Nine Dead, Damage Listed In Millions as Torrential Rain Floods Chicago Area

CHICAGO, July 13 (AP)—A record 24-hour downpour left Chicago swamped today with mounting damage estimated in the millions of dollars. Hardest hit by the torrential rains were the city's subways, telephone systems, gas and power companies. At least nine were dead as a result of the storm in Chicago, and another storm death was reported in nearby Will county. In Chicago, two persons drowned, three others were electrocuted and four suffered heart attacks there while battling floods in their homes.

At least 30,000 telephones were knocked out by the six and a quarter-inch rainfall Friday night and early Saturday.

Underneath downtown Chicago, sweating sand bag crews fought to keep water from pouring over major lines in one of the city's main arteries, the Chicago River. The source of transportation, the subway, one large segment of the tubes already was inundated with 6 to 8 feet of water from the gushing runoffs.

One of those killed by the storm was an infant girl.

A 7-month-old girl, Stella Toney, drowned when she rolled out of her bed into a foot of water in the bedroom of the family's basement apartment.

Although the forecast for more rain failed to materialize Saturday, water running off the embankment of a recently completed expressway poured into one major subway station downtown.

By midday, water reached to the top of the tube in the station and service was cut.

Unofficial estimates of damage to homes, bridges, hospital, telephone and power equipment ran into the millions.

A torrential downpour that started during a tornado alert dumped 6.24 inches of rain on the city in 24 hours. Most of it fell in the 6-hour period between 7 p.m. Friday and 1 a.m. Saturday. The

Buhl Tightening up On Traffic Violators

BUHL, July 13—Buhl police are tightening enforcement of traffic laws following an order by Police Chief T. M. Kendrick for more traffic citations and fewer warnings.

"We don't want any sudden or drastic changes in enforcement," Chief Kendrick said Saturday. "It's simply a matter of laying more stress on traffic safety. We seem to be having more traffic problems than usual lately."

Noting that the public recently has become more aware of teenage drivers and their relation to traffic problems in Twin Falls and other Magic Valley communities, Kendrick said the teen-agers were not Buhl's biggest traffic worry.

"I'm not trying to minimize the problems caused by teenage drivers," said Kendrick. But, he added, most of the problems seem to be caused by careless adults.

"One of our biggest problems is that of absent-minded businessmen driving to and from work. They have other things on their minds and often fail to heed speed limits, traffic signs and the rules of right of way," the chief said.

Kendrick noted that it is the responsibility of adult drivers to set a good example for teen-agers. He said his department had observed that teen-agers with unsafe driving habits usually had parents who also were fast or careless.

Buhl police have had a long-standing policy of issuing warnings to violators on the first offense and issuing citations for repeated offenses. Under the tightened enforcement orders, however, more citations and fewer warnings may be expected.

The jubilee will begin Feb. 11, 1958, and continue for a full year. During that time millions of people are expected to visit the famous Catholic shrine to the Virgin Mary in France.

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—Sen. Theodore Francis Green, 80-year-old member of the House of Representatives, snapped back today from a collapse attributed to a "very mild case of heat exhaustion." ## British Exchange Minister Notes All Churches Face Materialism Problems

"Materialism is the universal problem facing all churches in today's society," said the Rev. Charles Banks here Saturday. He is a British exchange minister visiting in Twin Falls.

Participating in an exchange program that took the Twin Falls Methodist church for a five-week period beginning today.

The program sponsored by the world Methodist council enables six American ministers and six British ministers to "trade places." In this manner each of the 12 men serve as "public relations men" for their country.

"This 'reverse in public relations,' as the Rev. Mr. Banks puts it, involves changing jobs completely with the exception of salary. The church program for the visiting minister has already been mapped prior to his arrival, and the incoming minister moves right into the outgoing minister's home.

As is the case with the Rev. Mr. MacArthur and the Rev. Mr. Banks, both have traded congregations, homes and societies for the next five Sundays.

When asked about the most serious problem confronting the Methodist church in his Birmingham home, the Rev. Mr. Banks immediately cited the sky-rocketing economy not only in England but all over the world. He said that people are living on a much higher economic level now, "the steel or the industry has seeped into their souls."

Speaking with a clipped English accent, the Rev. Mr. Banks expressed views on a variety of subjects.

He said he was singularly impressed with the similarities between the United States and Britain. "I thought England would appear to be old-fashioned next to you chaps, but they're pretty much the same."

Initially a man extremely active in church youth affairs, the Rev. Mr. Banks said he was now a "househusband."

Gray in real life is director of the office of defense mobilization. He was designated by President Eisenhower in a simulated order as head of an "office of emergency resources," with broad war-emergency powers.

Hampered by real confusion, Gray and Lewis E. Berry, acting civil defense chief, are seeking to cope with this hypothetical havoc in Operation Alert 1957.

Imagined devastation wrought by 175 H-bombs bursting over 162 American cities with the explosive wrath of nearly 452 million tons of TNT, a shower of death-dealing radioactive particles in subsequent fallout—"serious" in New England, the Great Lakes, the Southeast and the West Coast.

Eisenhower led the mass exodus from America's cities shortly after the alert sounded at noon (EDT) Friday. The President, with 26 aides

Defense Leader Reports Test Is Success in T. F.

Sheriff James H. Benham, Twin Falls county defense director, said Saturday he thought Friday's civil defense test was a success and he received "good cooperation" from everyone concerned in the one-day test of civil defenses in Magic Valley.

Benham said Dr. Cecil Reinstein, director of the southeastern district health department, assisting with plans to care for the injured, also reported a "very successful day."

The test was part of the national "Operation Alert," civil defense leaders and law enforcement officers swung into action Friday morning as hordes of "refugees" from an "atomic bombing" jammed highways and sought of "sabotage" menaced vital facilities. The test was a hypothetical check of Magic Valley's role in the nation's civil defense program.

Police Cite Constable On Speeding Charge

Nine persons paid fines in Twin Falls police court Friday and Saturday and the Twin Falls constable posted a $14 bond Friday after being cited for speeding by city police using radar. Constable Elton Holmes posted the bond after being cited for driving 11 miles over the speed limit. He is scheduled to appear before Police Judge J. O. Pumphrey within five days of forfeit the bond. Judge Pumphrey said Saturday Holmes' attorney indicated the constable would plead innocent to the charge.

Holmes said in a statement he was chasing a California-licensed car which had run through a red light at Addison avenue and Blue Lakes boulevard. He said he went through the radar net going about 36 miles an hour and saw no reason to turn on his red light until he got closer to the car he was chasing. He said he knew the radar was there. After he was stopped, the California car got away he added.

"It's peculiar that one officer of the law should arrest another in the performance of his duty," Holmes said. "I don't believe this is the usual practice between law enforcement agencies."

Pined in police court Friday for each-mile above the speed limit as a result of the radar net were Clara M. Van Houten, 291 Flier avenue, Twin Falls, 39 and 43 costs; Walter E. Griffith, Twin Falls, 10 and 43 costs; Willis Glans, 22, 155 1/2 Elm street, Twin Falls, 10 and 43 costs; and Robert E. Carlson, 137 Seventh avenue east, Twin Falls, 17 and 33 costs. ## Forces Joined In Bipartisan Rights Effort

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—Senator Mundt, R., S.D., joined Senator Russell, D., Cal., Saturday in a bipartisan move to take some of the enforcement teeth out of the administration's civil rights bill.

With supporters of the measure fighting against "compromise" moves, Mundt announced he will offer a substitute for the measure which would delete enforcement authority for civil rights other than those involved in voting.

When the judge asked Niedrich if he was accustomed to driving 35 miles an hour in Jerome where that speed is the posted limit, the Jerome man said he was. The judge asked him if he knew the posted limit in Twin Falls was only 25 miles an hour and Niedrich said he was aware of that fact. After the judge pronounced sentence, both Judge Humphrey and Police Chief Howard Gillette commended Niedrich for his honesty.

Range Blazes Explode Over Magic Valley

Big Smokey fire while ground crews worked on the other two. He said he had received reports of two other fires but apparently they had been rained out.

Prickles said one of the dangers of electric storms is "sleeper fires," fires caused by lightning but kept under control for a few days by the accompanying rain. He said there seldom is enough smoke to detect a "sleeper" for several days.

To combat "sleeper" fires, Prickles is maintaining an air patrol over the Sawtooth forest to watch for small signs of smoke. He said the patrol was out on Friday and Saturday and would be out Sunday and Monday "even if there are no more storms."

Prickles said the season is just entering its most serious phase. He explained again that the chest grass this year is especially heavy and exceptionally combustible. He said the first fire is just about as prepared it is can be for a serious fire season.

"Employees know what they are supposed to do and cooperators are ready to assist in cases of emergency," he explained.

The first Saturday fire on bureau of land management land in the Shoshone district was reported at 9:15 a.m. and is believed to have been man caused. This fire covered 1,500 acres before it was brought under control. Late Saturday a thunderstorm helped fire fighters bring it under control. The blaze was located north of the Hunt project, north and west of Eden.

The second large fire was reported at 2 p.m. between Gooding and Wendell and was not brought under control until around midnight. In addition to per diem fire fighters and volunteers, fire departments from Gooding and Wendell assisted on this fire.

The fire-bracketed by a stiff breeze, jumped the highway and threatened several farms at one time.

During the lightning storm that helped cause the Hunt fire, another small fire was started close to the Lincoln-Jerome highway but this fire was brought under control almost immediately. Then another fire started northwest of Kinnama and continued to "go good" until shortly before midnight.

The Burley district of the bureau of land management sent three tankers to help the Shoshone district and then received reports of fires near Rock Creek and Miller. Both of these fires were put out by rain, however.

When the manpower of the Shoshone district was extended to its utmost, lightning began to hit all over the district. Another small fire was reported north of Greenwood in the same general area as the large fire that was controlled earlier. Approximately 100 acres were blackened along Fish creek and four acres were burned near Dietrichville. Both of these fires were controlled by fire fighters.

Two other fires, one in Ladlaw park and the other near Wildhorse butte, apparently were rained out.

"We hope so, anyway," a bureau of land management official said. "We haven't any more men to put on any more fires."

The lightning which caused the fires knocked out a transformer in Burley and left the eastern part of the city without power for several hours.

Lightning and rain also disrupted power and telephone service at Shoshone on both Friday and Saturday. Partial service had been restored by early Saturday evening.

The wind which accompanied the storm near Filer blew a large tree across highway 30 near Deadman's corner. The tree had been removed by 8:40 p.m.

50,000 Boy Scouts Attend Jam boree

VALLEY FORGE, Pa., July 13—More than 50,000 boys from across the nation Saturday opened an all-out campaign to win the coveted adventure award of the Fourth National Boy Scout jamboree.

Virtually every boy in the huge encampment pawled across this historic military park was busily engaged in the program which requires successful completion of 7 to 15 tests of scouting skills.

The testing will continue throughout the week. Scouts will get a chance to try their hand at making fire without matches, whittling, first aid, knot tying, flag signaling, compass use, archery, rifle marksmanship, angling, as well as obstacle courses and making friends.

The making friends feature of the test is unique. The requirement calls for the Scout to produce names of other Scouts from at least 12 states, territories or foreign countries.

Opposes Authority

Mundt also moved to cut the authority of proposed six-member commission which would be set up under the bill to investigate and report on civil rights developments.

His substitute would give the commission subpoena power only in cases involving voting rights. It would be limited otherwise to hearing voluntary witnesses in public hearings and to make recommendations to state legislators, congress and the president for laws providing fuller protection of civil rights.

Subject to Confirmation

Russell also moved to make the appointment of a staff director of the proposed civil rights commission subject to senate confirmation.

He sought to bar use by the commission of unpaid volunteer investigators. He said reformers have been "running around the country stirring up trouble."

Significantly, Russell made no move to delete a section of the bill which would authorize the attorney general to seek injunctions to prevent violations or threatened violations of voting rights.

Principal Objective

President Eisenhower has said the principal objective in asking congress to act on the legislation.

No sooner had Russell made his proposals than Senator Javits, R.-N.Y., took the floor to caution supporters of the bill against talking at this time about compromises. He said the objective now should be to get the bill officially before the senate when the chamber votes on that question late Tuesday.

Describing the house measure as "a very moderate bill," Javits said he doesn't believe compromises will win the bill any more supporters.

Dulles Urged By Mansfield To Take Trip

to the overriding problem of European stability, Mansfield said: "It seems to me that as a first step, the secretary of state in his travels abroad might see fit to visit those countries of Eastern Europe where he feels it may be useful to go and to bring back a report to the people of the U.S. on what is actually going on in them."

Tortured Dance
As for the world situation in general, Mansfield declared that "this so-called peace is not peace at all, but a desperate clinging by finger and toe to survival."

"It is," he said, "a tortured dance of diplomacy on the edge of the abyss."

Senator Thye, R., Minn., said that despite any criticism by Mansfield or others, there is peace throughout the world and no American soldier is spilling his blood on any battlefield "in this fifth year" of the Eisenhower administration.

Uncasy Peace
Senator Sparkman, D., Ala., replied that while it is true that no soldiers are being killed the question is "the kind of peace we have."

He called it "an uneasy peace."

Sparkman, like Mansfield, a foreign relations committee member, said he understood Mansfield to be urging "a positive program to make this a durable peace" and to get away from what Sparkman described as much of the "negativism" in administration policies.

He said he considered Mansfield's speech "the most adequate, the most complete and thorough presentation of the situation as it exists today that I have ever heard."

Speech Applauded
Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas also congratulated Mansfield on his "brilliant" speech.

"Far too many of this country's actions and this country's reactions have been purely defensive," Johnson said. "There has been a feeling that the primary objective should be to hold lines and maintain points which are allegedly strong."

Johnson said this country should not be "fearful and timorous about the effects of communist ideas" but should proceed on the assumption "that American ideals are much stronger than anything the Soviets have to offer."

Water "Grab" Is Charged in Land Request

RIORY, July 13 (AP)—Water has bubbled into a controversy in this area over whether the national reforestation station should get more land.

The atomic energy commission has asked that it be given about 144,000 acres more for its station reservation to protect inhabitants from radioactivity.

Water Said Reason

Thursday, State Sen. Bert Call, D., Jefferson, declared the AEO wants the land because of the underground water.

Call claimed at an Idaho Falls public hearing the agency has drilled "a flock of wells" in the portion of public land it wants. The AEC has taken water from wells on its present reservation and this has lowered the water table, Call added.

Farmers Come First

He said state law provides persons first in an area are entitled to the water and farmers have been using it a "lot longer" than the AEC.

The state senator said the commission desires the acreage now bordering on the northern end of the reservation. He made the observation after a group of landowners had asked why the testing station could not be expanded to the south.

Statements Taken

Call said the northern portion of land is perhaps the largest underground water irrigation project in the U.S.

Statements opposing and backing the AEC's request for land were taken during the Idaho Falls meeting and are being forwarded to the interior department, which will make the final ruling on whether the 144,000 acres of public land will be turned over to the station.

There are 75 species of North American violets found in the United States.

Red Disguise Is Suggested In Mine Talk

PRAGUE, July 13 (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev recommended today that Marx-Leninism be spread with butter to make it "even more tasty" to the world.

The Soviet communist party boss spoke to a mass meeting, well attended by miners and steel workers, in Moravská Ostrava, a Czechoslovak coal-steel center near the Polish frontier. The address was broadcast by the Czechoslovak radio.

Former Miner
Reminding the audience that he is an old miner himself, Khrushchev appeared to refer to the famed Georgi Malenkov, V. M. Molotov and Lazar Kaganovich in a castle observation.

"We have among us some Marxist scholars, real bookworms, who regard as prosaic the tasks we have set for ourselves, including the aim of catching up with the United States in the production of meat and milk."

Even More Tasty
"Now I ask you, would it be bad for us if we spread our Marx-Leninist teachings with a piece of butter? I say that with a good bread spread like that, Marx-Leninism would be even more tasty. And with good housing, with a better and more abundant life, with good schools we will win all the peoples for socialism and communism. That will spread and deepen the ideas of Marx-Leninism in the minds of the people."

Frequently interrupted by laughter and applause, he said: "Now there are richer countries in the world than we. Socialism is richer than we are today—they won't be tomorrow. Why? I'll tell you: Just as one cannot lead a birth when the time comes, so it is impossible to prevent the accession and replacement of capitalism and socialism."

Khrushchev told his Czech audience: "You have other political parties and I will not interfere with that, but we must be united on foundation of Marx-Leninism and the central pivot of this must be the communist party. Strengthen your communist party and do not ever let it become separated from the masses... Hungary should be a lesson for us so there shall be no repetition."

THE HELLS CANYON FIASCO
Now that those favoring a federal dam in Hells canyon are fighting desperately to escape final defeat, it's difficult to understand how anyone could admire them for their latest tactics.
When it's borne in mind that these public power fanatics who insist upon having their way lost their fight fairly and squarely 18 months ago after taking every advantage of the normal processes of government, their mad maneuvers make them look all the more ridiculous.
Now they are demonstrating beyond any doubt that with them it's public power or nothing. They're no longer concerned about the "great power shortage" over which they shed so many tears as far back as five years ago. So far as they are concerned, those short of power can wait another seven years until a federal dam is built. To them a socialized dam is everything. Nothing else matters.
The merits of the different proposals for developing Hells canyon were decided months ago after a year-long federal power commission hearing in which both sides of the controversy had every opportunity to present their arguments. The public power enthusiasts were not impressed when the FCC decided against them. Instead they turned the whole issue into a political brawl which comes close to making a mockery of government itself.
These same individuals who stop at nothing in circumventing all the established processes of government are the ones who in times past have assured Idaho farmers their water rights would be protected. If any of these Idaho farmers still believe this stuff after what has been going on in Washington the last several weeks, they had better have their heads examined.

It's unfortunate everyone in Idaho could not have attended the hearing of the house interior-sub-committee in Washington recently. The Idaho delegation which did go to Washington for the hearing not only opened the committee's eyes but made Gracie Frost, member of the committee and representative from north Idaho, look a little silly.
Each of these 24 delegates represented a substantial segment of Idaho's economy, including farming and industry. They asked the committee in effect how it could question the majority thinking in Idaho on the Hells canyon issue when those opposed to a federal high dam include Idaho's present governor, his immediate predecessor, the state reclamation association, the state's leading farm organizations, the canal companies and irrigation districts, all of the daily newspapers except one and all the weeklies except two, and the majority of the state's population in southern Idaho, which is served by the Idaho Power company. The delegates cited all this opposition in contrast to the small concentration of public power support in north Idaho in the vicinity of Lewiston, which has joined Oregon with the states of Washington and Oregon—an area not even served by the Idaho Power company.

Mrs. Frost and other federal dam advocates tried persistently to make it appear that the Idaho Power company's charge for industrial power "approximately 10-15 mills" but representatives of some of our largest and newest industries in southern Idaho challenged her with actual billings to show that their companies are paying Idaho Power a rate of approximately 4.5 mills.
Not only did these representatives of Idaho industry blow the public power arguments sky high, but they pointed out potential industry is far more concerned with Idaho's high tax rates than with the charges for industrial power. A federal dam, they insisted, would cancel out an additional 10 million dollars a year in tax revenue to state and federal governments, which the dams being built by the Idaho Power company would provide. It was significant that Idaho industry had joined hands with the farmers in their apprehension over a socialized dam. Not only does it fear a shortage of power for its own immediate use, but senses the danger of most of the power from a federal dam going into the states of Washington and Oregon in years to come. The farmers, of course, have feared for their water rights all along and now they have reason to be more concerned than ever before.

In any event, the story this Idaho delegation had to tell served a purpose. Even some of the Democrats on the committee no longer go for the old "high dam" line. They joined with the Republican minority in sufficient numbers to kill the bill in sub-committee.
Then the defeated high dam advocates, true to form, grasped at a new and even more distasteful strategy. When the bill came up for vote in the full committee, made up of the same membership as the subcommittee, plus two other members, they realized they still lacked the strength to win in a showdown. So instead of facing a showdown, they resorted to boycott by failure to appear.
Meantime these same forces introduced another bill to authorize construction of a federal dam by the army engineers instead of the reclamation bureau, as provided in the defeated measure.

"After the record," said Senator of the Interior Benton, "there never has been any reclamation in Hells canyon and now even the proponents admit it!"
After losing out through three previous sessions of congress, a year-long hearing before the federal power commission and in several appeals to the highest courts in the land; after the Idaho Power company has been granted a legitimate government license to proceed with construction and already has spent more than $37,000,000 in developing Hells canyon, the public power zealots are praying for political miracles.
We can understand why Washington and Oregon have gone to such great lengths in trying to gain federal control over our Snake river resources. It would make it so much easier for them to reap the lion's share of all the benefits.

But how Senator Church and Rep. Gracie Frost can work so eagerly helping the representatives from those states to take one of our richest possessions away from us is something for the average Idahoan to ponder. The voters of Idaho should be more careful in the future.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG
Every Sunday Ray Tucker answers readers' questions of general interest on national and international politics and personalities. Questions may be sent him at 7008 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.
WASHINGTON—Senator Kennedy's proposal for Algerian freedom from France an early stab at the Democratic presidential nomination? asks Mrs. D. L. of Lynn, Mass. "And what do you think will happen to it, in view of the administration's opposition?"
Answer: Not even Senator Kennedy's most severe critic accuses him of playing politics with this grave problem. In fact, he introduced a similar resolution with respect to French possessions in Indo-China several years ago. And there are very few Algerian voters in this country, if any.
Senator Kennedy, who is becoming one of the Democrats' most likely 1960 possibilities, did take unusual measures to gain publicity for Algerian aid. He sent copies in advance to every member of the senate, and to many newspaper correspondents. It is an innovation, and a good one. It gives his colleagues better background for questioning him during and after his floor speech.

POLITICAL IMPORTANCE—It seemed to me that prominent Republicans showed that they recognized the political importance of Kennedy's move, which was a direct thrust at administration policy on this question. Although praising his "courage" in bringing it up, they pointed out that the action he suggests would affront France, and possibly influence her to quit NATO. They had obviously been briefed beforehand by Secretary Dulles.
Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois, who has been mentioned as a Republican presidential possibility, even lugged in the factor that has been raised against Kennedy as a possible president—his youth. When the Bay State pointed out that Dirksen had supported his earlier resolution on Indo-China, but opposed him on Algeria, Kennedy suggested that "age and responsibility had sobered" the Illinoisan.

RESOLUTION ON ALGERIA MAY BE PIGEONHOLED—Sen. Dirksen, who once sponsored a resolution for an "undivided Ireland," although he says he has not a drop of Irish blood in him, replied: "I should like to say to my distinguished friend from Boston that at his age I would have been a member of the Boston Tea party, I am sure, and I am not so sure that I would not be today, even though a little older."

On the other hand, problems arising from "colonialism" and "imperialism" furnish Moscow with its most subtle propaganda. They may lead to future wars, as they did in Egypt a year ago, and previously in Indo-China and Korea.
Since the United States finances the Western alliance at heavy cost, and spends perhaps more than $36 billion a year on a worldwide protective military establishment, it is argued that we should have a voice in trying to eliminate or ameliorate situations that would provoke another world war.
If we must pay the bill in treasure and lives, according to this viewpoint, we have every right to keep it as low as possible. We should not be required to wage or finance wars precipitated by other nations' mistakes.

PLACING BLAME FOR INFLATION
It is bad news for all America that the United States Steel corporation is raising prices of steel $6 a ton.
Big steel and big steel labor are, more than any other single combination, responsible for inflation in the United States. Unions make inflationary demands, big steel companies grant them, and immediately pass on the increase to the public.
This is easy for steel to do, since the general practice in the steel industry is to follow the leader, which leaves purchasers of steel no alternative.
Because it is so easy for steel to increase its prices, there is small incentive for them to try to resist the demands of the United Steelworkers, the tremendous combine representing all of steel.
Other unions follow the pattern established by the United Steelworkers; other employers follow the pattern established by United States Steel, and the inflationary spiral takes another upward turn.
There are several flaws in this. First is that the inflationary spiral led by steel destroys the value of long-term investments, such as life insurance, savings and pensions. A dollar today will buy less than half of its value in 1941 when this spiral of inflation started.
Second, while it is easy for steel to increase its prices, it is not nearly so easy for thousands of other companies to increase theirs.
Steel can raise its price simply by sending a telegram to its customers.
Others in more competitive fields meet far more opposition.
Third, the spiral of inflation is terribly harmful for those on fixed salaries and fixed pensions and those whose incomes do not keep pace with the ever-increasing spiral.
If inflation is ever to be checked or brought under control, it must start with big steel and big steel labor. It will never be done until the leaders of both labor and management of the steel industry determine that they will do their part to hold down both wages and prices.
Advantages to the individual steelworker or to the steel companies are illusory so long as inflation eats up whatever gains they find in their pay envelope or their profits.
President Eisenhower very rightfully has declined to advocate either wage or price control. This does not mean, however, that he should not do the greatest thing within his power to check inflation, which is to use the tremendous moral pressure of his office to bring home facts of life to big steel unions and big steel management.
An effective check on inflation must start with those most responsible for it, the steel industry.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Idaho children about the first few grades, the Statesman implies, need more room.
Praises be, the Oregon board of education is not so arbitrary. There are regulations here governing aisle width and space between seats in school buses, but there is no limitation on seat width. The proper concern of a board of education, we submit, is the pupil's head, not the nether end.

WASHINGTON
By PETER EDSON
WASHINGTON, (NEA) — Some of the single high dam, approved by the senate, would have more fully developed the resources of the Snake. But because of its far greater cost there is justification for not going through with it.
If the government built the one high dam at Hells canyon it would mean that other projects in other parts of the country would have to be delayed. The government just can't raise the money to build them all at once.
This is the point on which long-range government power development policy becomes necessary. A Bonneville power administration survey last year showed that even when all public and private power projects now licensed and under construction, there will still be a shortage of 184,000 kilowatt capacity by 1954-55 and 1,194,000 kilowatt shortage by 1965-67.
To make up this shortage, the department of interior is now considering the building of a new, high, public power dam at Pleasant valley, below Hells canyon on the Snake River.
Lower costs and greater benefits are claimed for Pleasant valley than for Hells canyon. But if Pleasant valley is ever built, it would flood out a proposed third Idaho Power company low dam at Hells canyon and it would have to be abandoned.
This, in effect, is a proposed administration compromise with its own partnership policy and an attempt to compromise with the advocates of the single high dam at Hells canyon.
This whole situation is now clouded as proof that sometime there must be an end to a power policy dominated by politics.

Campaign Begun Against Vandals
SHOSHONE, July 13 — The local city park attendant, D. L. Stickney, will be deputized as a city police officer in an attempt to halt vandalism at the park.
Considerable damage was done this week to the men's restroom door from what appeared to be repeated kicking. The floor was littered with cigarette butts and other debris.
Because of the vandalism, the city park committee decided to have the doors to the restrooms locked at 6 p.m. each day unless arranged otherwise by persons holding picnics or parties at the park.

Eugene Burns
Zebra, Grass Use
Ostrich for Protection
The largest living bird in the world is the African ostrich. Furthermore, it is the only sizable flightless bird which lives in a country beset by large preying mammals such as lions.
And for good reason: Standing seven to eight feet tall and blessed with keen vision it can usually spy its foe; and then it can usually elude it by running. At full speed it has a stride of about 15 feet and can make around 40 miles an hour.
A curious aspect of the ostrich's life on the plains is that zebras and gnus often accompany it. Perhaps because of its height and keen vision, it is particularly sensitive to distant threats of danger and thus these mammals are able to achieve safety to a degree impossible by their own efforts and whenever the ostrich moves off warily, its "associates" follow its example.
Large ostriches weigh up to 300 pounds and can kick (forward, of course) with the power of a mule. It has been known to break a human's leg.
In times past, a much larger bird existed and not more than 5,000 years ago either. This was the elephant bird of Madagascar. Only fossil remains and eggs have been found. It may have been nine feet tall but its bones were massive and the bird must have weighed a half ton. Its eggs measured from 12 to 13 inches long and probably weighed about 18 pounds each.
The bird with the greatest wingspan is the wandering albatross which spends its whole life at sea, except to land only to have its young. This bird with the beautiful plumage, Diomedea exulans, has a span of 11 feet, 4 inches. Quite likely some unmeasured specimens may have exceeded a wingspan of 12 feet—the width of a good sized bedroom.
For hours at a time, this beautiful bird can glide effortlessly, keeping its wings nearly motionless as it flutters across the wind on a rising current and then gliding down in a rapid arc, then gliding again against the air, into the evening, present semistatic cushion of air clearing just above the ocean surface. Clearing into this cushion at the great speed it has gained on its downward descent in motion, the albatross achieves a violent impact which shocks it aloft again to tack across the wind. All this without wingbeats for hours at a time when there is a breeze stirring.
The largest flying bird is the South American condor which can soar up to 25,000 feet. Its wingspread of 10 feet is only exceeded by the wandering albatross, a slightly smaller condor, the California condor, is threatened with extinction—less than 50 being alive in remote canyon country of southern California where it is protected.
As for the U. S., the largest native waterfowl is the trumpeter swan which averages some 65 inches in length with a wingspread of 48 to 52 feet. The male averages around 28 pounds, the female, the lightest in the world is the male bee hummingbird of Cuba—the smallest feathered creature in the world. Its total length is something over two inches—but more than half of this consists of bill and tail. Ten of them weigh an ounce.

Evaluation of Test Made by Defense Chief

Too Early, Is Told
But they said it was "too early to tell" whether enough of the nation would be left to fight back effectively. Perhaps by Monday, they said, a solid estimate on this point could be made.

On Monday test officials jump the clock to an imaginary time 15 days after an H-bomb strike at the United States, Alaska, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands and the Panama canal zone. They hope to find out for the first time how effective their plans would be in dealing with problems of such a period.

Not Surprised
Berry said he was not surprised by the delays and confusion. He attributed them to the realistic air with which the exercise was launched.

In Washington, Representative Hollifield, D. Calif., said the drill was on a scale greatly reduced from last year and was "ineffective."

"This is a retreat," he said, "as evidenced by the lack of participation by government and various communities."

Tentative Figure
Territory holding more than half the population was estimated to have been struck in the mock attack. The tentative figure was 55,000,000 people in the target areas.

Officials insisted they were not compiling any specific figures on imagined casualties. They said such figures would be unrealistic since there was no way of knowing precisely the power of any real attack.

Preliminary Estimates
Officials gave preliminary estimates for each of the seven federal civil defense regions, including:

Region 6 (Great Plains)—24 targets; North Dakota 1, Nebraska 4, Wyoming 1, Minnesota 4, Kansas 5, Iowa 4, South Dakota 2, Colorado 3, Region 7 (West and territories)—22 targets; Montana 4, Washington 5, Utah 3, Oregon 1, California 3, Arizona 2, Alaska 1, Hawaii 2.

Low Pay of $901
Monthly Forcing
Navy Retirement

NORFOLK, Va., July 13 (AP)—The son of America's World War II Pacific fleet commander will receive the navy's Aug. 1 pension because he says his base pay and allowances of $901.25 a month remain the same.

Capt. Chester W. Nimitz, Jr., a veteran of 21 years' navy service, said Friday he will do industrial management work with a Dallas manufacturer.

Nimitz, 41, a 1936 graduate of the U. S. naval academy and now commander of the submarine tender USS Oriskany, has three daughters. His father doesn't want him to leave the navy, Nimitz said, but "he understands the situation. We haven't had a raise in three years."

The cost of living goes up as our purchasing power comes down."

Idaho Attorneys
Choose St. Clair

SUN VALLEY, July 13 (AP)—Gilbert C. St. Clair of Idaho Falls was elected president of the Idaho Bar Association Saturday, succeeding Willis E. Sullivan of Boise.

District Judge V. Spear of Coeur d'Alene was named vice president and "honorary" appointed District Judge Sherman Bellwood of Rupert commissioner.

Paul B. Ennis of Boise was re-elected executive secretary.

Gov. Robert E. Smylie flew from Boise to speak briefly to the lawyers at the concluding session of their annual convention.

Agreement Made
For Negotiations

LEWISTON, July 13 (AP)—Negotiating committees of the International Woodworkers of America and Potlatch Forests, Inc., reached a proposed contract agreement today.

The committees, meeting with a federal mediator here, agreed management and the union membership to accept the proposed contract. Spokesmen for the two committees groups declined to reveal terms of the pact.

Postoffice Opened
At Alameda Event

ALAMEDA, July 13 (AP)—A parade, open house and a pancake supper were featured Saturday to celebrate the opening of Alameda's new postoffice.

The building in this Potrero hill suburb was built by a private concern and is to be leased to the government.

Joseph H. Blandford, formerly of Twin Falls and now associate general counsel for the postoffice department in Washington, was the principal speaker.

Hotel Group Has
Policy on Negro

BALTIMORE, July 13 (AP)—The Hotel Association of Baltimore announced Friday its members had approved a policy of admitting Negro athletes and convention delegates.

The association's members, which include all major hotels in the city, had previously denied accommodations to all Negroes.

Beck and Son Face Trial on Theft Charge

SEATTLE, July 13 (AP)—The King county grand jury Friday indicted Teamster Dave Beck and his son, Dave Beck, Jr., on charges of grand larceny involving the sale of three union owned automobiles.

The grand jury quickly surmised that Beck had stolen the cars for routine booking. Then Beck posted $3,000 bail and called a press conference to denounce the action as "simply ridiculous as well as a complete surprise."

Dave, Jr., went through the ritual, too, but didn't attend the conference at which his dad said he spoke for both.

Saturday, after saying there wasn't "a chance in a million" he would be convicted, Beck left on a tour of the nation which will take him to a half dozen union meetings around the country.

The grand jury, which sat a total of 15 days and heard 55 witnesses, indicted no other persons although it considered a number of other matters. It did, however, return a lengthy report lamenting its inability to do more because of "inadequate laws" and the statute of limitations.

Beck, Sr., the jurors charged, kept for his own use $1,900 received for a union-owned Cadillac. Beck, Jr., the jurors declared in two separate indictments, kept $4,650 from the sale of two other teamster Cadillacs.

"It isn't so," said the father indignantly at a press conference—not "by the widest stretch of the imagination."

Certainly, he said, the money from the sale of the three automobiles had found its way into his own bank account or safe where he keeps "large amounts of cash."

His secretary put it there by error, Beck explained.

But, he said emphatically, the money was returned to the union "as soon as I returned from a business trip and found out the error had been made."

Dave, Jr., the father said, was "acting only as my agent. He had nothing to do with the final disposal of the money in any way, shape or form." Besides, the union president said, "Dave turned all of the money over to the union. He didn't keep a cent."

Maximum penalty for grand larceny is 15 years in prison.

Hearings Set on Cigarette Claims

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—The effect of cigarette smoking on health will be probed by a house government operations subcommittee opening hearings Thursday on federal advertising controls.

Medical specialists and the U. S. surgeon general are among witnesses expected to testify, Chairman Bland, D. Md., said Saturday.

The inquiry, he said, will be "directed toward the advertising of filter cigarettes and claims for their effectiveness—and to what action the federal government has taken in protecting the public through enforcement against false and misleading advertising."

The public spends an extra half billion dollars daily for filters on cigarettes, Bland said, and "we want to find out if the public is receiving the protection they are paying for."

"If the public is being fooled," he added, "we want to find out why the appropriate federal agencies have not done something about it."

Fishy Story

DES MOINES, July 13 (AP)—Two lifeguards at the Avon lake swimming beach here didn't go fishing Friday but they caught three big fish anyway.

Charles White and Dale Shawan dived to the bottom of the lake and reeled a rusty 50-gallon barrel which once had served as a float around the swimming area.

When they beached the barrel they found it contained three 10-pound catfish, 35, 22 and 17 pounds. The fish got in the barrel but apparently couldn't get out.

Carloadings Drop In Pacific Region

SEATTLE, July 13 (AP)—The Pacific Northwest Advisory board reports a drop of 10.2 per cent in Pacific Northwest carloadings in June, compared with a year ago.

For the first six months of 1957, total carloadings were 5.9 per cent under 1956.

The agency's figures cover Washington, Oregon and North Idaho. The sharpest drops for June were in grain and grain products and in logs. The grain category had 5,871 carloadings, compared with 10,375 in June last year, but the six-month total was up to 46,559 from last year's 40,501.

Log loadings dropped to 21,654 from last June's 27,274. Log carloadings totaled 83,543 for the six months, compared with 98,135 a year ago.

Dividend Declared

DENVER, July 13 (AP)—Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company today declared its quarterly dividend of $1.65 per share of common stock.

Walter K. Koch, president, said earnings for the three months ended May 31 amounted to $2.27 per share. Koch said the company, operating in eight western states, added 57,000 telephones in the first six months of this year, raising the total in service to 1,862,000.

MID REPORTED

BOISE, July 13 (AP)—Peter Klewit and Sons of Idaho Falls submitted the apparent low bid of $290,032 among five bidders for grading 4.9 miles of the Lewis and Clark highway east of Kootenai, the bureau of land management reported Saturday.

Models Built by T. F. Youths Win Prizes

This model car built by William Marks, 201 Eighth avenue east, was judged first place winner in Idaho, then won regional honors in the senior division of the 1957 competition of the Fisher Body Craftsmen's guild. As first prize for Idaho, Marks will receive $150. As regional winner for Idaho, Wyoming and Montana, he will receive an expensive trip to Detroit July 30 when his model will compete with other regional winners for university scholarships totaling $28,000. (Staff engraving)

TIMES-NEWS PUBLIC FORUM—VOICE OF THE READER

Commendation Given for Bold Talk on Long-Ignored Subject

Editor, Times-News: I would like to commend the Times-News and KLLX for speaking boldly on a subject that has been ignored for too long.

In the small towns the traffic violations are even more flagrant than they are in Twin Falls. Last fall our 4-year-old was hit by a car that turned our corner much too fast into a street full of children. Our child got off with a broken leg but it required immediate surgery and he is wearing a steel plate that may eventually have to be removed, entailing surgery.

So far it has cost us $600 for hospital and doctor expense. But we could collect nothing from the driver of the car as he was a migrant worker who carried no insurance. Our county officials shrugged their shoulders and said if we wanted to go to the expense of a law suit we could try it but would probably get nowhere as the man owned nothing and would probably leave the state in the event of a law suit.

I wrote to Boss myself to ask the financial responsibility division to do something about it and our local sheriff was finally notified to suspend his license. That, however, did not stop this person from driving—he merely went ahead with his job (which was driving a truck) without a license. Our sheriff and deputy were informed that this was the case but they were too attached to their soft seats in the courthouse to bother watching for him.

I sit near my livingroom window and watch the drag-race around our block each Sunday afternoon. (During the week, too, but Sundays are the worst.) Often they are too intoxicated to walk, therefore they must drive. They are not all teenagers, either; they range from 12 to 20, but are using the knowledge that the only officer we have in Eden with a car is the deputy sheriff and he can't be bothered picking up traffic offenders. If he is called he states that the village justice is not his business and refers you to the constable and night watchman, both of whom are on foot.

Our town, as is the case with many other small ones, has no sidewalks, therefore it is not only children who are in the streets, but anyone who walks is at the mercy of these maniacs turned loose with powerful weapons.

Why can't Idaho have a financial responsibility law with some teeth in it? If these drivers are children they should not be allowed to drive cars. If, on the other hand, they are old enough to drive, they should have to be responsible for their actions. Why not a law which requires a person to show financial responsibility before they are licensed to drive? This would entail the revision of the license so that it would be marked with the code letters identifying for the officers the type of insurance and the name of the company. Liability insurance for at least $10,000 should be the minimum or proof of personal collateral.

A law of this type should also be a help to the insurance companies as most parents of teen-agers will swear to their insurance agent that their teen-agers do not drive their cars to avoid paying higher rates. Also, it would eliminate many of the teen-age drivers as quite a few parents would refuse or be unable to pay the extra premium to allow their children to drive.

Chief Gillette's approach to the problem seems to me to be an attempt to smooth the ruffled feathers of an irate public so that the drag-racing may continue in a "normal" manner.

I realize that I will be accused of bias on account of my personal firsthand experience, but I am greatly incensed by this legalized murder and have been for a long time. Please keep on with your courageous stand until some of the officials are moved out of their rocking chairs and onto the streets which they are paid to patrol.

Church Praised For His Vote on High Dam Plans

Editor, Times-News: After reading so much criticism about Senator Church and his vote on Hells canyon, I feel I should come to his defense.

When he got lost in the California smog and teamed with the Republican floor leader, Senator Knowland, and voted to bypass the regular committee which has been a legislative precedent for years, even Senator Morse would not go with him.

A sponsor of Hells canyon for years, he killed Hells canyon and

Do You Believe In God, Woman Asking Parents

Editor, Times-News: Do you believe in God? How many of you parents go to church and practice the Golden Rule the rest of the week? How many of you teen-agers go to church?

No one who believes in God is going to deliberately go out and endanger their lives or anyone else's. We always have a choice. We can practice being as good as we can be or as rotten as we can be. We can see nothing but faults in people or we can see good.

Our lives can be made up of little things which please others or little things which hurt. Anyway you look at it, you have a choice.

God permits you to do wrong but you don't have to. For every wrong that you do it will come back to you twice as hard. For every right you will do you will be paid the same.

Take, for instance, the teen-age vs. parents. Who is right and who is wrong? All of you can answer that question but will you be willing to correct it? Again you have a choice. You can pretend you are at fault and try to correct it. A horse can be led to the water but he can't be made to drink unless he wants to.

We have a beautiful world to live in. Why must so many of you only see darkness instead of light; had instead of good; hate and defiance instead of love and trust?

Have none of you ever gotten up early and looked at the beauty around you? Have any of you looked at your children and really seen them or are they just brats to you that keep you broke?

For heaven's sake, take a good look at yourselves and if your house needs cleaning and aired out, do it. Don't wait till tomorrow because it never comes.

He Asks People's Cooperation To Halt Needless Fire Wastes

Editor, Times-News: I would like to take advantage of your column in making a plea to your readers to help put a halt to the needless loss of property and man hours caused by the careless burning of cheat grass and weeds. Due to the heavy rainfall in the spring which caused an unusually dense growth of the grass, and the extremely dry weather we have had these past 30 days the vegetation is in a highly combustible state, and needs only a lighted match or a carelessly dropped cigarette to start a holocaust that can sweep through an entire set of buildings in a matter of minutes.

The other evening a fire jumped an unbelievable distance from its origin to ignite a house and the surrounding lawn. Luckily, with the help of three fire departments the house was saved from total destruction, but the loss of hay, and other property was severe and replacing them will be a hardship to the owners.

During the month of June alone one company paid over $500 to the volunteer firemen for the hours they spent manning its five rural fire trucks, some of which made as many as three runs a day to rural fires outside the city and village limits. The fire hazard exists not only in rural areas, but in the towns as well, where thoughtless burning in vacant lots and backyards flares out of control and poses a threat to the buildings and houses of the area.

A number of the county fires this year have been fires that were supposedly out, a slight wind, and they are again endangering valuable property. If the property owners or renters of this county, and surrounding counties would take the

He Says Highway Between T. F. and Burley Miserable

Editor, Times-News: Just how many people have to be killed before the road to Burley is re-routed and constructed? I have been traveling this road to work and in the last two weeks we have come upon three wrecks minutes after they have occurred.

Luckily in the first two accidents no one was killed. But, then, Tuesday afternoon, in the third accident, two people lost their lives in a gory head-on collision.

Coming onto this scene where the life blood of two people was strewn over the road was sickening. How long, O people, are we going to sit and wait for our telephones to ring telling us that one of our loved ones will never be home?

Solution: A four-lane "highway" to Burley "direct and level" to carry the increasingly heavy traffic with more safety. Ask the officers who investigated the accident how heavy the traffic is and how many cars were held up by the accident.

Do you like the highway to Jerome? Let's have a highway to Burley.

VANCE WHITESIDES (Twin Falls)

Concern Expressed Over Note Written by Driver at Burley

Editor, Times-News: I note with much concern the letter signed by Joyce Thompson, Box 428, Burley, which appeared in the Public Forum in your July 7 issue.

First, I must agree with Miss Thompson in her complimentary attitude toward Chief Gillette and his staff of efficient officers. However, I cannot condone her attitude toward the Burley police department. With this thought in mind, I have done a little checking on my own and ascertained that she and her companion were not stopped by the Burley police because of noisy pipes; they were stopped because of negligent driving. She further alleges that the investigating officers, while talking to them, allowed another car to proceed with, in her words "its pipes really loud."

We must understand that when an officer has stopped a car and is talking to the occupant he cannot drop the present matter to apprehend another violator. No doubt the investigating officers checked on this other car later, which is the logical thing to do under the circumstances.

My candid comments about our local police department can only be of the highest caliber in that I have known, personally, all officers for many years and know the conscientiousness of their work. I am not alone when I say that Chief George E. Warrell is one of the finest men I have ever known; that his integrity is above reproach; that his sincerity is genuine and by this nature he insists that all his men do likewise.

Mr. Warrell, to my knowledge, has always been sympathetic to all teen-agers. For the benefit of the teen-agers he has organized such teen-age clubs as the Road Knights,

Miss Schultz Is Guest of Group

Florence Schultz was guest at the annual mothers luncheon of the Mutual Society 4-H club Wednesday at Harmon park.

"How to prepare and arrange a relish plate" was the theme of the demonstration given by Sandra Smith and Cecilia Huddleson.

Each girl brought a covered dish, individual table service and ingredients for punch.

The U. S. army nurse corps, oldest of the women's military services, was established in 1901.

Pay Is Asked on Promissory Note

A balance of $85.04 allegedly due on a promissory note is sought in a civil complaint filed Saturday in Twin Falls probate court by K. A. Moore and R. S. Rhees, doing business as the Idaho Finance company, against Oren F. Teter and Wanda Teter.

Interest totaling $13.01 also is sought. The company is represented by H. N. Jewell, Twin Falls attorney.

Ike, Pakistan Chief Discuss World Issues

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Suhrawardy of Pakistan said Saturday international communism continues to be a "major threat" to the security of the free world.

In a two-page joint statement, the two leaders expressed determination to support and strengthen collective security systems in Asia and the Middle East.

They also expressed belief that international disarmament agreements, if provided with effective safeguards, would contribute not only to world security but also to material progress.

The joint statement referred to Pakistan's long-standing dispute with India over Kashmir.

Eisenhower expressed hope that the disagreement would be solved "speedily, equitably and permanently in accordance with the principles of the United Nations."

The statement said Eisenhower assured the Prime Minister that Pakistan's request to purchase U. S. surplus good grains would be given sympathetic and quick consideration as soon as continuation of the program has been approved by congress.

Chemical Studied for Use as 'Invisible' Lid on Reservoir

DENVER, July 13 (AP)—A chemical commonly used in cosmetics, hexadecanol, holds promise as an invisible lid on water reservoirs.

The chemical film slows evaporation. If tests being conducted in Colorado by the U. S. bureau of reclamation prove successful, hexadecanol would save billions of gallons annually for city water systems.

Experiments involve smearing a super-thin layer of hexadecanol on a lake's surface. Many cosmetics include hexadecanol, which is supposed to keep milady's skin smooth.

Charles Fisk, chief Denver water engineer working with bureau of reclamation experts, said there are "good possibilities" for reducing air water loss from 25 to 30 per cent.

Town Plagued by 'Runaway' Trucks

DUNSMUIR, Calif., July 13 (AP)—This mountain town looked hopefully to the state capital today for relief from its chronic danger—runaway trucks barreling down U. S. highway 99 into Main street.

The latest example Friday killed one man, seriously injured two others and sent five to hospitals for treatment of minor injuries.

Runaway trucks—their brakes go out as they come down a straight three-mile grade off the Mt. Shasta highlands—are becoming commonplace. Friday was the third in two weeks to bear down like a juggernaut on this town of 5,000 people built in a cleft of the mountains at the head of Sacramento valley.

Mayor J. Morgan Jones telephoned Sacramento immediately and was promised state highway and public utility commission officers will come to Dunsmuir soon to confer with city officials on remedying the situation.

U. S. Sees Smaller Harvest of Onions

BOISE, July 13 (AP)—Idaho and Eastern Oregon onion growers expect to harvest about 4,600 acres, compared to 4,700 last year, the U. S. department of agriculture said Saturday.

In Idaho, the acreage for harvest was estimated at 1,900 which is 200 less than last year. The department said some 400 acres were abandoned because of insect damage and poor stands.

Ex-News Woman Dies in Pocatello

POCATELLO, July 13 (AP)—Mrs. Sarah K. Hutchinson, for 17 years women's editor of the Daily Idahoan at Moscow and widow of a former University of Idaho basketball coach, died here Friday night.

Mrs. Hutchinson died in her sleep of a cerebral hemorrhage at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Stacey Smith. She was here on a week's vacation and had appeared in good health earlier in the day.

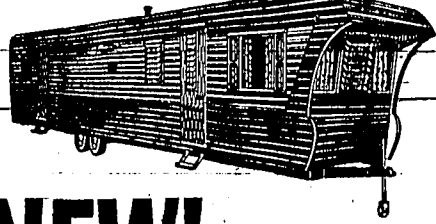

She went to Moscow in the early 1930s when her husband, Ralph Hutchinson, was appointed baseball coach and trainer at the university there. He joined the Idaho staff after coaching all sports at Idaho Technical Institute, now Idaho State college, in Pocatello.

Action Shelved

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—Congressional action on a key feature of President Eisenhower's foreign economic policy has been indefinitely postponed.

The house ways and means committee, it was learned today, has voted to shelve for this session the administration's request for approval of U. S. membership in the 35-nation organization for trade co-operation.

Crash Victim Only Bruised Friday Night

A 19-year-old girl was treated for bruises at the Idaho Valley Memorial hospital Friday night and released Saturday as the result of a 70-car collision at the county road intersection two miles west and one mile south of Twin Falls.

Friday night, Eleanor Anderst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Anderst, route 2, Filer, was hospitalized for injuries believed to be "possible fractured hip." Saturday hospital attendants said the girl was bruised and was released to go home at noon. Her mother was treated for a broken rib and released Friday night.

They were passengers in a 1956 Ford driven by Anderst which was struck in the right side by a 1952 Buick driven by Roy R. Jessor, 31, route 3, Twin Falls.

Deputy Sheriff Wesley Anna, who investigated, reported Jessor said the sun was in his eyes when he approached the intersection and he did not see the Anderst car until the last moment. He skidded 26 feet before colliding with the Ford.

Deputy Anna reported the Anderst car was going east and the Jessor vehicle was travelling north at the time of the collision.

Estimated damage to the Ford was $800. Damage to the other car was estimated at about $500. No other injuries were reported.

Western Road Problem Meet Ends in Boise

BOISE, July 13 — The 11 Western states' delegates moved into discussion Saturday of reciprocal agreements on the licensing and taxing of motor vehicles.

The morning convention session ended a meeting of the Western Interstate Committee on Highway Policy Problems. Members are state administrators and legislators.

A Washington state administrator, Highway Director W. A. Bugge, advised delegates Friday to keep their state highway departments strong in spite of the growth of federal road construction.

Using the multibillion-dollar interstate highway construction project as an example, he said there has been a "disturbing" trend of communities taking their road problems direct to Washington and by-passing state officials.

"It is our money we are expending and it is the state's responsibility to determine how it is spent," he said.

Bryce Bennett, Idaho state highway engineer, said the huge interstate program had created a personnel problem for states with smaller highway departments.

Bennett said Idaho will find its highway expenditure doubled to 30 million dollars next year by the interstate program. He said the state is seeking to overcome the shortage of engineers in its own department by using the services of consulting engineers.

Briton Notes Problem for All Churches

Mr. Banks said he felt that "rock and roll" was just a passing stage and like the Charleston of the "Roaring Twenties" would probably fade out before long.

Outwardly enthusiastic about his visit to the United States, he said he felt "wonderfully privileged" and that he was extremely pleased with Twin Falls.

The Rev. Mr. Banks was born in 1922 in Lancashire, England, a son of a Methodist minister. He attended the University College of the University of London and received his bachelor of arts degree in 1948.

In 1947 he enrolled at the University of Cambridge, where he was graduated with another bachelor's degree in 1949. During his stay at both institutions, he majored in English.

Following his ordination in 1950, the Rev. Mr. Banks went to Edinburgh Central church in London as a junior minister. In 1954, after receiving a master's degree in divinity from Cambridge, he went to Birmingham with the responsibility of supervising the building of a new $240,000 church and establishing a new Methodist congregation.

Listing music and youth work as his specialties, the Rev. Mr. Banks was one of 10 ministers selected to broadcast over British broadcasting and television networks. He has been a prison chaplain and a school chaplain and is presently chairman of the local council of churches in Birmingham.

Selection of ministers to represent England in the exchange program is done by a board of ministers in London. Qualifications for acceptance are carefully screened so that the "right" man is sent to do the job.

The candidate must be from a church where the British church situation is typified, he must be the kind of person who would learn and benefit from such a trip, he must be a good ambassador, and he must be relatively young, the Rev. Mr. Banks said.

Those selected to participate in the program are picked from a large group of outstanding ministers from all over England. To survive the tough qualification criteria and represent England overseas, is an exceptionally high honor.

The Rev. Mr. Banks will be shown scenic attractions of Magic Valley and will be taken through all industrial areas. Through this medium of traveling the Rev. Mr. Banks feels that a better insight to the American average man may be attained. With this "closeness" to the Americans, he may better interpret America to his congregation in England, he points out.

Following his five-day stay in Twin Falls, the Rev. Mr. Banks and his wife, are planning to travel to California for more sight-seeing.

Oregon Solon Is Accused of Urging Revolt

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—Rep. B. Carroll Reece, R., Tenn., complained today that a fellow congressman, accompanied by a lady expert of the Library of Congress, has been making trips to Latin America for the purpose of stirring up revolution.

The expert, comely Roylla Bennett, replied she has been merely carrying out official duties assigned to her by her superiors. A Spanish-speaking specialist on Latin America, she said she is a non-partisan government employee who can be assigned to assist any congressman.

The man Reece named as "revolution-bent" is Rep. Charles O. Porter, D., Ore., a one-time Republican national committee chairman, has been riled for some time over criticism which Porter has been making of Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo, strongman of the Dominican Republic.

Porter has linked the Dominican government with the much-publicized disappearances of a Trujillo son, Dr. Jesus de Gálvez in New York, and Oregon filer Gerald Murphy, in the island republic itself. Porter is trying to get foreign aid cut off from all Latin American "dictatorships."

Reece, who has made previous speeches on the subject, said in a speech inserted in today's Congressional Record that Porter "appears to have used his office for the purpose of advocating the violent overthrow of the Dominican government."

Idaho's Alert Is Successful

BOISE, July 13 (AP)—Idaho's civil defense director said today the state's participation in Operation Alert was generally successful, but showed that officials still have some things to learn about how to cope with disaster.

"We got a little fouled up, but this is the first time these people have worked together," said Rear Adm. William C. Specht, retired naval officer.

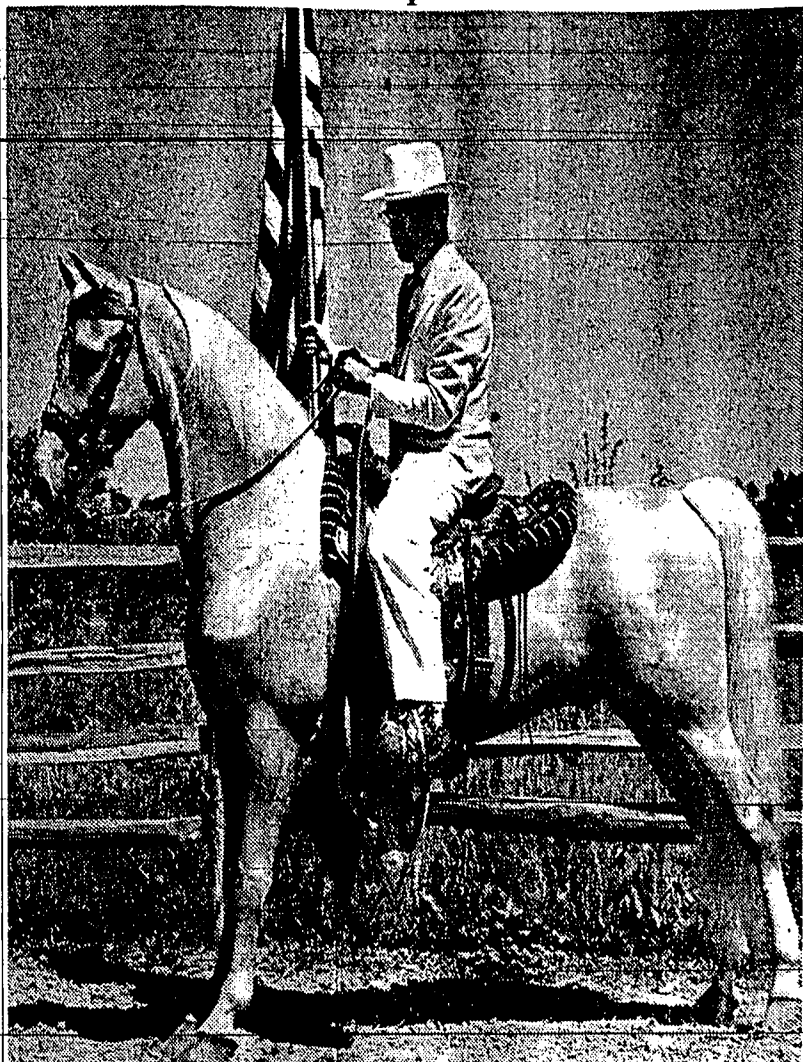

Specht said he thought the communication network performed "very well." There were responses from "at least half, and maybe more" of Idaho's 44 counties which were alerted for mock disaster, he said.

"From all reports there must have been quite a little activity in the various counties," he added.

One mixup occurred when Idaho sent replies to Santa Rosa, Calif., civil defense headquarters some messages which actually originated in the Idaho center here. The messages were intercepted into the exercise by Col. Philip Doddridge, former Idaho civil defense director who had the job of making up the problems Idaho faced.

Airman's Death Is Investigated

TOKYO, July 13 (AP)—The U. S. fifth air force said a young U. S. air policeman died on Okinawa Friday, apparently of gunshot wounds.

He was identified as Airman John H. Lannon, 19, of Jerome, Idaho, whose wife, Betty, lives in Oakland, Calif.

A fifth air force spokesman said Lannon's body was found at his guard post at Kadena air base and one shot was missing from his .45 caliber pistol.

There was no evidence of foul play, the spokesman said. He added he had no further details. He said an investigation is under way in Okinawa.

Farm Wages Hit Record in State

BOISE, July 13 (AP)—Farm wages in Idaho are at an all-time high, the U. S. department of agriculture reported Saturday.

The average wage rate per month with house is $233, the department said, compared to $227 a year ago. With board and room, it is $183, slightly higher than a year ago.

The rate per day without board and room increased from $9.20 in July of 1956 to $9.70. The average hourly rate without board and room was up 6 cents per hour to $1.12.

In another report, the department predicted an Idaho hop crop of 4,080,000 pounds, compared to 3,564,000 last year.

PEAK HAS PHONES

Twenty-six phones were installed, operating over a radio-telephone circuit.

Speedup Eyed By Magistrate In Hoffa Trial

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—Federal District Judge Burnita S. Matthews has moved to speed the conspiracy-outrage trial of Midwest Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa.

The trial was in recess Saturday but Judge Matthews said Saturday sessions will be scheduled from now "until we finish it."

No reason for the speedup was announced, but presumably one factor is that the 15 jurors—12 regulars and three alternates—are locked up when the trial is not in session.

Four FBI agents appeared Friday to back up testimony of the government's key witness, John C. Chastity, that he acted as a "spy" for Hoffa while actually working in behalf of the senate racket investigating committee.

Three of the agents testified they overheard Chastity talking on the phone to Hoffa and Hyman I. Fischback, Miami attorney, on various occasions. But the agents insisted that no recording devices of any kind were used and that they could not hear what was said at the other end of the line.

Hoffa and Fischback are accused of bribing Chastity, a New York lawyer-investigator, to get a job with the racket committee and feed its secrets to them.

BURBANK, Calif., July 13 (AP)—Some things Mayor Edward Olson said Friday, just can't be explained.

"You know him, probably the only Democrat here."

A fuse blew, the public address microphone went dead, and the hall was plunged into darkness.

Police Arrest Socialite Son In Hoax Case

MINEOLA, N. Y., July 13 (AP)—A strange tale of threats and extortion attempts, which kept investigating police busy for a month in two states, has led to the arrest of socialite Billy Hitchcock, 18-year-old son of the famous filer and polo star, Tommy Hitchcock.

The youth, who could give no explanation for faking the series of adventures, was arrested Friday at his Long Island home.

Booked Saturday on a charge of impeding an officer, he pleaded innocent. The charge is a misdemeanor and carries a maximum penalty of a year in jail.

Nassau county police said Hitchcock's phony reports started June 13. He telephoned the police to say that his car had been forced off the road by other cars. Occupants of the other cars, Hitchcock told the police, shouted at him and in one instance he thought a shot was fired at him.

As many as nine officers were assigned to the case at one time, Nassau county police said, and their efforts to solve the rapidly developing mystery extended into two states.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown fashioned with a lace-over-satin bodice and long, lily-point sleeves, for the veil of nylon net was held in place by a halo of orange blossoms and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations and white stephanotis surrounding a white orchid, tied with white satin streamers.

Carol Jacobsen was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a gown of green tulle. Jeraldine Jacobsen, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a matching tulle dress in pink. They carried nosegays of white carnations tied with large bows matching their dresses. Joan Jacobsen, sister of the bride, was a flower girl. ## Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI

Explaining, reasoning, persuading a child of 3 years of age is usually useless. A sturdy boy of 3, taller and heavier than his playmates, is rough with them, pushes them over, whacks them with whatever comes to hand when they oppose him. Don't bother to talk to this child, to "reason" with him. Just take action.

What does he need to teach him how to behave in play with others? This sort of child, bigger, heavier, more aggressive than the others, needs the experience of playing with children as big and as heavy and as aggressive as he. He will find such in the nursery school. One child can teach another faster and more effectively than any adult can teach him in this field.

Meantime, suppose there is no such way out? Still, reasoning with him will only tire the reasoner and leave him just as he was. Watch him. If that is not possible at times take him into the house at the first complaint and keep him away from his playmates for a few days, long enough to allow him to feel loneliness, to feel the need of companionship.

He will change when experiences like this are repeated with the cool remark, "When you learn how to get along with other children you can play with them. Not before. You can't go about whacking people. They won't like it." That's all. Don't explain and explain to a 3-year-old. Experiences are what he needs to Jim Purves paced a field of 25 in the qualifying rounds Friday for the start Junior Chamber of Commerce junior golf tournament.

Purves, with a par 72, along with Robb Smith, 79, and Vance Whitesides, 81, will represent Twin Falls at the Idaho meet at Lewiston next week-end.

Just out of the running were Bob Widman and Dave Hanner, who each posted 82's. The rest of the field was above 90.

The three low qualifiers gained the right to compete in Lewiston, which is a stepping stone in the national tourney, culminating in Columbus, O., next month. From all entries in Idaho, the four low men will be sent to the national meet, which will be held on the Ohio state golf course, reports Williams.

In addition to trying to qualify for the national tournament, the three local entries will be out to win the state team trophy which is presented each year. Williams explains the team competition is strictly an "extra" and is offered only as an incentive.

Qualifying scores Friday were off the usual pace because of wind and a minor shower that caught most of the field midway through the second round. Purves managed to score a better round in the bad weather, coming in with 34 after going out in 38.

"The wind and rain undoubtedly cost most of the players a few strokes," Williams said, "and we are satisfied with the totals. But it will take better golf than that to win at Lewiston," he smiled.

Williams and the three boys will leave for the state meet Thursday. Friday is reserved for practice rounds, but Saturday and Sunday the entries play 54 holes to decide the champions.

Braves Breeze Past Russsets By 6-4 Score

IDAHO FALLS, July 13 (AP)—Boise's Braves put together four singles and two walks for four runs Saturday night in the fourth inning and then coasted to a 6-4 Pioneer league victory over the Idaho Falls Russsets.

The Braves scored one tally in the first frame on a sacrifice fly that brought in a runner. The four runs came as Lou Bala's single was followed by two bases on balls, two singles that brought in two and one run each and another single to mark the final score.

Boise got an insurance run in the top of the ninth as Maurice Lerner doubled and came in on an error.

The Russsets couldn't do a thing until the fourth stanza, when they got a single run when Moe Benedict singled in Jay Cooke. They collected one in the seventh on a single and, with two away in the eighth, Wendell Antoine's double was followed by Moe Benedict's triple for two scores.

Giles Fines Four Players for Part In Free-for-All

CINCINNATI, July 13 (AP)—President Warren C. Giles of the National league Friday fined four Cincinnati and Brooklyn players $100 each for Thursday night's brawl in Brooklyn and said he would not tolerate any more fighting on the baseball diamond. Don Hoak and Raul Sanchez of the Cincinnati Redlegs and Junior Gilliam and Charley Neal of the Dodgers were the men punished. Hoak, who said he would "get" Neal in the ball park or outside, was given a special warning by Giles.

Managers Are Puzzled Over Brawl Edict

BROOKLYN, July 13 (AP)—Puzzled by National league president Warren Giles' edict making them responsible for any fight involving their players, managers Burke Tebbets of Cincinnati and Walt Alton of Brooklyn declared today they may be helpless to comply with his order.

Giles sent special bulletins to Tebbets, Alton and the six other National league managers warning them they would be held responsible for any repetition of Thursday night's brawl between Brooklyn and Cincinnati players.

"It's no good to make us responsible," Tebbets said, "unless they put in a rule that any players not involved in the fight, who come on the field, be thrown out of the game."

"I say let the umpires, coaches and managers break up the fight. Then there would be no difficulty. Otherwise, someone is going to be injured. If they put in the rule, suggest and I still can't control my players, then I'd be remiss."

Alton said he didn't see how any manager could control his players once a free-for-all breaks out. "What am I supposed to do when someone pokes one of my players?" he asked. "Am I supposed to tell my player not to retaliate because I'm to be held responsible?"

"I can talk to my players," Alton added, "but after that what can I do. What can any manager do when there are 50 players running for each other?"

"What am I supposed to do when there are 50 players running for each other?" Alton added, "but after that what can I do. What can any manager do when there are 50 players running for each other?"

Aluminum Paint Changing Perrine Memorial Bridge

Photographed from the south side of the Perrine Memorial bridge, this picture shows the extent of the work accomplished during the painting project now under way. Light portion on far side of the bridge is that which has been coated with aluminum paint by employees of I. E. McMillin, Caldwell contractor, during the month they have been working. The project is about half completed. (Staff photo-engraving)

Painting Contractor, Crew Having
'High Old Time' on Perrine Bridge

I. E. McMillin, painting crew and McMillin too have a high old time of it every hour they work nowadays.

It's not the kind of a high time most people would like, either, for throughout the day at least two of the men crouch from a scaffold beneath the Perrine Memorial bridge and another being slowly lowered down the 100- or more yard leg supporting the span McMillin, a painting contractor from Caldwell, and his crew of six are busily painting a new silver coat on the Snake river span north of Twin Falls. It's the first time the bridge has been completely painted since it was built in 1927.

Painting the 1400-foot span across the canyon might seem an unhandy job. It is weather hampers the painting operations and it's risky to send a workman down the side for a descent of sometimes more than 400 feet when the wind is blowing a gale. Weather, in fact, has delayed McMillin's work for more than a week during the month he's been on the job.

Paint Being Sprayed
Briefly, the bridge-painting operation glimpsed by the hundreds of motorists who traverse the span daily and sometimes mutter because of the one-way traffic, amounts to spraying every foot of steel with pressure spray equipment. Previously, the painters had scraped and smoothed the rusted portions of the steelwork and painted them with red lead.

McMillin, who has painted dozens of bridges from Twin Falls to Puyallup, doesn't specialize in bridges. He bids on whatever project comes along, but it seems that most of them are bridges. He's painted granaries, and when he was starting out, had his share of flagpoles.

Flagpoles, he says for the record, make painting the high bridge seem easy.

"It's one thing to be lowered down the side of a bridge leg, but it's another to sit perched along a high flagpole when a heavy wind whips it five feet back and forth."

Crew Picked Carefully
Nevertheless it's considered risky business on the rim-to-rim bridge and the Caldwell contractor has picked his crew carefully. Not everyone is capable of working at the height required on this project.

"Usually you can tell from the look in a man's eye whether he'll be able to stand the height," comments McMillin. "We try to screen the applicants first, but the final step, when they get into the boson's chair to be lowered over the side, is the one that usually makes them draw back."

One prospective bridge painter, he recalls, was ready to go to work. "When he swung one leg over the railing, he drew it back, walked off the bridge and that's the last we saw of him."

The boson's chair in which the painter is strapped for his slow descent along the bridge legs or supports is lowered by a strand of heavy steel cable. Air hose for the spray accompanies him and the whole load is operated by a winch on a truck.

Work on Scaffolds
Other painters climb over the bridge railing and paint the steel framework from scaffolds.

Other crew members have their work to do topside. Among them is Glenn Young, Nampa, a former Rupert man, who operates a winch. Young is a veteran of World War II and the Korean conflict and at one time was pretty handy himself at climbing steel.

"But not any more," he said, "looking over the side of the bridge at Snake river 476 feet below. 'The last time I climbed a steel structure I fell 75 feet and broke both feet. That high stuff isn't for me any more.'"

Another member of the topside crew is John Holland, the flagman who directs traffic. Holland lives near his work—as a matter of fact, he lives about 400 feet below, on a small acreage at the bottom of the canyon on the south side.

Recently, Robert Francis, Twin Falls, and Ben Hardy, Caldwell, have been alternating on the boson's chair phase of the project. While one is painting along a bridge leg, the other stays on top to aid with the hose and other parts of the work.

Meanwhile, McMillin dally keeps one eye on the work and the other eye on the weather. If the weather remains favorable, he says, the job shouldn't take longer than another month.

Robert Francis, Twin Falls, prepares to descend the length of a "leg" of the Perrine Memorial bridge during the painting project now under way. The steel framework Francis is preparing to paint is more than 300 feet high, and it's a long way to the bottom. Francis uses cold cream on his face to keep the aluminum paint from sticking, wears a mask and ties a scarf under his chin as protection against the paint. (Staff photo-engraving)

Big Season Shaping up for County
Growers as Heavy Fruit Crop Noted

It's beginning to look as though trees are loaded with fruit, the airline on cherries, restricting sales this year is going to be a big one. Weather seems to be right and the Twin Falls county, the demand for Twin Falls county fruit growers, market strong. In spite of the quarantine has been brisk.

Janice Anderson, left, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Anderson, Twin Falls, shows her younger sister a limb from one of the McIntosh apple trees on the Kenyon Green orchard southwest of the city. The limb indicates a good crop of apples this year. (Staff photo-engraving)

As a matter of fact, growers report the cherry season, now ending has been "wonderful" and that sour cherries, due to ripen in a week or so, also are going to be good.

Good crops of other fruits to follow also are anticipated. Besides the two varieties of cherries, local growers will have plenty of apricots, early peaches, canning peaches and pears. The apple outlook also is bright for this early in the season.

John Gourley, Filer, said he "has had a wonderful season on cherries." He says the season is about over for big cherries but by July 15 the Montmorency cherries will be ripe and ready for public picking.

Gourley also said he should have a good crop of apricots and early peaches following the cherry season and about Sept. 1, the late canning peaches will be coming on. There should be plenty of peaches, pears and apricots, Gourley reports.

Gourley said the fruit situation elsewhere in the state is not as good as in Twin Falls county. He said frost in other parts of the state hit the peach crops but bypassed local orchards.

Kenyon Green, Twin Falls, reports he will "not have a great big crop but will have a nice crop" this year. He said his Montmorency cherries should be ready in another week or 10 days.

The quality of fruit this year should be good, Green added. He said he will have a "nice crop" of apricots, peaches, pears and apples.

At the Crystal Springs orchard, the cherry season also is nearing an end. The season there was reported to be "good."

LaVern Strong reports a good peach crop is coming on as well as "good" crops of apricots and pears. Spraying for apple tree worms is going on now at Green's and Crystal Springs orchards.

None of the orchards in the county report they have been bothered by the fruit fly. The fruit growers report they have sprayed constantly for the pest and have managed to keep it under control.

Frost-damaged some fruit trees in the county early in the season but none of the major fruit producers reported any substantial amount of damage by hail.

Vice President Is Mobbed by
Boy Scouts at Jamboree Camp

VALLEY FORGE, Pa., July 13 (AP)—Vice President Nixon made the rounds of the vast Boy Scout encampment Friday night and was set upon by thousands of the boys clamoring for autographs and just one more chance to take his picture.

He ate dinner in the field with 80 boys from his hometown, Whittier, Calif., joining them in the camp meals of spaghetti, brown potatoes, peas, milk and butter-sauced pudding.

"It was an excellent fare," he said. "I enjoyed a second helping." Afterward, he spoke to the 60,000 Scouts attending the fourth National Jamboree and to about 20,000 visitors spread along the green slopes of a huge arena carved from the historic earth of Valley Forge.

Nixon said he brought the personal greetings of President Eisenhower, who regretted that the pressure of state business kept him away from so inspiring an occasion.

The President sent a message also to Chief Scout Executive Dr. Arthur A. Schuck. It said: "On this historic camp ground, you will be reminded of the great demands of character and citizenship—and the sacrifices required of each American who would serve his country."

"Here inspired by the highest loyalty to God and neighbor, you will be strengthened to return to your homes, better Scouts and better citizens, dedicated to the defense and to the building of the free world."

Eisenhower is honorary president of the Boy Scouts of America and a member of the national executive board.

Nixon, in his off-the-cuff speech, dwelt upon a similar theme, saying that "it is impossible to stand at Valley Forge and not realize what made America great."

He touched on the civil rights bill, bitterly debated in congress now, and emphasized the great imperative in the United States of all people living together, working together, playing together.

"Even if that law is finally passed," Nixon asserted, "it won't be worth the paper it is printed on if the will of the people isn't behind it. It can't be enforced. It can't be enforced unless the people enforce it."

Back to Scouting, he said that the movement "means individual initiative and self-reliance, and it means not relying upon the government to tell you what to do."

"Scouting means the dignity of every individual, regardless of race or color."

Nixon came to the jamboree in the President's personal two-engined plane, landing on the grass-covered Valley Forge airport.

With him came 13-year-old Pat Bailey, Las Vegas, the Scout who was obliged to remain behind in Washington three days ago owing to a cold he caught on a pre-jamboree sightseeing tour.

Pat said he talked "about politics and everything" with the vice president. "Everything" included what might play in the 1957 world series and what President Eisenhower shot in golf.

The Star Scout, a senior patrol leader in his unit, said Nixon had no comment on Eisenhower's golf scores. "I guess he was a little embarrassed by it," he added.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Because, in the history of estates, wills sometimes have a tendency to split families apart, the late Frank Converse Mariner, HAGERMAN, tried to handle his estate in such a manner as to keep his family together. And indications are the plan is succeeding. Mariner, who was an attorney in South Dakota before becoming a Hagerman valley rancher, created a trust in 1930 and transferred his property to the Mariner Ranch Co-Op Family Association.

It was Mariner's aim to bind his family together by a mutual interest and at the same time make it impossible for any member of the family to force a sale or division of the property. He felt the shared interest in tangible property would bind the family together. As soon as the trust was created and his property transferred to it, he and his wife and seven children owned equal shares in it. Mr. and Mrs. Mariner and their daughter, Mrs. Leta Evans, were the first trustees.

He resigned when he reached the age of 90 and since that time Mrs. Evans has served as president. Her brother, Lawrence Mariner, Pacific Palisades, Calif., was elected a trustee and now serves as secretary-treasurer. Following the resignation of Mrs. Mariner, a daughter, Mrs. Clara Wallace, Malmgren, Ind., was elected as the third trustee. Meetings are held annually with no set date at Hagerman. However, at times Mrs. Evans has to act as proxy for her sister in India.

The plan includes a mausoleum, built upon a lava butte, and is visible from the ranch house. The mausoleum was constructed of solid concrete walls and was designed by Mariner. The structure is 15 1/2 feet long and seven feet high to the arched roof of two and one-half feet. It contains 10 crypts. Both Mr. and Mrs. Mariner are buried there.

The dedication was made Sept. 29, 1944, when Mrs. Merta Mariner was buried. Mariner, who died at the age of 98, was buried there in June, 1950.

Mrs. Mariner moved to the Northville, Dakota Territory, now known as South Dakota, with her parents when she was 14 years old. There she met and was married to Mariner when she was 17 years old. That was in November, 1884. He had gone to the territory after working in Colorado, Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois. He homesteaded land, conducted a machine business and was a practicing lawyer. His family had been pioneers since the 1770's. They moved from Boston to Connecticut, to New York, and then to Chicago. Mariner walked from Chicago to McDonough county, Ill., where he homesteaded. He then went to South Dakota and moved to Idaho in December, 1909.

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

"Week-End Christianity"

By G. E. MYERS
(Assistant Pastor,
First Baptist Church)

While churches today are very popular and it is in keeping with good taste to belong to a church, it is apparent that many church members have not accepted the implications of that membership in relation to their everyday lives. As a result, while there is a nationwide increase of church membership, there is a nationwide continuation of crime and immorality. It would seem that with the rising popularity of Christianity there is also a weakening of the quality of Christianity.

Rev. Myers

This is quite similar to the experience of the early church. Under the leadership of the early disciples, Christianity rapidly spread throughout the entire Roman empire. Even in the face of the most adverse conditions, Christianity flourished and grew. The status of the early Christian is well described by Tertullian, one of the early church fathers. He said, "If the Tiber overflows its banks if the Nile does not water the fields, if the clouds refuse rain, if the earth shake, if famine or storms prevail, the cry always is, 'Throw the Christians to the lions!'" Yet under opposition of this nature and magnitude, the church became so numerous that at the Edict of Toleration in 311 AD there were approximately 10 million Christians or one-tenth of the entire Roman empire. There is no question but what the persecutions of the early centuries served to strengthen and spread Christianity.

However, with the coming of toleration and the rising popularity of the church, the quality of Christianity began a decline which saw its climax in the "Dark Ages." Instead of receiving strength from toleration and popularity, internal strife and arguing, power politics and greed led to the disastrous weakening which almost led to its obliteration.

er politics at work in some circles. While the church of today is not faced with exactly the same situation, there is an alarming similarity. There is evidence of greed and power. There is evidence of a growing concern for materialism and less concern for the spiritual values of life. In fact there is good evidence that Christianity is weaker in some respects now that it enjoys prosperity and popularity than it was when it was struggling for its existence. Of course, it is not desired that persecution of the church might again flourish. But it is desired that the principles which were once defended to the death, might be practiced in the life. That instead of an emphasis on merely swelling the church membership rolls, that there might be a greater emphasis on increasing the understanding of what Christianity stands for, and how it should be applied in everyday situations.

It is not the popularity of Christianity which is lamentable but rather the weakening of standards which popularity often produces.

Wilderness Riders to Take 2 Trips Into Mountain Areas

Two wilderness trips on horseback into the Sawtooth and Boise national forests are planned this year by the American Forestry association, officials of the Sawtooth national forest here report. The first trip will begin on July 30 and the second on Aug. 13. Both are for 10 days.

The two trips cover virtually the same area but the second is the reverse of the first. Each runs through approximately 75 miles of rugged mountainous country. Both trips will start at Sun Valley.

Buses will leave Sun Valley at 9 a.m. on both July 30 and Aug. 13. The first trip will start at Alturas lake and the second in Sawtooth valley.

The first trip goes up Alturas lake creek and Mattingly creek to the Boise river and follows the East fork of the Boise river to Spangle lake. From this point on the two trips are identical but the second trip, instead of coming in at the first trip's starting point, visits Arden, Vernon, Teton and Imogene lakes before dropping down into the Saw-

Walking Stick Has Personality

Gerrit L. Peters, 80-year-old rock collector, examines his prize walking stick. The cane is inlaid with 50 hand-polished stones and is fashioned from a rib of cactus wood. Peters made the cane, cut and polished the stones, carved the head figure on the top of the cane, all by hand.

Magic Valley Hobbies No. 80

Octogenarian With Eye for Oddities Adds "Flash" to Utilitarian Objects

That old melody "Hand Me Down My Walkin' Cane" has a special meaning for Gerrit L. Peters, 80, Sixth avenue east. Peters flashes a handsome cactus wood model, complete with semi-precious stones and a "personality."

About two years ago, Peters, a chipper octogenarian, was rummaging through the small workshop in the basement of his home when he turned up a box of colored stones that appeared to have minor flaws in them. Hit with an idea to make a cane, he took a piece of a cactus rib and went to work.

Peters, a part-time rock collector, began to inlay the stones into the long body of the cactus rib. With the natural holes of the cactus wood aiding him in his labors it still was a lengthy three weeks before he finished.

One outstanding feature of the cane is that Peters did not use a polishing wheel or a cutter to get the stones to size. He did all the polishing and cutting by hand and inlaid an astonishing 50 stones in the cane.

Making the cane a truly unique attraction is its "personality." Having completed the cane, Peters felt that something was lacking to make it even better. He got a chunk of soft wood from an old radio cabinet and carved a figure of a head. He then took a couple of small red stones and set them into the figure for eyes. When this was done Peters polished the whole cane until it gleamed.

Whenever Peters, who has a slight case of arthritis, goes out walking, his cane draws plenty of attention.

What started out as a part-time project has turned into a full-time hobby. Since Peters began work on his cane, he has purchased a rock-cutting saw and a buffer wheel to aid him in his work.

Beside the cane, Peters has fashioned several other items of cactus wood and stone. He has made two small lamps, and one large bridge lamp.

After Peters retired from farming in 1942, he began collecting rocks and small pieces of cactus wood. Later when he found that he had nothing else to do, he got busy making jewelry, by cutting and polishing some of the stones in his collection.

Peters has been working with stone and making jewelry for the last five years, and in spite of his 80 years he is firmly addicted to his hobby.

America Split Over What to Halt Inflation

NEW YORK, July 13—Inflation is damned by almost everyone today. But what to do about it, if anything, splits American thinking wide open.

The nation's money managers say tightening the screws on credit and making money costly to borrow is about to do the trick. But home builders say this threatens to ruin them and could trigger a recession. Some others hold that expensive borrowing just pushes up business costs and helps inflate prices.

Many economists say a natural correction of inflation is already in sight. Let 'em alone, they say, and soaring prices will cure themselves because consumer resistance will shrink demand. That will cut back work in the factories and service trades and take a lot of steam out of labor's wage demands.

The business expansion boom also means that in time there will be even more capacity to produce—maybe too much for awhile—and that will increase competition and check price rises.

Statesmanship on the part of management and labor could end inflation, President Eisenhower says. But others ask: Who is going to start this? And if there are unstatesmanlike hold outs, how can the conformists meet this competition?

The President reminds industry and labor now and then that another solution would be to reinstate direct wage and price controls. Many economists, however, challenge the effectiveness of these in practice, and congress is definitely hostile to any such unpopular move in peacetime.

A few insist that a cut in taxes could help halt inflation. They argue that it would produce more risk capital, leading to more production of consumer and capital goods to match the amount of money and credit now in circulation—which they say is higher than ever, no matter how tight money may seem. It's the swollen demand for credit they blame now. More risk capital would take some of this pressure off the credit supply.

There is a sizable and vocal group who believe that the "creeping variety" of inflation won't hurt us so long as it doesn't stand up and run.

They argue that if prices and wages rise only 2 to 3 per cent each year, the effect will be slight, and preferable to running the risk of a business slowdown and unemployment which deflation might bring.

At the opposite extreme are the economists who think the money managers should make money much tighter than it is now and drain off a sizable amount of the money and credit that has built up since 1940. They argue this would not only halt inflation but even restore some of the purchasing power of your dollar.

American Hosts Say Farewell to Guest

Peter Link, left, and Mrs. Peter Link bid farewell to the young German youth, Bernd W. Leusner, right, who has been their guest for the past nine months while attending Twin Falls high school where he was graduated this spring. The youth left Friday noon for New York City where he will board a German ship which will take him to Bremerhaven where he will meet his family. He said he hated to leave this country but was anxious to see his mother, brother and sister. (Staff photo-Engraving) moon over here is much bigger and brighter than at home. You got here the most wonderful sunsets I've ever seen in my life."

Before he left the young student had a good word for American girls. Compared to the German franklin, he said, "I think American girls are a little easier to get along with than the German girls."

Asked if he was leaving any broken hearts, he answered, "I wouldn't say that. The girls all step out on me."

When he returns to his home the young German boy will carry with him memories that will remain with him a lifetime. "The people here were very understanding and showed great tolerance," he said.

"I was one of the people. Kids in school accepted me as just another student." He admitted that before he arrived he was apprehensive as to how the people of Magic Valley would accept him because of the war. He said no one ever spoke to him bitterly about World War II.

He was 7 years old when American soldiers came to his home town. He said the soldiers washed their vehicles in a stream just behind his house and from them he obtained stamps and candy bars. Before he left to return home the youth spoke almost perfect English with only a slight trace of an accent.

While working on the Link farm Leusner learned how to irrigate, cultivate and stack hay. "It was kind of hard work," he said.

"Farm work makes me more tired than construction work." This was his first experience on a farm. Two years ago he had worked at a construction job in Germany.

He said he was amazed at the size of farms in Idaho. In Germany the farms are much smaller and are "dry farms." He said the German farmer works intensively on the soil and cultivates every little corner of land. The farmer's equipment is more modern here, he said.

The youth said he probably would be drafted for 18 months after he finished college.

He said he thinks it is all right for a young man to take military training. "I think everyone should be capable of helping defend his country in war."

After school and the army Leusner hopes to work in private industry in Germany. He said he would like to come back to this country, if not to stay, at least for another visit.

In the meantime, he said, he plans to write his friends. "Everybody has asked me to write to them after I get home. I am going to try and get around to writing them all."

Report Given On Barley at Grange Meet

Terry Sullivan reported on a variety of beardless barley that developed as several reports were heard at the last meeting of the Twin Falls Grange.

Sullivan said the new type barley shows promise. In other reports, Mrs. Irvin Bodenstab noted progress of polio clinics and requested volunteers to assist the clinic July 22 and 24. She also reported on the Grange cleanup program for the picnic area in Shoshone basin. About 60 Grangers turned out July 13 to clean the area, build fireplaces and remove dead trees.

I. T. Creed was appointed to check with the forest service regarding appropriate signs for the picnic area.

Members voted to permit the county 4-H council to use the Grange hall for a party planned July 26 for older 4-H youths.

Donald Somers reported on the Idaho Power company's building program in Hells canyon and described the need for power.

The program featured piano solo by Valda and Renee Varner, granddaughters of Creed who arranged the program. Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Somers.

Desire to See Family Again Is German Student's Chief Reason for Departing

"The main reason I would like to go home is to see my family," Bernd W. Leusner said Thursday night as he made final preparations to return to his native Germany after nine months in Magic Valley. He was graduated from Twin Falls high school this spring.

The 19-year-old student has been a guest of Mrs. Peter Link, Hansen, and her son, Peter Link, since his arrival in this country last fall.

Friday noon the young German boy left Twin Falls by bus bound for New York where he will board a German boat which will take him to Bremerhaven. Ten days after he sails from New York he will again see his native land and his family. His brother is scheduled to meet him at the German port and take him to his home at Mayen, about one-day trip.

To earn money for his return trip Leusner has been working on the farm for Mrs. Link since he finished school. When he gets home he hopes to work until school starts going construction work.

In the fall he plans to enter the University of Bonn and major in economics and sociology. He says he may have to go back to high school if the college will not accept his American high school diploma. To enter the university he will have to take an entrance examination.

"I wish I could get around that fast," he stated.

The youth was none too anxious to leave Magic Valley. He admitted he did want to see his mother, sister and brother again but wished there was some way they could

New Warfare Methods Now Are Practical

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—The government said today that radiological warfare is now practical. Indeed, it would be "an automatic extension" of war waged with the big nuclear weapons in the U. S., Russian and British arsenals. To the millions wiped out by H-bomb blast, heat and initial radiation would be added millions killed or injured by radioactive fallout far from target centers.

Inevitable
The inevitability of radiological disaster in event of all-out atomic war is one of many grim facts reported in "The Effects of Nuclear Weapons," a new handbook published today by the defense department and atomic energy commission.

The book inferentially casts doubt on the wisdom of attempting to evacuate prospective target cities. At the same time it makes it clear that no practical shelter can be built that would be proof against all kinds of nuclear attack.

Facts Given
But as for contamination of the world with bomb-produced strontium-90, a dangerous and long-lasting fission product which can cause bone cancer and perhaps leukemia, it says:

"If H-bomb tests are continued at the same rate as in the past, the worldwide biological effects of strontium-90 'will not be detectable'."

Calculations "based on somewhat uncertain premises" suggest that in a war, fission debris "from many thousands of megatons of fission would have to be added to the atmosphere before more than a 'safe' amount was concentrated in human beings."

Nowhere in the book is there any mention of the "absolutely clean" H-bomb, the theoretical possibility of which was first publicized months after the book was finished. The book's premise is that, in war, "the efforts of an enemy would be devoted to causing the maximum destruction and casualties"—a premise implying use of radioactivity "dirty" weapons.

Shetland Pony Arrival Weighs 15 Pounds

The long-awaited blessed event (finally) has occurred at the I. G. Prescott Shetland pony farm west of Twin Falls. Above, Pee Wee, a 3-year-old mare standing just 33 inches high, is slightly perturbed as Prescott holds her 15-pound youngster. Sire of the youngster, Pee Wee's first, is Sparkle, a sorrel, who hasn't seen his offspring yet. The black mare and her black foal are destined for sale at either the Kansas City Shetland pony show or the nation's largest show at Perry, Okla., for which the Prescotts leave next week. Until they leave, however, Prescott says the public is invited to inspect Pee Wee and her foal. (Staff photo-entourage)

Khrushchev Must Change Propaganda Tune to Make New Order Apparent

By The Associated Press
Nikita Khrushchev will have a tough time convincing the world Stalinism is dead, unless he changes the tune of Soviet propaganda.

The big test of Khrushchev's intentions, so far as the West is concerned, will be whether he can obliterate the ghostly scowl of Stalin which still lurks behind the Soviet new look.

A Khrushchev attempt to revive the 1955 "spirit of Geneva" can be expected. But it will have little effect upon Western statesmen so long as Soviet propaganda continues in its present vein.

At the time of the latest big Soviet purge, the Soviet press and radio had just about reached the height of a violent hate-America campaign which recalled the icest days of the Stalinist cold war.

For the past year and a half, the echoes of Stalin's time have been so pronounced that one got the impression of a Kremlin hierarchy of divided and confused men who, even if they wanted to, did not dare abandon Stalinism in their domestic propaganda.

The collective leadership added some touches of its own to Stalin's foundations for propaganda. Its frequent glad-handing, tours abroad, its accessibility and willingness to be seen and quoted, stand out in sharp contrast to Stalin's secretiveness.

But in the propaganda field, any Kremlin claim to have repudiated the dictator falls down. The bulk of this propaganda is made up of detested Stalin clichés, with no detectable differences in content of tactics. The dizzying old formula of attack and retreat, of simultaneous threat and blandishment, of alternating smiles and scowls, never has been abandoned.

The cornerstone of Soviet propaganda at home and abroad remains, as in Stalin's day, an insistence that only the USSR stands for the prohibition of nuclear weapons and world peace. While Soviet negotiators give the impression of moving toward agreement on such portentous issues as disarmament, Soviet propaganda attacks American proposals as mere smokescreens for aggression, and American spokesmen as warmongers plotting war on the USSR.

In Stalin's time, the Communists were infuriated by things like the Truman doctrine, the Marshall plan and any other obstacle to bloodless Red aggression. Today's leaders are infuriated by the Eisenhower doctrine for the Middle East, by schemes like the European atomic energy pool and the European common market, all of which might tend to block Red expansion.

As in Stalin's day, the Russian people are told many times over that capitalism is doomed. Russians are told that American military leaders are beastial men who plot to use humans as guinea pigs. The public is warned frequently in cartoon and newspaper dispatch of American "spies, agents and saboteurs."

It hears almost daily that the United States is a police state which cruelly suppresses minorities. The Soviet people, longing for consumer goods which have been sacrificed to the military and political potential of heavy industry, are told they will surpass the United States soon economically. They were told exactly the same thing 10 years ago.

How similar is today's Soviet propaganda to Stalin's? There are innumerable examples available. Here are a few:

Soviet boss Khrushchev, television interview June 2, 1957: "We do want to compete with you... We, for our part, are trying to do all we can to bring about a normal state of things and to bring about peaceful coexistence between countries with different systems, that is to say, between capitalist and socialist countries. At present your American people do not support

Marxist-Leninist theories, but is that any reason for war?"

Stalin to Harold E. Stassen, April, 1947: "To cooperate, one does not need the same systems. One should respect the other system when it is approved by the people."

Soviet foreign policy statement, February, 1957: "The policy of peaceful coexistence is the cornerstone of the foreign policy of the Soviet state."

Foreign policy statement, Pravda, October, 1947: "Soviet foreign policy proceeds from the fact of the existence for a long period of two systems, capitalist and socialist."

Did Stalin's death really change the Soviet regime?

BUHL, July 13—Members of the Moose lodge set July 28 as the date for a children's party at their meeting Thursday evening.

The group placed chairs and couches, which were donated by Greenawald's hardware and home furnishing store, in the recreation building and then put up curtains, which were measured, cut, and

New Training Plans Started For Veterans

A new kind of apprentice training, recently approved for veterans by the veterans administration, may help aid urgently-needed engineering talent to American industry.

According to Arnold Helwege, director of the Twin Falls VA office, the new program, leading to a job objective of "engineering technician," will train veterans for some of the more routine tasks in engineering. This action will allow graduate engineers to concentrate on advanced work.

Presently, engineers spend considerable amounts of time doing jobs that could just as well be performed by others who have less professional training, Helwege said.

Approved by the VA for veterans employed by the General Electric company as apprentice trainees, the special apprenticeship consists of a learn-while-you-work training on the job plus two years of regular credit training.

Veterans who plan on entering this apprenticeship program must meet all qualifications necessary to enter college. Their two years of evening classroom work will count toward an engineering degree should veterans wish to continue studies.

The evening courses will be identical with those taught full-time students.

The job training portion of the course included more than 5,000 hours of engineering design, 1,700 hours of drafting, and nearly 1,000 hours of machine shop.

Throughout the program, veterans will receive apprentice wages, stepped up periodically, as well as monthly Korean GI bill training allowances.

Supreme Court Decision Inspires Talk Of Resuming Trial of Balking Witnesses

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—There has been talk, inspired by a recent supreme court decision, of resuming trials by the house or senate of MacCracken was or wasn't under witnesses who balk at questions asked from investigating committees.

But if congress ever seriously considers taking over this job—in recent years left to the courts—some member with a long memory is sure to remind it of the roar of laughter that swept the country in 1934.

That year saw the last trial for contempt at the bar of the senate. But first the American public, seated with reading or depression at home and Hitler abroad, whooped with delight at the spectacle of a nimble lawyer and a swallowtail-coated senate sergeant-at-arms pursuing each other through the capital's better-known landmarks.

After the senate won its point and ordered two prominent citizens to jail for 10 days each, the supreme court declined to interfere. Ironically, it is another decision of the supreme court—on somewhat different grounds—that now has some senators and house members talking of resuming trials with the aggrieved lawmakers themselves as judge and jury.

It was the great airmail contract controversy of 1934 that led to the senate's extraordinary procedure.

The senate set up a special committee to investigate. Among those told to come with all pertinent papers were several airline executives and their attorney, William P. MacCracken, Jr.

Between Jan. 31, when MacCracken got his subpoena, and Feb. 6, when he first appeared, laden with papers and marshalled by a sergeant-at-arms, Chesley W. Jurney, some of the documents were taken out of the attorney's files.

MacCracken contended throughout he complied as fully as he could with the senate's orders. He said if any airmail documents pertinent to the inquiry were taken out it was by inadvertence.

But senators spoke darkly of files stripped and burned. MacCracken and three clients were cited for contempt of the senate.

The duty of arresting MacCracken fell to Jurney, who wore a working uniform of swallowtail coat, striped trousers, 10-gallon hat, red carnation in buttonhole and silver-headed cane in hand.

For several days he hunted MacCracken with a senate warrant. Then abruptly the roles were reversed.

MacCracken decided it would be best to be arrested by the senate, then have a court take him out of senate custody with a writ of habeas corpus.

MacCracken tried to persuade Jurney to arrest him in the clerk's office at the District of Columbia courthouse, described afterwards as "a comfortable public office where any gentleman could be arrested with dignity."

Jurney, understandably confused, consulted his senate superiors, who apparently smelled a rat. So he declined to arrest MacCracken.

But MacCracken was persistent. He showed up at Jurney's home on Saturday, Feb. 18, demanding to be arrested. Jurney said no, and MacCracken said he was moving in. Jurney hospitality set up a cot in the living room and MacCracken's attorney sent in a pair of sky blue pajamas, a tooth brush and other necessities.

nesses before congressional committees must be told plainly how the questions put to them are relatively pertinent.

The attorney and the justice still meet occasionally. When they do, they never lack a topic of conversation.

MacCracken and Brittin were sentenced to 10 days in jail each. Brittin, saying he was too broke to fight any longer, did his time immediately. MacCracken appealed, but the supreme court eventually upheld the senate's right to try him.

MacCracken served his sentence in 1935, leaving behind him at the District of Columbia jail a reputation as a superior bridge player.

Throughout the proceedings, he had remained on personally friendly terms not only with Jurney, but with the head of the special senate investigating committee, the man who made the motion for his arrest, Sen. Hugo L. Black of Alabama.

MacCracken is still a practicing attorney in Washington. Black is now Justice Black of the supreme court—a member of the majority which rendered the majority decision last month declaring wit-

Restoration of Antique Cars Is Fascinating for Brothers

BY HAL BOYLE

MARYVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Hunting out and restoring antique autos has become the hobby of thousands of Americans.

Charles and Kenneth Coulter, brothers who operate a florist business here, have traveled more than 10,000 miles in the last few years to build up one of the largest collections of old model Fords in the South.

Each old car has some tale to tell.

For example, there was one car that the brothers didn't get to buy—for an unusual reason.

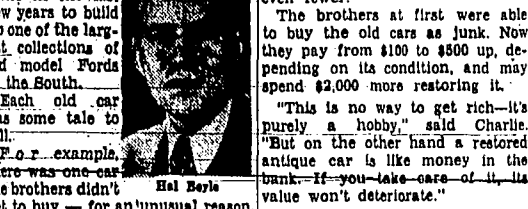

Learning that a lady in a small town had a 1922 Ford, Charlie went to see her about it. She willingly led him to her barn and showed him the cobweb-covered vehicle, but balked at selling.

"But rats are already nesting in the upholstery," pointed out Coulter. "Soon they'll destroy it completely."

"Oh, that's all right," replied the aging lady, confidently. "Daddy will fix it when he comes back. He's never forgone me if I told his car while he was away."

"I happened to know," he recalled, "that her father had been dead 15 years."

Charlie became interested in vintage vehicles after his return from World War II. He and Kenneth, his younger brother, now have more than 20. They include seven T-model Fords and three A-models, a 1914-year-old, horse-drawn, glass-paneled funeral coach, and a 1948 Lincoln which they bought because President Eisenhower rode in it during his first campaign.

Their goal is to obtain an open air version of each T-model. Silver turned out by Henry Ford between 1908 and 1927.

"During that period he built 15,007,033 cars," said Charlie. "A survey a few years ago showed only about 6,000 were left. Now there are even fewer."

The brothers at first were able to buy the old cars as junk. Now they pay from $100 to $500 up, depending on its condition, and may spend $2,000 more restoring it.

"This is no way to get rich—it's purely a hobby," said Charlie. "But on the other hand a restored antique car is like money in the bank—if you take care of it, its value won't deteriorate."

Behind the rusting bulk of a car in the Coulter yard waiting to be restored lies a pathetic story.

A farmer who never learned to drive himself bought the car in 1927 to surprise his young daughter. A few months later she fell ill and died.

The father refused to sell the car, saying, "I couldn't stand to see a stranger drive that car past this road. Everytime he did I'd think of my daughter."

He put the car in a shed. Snow collapsed its roof, and over the years the rain did its work. When Charlie learned about the car and

15 People on Handicap List Working Now

Fifteen people with severe physical handicaps were placed in jobs during June, it was reported Friday at the monthly meeting of the Committee for Physically Handicapped. Chairman E. E. Jellison conducted the session at the Park Hotel dining room.

Committee members were reminded that it is ability, not disability, that counts in employment of workers. They urged employers to review their personnel needs. Mrs. R. O. McCall, secretary, said she would be glad to arrange interviews between employers and workers seeking employment. Her phone number is 599-W and her office is located at 358 Second avenue east. A partial list of such workers is made available to employers each month.

The committee was informed that National Physically Handicapped week is scheduled Oct. 6 to 12, when the title of the national essay contest for school pupils will be announced.

Kurt Sylvester gave a report on the executive committee meeting held Monday. He said the executive committee was anxious to have a full quota of members present for the August meeting. He added that representatives of all organizations are always welcome at the sessions. Lowell Thurston, who is replacing Hugh Nelson at the Twin Falls office of the employment security agency, was introduced. Nelson is being transferred to Jerome. He was given a vote of thanks for his help to the committee.

Monday Tests Of Youths Set

WASHINGTON, July 13—Forty-two Idaho youths have applied to the competitive examinations for appointment to the nation's military academies, Sen. Frank Church, Idaho, reports.

Church said 37 of the applicants would take examinations Monday in Idaho Falls, Pocatello, Twin Falls, Boise, Weiser and Coeur d'Alene. Five others will be given the tests outside the state.

Scheduled to take the examinations at Twin Falls are Peter L. Welch and Harry E. Light II, both Twin Falls; John R. O'Donnell and Leroy C. Lewis, both Bellevue; Benjamin W. Maggart and Leonard M. Gunderson, both Burley, and Larry R. Lowe, Buhl.

It was announced earlier that the tests would be available for any Idaho youth who could qualify, and that Church's appointments would be based on results of the examinations, to be given by the civil service commission.

Church said the largest number of applicants expressed their first preference for the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, second for the Naval Academy at Annapolis, and third for the Army Academy at West Point. No first preferences were expressed for the Merchant Marine Academy or the Coast Guard Academy, but several second and third preferences.

Appointments resulting from the examinations will be for academy terms beginning in July of 1958, Church said.

New Senate Office Building Set for Completion in 1958

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Vice President Richard Nixon may have solved his over-crowded domestic condition with a 21-room house, but he's still cramped for office space.

And there's not a thing he can do about it until some time in the fall of 1958. If all goes well, that's when Nixon and 40 lucky senators will move into the 18 million dollar senate office building now under construction.

One feature of the seven-story structure is a choice, first floor corner location for the VP. It has a large inner office, three adjoining rooms for the staff and a reception room.

"It will be the largest suite in the building," says Harvey Middleton who's directing the project for the capitol architect.

Nixon's present quarters in the old senate office building consist of four rooms which are "terribly cramped," according to one of his 13 staffers. He would actually hire more help if he had the space.

Covering half a city block, the marble-faced structure will give many solons a chance to let their secretaries out of closets, thanks to well-proportioned five-room suites.

Nearly 200 cars will be able to park in the two stories below street level. A gymnasium in the basement will also allow legislators to flex their muscles, play handball or receive rubdowns. During the summer they can bask on a special senatorial sun-deck.

Original plans calling for a swimming pool were thrown out for economy reasons.

In addition to a large dining room for senators, a cafeteria will seat 700 people at a time and take care of more than 2,000 people during a heavy lunch hour.

A 500-seat auditorium specially designed for national television with a wall-to-wall studio will meet the demands of spectacular committee hearings.

Eight rooms in the new building will be set aside for a school for senate pages. There will also be 12 spacious committee rooms.

Two pedestrian tunnels will connect the new building to the old and eventually a modern subway will run directly to the senate.

Resignations Of Teachers Dip Sharply

BOISE, July 13 (AP) — Teacher resignations have dipped sharply by 36.6 per cent this year, Idaho's top state education administrator says.

State Supt. of Public Instruction Alton B. Jones credited increased salaries with "definitely influencing" the drop in teacher vacancies.

"It means that when the last legislature increased the education appropriation from 15 million dollars up to 22 million, it had a positive effect on teacher holding power in Idaho," Jones said.

In 71 school districts around the state, he said, teachers received salary increases of from $100 to $500 with the average pegged at $338.52.

In the same districts there were 470 vacancies last year. This year Jones said there were only 270.

Jones said the state department of education figured the average salary for Idaho teachers last year at $3,661.64. The average $338 increase will be added to that for the 1957-58 teaching year, he said. If figures stay consistent in the remaining districts.

Mayor Quits, Keeps Drink Sales License

BOISE, July 13 (AP)—The state liquor enforcement director said today the resignation of Mayor Wallace removes from office all known public officials who held liquor licenses.

Mayor George Albertini resigned Thursday night. The Wallace city council appointed Clyde Murray to succeed him.

Last of Five State Liquor Law Enforcement Director Warner Mills said Albertini was the last of five public officials known to have held liquor licenses in violation of what an attorney general's opinion said was state law.

Albertini was elected as a write-in candidate in the April municipal elections. He defeated Cliff Magnuson, a veteran incumbent.

Receives Opinion Later Mills received an opinion from the office of Atty. Gen. Graydon Smith. The opinion said state legislators and municipal officials were included among officials prohibited by a 1947 law from holding licenses to sell liquor from holding licenses in a tavern and bowling alley in the bus depot building at Wallace. He said he regretted having to quit as mayor but that it was his "only choice."

Rep. Bill Webster, D., Kootenai, who operates a tavern at Coeur d'Alene, resigned from the legislature last month.

Councilman Resign One southern Idaho city councilman resigned and two others had their liquor licenses transferred to other persons.

All five were sent letters by Mills informing them of the choice either of giving up the licenses or giving up their public offices.

Mills was asked what his future policy will be if a holder of a liquor license is elected again, either as an announced candidate or as a write-in winner.

Gives Policy Mills told newsmen anyone elected during the state elections, held in November, would not be released a liquor license in January. Holders of licenses elected during the spring municipal elections will be given, notice to give up either the job or the license, he said.

Mills said the five persons who have either resigned or given up their licenses so far were the only "known" officials affected by the ruling. He said his staff is continuing to check backgrounds of municipal officials throughout the state to see if there are any other liquor permit holders among them.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED SHOSHONE, July 13—Grace Johnson celebrated her 10th birthday anniversary Tuesday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Johnson. Games were played and refreshments served.

Higher Price Tags Certain On '58 Autos

DETROIT, July 13 (AP)—Higher price tags are certain to appear on 1958 model automobiles.

How much higher depends on numerous factors, all related to higher production costs. Some preliminary guesses have placed the increase at an average of $40 to $50.

Increases in the high-volume lower-price field should be relatively low. Competition in that bracket is keener than it ever has been.

But there is no assurance, other than the bitterness of the competition, that price increases in the low price field will be of small proportions.

Right now new car price tags distinctly favor the car buyer. Dealer stocks are large enough to restrain even the manufacturers from adding the increased price of steel to the delivered price of 1957 cars.

Final figures on the retail deliveries during January-June have not yet been tabulated. Best estimates put the total at in excess of three million units. That average will not be maintained during the July-October period, but most industry analysts expect November-December deliveries to go above the million-unit mark. That two-month period will mark the start of the 1958 model year.

Somewhat in advance of the 1958 model season start, Ford will have entered a new model—its Edsel car—in the medium price field and General Motors will have put two attractive small wheelbase models in the field presently dominated by the German-built Volkswagen.

There is considerable speculation about the price tags of the Edsel and the Vauxhall Victor and Opel Rekord, to be imported by General Motors. The Edsel will be priced to fit in at the top and bottom of the medium price field.

About all that has been disclosed about the Victor and the Rekord, both 98-inch wheelbase models, is that they probably will be priced at less than $2,000.

The two GM cars, built in England and Germany, will be distributed in the United States by the Pontiac and Buick divisions.

Fugitive Gets 3-Year Term

COEUR D'ALENE, July 13 (AP)—Robert Buckner Hughes, 35, arrested by police June 21 following a 110-mile an hour chase, was sentenced to three years in a federal prison Friday on bad check charges.

Police said he is accused of passing some $38,000 in bad checks in California. He was charged specifically here with passing two forged checks, one for $500 and one for $15. He pleaded guilty.

Ben Peterson, U. S. attorney, said Hughes has a long record dating back to 1941 and that he passed a $800 check in Spokane for an automobile before he was arrested here.

He was asleep in an abandoned cabin when police found him north of here last month after the high-speed chase. His car was found nearby.

Federal Judge Fred M. Taylor passed sentence after denying Hughes probation because of his record. Hughes' attorney said the man had difficulty finding jobs because of the record and would write checks when he got intoxicated.

GOURMET RECIPES

Saffron Veal Strips

Saffron, that subtle spice, adds an unusual flavor to the blandness of veal. This smooth sunny sauce goes equally well over the strips or over fluffy rice.

SERVES 4
2 pounds lean veal
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup SPICE ISLANDS Arrowroot
4 green onions diced
1/2 teaspoon SPICE ISLANDS Garlic Powder
1/2 teaspoon SPICE ISLANDS Melon Seasoning Powder
1/2 teaspoon SPICE ISLANDS Saffron Powder
1/2 teaspoon SPICE ISLANDS Thyme
1/2 teaspoon SPICE ISLANDS Beau Monde Seasoning Salt
1/2 teaspoon SPICE ISLANDS Cracked Black Pepper
1 cup milk

Mix Arrowroot with all seasonings. Cut meat into long strips 1/2 inch wide. Melt butter in skillet. Dip each piece of veal in butter, then Arrowroot mixture and brown in skillet. Add onion and cook covered 15 minutes. Remove meat and keep hot. Add remaining Arrowroot mixture to milk, pour into skillet and stir over high heat until thick and smooth. Veal may be returned to sauce to keep hot. Note the rich yellow color of the sauce and the delightful unusual flavor.
