Decisions for Military Fund Slashes Made

for the next fiscal year. This is the figure at which Wilson has said he expects spending to level off.

Wilson insisted he had no idea now of the allocation of funds between the three armed services in the coming fiscal year.

"Apparently the temper of the country is to try to cut the budget, the military budget along with the rest of it," Wilson explained.

He said "The present program is a reasonable, minimum program but I wouldn't want to see anything less."

President Eisenhower had "put his approval on it and I don't know anyone better" to make that decision, he added.

Wilson held his news conference at about the time the senate sent to the President a compromise $33,759,850,000 bill providing funds for the defense department for the 12 months which began July 1. It was $2,368,150,000 under President Eisenhower's requests.

The international situation, Wilson noted, "is not as tough now as last fall" when the first, higher budget estimates were made. He noted there were then such trouble spots as Hungary, Israel and Suez.

Many Persons Hurt in Panic After Mishap
PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2 (AP)—A transformer exploded in the first car of a Broad street subway train today and scores of panic-stricken passengers were injured as they plunged through windows of the derailed cars.

A small fire broke out in the motor and transformer insulation, filling the Broad and Erie station in North Philadelphia with dense smoke.

A United Press reporter said the platform and street above ground were splattered with blood as passengers fled to safety.

Temple University hospital said it treated at least 20 persons; a spokesman at Einstein medical center said between 30 and 40 persons were being treated there; and 14 persons were given first aid at Women's Medical college hospital.

All the injured suffered lacerations and shock.

An eyewitness said there was a flash, an explosion, and a second flash before smoke began pouring into the station and out through air vents to the streets above. All the lights in the train went out.

The accident occurred at 8:40 a. m. during the height of the morning rush-hour. Forty minutes later the disabled car had been towed away and normal service was resumed.

Last Division Begins Move Out of Japan

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—Withdrawal of the last American division from Japan is now under way.

The defense department announced yesterday the departure from Japan of the first cavalry division. This was one of the first major units to arrive of the original army of occupation nearly 12 years ago, and is the last to leave.

The remaining men and equipment of the now understrength division will be absorbed by other units elsewhere. But its proud name, traditions and battle honors are moving to Korea.

There, the last cavalry will take over the men and equipment of the 24th division. The 24th will then be dropped from the army's order of battle.

In Korea, the transformed 1st cavalry, which has been an infantry division for many years, will be commanded by Maj. Gen. Ralph Zwicker, who was once castigated by the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy, D. Wis., as a man unfit to wear a general's uniform.

The Pentagon said the departure of the 1st cavalry from Japan carries out the assurance made by President Eisenhower to Japanese Prime Minister Kishi in June that all U. S. ground forces would be withdrawn within the year.

Completion of the ground force withdrawal will be announced within a few weeks. It will send the 9th regiment of the 3rd marine division from Japan to Okinawa. The 3rd division headquarters and its 3rd regiment are already stationed on Okinawa.

The division's 4th regiment is in Hawaii, where it is scheduled to remain.

The departure of the 1st cavalry will leave in Japan several air force wings, the 3rd marine air wing and a handful of army troops who will act as housekeepers and caretakers. The total number of American service men remaining in Japan will be about 17,000.

U. S. army strength in Korea will remain about the same after the move from Japan. The 7th infantry division is already there and will remain with the 1st cavalry to man the American section of the Korean armistice line.

The army of occupation that Gen. Douglas MacArthur led to Japan in the early fall of 1945 reached a maximum strength of nearly 300,000.

New Clothing Styles Viewed In Paris Show

PARIS, Aug. 2 (AP)—Christian Dior displayed a controversial contradictory style yesterday that plunged necklines to the waist for evening wear, but kept dresses sacky and sexless for daytime.

In a silhouette evoking the flapper days of the 20's, Dior came up with an elongated almond shape which he called the "shuttle-line." He shocked the fashion world with murderously "oh-so-low-as-that" necklines for evening wear. He also raised skirts to 15 inches, which is short for Dior.

For daytime wear he created a "haunted lady," sexless, sacky silhouette.

Buyers and members of the press crowded—his grey-white suit to gasp at his new dictates, enhanced by something he called "the golden brasserie" shows.

Yesterday's shows saw the conversion of the slinky silhouette into the long-legged "sugar daddy" look—definite return of the Theda Bara vamp.

Jacques Heim's new line was slinkier than ever, with 16 inch and up hemlines dominating his collection.

One short dinner-dance dress in yellow mousseline clung coyly to the body in front but vaporous floor-length back panels fell in place with tiny bows floated from the back.

U. S. Has Big Forces Set to Enter Combat

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Aug. 2 (AP)—One-fourth of the entire United States army is deployed in Europe today—ready to meet any communist ground attack with devastating atomic firepower.

Gen. H. H. Hodes, top army man on the continent, says a Russian assault can be stopped by his formidable force with the help of present and planned allied divisions.

The aim—if the struggle to prevent war fails—is to hold firm at or near the iron curtain to give air power time to retaliate before Red land forces could overrun Western Germany.

"That is the one thing we're going to make every effort to do," Hodes says.

The commander makes no attempt to conceal the gravity of his problem. If war comes, he tells inquirers at his headquarters here, "we would be subjected to missile attack"—and there is "no reason" to doubt the Red could use atomic weapons.

Hodes said the Russians "do not lag" in developing tactical type weapons for battlefield use. But unit-for-unit and weapon-for-weapon, the Americans can meet the Russians on at least equal terms, even if they are numerically inferior.

Strike Unlikely

It now is highly unlikely, Hodes believes, that the Red could spring a surprise ground attack. He feels they would have to mobilize in such strength as to alert the allied forces on the central European front.

With warning, the general says, his forces could withstand a nuclear attack and strike back promptly. He keeps the command ready to go into action "in a matter of hours."

Frequent alerts require combat units to disperse within two hours for defense against simulated nuclear blows.

It is giving away no secret, he reports that U. S. ground forces in Western Germany have the Rocket launchers and artillery pieces to hurl 57 atomic warheads at one time—if that should be necessary. And each one could be at least as powerful as the World War II Hiroshima bomb.

That power is embodied in three Honest John rockets, five Corporal guided missile and five atomic cannon battalions.

Air Power, too

Such is the barrage a Red army, massed in attack, could expect to say nothing of the power in air force jet planes and Matador missiles in West Germany. And there are several more atomic-missile battalions in the army's southern European task force based near Verona, Italy.

Hodes' forces total about 250,000 men. They are stationed from England to the East German and Czechoslovakian borders and in Berlin. He says 75 per cent are in combat or combat-support units.

The principal fighting element of Hodes' command is Lieut. Gen. Bruce C. Clark's U. S. seventh army. It comprises about half of total army manpower in Europe and is regarded as the finest field army the country has maintained in peacetime.

It cost one billion dollars to set up the seventh, Clark says, and it takes $1,200,000,000 a year to keep it going.

"Our job is to be constantly combat ready," Clark says, "and we are ready to play our part in cold war, warm war or hot war. Our soldiers feel the sense of urgency. They understand why they're here."

Clark has the immense responsibility of holding about 250 miles of the 450-mile central European front. He does it with two infantry, one airborne and two armored divisions, screened by three cavalry regiments which constantly patrol the iron curtain by air and tank.

His security—and that of other West European forces—will be enhanced further this year by introduction of Nike anti-aircraft missiles to American and allied units.

Morse Displays Rare Ability To Make Colleagues Unhappy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—In a debate like civil rights, it's hard to take a firm stand and not wind up making somebody unhappy. But it's even harder to take a course—and to stick to it resolutely—and wind up making everybody unhappy.

Yet that seems to be what Senator Morse, D. Ore., has done.

In the early stages of the senate debate Morse had the pro-civil rights looking sadly at him because he objected to making the civil rights bill the next order of business. He preferred to send the bill to committee, as is customary.

Although the anti-civil rights gladly accepted his help, they too looked at him sadly. They knew that if a time comes when long talk counts, this longest talker of them all would be talking on the other side.

And then came the three little words that, to outward appearances, displeased not only the anti and the pro, but also a vast number of other people, including the peacemakers in Morse's Oregon.

"I do object," said Wayne Lyman Morse, and thereby refused to untangle the knot in which the senate had entangled itself.

The tangle really was simple: Civil rights would be the order of the day until everyone agreed to put it aside for something else. Naturally in a government like this business quickly piles up, so an attempt was made to take a breather from civil rights and take care of some of it.

Everyone seemed agreed that this should be done.

Sen. Spessard Holland, D. Fla., pointed out that one of the bills would aid the orchardists of Oregon, whose pears are beginning to drop and need to be moved.

Then Morse got up. He said he was sorry about the Oregon orchardists, but he thought civil rights came first. He said he was sorry he had to take this stand. "I do not like always to be in the minority," Morse said.

But he said he wanted to tell his pro-civil rights colleagues this:

"Now is the time to hold the line. Now is the time to say there will be no retreat, there will be no truce, there will be no armistice. . . . Therefore, Mr. President, as a

Soviet Moves To Slash Red Tape Tangles

PARIS, Aug. 2 (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev has told a group of touring Americans the new program of decentralizing Russian industry has ended a "madhouse" of bureaucracy in which 20 departments in Moscow would control one factory.

The first secretary of the Soviet communist party wore a brown business suit and a confident, businesslike manner when American businessmen asked him about the new decentralization program.

Until it was put in effect, he said, everything had been controlled from Moscow. And this meant that 20 departments might control one factory.

"When there was a question raised in a local factory all 20 representatives might have to go back to the far-off city to settle it and then come all the way back," he said.

"The result was a vast correspondence and a network of bureaucracy."

"No one is infallible, not even a government minister, no matter how clever he may be."

"His mistakes under that system would become the mistakes of the Soviet union. Criticism of a minister or ministry from below would never reach Moscow, and thus the bureaucrat would be immune to the criticism of workers of the industry."

"Today there are regional or local economic councils and the administration of industry rests with them and criticism is addressed to them."

"Whereas an administration used to be run from one center, now there are 105 centers or economic councils."

"Each economic center has specialized departments and the head of each one has broad powers to answer all questions arising under him."

"This has lessened bureaucratic tendencies and brought the administration closer to the factories and made possible greater constructive criticism."

"We have freed practically tens of thousands of people from empty paper work and made it possible for them to enter into the productive aspects of the economy."

"Not only are they free but the hundreds of thousands of people who used to read these papers are free from this madhouse too."

Food engineers at the Illinois Institute of Technology say that a chocolate bar of tomorrow may provide the protein for a full meal.

Washburn said Dubinsky's International Ladies Garment Workers union employed Dio to help organize a Roanoke, Va., plant.

The U. S. department of agriculture, making the estimate, said this year's crop is 2 1/2 per cent larger than that of last year, when 546,000 calves were born.

The department said the 560,000 total is the largest for any year since record-keeping began in 1924.

Their destination is Disneyland, near Anaheim, Calif. There they have been promised the "red carpet" treatment including introductions to Walt Disney and movie stars Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and Gary Cooper, Brinton said. Cooper is a Montana native.

The children stopped here last night at two hotels. Their $20,000 trip is being paid for by contributions from Montanans.

Sale of Autos Slows; Model Change Eyed

DETROIT, Aug. 2 (AP)—New car sales are lagging behind earlier expectations; dealer inventories moved up instead of down during July, an orderly cleanup of outgoing model cars is not as probable as it appeared to be a few weeks ago.

That's the auto industry picture at the moment. It emphasizes how rapidly things change in the production and distribution of automobiles.

The complete count of new car sales for July will not be available for a couple of weeks or so, but estimates place the total at around 460,000 units.

Dealer inventories, which stood at about 744,000 units on July 1, probably will total 775,000 when the Aug. 1 count is completed. Ahead for the retailer lies some strenuous sales activity if deliveries for the year are to approach earlier estimates of approximately six million.

Unless sales drivers step up the total during August there may be a cutback in assembly line output even before the model changeover shut-downs.

Industry surveys indicate there already have been some so-called "bill" sales, with special inducements offered to clutch new car sales. These have been in the form of offers of free air conditioners, cameras or other merchandise with each new car purchase.

This type of merchandising has not been as general as it was in the final days of the fabulous 1955 model-year, but it is becoming more growing in volume. And many car manufacturers, advertising models, are advising would-be purchasers to see their dealers for his prices.

The American Bible society has distributed more than 40 million volumes of the Holy Scriptures to men in the U. S. armed services.

COMPULSION "SACRIFICE"

When Marshal Zhukov told President Eisenhower that communism appeals to the idealistic because it allows people to sacrifice themselves to the state, he spoke of a theory that has no link with the facts of life in the Soviet Union.

Despite decades of effort and concealment of the truth by the distortions of propaganda, the Russians have not been able to hide from the world how a Communist government works in real practice.

It is a dictatorship founded on ruthless coercion of the people. It is arbitrary rule. Decisions are handed down from the top and must be obeyed without question. The people neither debate nor take part in these choices. Their criticisms never touch policy fundamentals but are limited to details of policy execution.

After nearly 30 years of Communist rule in Russia, we have no measurable evidence that Soviet citizens selflessly sacrifice themselves to the state, and glory in this sacrifice. They yield to the all-powerful government because it monopolizes the means of coercion—and applies them with brutal disdain for human concerns.

In original theory, Communists argued that dictatorship would be a temporary phase, that a gradually re-educated people would develop habits of selfless cooperation which in time would end the need for arbitrary rule.

Early in the game, however, Lenin and other top Russian leaders saw the folly of trying to remake human nature. They thereafter accepted dictatorship as a permanent condition under communism.

Clearly, then, they accepted coercion as a necessary device. All thought that people could be brought to selfless sacrifice for the state, that they could find deep satisfaction in such yielding, was forgotten.

Thus when Zhukov told Mr. Eisenhower communism lured the idealistic because it gave them outlet for sacrifice, he spouted theory which his own civilian leaders long since had given up.

Possibly, being a soldier, he did not understand all that had transpired in the civilian realm. Too, a soldier is trained to accept subservience to firm authority as a good and necessary thing. The military is built upon a system of order maintained from the top.

On the other hand, the Russian military customarily gets far more political indoctrination than do soldiers in free lands. Zhukov in the mid-1940's may very well have understood thoroughly the facts of Soviet life.

The truth is that Russian leaders in all walks have sought continuously to perpetuate the idea of selfless co-operation in the programs and policies of the Communist state. But what was genuine theory at the outside has become gigantic fraud.

Nothing so sharply symbolizes the fraud as does the constant use of the phrase "people's government" to describe red regimes which have nothing whatsoever to do with the people except to grind them in the dust.

By their nature Communist governments do not serve people but enslave them. The "state" is not an agency rooted in popular consent and sustained by popular cooperation. It exists as a mechanism to prolong and enlarge the power of Communist dictators.

Communism, not democracy, is materialistic. It is a system perfectly conceived to serve the materialistic needs of the seekers of great power.

The man at the top in the Kremlin—or his counterpart in other red regimes—is truly the only kind of man on earth who can do as he pleases. And very little of what he does ought in fact to appeal to the idealistic.

LET'S KILL THOSE BUGS!

Many a weary resident of Twin Falls will welcome the suggestion by H. G. Lauterbach, former mayor and a long time local resident, that some mass attack be instituted against insect pests which have been ravaging the city.

The average householder will agree this has been the worst year ever for bugs of all kinds, and he's about distraught in his losing fight against these insect hordes.

"Without doubt," said former Mayor Lauterbach, "this is the worst year we have experienced and there is no reason why each succeeding year should not continue to get worse unless a program of control is instituted and put into effect immediately."

He suggests that the city, through its parks department, should take over the job of spraying trees throughout Twin Falls. To his way of thinking, it's the only method of keeping the problem under control.

The cost of having the spraying done by the city probably would be small as compared to the expense involved in present ineffective attempts by the individual householders. Unless the entire city is sprayed at one time, scattered and repeated sprayings not only are ineffective but expensive as well. Then there is the added trouble and expense of washing cars and windows, removing dead trees and other incidental nuisances.

Mr. Lauterbach is to be congratulated for going to bat on this problem, and the various clubs of the city will be doing a real service in helping him to convince the city officials some definite action must be taken.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—American scientists' serious miscalculation of the devastating strength of our first atom bomb was probably the allies' most fatal blunder of World War II. Our current difficulties with Russia and China, as well as the communists' postwar possession of central Europe, the Balkans and the Far East, may be traced directly to this laboratory error.

This is the strongly supported theory advanced by Dr. Herbert Fels in a recently published volume, entitled "Churchill-Roosevelt-Stalin—The War They Waged and the Peace They Bought." Dr. Fels was the state department's economic adviser during World War II and afterward.

Besides his personal participation in top-level conferences, Dr. Fels has had access to documents hitherto withheld or unknown to the public of the allied countries. Only Russia's secret papers to him. But the late dictator's disagreements and defiance of Churchill and Roosevelt have been disclosed in many memoirs and in documents filed away at Washington and London.

MISCALCULATED NOT DATE BUT DEVASTATION—General Leslie R. Groves, who headed the Manhattan project that developed the first A-bomb, told FDR as early as February, 1945, that the deadly missile would be ready for military use by August of that year.

But Groves made a miscalculation of more than 400 per cent. He informed Roosevelt that the bomb would have an explosive effect equivalent to only 500 tons of TNT. This destructive power hardly equaled the bomb load carried by planes then bombarding Germany and Japan.

Actually, the first A-bomb had a blast force equivalent to between 10,000 and 20,000 tons of TNT, or enough to level Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Its pulverizing effect forced Japan to sue for peace almost immediately, and brought a sudden end to the conflict in the Far East.

ENVISIONED INVASION OF JAPAN—Because of this miscalculation, General Marshall, Admiral King and their British opposites persisted in the belief that it would require at least 18 months to defeat Japan after Germany's surrender. They envisaged a physical invasion of Japan with a million men, accompanied by fearful losses.

It was for this reason that Roosevelt and Churchill thought it necessary to give many concessions to Stalin at Yalta, and for Truman and Acheson to confirm these "gifts" at Potsdam. In return for Russian control of Manchuria, the Baltic nations, Central Europe and the Balkans, Stalin agreed to repudiate his peace treaty with Tokyo, and enter the war against Japan one month after Hitler's downfall.

RUSSIANS FOUGHT LITTLE—However, the Tokyo war lords, under pressure from the Emperor, surrendered so quickly and completely after the Hiroshima-Nagasaki disasters that Russian troops fought only an eight-day skirmish against the disheartened Japanese forces.

But Marshal Zhukov seized the Yalta opportunity to turn over Japanese arms and ammunition to the Chinese communists, and subsequently Stalin stripped Manchuria of minerals and machinery to rebuild Russia. Had it not been for these contributions to Soviet economy, Russia might still be a second-rate power.

Again, had it not been for this laboratory blunder, Russia might not now be such a threat to world peace, and the Chinese Communists might not have been in a position to overthrow Chiang Kai-shek and drive him to Formosa as a virtual exile.

The war, it appears, was won by the soldiers on the battlefield, but the peace was lost or jeopardized by the scientists.

VIEWS OF OTHERS

AS A GOOD NEIGHBOR
The atomic energy commission's bid for additional acreage on which to extend activities of its national reactor testing station in eastern Idaho has led to hearings lately conducted at Idaho Falls which bring to attention and raise some pretty serious questions in respect to the whole operation.

Of immediate concern is the bearing of this proposal upon the claims of persons who have established rights to the use of these lands for grazing or other purposes and whose livelihoods may be at stake. There is serious error in the assumption, if it exists, that this area is wasteland, desert and of no value. It has been in the past, and it still is, a contributor of no small extent to Idaho's economy.

Involved in this proposed transaction, too, as Jefferson county's Senator Bert Call has incisively pointed out, are this region's subterranean waters, that use of inestimable value to many Idahoans outside the perimeter of the AEC's operations. It is not at all improbable that AEC activities will make increasingly heavy draft on this invaluable resource, with possibility of depleting existing and potential irrigation supplies that must be quite disturbing. This is something that calls for thorough study and reliable determination.

Hearings on the proposal also have raised questions about AEC housekeeping in the 41,000-acre reservation it already holds. It's charged that AEC hasn't been properly concerned about elimination of rodent and insect pests or of poisonous and noxious weeds that spread with damaging effect from this to surrounding cultivated areas. There's no valid excuse for any neglect of duty on that account, and there is involved a responsibility that definitely rests upon AEC.

So the hearing has brought out criticism and raised questions that demand attention, but there is nowhere indicated any dog-in-the-manger attitude to resist the transfer of these lands to the AEC, provided it's effected in conformity with the rules of equity and fair play. It is quite generally recognized that uses to which AEC may put this area in development, control and application of nuclear energy may far surpass in importance the uses to which it has heretofore been put.

At the same time, there is earnest and abiding conviction hereabouts that whatever sacrifice may be involved in this transaction should not be borne solely by a comparatively small group of Idaho farmers and stockmen. They should be adequately compensated not only for the deprivation of their accustomed mode of living, and the expense should be shared as equitably as possible by all who stand to benefit by new uses to which the area may be put.

Idaho already has made important contribution to the advancement of nuclear development. It's a contribution of which Idahoans are proud and they share fully in anticipation of benefits yet to come from continued and expanded operations in this field.

All that Idaho asks of AEC is that if come in and conduct its affairs in our midst it would any other good neighbor. That must be insisted upon, and that, no doubt, is the way the deal will be worked out.

These hearings have been most helpful in clearing the atmosphere and marking the way—Dolce Statesman.

INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY
The head of one of the big industries of the country emphasizes the place of the individual not only in the management of a private business, a corporation, the role of a citizen, and all those responsibilities that make for a desirable community.

If a free society is to be preserved, seven elements of personal character must be dominant in its citizenry, namely self reliance, individual initiative, personal responsibility, thrift, pride of citizenship, courage and religious faith.

The responsibility here is strictly personal. It is you and I as individuals that must assume the task. For we must ever remember that the number of Communists ever composed a great symphony; no church ever wrote a great sermon; no management association ever composed a great poem; no government commission ever put together a Lincoln Gettysburg address.—Fort Morgan (Colo.) Times.

POT SHOTS

CULINARY GEMS
Lots of folks are addicted to coffee just because it's coffee. And there are others, like yours truly, for instance, who drink the stuff just for the sugar and cream they can put in it.

And presumably it's human nature to try to improve on nearly anything. But you can take the word of Pot Shots that it's no improvement to dump two teaspoons of salt into a cup of coffee. As a matter of fact, it makes the coffee taste somewhat salty, for some reason.

Anyway, it would be presumptuous to even think about improving on the coffee turned out by George Clark over Three Creek way. If it hadn't appeared necessary to explain why the coffee wasn't being consumed, he'd probably never know.

But as soon as he knew, he grinned, told about one of his culinary masterpieces. Seems he was in a hurry to prepare a meal, no more than glanced at the labels of two cans. He opened the first one, dumped corn into a pan, then hastily opened the second and without a glance dumped it into the same pan. It didn't take a very close inspection to determine that the second can had held grapefruit.

KITTENS FOR KIDS DEPT.

There are six of these lovely kittens that need homes. They are about a month old and come in a variety of colors. Some have long hair. They are very playful and lovable but must go. They can be had at 813 Eighth north, Buhl, (evenings) or Phone 515 (Buhl).

REAL VACATION

Why is it there is usually one house on the block where the owner is taking his summer vacation seriously by not moving his lawn for weeks at a time, seldom watering or clipping long grass.

He also lets his children strew their toys around to clutter the place further.

Believe me, the whole family takes it easy all summer!

PUPS FOR KIDS DEPT.

We have a female Australian shepherd pup, black and white, to give to someone. She would make a good children's dog. Phone 0265-J11 or pick up three and one-half miles south and one mile west of the Berger store.

THEY'RE PROVING IT

Those old maids and widows appear to be going out of their way to prove a point. From recent letters, I would say the ones between 35 and 60 can now rest on their laurels. They're sure lonely! Makes you wonder how far a person would go to prove something.

Can't you sort of shut them off now? After all, they've yammered on and on for days and one of 'em even had a postoffice box number in case anyone else felt the same way.

Or could the whole thing be some sort of well-organized campaign to get something rolling?

OUR BULLETIN BOARD

I Point, Twin Falls—It's perfectly okay to point on that subject, but let's keep it clean, huh? We'll be watching for your note after you clean it up a bit.

FAMOUS LAST LINE

They're looking forward to a nice vacation—wasn't it?

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

In reply to the so-called "labor priests" who wage controversy for unions and their bosses; but never, to my knowledge, put a finger on any crook among their general clientele, I beg consent to publish the following:

"Paulist Fathers, 415 West 59th Street, New York 19, N. Y. Jan. 25, 1957

"Dear Peg:
"I am still cooped up in a corner of the house after 10 months. I was out only once—to Boston for the laying of the cornerstone of the Centre on Park street.

"I do, however, see the papers. When I read of the McClellan (formerly McCarthy) committee's getting around to racketeering in the unions, I said it's a vindication of Pegler. And when Reuther came out with a demand (!) for an investigation of what you've been exposing for 10 or 12 years, I felt that you had triumphed. Give the men of the cloth a little more time—and a little more courage—and they also may wake up. It has been my pleasure to direct the attention of some of them to the fact that 'Pegler' has been calling the shots as he sees them, and that it will be well for certain 'labor priests' to do the same.

"You are paying the penalty of being ahead of the crowd. Our Savior, Himself, said to those who were ganging up on Him: 'You killed all the prophets from Abel to Zacharias. (A to Z, by the way.)' 'There is a Scriptural phrase: 'the reward of the prophet.' That's it—persecution is vindication. But don't worry; not now that you are winning. Better late than never.

"I am sending you a new book of mine, written before I got sick but published only now.

"I was delighted to hear that you liked old St. Mary's in S. F. . . It is my own favorite—after our church here. I did a lot of work out there from 1910 on.

"I am saying mass sitting down—by permission from Rome."

"Sincerely yours,"
"James M. Gillis, C.S.P."

After Father Gillis died, the noted Midwestern Catholic weekly "Our Sunday Visitor" ran a solemn editorial entitled "Was Father Gillis Wrong?" Noting that he "was little fussed over until he put down his pen, thereby disarming himself."

"But 'after his retirement,' said Our Sunday Visitor, 'honors started pouring in. And after his death, practically every Catholic periodical in the country said what a great man he was. If they loved him so much, if they respected him, if he was such a great man, why didn't they listen to him?

"He kept crying out, like the Old Testament watchman on the ramparts, warning of every approaching danger: The first, fatal recognition of Russia; lend-lease, 'shoot on sight,' 'stab in the back,' Pearl Harbor; Quebec, Yalta, Potsdam.

"Tell the truth: God had no need of a lie," said St. Ambrose. Father Gillis made those words his guiding principle."

At Christmas, 1955, Father Gillis went home to Boston. He called on me and from my hotel window we looked down on the beautiful scene on the common where, 10 years before, this little lad had played third base for the neighborhood scrub.

And 'way yonder, back of the Commonwealth, vague through the falling snow, his monument, the Paulist center, which now bears his name, was taking shape on Park street.

He told me of his defeat. He warned me that the enemy was too strong. They had killed off Joe McCarthy, Martin Dies, Parnell Thompson, as J. B. Matthews, Bob Stripling, "Write your funny stuff!"

"But drop this fight. You can't win." Strange counsel from a martyr groping feebly and alone to a hospitable grave.

The new ambassadors—other than Gluck—who contributed to the Republicans in 1956 were American the months passed. In June Eisenhower named Gluck to the ambassador's job in Ceylon.

In July Gluck had to appear before Green's committee, which passes on appointments like Gluck's. But the trouble with Gluck, as it turned out, was that he failed to do his homework.

He said he may have given as much as $30,000 to the Republican campaign, but he couldn't pronounce the names of the Prime Ministers of India and Ceylon. This got so much publicity that Eisenhower was asked at his news conference yesterday:

"Were you aware when you nominated Mr. Gluck to be ambassador to Ceylon of the extent of his contribution to the Republican party or his now recorded ignorance of affairs in that part of the world?"

That's when Eisenhower blew up, denied political contributions had any connection with appointments, and said a "number of people I respect" had highly recommended Gluck.

The new ambassadors—other than Gluck—who contributed to the Republicans in 1956 were American

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—President Eisenhower angrily told his news conference this week he would never consider appointing anyone recommended on the basis of a political contribution.

Of the 36 ambassadors he has named since the 1956 elections, seven contributed cash to the Republican campaign and one gave money to the Democrats. Researchers can find no record of where the other 28 made a contribution to either side that year.

The presidential anger was the last link in a chain of events that came to a climax after he had given an ambassadorial appointment to Maxwell H. Gluck, a rich women's wear chain-store owner and breeder of race horses. Gluck contributed $25,000 to the Republicans in 1956, according to published records.

Sometime this year, it seems, he got the idea he'd like to work for the government. He says now "I wanted to do some good." He was surprised, he said yesterday, that Eisenhower appointed him ambassador to Ceylon.

But the events began four months ago when little, senate foreign relations committee, which had never heard of Gluck at that time, wanted to strengthen secretary of State Dulles' hand in realigning the appointment of unqualified men for key posts in the foreign service. The committee wrote a letter to Dulles. It said:

"It is generally known that presidents and secretaries of state of both political parties have been under pressure from those who feel that an ambassadorship is a reward for past services or help.

The committee chairman, Senator Green, R., said "we should have first-rate ambassadors in every post. Nothing more was heard of this as

Plants Like People Come in Many Sizes

The largest seeds in the world weigh around 22 billion times as much as the smallest. The largest being those of the double coconut from the Sercheles Islands the single seeded fruit of which may weigh up to 40 pounds. In contrast, the smallest seeds in the world are those of the Epiphytic orchids which come at 35 million to the ounce.

Incidentally, some orchids are exceedingly rare. The highest price ever paid for one being $2,600 in 1953 at Santa Barbara, Calif.

For a single three-bulbed plant of Cymbidium Rosanna, variety Pinkie. The Disa Grandiflora, a native to the Cape of Good Hope, was forbidden to be exported by the South African government.

Largest ferns grow in Costa Rica and are members of the tree fern family Cyathea. They have been known to attain heights of more than 25 feet and to possess 10-foot fronds.

The largest leaves belong to the Royal water lily, Victoria Regia, found in the back waters of the Amazon in South America. They are fairly circular up to 21 feet in diameter with an upturned rim two businessmen without previous experience in the diplomatic service. They and their posts are:

John Hay Whitney, millionaire financier, (London); Amory Houghton, former board chairman of the Corning Glass Works, (France); James D. Zellerbach, paper manufacturer, (Italy); John Clifford Peller, head of a brokerage firm, (Belgium); Earl E. Smith, Florida real estate dealer, (Mexico); and Joseph S. Farland, former consultant to the state department on foreign aid, (Dominican Republic).

The eighth ambassador who made a political contribution in 1956—but to the Democrats—was David K. E. Bruce, who was sent to West Germany. He had previous experience. He was ambassador to France under President Truman.

Early in Eisenhower's administration, Bruce was ambassador to the European coal and steel community and served as a member of the President's board of consultants on foreign intelligence activities.

Eighteen of the 36 new ambassadors were from the ranks of career officers—state department employees who are making diplomacy their life's work. The other 18, including those already named, were from business, from state department jobs to which they had previously been appointed but not as career men; or from other government jobs.

P. S. The senate foreign relations committee approved Gluck and so did the full senate. He's now ambassador to Ceylon.

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plates dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Don't live in fear of this happening any more. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. Hold false teeth tight, so they feel more comfortable. Do not sour. Check "plate odor" (bad breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

Age Problems Are Pondered In New Study

IOWA CITY, Ia., Aug. 2 (AP)—Iowa researchers have been looking for a way to substitute the lunch box for the rocking chair.

They've got nothing against the rockers. It's only that they think older folks would be happier if they spent some of their late years working instead of rocking.

More Oldsters

The problem has one of significance in Iowa because the state has a higher proportion of residents over 65 than any other state.

The nation has 1,500 persons older than 100, according to the U. S. census bureau, and 14.4 or about 10 per cent of them live in Iowa. The researchers have been trying to explain that phenomenon. But no luck so far.

The new study is under the supervision of the University of Iowa's institute of gerontology and has a proper setting.

Dr. Woodrow W. Morris, who heads the institute, drives a "model A" Ford and works in one of the oldest buildings on the campus.

The outward trappings belie the youthful Morris' "up-to-date" outlook toward his problems.

No Planning

Morris said people "don't plan for retirement." People "don't want to get old and don't want to retire," so they make no provisions, he said.

"My father was one of those who didn't plan," he said.

He was a teacher in Michigan when he was told he would have to retire. Morris said, "He just didn't know what to do with himself the first year of his retirement but he was saved when there was a shortage of teachers. The school board offered him another chance to teach."

"That was 10 years ago, and he just recently signed another year's contract to teach mathematics," Morris said.

Price Squeeze Forces Cut in U. S. Defenses

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—No matter what the outcome of the London disarmament conference, U. S. military forces are going to be cut back.

The reason: The declining buying power of the dollar has forced defense cuts.

While disarmament negotiators are haggling in London for some token "first step" reduction in arms and men, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has clamped a $3-billion-dollar spending limit on the military services.

This would be at a level some $200,000,000 less than the current annual spending rate of $40,200,000,000 on America's defenses.

More Cuts Coming

And more cuts are coming, Wilson said because of "creeping cost increases" resulting from inflation. He added that the grass roots sentiment of the country as reflected by congress favors reducing defense outlays.

Asked at his press conference yesterday about the effect of the slash in America's military might, Wilson replied it still would produce a "reasonable minimum" of security.

But he quickly added that the Pentagon would ultimately have to answer for the big question of "what is enough."

He said the situation is helped by the fact that "the temperature of the world is down a little" although he was not "downgrading the threat" to world peace.

Cost Bind

The government is in a "cost bind," the defense chief said, and has got to "back down" on some of its military spending goals so as not to exceed the federal debt limit.

Wilson, who said his economy program has the approval of President Eisenhower, said more manpower cuts are coming on top of the 100,000 men he had ordered dropped from the military rolls by the end of the year. But he refused to say how many, although he hinted that future draft calls may drop as low as 7,000 men a month. This compared with the September quota of 8,000 men—the lowest in more than a year.

Johnson Gets Victory After Early Defeats

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—Bill Knowland won the first battle but Lyndon Johnson is winning the war.

These rival party leaders in the senate have been pitted against one another in every major test since the civil rights bill, which was passed virtually intact by the house, was brought before the senate.

Knowland, GOP floor leader and co-sponsor of a bipartisan coalition determined to pass a civil rights bill this year, sent the opening rounds over procedure. Johnson taped his victorious wounds and moved in to win the bigger battles over the substance of the bill.

Tactical Master

While Johnson's most bitter critics may view him as a slick operator even they concede he is a master of tactics and strategy in rallying a majority of the senate to his side.

After his climactic midnight victory last night in his fight for a judicial amendment, the senate is now on the verge of passing a civil rights bill for the first time since the reconstruction years just about as Johnson visualized it would when the battle was joined.

Forced back by Johnson who handed two defeats to the President and Knowland, killing a part of the bill that would have given the justice department sweeping and somewhat vague powers to get injunctions to protect a broad spectrum of civil rights and winning the jury trial amendment.

Southerners Win

In both cases the entire bloc of Southern Democrats opposed to the bill edged with the winning side.

Knowland never had much chance of winning after Sen. Richard B. Russell, D. Ga., showed the injunction clause would let the President send tank battalions into the South to enforce court orders against racial segregation in schools. Eighteen southerners voted against the administration on that test and only 13 Democrats supported it.

From Friday to Tuesday Knowland seemed to have the votes to beat the jury trial amendment. Then things came unstuck. Johnson wooed some liberal Democrats to support the amendment and some wavering Republicans jumped the fence. In the showdown 12 Republicans deserted the administration and nine Democrats supported it.

Picnic Served for Rotary Club Meet

SHOSHONE, Aug. 2 — A picnic at the Mary L. Gooding park was held Wednesday night for the Rotary club's ladies' night. President E. I. Shaw welcomed and introduced guests.

Ralph Smith led group singing and introduced the program numbers.

Singing in duet were Mrs. Velma Allen, Shoshone, and Mrs. Vern Thomas, Richfield, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Peugh. The Rev. Paul Winkler played piano solos and singing in a quartet were Smith, Omer Shook, Jack M. Murphy and Charles Pethick. Mrs. Mary Pethick was accompanist for the quartet and for group singing.

Fewer Bees Being Kept This Season

BOISE, Aug. 2 (AP)—The number of colonies of bees in Idaho declined 2 per cent in the year ended June 30, the U. S. department of agriculture reported yesterday.

The agency said a survey indicated there were 173,000 colonies of bees in the state on July 1 compared with 177,000 a year earlier.

The condition of the colonies was placed at 88 per cent of normal, the same as a year earlier.

Protests Voiced About Rate Cut

BOISE, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Idaho State Cattlemen's association has joined with other groups in protesting a proposed railroad freight rate reduction on processed meat shipments moving from the East to the West.

Leon Weeks, association secretary, said today a similar reduction for shipments going from the West to the East has not been proposed.

Other Idaho farm groups and the state public utilities commission also have protested the proposed reduction.

Zip Goes Out Of Spending; Prices Climb

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—The dog days may be taking some of the zip out of the consumer but they aren't taking much out of the steady rise of prices and costs here and there in the economy.

Food, apparel and a multitude of goods and services are being pressed upward by the latest increases.

And the shadow of more to come falls across the news columns today. Industrial leaders appear to be counting on a big fall pickup in business activity to make these price increases stick. If the new boom doesn't come along on schedule to put idle industrial facilities to work, some of the latest price hikes may be rescinded.

Believe in Boom

But the belief in built-in inflation seems to be growing, a self-generating spiral of wages and prices which only a bulky public could halt.

The threat of higher prices to come at the stores and in the commodity markets lies in these things: Wholesale prices of food have climbed to the highest point since June of 1955 and are now five percent above a year ago. Retail food prices seem sure to make another advance soon in sympathy.

Higher Costs

Manufacturers ordering materials for fall production will be paying higher prices for steel and aluminum products.

Prices of some other metals that have fallen in recent weeks could be bolstered and rise again as the result of congressional action. Hearings on a proposed hike in the tariff on lead and zinc are under way in Washington with the object of aiding those faltering industries.

It's a long path from the mine to the car dealer's showroom or the appliance store, but in time the price increases in industrial materials will have their effect on retail prices.

Auto tire prices are going up as a result of higher wages in the rubber factories.

Higher wages in the cement industry seem sure to increase the cost of construction.

Price increases in woolen fabrics and in acetate staple which goes into clothing and home furnishings may send the cost of apparel higher this fall and next spring.

Travel Increase

The cost of travel and of moving freight may go up.

Airlines are pointing to shrinking profits and asking for a hike in fares. They also point out that they will have to raise large sums in the next few years to pay for the jet airplanes they have ordered.

The railroads are asking for still another increase in freight rates and say that even if they get it they may need more to pay for the new equipment they are going to need.

All of these things add up to headwinds in the cost accounting departments of American business. Operating costs continue to rise and the end is not in sight.

That, say businessmen, is what lies behind all the price hikes at retail which have sent the cost of living on a slow and steady march for the last 16 months.

Consumer demand has been good but is far from pressing. Supplies of almost everything are plentiful. Shortages are hard to find. Many industries are producing well below capacity.

It is a cost push that is to blame, businessmen say, and not an imbalance in supply and demand.

French Problem

PARIS, Aug. 2 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson said today he thinks there has been enough preaching to the French about Algeria. "Algeria is a French problem," the two-time Democratic party presidential candidate said just before taking off for a week-end in London.

Local Church Plans Service

All interested persons have been invited to attend the weekly services of the Bible Missionary church at 435 Monroe street in Twin Falls.

The Rev. E. W. Damon reports prayer and praise services will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday. Sunday's services include Sunday school at 10 a.m., preaching services at 11 a.m., and evangelistic services at 8 p.m.

The Rev. Mr. Damon described the Bible Missionary church as "Arminian in theology, Wesleyan in doctrine, holiness in experience and scriptural in standards."

The church was first founded on Sept. 8, 1855, in a tent outside the city of Nampa by the Rev. Glenn Griffith. Since that time, says the Rev. Mr. Damon, "the organization has spread into 20 states and three foreign fields."

Father of Three Is Polio Victim

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 2 (AP)—Charles Quest, 28, father of three children who came here Wednesday for his wife's funeral, died in an ambulance last night of bulbar polio.

Quest, of Imperial Beach, Calif., had flown here with the children following the death Monday in California of Beverly Knopp Quest, 25, former Parkersburg television performer. She is to be buried Saturday.

The cause of Mrs. Quest's death was thought to be pneumonia. It is now believed, however, she may have had the same disease that killed her husband.

Quest, formerly of Athens, O., became ill yesterday morning and visited a doctor in the afternoon. He was immediately placed in a portable respirator and started on a trip to Columbus, O., for treatment. He died en route.

Bread Prices in Utah Are Raised

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 2 (AP)—Most northern Utah bakeries have hiked their price per loaf of bread by a penny a pound, and retail grocers have followed suit.

But even stiffer price hikes have been levied on specialty breads—oversized loafs, diet bread and hot dog and hamburger buns—with hikes of as much as five cents.

The hikes have been blamed on the recent settlement of a 34-day Teamsters' union strike against five northern Utah bakeries.

Paralytic Polio Incidence Slips

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—Paralytic polio has struck only about one-third as many Americans this year as last, the public health service reported today.

Salk polio vaccine has been credited by the agency for the sharp and continued reduction in the incidence of the crippling disease.

The health service said 51 new cases of paralytic polio were reported for the week ending July 27, bringing to 821 the total diagnosed since Jan. 1. During the comparable period last year there were 2,303 cases.

Origin of Latter-Day Saints Church Depicted in Annual Hillside Pageant

By The Associated Press

Out under the stars on a broad hillside, an extraordinary story was retold Thursday night, depicting the origins of a church which has become one of America's strongest, most industrious and diversified religious institutions.

It is the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints. Its activities—spiritual and physical—have attained a scope in proportion to membership unmatched by any denomination in the nation.

"Never has the church been in a more healthy and flourishing condition than it is today," said Harold B. Lee, Salt Lake City, one of the church's ruling Council of 12.

In religious dedication, the church draws a vast portion of its entire manpower both into missionary and priestly duties. In material vigor, it has developed a multimillion-dollar network of industries and services.

Members are known generally as Mormons, named after an ancient prophet. Once a tiny, persecuted band they now number nearly 1½ million, twice as many as 25 years ago—about half the increase, through conversions.

"We are growing tremendously," Lee said.

On a hill four miles south of Palmyra, N. Y., a spectacular pageant is being presented Thursday night and Friday and Saturday nights—portraying the unusual chronology that led to the founding of the church.

Although the church—like other Christian bodies—is based on the Old and New Testaments, it also embraces other scriptures considered inspired by God. These give a unique version of the past on this continent.

As told in the Book of Mormon and as sketched in the outdoor pageant by a cast of 250, plus an array of musicians and technicians, the story goes like this:

About 600 years before Christ, a remnant of Judaism sailed to America from Palestine. They split into two nations, the Nephites building a great, God-fearing civilization, the Lamanites corrupt and quarrelsome.

After Christ's Resurrection, he appeared in America and taught for a time. Subsequently, however, the Nephites fell into ungodly wars and in the fourth century A. D. were destroyed by the Lamanites, who were ancestors of the American Indians.

A Nephite survivor, Moroni, son of the Prophet Mormon, took the record kept by his father on golden plates and buried it in the hill in present upstate New York where the account, with Biblical episodes, is dramatized annually.

This is the 130th anniversary of the year, 1827, in which the church holds that the plates were retrieved by its founder, Joseph Smith, who was led to the hillside spot by a message from God.

At that time, the church asserts, God renewed contact with man, after about 1,000 years during which all other churches—Catholic and Protestant—flourished without divine leadership.

Smith is deemed the latter-day prophet, chosen by God to reestablish Christ's church as it existed in the days of the apostles. His translation of the traditional plate, plus revelations to him, became the book of Mormon.

Like Roman Catholics, Mormons consider theirs the only true church, believe in continuing divine revelation through their leaders, accept doctrinal authority, and maintain an apostolic succession.

The succession, however, begins with Smith, rather than in ancient times, as traced by Catholics.

Like Protestants, Mormons are relatively informal in worship, using the national language for sacraments, rather than Latin. They emphasize tithing, baptism by immersion, do not baptize infants. No clerical garb is worn. The church opposes smoking or drinking of alcoholic beverages or hot drinks, such as tea or coffee.

The harsh treatment dealt the early Mormons, the persecutions that drove them successively from New York to Kirtland, O., to Missouri and Nauvoo, Ill., and on westward is a cruel chapter of American history.

Thousands were jailed or slain. Homes were burned, crops destroyed, Smith himself was killed in Illinois, but not before predicting his people would travel west to become "a mighty people in the midst of the Rocky mountains."

So they did—after a long, hard trek to the then wild region of Utah. As their trek leader, Brigham Young entered into the valley of the Great Salt Lake, he said, "This is the place." There, the church grew.

"The prejudice that used to exist has pretty largely been allayed," Lee said. "The fact that we are better known as what we are and not what prejudice says we are—has brought about the change."

The church today spreads across the country, with wards (like parishes in most large cities, with stakes (regional parish groupings) throughout the West and in a dozen midwestern and eastern cities, and missions around the earth.

The church, tending its peoples bodily—as well as spiritual—needs has built up a vast agricultural, industrial and business domain, including 650 farms, 30 canneries, a soap factory, a coal mine, a flour mill, rug and clothing plants. It controls several broadcasting stations, including television station KSL in Salt Lake, and a major daily newspaper, the Desert News.

It puts stress on education, owns Brigham Young university which has 9,000 students, runs 500 seminary and 25 campus religious institutes.

The church operates 12 hospitals, a genealogical research bureau considered one of the world's most extensive, a U. S. accommodation, the church's belief in vicarious baptism for the unbaptized dead.

The church's welfare plan is unparalleled among churches. Through it, no Mormon ever need go on public relief, and others in emergency distress are aided. The plan, obtaining most of its supplies from church plants and farms, furnishes necessities to the needy and helps them find jobs.

"Welfare square" in Salt Lake City is like a huge department store where people may obtain food, clothing and other goods on order from their ward bishops. Ten other church-owned stores supply 104 bishop's storehouses.

In the late 1800s, the church went through a strained period because of its approval in cases of high character and financial ability, of plural marriages—as practiced in Old Testament times.

Outlawed in this country, polygamy also was banned by the church in 1890, under its rule of conforming to the law of the land.

Tasty Weapon

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2 (AP)—Philadelphia police are searching for robbers who used a hunk of cheese as a weapon.

Cab driver John Evans says he picked up two faces and suddenly one of them hit him in the mouth with a handful of cheese. The other snatched his head with a lead pipe Evans says, and escaped with $20.

Papers Are Filed On Leybar Estate

A petition for letters of administration to the estate of Anastasio Leybar was filed Thursday in Twin Falls probate court by Isabella Mendola.

Mr. Leybar's true name was Anastasio Toribio de Leybar y Uribarri and he was a citizen of Spain but had been a resident of Twin Falls county for the past 35 years. His estate of personal property is valued at not more than $13,000. It consists of a $12,144.20 bank account, $500 in bonds and $74 cash.

There are no known heirs and he left no will. Prior to his death he told Mrs. Mendola he probably had relatives in the province of Vizcaya, Spain. For many years he has been a friend of Mrs. Mendola's family.

Mrs. Leybar died July 24. He was 72.

Mrs. Mendola is represented by the firm of Kramer and Walker, Twin Falls.

Girl Medico Is Invading Field 'For Men Only'

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—A tall green-eyed brunette, senior resident surgeon at St. Barnabas Hospital center here, has invaded a variety of fields marked "for men only."

No matter whether she wears rubber gloves for surgery, baseball gloves or even fencing gloves, many men will make a bow before Dr. Christine Haycock.

With her rubber gloves she performs surgery and she hopes to become the first woman certified by the Board of the American College of Surgeons in New Jersey.

After work, just to relax, she puts on her leather baseball glove and off she goes to play softball in the National Girls Softball league, with the Linden, N.J. Arians.

With the fencing glove and foil she's equally at home and in 1949-50, while studying medicine, she became New Jersey's woman fencing champion.

She's also a captain in the reserves and was the first woman intern at the Army's Walter Reed Hospital.

But don't think that the pretty young woman surgeon is interested only in fields reserved for men.

She finds enough time for social life, and is an award-winning photographer and an accomplished painter.

Dr. Haycock says she became interested first in baseball, later in softball, by necessity; she was the only girl in an all-boy neighborhood. "It was either play ball or be lonesome," she explains.

In 1939 she went out for her high school baseball team but the coach wouldn't let her play—so at the age of 15, she joined the Essex County Semi-Pro League and became the first girl to play on the team.

She played both baseball and softball until she entered the University of Chicago on a partial scholarship and then she began fencing with the university team. She came to New Jersey and won the women's championship.

After graduation from high school, she worked in a factory as a solderer and while she studied pre-med she did private duty nursing at night to ease the tuition load on her parents.

Why didn't she get married? Dr. Haycock says she hasn't found the right man yet, adding: "I want a man who can dominate me, and who makes his own decisions."

Anyway, until she finds the right man, she is planning to have another year of post-graduate training and then she will qualify for certification by the Board of the American College of Surgeons.

We, the Women

BY RUTH MILLETT
NEA Service

"No matter how I want to do something you always have a better way," I recently heard a teen-ager say to her mother.

There wasn't anger in her voice—just plain frustration. The mother loves her daughter dearly and wants only the best for her.

But she is making the mistake of so many mothers of teen-age girls. She just doesn't realize that her daughter has reached the age when she wants to be able to do some things her way.

How can a girl learn to make decisions for herself if she doesn't get any practice when she is still growing up?

Mama isn't always going to be around. And even if she were, how and it would be if a daughter couldn't make a move without asking her mother's advice.

No, a teen-ager's need to express her own ideas shouldn't be ignored by a mother.

A mother can't possibly stay friends with a daughter unless she recognizes the daughter's right to be herself.

Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI

Vivi, age 3, had been helped to dress, had her hair brushed and tied with the bright ribbon she chose. All was well until she saw her breakfast of cereal, orange juice, an egg and a bit of toast.

The portions were small and attractively served. The dishes were her favorites. For no apparent reason Vivi gave them one swift glance and began to cry with might and main.

"What is the matter child? Stop that noise and tell me what is the matter? Stop it and eat your breakfast before it is spoiled. Hurry if you want to go marketing with me this morning."

In answer to her mother's plea Vivi threw herself on the floor, beat her head on it and thumped it with both heels. In alarm and exasperation her mother picked her up, hustled her into her room and shut the door on her. Vivi continued to yell and began beating the door with fists and heels.

"Listen Vivi, you stop this, tell me what all this is about. I'll spank you well." No good. The screams increased until the weary throat grew hoarse and mother's patience snapped and she spanked Vivi, undressed her and put her back to bed. Whereupon Vivi went to sleep. What prompted the tantrum nobody can tell.

Tantrums are usually expressions of anger, fatigue, illness. A frustrated child, feeling blocked of his wants and wishes, despairing of getting his way or of making the grownups understand his feelings about his present wishes is likely to have a tantrum.

A fatigued child, so tired he can't stand himself, can't find rest for

Miss Hartley and W. M. Glans Are Married in T. F.

After the ceremony a lawn reception was held at the home of the bride's mother.

Mrs. Homer Bean, Flin, aunt of the bride, served the three-course cake. Mrs. Gene Harg and Mrs. V. H. Slater poured. Barbara Hall attended the guest book. Joanna Hartley and Joan Glans received the gifts.

Influence Shown

Of Scandinavian Motifs in Design

BY KAT SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

Well geared to the tastes of contemporary-minded young homemakers, Scandinavian designs are spreading an ever-widening influence over American home furnishings.

From furniture to floor coverings and all the accessories in between, from expensive exclusive design to moderately priced adaptations, the Scandinavian touch can be found. It covers modern treatments of traditional folk art and the latest work of contemporary designers.

More furniture manufacturers have "Scandinavian inspired" collections, as you'll note this fall. Most of them reflect the work of the great Danish and Swedish cabinetmakers—Finn Juhl, Hans Wegner, Arne Jacobsen, to mention three.

The molded, tapered arm and leg, the sculptured or sloped back, the cantilevered seat; the soft sheen of oil finishes—these are some of the distinctive characteristics. The light, off-the-floor seating of much upholstered furniture also bears a kinship to Danish designs.

Add to this the modern interest in traditional folk art. I doubt if early Swedish cottage artists, decorating their furniture and walls with painted patterns and enriching their fabrics with colorful embroideries, could foresee their use in mid-20th century homes.

For example, there's a new wool carpet patterned with brown squiggles against a soft green ground. The squiggles were lifted from Swedish painted patterns, rescaled and worked into a block-like motif for the rug. According to the stylist, the color scheme of brown and green was inspired by the pastoral countryside.

Similar adaptations can be seen in fabrics and wallpapers.

Perhaps one reason why the Scandinavian influence shows no sign of losing its vitality is that it is so widely represented in moderately priced furnishings. Neither stark nor fussy, most of them are well designed and easy to live with.

The slim, clean lines of this furniture make it an ideal foil for decorative pieces such as gay-woven runners or painted knick-knacks. With such simplicity in her furniture, the homemaker can afford to use elaborate decorative touches.

The homemaker who prefers to stick to one theme in her furnishings can carry out the Scandinavian idea from the chair in the living room to the tableware in the dining room, set perhaps with place mats—she's embroidered herself in updated Swedish motifs—all easy to live with.

Glossy Prefection Is Not Intriguing

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Perfect beauty is a perfect bore. Glossy perfection is never intriguing or exciting. So, if you dislike your nose or your ears, remember that little imperfections help to make up a personality.

This doesn't mean a nose that's in obvious need of plastic surgery, of course. It means the sort of imperfection that most of us possess in some degree. Such imperfections can even be endearing to people around us simply because they're part of us.

Aim for good looks, yes, but not the kind of beauty that seems to be enameled.

BOISE, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Braves of Boise collected 17 hits Thursday night as they defeated the Magic Valley Cowboys, 10-3, in a Pioneer league ballgame. The Braves scored three single runs on the league-leading Pokes in the first three innings and put the game on ice in the fifth with four runs. Diz Johnson homered after Rob King's single. Three singles, a sacrifice and a wild pitch let in two more tallies in the inning. The Cowboys, on five hits, got a run in the third and two in the fourth before closing shop for the night. The two runs were scored on two walks, a single and an error. The Cowboys got 10 bases on balls from the two Brave hurlers but were

Bell Announces Recognition of Players' Union

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—Pro football commissioner Bert Bell, acting singlehandedly, Thursday granted recognition to a National Football league players union. Bell made his bombshell announcement before the house antitrust subcommittee, which is surveying professional sports operations. He said he decided to accept the NFL Players association as a bargaining agency without consulting club owners.

The owners last winter had refused to recognize the association, formed during the 1956 season. They reacted to Bell's surprise decision mainly with approval although some questioned the commissioner's authority to make independent agreements with any outside individual or organization.

Cregg Miller, the former Notre Dame back who is attorney for the association, said he was "most gratified" as long as Bell could act for the league.

The round commissioner had told the subcommittee he recognized the association on behalf of the league. While he said he had not sought prior consent from club officials, he testified he "told some of them" what he planned to do.

Bell announced in a prepared statement at the outset of the final day of the football phase of the subcommittee's investigation that he is prepared to negotiate immediately with association representatives "concerning any differences between the players and the clubs that may exist."

Failure to recognize the organization previously had been a sore point with several subcommittee members. Chairman Celler, D-N.Y., said he hoped it would be taken care of by the subcommittee had something to do with Mr. Bell's coming to his present conclusion.

Miller said he would confer with Bell at the All-Star football game in Chicago next Friday. Kyle Rote, captain and end of the world champion New York Giants and one of the chief player representatives, also will be in Chicago for the game. The Giants meet a team of 1956 college stars.

Miller said the association is "not a union in the ordinary sense" but patterned after the Major League Baseball Players' association. Miller emphasized the association had no intention of bargaining for individual player salaries. Its primary function, he said, would be to negotiate on working conditions and possibly a minimum salary for the league.

Bees Score in Two Innings to Trip A's 7-5

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 2 (AP)—All the scoring for both squads was done in the last two innings Thursday night as the Salt Lake Bees handed the Pocatello A's a 7-5 Pioneer league defeat.

It was the second victory in a row for the Bees over the Pocatello Nine in their series here. Salt Lake was blanked for four frames by Athletic pitchers, but the winners put enough hits together in the fifth to rack up all seven runs.

Pocatello outlived the Bees, 11-8, but it wasn't until the ninth frame that they could collect their five runs and it took Don DeGroot's homer to spark it.

Salt Lake hurler Art McHaffey went for eight and two-thirds to get his sixth win and he effectively scattered most of the Pocatello hits until the disastrous ninth.

Pocatello got one extra-bag hit in the form of Hank Ala's double to go with the homer. The Bees got two triples, but all the rest of the game's hits were one-baggers.

Fish and Game Men Complete Hunt Drawings

BOISE, Aug. 2 (AP)—Names of several thousand Idaho sportsmen were tossed Thursday into a machine which picks the winners of big-game hunting permits.

The applications were for permits in 42 special hunts for antelope, moose, mountain sheep and mountain goats. In most cases, there were more applicants than permits to be allotted, and the winners were determined by lot.

In hunts for which there were fewer applicants than permits to be issued, officials of the state fish and game department said the drawing will be delayed for 10 days. If at that time applications still are fewer than permits, the permits will be issued on a first-come, first-served basis until all are gone.

The game department said it will take a few days to tabulate results of the drawings.

In the seven-inning affair, he struck out the 19 and the other two outs came on feeble grounders to the third baseman.

Whittle added the field will be put into the number of flights needed and two weeks will be allowed for completion of the first three matches. A special beginners' flight also is planned.

Senators Beat Sox Despite Grandslammer

By The Associated Press

Larry Doby belted the first base-loaded homer in four years Thursday but it was wasted as the Senators surged back from a 4-0 deficit to beat the visiting Chicago White Sox 5-4 with the aid of Roy Sievers' 28th homer.

The defeat dropped the second place White Sox four games behind the New York Yankees.

Doby accounted for all of Chicago's runs in the fourth inning after Nellie Fox was hit by a pitched ball, Earl Torgerson singled and Minnie Minoso walked. Doby then lofted a Chuck Stobbs pitch into the left-center-field bleachers.

Detroit's Frank Lary shut off a Boston ninth inning rally at four runs to save a 7-5 victory for the Tigers at Fenway park.

Lary, summoned from the bullpen after winner Duke Mas was driven out and Harry Byrd proved ineffective, came on with none out, two men on and four runs across. He got Norm Zaichin on a double-play and struck out Ted Lepore.

Mas was shelved by Frank Malzone's 3-run homer, his fourth hit of the game.

When Bill Hartack won the Delaware handicap aboard Princess Turia it ran his stakes winners to 26 for the year. His stakes winners for the first six months this year earned $827,002.50.

Ruins of Hitler's Stronghold

Now Give Recreation for GI's

By HENRY McLEMORE

BERCHTESGADEN—Adolf Hitler wasn't quite as sure of himself as he made out to be.

He mouthed some mighty big mouthings as to how the Third Reich was going to last a thousand years, but in back of that trick moustache were some pretty strong doubts.

For proof of der Fuehrer's insecurity, all one has to do is visit Berchtesgaden and take a look at the preparations the Nazi chieftain made for holing up when and if the going got too tough.

Here, deep in Bavaria, and deeper in the Alps are underground fortifications and living quarters fantastic in their size, depth and accommodations. If the worst came to the worst, Hitler was going to live like a mole—but an extremely well-to-do mole.

So, the Austrian, Alpine painter, who knew something of the rest of the world didn't know or felt something he was preparing for the fall while astride the crest. It's a pity Churchill didn't know about it. It might have given him comfort during those dark hours.

All of Hitler's building in Berchtesgaden wasn't underground. He made sure he was going to enjoy Berchtesgaden's unsurpassed beauty while the going was good. To guarantee this, he built hotels and retreats all over this area.

Toppling them all is Eagle's Nest, a tea room of all things. The superb resort was built by Italian laborers brought in just for the job, and Mercedes-Benz was given the job of building special buses—they have five speeds forward and two in reverse—capable of negotiating it in all sorts of weather.

The people here said Hitler visited Eagle's Nest but twice—once with Mussolini and once with Neville Chamberlain. The rest of the time he was content to stay in his own house, about half-way up the Alp. The RAP platted that picture window box and only its foundations now stand.

Twelve of his hotels, inns and retreats, are now operated by the U. S. Army, and they form the core of a superb recreation area for our troops. The recreation area commander, Lieut. Col. Vandergriff, has his headquarters in a building that served as a summer Reich chancellery, and in whose conference room the invasion of Poland was planned.

Hitler never got to test his underground redoubt. Caught in Berlin, he died there. Today the redoubt belongs to sightseers, not soldiers. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

A neatly sock-knitted Madison avenue advertising-type young man strode confidently forward and stood with feet firmly planted.

Teen-aged couple holding hands and staring up into one another's faces came forward, too. A faded fat woman shuffled down the center aisle.

From one of the loges, where special guests are accommodated in reserved seats, a chic matron made her way down to the main floor, trailing a wink stole.

When the stream of converts seemed to be at its end, Graham, who had stood watching the spectacle with an intent look on his face, his arms crossed, told his audience of 16,000:

"I don't want anyone to leave the garden. I have a feeling there are others here tonight ready to receive Christ into your hearts. Don't go away from here without doing it; it may be your last chance."

"You say that's a long way to walk down that aisle. Yes, it is a long way. But Christ walked a long way for you on the road to Calvary. The escalators are running here in the garden. All you have to do is get on one."

A handful of new "inquirers" responded to Graham's persuasion. A nervous young woman who had gone forward evidently changed her mind and nearly ran up the aisle in search of an exit.

"As each 'inquirer' came forward, a specially-trained volunteer counselor walked quietly up beside him and touched him on the shoulder, signifying he would accompany the convert to the huge counseling room in the basement of the garden."

Each counselor chose an "inquirer" of his own sex and roughly his own age. To the counseling room, the two would go to pray and the convert would be given guidance on becoming an active Christian.

It was a little typical of the 70 meetings Graham has held in the huge sports arena since he began his New York crusade May 15.

Graham said that the crusade's "prominent attendance" now past the 1,500,000 mark has more than vindicated our decision to extend the crusade.

The Graham crusade, which was extended to Aug. 10 beyond its original closing date of June 30, has broken all garden attendance records.
