

Breaking a word once given will show a child's faith in the one who did the breaking.

"But you said..."

"Yes, you can see it is out of the question."

But he may not see. It is better to say, "I know, but the answer was a span of time for fulfillment. We will see. It is too early now to say."

Mother, you said we were to go with her next Saturday. She and her mother are going shopping in the Walden Can 101.

Mother says "Yes." Now, Saturday is three days off. There seems to be no way for the child to stay in her place? That happens. Daughter, feeling secure in the present, is on the trip. The disappointment is hard to take, although daughter sees the necessity for it.

Dad prepares for a day's fishing and his son asks, "Can I go? Dad?"

"No, today. The car is in the next time you can go."

But the next time happens to be even more of an impossibility. What then? The boy loses faith in his father's word, although father meant what he said at the time.

Altogether, one must take time before answering any request a child may make. Parents' word should be the child's main support. He relies on it and acts on it. Once he knows, in that word, he is false and insecure. Even a brief or a yes is important. It makes for strength or for loss.

Take a second to think before uttering a word for or the child will see we try to say yes as often as we can. There are times when we

Nail, Hand Care Is Important as Skin's Oils Dry

Care of the hands and nails becomes increasingly important as a woman grows older. This is because the natural drying process that goes on in the hands, too, and hands can look needlessly wrinkled and unattractive for correctly.

The first requirement is the selection of a satisfactory hand cream. It may be a salicylic-based one that gradually builds a layer of protection on the hands against soap or other irritants. One to be used after housework or if it may be a thick, semisolid one that works into the skin slowly.

The cream, of whichever variety, should be used faithfully, both in the day and before bedtime.

The next duty to one's hands is regular and careful manicuring. This can be done professionally, or at home. But it should include cleaning work on the cuticles, a soak in oil or soap and water, trimming and filing. Polish is an optional item. But many mature women find that a good coat of polish protects brittle nail ends that tend to chip.

A mature woman should select her nail polish color with an eagle eye. Some women are slender enough to wear light and do the kind of work that makes brilliant

We, the Women

Some of our outstanding career women are becoming the fact that today's high school and college girls seem to be lacking in career ambitions.

"And," she said with a shrug, "though I never had a chance to use anything I learned in geology I sure could have used some training in home economics. Maybe she is smarter than I am. Maybe today's girls are not facing the fact that we and a family are a woman's important career. In acknowledging that fact, aren't they just going with nature instead of the future—the most important about them which is that they alter all, women?"

Speedway Reduces Engine Size for 500-Mile Race

INDIANAPOLIS, July 26 (AP)—The Indianapolis motor speedway Wednesday cut the size of engines allowed in the annual 500-mile race, hoping to check more deadly increases in speed. From the standpoint of safety, we believe the use of smaller engines will serve as a check on the steadily increasing rate of speed attained in recent years, said A. H. Hulman, speedway president. (The smaller Ford engine has 272 cubic inches displacement; the Chevrolet 8 has 265.)
