Irrigation Water Plea Granted but Power Is Denied

Approval was granted Tuesday to an application for water from Crystal and Niagara springs to be used in irrigating desert land in the Saylor creek area, but local sources justly considered the action far from a defeat for their cause. Crystal Springs Irrigation company, which had applied for the water, also had asked an additional 200 second feet of water at Niagara springs and 300 second feet at Crystal springs for power to pump the irrigation water across the Snake river through flumes.

Reclamation Commissioner Mark R. Kulp approved the application for 100 second feet of water from the two Gouding county springs for irrigation purposes, but disapproved the request for water to supply pumping power.

Meanwhile, the house fish and game committee decided to hold for further study a bill which would prevent future appropriation of water from the springs by making them a state preserve for scenic and recreational purposes.

Further meetings are planned on the bill, introduced by the committee on the part of Rep. E. E. LaTurner, R. Jerome.

LaTurner said objections which are the other residents of the area who are opposed to the bill, met by the disapproval of the portion dealing with power.

He said he feels it would be impractical for the company to use the power for the company to use.

Speeches and Film Wind up Feedlot Tour

Area stockmen and feeders met in the Twin Falls hotel for lunch and the afternoon session of the ninth annual county feedlot tour.

The group heard talks by five experts representing different phases of livestock feeding, raising and processing.

During the morning, just to extend 200 visited four county farms to examine feedlot methods on farm to farm.

Joseph D. Hemen, University of Idaho extension agent, said that although there is no substitute for a good basic ration of corn, alfalfa and grain, new and improved methods of raising and feeding are helping to increase feed efficiency.

Continuing that subject, Earl Wood, Twin Falls city, district manager for the American Cyanamid company, reported that antibiotics are being used in increasing numbers, thereby providing better gains and health.

He also gave a brief history and background of the development of antibiotics for cattle feeding.

The tour continued in Twin Falls and other places have been planned to continue the tour.

Frank Rawlins, Ogden, director of research and chief chemist for Animal Research, said that the use of antibiotics is a mixture ranging between the pounds of antibiotics to one pound roughage and two pounds of roughage to one pound concentrate.

Filer Man Named to Head Farms Agency

BOISE, Feb. 6.—Robert L. Reichert, a native of Filer, was appointed Idaho commissioner of agriculture today by Gov. Robert E. Smylie.

State Engineer Cites Advantage Of Main-Second Avenue Couplet

Advantages of using Main street and Second avenue south and west for one-way couplets were impressed on Twin Falls businessmen Tuesday afternoon by Ellis Mathes, state traffic engineer. Mathes, speaking to about 35 local businessmen and city officials, reiterated the benefits of this plan over using both second avenues. He told the group Twin Falls would "be disappointed in what it would get with plan D."

Shoshone Moves to Hide Traffic Cases

Shoshone city council Tuesday night took steps to prevent the publication of names of traffic violators in the city except on a monthly basis. The council decided that no city employees will be required to give out information on the violations on a day-to-day basis. Names of violators, however, will be made available on a monthly basis when the monthly reports of officials are filed at the city clerk's office. Mayor Arthur Hall said that this ruling of the council probably does not extend to the docket of the city judge. Decision as to whether or not he wanted to open his docket on a day-to-day basis was left up to the judge, he said.

Fear of New Blast Listed In Reno After Explosion Wrecks Downtown Area

RENO, Feb. 6.—The block-square Masonic temple and nearby business buildings were hastily evacuated today as a strong smell of gas led to fears that a new explosion might follow yesterday's disastrous propane gas blast in downtown Reno. Yesterday's triple explosion killed two persons, injured 41 and destroyed five business buildings. Today, national guardsmen and police began ordering people out of the area again as the gas, which the house defeated two moves to have the bill put up for amendment so the half-cent-per-gallon tax could be scaled down. The Allied Civic Forces, Idaho temperance group which has championed the bill, came in for sharp criticism during debate. Rep. Perry Swisher, R., Bannock, chairman of the revenue and taxation committee, opened the attack on the ACF, saying: "I have learned the hard way, maybe the retirement way, that I can't compromise with the Allied Civic Forces."

Crowds Throng to Opening of Shopping Center

The new $400,000 Okay Food Shopping center opened Wednesday at the corner of Filer and Fillmore streets. The store itself measures 120 by 140 feet, Fillmore said. Several thousand people were passing through the store for its official opening Wednesday night. The building is located on a 500-by-500-foot lot which provides parking space for 500 cars. ## Chances Are Better For Lease of SICE

BOISE, Feb. 6.—The house institutions committee yesterday abandoned its proposal to establish an old people's home on the abandoned campus of Southern Idaho College of Education in Albion. This apparently improved chances for passage of a senate-approved bill, scheduled for a vote in the house tomorrow, to make possible sale or lease of the school facilities. The Church of Christ is interested in using them for a college. Rep. Carl Burt, R., Ada, chairman of the committee, told newsmen, however, that individual members might oppose the bill for personal reasons.

BOISE, Feb. 6.—The Idaho house of representatives killed 41-14 today a bill which would have placed a tax of four cents on an eight-ounce bottle of beer. Before the final vote, the house defeated two moves to have the bill put up for amendment so the half-cent-per-gallon tax could be scaled down. The Allied Civic Forces, Idaho temperance group which has championed the bill, came in for sharp criticism during debate. Rep. Perry Swisher, R., Bannock, chairman of the revenue and taxation committee, opened the attack on the ACF, saying: "I have learned the hard way, maybe the retirement way, that I can't compromise with the Allied Civic Forces."

U. S. Gets Chance in Testing On Middle Security Offerings

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (U. P.)—Easing of the money market—was it just the traditional January thaw?—and the tendency of the public to slow up on its steady march into debt is giving the U. S. treasury a chance to test a middle length security offering.

Uncle Sam has been running low on cash for some time. And every week or so he has been borrowing a little more by tapping the short term market.

Today he is offering investors a three-year, three-month note with interest of 3 1/2 per cent—highest rate paid since the depression.

The expectation is that the money market, so tight for months, has loosened up enough to make funds available.

WAGNER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—The anti-third term amendment has already had a disturbing political effect that was not anticipated by its Republican sponsors. It has aggravated party and personal animosities and created dissension on Capitol Hill that hinders enactment of needed and constructive legislation.

It has, of worst of all, operated as a brake on grave national and international problems. With the knowledge that the amendment is in effect, President Eisenhower cannot run for a third term, the opposition and prominent members of his own party immediately jockey and jockey for position.

Every presidential possibility, even the most remote and unlikely candidate, realizes that he has only four years in which to build up a reputation, and gain an advantage over rival candidates. The time is dead, at least politically.

MUST STAND TOGETHER

Every time the Soviet Union warns nearby nations against permitting bases for the delivery of nuclear weapons, the free world fears a new upsurge of crippling neutralism.

In the light of past experience it would be foolish to say there is no sense in such fears. No one easily contemplates the threat of atomic annihilation. We would not, and we cannot, expect others to do so.

Yet despite this menace we ask that our friends abroad, in that which rings Russia from Scandinavia to Pakistan, to hold firm in alliance against communism.

We can ask this in good conscience because we know that, above all other countries, the United States would be the object of nuclear assault should the Kremlin decide upon war.

It would indeed be easier for the Russians to deliver atomic blows against countries closer by, but Moscow knows that we would be No. 1 on the destruction list.

United Nations could not possibly reduce the United States to rubble, the reds' chance of winning a war would go glimmering.

Admittedly, the bases we have overseas fit into the pattern of retaliatory power. But so long as we could send giant long-range fleets of nuclear bombers from American fields, or launch intercontinental missiles upon red soil, the masters in the Kremlin could feel no real confidence.

Thus we are not asking our anti-Communist allies to live under threat greater than that which faces us. The danger is general—not limited to the NATO and other lands which encompass Russia.

It is today meaningless for any of these allies to say: "We don't want our ruins to be blasted again. We don't want any ruins this time."

The rule would be worldwide from the outset, and there would be no prize for the winner to pick up, whether he stood 500 miles from Russian soil or 5,000.

THE WAY TO PREVENT THE GENERAL NUCLEAR HOLOGRAPH

The way to prevent the general nuclear holograph is to prevent the general nuclear holograph from peeling off from the alliance and, in fear, move toward neutralism.

The way to avoid disaster is to stay linked together in tight array against the Soviet menace. That is perhaps the one secure measure of assuring that the threat—to both near and far—will never materialize.

MID-EAST EXPENDITURES

Money angles on President Eisenhower's proposed new Middle East policy are bothering many congressmen.

The inside story is this. When the Eisenhower doctrine for the Middle East first began to take shape in the state department, it was planned as a strictly military aid program. It was to fight Communist aggression actively. Economic aid—defense support or "development assistance"—wasn't in the picture.

Then the state department planners began to worry that if this was strictly a military aid program, congress might hand the whole thing to the department of defense to administer.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles wanted some control over where this military aid went.

The final draft of the new policy declaration, as submitted to congress for approval, calls for a blanket two-year, 400-million-dollar authorization for any kind of aid the President wants to give.

This is what raised some of the sharpest questioning as the senate foreign relations and armed services committees began their joint hearings on the Eisenhower doctrine.

Dulles tried to quiet some doubts and fears by assuring the senators that new money wasn't being requested just to finance long-range projects.

There have been some pretty fanciful stories put out about big plans to establish river valley authorities for the Nile, Jordan, Euphrates and other Middle Eastern rivers.

Publication of these reports has already brought in some fliers from countries in this area as to how much money they would get.

ACT OF SELF-DEFENSE

Sometimes the inter-continental guided missile is described as the "ultimate weapon." It is hard to imagine anything more devastating than a device which can send 5,000 miles without pilot to bring fire, ruin and death upon vast and distant targets.

America hopes, on such weapon is ever used, indeed, that no war ever develops which will compel the dropping of "conventional" nuclear bombs from piloted aircraft.

But against the prospect that an ambitious Communist Russia may perfect the missile, we have no choice but to press our own experiments.

Toward that end, the U. S. is establishing a testing range angling southward from the south Atlantic, and since this work must go on, we are striving to do so for as much of its lands available to us for use as a tracking station along that range.

THINKING OF 1960—Washington is witnessing such an unusually spectacular at the present moment, only 15 days after President Eisenhower's public inauguration. It explains why the Democrats have unrelentingly attacked the administration's foreign, defense and monetary policies all year. It also accounts for the fact that every statement made by the President is scrutinized and analyzed for possible revelation of his ambitions. Every presidential move is examined for indication of a 1960 preference. It is supposed to be Nixon, and this supposition has caused hard feelings within the GOP.

"LIGHTNING RODS" UP LONG BEFORE "STORMY CONTEST"

Shrewd Alexander Wiley took note of this premature political activity. Referring to the fact that every statement made by the President is scrutinized and analyzed for possible revelation of his ambitions. Every presidential move is examined for indication of a 1960 preference. It is supposed to be Nixon, and this supposition has caused hard feelings within the GOP.

He had in mind such vocal statements as Sen. Robert H. Humphrey, Minnesota, J. W. Pulleridge, Oregon, Stuart Symington, Missouri, and, of course, that indefatigable perennial, Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

For one reason or another, the politicians do not regard any of these men as likely nominees. None have caught the popular imagination, or been associated with any emotionally stirring slogan.

MAYOR WAGNER'S LOCAL PARTISAN OUTBURST

Since none of the Democratic governors have much chance to attract a nationwide following or to stir the people and politicians—Parullo of Arkansas, McNamara of Illinois, Hansen of New York, Meyer of New Jersey, Leader of Pennsylvania—is taken for granted that the Democratic Party will be the party of the future.

One outside possibility—Mayor Robert F. Wagner—has been ruled out just because of his own belief that, in insulating King Saud, he played local partisan politics with delicate international affairs.

THE REAPPOINTMENT OF ROSCOE RICH

The decision announced yesterday by Gov. Robert F. Wagner to reappoint Roscoe R. Rich to the Idaho state highway commission was a decision that will be both more popular and more useful to the state of Idaho than an opposite decision might have been.

POT SHOTS

WASHINGTON—The anti-third term amendment has already had a disturbing political effect that was not anticipated by its Republican sponsors. It has aggravated party and personal animosities and created dissension on Capitol Hill that hinders enactment of needed and constructive legislation.

It has, of worst of all, operated as a brake on grave national and international problems. With the knowledge that the amendment is in effect, President Eisenhower cannot run for a third term, the opposition and prominent members of his own party immediately jockey and jockey for position.

Every presidential possibility, even the most remote and unlikely candidate, realizes that he has only four years in which to build up a reputation, and gain an advantage over rival candidates. The time is dead, at least politically.

THINKING OF 1960—Washington is witnessing such an unusually spectacular at the present moment, only 15 days after President Eisenhower's public inauguration. It explains why the Democrats have unrelentingly attacked the administration's foreign, defense and monetary policies all year. It also accounts for the fact that every statement made by the President is scrutinized and analyzed for possible revelation of his ambitions. Every presidential move is examined for indication of a 1960 preference. It is supposed to be Nixon, and this supposition has caused hard feelings within the GOP.

He had in mind such vocal statements as Sen. Robert H. Humphrey, Minnesota, J. W. Pulleridge, Oregon, Stuart Symington, Missouri, and, of course, that indefatigable perennial, Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

For one reason or another, the politicians do not regard any of these men as likely nominees. None have caught the popular imagination, or been associated with any emotionally stirring slogan.

Since none of the Democratic governors have much chance to attract a nationwide following or to stir the people and politicians—Parullo of Arkansas, McNamara of Illinois, Hansen of New York, Meyer of New Jersey, Leader of Pennsylvania—is taken for granted that the Democratic Party will be the party of the future.

One outside possibility—Mayor Robert F. Wagner—has been ruled out just because of his own belief that, in insulating King Saud, he played local partisan politics with delicate international affairs.

Two Die, 40 Are Injured In Gas Blast

Home furnishings store, a new building being erected by J. C. Penney, and others in a radius of a block each as a result of a gas explosion.

Mrs. Malia Pringle, superintendent of nurses at Watson County Medical center, estimated 40 persons injured at 40. The hospital listed 20 names, of which only nine were identified.

St. Mary's hospital listed another five admissions, including two persons with broken bones and critical condition.

A brief warning apparently explained the relatively small casualty list. The blast occurred at 1:05 p.m. Charles Patterson, employed in Patterson men's clothing store in a two-story building on the corner of First and Sierra streets, said he smelled gas and notified his brother, Bill, the store manager.

Bill said he'd better clear the building and he called the Sierra Pacific Power company.

"An emergency came and told us: Clear out! We expect a blast!"

"We grabbed our coats and ran out. The gas was so cold. Bill got across First street, and then it blew."

Most instantly there was a second smaller blast, followed in 30 seconds by a third that hit the three-story Elks club building across the street.

The Elks club and the three-story Gray-Ried department store, after four hours of fire-fighting, the Elks building and the store across the street were completely ruined. The department store still was burning with danger of a wall collapsing into the street.

The main gas valve, which happened to be beneath the Maps store, was shut off. Frank Tracy, Sierra Pacific Power company manager, said all available crews to testing for possible low-voltage pockets of gas.

While any discomfort resulted from the gas shutdown in Reno's winter weather, however, as the city is heated by oil. Night temperatures were around 10 degrees above zero.

Advantage of Main Couplet Plan Is Told

and east would have to be widened for a considerable distance as most of the street ranges from 40 to 45 feet in width.

He also pointed out the school on this avenue would require speed control for safety measures. Another big point against this plan, he said, is that any traffic going north would be forced to make three successive left-hand turns.

Plan "B" would have an initial cost of about $2,500,000, while widening both second avenue would cost about $3,000,000. As an example of the extra cost, Mathis said 10,000 feet of road would have to be moved under plan "B" while "D" would require moving 20,000.

For the Main-second avenue south and west plan, Mathis noted only new lighting would be needed for Main avenue. Much of second avenue south and west has no curbing which would mean a saving of money. In addition, it is a wider street, about 50 feet.

Mathis also discussed ways of bringing the traffic off Addison avenue and Kimberly Road onto the couplets. He noted there are several advantages for the Main-second avenue south and west plan. Following the meeting the city commission and highway committee of the Chamber of Commerce met to discuss their appointment with the state highway commission Thursday.

Representing the chamber will be Mitchell Ham, Frank McVey, Ray J. Holmes and Emerson Pugmire, chairman of the highway 30 commission. Commissioners attending will be Dr. J. Jones Smith and William O. Alexander. City Manager Joseph Lattimore also will attend.

MEETING DATE CHANGED
ATTERBORNE, Feb. 6.—Room reservations of the P. C. A. will meet at 2:30 p. m. Monday instead of this week as previously announced. The meeting will be held at Lincoln school cafeteria and a lesson will be presented by Mrs. Keith Shewmaker.

Weather Hits U. S. by Rain, Winter Storm

By United Press
The weather played nasty tricks on the nation today, pouring rain over parts of the flood-stricken Southeast and dumping heavy quantities of snow on some western areas.

Generally unpleasant weather, heralded by fog, drizzle and showers, covered a section of the Mississippi valley ranging from the Mississippi valley eastward to the Atlantic coast.

Weathermen forecast showers for the southern Ohio valley, Tennessee and the Carolina. Rain also was expected over the Gulf states from Florida to Texas and north into Kansas.

Frosty air and snow flurries puffed into the northern Great Lakes region, but the previously chilly northern plains warmed up.

Rain accumulations reached 2.14 at Fort Smith, Ark., and 1.14 inches at West Plains, Mo., over a 24-hour period. Mulliken Pass, Mont., continued to wallow in snow, with an accumulation of 79 inches on the ground.

Singer Welcomed In Teen-Age Riot

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Police called reinforcements into central London today to forestall new teen-age riots of joy at the presence here of American rock 'n' roll king Bill Haley.

Haley arrived yesterday for a three-week tour of Britain and ran into scenes of frenzied adoration that injured one person and badly damaged his car. It took the efforts of 50 policemen to free him.

He gives his first concert at London's Dominion theater tonight and a spokesman at Tottenham court road police station said the street said reinforcements were being drafted to handle the situation.

Haley said he and his wife had been badly frightened when the mob surged around the car, crushing a policeman.

Rain Bringing New Southern Flood Threats

By United Press
New flooding along arroyo rivers at scattered points today in north Georgia, Alabama, and western Tennessee produced serious conditions if rains continue.

Creata of three to five feet above flood level were expected at Rome, Ga., and at Gadsden, Ala., on the Coosa river system while the Roanoke river in North Carolina reached its highest level in years.

Capitola prepared to flee their homes at some lowland points in Georgia and Alabama.

More than a week of serious flooding in the Southeast claimed the death of a woman in a fall into the rip-rap-filled Boon creek on the Cherokee, N. C. Indian reservation. The other deaths occurred in an Appalachian mountain region embracing parts of West Virginia, Kentucky and Virginia which heavy rains caused more than one billion dollars damage last week.

Area Springs Water Quota Is Approved

The water for irrigation if it could not be the additional water to provide power for pumping.

In Jerome, Frank Rette, attorney for several groups protesting the irrigation company's application, said he feels much the same way.

"If they don't get the water for power," he said, "I don't think they will go through with appropriating the water."

As to the bill which would make the springs a state preserve, Rette said he thinks several parties in general the same ones who had protected the application—are planning to get together and send representatives to Boise to support the bill.

He said the delegation probably will be made up of "three or four well-informed men on the subject."

Don Bailey, district manager for Idaho Power company here, said he had "no comment at present" on Rette's action.

He pointed out, however, that Idaho Power owns the land adjoining the springs and that if any facilities are built there to collect the water it would be trespassing on Idaho Power property.

Mitchell Friedman, Chamber of Commerce chairman for development of a recreational site in the Niagara-Crystal springs area, said he had not had time to study Kulp's action but "I believe the protesters would pursue all legal means to reach any action which would deprive in any way the scenic and recreational value of the springs."

A group of local chamber members previously had expressed a desire to gain the springs for their natural attraction.

Hunt said if the Twin Falls chamber group did take any protest action it probably would be along the same line with the other protesting groups.

Kulp, in announcing his approval of the application for irrigation water, said opponents to granting the application could appeal the decision to the Gooding county district court.

Yearlings, he added, adapt themselves more readily to higher proportions of concentrates.

Johnson also reported that Idaho cattle were fed an average of 31.8 pounds of feed per day in 1956, according to figures compiled by the crop reporting service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Cost of feed per steer was about 40 cents a day, he added.

Dr. D. A. Jackson, Twin Falls veterinarian, outlined changes in his profession over the past year. The majority of calls at one time were for horses, he said, but cattle ailments were more frequent now.

He noted that a decrease in feeding rations has reduced blood in cattle, their part in helping to overcome shipping disease, once prevalent in cattle.

The group also saw a film, "Open Door for Greater Beef Showing Profit."

True Story of Hard Struggle For Estonia Shown by Article

By The Associated Press
The average worker in Soviet Estonia with a wife and two children gets far too little pay to provide even an adequate diet for his family. This conclusion can be reached easily by analysis of an Estonian article published in the Communist party magazine, Kommunist, purporting to show that things are a lot better now than they were when Estonia was free.

What is actually shown is that life in Estonia is one long struggle to get enough to eat.

Here's the essence one can get from the article:
The average monthly pay in Soviet Estonia, including that of high-level executives, was $23 fully paid top executives. Direct income tax deductions out of $23 rubles comes to about 74 rubles per month.

The author does not mention another important deduction from the gross pay—state bonds sold in the compulsory bond sale drive. The bonds are not negotiable so the worker can get nothing back on them. For them he has to put up three weeks to a month's pay. At three weeks pay this would amount to a deduction of 43 rubles per month.

This would leave him a take home pay of 80 rubles per month. His rent, electricity and food—for heating, the Soviet author estimates, amount to 84 rubles per month. This would then leave 66 rubles to provide for all other family needs except medical care, which is generally available without charge.

Food cost for the family can be estimated on the basis of a table printed in the Communist article outlining a "worker's ration" described by a Soviet Estonian expert in 1926. This ration provides for an average worker on the basis of generally recognized international standards.

The Soviet author gives as the cost

Reds' Groups Charge Stalin 'Anti-Semitic'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—The de-Stalinization of Russian communism has taken a new turn with charges that the late generalissimo was guilty of violent anti-Semitism. These charges were published in the New York Communist newspaper, the Daily Worker. They were a reprint of a report published by British communists after a delegation of Jews had investigated in the Soviet Union the story of anti-Semitism during the Stalin regime. "The years 1940-52," the report said, "were 'golden' among Jews (Russian Jews) as the black years of the period during which many Jews were dismissed from their posts, Jewish poets and writers were arrested and charged with treason and executed; Jewish disappeared from the streets and market places. "Rubbards were arrested, tortured and murdered, the report continued, and whole families were transported to remote areas of forced labor. The investigators insisted, however, that since Stalin's death, a real effort was being made to make amends for the anti-Semitic campaign and to prevent a repetition.

Ike May Hold Stassen in Job Over Protests

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—President Eisenhower reportedly plans to keep Harold E. Stassen as his disarmament assistant despite some GOP demands for his retirement. The subject came up at a recent White House conference attended by members of Congress. The President was represented as having said, with something akin to amusement, that Stassen seemed to have a tendency to put his political foot in his mouth. This was an evident allusion to Stassen's political attacks on Vice President Nixon.

Eisenhower was reported to have added, however, that Stassen was doing a dedicated job in the disarmament field, a job he implied that not just anyone could step into and carry on with as much success. Some members of Congress interpreted this as indicating Eisenhower believed that Nixon—whom he has praised highly—is capable of taking care of himself in any political situation.

In some quarters, Eisenhower's support for Stassen was interpreted as indicating that he plans no change in top-level advisers. Postmaster General Summerfield, the only cabinet member whose job requires confirmation at the beginning of a second presidential term, has received approval from the Senate yesterday.

Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI

Few children, boys or girls, grow into maturity without making some mistakes that distress or alarm their parents. I would be anxious about the physical and mental abilities of a child who never brought anxiety to his parents or trouble to his teacher.

Healthy childhood and youth are adventures. Knowing little or nothing of life's way with people or people's ways with life, children take risks that they do not know as risks. They want to know what it feels like to throw a stone and break a window and run for dear life. They want to know what lies beyond the horizon of home, school and neighborhood, so they try to find out one day and with surprising results to themselves. On the road to maturity they investigate by way and face a stranger, trouble. This is all in the pattern of childhood merging into maturity. That road is long and uphill for most children. When they make a mistake, it should be recognized as a mistake—not as a willful, intentional decision to defy law and order. If they knew and understood the implications of their acts, they would not venture. Not venturing, they would not learn.

When a child makes a mistake and gets into a jam, keep the matter within the family, if at all possible.

In any case, do not spread the news. Do not talk about it to anybody but those directly concerned. Talking about such things gives them a reality they do not actually possess.

I have every sympathy with the idea that no publicity should be given a child's mistake. The less said about it the better, and the fewer people that know about it, better yet.

But I am accused of petting young criminals. I want to make clear I am talking about children, not boys and girls 17 years of age who, when they well know would be breaking the laws of God and men, sent ahead and did it.

An 18-year-old, even most 17-year-olds, cannot be classified as children unless they are mental defectives. That is quite another story. What is essential here is that teachers and parents preserve accuracy concerning the mistakes children in the adventure stage of growth are fairly certain to make. No good and great harm can come from telling outsiders. Few people are ever sorry for what they did not say.

Some children are shy because they are afraid. But I tell how to help a shy child overcome his shyness in letter P-12. "The Shy Child." To obtain this, send 10 cents in coin to Mrs. J. C. Thompson, 1001 N. 1st, Burley, Idaho.

Adenauer Set For Clash For German Vote

BONN, Germany, Feb. 6 (U) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who led western Germany from the ashes of nazism into the Atlantic alliance, is fighting for his political life. At 61 years of age, the Christian Democratic party leader faces a general election which could toss him from power, his defeat could spell trouble for the entire western community.

The election is eight months away in September. But the nation's parties are already embroiled in a free-for-all which undermines Adenauer's position.

His Christian Democrats, largest party in the coalition government, have lost heavily in recent local elections and state polls.

The Socialist party, which opposes the rearmament of West Germany, has announced that it will abolish conscription if it comes to power. It has made startling election gains recently.

Political experts today believe that the all-important elections next fall could result in almost a tie between the Christian Democrats and Socialists.

This would mean three or four smaller parties in parliament would hold the balance of power. They could decide then whether Adenauer would retain his job or Socialist leader Erich Ollenhauer would get it.

West German Crisis Seems Long-Lasting

By United Press
 West Germany is entering a critical period which seems certain to last for many months. The danger of a new East German withdrawal of allied troops assigned to the North Atlantic treaty forces and the place of Germany's new government are among the problems to be faced. In addition, there is a serious threat that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who comes close to being an indispensable man, will be thrown in the election to be held next September.

The East German situation is the most dangerous one at this time. Statements by East German communist leaders leave no doubt that they fear a popular uprising like those in Poland and Hungary.

West German leaders, in turn, fear that their own people might cross the border to fight with the rebels.

They would be fighting the Russian Red army as well as the East German army. But this is only a guess at the United States and Great Britain, who are pledged to defend West Germany.

There is little doubt that British prime minister Harold Macmillan intends to pull out of the four British NATO divisions out of West Germany, as part of his drastic economic program.

American military commanders in West Germany are already figuring out how to train their units in line with the new situation. They are more emphasis on striking power instead of manpower.

Board Approves Change of Route

HANSEN, Feb. 6 — The Hansen village board met on record Monday night as approving the proposal of Elen and Hazelton area farmers to change the route of the farm-to-market highway so it will bypass farmland.

The board directed a letter to the state highway commission, voicing its approval of the plan. Farmers on the north side will meet with the highway commission Wednesday to ask that the proposed route of the new highway be moved to the north and one-half mile north so it will not cut through farmland.

School Supt. Bernard Hogwood, Robert Hall and Maurice Capps asked the board Monday for signs near the school to limit parking during school hours. The request was made to facilitate the loading and unloading of children on school buses.

Payment of $429 Sought in Action

Norbert Huber and Emmett Moyle are defendants in a civil action filed Tuesday in Twin Falls district court by Kerby Furnill and Elmer Gower, county commissioners.

The complaint alleges that Huber and Moyle entered into an oral contract for materials and labor for the installation of floor tile in the Silver Saddle, a night club near Hansen. The complaint alleges that the defendants agreed to pay upon completion of the job.

It is further alleged Huber and Moyle refused to pay the company. The complaint alleges that the company filed a lien against the night club last Dec. 17, 1956, and the defendants agreed to pay upon completion of the job.

In addition to the $429.50 the company asks $10.00 for the preparation and recording of the lien plus $20 for attorney fees. Attorney P. H. Church, Burley, represents the company.

Dinner Served

HAGERMAN, Feb. 6 — Approximately 10 persons attended a family fellowship dinner at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Bob Tupper, Mrs. Clarence Norris and Mrs. Millie Barton were in charge of tables and coffee.

Following the dinner, an evangelizing meeting was held with the Rev. A. E. Gilbert as chairman.
