Boat Upsets, Eight Drown Near Seattle

OAK HARBOR, Wash., July 29 (AP)—Eight persons, crowded into a newly purchased 16-foot boat, set off happily on a Puget sound fishing trip. A few hours later all eight had drowned, wiping out two entire Seattle families in one of Washington's worst pleasure boat accidents.

The small boat capsized in choppy water Saturday, only 150 yards off Whidbey Island—60 miles north of Seattle. No one saw it happen. The four adults and four children apparently went down quickly.

Bodies of Mrs. Adeline Johnson, 33, a son, Wade Allen, 6, and Mrs. Rosalyn Gudmundson, 40, were recovered soon after the accident.

Still missing after a search yesterday but given up as dead were V. A. Johnson, 45, husband of Adeline Johnson; Lawrence Gudmundson, 50, husband of Rosalyn Gudmundson; and the three Gudmundson children, Kenneth, 16; Dennis, 12, and Linda, 4 1/2.

utilitarian, also in Guerrero state, reported one dead each.

There was no confirmation of seven reported dead in Ixmiquilpan, Hidalgo state.

Latest reports from the state of Michoacan, where dispatches yesterday reported 72 persons killed in floods brought on by the quake, said there were no dead and that damage was slight.

Despite the damage and tragedy in the quake's aftermath, thousands of Mexico City residents followed their normal Sunday pursuits.

An estimated 20,000 persons saw six mediocre bull fights at El Toros palace. Thirty thousand witnessed a soccer match and another 10,000 saw a baseball double-header.

At least 30 tremors rocked the countryside, beginning early yesterday morning with a major shock that toppled brand new apartment houses in Mexico City and sent residents and tourists into the streets in their nightclothes.

Many prayed in the streets, and churches were thronged yesterday as they had never been in years.

The army guarded downtown stricken areas against looting.

The capital city, with a population of 2,300,000, was hardest hit in the quake which was strongly felt as far north as Monterey and as far south as Tehuantepec. Government seismologists placed the epicenter near Acapulco.

Ike Scored by Mining Group

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—The Western governors' mining advisory council protested today that President Eisenhower has "sacrificed" the west's mining industry to eastern importers.

Sam H. Williston, Palo Alto, Calif., chairman of the group, made the statement in testimony before a senate inquiry subcommittee.

Williston said that some form of import controls are mandatory if the mining-oriented economy of the western states is to be preserved. Foreign mining interests, he said, already have seized half of the domestic minerals market.

He said Eisenhower has emphasized the need for a "healthy" mining industry but apparently does not favor the broad, long-range plans of Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton.

The president, he said, "has deemed it proper to sacrifice the mining industry of the West to certain segments of our eastern economy who profit by trade and barter but contribute little or nothing in the form of actual production."

the bill on other phases of the battle. Jackson announced his stand in a senate speech in which he said he was unwilling to "endanger one civil right to guard another."

Senator Javits, R.-N.Y., also in a speech, made a "retreat no more" appeal for a firm stand against the jury trial amendment.

"The attempt to put white jury from whose acquittal there is no appeal... between the law and the means of carrying it out is 'interposition' and will largely defeat whatever rights may be left in this bill," Javits said.

One of the arguments advanced for a jury trial amendment is that it would facilitate passage of the bill—that Southern foes of the bill might decide against waging any prolonged fight against it.

But GOP Leader Knowland said that if the amendment is written into the bill, there would have to be a compromise with the house over the final language.

"We probably would encounter a filibuster then on the conference report," he said. "If there is a filibuster, I am in favor of having it now and fighting it out rather than postponing it, even if it takes until September to get this measure passed."

Chamber Unit Aid Is Sought For Air Show

Lieutenant Haney said the show, which has been scheduled for Aug. 2-4, is being presented in conjunction with the 50th anniversary of the air force Aug. 1.

He explained that the show will be broken into two phases, static and live. The "static" portion of the show will involve displays of Arctic survival equipment, exhibition of cut-away model of a jet fighter plane and two aircraft engines.

The "live" part of the show, although the exact type of planes involved has not yet been confirmed, will feature low-level flying of air force planes over the city.

Haney also noted that West Coast airlines has offered a low-cost flight program to enable area residents to view the Magic Valley area from the air.

Mitchell Hunt, Chamber secretary-manager, notified members that a survey of downtown merchants disclosed that stores would be closed all day on Veterans day, Nov. 11, and would be closed half a day on Twin Falls day, at the county fair.

Woman Not Lost; Just Disappointed

HAILEY, July 29—Mrs. Susie Watkins, 66, Eden, is not so concerned about having been left stranded by darkness along Big Wood river Saturday night as she is disappointed at having caught no fish.

Mrs. Watkins, with her son and daughter-in-law, camped one and one-half miles north of Stanton's crossing on the Big Wood river. Saturday afternoon for a week-end of fishing, Mrs. Watkins rigged up her rod and took off along the river. When she had not returned by dark, her son became alarmed and notified Deputy Sheriff Floyd Wolfe.

Wolfe asked the national guard to help in a search for the woman and then, with Joe Wurst, George McGonigle and A. C. Carter, started a systematic search for her along the banks of the stream.

They found her sitting on the bank about a mile from camp waiting for someone to come along. She said darkness had caught her and she was afraid she would fall and hurt herself if she tried to return to camp in the darkness. She expressed considerable disappointment at not having caught any fish.

Ike's Attitude on School Aid Reflects Grass Roots Feeling

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—President Eisenhower is being accused of scuttling his own bill for federal aid to schools, but that seems not to be what actually happened.

What hit the school-aid bill last week was a blast of grass roots indignation against high taxes and high levels of government spending. There were other factors, of course, in the five-vote margin by which the house refused to appropriate funds for school construction. Racial integration had a big part.

Both major parties met last summer in national nominating conven-

January—and things began to happen.

On Jan. 22 the Republican party got a new national chairman, hand-picked by the President and his advisers. The new man was Meade Alcorn of Connecticut, tagged as a modern Republican evangelist.

Alcorn proceeded immediately to a series of huddles with congressional Republicans from whom he heard bad news—the Eisenhower administration was in serious trouble with the voters. The new chairman hustled to the White House to talk it over. He subsequently received from Eisenhower a letter which, the United Press was informed, stated bluntly that the people should have the greatest and most effective voice in determining party policy.

The letter instructed Alcorn to go forth among the people to discover what was going on. He was to tell the President how things stood. There followed regional Republican meetings in five cities, Omaha, Neb., Salt Lake City, Louisville, Ky., Cincinnati, O. and Trenton, N.J.

The grass roots participants in those meetings came later last May to Washington. The regional meetings were closed to the public. The assembled Republicans spoke frankly of their troubles. A digest of their gripes, jerms and cheers was compiled for presentation to Eisenhower by Alcorn escorted by Sen. Andrew Schoepel R. Kans., and Rep. Richard M. Simpson, R. Pa.

This report has not been made public. The United Press was informed, however, that Eisenhower's school-aid spending was the most aggressively challenged of all of his policies. The grass roots repudiated both the President and the party platform on that issue.

The President's enthusiasm for some big time spending to build schools probably began to wane about the time he got the Alcorn-Schoepel-Simpson report and it did not thereafter stiffen. The word around town then was that last week's house vote killed the school bill was that Eisenhower would make a sudden and dramatic appeal for its approval.

There was no such appeal and perhaps familiar with the background of the controversy were not surprised when it was not forthcoming. It has been said of some politicians that they detect grass roots trends by the unlikely method of simultaneously

Chivalry

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP)—Walter Goetzinger says his dachshund, Hans, is a canine Sir Walter Raleigh.

Goetzinger said Hans placed a blanket from his sleeping basket on the floor where Kitty, another pet, could give birth to four kittens in comfort.

Putting both ears to the ground, Eisenhower did not have to accomplish that feat to hear what Republican grass roots thought of building local schools with federal funds.

MacMillan Plans Reply to Soviets

LONDON, July 29 (AP)—Prime Minister Harold MacMillan intends to send a chilly reply to Premier Nikita Khrushchev's sharply worded letter on Soviet policy, government sources said Saturday.

The sources said the British answer will be firm rejoinder to the 5,000-word Soviet letter of last Monday and will strongly criticize its "disappointing and unconstructive" nature.

But they said MacMillan will leave the door open for a continued diplomatic exchange of views with the Soviets.

ANSWER TO ZHUKOV

That President Eisenhower and Russia's Marshal Zhukov found time in the course of their wartime friendship to debate the comparative merits of democracy and communism provides a fascinating footnote to history. But the recent attention focused on this debate by the President's comments has its perils for those who would truly understand these rival systems.

All the evidence we have of the Eisenhower-Zhukov discussions indicates that neither democracy nor communism was accurately defined by the respective advocates. Consequently, the attempt to compare them bogged down sadly in the marshes of unreality.

As soldiers, Mr. Eisenhower and Zhukov perhaps could not be expected to view their particular systems in just the light civilian leaders see them. Soldiers are absorbed in the performance of specialized duties quite apart from the channels of normal civilian life.

Let us look first at Mr. Eisenhower's side of this. He says frankly he was hard put to counter Zhukov's argument that communism appeals to the idealistic because it allows people to sacrifice themselves to the state, whereas democracy appeals to the materialistic because anyone can do as he pleases.

No one questions for an instant the President's intense faith in democracy nor his deep wish to guard and nurture it. But presumably he could have defended it with more authority and vigor had he not led so specialized a life and had he enjoyed fuller familiarity with the day-to-day workings of civilian democracy.

It is not true of democracy, nor has it ever been, that a man can do as he pleases. Anyone who imagines it is he sets himself straight in a hurry by conducting a few simple experiments.

Try not filing an income tax return. Try walking off with your neighbor's TV set. Try collecting unemployment compensation when you're working. And so on.

The point is that in a democracy, our individual behavior is hedged about by a complex system of laws—laws administered by federal, state and local governments. Thus we are ruled by what Zhukov calls the state just as are other peoples under different systems.

The critical difference is that we are "ruled" in particular areas of life only when we—the people—have solemnly decided by our own votes or through our chosen representatives that such control is wise and necessary.

In a democracy the "state" exists for the people, not the people for the state. The state is useful only insofar as it serves them.

They permit it to be extended only as it can be shown that such extension is essential and good. The state in a democracy is not an opposite condition to freedom. It is the protector and guarantor of freedom.

The hardest, most delicate choices the people must make are those which allow new encroachments by government. For it must always be shown that the advantage in total liberty and enriched life offsets the evident loss.

It is democracy, not communism, that should appeal to the idealistic. Only democracy of all systems is so constructed as to exalt the human individual, to afford him his fullest chance for personal development, to safeguard his dignity, his privacy, his uniqueness. These are the priceless ingredients of freedom.

In such a system a man cannot, as Zhukov said, do as he pleases. But neither can any other human on earth. The individual in a democracy can do what he wants so long as it does not encroach upon the equally strong rights of others like himself.

PROBLEM OF ECONOMY

The apparent inability of the government or congress to reduce expenditures or to tighten the federal establishment is emphasized and dramatized every few years.

Back in 1930, when Pat Hurley was secretary of war, he undertook a program of closing down many military installations which had become obsolete or unnecessary. In his opinion, many of them were army posts in the West which had lost their usefulness with the defeat of the Indians in the late seventies.

There was general support of Hurley's economy program in that depression year. But not a single frontier fort was closed down. And the very groups which had been yelling for saving money—congressmen, Chamber of Commerce, local interests of all kinds—were the elements which defeated Secretary Hurley's drive.

Numerous members of house-senate appropriations committees have said that, if it were not for this kind of local politicking as it applies to almost every field of federal activity, the total budget cut could easily have been five billion dollars, counting in the expected slashes in foreign aid and national defense funds.

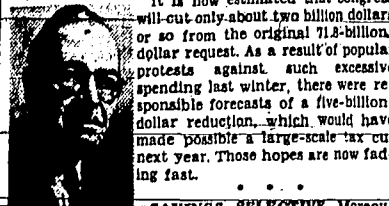

Few responsible members of congress now anticipate a tax cut in 1958, even though it is a year of congressional elections. The money for it just won't be there on the basis of this year's performance.

A professor says fish are fond of music. How do you teach an angelfish to sing?

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—The great economy drive against the Eisenhower budget has finally foundered because so many members of congress refuse to curtail federal activities and expenditures, if it threatens to cost them votes in their own states and districts. They will save money only if it happens to hurt the other fellow.

It is now estimated that congress will cut only about two billion dollars—or so from the original 113-billion-dollar request. As a result of popular protests against such excessive spending last winter, there were responsible forecasts of a five-billion-dollar reduction, which would have made possible a large-scale tax cut next year. Those hopes are now fading fast.

SAVINGS SELECTIVE—Moreover, the budget savings have been highly selective. They will apply mostly to foreign aid and national defense funds for a very simple and human reason. Except for the state department and the pentagon, these money requests have no widespread popular support.

Even these items would have been sliced more severely, if the administration had not resorted to the very artificial and stimulated letter-writing appeals which it condemns in other groups of citizens. The state department even used "emergency" funds to arouse a clamor against cutting its particular appropriations.

The moral seems to be that, despite the burdensome public debt, the intolerable inflation, the increase in the cost of money and the huge tax take, it has become impossible for the federal government or the congress to reverse the 25-year trend toward possible national bankruptcy.

POLITICS PREVENTS SAVINGS—Although there many similar incidents where local and national interests collided to the detriment of economy, the army's attempt to close down the Murphy army general hospital at Waltham, Mass., is typical of the way in which politics blocks savings for the taxpayers.

The pentagon maintains that the scarcity of patients warrants shutting down this installation and using it as headquarters for the corps of engineers. The hospital personnel outnumber the patient load by five to one, whereas the reasonable ratio is two to one. Only 30 people would be thrown out of work. There are many nearby medical centers, according to Secretary Wilson. It is estimated that annual savings would be $500,000.

Although funds for Murphy were approved by the house appropriations committee, they were eliminated on the floor on a point of order. The senate appropriations committee refused to okay the item, although it voted to keep open a hospital at Hot Springs, Ark., on the demand of Sen. John C. McClellan of that state.

Agreeing reluctantly with Wilson that Murphy was not needed, Senators Kennedy and Saltonstall made no attempt to restore the funds in senate debate. But when the bill reached the house-senate conference committee, the whole house delegation from the Bay state, Republicans and Democrats, insisted that Murphy could not be spared. The anti-economy revolt was headed by house majority leader John W. McCormack and Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers, making it a bipartisan affair.

SENATORS STAND GROUND—Several thousand voters have been moved to write protesting letters to the two senators, but they are still standing for economy. They have felt it necessary for political self-protection, however, to reply to all these voters with a message explaining their viewpoint. It is politically dangerous to antagonize the voters' lobby.

In arguing for Murphy's retention, Mrs. Rogers stressed the fact that the personnel and facilities of many famous Boston institutions were available to Murphy. She included Dr. Paul D. White, Ike's heart specialist, and she mentioned the Kennedy Memorial foundation, which was founded and is financed by the Kennedy family in memory of a son lost in World War II. Nearby, too, is the Chelsea hospital, where Senator Kennedy recovered from his World War II wounds.

HOW NOT TO CURE INFLATION—Treasury Secretary Humphrey has been throwing some penetrating darts at the managed economy advocates. In his marathon testimony before the senate finance committee, he has among other things stated opposition to the price-wage controls proposed by some as a cure for inflation.

"I wouldn't be in favor of putting them back," he said. "I think the American people are better judges than some bureaucrats in Washington of what they can properly buy, what they can properly pay and what they can properly owe."

The trouble with a managed economy is that it just doesn't work very well. People like to make their own judgments as to what they can buy, pay and owe no matter what the bureaucrat says. Even in wartime, when personal objectives are more easily bent to the master plan, there is difficulty in getting people to act as the plan says they should.

As a cure for inflation, wage-price controls fail because they don't get to the root of the trouble. They treat only symptoms of inflation.

The alternative is the free market. And as Mr. Humphrey made his testimony on "inflation" there seemed to be emerging a good example of how the unmanaged, free forces will in time work out a correction.

The secretary noted that inflationary pressures were easing. And true enough, supply has been outpacing demand in a growing number of industries; wholesale prices have been stabilizing and new plant spending has been leveling off. Maybe this apparent easing is only temporary, but it is just the kind of thing that could be expected as a result of the federal reserve board's policy of letting the basic discount rate of interest fluctuate in response to the free market forces.

Mr. Humphrey put his finger on the whole difficulty of managing economies when he declared: "I don't think anybody is wise enough to completely manage an economy of 175 million people. There are forces at work in an economy that size that are so great and complex that nobody can know exactly what to do to manage the economy."—Wall Street Journal.

WHERE CARELESSNESS IS CRIME—Standing out, stark and shameful, in the reports on the conflagration that has lately blackened thousands of acres of grassland in the hills that rise above Boise threatening to spread into woodlands above and into residential districts below the fighting front, is the unqualified statement of the leader of the flame-battling forces that this fire "very definitely was man-caused."

Outstanding figures in this emergency—so proclaimed by the governor—are the scores of firefighters who have gone all out in dauntless endeavor to beat back and control the flames. In this they're well deserving of unstinted praise and grateful appreciation as well for their efforts directed toward preparedness and prevention as for their heroic action when the emergency arose.

Involved, too, is one miserable individual who, according to the fire-fighters' report, is to blame for it all. Probabilities are that his grievous offense was not at all premeditated, but that the offender only, thoughtlessly, dropped a glowing match or a smoldering fragment in the tinder-dry grass and so unhappily loosed the ravaging red demon. That, though, would be a poor excuse, and there's little or nothing in it to allay the pangs of shame and remorse that this culprit, if innocent of intentional wrongdoing, must inevitably suffer.

The still smoldering ashes in the hills that border Boise plainly renew the grim warning that the prevention of destructive fire is the responsibility of each and every one of us, and it's a responsibility which requires that we be ever careful and alert.—Boise Statesman.

If you spend what you lead your friends to think you earn you'll be worse than broke.

POT SHOTS

IT'D BLOW AWAY

See where someone wants to let range fires burn until they run out of things to burn.

That wouldn't be a very good idea. Anyone can tell what would happen. Burn off all the grass and brush and then let the wind start blowing and what would happen? You'd have a "soot storm" instead of a dust storm. Until all the soot was gone.

Then you'd have a dust storm to end all dust storms. And when the dust cleared away, you'd find the wind had blown away the dirt right down to bedrock.

Some of the rock might even blow away.

I. Object (Twin Falls)

WHERE CAN SHE FIND OUT?

Dear Pot Shots:

Again I send you some stamps I found. I would like to know where you get information about them and the cancellation marks on them. I found quite a few of them. You may either keep these or pass them to someone you know that would like having them.

Hazel Gibson (Box 11) (Hazelton)

PLENTY OF THINGS TO DO

Dear Pots:

I do agree wholeheartedly with I. M. Rushed that there is plenty of companionship and entertainment such as they might choose. But just who might want their kind?

Could it be I am mistaken? I have had the idea that Pots' columns were meant for the retired and retired (Pot Shots note: Stand still) and here I. M. Rushed has been permitted to sit in on 'em. How can anyone, who is so busy find time to read 'em? Let alone take time out to write!

Every dog has his day. I bet on the shelf, sooner or later. I bet it will be all too soon for I. M. Rushed at the rate they are going. I make the move they be promoted from Pots' columns. Who will second it? (Pot Shots note: Motion died for lack of seconds.)

Plenty of time they will have for Pots when they get on the shelf. But the thing that puzzles me, how can they ever get material and manpower enough to keep a shelf anchored for 'em and 'em on it? They will have to be hogtied to keep 'em on.

A. T. Yourservice (Twin Falls)

OUR BULLETIN BOARD

The Rogue, Twin Falls—After due consideration, we think we'll pass it up. There's no particular indication Pot Shots readers have been waiting for the information and it seems from this corner like Pot Shots would be a sitting duck when every-one started taking pot shots at Pot Shots. Thanks, anyway.

GENTLEMAN IN THE FOURTH ROW

Visits Club

HAILEY, July 29—Bert Stone, Nampa, district governor of Rotary International, was guest of the Rotary club Thursday noon at the dining room of the Hotel Hiawatha. He was presented with a gift from the club by President A. E. Richards.

Mrs. Joseph W. Fuld entertained in honor of Mrs. Stone at a noon luncheon at the hotel. On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ensign, Jr. entertained Mr. and Mrs. Stone at dinner.

First U. S. postage stamps were placed on sale in New York city on July 1, 1947.

Ugliest

PINEROLO, Italy, July 29 (AP)—Street musician Giuseppe Vattano, 63, today proudly sported a big sash and a diploma certifying he was the ugliest man in Pinero-lo and surroundings.

Vattano, chosen "Mr. Ugly 1957" in a contest yesterday, said he won the title despite unfair competition from some of his rivals.

"They kept grimacing in order to look uglier than they were," he said. "I did not need to. I won thanks to my natural gifts."

JAKARTA, Indonesia, July 29 (AP)—An official report said Saturday 642 persons have died in west Java in an Asiatic influenza epidemic which is still raging in some areas.

The report said 61 of the deaths occurred in a single district.

Other reports reaching the capital said devastating floods in west Java caused the evacuation of more than 60,000 persons from low-lying areas.

Thirteen persons were reported dead in the floods.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

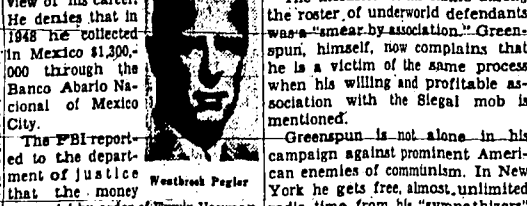

Hank Greenspun, Brooklyn, who mysteriously waged a war of horrible slanders on Senator McCarthy and McCarran, has published a reply to my recent review of his career.

He denies that in 1948 he collected in Mexico $1,300,000 through the Banco Abario Nacional of Mexico City.

The FBI reported to the department of justice that the money was paid by order of Erwin Hayman, otherwise not identified, through a bank in Geneva, Switzerland. Greenspun pleaded guilty in the federal court of shipping American machine-guns to Acapulco, Mex., in violation of the neutrality act. He tried to put a face of altruism on his crime and represented that none of the $1,300,000 stuck to his own fingers. However, in imposing a fine of $10,000 on a plea of guilty, Judge Peirson M. Hall said Greenspun was "the ring leader" and added that the government could have adduced proof of guilt "beyond peradventure of a doubt."

Greenspun recently wrote in his own newspaper, the Las Vegas Sun, that his connection with the late underworld boss, Bugsy Siegal, was only that of an employee among 600 at the underworld venture called Flamingo, a hotel and gambling house. However, many notorious underworld figures of the New York, New Jersey and Miami gambling rings also were "employees." Greenspun was, in fact, Siegal's paid press agent in this venture, which ended abruptly when some person shot Bugsy through the head.

Greenspun has had serious reverses which may indicate a turn of sentiment from amusement to revulsion in Nevada. He had exiled himself when Sen. Pat McCarran lay at death's door after a heart attack. And McCarran, an unusually religious man of spotless personal reputation, related that in a lawsuit which lasted for days he was put to the most "degrading" ordeal that he could conceive of. This was accomplished by insinuations which under court rules the innocent citizen must endure. After this suit was "settled," by payment of high money to Greenspun, Senator McCarran tried in vain to induce the American press to retract a false report that he contributed to the pot.

McCarran did not pay a dime. The inclusion of his name among the roster of underworld defendants was a "smear by association." Greenspun, himself, now complains that he is a victim of the same process when his willing and profitable association with the Siegal mob is mentioned.

Greenspun is not alone in his campaign against prominent American enemies of communism. In New York he gets free, almost unlimited radio time from his "sympathizers" to defame American red-haters.

In his latest defense, Greenspun wrote that Judge Hall made elaborate comments tending to excuse him. Actually, Judge Hall said: "The crime here is probably one of the most serious crimes against the United States."

Herschel Champin, the assistant U. S. attorney, said: "The government looks upon Greenspun's guilt as much more serious than it does any and all the rest of them. He is a lawyer and the government feels that justice holds a lawyer to a much higher degree of accountability."

Greenspun failed to account for any of the money paid him in Mexico. On this subject Judge Hall said: "The reports of the FBI indicate that Mr. Greenspun received about $1,300,000 in Mexico City in connection with this venture (the gun-running exploit) and that it extended over some period of time. I could hardly call that trivial or momentary."

This last was in answer to William Strong, defense counsel, who said Greenspun's "activities" were "of a momentary nature." The FBI learned that three lawyers engaged to defend the gang each got $60,000 from a source in New York.

The true identity of these enemies of all Americans who risk personal disaster in fighting the communist cabal is still vague. Greenspun's rich backers, but their names, their sources of their wealth and their motives are not spelled out.

That So! Eugene Burns

Pup Helps Airman Find Lost Spirit

More than just good companions, dogs can be downright good medicine for men with broken bodies. Let me tell you how one of the war's most dramatic "recovery" stories led to many others.

A World War II pilot who had crashed up in a plane was hospitalized with one badly shattered leg and the other in little better shape. He was very dependent. Attempting to cheer him up, another wounded airman got exactly nowhere. In exasperation, he gave a parting shot: "Collin, you just naturally don't give the docs a chance to get you well. You're not interested in getting well. You know, you have to get interested in something. Even if it's only a dog."

Happily, a Red Cross volunteer worker with a big heart overheard that remark. She came to the gloomy lieutenant and moving his crutches aside, sat beside him. "Would you like to have a dog. I mean a good one. If I could get one?" she asked. Finally, the wounded pilot said: "Well, Okay, if it's a German shepherd pup."

The worker took her problem to exactly the right person—the late Mrs. Marvin Preston, president of the Westchester county, New York, society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, who had her own kennels.

Mrs. Preston got on it immediately. She found the pup, a fine animal with a long and notable lineage with the aristocratic name, Fritz von Grafnar.

With next morning's early breakfast, the young lieutenant heard that the pup was on the way by car. By 10, he was out on the porch waiting. Whenever an auto drove up, he would heave himself to his feet, standing himself with a cane. That day, he put his crutches aside. Sure it was silly, he later admitted, but darn it, he didn't want that pup to see him for the first time looking helpless on crutches.

When the car drew up with two women in front and a ball of lively fur in the back, the lieutenant was on the steps to meet it. He opened the door and hoisted himself up into the back seat for couldn't he and his dog meet each other better that way?

In an instant Fritz was in his new master's arms, a fond tongue licking at his cheeks and the man's arms went out around the tiny dog. The women were openly weeping.

Ancient Gold Treasure Will Have Scrutiny

BELOGRADE, July 29 (AP)—Archaeologists studied a 1,000-year-old cache of gold treasure today for clues to an Illyrian civilization that vanished centuries ago.

Researchers said the treasure, found by workmen repairing the oldest church in Yugoslavia, may be 3,000 years old. They said it probably was buried with some unknown prince of the ancient Adriatic province known to the Greeks and Romans as "Illyria."

The treasure itself consists of more than 1,000 items of jewelry, including gold ornaments and rings, gold and silver clips, and an amber statue of an athlete only two inches high.

Workmen found the hoard in a metal covered wooden coffin, trimmed with gold ornaments, under a wall of the medieval church of Saint Peter in Novi Pazar, south-west Yugoslavia. The church is believed to have been built in the 12th century, and the treasure is believed to be as much as 1,500 years older.

New Weapon Prepared for Cancer Fight

NEW YORK, July 29 (AP)—An important step has been taken toward applying the working principle of the atomic bomb to the destruction of cancer in people.

The next steps may turn out to be impossible, but this step which has been taken is, at least, a chemical one. It permits uranium-238 to be put into living mice without doing the mice any apparent harm.

Dr. Robert W. Bases of New York university college of medicine made uranium seemingly harmless for his mice by attaching the electrically charged atoms of its molecule to part of the molecule of a basic chemical compound of blood.

Poison

Now, uranium as a more or less pure element acts as a poison inside the human—or mouse—body, as does the metallic element itself. It kills primarily by destroying the kidneys. Furthermore the amount of uranium needed to kill quickly one mouse out of any two is precisely established.

Bases injected his altered molecules into seven mice, in nine times this "lethal dose." At the end of 30 days, all seven were not only alive but healthily growing. This result is duplicated in two other sets of mice.

But uranium in the same amounts, but in the chemical form of acetate or nitrate killed all 19 of his "control" mice within three days.

The livers of these 19 were all depleted of a vital substance, and their kidney tubes were destroyed in the manner typical of uranium poisoning. But the livers and kidneys of mice who had gotten their uranium in the form devised by Bases, revealed not a sign of abnormality.

No Harm

So far the point is that Bases succeeded in getting uranium into mice without harming them. The next point is that the compound which electrically charged uranium atoms joined was the porphyrin that is found in hemoglobin which will sound confusing until it is explained.

The porphyrins are derived from pyrole, a most basic chemical compound since from it are derived such fundamentals as proteins and chlorophyll. A porphyrin is the basis of hemin, a substance found in blood.

But for the purposes of Bases continuing experiments, the importance of porphyrin is that when injected into living bodies it seems to concentrate in tumors and inflamed tissues of these bodies. So if you can combine radioactive uranium with porphyrin, the latter may be the vehicle which will carry the uranium into a cancer.

Fission Possible

If that happens, then you could "bombard" the cancer with "neutrons" from an atomic reactor. Neutrons are particles of atomic nuclei which have no electrical charge. For that reason they can get into and "split" atomic nuclei, such as those of uranium-235, and then you have fission, the principle of the atomic bomb.

Notice all the "ifs." In his report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Bases was most conservative, and everyone else should be, too. But "if fission were to take place in a tumor, the tumor might then be destroyed," he said.

He now is studying how his chemical "complex" behaves inside other animals, some of which have tumors. He still is making sure that it is not poisonous. If these new tests confirm the first ones, then use of uranium-porphyrins in neutron capture therapy of human tumors might be feasible," he reported.

Writer's Information Ranges From Fireflies to Goody Hats

NEW YORK, July 29 (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

That one out of every four American women changed the color of her hair within the last year . . . and ninety-nine out of a hundred of them tint her tresses kelly green if she chooses.

That there's something to cool you off: Sales of electric blankets are expected to reach a record high in 1957.

That Cuba's plush new Havana Riviera club is giving psychiatric exams to all its chorus dancers and cigarette girls . . . but it will still hire the ones with the prettiest legs.

That a firefly is not really a fly at all . . . it's a beetle. But don't tell your kid—it might break his heart.

That men of a native tribe in New Guinea wear a cone-shaped hat glued to their head as a symbol of manhood . . . They don't have to worry about losing their hats—just their heads.

That a chorine in "Lil Abner" said this about her date: "With him there isn't a dull moment. It lasts all evening."

That the odds are you don't know one horsepower is equal to the muscle work of 22 1/2 men.

That if you're looking for a fancy term for the rheumatic twinge you get in cold or damp weather, you can call it "cryomodynia" . . . which is Greek for "frost pain."

That surveys made in Japan and France showed children born from cousin marriages are smaller and have a slightly higher death rate than those born to non-related parents.

That a Kentucky jury in 1899 fixed the price of a stolen kiss at $700 . . . it awarded this amount to a married lady kissed against her will (she said) by a neighbor.

Las Vegas as "the place where you can lose your appetite at the table."

That fewer than 15 per cent of the fatal highway accidents in America during 1956 occurred during bad weather conditions . . . foggy heads are more to blame than foggy roads.

That 90 per cent of American women now wear lipstick.

That it was Samuel Johnson who said, "Were it not for imagination a man would be as happy in the arms of a chambermaid as of a duchess."

AMERICAN FALLS, July 29 (AP)—Robert Howard Curzon, 52, still has not recovered sufficiently from injuries received in an accident which killed three persons to permit his appearance at an inquest, Power county Coroner H. L. Davis said.

Davis said the inquest into the traffic deaths will be postponed about two weeks on advice of Curzon's physician.

Areas Hit by Storm Slowly Rising Again

CAMERON, La., July 29 (AP)—A month ago Saturday Hurricane Audrey whirled out of the Gulf of Mexico, bringing a down-pour of death along the coast, bringing a down-pour of death along the coast.

The dead and tears are gone; the heartache and wreckage remain. With the health problem cleared up, Sheriff O. B. Carter urged survivors living elsewhere to come back and help the quickening struggle toward a new life.

"It's a big job," he sighed. Hurricane Audrey thundered inland over low marshlands, sweeping to death hundreds of men, women and children in a savage hell of salt water and shrieking wind. The fall of dead and missing has climbed above 530.

The first trickle of tent shelters has appeared—the first promise of rebuilding.

Work Starts
Although civil defense crews are still reducing the rubble, trucks laden with lumber, roofing and freshly erected power poles are replacing the earlier rush of medical supplies, food and blankets.

Cars are bringing the first families back to Cameron. Some families are staying here, others are commuting daily between Cameron and Lake Charles, 30 miles inland, to man camps and scrubbing brushes.

Starting next week, Sheriff Carter said, the wallboard-and-tent shelters provided by the federal housing administration will grow at the rate of 20 or 30 a day. In less than a month, he expects 800 to 900 spread across lower Cameron parish. The Red Cross is shipping in all furnishings.

"It's been a month since this tragedy hit us," Carter said. "Now it's up to the men to realize the emergency is over. We've got to do everything we can to assist ourselves if we expect more assistance from outside."

A coastal town of some 3,000 before Audrey, Cameron was the center of destruction. Some closely clustered homes, however, escaped major damage.

Deserted

Ten miles westward at Holly Beach, the townsite was wiped out and no one has ventured back.

From Cameron eastward 15 miles along the coastal road to Creole, and onward to Grand Chenier, a few skeleton houses stand. Most houses have vanished, leaving only bare foundations.

The white-haired sheriff, who directed the grim task of rescue in the first days of shock, glanced out his courthouse window and murmured, "They know it will take a long time to get back to normal. They may take a little now, but much more time to take a long time for them to recover emotionally."

"Every day a resident stays away now is a day lost in rebuilding," he said. "Some of the survivors are letting time slip by. We must rebuild. We can't live in tents next winter."

The hurricane scene is open five days a week and sightseers are so frequent the crush forces roadblocks on week-ends.

Dr. Cecil Clark, the doctor-hero who worked tirelessly despite the agony of losing three children, plans to reopen his little Cameron clinic the second week in August.

"The majority of people will be back," he said. "Most of them have had families here for generations. They have no thought of going elsewhere."

An emergency power plant is generating a pulse of activity. New power poles have been tumbled along the highway, waiting to be placed in service.

While Cameron comes to life, Carter's few deputies are everywhere, helping break the inevitable bottle-necks.

Deputy T. P. Vincent, first Cameron officer to reach the outside world and tell what happened, lost his wife, mother and brother.

"Where else would I go now?" he asked. "My friends are here. I'll stay and die in Cameron."

21 Nabbed in Race Violence

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP)—Twenty-one persons today faced misdemeanor charges in boys court in the wake of a racial battle in a city park in which 23 persons were injured by flying bats, bottles and bricks.

Sgt. Joseph McCabe of the South Chicago police district said a number of adults were in the group rounded up during the melee yesterday, but since most of them were teenagers, all will go to boys court.

McCabe described the situation today as "quiet" but added that trouble in the area "might flare up again." He said a police emergency plan still is in effect in the district.

About 300 persons engaged in the riot yesterday, and about 3,000 curious seekers were attracted to the scene.

Windows of passing cars were smashed by stones and two Negro drivers of Chicago Transit authority buses were pulled from their vehicles and beaten.

"He's Going to Be Very Disappointed"

Aging Shakespearian Actor Plays Hamlet; Hamlet Loses

By HENRY MELORE
HELSINGOR, Denmark—A lifelong dream of mine came true today.

When the nightseeing bus from Copenhagen pulled up in front of Kronborg castle, I was in such a hurry to get on that I almost ran down two dear old ladies from Bloomington, Ill.

Many years ago, in Rochelle, Ga., I vowed that I would visit Kronborg castle before I died. And when I finally made it today, I shook all over like a bull-dog in a bathtub.

You'd have to be an old Shakespearian actor to be as excited as I was. I imagine that my colleagues, Sir Laurence Olivier and Maurice Evans, experienced the same emotions the first time they saw Hamlet's castle that I did. A man can't have played the role of the Melancholy Dane and ever be the same.

I know that I have never been the same since I played Hamlet. That was years ago in a Rochelle, Ga., high school drama class presentation.

Once inside the castle, I was simply carried away. I couldn't help but strike the old poses that I had used long ago, nor could I refrain from speaking all the lines that I could remember.

Both Mary and the tour guide tried to stop me, because my voice is much deeper than it was in Rochelle and I made the rafters ring. Mary was particularly nasty about my performance, saying that I was spoiling the whole trip for everybody, especially herself.

The guide sided with her. Toward the close of the tour he did his best. I know, to lose me down in the dungeon section of the castle.

Mary's attitude, and that of the guide and other members of the tour, didn't surprise me. Unless one has been on the stage and has felt grease paint on his cheeks, made curtain calls, and read the acclaim of the critics, one can't be expected to understand the lure of the theater.

The theater is in my blood, and for me to start playing Hamlet was as natural as for a retired fireman to slide down any slick poles he happened to come across.

My voice sounded fine in Kronborg castle. The acoustics are grand, and no wonder Hamlet was always talking to himself.

Boy Suffocates In Old Ice Box

MOORHEAD, Minn., July 29 (AP)—Dale Glawe, 3, crawled into an abandoned ice box with a toy telephone and his pet cat and closed the door. He was found suffocated two hours later.

Authorities said the boy was playing about the ice box last night at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Glawe. The Glawes have four other children.

"His parents became alarmed when they could not find him, and after a two-hour search discovered the boy unconscious in the ice box. Dale was dead on arrival at a Fargo, N. D., hospital."

The cat still was alive when Dale was found, but it had to be destroyed.

And it is a safe assumption that higher prices are going on the 1958 model cars. Probably, something more will be offered in engineering and in styling when the 1958 model cars reach the market, but it will have to be paid for as will higher manufacturing costs.

CONFERENCE SET
WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—President Eisenhower will hold a news conference Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. EDT, the White House said today. Eisenhower did not have a news conference last week.

When the bus loaded for the return trip to Copenhagen, no one was speaking to me. Mary didn't even sit with me, but went away up front and pretended she didn't know me.

But that was all right with me. I didn't feel like talking. I was too exhausted emotionally. Hamlet is a very exciting role to play anywhere, any time. And to play it within the walls of Kronborg castle—well, it's a wonder to me the rest Hamlet had strength to get up in the morning.

He had to play Hamlet every day, right around the clock.

Car Industry Pleased With Sales Volume

DETROIT, July 29 (AP)—So far this year the auto makers have built approximately 3,800,000 passenger cars. This is about 200,000 units more than were assembled in the like 1956 period.

More important than the production volume, retail deliveries are holding up better than most industry sources expected. This means a continuing decline in dealer inventories.

While production leveled off slightly this month it still is running at an average of better than half a million cars a month. Actually retail delivery volume has brought about the improved inventory situation.

The monthly average in this phase of industry operations also has exceeded half a million units.

The production average probably will shrink somewhat during September and October. Much of the industry's new model changeover work is set for that period. Some car makers are offering inducements to their retailers to stimulate outgoing model sales. At the moment it appears the outgoing model cleanup will be more orderly than it has been for several years.

This does not mean the final sales drive will be uniform throughout the country. There will be high trade-in allowances, and there will be emphasis on low down payments and low monthly installments.

Some marketing centers report the cleanup drive already is under way. In some of them new cars are displayed in open lots adjoining salesrooms and with delivered prices posted in large figures on windshields. Many salesroom windows are plastered with signs that tell of the advantages of buying now.

All this, of course, stems from the hottest kind of competition that industry has known in many years. Obviously, however, the present is a good time to buy a new car, especially from the price standpoint. The retailers generally can make reasonably prompt delivery.

And it is a safe assumption that higher prices are going on the 1958 model cars. Probably, something more will be offered in engineering and in styling when the 1958 model cars reach the market, but it will have to be paid for as will higher manufacturing costs.

Short Career Comes to End

LOS ANGELES, July 29 (AP)—Francis Wilson and his wife, Muriel, are out of the tree felling business—even though they had a 500 average on their first job.

They were hired to cut down several eucalyptus trees on a vacant lot in the Hollywood hills yesterday.

"I got the first tree down all right, although it came close to falling on a neighbor's porch," said Wilson, 41.

But he added the second "got away from us," crashed down on power lines and cut off electricity in the area for several hours.

"It was the first time I had ever tried to cut down a tree," Wilson confessed.

We, the Women

BY RUTH MILLETT NEA Service

If a mother works because she hates housework or thinks an office job is easier and more interesting than full-time homemaking, her children may have a right to feel resentful at her choice.

But when a mother is working so that the family can own a home or so that her children can get a college education, the children should be taught to appreciate the working mother's contribution to their welfare.

They also should be expected to pitch in as soon as they are old enough and help with household chores.

The mother of a 15-year-old girl told me: "I'm sorry Joan has to do so much of the housework. But she doesn't seem to mind. She knows I am working long hours six days a week so that she and her brothers can have a college education."

"The boys understand, too, and they both have after school jobs that give them their spending money and help pay for their clothes."

That family isn't suffering from the mother's working—because the children understand why she is working and approve of the goal she is working toward and have been made to feel responsible for carrying-part of the load.

Furthermore, the mother's job doesn't meet with any resentment from her family. Husband and children admire her for the spunk that made her go out and get a job when she realized that if the whole family pulled together every child in the family could have the opportunity of a college education.

So whether it is right or wrong for a mother to work depends on three things: her steadfastness in working toward a definite and worthwhile goal, her ability to make her family appreciate her contribution and her ability to delegate work and responsibility so that the whole family is pulling-together.

Not Having Time Very Poor Excuse

By ALICIA HART NEA Beauty Editor

The woman who says she hasn't time for beauty is both throwing away a precious gift and handing herself an alibi at the same time. What she's really saying is that, of course, she'd like to be beautiful but she's too lazy. It's all too much trouble. And year by year, she destroys what was rightfully hers.

She eats on pound and pounds, and lets her hair become limp and colorless. She dresses carelessly, badly. She doesn't exercise and will do anything to avoid washing a block. And she becomes angry with life for not treating her better.

The fault is hers. Beauty needs to be cared for every day of every year in order to be rewarding.

Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI

There are children who have fads about eating. One insists on eating only meat. He will take milk and cream of wheat in the morning but after that, meat-free refuses vegetables of all kinds. "Meat," his mother tries by every sort of inducement known to her to get him to try, just try, "No. Meat."

Another one fights against taking solid foods and insists upon clinging to his bottle. His mother put a tiny bit on the tip of a spoon and he turns his head, closes his mouth tightly and pushes her hand away. Day after day the struggle goes on and we wonder why.

Often the pediatrician can find no cause. "Just keep on trying," he says. "In time he will come along." The weary mother sighs and continues.

In my experience with such fad-diet time and the example of the family are what persuades the child to eat as others do. When a child insisted on a meat diet his mother had to let him have it but she asked the rest of the family to build up the vegetables by saying how good they tasted, how nice they looked, how much they enjoyed them. Then she put one dot of each vegetable on his plate and said, "You don't have to eat it, but if you do you can have another bite of meat."

One day, to the quiet astonishment of all concerned he ate the dots of vegetables without protest, got the bits of meat, and seemed very content. Gradually the dots increased to portions.

I have mentioned before this the father and mother who induced their little faddist to try new foods by asking each other, "Do you think she is old enough to try a little bite of this?" "No. I think not. She'll have to wait until she is a little older for that." Making the food a privilege of age and growth whetted the appetite, or overcame the desire for attention, and she ate what was on the table.

Sometimes these fads are the symptoms of disorder in the digestive tract. To make certain that this is not so, that it is but a passing phase, the pediatrician should see the child. He will make the essential examination and advise what should be done. It would be too bad to charge the child with a whimsey when he was actually suffering from some sort of ailment.

The service of food can have a great influence on children who are finicky about eating. Color, color of the dish on which it is served, color of the food itself, can make a failing appetite or destroy keen one. A slice of calf's liver served on a brown plate will arouse no hunger but served on one of a blue and yellow pattern brings smiles and calls up the knife and fork automatically. A child's own dinner service is a great help too. This is a time when we try everything once.

Does your child get along well with other children? Does he meet strangers easily? Dr. Patri's booklet No. 304, "Your Child and Other People," tells how to guide your child in his behavior with other people. To obtain a copy, send 35 cents in coin to him, 70 Times-News, P. O. Box 92, Station C, New York 19, N. Y.

COWBOYS TAKE OVER SOLE POSSESSION OF PIONEER LOOP LEAD

Loudenback Puts Game on Ice for 6-5 Win Over A's

Denny Loudenback's 12th inning Texas league single gave the Cowboys first place in the Pioneer league Sunday night with a 6-5 win over Pocatello, but only after Bill Schmidt's timely hitting kept the local team on pace in the early innings. Loudenback's single proved the decisive blow, but it was the Cowboy catcher's third inning three-run homer and ninth inning triple that made it possible.

Missoula Hits Russets From League Lead

By United Press
Missoula ended a 10-game Idaho Falls winning streak in humiliating fashion yesterday as they banged out 21 hits, including five homers, for a 16-7 victory that knocked the Russets out of the Pioneer league leadership.

The five homers, three by Benny Siquel and two by Dick Green, were almost half the total of 11 hit in all games yesterday.

Missoula moved a half game in front of the second half race by beating Pocatello 6-5 in 12 innings.

Billings lightened the strings on the four-team bottleneck at the top of the standings by sweeping a doubleheader from cellar-dwelling Great Falls 8-6 and 6-1. And Salt Lake City survived a last-inning rally by Boise to win 8-7.

Siquel and Greco batted in half of Missoula's counters with their homers. Four of the blows came off the bat of Dick Jones who left after slugging up 10 runs in four frames.

Curly held the Russets to 12 hits with Tegenkamp getting the win. Big Leon Carmel, the "duke" of Billings, spearheaded the double victory at Cobb field. He tripled and hit his first homer in the second game to knock in three of the first four runs. He also hit a double in the opener behind a similar blow by Bob Sadowski that scored three runs. Don Choate turned in the best pitching career of the night by holding the Dodgers to four hits in the night game. Jack Smith was the loser.

Dependable Emil Evans got on base for six runs in the seventh of the opener, but gained the decision. Ted Burgess finished up in the ninth and Don Jorissen was the losing pitcher.

Salt Lake City also used the home-run to put Boise down. Little Lou Vasek hit one in the eighth that broke a six-all tie. Ed Radzick led the bases in the ninth on two walks and an infield single. A run scored on a sacrifice fly before the ace Bee bullpen artist got Howie Bedell to ground out ending the game.

A full slate of games tonight puts Salt Lake City at Boise, Great Falls at Billings, Pocatello at Twin Falls and Idaho Falls at Missoula.

Von McDaniel Hurls 1-Hitter As Cards Win

By United Press
Von McDaniel added the season's most spectacular pitching performance to his amazing achievements today while the St. Louis Cardinals added an edge in the vital "lost column" to their reasons for believing they'll come out on top in the National league's fantastic five-team race.

The 18-year-old Von, who signed a $50,000 bonus contract only six weeks ago, pitched a one-hitter yesterday as the Cardinals whipped the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-0 and 9-8. Gene Baker's second-inning double was the blow that deprived McDaniel of his first perfect game in modern National league history as he fanned four and did not permit another runner to reach base.

The sweep enabled the Cardinals to move within three percentage points of the first-place Milwaukee Braves, who split with New York Giants, and left them with a 65-40 won-lost record. They have a one-game edge in the lost column on both the Braves and third-place Brooklyn Dodgers and a two-game edge in the same column on the Cincinnati Redlegs and Philadelphia Phillies.

Johnny Antonelli pitched a seven-hitter to beat the Braves for the fourth time, 2-0; but Milwaukee gained a split when Gene Conley whipped the Giants for the third time in 10 days, 5-3.

The Dodgers cut Milwaukee's margin over them to a game-and-a-half when Johnny Podres scattered time hits and Carl Furillo hit the eighth grand slam homer of his major league career in a 7-2 victory over the Redlegs.

Curt Simmons won his 10th game and rookie Jack Sanford his 14th as the Phillies whipped the Chicago Cubs, 3-2 and 7-1.

The Chicago White Sox defeated the Baltimore Orioles, 4-3, and advanced to within 3½ games of first place in the American league when the New York Yankees split with the Detroit Tigers. The Tigers won the opener, 6-5, but the Yankees took the nightcap, 4-3, in 15 innings. Boston outslugged Cleveland 9-8, and the Kansas City Athletics won their first doubleheader of the year, 6-2 and 3-2, in 11 innings over the Washington Senators in the other American league games.

The department urges all fishermen to give the most careful

Patterson, 5-1 Favorite to Keep Title, Seeks Win Within 5 Rounds

NEW YORK, July 29 (AP)—Floyd Patterson, making his first defense of the heavyweight crown, will try to stiffen Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson within five rounds tonight if threatening weather permits their outdoor fight at the Polo grounds. That's the latest report from the youngest of heavyweight champs, who is favored at 5-1 to win and at 8-5 to score a knockout. And the derishovers may blow over before time for the bout—10 p.m. (EDT).

Little Emil Lence, the independent promoter who is challenging the power of Big Jim Norris' International Boxing club, says optimistically, "If the weather forces a postponement to tomorrow night, the delay will help the gate, because it will give more people more time to make up their minds to come to the fight."

He predicts 27,000 fans and a gate ranging between $300,000 and $350,000 if the bout goes on tonight; more, if the first independently promoted heavyweight show in 20 years is delayed 24 hours. However, some of Little Emil's less optimistic assistants doubt that the gate will exceed $250,000.

An additional $175,000 will be received from the National television and radio broadcast (NBC). Television will be blacked out on a 75-mile radius in the New York area. If the show is postponed, the TV radio will cover it on the new date.

Patterson, 22, told friends today, "I'll try to take him out in five rounds to help my reputation and to lessen the chance of getting a face cut that might postpone my next defense against Pete Rademacher."

If Floyd beats lanky, 25-year-old Jackson in their return bout tonight, he will receive a $250,000 guarantee for a defense against Olympic champion Rademacher at Seattle, Wash., Aug. 22. That's more than the $175,000 guarantee for tonight's scheduled 15-rounder.

Young Floyd seeks his 10th straight victory. Only one of his opponents in his last 13 bouts evaded a knockout. The man was Jackson—in their first bout 13 months ago. But many believe the only reason the Hurricane was still on his feet at the end of their 12 rounds in Madison Square Garden was the fact that Patterson fractured his right hand in the fifth round.

Because that title victory was only seven months and 29 days ago, Patterson's regime would be the shortest among heavyweight kings if the unpredictable, war-dancing Jackson happened to upset him this time in case of a Jackson victory, they are scheduled for a return title fight at the Polo grounds, Sept. 16.

Improved Conley Admits to 'New' Type of Pitch

MILWAUKEE, July 29 (AP)—Keeping a secret in baseball is nigh on the impossible, especially if the secret is a so-called new pitch that is served up to the plate regularly.

The latest pitcher to try to keep a "new" pitch to himself is Gene Conley, Milwaukee's 6-3 righthander, whose improved showing has been a boom to the National league-leading Braves.

"I have a new pitch," Conley admitted after turning back the New York Giants 5-3 to earn the Braves a split in a twin bill and keep them in first place. "But what it is I'm not saying. These guys up here are smart enough to find out for themselves what it is."

A slinker? Maybe. A slider? Probably, any three of the Giants who faced him—ex-Brave Bobby Thomson, Ray Jablonski and Wes Westrum.

Conley himself has referred to it as a "nickel" curve that breaks the other way—or a "pitch-I-use-in-double-play situations and for ground balls."

Dickens Is Suspended For Illegal Payments

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP)—Football coach Phil Dickens of Indiana, slapped with a year's suspension before he has coached even one game, indicated today his assistants will guide the Hoosiers this fall instead of an "interim" coach. Dickens was suspended by the Big Ten yesterday on charges of offering illegal payments to prospective athletes.

Indiana officials, who hired Dickens away from Wyoming this year to replace football coach Bernie Crummins, had no official statement on whether Dickens would be paid for sitting on the sidelines for a year or on whether another coach would be hired to substitute for him.

But Dickens said, "I have a wonderful staff and I know that they will do a great job for Indiana this coming year."

Dickens' punishment was the most ever levied on an individual in conference history. The suspension meant that Dickens will not be available for the 1957 season and, unless the university successfully bids for his reinstatement next December, he also will miss the 1958 spring practice and recruiting.

The penalty was imposed by the conference faculty representatives in a special meeting at which President Herman B. Wells of Indiana accepted the decision and expressed his confidence in Dickens.

It was the first penalty imposed by the conference under its new rule, adopted Feb. 22, basing all aid upon need, with a stipulation that no athlete may receive more than the cost of education at the institution he attends.

Likewise, it was the first time a football coach has been penalized and the second penalty in history upon a coach. Iowa's basketball coach, Bucky O'Connor, five years ago was forbidden to contact prospective athletes for one year.

Dickens was penalized on charges he offered prospects room, board, books, tuition, fees and a sum of money each month. Regulations permit aid only on the basis of computed need, with students contributing to their own support to the extent of their family finances, and in no event more than board, room, books, tuition and fees.

Mickey Wright's Best Scoring Nets Wolverine Open

DETROIT, July 29 (AP)—Mickey Wright has proved that discarding the trombone for a set of golf clubs was the smartest financial move she ever made.

The triumph the 22-year-old blond better from Chula Vista, Calif., accomplished Sunday in the Wolverine Ladies' open hiked her golf earnings for the year to more than $9,000.

Long-hitting Mickey put together four sub-par rounds of 70-74-70-70—the best competitive scoring of her career—and made them stand up for a 2-stroke margin over another youngster, runnerup 20-year-old Wiffi Smith, St. Clair, Mich.

Trying for her first professional victory before the hometown folks, Wiffi made a spectacular hole-in-the closing round, scooping Lochmoor's 4,000-yard layout with a record-breaking 68, seven strokes under women's par.

Rough Course Awaits Golfers In Public Tilt

HERSHEY, Pa., July 29 (AP)—Golfers from Halesh, Pa., to Honolulu attempted Monday to master a tight little course in the qualifying rounds of the 32nd National Public Links championship.

The 6,055-yard par 35-35-70 Hershey Park Golf club course, is an appropriate setting for the common people in the tournament. The only public layout among four in this town of 6,000, it is a sort of adjunct to an amusement park.

But golfers aren't finding it amusing.

Although short in grass, there are some steep hills, lots of woods, several pecky dogleg holes around trees and a creek which has to be crossed 11 times as it winds through the hollows. On three holes there is real danger of going into the water, which could mean the loss of a hole and possibly a match during the 18-hole tussles.

A field of 150 whittled down from an original entry of 1,923, started play Monday. After 36 holes of qualifying Monday and Tuesday the low 64 will go into match play on Wednesday to decide the individual title.

The inter-city team championship, in which 23 teams of three men each are entered, will be decided during the qualifying rounds.

James (June) Buxbaum, who led Memphis to the team title last year and then went on to take individual honors, is on hand to defend his championship. He and runnerup Bill Scarborough, Jacksonville, Fla., were exempt from sectional qualifying but are required to qualify here.

Two other ex-champions in the field are Stan Bielst, Yonkers, N. Y., and Andy Swedko, Pittsburgh.

The individual competition includes two rounds of 18-hole matches each on Wednesday and Thursday, the 36-hole semifinals Friday and the finals Saturday.

McIntosh Collects Gooding Tourney

Bill McIntosh, Gooding, led home the championship flight of the eighth annual Gooding Open Golf tournament Sunday by firing a 27-hole total of 181. Rick Nelson, Shoshone, was close on the heels of the champ with a total of 184. Max Wilkerson took third place, while Ted Eastman, Newt Carter and Rusty Shepherd followed in that order.

Eaton Collects Utah's Open Golf Tourney

SALT LAKE CITY, July 29 (AP)—Zell Eaton, Los Angeles professional who entered the Utah Open Golf tournament for a bit of vacation recreation, headed the house Monday with $1,500 first prize. It took a Twin Falls golfer, Cliff Whittle, to make the most spectacular shot—a hole-in-one.

The stocky Californian with the cross-handed putting grip burned up the P. Douglas course with a five-under-par final round of 65 Sunday to finish the $7,500 meet at 271-nine under par for 72 holes.

Eaton also was five strokes ahead of defending champion Dick Lundahl, Pasadena, Calif., and Don Collett, San Diego. Both finished at 276.

Lundahl with a final day score of 68, and Collett with 69. Lundahl started the day one stroke ahead of the field at 206. He stayed out of trouble with straight drives on the narrow fairways of the 6,135-yard hilly course, and zeroed in with his approach shots so accurately that his putting was never put to a stern test.

Eaton shot two birdies on the first nine to go two under par at the turn. Then he birdied the first three holes of the second nine to go five under, and stayed even par the rest of the way. The 10th, 11th and 12th holes are all par 4s. Eaton hit the green on each one with his second shot close enough to get down with one putt.

Collett made the most sensational shot of the day—except for a hole-in-one fired by Cliff Whittle, Twin Falls municipal golf pro. On the par 4 ninth, Collett's second shot dropped behind a steep bunker at the left of the green. From his lie he could only see the top of the flag—but his 30-foot pitch curled under the sloping green and plunked into the cup.

Next behind Lundahl and Collett in fourth place was temperamental Smiley Quick, Downey, Calif. His final 70 left him with a 277 total. Besides the $650 prize money, Quick headed home with a $250 bond which he posted before he entered the tournament as a guarantee that he'd curb his temper. Tournament officials said his department this year would get him an "A."

California pros dominated the field. Only amateurs in the top 20 finishers were Lou North, Salt Lake City and young Babe Hickey, Pocatello. Both started the final day at 215, but North finished with a 282 and Hickey a 280.

Whittle finished fifth at 278. His final round of 66 was the best of the day. He made the first nine in 31, thanks partly to a hole-in-one on the 130-yard 7th hole.

Bill Korns, Caldwell, shot a 72 Sunday for a 287 total—good for 16th place and $100.

State Keglers Lead

OGDEN, Utah, July 29 (AP)—An Idaho team took over the leadership in the Maxie Koser bowling endurance classic over the weekend as a new scratch record was set for the meet.

Guy Lanes, Pocatello, is the new team leader, passing Salt Lake City's entrant, the Phil Graham Bowling Supplies team.

The Idahoans rolled 18,825 to take the lead.

The Minneapolis Lakers won five National Basketball association titles in six years from 1948 through 1954.

Sound Barrier Holds Against Attempt of Jets

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—The most modern jet interceptors in the air force service failed to beat the speed of sound in a contest, widely hailed as the "history's first supersonic race."

Slow tail winds were blamed for the inability of the F-102 Delta Dagger jets to dash between Chicago and Andrews air force base, Md., yesterday faster than sound in the Bendix trophy race.

Though the flight was not up to advance billing, the new Bendix race record of 610 miles per hour was set by Capt. Kenneth D. Chandler, 33, Compton, Calif. He streaked over the 619.7-mile course from O'Hare airport to Andrews in 54 minutes, 45.5 seconds.

The record drew thunderous applause from an officially estimated 75,000 people gathered at Andrews for an air force demonstration of the jet interceptors in honor of the service's "golden anniversary."

Chandler's speed was 44.5 miles an hour slower than the new transonic record set by a B-47 bomber, which flew from Los Angeles to New York. He had light tail winds at the beginning of his flight but then ran into crosswinds and headwinds the rest of the way.

In yesterday's second major race, Maj. Peter R. Phillips of McKees Rocks, Pa., set a new record of 638 miles an hour in an F-4 Phantom II fighter jet on July 16 over a course almost four times as long. Glenn refueled in flight three times between Los Angeles and New York. He had light tail winds at the beginning of his flight but then ran into crosswinds and headwinds the rest of the way.

The F-102 is the chief interceptor in the continental air defense command. The Bendix race yesterday indicated it needs a substantial tailwind to go a distance of 620 miles at a speed greater than that of sound.

Atom Rocket Is Studied by AEC

LAS VEGAS, July 29 (AP)—Atomic energy commission scientists today studied results of the firing of a high altitude rocket which was designed to reach 80,000 feet over the Tonopah ballistics range.

The rocket was fired Saturday and inter-plunged back to earth inside the test site. The AEC said the test was part of a research project to develop a rocket propelled by nuclear power.

No results of the test were released. The AEC said the rocket carried scientific recording instruments and didn't contain any explosives or nuclear material.

Steel Market Firmer Again After Decline

NEW YORK, July 20 (AP)—The steel industry thinks it has hit bottom in a fall that left few bruises. The production slump has been relatively slight and orders are picking up, with high hopes held for a substantial increase in demand from that important customer, the auto industry.

Pleasant for steel stockholders are the profit reports on the first half of this year. Two out of every three of the nation's steel companies show earnings after taxes topping those in the same period of 1955.

Close Study
Rarely have the income statements of the steel industry had closer scrutiny, because of all the hullabaloo over inflation—and particularly the guessing on the higher wages and higher prices even each other out on the profit and loss sheet.

The steel industry has operated in the first six months of 1956 on a basis of higher wages and prices than a year ago. The second half will be figured on a still higher level—labor costs and steel prices having gone up July 1.

The biggest company, United States Steel, will report tomorrow but already 23 others have announced earnings after taxes for the first six months. Nine of them have slipped below last year's figures.

Combined they show profits of $283,535,200, compared with $275,415,300 in the same period of 1955, a gain of three per cent.

Comparison figures in the last six months of this year seem sure to be much more striking, although far less accurate, since the steel strike that started July 1, 1956, twisted statistics of the steel industry out of kilter for about three months.

See Improvement
All the spokesmen of the industry are unanimous in predicting that orders and output will pick up smartly this fall. They count on the new auto models to take sizable tonnage. Demand for structural steel and heavy plate has remained high right through the early summer slump in other steel production. Steelmen say that so far no resistance to the higher steel prices has shown up among consumers.

Blasts Indicate Crust Not Thick

SALT LAKE CITY, July 20 (AP)—Those huge blasts near the north end of Great Salt Lake have given scientists more evidence to back up what they previously suspected—that the earth's crust in this area is comparatively thin.

The scientists at the University of Utah say they have tentatively concluded that the crust is only 15 to 20 miles deep. In some other parts of the country the crust is believed to be up to 25 miles thick.

The scientists base their conclusions on vibrations recorded from huge explosions set off to loosen rock for the Southern Pacific railroad's earth fill dike along the route of the Lucin cutoff.

Plan for Education of Idaho Handicapped Pupils Grows

BOISE, July 20 (AP)—Two years ago Idaho educators embarked on an ambitious program aimed at giving specialized instruction to handicapped, school-age children living in the state.

And, though it's too early to measure the new project with any statistical accuracy, proponents maintain it is destined to become an integral part of the state's education system.

One of the pioneers of the program and the man most closely connected with it is Alton B. Jones, superintendent of public instruction, who yesterday looked back over the first biennium of its existence and listed some of the changes wrought in that short time.

The 1957 legislature strengthened the program with a law requiring that all handicapped children mentally capable of being educated be given access to special school facilities in the state.

Idaho educators today are spending a great deal of time and energy on the subject of the 10,000 handicapped children in the state, said Jones. He pointed out that Idaho's annual education leadership conference at Sun Valley Thursday spent part of a day discussing that subject alone.

Not too long ago, he said, children found to be either physically or mentally unable to progress at the minimum rate required for a "normal" child were deemed "handicapped." They were returned to their parents who had to manage a home-spun education for their offspring as best they could.

"Often the parents of a home-bound child had a seven-day-a-week job," said Jones. "At last they're getting some consideration."

To turn all of these youngsters into citizens equipped for some sort of productivity, Jones said, is the goal of the program, now being vigorously expanded by school districts across the state. Fifteen counties now have special school or classrooms equipped for teaching handicapped students.

In the more simple beginnings of the program, however, a "pilot committee" composed of Jones, Dr. Robert Onness of the University of Idaho and Dr. Charlotte Cleeland of Idaho State college, was organized. Drs. Onness and Cleeland are both acknowledged authorities in the

Expert on China Dies at Age 70

MILL VALLEY, Calif., July 20 (AP)—Funeral services were held today for Dr. John Earl Baker, the "Hoover of China," who died at his home Saturday at the age of 70.

For 34 years Baker was a figure in relief and industrial programs in China. He served that country as adviser to the ministry of communications in 1912.

His last service to China was the joint commission on rural reconstruction in Formosa, a post which former President Truman pointed him in 1948.

In the years between, Baker received the name "Hoover of China" for his service in famine relief. He directed the Red Cross in China during the 1920's.

ured in human values.

"It's one of the more human things that agencies of education have undertaken in recent years," Jones said.
