New Talks Are Set for Strike Of Carpenters

POCATELLO, July 19 (AP)—Representatives of Rocky Mountain Council of carpenters and Pocatello area contractors were to meet here this afternoon in a meeting arranged by Federal Mediator Dan Edwards in an attempt to get the carpenters back to work.

About 1,800 carpenters represented by the Rocky Mountain council went on strike in southern Idaho Wednesday in a dispute with contractors over a new wage and working agreement.

John Molitor, secretary of the Idaho branch of the Associated General Contractors at Boise, said the mediation meeting at Pocatello today was between the Carpenters' union and the Southeast Idaho Contractors' association and did not involve the AGC.

He said the Southeast Idaho Contractors' association represents a small group of contractors, mostly home builders, while the AGC represents major commercial, heavy and highway construction contractors throughout the state plus a few homebuilders.

Molitor added, however, that the AGC was willing to meet with the Carpenters' union subject to certain stipulations.

Hearing Over Death of Boy Started Here

a green-colored car and ran back as Greene "hit the brakes," about halfway down the block from the Breinholt home. He added that "quite a bit" of dust was in motion as the Green car proceeded.

Young Breinholt said he turned once as Greene's northbound car headed toward the Heyburn avenue intersection, but could not see the Martin car following because of the dust.

When the Greene car reached Heyburn, Greene started to turn left and Breinholt turned to look for the Martin vehicle, he testified.

"I looked back and saw Mike (Martin) jump out of the car and he hit something," Breinholt reported. "There was a little dust, but I could see him." He said Martin waved for them to return.

Replying to a question by Cunningham as to what conversation took place at the scene, Breinholt said he asked Martin "if he'd hit anything."

He quoted the young driver of the death car as saying: "Yes, I think I killed him."

Breinholt estimated the speed of the Green car at "maybe 25 or 30 miles an hour" and added that Martin later told him he was driving 20 or 25 miles an hour. He said he believed Martin "may have gone faster," during his testimony.

Questioned by Rayburn, who represents Martin and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie R. Martin, 120 Addison avenue west, Breinholt testified that the Greene youth "spun his wheels" when the car left the Breinholt residence, creating dust.

In reply to a question by Attorney Robert Stephan, representing the Greene youth and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Greene, route 3, Twin Falls, Breinholt testified there was loose gravel in the center of the street where the accident occurred.

Judge Sweeley asked the final question of the youth. Replying to the court's question, Breinholt told the judge Greene "is a pretty careful driver, but he might speed sometimes."

Don Brooks, truck driver who lives at 281 Madison street and witnessed the accident, was called to the stand by Cunningham.

He told the court he saw "two or three children" in the street across from his home as he prepared to drive to pick up a babysitter. When he saw a northbound car (the Greene vehicle) approaching with dust being raised he called to the children, warning them to step back. He said they did.

A few seconds or so, as the dust began to clear, I saw a dim outline of another northbound auto approaching, he said. At this point, he added, he saw a "shadow" dimly recognizable as "a child or a dog" through the dust emerging from in front of the Mercury.

He said the child appeared to attempt to stop, but fell backward. He told Cunningham that at the time he "couldn't say" if the car struck the youngster. When Cunningham pressed, he testified that the front wheel had rolled over the child's head and that he came to the conclusion the car struck him.

Questioned by Rayburn as to the manner in which the child emerged from behind the parked car, he said the youngster "dashed out."

Judge Sweeley recessed the court shortly after noon after Brooks' testimony was completed, to reconvene at 1:30 p. m.

Knowland Has New Proposals For Discussion

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Senator Knowland, R., Calif., said today he plans to offer "further clarifying amendments" to the controversial section three of the civil rights bill before the senate recesses tonight.

He said "no specific language has been worked out as yet" but that he expected this to be done during the course of the day in consultation with Northern Democratic leaders.

The senate Republican leader gave this word to reporters after a meeting of GOP senators which he said was given over to "general discussion" of the bill.

There were indications, however, that there had been some warm words in the closed door session.

Aiken Angry

Senator Aiken, R., Va., left it in an obviously irritated mood, and told reporters:

"Some of these people don't want a civil rights bill. They want a campaign issue for 1958 and 1960."

Aiken has joined with Senator Russell, D., Ga., leader of the Southern opposition, in an effort to amend the house-passed bill so it would be limited to assuring voting rights for Negroes and other minority groups.

"If they really want a civil rights bill they could get one in three days—by the middle of next week," Aiken said. "But some of them don't want a reasonable bill."

Power Grab Seen

Aiken said some civil rights sponsors are "asking powers for the attorney general that even Franklin D. Roosevelt never even thought of asking."

"They are not satisfied with something that could be approved," he said. "They want to go into the whole field of human relations."

There is dissatisfaction among Democratic backers of the bill too, over what they contend is the lack of clear position by the administration.

Partisan Blasts

A flurry of partisan criticism built up in the wake of public announcement by the treasury yesterday that it will pay four per cent interest on 24 billion dollars' worth of debt refinancing coming due in August and October.

Not since October, 1943, when it refunded an issue of the fourth Liberty loan, has the government paid an interest rate on its debt as high as four per cent.

Defends Move

A treasury spokesman said this was the lowest rate "at which we thought we could sell government securities of these maturities."

The four per cent rate was offered for one-year and four-year securities, with an alternative of 3½ per cent for a four-month certificate maturing Dec. 1.

Bonds Approved

CALDWELL, July 19 (AP)—Don Post, clerk of the school board in the Dixie district adjacent to Caldwell, today said approval has been given for construction of a new two-classroom building.

He said voters approved a $36,000 bond issue and a two-mill capital outlay tax levy.

Higher Rates On Bonds Go Under Attack

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Democrats in congress today fired charges of "immoral" and "inflationary" at new treasury offerings of government securities bearing an interest rate of four per cent—a new post-depression high.

But a Republican, Sen. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania, said the government must "complete for money just like a corporation or an individual."

turned over on the right side and burned. Sheriff Benham said he and an unidentified man removed Barber from the truck before he burned. Barber was believed to have died instantly in the crash. The sheriff said only the lower portion of his body was slightly burned.

After the crash, the car proceeded on past the truck and onto the edge of the road. The front end of the car was smashed, breaking the windshield and some of the other windows.

Dr. J. Woodson Creed, Twin Falls county coroner, was performing autopsy on the dead man Friday.

The sheriff said there were no high weeds or other obstructions at the intersection to block the view of either driver. A "yield right-of-way" sign is located on the east side of the airport road on the county road.

When the car hit the truck it spun the loaded vehicle almost completely around. Hay from the truck, which had a self-loader, was flung into a house located at the northwest corner of the intersection.

The top of the cab, with rear view mirror and signal arm attached, was jerked loose and flung approximately 60 feet down the road from the point of impact. Sheriff Benham said. He said he did not know how Schmitt got out of the truck.

Benham was assisted at the scene by State Patrolman D. L. Cain, Deputy Wesley Annis, a game conservation officer and a member of the city police.

Members of the Idaho Power company appeared shortly after the accident to replace the broken charred power pole. Officers had difficulty keeping interested spectators from walking under the charred, live wires. The Kimber fire department was called to extinguish the fire.

A witness told Highway Patrolman Paul H. Todd the truck stopped a short distance from the accident scene and then drove on.

The injured were released from Bannock Memorial hospital except for Mrs. Whitworth's grandson, Rodney. A physician said the boy was in fair condition with a moderate skull fracture and a severe laceration of the scalp.

Man Fined $50

C. M. Taysom, 37, Rupert, was fined $50 and costs Thursday in Twin Falls justice court, and sentenced to 20 days in the county jail on a charge of obtaining money under false pretense.

Judge J. O. Pumphrey released the man from the jail sentence after he made restitution on the checks and paid his fine and costs.

The complaint against Taysom was signed by Charles S. Mattice who claimed that on March 30, Taysom represented himself to Mattice as a representative of the Match Corporation of America and obtained from Mattice checks amounting to $14.58. Mattice claimed Taysom was not a representative of the match company.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Bankers are, of course, paid to keep a sharp weather eye on economic trends. When you're lending other people's money, you can't indulge in casual guesswork. So it's significant that almost unanimously they look for a bright business prospect in the remainder of 1957.

Surveyed by the American Bankers association, overwhelmingly the country's bankers said they foresee a time of high economic activity, with employment and income holding at today's levels.

This optimistic view of the future comes at a time when the current status of business continues curiously mixed, though generally at a high level.

The seasoned onlookers find both bright and dark spots. The bright patches aren't sufficiently numerous to suggest a new boom is developing, and the dark blotches don't coalesce into a pattern presaging depression, or even recession.

Obviously new elements of stability exist today which did not a couple of decades ago. It would hardly have been possible then to imagine a bustling economy with home building and automobile manufacture at considerably less than top level.

Yet that's the circumstance in 1957. The truth is the economy not only has a lot of well-advised props—defense output, farm payments, government construction programs and the like—but it boasts industries like chemical manufacture which measured small in the 1930's but today contribute heavily to the national balance.

On top of this, the service trades bulk far larger in 1957 than they did in 1937 or even 1947. Far more people are kept busy doing things for people rather than making things. These activities, like the many and varied new lines of manufacture, help to soak up the shock of declining business in some of the more established fields like home building and car making.

Thus it is that, with notable dark spots, the United States in 1957 nevertheless is breaking all previous records for total output of goods and services, for personal income and for consumer spending—three vital measures of economic health.

It's a phenomenon that is baffling some of our own economists, and it certainly must be disconcerting to the Russians, who have been forecasting the collapse of capitalism with foolish regularity for some decades.

A "FUNNY RACE"

There's a movie bouncing around called "The French They Are a Funny Race." Yes, and puzzling, too.

Countless times they have behaved politically as if they wished France were a sort of earth satellite which might quickly be transported to some realm of outer space utterly free of today's vexing world problems. Great lovers of good living—and fine practitioners of the art—the French seem more or less continually distressed that the troubling events of the East-West struggle have intruded upon their purpose.

Time and again in moments of world crisis the French have let minor political issues be the cause for unsettling one of their post-war governments. For days, weeks and even months they have floundered, leaderless, when the hour called for a high sense of responsibility toward our common freedoms.

They killed the idea of a general European army to assist the defense against communism. And only reluctantly did they welcome as a substitute Germany's entry into NATO to stiffen that bulwark of the West.

But now we come to the curious two-sidedness which makes the French so baffling. For they played a leading role in the establishment of the European Coal and Steel Community, until now the boldest step ever taken toward a real and effective economic unity for Europe.

And today they are in the van of a far broader movement to attain that unity—the pending treaties for a so-called common market and an atomic energy pool in Europe.

In a vote impressive for enlisting almost complete support from the decisive middle of the road parties, the French national assembly approved both these treaties and thus France's participation in these historic steps to a united Europe.

Five other nations must ratify the pacts, but France's firm action gives the movement exactly the drive it needs to win full endorsement.

This was highly responsible political behavior of an order that suggests that, on second thought, the French may be willing to keep their earth satellite parked in the garage a while longer.

LOVE IN SENATE

The civil rights fight in Washington is revealing some strange comrades-in-arms. In the heat of recent debate Sen. Paul Douglas, D., Ill., shouted that he loved Senator Sparkman, D., Ala., "As I do a brother." He quickly added that he hoped this didn't embarrass his Alabama opponent on the issue.

Senator Sparkman jumped up to state that treason might be charged if Senator Douglas felt differently. Sparkman explained:

"I remind the distinguished senator from Illinois that he holds a commission today as a colonel in the Confederate air force which I had the honor of presenting to him."

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON — Veterans on Capitol Hill admit that they have rarely witnessed such a skillful parliamentary operation as Southern senators have staged in their battle against the extreme civil rights bill originally proposed by the administration.

While their first objective is defeat, or drastic modification of the measure, a secondary purpose is to present the Southern viewpoint on the racial problem, as well as its difficulties, to the American people. There are psychological as well as political undertones to their strategy.

They have contended, at least until recently, that non-South members of communication have not presented their side of the controversy to their audiences and readers. Now, for the first time since the dark days of reconstruction, they have had that opportunity. Moreover, they are speaking for the new South that has emerged since World War I.

EFFORT TO KEEP DEBATE ON HIGH PLANE—They have performed this task with remarkable restraint, relying on close legal arguments rather than on political or emotional exhibitions. There have been no ranters or demagogues such as "Cotton Tom" Heflin of Alabama. "The Man" Bilbo of Mississippi or "Kingfish" Huey Long of Louisiana.

In fact, such leaders and strategists as Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia and Sen. Samuel J. Ervin, Jr. of North Carolina have routed the ablest advocates of the civil rights bill. Ervin was a former chief justice of his state's supreme court, and Russell was speaker of the Georgia general assembly when he was only 26 years old.

The two leaders—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and Sen. William P. Knowland of California—also have used their influence to keep the debate on a high plane.

THREATS TO CIVIL LIBERTIES OVERLOOKED—The Southern bloc has concentrated on two originally unnoticed sections of the measure which, in their opinion, offend the American sense of fair play and equality before the law. Even President Eisenhower did not appreciate their threat to civil liberties as essential and fundamental as the right to vote and to attend segregated schools.

Even such "liberals" as Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming and Sen. Clinton P. Anderson of New Mexico were shaken when their attention was called to these proposals in floor debate.

The first, of course, is the provision for a juryless trial of persons alleged to have violated general and vague sections of the civil rights bill. Nobody can say how what future United States prosecutors will regard as violations.

The result will be endless litigation and court delays, especially in view of the attitude of the legal staff of the National Association of Colored People. They have indicated that they intend to police and supervise whatever enforcement methods may be established, should the bill pass.

COULD CAUSE FRICTION—The second provision offensive to many fair-minded people is that which permits the President to call on the military or militia to enforce the proposed statute, which could mean the use of colored troops.

Such an action would endanger the general peace and worsen relations between the races. Nor would it tend to endow the national defense forces with the population against which they were dispatched.

Finally, Southern spokesmen ask another question which has gained them sympathy and understanding in other sections of the country:

Is the congress of the United States willing to classify and condemn so many millions of Americans as "second-class citizens"?

VIEWS OF OTHERS

DON'T GET CAUGHT

Our society has quite a few people who might be called doctors of the human conscience. They work hard, but the sad fact is that the human conscience remains sick. In fact, many consciences seem to have died altogether, while the bodies and minds that housed them continue healthy. And there's no way to tell by looking at a person whether his conscience is healthy, sick, or dead.

The golden age for all of us seems to lie in the past, but surely we are not entirely wrong in remembering a time when many people did what they thought was right because they thought it was right and avoided wrong because they thought it was wrong. There aren't very many of that kind of person left any more.

Nowadays the questions are whether anyone will see the deed done or not, whether the law will catch up with us, whether we can get away with it. If we can get away with it—no matter how much money or other liquid assets we have—then the conscience sleeps on the subject of morality, although he may still turn over a bit restlessly at the thought of out-and-out theft (because it is pretty well prosecuted by the officers).

This has happened to us before, but this week, once again, we received a letter in "government-franked" envelope—no stamp—which hadn't the slightest connection with any business of the United States government. It is a small thing really, not worth a second thought, and yet it is a symptom of something vast, insidious and deadly—like a cancer. It represents a partial disintegration of civilization.

How clearly do we all see that civilization, to which we owe our high standard of living and comparative security from constant fear of starvation, fire, flood, murder and all such difficulties and disasters, is entirely dependent upon our trust for each other? We have built up an elaborate fabric of trust, and without it we could not have effective governments, we could not buy and sell, we could not depend upon a farmer to raise our food while we, perhaps, make clothing for him. We would have to go back to every man for himself, each individual fighting his own battles, killing his own meat, digging his own roots, making his own shoes, etc.

Now, as the cancer of getting-away-with-it eats into the fabric of civilization, this great structure crumbles like wood riddled by termites, and if the cancer goes far enough, ultimately the whole structure will collapse.

Try yourself on a little questionnaire, not with the feeling that we are preaching for we are not, but merely in the search for facts and true perspective. 1. When a store clerk gives you more change than is correct, what do you do? 2. If you are selling a car which has a hidden defect, such as badly worn pistons or cylinders, would you feel justified in muffling the sound with heavier than usual oil and saying nothing of the trouble to the prospective buyer? If you find a pocketbook on the street, containing $200 and the driver's license and other papers of the owner, will you take the $200 and return the pocketbook with the papers by mail, or will you keep the $200 and burn the pocketbook or throw it away in a place where it won't be connected with you, or will you just take part of the $200 and return the balance, or will you return the pocketbook and its contents complete to the owner?

We are interested in why some things are right and others are wrong. In regard to trusting each other, the reason behind the right and wrong is easy. We must trust each other in order to go one minute through modern life, and the more complete our trust the greater the possibilities for accomplishment and self-fulfillment.

Meanwhile, you can probably get away with a few things if you insist on being special. But don't get caught!—Ely (Nev.) Daily Times.

TIMELY WARNING
Narcotics addiction among the younger set is a $250,000-a-day business that cannot be shrugged away, a Chicago policewoman told the California Juvenile Officers association.

Her talks on "Mugs, Thugs, Drugs, and Shrugs" dealt with narcotics, traffickers, between 50,000 and 60,000 addicts and public apathy toward suppressing the evil she was trying to alert parents to the fact that the majority of new drug users come from the ranks of juveniles. It is a timely warning.—Los Angeles Times.

ANENT PEOPLE, DOGS

Dear Pot:

What type of person would write a letter like the one by "A. Writer"? I am quite curious—sounds like a frustrated old maid. I have five well-behaved children and I would be quite willing to put them in a home with a his or her dogs and compare their behavior.

I love children and I "tolerate" dogs because I have four sons who love them.

But I've never seen a dog that I would want to live with.

SITUATION NORMAL

Dear Pot:

I have a grandson in Germany in the service, who reminds me of a flower girl dropping her rose petals at a wedding when she comes to herself.

After I have written my grandson maybe as many as two dozen letters he comes to himself, writes me a very nice letter to apologize for his neglect and signs off, resigned, he has done well, settles down for a rest.

Along I come with my letters, more or less. He finally comes to himself again and repeats. And that has been our routine.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

I have to fight with one hand tied behind me when I wage controversy on their specialty with Catholic "labor" priests because in my press, the cleric, however wrong, is always right. However, I let one of them take a position which an informed man simply cannot defend. Then, with the hand which is not tied behind me, I let him have it.

Thus, some weeks ago, I invited comments Westbrook Pegler on the late Martin Durkin, the president of the Plumbers' union, who was Ike's first secretary of labor and died not long after he called Eisenhower, in effect, a liar and renegade. Durkin was a Chicago hoodlum and a presumption that he individually, never stole anything is sore to his eulogists as a virtue so rare that I am given to wonder what sort of people they run with.

I canvass the roster of my friends and acquaintances and not one of them is to my knowledge a thief.

Mr. George G. Higgins, a leading "labor priest," tore into me with great fury in a Catholic publication for the Chicago archdiocese called the "New World." I have already published his unfavorable opinion of me and my work and his admiration of his late friend.

In retort to Mr. Higgins, the Rev. J. J. Hartnett, of St. Bernard's church, Chicago, wrote a vox pop published in "The New World" for May 17. On June 14, Father Hartnett further charged Mr. Higgins with "bad logic" and "wretched apologetics" in presuming established virtue for Durkin on his Higgins' unsupported statement that Durkin was "a daily communicant for a least 30 or 40 years and possibly even longer."

Father Hartnett wrote: "Mr. Pegler, almost singly, has attacked in his writings for years, the type of trade-unionism official that has been represented on the American scene by Dave Beck and others of that type."

I wish he had included Durkin among that "type" because this low bum either flinches in cowardice or corruptly condoned criminal activities by his own representatives in Las Vegas, Nev. hitherto set forth here in detail. Mr. Higgins, in his logic pointedly ignored this set of facts although they fairly and daily challenged his indorsement of Durkin.

Father Hartnett wrote further: "He (Pegler) deserves the gratitude of every decent American. I have read the column of Mr. Higgins for years. I have yet to find in his public statements even the recognition of conditions exemplified by Beck and others like him that were common knowledge among the intricate masses but which required the senate fact committee to bring into public focus.

"The recent adoption of an ethical code by the AFL-CIO is an implicit admission that the conditions long described by Pegler have reached the explosive stage. Because the pope indorsed the basic principles of trade-unionism, Mr. Higgins has no warrant to establish himself as public defender of any and every labor czar with whom he happens to have friendly social relations. The Chicago Catholic reading public is pathetically sick of cliches and bromides such as 'let nothing but good be said of the dead.'"

"A minimum of honesty in thought and fidelity to ethics would reveal that place in the examination of the public conduct of men who have served society in an official capacity."

"One James McCawley turned in to note in 'The New World' that I seemed to see only the seamy side and rebuked me for refusing to laud George Meany, another plumber, with original credentials from Durkin's union, who reaps 'honors' from Notre Dame and De Paul U., Chicago, without explaining why he sneaked into Sing Sing to visit Joe Pay in his dug-out hard by the chapel. The reason was an effort to get this dirty crook out of Sing Sing although he was a notorious traitor to their common victim, the faceless man of the rank and file. Of course, Meany can't say that."

"The New World does not 'qualify' McCawley. He may be a union boss himself or a contractor dealing with the mobs. However, he is anti-Pegler and that is a virtue in 'The New World,' which was anti-McCarthy and threw the late Father James M. Gillis out of the paper for defending McCarthy."

Father Hartnett's closing shot was this: "We resort to the private religious life of an individual as an argument for his probity in the performance of his official duties is not only bad logic but wretched apologetics. Good intentions have no value as arguments unless they be supplemented with factual evidence of an objective order."

As close to the point but a little more pungent were the remarks of a lady who knew Durkin for many years and said he was "almost illiterate" and a political bureaucrat of the city and state administrations of Chicago and Illinois, who ruled by "bluster, tyranny and probably violence if that seemed expedient."

Noting that few laymen were daily communicants 40 or even 30 years ago she said Mr. Higgins probably was in dispersers then.

"So," she demanded, "how does he know?"

Finally she said the only known source of this statement was the National Catholic Press association, which never did have to prove it.

Is That So!

Can't Make Storms But Can Make Rain

Rainmaking is a modern scientific fact although in the past century it was largely a fake. Prior to that, it was nothing more than a hope. In one way or another, practically every primitive tribe which lived in an arid area has tried to make it rain. They employed magic, special rain dances, and invoked deities with sacrifices to induce rain.

Strictly by coincidence, rain followed these efforts often enough to keep the belief alive that these primitive sacrifices and dances induced rain.

In the past century, there was quite a boom in rainmaking, point out the authors of Weather. Drums were beaten, cannons shot, and explosives set off, producing great quantities of smoke. Needless to say the methods were worthless and so were many of the operators.

One of the smoothest of these confidence men and the most "successful" never appeared in a drought area until it was almost certain from studying U. S. weather bureau data that rain was but a few days away.

With finely ground dry ice which has a temperature of 108 degrees below zero, P. cloud droplets crystallize along its path. These grow rapidly at the expense of the water droplets around them and soon become large enough to fall. Silver iodide has a molecular structure nearly identical with that of ice and it acts directly as a nucleus for ice formation. These ice crystals also grow until they fall.

Not much material is needed. One pound of dry ice spread by a plane may start a shower in a large cumulus cloud. But silver iodide has a decided advantage—being inexpensive to use. It can be sent up from the ground to clouds from special generators.

To date, rainmaking by cloud seeding cannot produce rain from fair weather clouds—those fluffy, cauliflower-like clouds which usually form by day in rising warm air and disappear at night. Nor is it possible as yet for cloud seeding to induce rain to fall over a wide spread area.

But then, cloud seeding "is" still in its infancy.

In contrast to this fakery, modern rainmaking techniques are based on known facts of how to get the tiny minuscule droplets of water in clouds to "coalesce" and drop as snow or rain. All of these modern techniques employ the "seeding" technique—getting artificial nuclei into potential rain clouds.

Such cloud "seeding" cannot be successful however unless conditions are nearly right for natural rainfall. But this is not to minimize the fact that under the right conditions, it can cause more rain to fall than would occur with unseeded natural conditions.

Pistol-Packin' Miners Await Uranium Rush

NUCLA, Colo., July 19 (AP)—A shadow of the Old West fell across the southwest Colorado region today as 300 prospective miners, many carrying six-guns, awaited the signal to stake claims on 88,976 acres being opened to uranium prospecting.

The land will be returned to the public domain at 10 a.m. Saturday by the atomic energy commission after nine years of its own prospecting.

An atmosphere reminiscent of the gold rush days prevailed at eight camps set up between here and Naturita, about 10 miles south, with geiger counters, drilling rigs and trucks replacing the horse-drawn wagons and picks and shovels of yesteryear.

"Some of the men have pistols strapped at their sides or are carrying rifles," Deputy Sheriff T. J. Franks said.

"They're being fairly orderly," he added, "and there's no law against them carrying guns unless the weapons are concealed or they try to use them. They are on hand Saturday to maintain order."

One miner used his drilling rig to barricade a road leading to a tract of land but Franks made him move it.

Most of the land lies west, north-west and southwest of Nucla and Naturita in Montrose and San Miguel counties. It is mountainous and arid, dotted with sagebrush and mesquite.

At 10 a.m. Saturday the men will speed away in their trucks and jeeps to drive six stakes on the boundaries of tracts they believe promising. No claim can exceed 600 by 1,500 feet.

Registration of claims must be made within 60 days and the claimant must either dig a 10-foot exploratory shaft or submit a survey map of the claim when he registers.

The AEC discontinued exploratory drilling on the restored land in 1955. However, Allan E. Jones, an official of the AEC operations office at Grand Junction, Colo., said the acres "have not been thoroughly prospected."

The acreage is in the Uranium mineral belt which is now producing commercial grade uranium-vanadium ore.

Patrolman Ruled Clear of Lawsuit

BOISE, July 19 (AP)—The Idaho supreme court yesterday upheld a district court decision which had dismissed State Patrolman Eugene Hagler as defendant in a damage suit because the plaintiff had refused to post surety guaranteeing Hagler's court costs in case the plaintiff lost the case.

The high court ruled, however, that the state of Idaho would have to remain in the case as a defendant until the amount of liability, if any, is determined.

John Pigg brought the action against the state and Hagler. He said he was injured Sept. 18, 1953, when his automobile collided with a truck which Hagler had stopped because of an overwidth load and headlight violations. Pigg contended the lights on Hagler's parked car blinded him.

The most affirmative answers brought by any question were for more regulation of labor unions, with 1,046 persons saying there should be more regulation and only 101 saying there should be less. The poll showed that 58 persons did not answer the question.

A majority of 689 persons believed that federal aid should be provided for school construction. There were 509 negative answers on the question and 27 persons did not answer.

Answers to the foreign aid question were 701 for decreased aid, 314 for its elimination and 134 for increased aid.

Some 642 persons thought the United States should build and maintain military bases in foreign countries, while 488 opposed such a proposal.

The poll showed 880 persons favoring reduction of the national debt before tax reduction, compared to 287 who thought taxes should be reduced first.

Budge said 513 persons favored elimination of farm price supports, 402 called for a decrease in such programs and 220 favored increasing supports.

The survey showed 789 persons were against banning nuclear tests, compared to 354 in favor of such action. The Idahoans voted 940 to 213 against increasing immigration quotas and 554 to 412 for increased tariffs.

The worst heat wave of the summer spread eastward from the mid-continent across much of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio yesterday and badly needed rain fell on large sections of the Southeast.

The mercury hit the 100-degree mark at noon at Norfolk, Neb. Readings of 100 or above were forecast for parts of the lower Ohio valley.

Cooler air from the northern Rockies pushed toward Minnesota, but no lull in the heat wave was expected from Kansas to Texas where 100-degree plus readings have been commonplace for more than two weeks.

Cool air covered much of the Northwest, northern Rockies and northern plains, triggering showers through parts of the Dakotas and central Rockies.

Budge Says Poll Shows South Idaho for Union Regulation

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—A poll of southern Idaho residents indicates they are for stricter regulation of labor unions by a margin of 10 to 1, Rep. Hamer Budge said yesterday.

The Republican congressman said his sampling of opinion in the state's second congressional district, which he represents, also showed a sentiment in favor of federal aid for school buildings.

He said it indicated sentiment in favor of reducing or putting an end to foreign aid.

Some weeks ago, Budge sent out 6,000 copies of a questionnaire on 12 issues. He said recipients were picked at random from telephone directories in his district.

He said 1,205 questionnaires from 85 communities were returned to him.

Budge said that on federal legislation in the field of civil rights, his tabulation showed that 642 persons favored such legislation, 540 opposed it and 123 did not answer the question.

The most affirmative answers brought by any question were for more regulation of labor unions, with 1,046 persons saying there should be more regulation and only 101 saying there should be less. The poll showed that 58 persons did not answer the question.

A majority of 689 persons believed that federal aid should be provided for school construction. There were 509 negative answers on the question and 27 persons did not answer.

Top Laborites Eye Ouster of Errant Unions

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—The AFL-CIO yesterday ordered new hearings looking toward possible ouster of the Teamsters and Bakery Workers unions from the parent federation on grounds they are corruptly dominated.

Al G. Hayes, chairman of the federation's ethical practices committee, scheduled the hearings for July 31 for the Bakers and Aug. 1 for the Teamsters.

The hearings reportedly were called to give the ethical practices group a chance to compile a record and make a report to the AFL-CIO executive council, which is due to meet Aug. 11 in Chicago.

The council, in turn, is expected to lay down a cleanup-or-get-out ultimatum to both unions. Federation officials have indicated that by cleanup they mean the ouster of officials criticized in senate racketeering hearings.

One of those already on his way out is President Dave Beck of the 1½ million member Teamsters union, the labor organization most investigated so far by the committee headed by Senator McClellan, D., Ark.

Beck, accused of misusing more than $300,000 of Teamsters' funds, has been indicted by federal and state grand juries. He has announced he will retire as Teamsters president this fall. He has already been ousted as an AFL-CIO officer.

Solons Okay Bills For Pay Increase

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—House and senate committees both approved multi-million-dollar pay raise bills for federal workers yesterday despite an administration protest that this would feed inflation.

Pressure for the politically popular measures built up with:

1. A house post office and civil service committee's approval, 14-10, of an 11 per cent increase in the salaries of some one million federal employees covered by civil service. The bill would cost an estimated $32 million dollars a year.

2. The senate committee's okay of a 7 1/2 per cent pay increase, plus some cost-of-living adjustments for a half million postal workers.

The expense was figured at $75 million dollars a year.

Postal pay bills, also faced with in the house. One which would cost a billion dollars has piled up many congressional signatures and can be called up for house action any time after next Monday without rules committee approval.

Amaryllis Hatch Marries Winn in Church Services

BURLEY, July 10—The marriage of Amaryllis Hatch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hazen A. Hatch, and Gerald Franklin Winn, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Whitlock, Casper, Wyo., was solemnized at 6 p. m. last Friday at the LDS church.

Bishop Milo Christensen, Downey, uncle of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony before an arch-decorated with white bells tied with white satin ribbon and flanked by bouquets of blue delphiniums, white daisies and pink sweetpeas.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a nylon organza gown with lace applique, re-embroidered with seed pearls and sequins. It featured short sleeves, sweetheart neckline and a chapel train. Her veil, of imported Swiss silk tulle, hung from half-hat trimmed with seed pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis backed by net.

Anne Lee Hatch was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Lanis Blauer, Shirley Starley and Karen Whitlock, sister of the bridegroom. The four attendants wore identical sheath dresses of frosted pink taffeta and pink tulle picture hats. They carried bouquets of Esther Reed daisies, split carnations and baby breath surrounded by pink tulle to match their hats.

Thomas Weinrich, Casper, was best man.

The bride's mother was dressed in a blue pleated drape two-piece summer suit. Mrs. Whitlock wore a cream lace afternoon dress. Each wore a corsage of pink roses and white split carnations.

Jane Blauer played background music while the wedding party greeted 215 guests at the reception which followed in the garden of the Hatch home.

The serving table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake baked and decorated by Mrs. William Dayley. The cake and punch were served by Mrs. Ernest Blauer, Mrs. Rulon Horne, Mrs. Orland Bateman and Mrs. Anna Tweedy, Cody, Wyo., aunt of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Leonard Rehn attended the guest book. Mrs. Virgil Pace and Mrs. Wendell Eggers, Huntly, Wyo., arranged gifts.

For their trip to Glacier National Park and the Black Hills, the new Mrs. Winn chose for her traveling ensemble a blue summer cotton dress with white accessories.

She is a 1954 graduate of Burley high school and has attended Rick's college, Rexburg, for the past two years. The bridegroom was graduated from high school in Casper. For the past two years, he has attended Colorado A and M, which both will attend for the remainder of the summer.

A personal shower was given by Lanis Blauer honoring the bride, and a miscellaneous shower was held in her honor by Sharon Horne last week.

Burley Ceremony Unites Pair

We, the Women

By RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

One of the housewife's biggest needs is to know how and when to say "No" and to have the gumption to go ahead and say it.

A friend recently told me, "I've got myself into more jobs than I can handle for the coming year simply because I don't have the courage to say 'No' when I should!"

Most housewives suffer from the same lack of starch in the spine when it comes to saying "No" to demands on their time and energy. Working women feel no compunction about turning down a job or an office on the grounds that they simply do not have time for it.

Yet housewives, many of whom work longer hours than a business woman, feel they can't plead "Just too busy."

"Everyone seems to assume that a housewife can always find time for one more job and the energy to take on one more responsibility."

Because her time is supposed to be her own, she is made to feel selfish if she doesn't give unconditionally to every demand that comes her way.

So she weakens and says "Well, all right" when she should say "No" and stick to it.

Before long she is running around in circles, scurrying from meeting to meeting, job to job.

For spreading herself so thin she gets little thanks and few rewards. She is so busy doing what is "expected" of her she doesn't have time to do the things she would really like to do.

And all because she doesn't have the gumption to say "No" when she wants to.

Hermon's Double Ices Win; Schomer Pitches 6-Hitter

GREAT FALLS, Mont., July 19 (AP)—A booming double by Duane Hermon chased in a pair of runs in the third inning and Jack Schomer hurled a six-hitter as the Magic Valley Cowboys raced to a 5-1 decision over Great Falls here Thursday night. The Cowboys had picked up a one-run lead in the second inning as Tom Clarkson lined a single to right field to score Lou Jackson.

Then in the third, the visitors iced it as Vic Kray and Jackson led off with walks and Hermon slammed his double to chase both across the plate. Hermon knocked second later as Manager Walt Dixon singled back through the box. Dixon also got credit for the last cowboy RBI with a sacrifice fly in the fifth.

The host Dodgers got their only run off Schomer in the third inning as Lyle Wiley started it off with a single. Glenn Plaster followed with another single and then Sheldon Brodsky unloaded a double that brought in Wiley with the first run. But the Cowboys ended the rally as Plaster rounded third and started to the plate. Seeing he couldn't beat the throw, he headed back toward third but was tagged out sliding in. That was the only serious trouble the Great Falls team gave Schomer all night.

Schomer was in complete control throughout eight innings, giving up only three bases on balls and striking out four. His mound opponent, Smith, allowed the Cowboys only five hits but the six free passes he gave out cost him the win. Schomer chalked up the victory with a six-hitter.

Boyle Discovers Reason Why Bald Men Don't Split Hairs

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Pavement proves to be the man in the street. Bald men deserve no particular credit for going through life without splitting hairs. With them it's simply a matter of time.

Security is the feeling a man with a steady job gets after talking to someone who has retired on a pension.

The most you can do for a friend is the least you can do for yourself.

Those who walk only in another's footsteps run the risk of tumbling into another's grave.

Many a man gets credit for having pushed when he had to pull. A man too small to laugh at himself usually also isn't big enough to fool anyone else.

The only thing harder to inherit than money is a tolerant attitude.

One of the greatest arguments against a shorter work week is that it will force people to worry more on their own time.

Nothing exceeds itself like a small success.

Beware the feather-brained man who also has led in his bottom—he has to be unbalanced.

No sudden hurricane can create as much havoc in a community as the small steady wind of gossip.

There are few things in life more pitiful than a man who can only brag about the things he doesn't do.

Those who are most afraid of the dark are those who look most deeply within themselves.

Nothing upsets our own sense of values more than to meet a poor man who insists he is happy. We can't help wondering what his real angle is.

A really modest old maid is one who puts venetian blinds on her golden bowl.

One of the hardest problems of the 20th century is for a man to keep both feet on the ground while building castles in Spain in his swivel chair.

The quickest way to get Americans back into physical shape is for the government to make them pay income taxes according to their weight.

The greatest decline in national stamina followed the decline of the free lunch and the arrival of the cocktail canape.

$3,000 Limit Suggested on "Bank" Fund

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Agriculture department officials say the proposed $3,000 limitation of payments to individual farmers under the acreage reserve section of the soil bank program will keep many large producers out of the land retirement program.

This limitation has been approved by the house and awaits senate passage as a part of the department's annual appropriation bill. It would go into effect on next year's soil bank program.

Officials said department lawyers have interpreted the legislation to mean that a farmer, no matter how many different farms he might operate, could collect no more than $3,000. The payments are offered for the purpose of cutting production of such crops as cotton, wheat, corn, rice and tobacco until surpluses are reduced.

Furthermore, a farmer with planting allotments on two or more of these crops could collect no more than a total of $3,000 for cutting production of them.

Officials said the limitation would enable a farmer to place, on the national average, no more than about 150 acres of wheat, 75 acres of corn, 60 acres of cotton, 50 acres of rice or 13 acres of tobacco under the soil bank plan.

Officials foresaw great difficulty in administering this provision. There are farmers, they pointed out, who have land in several different counties and even in different states. Undoubtedly, the department would ask soil bank participants to certify under oath that they were applying for no more than the maximum.

Thoughtful

President Eisenhower displayed this expression of a man in thought during this week's news conference in Washington. The President said he can not imagine any circumstances which would induce him to try to enforce school desegregation through use of troops. (AP wirephoto)

Suicide Attempt Ends in Failure

TOKYO, July 19 (AP)—An unemployed chauffeur scrambled back to safety after spending 70 hours in the pit of an active volcano into which he leaped to commit suicide, it was reported here today.

The Mainichi newspaper said Masanobu Shikukishi was found alive yesterday by tourists near the crater of the famous Mt. Mihara volcano on Oshima Island in Tokyo bay. Police said he tried to take his own life because he had lost his job, but regained consciousness in the volcano.

Answers Still Are Coming to Light in Civil Rights Debate

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—The printed record of senate judiciary subcommittee hearings on the administration civil rights bill spans nearly 1,000 pages.

These hundreds of thousands of words, however, do not include the answers to some questions which have belatedly arisen in senate discussion of the proposed legislation. The bill upon which the hearings of last February and March were focused never got out of the committee.

The bill now before the senate is an identical measure already passed by the house and referred to the senate for disposition. The trouble is so serious that President Eisenhower apparently has decided on a major strategic retreat.

If the retreat takes place and the bill is short of its guarantee of a great miscellany of civil rights, other than the right to vote, blame may fall heavily on Eisenhower.

It is possible also that the President is retreating because he has obtained, a bit late in the game, the answers to some of the questions which have arisen around his civil rights bill.

Question No. 1 arises from the fact that the President, Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr., and others have repeatedly said their greatest civil rights objective was to protect chinery. Eisenhower probably knows by now why that was done and by whom. The answer, may come in the senate debate.

Brownell spent three days before the senate judiciary subcommittee last February. When, at last, the questioning touched on the authority to use troops to enforce miscellaneous civil rights in the South, the attorney general seemed both hurt and surprised and, finally, annoyed.

The attorney general sharply complained that the questions were not properly respectful of the President of the United States on whose order the troops would march and the navy would sail in defense of civil rights. Brownell argued that Eisenhower never would order the army to march or the navy to sail and, therefore, that the subcommittee should not discuss it. The attorney general indicated he would have to walk out of the hearings if the questions were pressed. That is about where the matter ended.

It was this miscellany of rights, including the right of the Negro to be protected against segregation in the schools, to which the bill's authors attached the powerful house and navy enforcement machinery.
