It probably doesn't make much sense to refuse them money to finish a half-built school, but the voters are asking for an extra $220,000 and have been turned down by a healthy majority. Six weeks later, the voters returned to the polls and approved a supplementary appropriation of $200,000. The spring, for instance, residents of half a dozen neighboring communities suffered from a drought that

United States. So far it has occurred only in sporadic outbreaks in this country.

But the public health service estimates that at least 40,000 to 25,000 persons have been stricken in at least 21 states. The virus is widely "seeded" throughout the nation, and Surgeon Gen. Leroy Burney continues to warn that there is a definite probability of a large-scale epidemic.

Aides to Burney add, however, that the vaccine which has only recently begun to come off production lines, is very important in that, to whatever extent supplies become available before an epidemic strikes, the greater will be the amelioration of any epidemic that occurs.

So far in this country there have been relatively few cases plagued by complications, and only four reported deaths.

The death rate in countries where the disease has been epidemic also has been very low—about two-tenths of one per cent on the average.

The public health service believes it will remain that way in this country even if an epidemic occurs. In fact, the service general is confident the death rate would be "far below" that in Asia, small as that was.

But the service also cautions there is no guarantee the disease won't change to a more virulent form. Burney, if the virus suddenly underwent a mutational-genetic change or developed a distinct proneness to pick up bacterial hitchhikers that could complicate the flu infection itself.

Program Started On Wheat Export

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (AP)—A new program for exporting surplus wheat to the Orient is under way. Representative Holmes, R., Wash., said Saturday.

Holmes and Gordon O. Frazer, foreign agriculture service assistant administrator, said more than 1,300 tons of a "rice" made from wheat have been sent to Korea and that more is being prepared for shipment.

They said sales have increased on the West Coast.

What is known as wheat rice is the result of a process in which wheat is cracked and then glazed.

growth. In the more arid areas it is essential to survival.

Dexheimer said that would be "shortsighted and wasteful" if hydroelectric was not added to water control and conservation projects where economically feasible. Power development in many projects, he said, is essential to help defray construction costs, steadily mounting.

"No longer can we allow our precious natural resources to be forever committed to a single segment of our economy," he said.

"We have recognized in planning projects to utilize our land and water resources that no single part of society can stand alone, unrelated to the world surrounding it."

A multipurpose, basin-wide development plan does not mean a single agency plan or an entirely federal government enterprise, he said.

"There is room for public and private agencies alike and for local, state and federal participation. The great need is for integrated planning and operation for maximum benefits."

Manpower Status Is Unsatisfactory

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (AP)—If war should come tomorrow, or even next year, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey says this country would find its military manpower "in a very unsatisfactory condition."

Hershey, veteran head of the selective service system, said that in addition to the present reduced national military forces of less than three million, few potential fighting men are trained.

Seasoned Thief

ATLANTA, Aug. 17 (AP)—An Atlanta woman grocer drove off a would-be holdup man with a barrage of salt and mayonnaise jars.

Police said Mrs. Ora Rowe, 57, told them a young man entered a box of salt and then pointed a long-bladed knife at her.

"He said, 'Give me your money,'" she said, "I still had the sound box of salt in my hand. Without thinking I let fly with the box of salt. That must have surprised him because he ducked down and backed up."

"Then I grabbed up some mayonnaise jars and began to chuck them at him," she said "He got out of there fast."

Two Flyrods Stolen

Roger Marsh, 354 Teton street, reported to police Saturday the theft of two seven and one-half-foot glass flyrods from his front yard sometime Thursday morning.

Draws 30-Day Term

Haywood Greene, 38, Uniontown, Ark., was sentenced to 30 days in the city jail Saturday in Twin Falls police court after pleading guilty of being drunk in public. He was arrested Friday night by city police.

Firemen Called

Twin Falls firemen were called to the residence of Frank Hodge, 414 Fourth avenue west, late Saturday afternoon where a carport was burning. Firemen said the fire had been extinguished when they arrived. The side of the house was slightly scorched but no serious damage was reported.

Three Farms Hit By Range Blaze

REXBURG, Aug. 17 (AP)—A range fire burned itself out today after whipping across three ranches and blackening 300 to 400 acres of wheat stubble.

The fire, on the Rexburg bench about four miles east of Rexburg, fizzled out on the south side of Moody creek after it had reached to within one-fourth of a mile of the Parkinson grain elevator.

The flames blackened a swath nearly three miles long as it burned across the ranches of Charles Beasley, Chick Rooney and Jack Randall. Only 30 acres of grain were lost, all of it on the Beasley ranch.

Second Utah Oil Firm Cuts Price

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 17 (AP)—Another major oil firm brought the number lowering gasoline prices to two here today.

The new cut has resulted in prices of 32.2 cents per gallon for regular and 36.4 cents for premium gasoline. Friday another major oil firm cut prices to 32.9 and 35.9. Two independents have advertised gasoline for 30.9 for regular.

Most stations are holding prices of 34.5 for regular and 37.5 for premium.

Ike Said Hoping For Hike in Fund

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (AP)—President Eisenhower was quoted by Representative Martin, R., Mass., as saying again Saturday that he hopes the senate will restore most of the 800-million-dollar house cut in foreign aid funds.

Martin, GOP house leader, said he discussed the bill with Eisenhower at breakfast and told reporters afterward.

"The President is very much disappointed with the work of the house on foreign aid and hopes the senate will restore most of the cut."

24-Hour Blackout Is Over for Island

BLOCK ISLAND, R.I., Aug. 17 (AP)—The lights came back on last night on this tiny coastal island ending a 24-hour blackout that began during a severe electrical storm.

A navy generator towed by tug from the mainland was installed shortly after 7 p.m. to serve as a stand-in for three of the island's four generators knocked out by the storm.

Witness Says Martha Dodd Was Red Spy

lief was expressed they went behind the iron curtain.

Chairman Walter, D., Pa., of the House Un-American Activities Committee said Saturday:

"Mr. Morros' testimony clearly establishes Martha Dodd, daughter of the former U. S. ambassador to Germany, and her husband, Alfred Stern, as part of the Soviet apparatus."

Miss Dodd recently dropped from sight in Mexico when U.S. authorities sought her and her husband in connection with investigation of the Jack Soble spy ring in New York.

The undercover role played by Morros was brought to light at an interview this week in the U.S. attorney's office in New York after Myra Soble and Jacob Albin were sentenced for espionage. Jack Soble is awaiting sentence.

Chairman Walter said the committee has been in contact with Morros for the past six months and that he gave the committee "significant information about Soviet espionage operations" under oath in New York Friday.

Walter said Morros testified that Vasili Zubilin, former second secretary in the Soviet embassy, took Morros to the home of Stern and his wife in Connecticut.

Morros at the time operated a small phonograph record company in Los Angeles which he had established for his son.

"At the meeting with the Sterns," Walter stated, "it was proposed by Zubilin that the Boris Morros Music company be expanded with money furnished by Stern."

"This firm was to serve as an espionage cover and provide an opportunity to legitimize Soviet agents as representatives of the firm. Stern did advance the sum of $130,000, but the project collapsed because of personal friction between Morros and Stern."

"Subsequent to this, Martha Dodd wrote a derogatory report to her superiors in which she questioned Morros' loyalty to the Soviet apparatus."

Plane Crashes; One Killed

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic, Aug. 17 (AP)—One Brazilian crewman was lost in shark-infested waters about 300 yards off the Dominican north coast Friday after an airliner was ditched. Ten other crewmen were rescued. There were no passengers aboard.

State police in Bolsoe did not add the accident to the year's traffic death count, as it did not occur on a public road.

Girl Is Killed by Father's Pickup

TAMARACK, Aug. 17 (AP)—A 2-year-old girl was run over and killed Friday by a pickup truck driven by her father.

Adams county Coroner Edwin Wagner identified the girl as Debra Lee Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Brown of Tamarack. Brown said he was backing his truck out of the driveway of his home, looking very carefully behind him. The accident occurred when a passing car forced the father to move the truck forward.

State police in Bolsoe did not add the accident to the year's traffic death count, as it did not occur on a public road.

Right Height

GATESHEAD, England, Aug. 17 (AP)—What difference does it make to true love if a girl is four inches taller than her boyfriend?

None at all, a magistrate's court ruled here Friday. The court gave 19-year-old Sunday school teacher Lillie Robson, 5 feet 10 inches in her nylons, permission to marry Ray Moss, her coal miner fiance, who stands 5 feet 6 inches.

Lillie's parents had filed an objection on grounds that Moss was not tall enough. The girl's father, Sid Robson, said: "He is not the type for her. She could pick him up with one hand."

Senate Moves To Get Action On Lead, Zinc

state departments to rule on the act duty by early next week. Anderson disclosed that the move to add the lead-zinc tariff as an amendment to the other tariff bill, which is a measure to cut back duties on mica, has been growing since it has become evident house action on lead-zinc legislation has come to a standstill. House ways and means Chairman Jere Cooper, D., Tenn., who opposes any lead-zinc tariff, has sat on the matter since hearings were held early this month. Friday Cooper wrote a letter to President Eisenhower bluntly handing the responsibility of helping the lead-zinc industry back to the administration. Cooper said the proposed sliding scale tariff, if passed by congress, would "undermine" the president's authority under the trade agreements act. When told of the senate action Friday, Cooper snapped, "I have no statement to make now," and hung up the phone. The measure, if approved by the senate, could possibly bypass the unfriendly ways and means committee by a two-thirds rule vote on the house floor. This could be done with the help of the speaker of the house, Sam Rayburn, D., Tex., who is known to support the proposal.

Limit Continued For Air Academy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (AP)—The senate armed services committee approved a bill Friday to continue restrictions on the number of cadets that may be appointed to the air force academy. The number has been limited because the academy is operating on an interim basis at Lowry air force base near Denver. The academy is scheduled to move to its permanent site near Colorado Springs, Colo., next year. Under present law each member of congress then will be allowed to have four appointees in school. A committee report said that the number of appointments could result in a 1958 class of 1,640, which would create a "serious imbalance for the academy." The committee - approved bill, which already has passed the house, would limit appointments to 712 a year.

Public Forum Readers Write Most Letters On Politics and Government

Editor, Times-News:
National politics and government retains its place as the number one subject that impels newspaper readers to sit right down and write a letter to the editor. That's the finding in our latest survey of letters in 300 major metropolitan newspapers, including the Times-News. The one issue that dominated was the supreme court and its recent decisions. It accounted for six percent of all letters and 36 percent of those in the top category of national politics and government. Study of 1,124 letters published July 5 and 6 also shows morals and crime and transportation and traffic rated second and third places, respectively. Two months previously, our survey of letters published May 3 and 4 put national politics in the top slot, with local politics second and transportation and traffic third. In the newest survey, local politics plummeted to seventh place while morals and crime jumps from fourth to second place. The latest rankings place health fourth, one notch higher than in May. International politics remains in fifth place while entertainment and sports catapults from eleventh to sixth place. Local politics drop five places to seventh and education three places to eighth. Religion and labor remain in the ninth and tenth spots, respectively. Letter writers of the North Central states, including Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota and Wyoming, followed the national pattern, only in their selection of national politics as the top issue. In the last study, entertainment and sports ranked highest. This subject is now in the number two spot. Third place is occupied by transportation and traffic, which was second in May. In order, other sectional topics of interest were morals and crime, religion, health, charity, state politics, education and labor. The fifth ranking subject, religion, was not included in the top 10 choices in May. JOHN P. FRENCH (General Manager) (Luce Press Clipping Bureau) (New York 7, N. Y.)

Reservists Thank Paper for Aid on Anniversary Here

Editor, Times-News:
The local Twin Falls air force reserve center wants to extend to you and the paper sincere appreciation for the fine publicity that was given to the 50th anniversary celebration held last week-end in Twin Falls. Without the help of the paper we know that the event would not have been nearly so successful. The courtesy of the many personnel of the paper was especially appreciated throughout the promotion. Damage Is Minor For Car Accident

Damages were minor in a two-car accident investigated by city police Saturday afternoon in the 200 block of Shoshone street north. The accident involved a 1956 Pontiac driven by Walter Campbell, 39, 530 Lynwood drive, and a 1951 Ford driven by Grant Kendrix, 537 Ash street.

Police reported the Campbell car was slowing down for a traffic light and Kendrix stated he was looking in another direction and collided with the Pontiac from the rear. No citations were issued.

WHO'S GETTING HELPED?

A middle aged man well known locally set the writer to thinking the other day when he related in confidence the problem with which he is confronted.

He's a conscientious and industrious salesman with a pleasing personality. While he and his wife have many friends, they live modestly trying to keep all their expenditures within their means. Offhand, we would describe this particular man as a composite of what this country regards as the "American white collar worker." If anything he would be above that average in a number of respects. So that makes his problem all the more significant.

"I'm probably drawing a higher salary than any local salesman in my particular field," he confided in the writer, "and as you know, we live modestly. We'd like to entertain at times, but we simply can't afford it. The fact of the matter is, in spite of all this so-called talk about American prosperity, I am far worse off now than I was 15 years ago working at about half my present salary. As things now stand—prices, inflation, taxes and all that sort of thing—it's keeping us busy paying our every day bills. It's almost out of the question to put anything aside for our future security. And frankly it has me worried."

We wonder how many Americans are finding themselves in about the same predicament. There are those of course who do not concern themselves much with such problems. They subscribe to the philosophy of "living it up" while they are still "young, willing and able." It makes no difference to them if installment payment commitments are taking every cent of their income. Some even go so far as taking chattel mortgages on everything from electric irons to automobiles to refinance themselves if they get in a pinch, as records at the county recorder's office will reveal.

During this period of "record-breaking prosperity" and record breaking prices for everything a consumer buys, it has become increasingly necessary for women to work. In families with children this often results in parental neglect of youngsters, which is contributing in turn to an alarming increase in juvenile delinquency.

We are reminded repeatedly, particularly by opportunist politicians, that we are "enjoying" the highest standard of living in all the world, but we also are aware of the headaches which are accompanying all this "enjoyment."

There's something about this record-breaking prosperity that doesn't add up, and keeping-up-with-the-Joneses-to-maintain-this-standard-of-living-is-developing into a rat race that makes lots of us look silly.

Not to be ignored for a moment is the fact that the so-called "Average American," whether he be a white collar worker, farmer or small businessman is the one who actually is taking a beating. Tax-wise, the last Idaho legislature, for instance, gave the little fellow a real going over.

It's a well established fact there are fewer farms in the United States now than 10 years ago. More land is coming into possession of the larger operators. Those farming the smaller operations are finding it more and more difficult to come out on top. Ask any of the smaller ranchers in Magic Valley and they'll probably concur in this statement. Prices for the equipment they must buy and the increasing tax load they are called upon to carry actually are forcing the smaller farmers out of the picture.

It's about the same story with small business. Although the country's four million small business concerns add up to 95 per cent of all the businesses operating in the United States today, the small businessman is faced with a growing crisis. In the midst of all this "record-breaking prosperity," bankruptcies and failures are mounting. To date there have been more failures among small businessmen this year than any year since 1939. Cautious estimates indicate that more than 13,000 small businesses will be wiped out in 1957. Small business failures totaled 12,686 during 1956, a 16 per cent increase over 1955! Another grim note is a 26 per cent decrease in the number of new businesses opening each year since 1950.

Why such a discouraging picture in the midst of an "unprecedented boom"? It's the same old story: Constantly rising costs of labor and materials, an ever-increasing tax burden, and the growing trend toward mergers of little companies with big concerns.

All this adds up as the direct opposite of what many politicians are claiming as benefits they have reaped for "the people." Instead of helping the white collar workers, the average farmer and smaller businessman, government interference, with all its subsidies, controls and the like, has played into the hands of the larger operators.

As someone asked, recently: "What would America be like without small farms and small business? For one thing it would be a collection of huge farms and super-giant businesses so big and so tough that they would inevitably invite control of a super-big and super-tough government."

This is not the road to democracy as the early symptoms already indicate. If the average farmer and small businessman can see no possibility of success in their respective fields, then they must join ranks with the white collar workers who already have a feeling of being the masses working for a few. Freedom of opportunity will come to mean less and less, which will only increase the possibility of a complete change in our form of government.

That's a possibility for every American to be thinking about.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

Every Sunday Ray Tucker answers readers' questions of general interest on national and international politics and personalities. Questions may be sent him at 708 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—In view of the fact that Attorney General Brownell has been charged with writing a deceptive civil rights bill, asks Mrs. K. F. of Richmond, Va., "will you explain in non-technical language how legislative proposals are framed for consideration by congress. Who actually puts the words on paper?"

Answer: There are several methods of writing a bill. If a congressional committee fathers the legislation, they explain their purposes to a professional bill drafter, with which they are equipped and he does the physical work. It is then scanned and revised by lawyers and veteran legislators on the sponsoring committee, and possibly revised before it is introduced.

EXPERIENCED BILL DRAFTER—If an individual member wishes to author a measure on his own initiative, he calls in experts assigned to what is known as the congressional legislative reference service. They act virtually as "ghosts," and draw up the bill in the language required to carry out the member's purposes.

It is no easy task to refine a document so that it will permit a specific objective to be attained, and not open the door to unwanted and unknown evils.

PREPARING AN ADMINISTRATION LEGISLATIVE MEASURE—However, when the administration is presenting a legislative program to congress, as in the civil rights bill, it turns to the executive department specifically concerned. Their lawyers draw up a tentative measure that expresses their specific wants. Then, it is turned over to the attorney general, who in turn refers it to lawyers expert in the particular problem to be solved.

When the work has been completed, the head of the department involved (state, defense, agriculture, etc.) and Attorney General Brownell, or his representative, explain it either to the President directly, or to his legal adviser at the White House. It then goes to congress with the approval of the Chief Executive.

OUTSIDE ADVICE MAY BE SOLICITED—But there are other factors in the case of congressional and White House measures. Outside groups interested in any specific subject are frequently called in to give advice, and to see that their intentions are included.

A great deal of early new deal legislation, for instance, on labor, social security, agriculture, and finance were framed by New York organizations (reformers and idealists) who had cooperated with FDR when he was governor of New York.

It may be a secret, but it is a fact that paid, professional lobbyists for a good or questionable cause are frequently relied upon for assistance in bill drafting.

POOR WORK ON CIVIL RIGHTS BILL—Whoever drafted the civil rights bill and briefed the President on its language and effects, did one of the worst jobs in legislative annals. In the first place, the original measure was broader and more extreme than Eisenhower wanted. Secondly, the President himself was not familiar with the far-reaching and comprehensive terms.

Brownell, despite many requests, refuses to identify the drafter of the civil rights bill. The suspicion is, as was true in New Deal days, that it was written by some politico-economic-social individual or organization wholly committed to a punitive rather than a salutary program. It would probably be embarrassing for the A. G. to name him or her.

There may be an excuse for the President because he must rely on his cabinet members and advisers. But Brownell's careless work was, basically, responsible for the senate's rejection of his handiwork.

SPARE THE SCHOOLS

In the list of states Idaho generally ranks far down the line too many times when the toll is measured but one time we note an instance which causes no concern. We refer to the statement made at a Coeur d'Alene state traffic safety meeting that Idaho ranks 46th among the 48 states in driver training.

Now before folks start getting too excited, let's make it plain that we are not opposed to driver training. Fact of the matter, we are for more and more driver training every day in the week.

But this particular project aims at expanding driver training in Idaho schools, with a special levy of $1 added on top of driver licenses to pay the cost, the money to be aimed at local school treasurers under the scheme. And the prediction was made that the next legislature would enact such a nip on the car owner's pocketbook. (Well wager the legislature does no such thing.)

Driver training, as far as we are concerned, does not belong in the school system any more than a half a hundred other obstacles to the basic education that the younger generation must have. The ability to eventually drive a car with competence is not nearly as important as the ability to read and write and spell and count. Since too many of our schools are too far behind in the fundamental education department as it is, we see no reason to make plans for more diversions from school books. Idaho must not rank too low in the quality of the finished product of education.

Driver training must not become a course in Idaho schools which counts as some kind of a credit towards graduation. The average youngster today is learning to drive after a few private lessons. And the cost of enlightenment does not come from the taxpayer but from the man who has the responsibility of the upbringing of his offspring and the teaching of special items outside the vale of school curriculum.

Just how far education eventually will stray away from its dedicated purpose remains to be seen. But if the trend continues, and is boosted another notch by the driver training crusaders, it may come to pass that we won't need schools and classrooms. The kids will be so busy with foreign subjects that it may become advisable to throw the school bell in the river.—Boise Statesman.

THE LADY AND THE GENERAL

No colonel would have dared it. Even a retired sergeant major, who can take more liberties with an "issimo" than any major general would have cloaked his words with regulation respect. Not so an exasperated and determined lady capitalist.

General of the Armies Douglas MacArthur, now chairman of the board of the Sperry Rand corporation, was addressing the annual stockholders meeting on the subject of "corporate" taxes. At the end of an hour and a quarter the unwary lady arose. She loves America, said she. She is glad to pay taxes to it. What if one who pays $400 now would have paid only $1 in 1885? "Who wants to live like in 1885?" Now let's hear about Sperry Rand and dividends.

Just about everyone shares General MacArthur's unhappiness over paying taxes—high taxes. Many share his conviction that they are higher than they ought to be. Some would agree with him that they are inequitable. But a great many others, we suspect, visualizing themselves as stockholders at the stockholders' meeting, would echo the irate lady's sentiment: Now let's hear about Sperry Rand.—Christian Science Monitor.

A GOOD APPOINTMENT

The services of Thomas E. Murray, whom President Dwight D. Eisenhower unhappily refused to reappoint to another six-year term on the atomic energy commission, fortunately are not to be lost to the American people.

Announcement has been made in Washington of his selection as consultant to the joint congressional committee on atomic energy.

An independently minded engineer and an inventor in his own right, Murray made himself person non grata with AEC Chairman Lewis Strauss, among other things, by urging greater government participation in the construction of atomic power plants, and by being among the first publicly to express his concern over the dangers of radioactive fallout.

As an adviser to the congressional committee, which keeps a continuing eye on what the AEC is doing, Murray still will be in a position to win recognition for his challenging opinions.—Sacramento Bee.

Dear Pats: Shame on the women of our day that the men have to lift up the standard on dress, riding around in cars concealing their Bermuda shorts!

Why Adam and Eve wearing their fig leaf aprons in the garden of Eden when they met God had on more clothes than some women wear on the streets. And God did not like the way they looked, so "He made coats of skins and clothed them."

You will never meet God in person on our streets today but "There is an all-seeing eye watching you."

When a child and not being well, I was somewhat careless to get dressed on arising of a morning. My dad would say, "Better get dressed!" That would be good advice for some women of our day.

"WASHINGTON CALLING" BY MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON—The peculiar drama of the civil rights struggle goes on and on, with the lines of conflict so blurred that it has long become impossible to tell where political expediency ends and the merits of the issue begin.

The comfortable solution is for passage of the senate bill with the jury trial amendment modified so that it would apply only in cases involving voting rights. This would avoid the very real damage that would be done if the injunctive process were modified in the 36 areas where it now applies.

With this solution, congress can adjourn in a week or 10 days and, for a time at any rate, the civil rights issue would be safely in the deep freeze. The ugly spectacle of a filibuster would have been avoided, and that in itself would be a distinct gain, since such a spectacle can do great harm both at home and abroad.

What is more, the compromise measure would make some contribution toward the essential objective—essential for those who believe in civil rights—of insuring the vote to the Negro in the South. How much of a contribution is a matter for argument. There is room for honest difference as to whether it would be a beginning, a base for further gains, or whether it would be a convenient pretext for resisting any further change.

Both sides are now shouting "politics" so loudly that the facts are almost wholly obscured. It is too easy to dismiss the administration's stand for an effort to get to stronger bill, by way of a conference between the senate and the house, as merely political.

In such a conference it should not be impossible to add some strengthening provisions, thereby compromising the all-out house version with the greatly weakened senate version. It should not be impossible, for example, to agree on a provision whereby local authorities may call on the department of justice for help in sustaining civil rights where clearly the majority desires the enforcement of such rights.

Some provisions in the bill are definitely harmful. The civil rights commission it creates would hold public sessions unless the commission "determines that evidence or testimony at any hearing may tend to defame, degrade or incriminate any persons." Then the testimony will be in executive session. The bill makes it a crime to disclose such testimony and a newspaperman who prints it could be sent to jail for one year and fined $1,000.

Because both houses agreed to this language, it is said that it could not in any event be stricken out in a senate-house conference. And moreover, to the argument goes, it would not in any event be enforced. But the mere fact of its enactment would be a dangerous precedent.

England's Troops Being Withdrawn

MANAMA, Bahrain, Aug. 17 (AP)—The first of 300 British troops who have been helping the Sultan of Muscat and Oman put down a revolt, left by air Saturday from Azule, near Muscat.

The British evacuation will be completed in two or three days except for five armored cars. At the Sultan's request the cars will remain for a time to escort convoys and maintain road security.

Under such an escort, the first convoy of oilmen left Azule for Rahud, where oil exploratory work will be resumed.

Is That So!

By Eugene Burman
Bears Fur Comes In Many Colors

The Kodiak bear is the world's largest flesh-eating mammal, but did you know that many of the lesser bears eat less flesh than the wolf and the fox. As for the Kodiak, which is nine feet long from tip to tail and weighs upward of 1,600 pounds, it grazes like a cow!

But then there are many unusual things about bears — a host of popular misconceptions. Shall we go through them?

Except for the polar bear, bears feed on almost anything that happens to be available — grasses, roots, insects, ants, eggs, mice, nuts, fruits, fish and game.

The polar bear, living in the cold northland, seldom dens in for the long winter. Only when, every other year, the female is with cub — and then it is largely a matter of protecting the young.

The popular "bear hug" is a figment of the imagination. In fact it is highly questionable if a bear could enfold his arms to bring off such a feat. When he attacks, he strikes with his paws — and the terrific strength of his weighty arms can break the neck of an ox in one blow.

Contrary to popular belief the bear does not hibernate. To be accurate, it sleeps quite profoundly, but its body temperature drops only a few degrees — in sharp distinction to the true hibernators whose temperature drops to within a few degrees of freezing when the surrounding air becomes cold.

Despite the mother's huge size, the young are always tiny — born naked, with eyes sealed, during the mother's twilight sleep. She may nurse the infant — usually there are twins, and quads are not too exceptional — for more than a month in her drowsy state.

Despite the happy nursery tales about papa bear, mama bear and the three little bears — such joyful bliss does not exist. The father does not help take care of the young; in fact, if they should get in his way he might very likely kill and devour them. However, allow him this: During the brief courtship period, he shows great affection for his mate.

Stolen Truck Is Found Stripped

A 1952 Dodge pickup truck, stolen sometime between 8 and 10 p.m. Friday in Twin Falls, was found stripped Saturday afternoon ten miles south of Wendell.

The truck, owned by Weldon Tyler, Twin Falls, was stolen from the second avenue south. Tyler reported it missing at 10:45 p.m. Friday.

City police say four 700 to 800 tires and wheels were removed as well as fog lights and other accessories.

Petition Filed for Estate of Woman

A petition for letters of administration in the estate of Mrs. J. H. Cunningham, who died here Aug. 4, was filed Friday in Twin Falls probate court by a son, Darrell J. Cunningham, Buhl.

The estate consists of real and personal property valued at approximately $10,800.

Heirs include the petitioner and another son, Orland Burton Cunningham, route 3, Buhl.

A hearing is set for 10:30 a.m. Aug. 26.

MEETING CANCELED

SHOSHONE, Aug. 17—There will be no meeting of the Wood River Center Home Economics club this month due to the fair.

—but this seldom lasts more than a month.

Although the bear and the little swift-footed dog seem poles apart, nonetheless bears are dogs' close relatives. In the yesterday of millions of years, the two were one and the same animal. Experts who study fossil remains, have discovered the missing link between dogs and bears and christened him Hemion, a "half-dog."

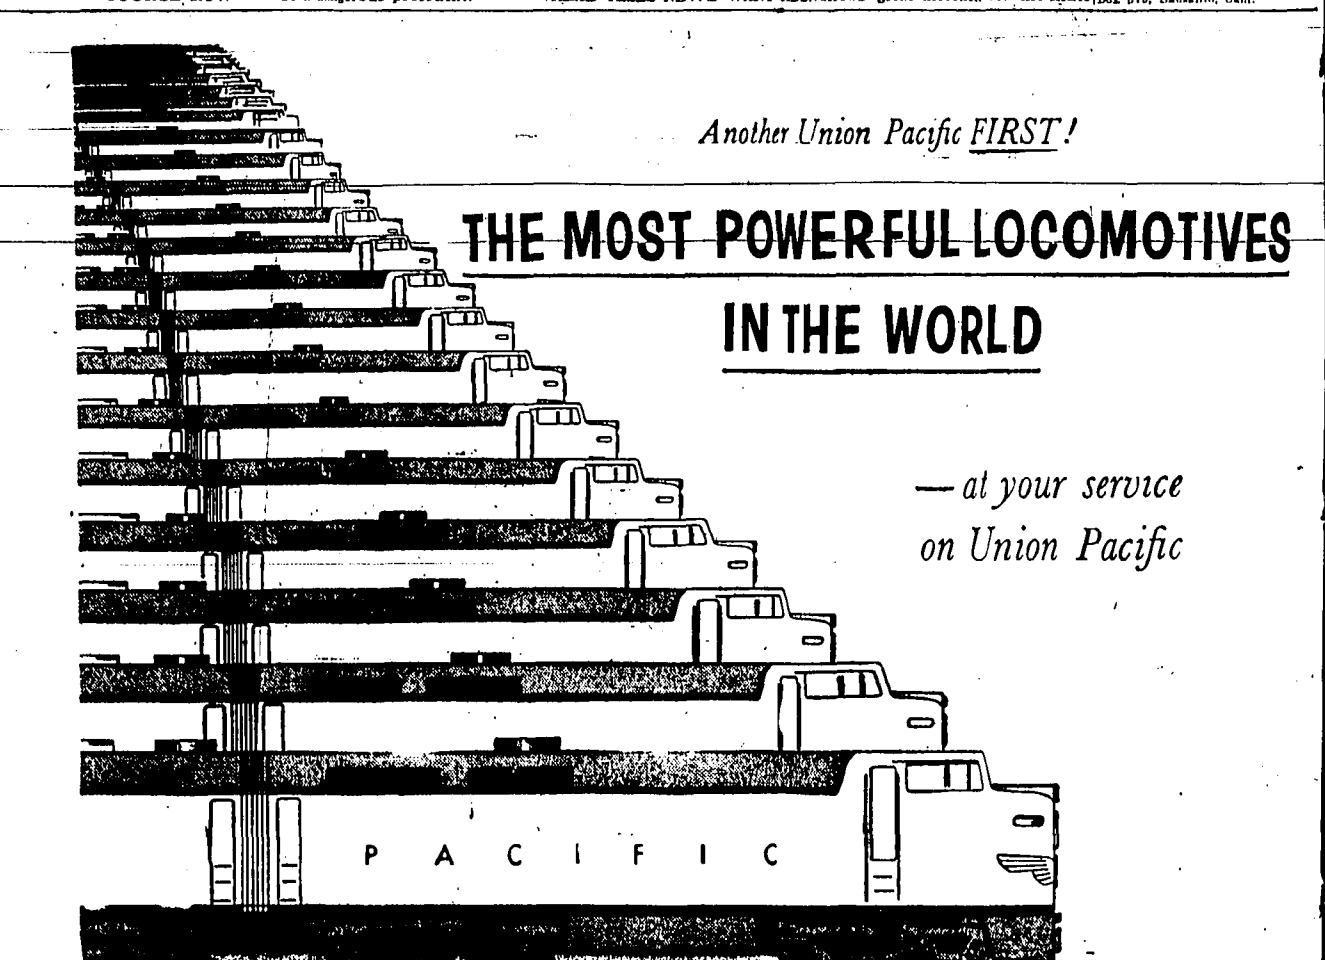

Bears are widespread throughout the world. A thousand years ago even grizzlies were found in the British Islands and from there went to Rome, but they died out three several hundred years before the beaver and wolf did.

Black bear, brown bear, yellow bear, cinnamon bear—all are closely related. In fact some of these are so closely related that they are one and the same, merely being called phases. For that matter, there is even a white black bear living in the coastal islands of western British Columbia known as Kermode bear which sometimes has a creamy white fur with no tinge of dark color. Even the claws are white, and it might pass for a handsome albino except for one thing. When they are brown! A so-called blue bear lives in the St. Elias Alps, in northern Alaska. Gray hairs mixed with black give him this bluish cast.

People Across Nation Are Beginning to Oppose Unneeded Government Spending

Such a burden that people seem to want to strike out any way they can to stop them."

Regularly organized taxpayer groups, who year in, year out complain and propagandize against climbing government spending at all levels, can't take much credit for the turn of events. They sense a general stiffening of attitudes in villages, towns and special school and sewer districts.

There are, unfortunately, no statistics anywhere which reflect accurately what is going on at this grass roots level which consists of more than 100,000 units of local government.

Nor is there any central clearinghouse of information. But politicians are very conscious of the demand for belt-tightening and hole-plugging in public expenditures.

"Usually," said one state legislator, "you find local officials proceeding cautiously when federal government is active spending money. When federal spending drops off, local people get busy. It used to be a sort of see-saw of spending. But not now. They are cautious at all levels now because taxpayers are much more interested in what's happening to their tax money."

"I can't decide whether the budget fuss kicked up in congress was the result of attitudes back home or whether the situation is the other way around. But I do know voters are tending more and more to knock down anything that will cost them more money. And you can't get them to vote you a blank check anymore—you have to be very precise about the way you present things."

Not only are voters expressing themselves by ballot, but they are turning out for public hearings involving taxes.

"In the old days," said a Wyoming official, "we could have held budget meetings in a telephone booth. Today we have to crowd into a hall."

The local revolutions, however, have not touched all sections of the country. "It hasn't reached the open revolt stage in northern California yet," said the director of one taxpayers association, "but there are many people who believe that further increases in taxes could bring about a change."

In the Pacific Northwest there is a general feeling that it's harder to get money out of voters. "But, generally speaking, taxpayers there aren't on the barricades—yet."

Thought of a tax revolt is "utterly ridiculous as far as Texas is concerned," maintained W. E. Tinsley of the Texas Municipal Advisory Council.

Whatever the exceptions, the general picture over most of the nation seems to be growing unwillingness to part with hard-earned money, a feeling that city spenders have become too flamboyant in their plans for the future.

Instead, voters seem to want to save on taxes, perhaps to do a little personal spending of their own.

Work Nears End On Building Job

SHOSHONE, Aug. 17—A 20-foot by 30-foot addition is almost completed at Mike's Cold Storage.

Part of the addition will be used to house motors for the storage plant and the balance will be used as a warehouse for grocery merchandise.

A partition at the rear of the present grocery room will be removed to give an added 10 feet of length to the grocery department.

Local Lessons On Telephone Dialing Begin

Instruction in the use of dial telephones will begin this week with the Mountain States Telephone company calling each individual subscriber in Twin Falls, says District Manager W. A. Reynolds.

Included in the instruction will be a demonstration of the actual dial tone, the signal that will be heard when the called number is busy and a high pitched tone which will indicate that the number dialed is on the same line as the calling party.

Further instruction will be given for the completion of this type of call. Subscribers will be asked to dial back a special number. The dial back will be recorded on a machine to check whether the dial is operating properly.

It is estimated that it will take about six weeks to call the 7,500 subscribers in Twin Falls, Reynolds added. Any questions pertaining to the use of the dial for local or long distance calls will be answered.

The same program is scheduled later for Jerome, Gooding and Shoshone.

Tests Scheduled

BOISE, Aug. 17 — Examinations will be conducted to fill existing vacancies in several local offices of the employment security agency and with the state board of health and the department of fish and game.

The vacancies are in interviewer I, reception-interviewer, senior clerk and accountant I classifications.

Final data for filing applications for this series is Sept. 4. Information and application forms are available at all local employment security offices and at the merit system office, Postoffice box 987, Boise.

Award Presented for Red Cross Work

William H. Baker, chairman of the Twin Falls chapter of the Red Cross, presented Elizabeth Reilly an award and medal Friday night as a token of appreciation for her work in the county as a first aid instructor. She has instructed more than 3,500 persons since 1949 on a voluntary basis. Many of her students have been credited with saving lives since they finished her course of instructions. Instructor Gets Award for First Aid Class, Recommends Study to Parents

"Every parent should take a course Red Cross for work she has done in first aid," Elizabeth M. Reilly, Twin Falls county as a first aid instructor, said Friday night when she received a medal and certificate. To emphasize her statement, she told of a recent incident of a mother pulling a young child from a canal and hugging it to her breast instead of giving it immediate first aid.

Party Honors Duncan Munn

Duncan R. Munn was guest of honor Thursday evening at a dinner party commemorating his 30 years of service with the Bell system. He has served the people of Magic Valley for 29 years as an employee of the Mountain States Telephone company.

Munn began his telephone company career in 1927 as a PBX apprentice installer in Chicago. He transferred to Twin Falls in 1928 and has since worked in the local exchange organization.

In 1955, Munn advanced to central office foreman and served in that capacity until December, 1956, when he was promoted to his present position of plant conversion supervisor. He is directing the plant department that conversion program in Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding and Shoshone.

Mr. and Mrs. Munn reside at 802 Blue Lake boulevard. They have two sons, Jan Munn who is farming south of Twin Falls, and David Munn, a student at the University of Idaho.

treatment. Fortunately, one of Miss Reilly's former students was nearby and saved the child's life.

The award was presented to Miss Reilly Friday night by William H. Baker, chairman of the Twin Falls chapter of the Red Cross. The certificate states appreciation from the American National Red Cross for more than three years service to activities of first aid, water safety and accident prevention.

She has been serving as an instructor in Twin Falls county since 1949. Since then she has taught elements of first aid to more than 3,500 persons. Many of her former students have been credited with saving lives.

Most of her students have had at least 16 hours of training and many of them have had as many as 32 hours. Her work with the Red Cross has been on a voluntary basis. She is regularly employed by the federal government in Twin Falls.

Auto Buyer Is Warned Over Sales Scheme

BOISE, Aug. 17—Kenneth Miller, manager of the Idaho State Automobile association, has warned prospective car purchasers to beware of a sales plan which he says has burned thousands of car purchasers and will burn thousands more, unless they take warning.

He says the scheme involves telling a car prospect he can obtain a new car by becoming a "representative" or "advertising representative" for the dealer if he buys a car. As a representative, he is promised $100 or some such sum for every new car buyer he brings in. Thus, in addition to getting a new car, the customer is persuaded he can earn all or nearly all of the cost by bringing in new customers who, in turn, are offered the same plan, Miller explains.

Miller says the buyer signs a purchase contract, sometimes selling his old car hurriedly and at a loss. He really cannot afford a new car but wants to take advantage of a "terrific bargain."

If the car costs $3,000 and the purchaser gets $100 for each new customer he brings in, he must find 30 new customers to pay for the car. Miller says each of the 30 customers involved, they would have to find a total of 900 to pay for their cars who, in turn would have to provide 27,000 new customers to pay for their cars, Miller said.

"Sure, the customer at the top of the chain stands a chance of getting some or all of his money back," Miller said, "but what of those who are at the second or third stage? Many will find all potential buyers are signed up and they will find themselves obligated to pay for a car they didn't intend to buy and may be in no position to pay for."

Miller said the AAA is warning all potential car buyers against the "pyramid" car purchase plan because all it can possibly do for them is to "pyramid" their debts.

Explorers Escape From Cave's Trap

SAINT GAUDENS, France, Aug. 17 (AP)—Eight French cave explorers, trapped underground about 46 hours by a rise in subterranean waters, regained the surface safely Saturday night.

Three of the men had been cut off at a depth of about 1,500 feet and the others were isolated at 1,150 feet by flooding in the Pierre cave. Thursday night while studying the behavior of underground streams.

The surging waters, fed by heavy rains on the surface, finally subsided and the men regrouped. They spent almost 24 hours in climbing through the darkness to their base camp at the entrance to the Coume Guarnede Grotto.

Flu Spreads

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (AP)—The number of cases of Asiatic flu in the United States has reached between 20,000 and 25,000, Surgeon General LeRoy E. Burney reports.

Burney said Saturday he was a little surprised at the number because little flu was expected in summer months.

"Most Thrilling" Year of Life Closes For T.F. Girl Who Studied in London

"The most thrilling year of my life," describes the one-year stay in London on a Fulbright scholarship to the British Drama League for Fran Averett, who returned home Tuesday evening. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Averett, 1841 Dorian Drive.

While in England, Miss Averett saw about 175 plays, amateur and professional dramas, including visits to theaters in Scotland and Ireland.

Among the countries she visited were Italy, France, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Luxembourg, Belgium, Holland, Ireland and Scotland.

But she's quick to say she prefers American food. "English meals are quite starchy and they serve very few fresh vegetables," she explained. "Most of their food is roasted or boiled."

Many homes in England have no refrigeration or central heating like most American homes. They also do not have the "conveniences."

"It was hard to get used to, but after awhile you didn't mind," Miss Averett says. She lived in a flat near the drama league which she attended.

Highlights of her visit were the many theaters, concerts and ballets she attended. She also visited sessions of parliament.

Miss Averett, 23, said her stay in England was a wonderful and valuable experience and that the English people were friendly to her, but more reserved than Americans. She adds that, "Besides learning about another country, you also get a chance to take an objective view of your own country."

One of the many things that impressed her about London was that everything was green. People grew small gardens and raised their own vegetables instead of having a front lawn.

"Christmas is just about the same as it is here," she said. However, she added, the day after Christmas is "boxing day." That is when customers give tips to the milkman, paperboy and others. Another holiday England celebrates is Guy Fawkes day at the end of October.

All children of a town collect pennies and that is evened off by Guy Fawkes is burned.

All the banks are closed for bank holidays in April and August. "I felt bad about not celebrating Thanksgiving," she said.

Miss Averett boarded the ship back to New York on July 31 and traveled by train through Canada before returning to Twin Falls.

Her stay in Canada was highlighted by visits to the Shakespearean festival.

She has attended Idaho State college, Fayetteville, for four years and the University of Washington for one year, earning a bachelor of arts degree. This fall, Miss Averett plans to enter the University of Washington again to major in drama and play acting.

50 Attending Bible School

SHOSHONE, Aug. 17—More than 50 children between the ages of 4 and 11 are participating in the vacation church school sponsored by the First Baptist and Community Methodist churches.

The theme of the church school is "The Church" and classes are held for children of Kindergarten, primary, and junior age levels. Activities of the school will continue through next Friday from 1 to 3:30 p.m. each day. A closing program will be given Friday evening with parents of the children as guests.

Teachers of the kindergarten department are Mrs. Garland Blair and Mrs. Robert G. Vaden, with Karen Webb and Earlene Elam, assistants.

In the primary department are Mrs. Harry Turnbull, Mrs. Joe Blair, Mrs. C. W. Dill and Mrs. J. H. Dinsmore with Judy Kenaston and Jeanette Pace assisting. The junior department has for teachers Mrs. Lola Bond, Mrs. Louis Demaster, with Florence Bond, Verdene Johnson and Wanda Bancroft, assisting.

Others working in the school are John A. Kilgus, recreation; Mrs. Charles Walters, Mrs. Toshia Tanaka, refreshments. Also helping are Mrs. Earl Elam, Mrs. Paul Bancroft and Mrs. Ralph Lawrence. The co-directors of the interdenominational school are the Rev. Paul Winkler of the Baptist church and the Rev. Ralph Lawrence of the Methodist church.

Stop Sign Okayed For Intersection

Commissioners of the Twin Falls highway district recommended Saturday that a "stop" sign be placed at a corner three miles west and two miles north of west Five Points.

It was noted a "yield right of way" sign presently exists at that location, but is not a sufficient traffic control.

In other business, commissioners approved payroll and three requests by the Idaho Power company to bury cables next to county roads.

A suggestion to assist Kimberly improve roads will be investigated further.

Attending the meeting were William R. Chase, Leonard B. Peters and Chairman V. E. Morgan.

Top Scientist Is Taken by Death

FALMOUTH, Mass., Aug. 17 (U.P.)—Rainmaker Irving Langmuir, one of the scientific greats of the 20th century, died here Friday. He was 78.

Dr. Langmuir was vacationing at Cape Cod when he suffered a heart attack Wednesday. He died at the home of a nephew, Dr. David Langmuir, in Falmouth.

Langmuir won many scientific honors, including the Nobel prize in chemistry in 1932. Besides pioneering in artificial rainmaking, he developed techniques that led to brighter and cheaper electric lighting and others that helped make modern radio and television broadcasting possible.

He was a member of the General Electric company research staff for 40 years. His home was in Schenectady, N. Y.

Probe Slated

BOISE, Aug. 17 (U.P.)—Warner Mill, director of the Idaho division of liquor law enforcement, said action was under way Saturday to look into a report that pinball machines are paying off in Lewiston.

Mills said he had instructed Warren Hood, district officer for the division at Moscow, to look into the matter. The report of pay-offs was published Friday by the Lewiston Morning Tribune.

Europe's Car Makers Chalk Up U. S. Gain

DETROIT, Aug. 17 (U.P.)—European car makers are biting a bigger slice out of the American auto market. They have a good chance of doubling this year their 1956 portion of around 93,000 retail deliveries.

New car registrations for this year's first half show European makers delivered 83,244 units in the U. S. market. This was out of total registrations of 3,070,875 units. Last year January-June deliveries of foreign cars in this country numbered 43,371 of an overall total of 3,088,481 units.

Meanwhile U. S. auto makers shipped 88,214 cars to foreign markets, compared with about 123,000 in the first half of 1956.

An interesting sidelight on the American market penetration by foreign-built cars is that percentage wise the German-built Volkswagen is not taking as large a share of the volume as it did last year.

Biggest gains are being made by the French-built Renault and the British built MG, Ford and Metropolitan.

The appeal of the smaller, foreign-built European automobiles undoubtedly stems from their low price tags and fuel economy.

American auto builders disagree as to whether a low-priced car capable of competing with the imported cars can be built in U. S. factories. George Romney, president of American Motors, apparently believes it can be done. His company plans a new version of the shorter-wheelbase Rambler.

With this he may have to compete with his own importation, the small Metropolitan. Studebaker-Packard reports gratifying success with its economy Scorpion model, built in its South Bend plants.

But General Motors and Ford find it more convenient to step up importations of their own European-built models. Ford already has its British models in the American market. General Motors will have its Vauxhall Victor and Opel Rekord models on sale here soon.

Meanwhile, Chrysler reportedly still is trying to set up an arrangement with some European car builder to also get into the small car market in this country.

Kuykendall Given Power Job Again

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (U.P.)—President Eisenhower Saturday re-named Jerome K. Kuykendall as chairman of the federal power commission.

Kuykendall had been chairman of the commission until his term expired last June 22, while his re-appointment was under senate consideration.

The senate only last Thursday confirmed him for another five-year term on the commission.

Idaho Is Selected to Lead U. S. American Legion Meet Parade

Idaho has been selected to lead the National American Legion convention parade in September at Atlantic City, N. J., because Idaho led the nation in percentage of membership increase during the past year.

Department Judge Advocate Douglas Kramer, Twin Falls, says the local post is making an appeal to all members for funds for a float. Plans call for a float eight feet wide, 40 feet long, with a 12-foot statue of Abraham Lincoln in a sitting position.

Sides of the float will carry his quote, "Government of the people, by the people, for the people." This will be followed by a big, hydrogen-filled Idaho potato and a band in Idaho uniforms.

Kramer says the float will be viewed by over half a million people directly, with others viewing it through newscasts and television. Estimated cost of the float is $5,000. Locally, David Barry and Kramer head a fund raising com-

Few Americans Regret Ousting Of Syrian Ambassador to U. S.

By The Associated Press
The United States is glad of an excuse to get rid of Dr. Farid Zeinedine, Syrian ambassador to Washington who has abused his privileges on many occasions by his unfriendly criticism of American policy.

Talk of breaking diplomatic relations with Syria because she ousted three sides of the American embassy in Damascus is, however, a horse of a different color.

Breaks in diplomatic relations used to be a common practice of world diplomacy when one country wished to express extreme disapproval of another without going to war. Sometimes they did lead to war.

In recent years, the emphasis has been on maintaining relations. This is due in part to the growing importance of continuing attempts to reconcile differences in a world which lives under the shadow of the mushroom cloud.

It is also due to the very practical importance of keeping contact and knowing the intentions of enemy or unfriendly governments.

Damascus has been the outpost of Soviet Russian communism in the Middle East. It is one of the key points in the communist campaign to cut off the European former colonial powers from traditional sources of natural resources in Africa and Asia, and so promote their collapse. This campaign has been carefully planned and in operation for more than 10 years.

The Syrians didn't throw out the Americans because there was any evidence they had plotted against the Syrian government. They were thrown out because Western observers are not wanted as Syria and Egypt go about the business of trying to take over the Arab world with Russian aid. Presumably, under continued diplomatic relations, these men can ultimately be replaced. Other Syrians will come to Washington to replace those ousted by the United States in retaliation. It may take time.

The one country in the world which has most frequently insulted the United States, and violated the terms under which diplomatic relations were established 25 years ago, is Soviet Russia. Yet there has been no serious consideration of withdrawal of recognition.

In Latin America, where unfriendly governments have frequently installed themselves by force, the United States has for years followed the policy of diplomatic recognition for the existing government regardless. It has been made clear that this does not constitute approval, but is merely a means of getting along with the work of the day.

The outstanding case where this policy has not been followed is with red China, and there are a good many experts, including most Europeans, who think the United States has been wrong about that.

The United States, in dealing with the nations which teeter back and forth across the fence between communism and democracy, works constantly with one hope. It is that they will eventually discover not only which side their bread is buttered on, but which side offers them the greatest moral inducements and

11-Year-Old Girl Becomes Mother

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 17 (U.P.)—An 11-year-old girl and the daughter she gave birth to are in good condition at the State Medical center here, physicians said Saturday.

The 6-pound, 4-ounce baby was delivered by a Caesarian operation Friday. It was the mother's 11th birthday.

Dr. Eva Dodge, who delivered the child, said the unmarried mother has been at the center for some time under her supervision. The girl, a Negro, lives at Curtis, Ark.

Officials at the center said that the mother was believed to be the youngest in the history of Arkansas.

(Staff engraving)

Miss Baird and Newman Marry In Church Rite

In services at 3 p. m. Aug. 4 at the First Baptist church Robert Baird became the bride of Kirby Newman, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Newman. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. R. Crowe.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baird, wore a gown of Chantilly lace and net over satin with a chapel train. The lace bodice was designed with a scalloped off-the-shoulder neckline and lily-point sleeves. The flowing net skirt featured a front panel and plump of lace. Her lace-trimmed illusion net fingertip veil was held in place by a Juliet cap of satin. She carried a bouquet of pink roses on a white ribbon.

Mrs. E. R. Timm, aunt of the bride, was matron of honor. Charles McCauley was bridesmaid. Both wore gowns of blue and white.

Y. Wives will meet at 8 p. m. Monday at the YWCA building. A report will be given on the taxidermy conference.

Bowl and Blossom club will meet at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. C. B. Requa for a workshop with gladioli and other garden flowers. Members are asked to bring their own material and containers. Mrs. Al Hankins is in charge of the program.

At the reception for 100 guests held in the church parlors the four-tiered cake, trimmed in pink and blue, was served by Mrs. A. J. Baird. Mrs. Walter Carder poured. Mrs. Jerry Koepf was in charge of the guest book.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harding, Pennsylvania; Mr. Leonard Mills, Rupert, and George Newman, San Diego.

Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI

Growing old is an inevitable result of once being young. Some of us do not accept the fact at all and consequently are unhappy when it falls upon us. Some of us know full well that age and its characteristics are coming, but we make no preparation for it. The end result of this lack of acceptance and preparation is a miserable old age. Having to stop work and having nothing to do with our minds or our hands is tragic.

This need not be. Age can be a happy time provided one has something he wants to think about, or wants to do. This requires preparation and youth is the time to begin that essential activity of mind and hand. Each of us from childhood on has certain abilities, certain gifts, tastes and tendencies apart from the essential life work. One or more of these qualities or abilities, should be cultivated from youth onward as insurance against the time when the "grasshopper becomes a burden."

Nature offers a various choice. The stars, animals, plants, fish, whatnots of the fields. Gardening, propagating plants, hybridizing them; wood carving, carpentry, cabinet making, writing and reading; collecting from buttons to jewels; painting, sculpting; sewing from making aprons to embroidering vestments. Truly "the world is so full of a number of things we all should be happy as kings."

But this provision for a far-off time makes no sense to children and youth so we make no mention of it. We quietly see that each child cultivates some one gift, some one interest that he will fall back on when his work-a-day time is over. That is why parents should stress music as an inner source to strengthen the spirit for the stresses of the future. Anybody who can play an instrument has that essential insurance against hopelessness in old age.

Too, this second vocation does not wait to the day age sets in but serves then and there its purpose of spiritual release. Too many people including the children of today are suffering from tensions and the best way to relieve them is to have this resource, this bit of activity that acts as a haven for the troubled mind and weary body. And make no mistake, youth knows that weariness and needs that release.

Help the children to cultivate an inner resource. It pays its way in immediate rewards and insures happiness in time to come.

DENNEY'S HITTING WINS SECOND GAME IN ROW FOR COWBOYS

Ninth Inning Single Sends In Winning Runs as Magic Valley Stops Braves 7-6

For the second night in a row, versatile Bill Denney came through in the bottom of the ninth inning to push Magic Valley past Boise. Saturday night, his two-run single brought the Cowboys a 7-6 win over the luckless Braves while Friday night he blasted a homerun that provided a 7-5 win. Tom Clarkson was a major contributor with two homers. The two clubs meet again at 8 p.m. Sunday at Jaycee ballpark. But while Denney wound up the hero of the game, three other consistent pluggers for the Cowboys made it possible. Dave Bryn, shoved in as lead-off man for winning pitcher Russ Wingo, opened the last of the ninth with a single. Fleet Lou Jackson then dropped a perfect bunt and although the defense was expecting it, the pitcher had no play after fielding the ball.

Bill Schmidt then fainted bunt on four pitches and finally stepped a Baltimore chop to the shortstop, who also stood there and watched the Cowboys advance without a play on any of them. Walt Dixon then grounded out but that brought in Denney and the ball game.

The Braves had put the pressure on the home team all the way as Howie Bedell led off by smacking Jack Schomer's third pitch out of the park. That was his first circuit clout of the year, but Bedell came back again in the sixth and slapped his second. This time it was a grand-slam puke.

The Cowboys had forged into the lead in the fourth as Denny Loudenback doubled after two were out and rode home on Duane Hermon's single. Clarkson then parked his first homer. Kray added the next Cowboy tally in the sixth with a solo shot and Clarkson spanked his second in the seventh. The blow went over the centerfield wall at its farthest point.

Schomer was breezing along on his two-run cushion going into the sixth and got one man out before the run came to Lerner started it with a walk and two singles filled the bases. A ground-out got in the first tally and Bedell got in the other four, the easy way. Wingo relieved him in the seventh and hurled hitless ball over the next three frames.

Loser was Bob Bois, who got the loss although Denney's hit came off Jack Hannah.

Friday night, Denney's game-winning homer came after Jack Evans had cracked out a pinch hit double that scored the tying run. The Braves again had jumped to an early lead, this time pushing across three tallies on Kennedy's base-clearing double. But again the Cowboys turned to the homerun, as Loudenback got one before Denney went on his spree.

Wingo picked up that win also, coming in relief of Bob Moore. The Braves used five pitchers trying to halt the slow but sure Cowboy scoring machine and John Huda finally wound up with the loss.

Finals in Tennis Meet Will Be Played Today

Finals for the Magic Valley open tennis tournament will be played today at Harmon park beginning at 10 a.m., reports Gene Shirley, tourney chairman. Awards will be presented immediately after the final matches, which are sponsored by the Twin Falls Tennis club and the city parks and recreation department.

Boys' doubles will lead off action Sunday with Roger Micher and Bob Leazer, both Twin Falls, pitted against Alan Polkman and Tom Prescott, Jerome. Bill Koch, Twin Falls, plays Afton Deuel, Boise, in the men's singles championship match.

At 11:30, Lois Lipe and Lois Trimmell, both Twin Falls, will vie for the girls' doubles title with Carol Lindemeyer and Edwina Hinton, also Twin Falls. At the same time, boys' singles finals will be played with Brad Humphreys meeting Alan Polkman.

Afternoon action begins at 1 p.m. with Bill Trimmell and Carolyn Trimmell playing Art Walker and Jo Walker, Kimberly, for the mixed doubles trophy. Bill Babcock and Bill Morrison, Twin Falls, will be trying to beat Vic Barrett, Twin Falls, and Don Janak, Burley, in the juniors doubles. Girls' singles finals finds Lois Lipe and Lynn Wiley, both Twin Falls, competing.

Bill Koch and Gene Shirley play Art Walker and Afton Deuel for the men's doubles trophy and Don Janak and Bill Babcock are pitted for the juniors singles crown.

Women's doubles champion will be decided when Jo Walker and Lynn Wiley meet Lois Lipe and Louise Trimmell. Jo Walker and Lois Lipe also will compete for the women's single crown.

Walk Gives A's 14-13 Win Over Bees

POCATELLO, Aug. 17 (AP)—Salt Lake hurler Fern Carson walked in the winning Pocatello run in the last of the ninth inning here Saturday for a 14-13 Athletic triumph over the Bees.

The victory kept the Russlets on top of the Pioneer League. Their first-place co-holders, Billings, was knocked to third place—one game behind Idaho Falls—by virtue of a 4-1 loss to Missoula. The Missoula victory kept the Timberjacks half a game out of first and half a game above Billings.

Ron McCutcheon opened the ninth for the As with a single. Tony Cannizzo singled and Mel Wright forced McCutcheon at third. Carson came in to pitch and Ron Glasgow doubled to score two runs which tied the contest.

Don Brown was intentionally walked and Rick Rogers walked to load the sacks before Joe Ala was walked by Carson to force in Glasgow.

Salt Lake was never behind in the game until Pocatello's half of the ninth.

John Moskus hit a two-run homer for the Bees in the fifth frame and Manager Cliff Dapper knocked a solo homer in the ninth.

Rogers hit a two-run homer for Pocatello in the fourth and Mel Wright blasted in two with his homer in the eighth.

Lucky Punch Is Offered as Only Out for Amateur

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (AP)—"Maybe he'll get lucky. That's how the man in the street rates Olympic champion Pete Rademacher's chances against world pro heavyweight king Floyd Patterson in their unique title fight at Seastrand next Thursday night. Broadway bookmakers don't have even that much hope for the ball player who will be making his first professional fight in boxing history when he faces the fast hitting, fast moving, fast moving Patterson.

Shantz Hurls Yanks to Win Over Orioles

By The Associated Press
 Little Bobby Shantz, aided by Mickey Mantle's blazing bat, gained his first victory in nearly two months Saturday, pitching the New York Yankees to a 6-2 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles.

The pint-sized lefthander posted his 10th victory of the season. Mantle cracked three hits — a double and two singles — in five times at bat and drove in two runs. His batting average now is .384.

The Yankees collected 11 hits off three Baltimore pitchers but sewed up the game in the third when singles by Mantle, Yogi Berra and Harry Simpson, following a walk, and an error accounted for three runs.

At Detroit Johnny Groth, who had a perfect day at bat, delivered a two-out 10th inning single that drove across Charlie Maxwell with the deciding run in the Detroit Tigers' 8-8 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

Groth, who started his major league career with the Tigers and returned to them just a few weeks ago, collected five singles and a base on balls and spearheaded a 21-hit attack off five White Sox pitchers.

Billy Hunter was almost the whole show Saturday night, hitting two homers and laying down a squeeze bunt that scored the winning marker as the Kansas City Athletics defeated Cleveland 4-3.

The cocky Athletics utility infielder scored the Athletics' first three runs.

Russets Use Singles to Blast Dodgers

IDAHO FALLS, Aug. 17 (AP)—Idaho Falls defeated the Great Falls Dodgers 12-9 without getting an extra base hit here Saturday night.

But Great Falls batters clouted three homers, Sheldon Brodsky homered in the first after Lyle Wiley tripled. Wiley homered in the eighth after Jack Langer doubled and Jack Langer hit a three-run homer in the ninth.

Idaho Falls started their scoring in the first with two counters on Jack Risch's single, two walks and a single by Wendell Antoine. Jim Gilchrist stole home in the second for the Russlets and in the third a wild pitch brought Jay Cooke across home plate.

Jess Queen's single scored two in the fourth and singles by Moe Benedict, Gilchrist, Risch and Gordy Maxwell counted for three tallies in the fifth. Four singles scored two in the seventh and an infield out brought the final Idaho Falls run home in the eighth.

Thousands of Persons Dead In Tragedies

HONG KONG, Aug. 17 (AP)—Red China has reported that natural calamities snuffed out the lives of 15,551 persons in China in 1954 and 10,679 last year.

The figures—the first officially published by Peiping—were contained in an article by Hsiung Tien-ching, chief of the interior ministry's rural relief division.

Writing in the Peiping People's Daily on the achievements of relief work in China, Hsiung contrasted the death tolls under communist rule with 12,352,000 deaths from famine he said occurred between 1920 and 1936 under the Nationalist regime.

The greatest floods in China's modern history occurred in 1954. Last year more floods, drought and a destructive typhoon brought disaster to 74 million people. But Hsiung said only 44 persons died of starvation in 1954 and 578 last year, despite a bad harvest.

The magnitude of the 1954 floods was revealed by the fact that 13 million refugees had to be evacuated from Anhwei, Hsien, Hupei and four other stricken provinces. Yet Hsiung said no portable personal accident occurred during this fast emergency operation.

Under communist rule, millions "and sometimes tens of millions of people" were mobilized to fight floods, famine and drought, he said. Hsiung conceded there were some errors in dealing with refugee relief, particularly the bureaucratic attitude of some government officials.

"If only we can eternally overcome bureaucratism that estranges the people, we shall certainly be able to beat calamities and famines and eventually eliminate them completely," he wrote.

Forest Service Officials Confer on Fire Strategy

Fire-fighting strategy is mapped in conference of forest service officials such as the one shown above. Confering, from left, are Mark Kary, ranger at Hallett who served as camp boss at the fire; Arthur Berry, ranger at the Sawtooth valley ranger station, fire boss; Hunt Lamoreaux, Targhee national forest, timekeeper, and Forest Stokesberry, recreation director from the Snake creek ranger station, who served as one of the sector bosses. They were the leaders in the fight against the fire. (Staff photo-engraving)

Bruneau Canyon Area Remains in Natural State Despite Access Road

Looking downstream on the East fork of the Bruneau river leaves the impression of a clear stream which is likely-looking trout water. Both impressions are correct. This photo was taken from the middle of the "road" which at this point also serves as the middle of the streambed. (Staff photo-engraving)

Here's all that remains of what was once home for a family on the East fork of the Bruneau river about 15 miles upstream from Killy's Hot Hole, now called Murphy's hot spring. The years have taken their toll of these small log buildings, yet a serviceable one still stands, bed and table still remain in building on right. However, those familiar with the area are cautious about entering the building which provides a fine "den" for rattlesnakes that abound in the area. Except for an occasional cowboy or prospector, the area has few visitors, although many cows use the valley for summer range. Some cattle have wintered in the valley and come through in good shape, evidence of how the deep valley furnishes protection from the elements. At times in the summer, canyon is almost unbearably hot. (Staff photo-engraving)

Many Years Required to Heal Scar Made in Hours During Forest Fire

POLE CREEK BASE CAMP, Aug. 17.—Never in the lifetime of the men who fought the forest fire along Pole creek did they see the area in the natural splendor it was before the fire. It will take longer than the lifetime of any of the youngest of them for nature to restore what fire destroyed in only a few hours.

The fire broke out on Aug. 1 close to highway 93 on the north slope of Galena summit. Today, two weeks later, nearly 2,000 acres of evergreen trees in an area almost 20 miles around look like a series of giant black and gray pincushions. Along the edges of the pincushions are fingers of brown trees, baked to death by the intense heat. Here and there throughout the area are patches of forest which, through the caprice of the wind, still stand as a reminder of what the entire forest looked like only two weeks ago.

Nothing lives in this world of gray ash and black charred trees. There is no hum of flies, no song of birds, no chirp of chipmunks. Even the footfalls of the weary, grimy, sweat-streaked fire fighters are deadened by the deep layer of gray powder that covers the ground.

There is something glamorous about the lot of the mop-up crewmen, those men who stay on after the major battle has been won to make certain the fire doesn't break out again.

They work long hours every day, the only living things in a world that is dead. Hour after hour, armed with shovels and pulkisks (fire fighting tools that are half ax, half hoe), they shuff back and forth through ankle deep ashes that swirl in clouds behind them, searching out the stubborn bits of fire that could set the forest ablaze again.

The ground upon which they tread is hot, partly from burning humus beneath the ashes and partly from the sun. Blisters on their feet are common. The men sweat as they work and the dust they stir up clings to the perspiration on their faces and clothing. In a short time the only distinguishable features on their faces are their gleaming white teeth and red eyes.

This mop-up process on the Pole creek fire will continue until 24 hours after the last smoke has been seen and the last spark has been extinguished. After that a smaller patrol on horseback will circle and cross the area every day until after the first good rainstorm or snowfall this winter.

Winter comes early in the mountains and the mop-up crewmen still at base camp crawl from their sleeping bags every morning in below freezing temperatures. Base camp, moved three times during the fire, now nestles in a wooded area between the base of the mountain and Pole creek. The first camp was located near highway 93 a short distance from where the fire started. The second and largest camp was erected in Bear gulch about one-fourth of a mile from the present campsite.

At one time during the fire two camps were in operation, the second, known as Camp No. 2, was located several miles up Pole creek. Fighting a forest fire the size of the Pole creek fire with any degree of efficiency calls for a vast amount of preparation—preparation the forest service makes when there are no fires.

Two weeks ago in the Sawtooth valley district of the Sawtooth national forest, everything seemed above Pole creek can be used for grazing again.

Edwin A. Fournier, ranger at the Rock creek ranger station in the south hills, who was brought in to help fight the fire, pointed out that another loss to the recreational facilities. Wood ashes mixed with water form a sort of a lye which is fatal to fish, he said.

Fournier also pointed out fire fighters are cautioned against drinking water from streams in burned areas. The wood ashes in the water can cause dysentery, he said.

On the immediate cost of fighting the fire, Irving Mowery, Boise, radio technician brought in to service the shortwave radios used on the fire, said one of the best ways to arrive at an immediate estimate of costs is to compare the fire with other fires.

He said he had heard the Hells canyon fire in the Payette national forest some time ago—which was about the size of the Pole creek fire but utilized the services of more men—cost approximately $385,000.

Value of the forage loss would be hard to determine, he continued, but it will be years before the slopes to

Fire crew works to extinguish fire smoldering in humus on floor of forest. Fire can be "dormant" in humus for days or even weeks, finally breaking into flames under right conditions of wind and humidity. Mop-up work such as this will go on until after the first snow covers the fire area on the north slope of Galena summit. (Staff photo-engraving)

Smoke Rises From Timber in Fire Area

Faint cloud of smoke shows presence of fire in heavy stand of trees in Pole creek fire area. Mop-up crews may be faced with such outbreaks of fire for several weeks yet. Although fire burned through, such heavy stands of timber, breaks of wind left green "islands" in black and gray islands of ashes and burned trees. (Staff photo-engraving)

Cost of Fire Not Known Yet, But Huge Sum Is Anticipated

POLE CREEK BASE CAMP, Aug. 17.—While forest service officials will be unable to determine for weeks the cost of suppressing the Pole creek fire, they are certain the costs will amount to several thousand dollars.

The cost of fighting the fire will be small compared to the long range costs in the loss of timber, watershed and forage for livestock, officials maintained.

The timber loss, which is almost evident to anyone viewing the blackened area, will run into an enormous sum if that loss is carried on down to persons who would have used the timber for construction, reports Arthur Berry, ranger in whose district the fire occurred.

Fish and game officials place a high monetary value on salmon spawning beds. This loss will be felt for many years to come in commercial fisheries along the coast, he explained.

Value of the forage loss would be hard to determine, he continued, but it will be years before the slopes to above Pole creek can be used for grazing again.

Edwin A. Fournier, ranger at the Rock creek ranger station in the south hills, who was brought in to help fight the fire, pointed out that another loss to the recreational facilities. Wood ashes mixed with water form a sort of a lye which is fatal to fish, he said.

Fournier also pointed out fire fighters are cautioned against drinking water from streams in burned areas. The wood ashes in the water can cause dysentery, he said.

Spot Fires Make Workers Jittery, Alert for Smoke

POLE CREEK BASE CAMP, Aug. 17.—After days of trying to knock down spot fires that kept springing up outside the perimeter of the main fire along Pole creek, fire fighters became jittery over smoke.

On Monday Mark Kary, ranger at Hallett who was acting as camp boss, looked up from his work and spotted smoke curling from a thick stand of timber not far from the camp.

Racing for a pickup truck, he shouted for two smoke-jumpers to join him, pointing to the column of smoke as he ran.

The three piled into the truck and scooted for the smoke. A few moments later they sheepishly emerged from the trees and drove back to camp.

The smoke had been coming from the chimney of a cook stove in a pole gutters camp—a camp that had been there since long before the fire. "It's getting so a person can't take a good deep puff on a cigarette around here," one of the men complained, "and naturally,

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Musicians and music lovers flocked to CAMAS PRAIRIE last Sunday from all over southern Idaho to attend Mannie Shaw's fourth annual "Jam-boree"—an open house and potluck picnic for anyone who can play an instrument, or is interested in real old-time "fiddlin'". Around 9:30 a.m. visitors and musicians began arriving at the Shaw ranch one and a half miles west of Corral and by evening almost 400 names were registered in the guest book, including out-of-state guests from Georgia, Colorado, Iowa, Washington, California, Oregon, Washington and Kansas.

Shaw, a well known southern Idaho fiddler, plays in the Ben Luster Tunes Twisters orchestra and has been in the top money every year at the Northwest Fiddling contest held at Weiser, as well as being judged one of the 10 best fiddlers in the nation at the national contest last year in Truth or Consequences, N. M.

At least 20 fiddlers joined in the jam-boree along with Mannie's two small granddaughters, Donna and Leslie Barber, and Vivian Alfin, Payette, who won a trophy at the Northwest Fiddler's contest last April for being the youngest contestant.

Mannie came to Camas prairie from northern Washington about 40 years ago, traveling by wagon with his mother and father. His father gave him his first violin and taught him to play when he was about 12, which is the extent of his musical training and he still can't read a note.

The violin now used by Mannie was made by Charlie Kinney, FIDLER, out of a broken threshing machine axle. Kinney picked the axle up in Iowa and recognized it as a piece of straight grain maple, brought it with him when he moved to Idaho in 1906. He later made the back and sides of the instrument out of the maple, with the top fashioned of native spruce. Its beauty and tone appealed to Shaw and he struck a bargain with Kinney, agreeing to break a bronco and trade him five calves for the fiddle.

Another violin with a history is one owned by Don Durfee, HAGERMAN, which is said to have once belonged to Thomas Jefferson. Through a system of trade and barter it reached Idaho by covered wagon years ago where Durfee's father traded a four-horse freight outfit for it.

Besides playing the fiddle, ranching, and raising cattle, Shaw has found time to serve as a county commissioner from 1944 to 1952, was president of the State Commissioners and Clerks association, and is a member of the board of consultants for the National County Officers' association.

Possessed of a warm and friendly nature, Shaw has won many friends throughout the Northwest and "operates", as he says, on the theory that "there are no strangers, only friends I haven't met."

Shaw's "good neighbor policy" has paid off for the violin virtuoso. He returned to his ranch last week after a short stay in the hospital to find his wheat ready for threshing.

The next morning, Shaw still a bit weak in the knees, woke to find his Camas prairie neighbors descending upon the fields with 12 combines. Results: 160 acres of wheat harvested in 4 hours. The 12 combines lined up and cut a swath 160 feet wide. Neighboring women brought in lunch for the workers and a good time was had by all.

When asked for his reaction, Shaw commented: "Well, you know, this sort of thing goes on up here all the time, but I must be honest that I got kinda choked up when I realized it was happening to me."

The case of the barefoot peeper has GOODING residents, especially the teen-agers, losing their beauty sleep. City police and sheriff's officers are exactly getting their eight hours in either, what with complaints all hours of the night that "some man was peeping in my window."

This has been going on for about three weeks and the police usually find barefoot prints in alleys and yards. A new city ordinance has been passed making window peeping punishable by a $100 fine and 30 days in jail. Although the ordinance was published, it is doubtful that the peeper knows about it. Anyone who runs around at night through yards and alleys with his shoes off is probably illiterate and couldn't read it anyway, assert irritated Gooding residents.

Clear Land Title Sought in Action
A complaint to quiet title of certain real property located in Twin Falls county was filed Friday in Twin Falls district court by the Twin Falls Bank and Trust company against Chris Seely, Marguerite Seely and heirs of George Hobson, deceased.

Seely is executor of Hobson's estate. The bank claims to be owner of the real property by reason of a deed of trust executed Nov. 9, 1935, by Hobson. The estate claims an interest in the land which the bank says is adverse to its claim.

The bank is represented by John Hepworth, Kramer and Walker, and Benoit and Benoit.

By EMMETT A. HOFER
(Pastor, Flax Avenue Church of God)

The church that can successfully demand loyalty and allegiance belongs to a by-gone age. Its members are all buried.

A new type of man, woman, boy and girl attend today's modern, and beautiful churches. An enlightened people with modern life and needs.

who do not readily accept the old mustard-plaster treatments. Intensified programs and more elaborate buildings have failed to reach the majority of these modern Americans. The church is failing to meet their needs.

Today's fast living men and women have longings and problems that must be answered with a streamlined modern religion. Why apply a slow working messy hot pack when any of the wonder drugs will do? If the message of the church does not give the needed cure, then that message and church have no good reason for existence. Loyalty and allegiance cannot be demanded, but must be deserved.

Veterans Are Given Advice
Arnold Helwege, director of the Twin Falls office of the veterans administration, urges all veterans writing to the VA concerning benefits claims or insurance policies to be sure to include benefit claim number or policy number.

Helwege notes that no name is unusual in the more than 30 million names carried in the central file of the VA and often the most unique names are duplicated. While there may be many similar names in VA files, "C" numbers or insurance policy numbers are assigned to one veteran and one veteran alone.

Veterans who include the identifying numbers in letters help cut down the tremendous bulk of "mystery mail" which has been flooding VA offices. "Mystery mail" is costly and time consuming to handle, says Helwege.

"The Modern Gospel"

But have we really changed? Do not our children still need love, security and confidence if they are to mature? Do we not still feel suffering, pain and loneliness? Do we not enjoy a laugh, friendship and happiness? Only the means whereby we express ourselves have really changed.

Grandpa and grandma often rocked away their feelings of anger where dad and mom often express theirs in divorce court proceedings. At one time, Mary or Johnny might sulk and pout, or maybe even kick the toe out of a shoe when limitations restricted their desired freedom. Today, open hostility or a speeding auto may be youth's modern expression.

Much religion is trying to do the impossible. It is trying to change man's expression of what he really is. It's like trying to stuff a two-pound jelly fish into a one-pound container. Press down here and it pops up there.

The gospel does not try to change man's expression of his real nature. The Gospel of Jesus Christ changes the man. Jesus said that out of the heart proceeds evil thought and actions. A man, woman, boy or girl with a changed heart does not feel restricted. Rather they find a new freedom in Christ. And the expression of their new self now becomes those actions which make a better home, community and world.

Only the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ can meet today's modern needs. For only it has power to change the heart. Only the church that offers men changed hearts can ever hope to cure the ills and fill the needs of today's tired, sick and troubled peoples. And so the "Old and must pay her attorney, May and Gospel" is as modern and up-to-date as man himself. It is this gospel that deserves our loyalty and allegiance.

Some would fill our needs temporarily by stuffing us full of programs, keeping a too busy people still more occupied. We must agree that a delinquent child or parent can do little wrong to self and others when so occupied. Yet the seed of man's trouble is still unchanged and lies dormant, waiting for an opportunity to express its true sinful nature.

God knows the danger of the unchanged heart. Therefore he gave His Son, Jesus Christ; that through faith in Him, we might become changed men and women for an ever changing world.

Two Divorces Granted Here
Two divorces were granted in Twin Falls district court Friday by Judge Hugh A. Baker.

Mrs. Grace Henderson was given a divorce from Richard Ous Henderson on grounds of desertion. She was awarded real property in Bull which belonged to her prior to the marriage. She was represented by J. W. Taylor, Bull attorney.

Extremely cruel grounds for a divorce granted Mrs. Rita Devereaux from Dave E. Devereaux. She was given care and custody of a minor child. He is to pay $50 child support and $10 monthly alimony. He was ordered to pay all community debts ever hope to cure the ills and fill the needs of today's tired, sick and troubled peoples. And so the "Old and must pay her attorney, May and Gospel" is as modern and up-to-date as man himself. It is this gospel that deserves our loyalty and allegiance.

Warren Barry, chairman of the Industrial division of the chamber, reported on a tour taken by the commission of the Self Manufacturing company and announced that the commission would visit a potato plant in Burley, sometime in the near future.

Chamber Aims Friendship in Valley's Cities

Directors of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce Friday discussed several problems in public relations between Twin Falls and other communities of Magic Valley.

The discussion arose when members of the board voted to participate in the Jerome-Garden-Jubilee. Mitchell Hunt, manager of the chamber, pointed out the feelings which have been growing between the smaller communities and Twin Falls and noted that it had appeared at the combined chamber meeting in Rupert recently.

One director said the feeling is nothing new. He said it is something which the largest community in each area must put up with.

In other business, board members heard a financial report on chamber funds from Raymond G. O'Donnell, auditor. He noted the chamber presently has a surplus of $503.40. He also pointed out the chamber had a deficit of $4,271 at the beginning of the 1957 fiscal year.

The board commended the city parks and recreation department for fine work with several city programs. Hunt said the scheduled back-to-school parade would have been impossible without the help of the city parks and recreation department.

Warren Barry, chairman of the Industrial division of the chamber, reported on a tour taken by the commission of the Self Manufacturing company and announced that the commission would visit a potato plant in Burley, sometime in the near future.

Convincing talk
We're talking about the door-to-door salesman who is selling vitamin preparations these days. He sounds mighty convincing, perhaps because he's memorized a fancy sales talk. One way to stop him in a hurry: Just ask him to wait while you check with your physician. Or invite him to stroll down to our pharmacy and, while you watch and listen, show us his wares. We have a notion he'll go away quickly and bother you no more.

Rugged Country; Peculiar Whirlwinds Provided Plenty of Work for Smoke Jumpers Flown to Fire From McCall Camp

"Peculiar whirlwinds plagued firefighters on the Pole creek fire as they picked up hot embers and carried them into stands of unburned timber. Arrow indicates one such whirlwind or 'dust devil' in burned area. Even yet, whirlwinds are likely to pick up hot embers and start spot fires on fringes of burned area, making complete control difficult. (Staff photo-engraving)"

Many Years Required to Heal Scar of Forest Blaze North of Galena Summit

calm and under control. Ranger Arthur Berry, who has been in the forest service for 34 years, was working in his office. He laid down his pencil, leaned back in his chair and stretched, idly gazing out the window.

He came to attention with a jerk. Smoke was billowing up from along highway 93 near the base of Galena summit nearly 10 miles away.

With Berry at the ranger station this year is Theron Larson, a native of Twin Falls, who has had considerable fire fighting experience in Montana. Larson, with fire fighting equipment, and Bill Amos, fire squad at the Bowers ranger station, were leaving the station when first word was received from the outside that a fire had broken out in Fred Hoyer's pole camp. Later, forest service officials pinpointed the start of the fire as being either in a pile of poles Hoyer had ready for sale or in the area between the pile of poles and the corral.

On their way to the fire Larson and Amos stopped at several ranches to enlist help in fighting the blaze which, from a distance, appeared to be a large one. When they reached the flames a number of motorists were at the scene. Among them were four or five women who grabbed up shovels and took their places on the fire line.

Larson does not know the names of all the women who helped but one of them was Mrs. Frank Nelson, Twin Falls.

The fire spread out, fan shape, as it climbed the mountain which forms one side of the canyon through which Rainbow creek flows. Near the top of the mountain is a wide, grassy area and forest officials felt they would stop the flames there.

They reckoned without the wind, a wind that sprang up suddenly and continued to blow at between 30 and 35 miles an hour every day for nearly two weeks.

Meanwhile, Berry had asked for help from the Halley and Ketchum ranger districts, which was according to prearranged plans for the forest service. Whenever there is a fire that is too large to be handled on a district basis, the ranger in charge draws supplies and manpower from neighboring districts.

For fire emergencies, the forest service maintains a cache of fire fighting equipment in Halley. If the supply of equipment in a cache is not great enough, the district then can draw on supplies from the forest service warehouse in Boise.

Had it not been for the wind, forest officials feel certain the fire could have been held on the slope

Bears Spotted on Fringes of Blazes Area by Workers

POLE CREEK BASE CAMP, Aug. 17.—Not all the wildlife was frightened from the Pole creek area during the blaze that blackened nearly 2,000 acres.

A number of men on the fire fighting crews reported seeing a black bear along the top edge of the burn and one crew reported seeing two brown bears.

Edwin A. Fournier, ranger at the Rock creek ranger station in the south hills, saw the black bear while working as line boss along the fire early this week.

Fournier said the bear seemed unconcerned about what was taking place about him and actually seemed to be playing just outside the fire line. From the size of the animal, the ranger estimated the bear was a yearling cub.

Smoke jumpers flown from forest service camp at McCall take time out for chow at base camp on Pole creek. Tough, especially trained smoke jumpers were flown from McCall and jumped into rugged country ahead of fire. More than 500 men were used to fight the blaze at one time. Food for fire fighters was provided by cafe at Halley at first, but when crew grew to larger figures, Sun Valley took over the "catering" service. After most of fire fighters were released, forest service contracted with women cooks from nearby logging camps to provide meals for reduced crews involved in mop-up operations. (Staff photo-engraving)

Sheer Rock Walls, Rugged Terrain Assure Natural State of Isolated Bruneau Canyon.

This photo looking upstream in canyon of East fork of Bruneau river shows rugged terrain to be encountered in the canyon itself. Although the canyon is quite wide at this point, it narrows rapidly as it climbs to headwaters of East fork within 10 miles of this spot. Only one Jeep road leads into the canyon.

although several forest service trails are maintained. A few prospectors still try their luck in the canyon even though the area has been thoroughly prospected for a number of years. Prospector shacks and caches can be found in higher feeder valleys. (Staff photo-engraving)

Isolated Section of Bruneau Canyon Retains Natural State

In the area, horseback is preferred. The hole derived its name from the Roberson family who lived in the Bruneau valley and used the upper country as summer range for cattle. The original Roberson settlers were "Uncle Abe" and "Aunt Martha" Roberson, according to Mrs. Addie Hawes, Twin Falls, pioneer native of the Bruneau valley.

Several other ranchers have run cattle in Roberson's hole since then. Most recent operators were Jack and Laura Sals, who now live north of Three Creek and Noy-Blackett, who presently uses the area for summer range for his cattle.

An occasional prospector still wanders through the isolated country although it has been thoroughly prospected for years. Gold seekers swarmed through the area back in 1908-12 during the period in which gold was discovered at Jarbridge just over the mountains to the west.

Abandoned prospector's cabins and cached supplies such as dynamite are sprinkled through the canyon. An occasional fisherman finds small rainbow trout eager to take nearly any lure offered.

Other than that, the area abounds with deer, some cougar, coyotes, bobcat and beaver. Some hunters take deer out of the canyon every fall, but Nevada hunters have to reach the canyon through Idaho. A forest service trail leads into the area over the summit at the head of Mary's river from Deeth, about 80 miles away.

Black peak, located between the East fork of the Bruneau and Jarbridge, rises to an elevation of 11,000 feet. It's part of the range known variously as Seven Sisters, Seven Peaks or Jarbridge mountains. The region is located in the Humboldt national forest.

Roberson's hole itself is about 4,000 feet deep and the canyon at this point is quite broad. Going upstream, the canyon narrows quickly and the East fork of the Bruneau originates in springs and snow banks about 10 miles to the south.

Going north, or downstream, the canyon narrows at a place known as Cougar point. Another forest service trail dips into the canyon at this point, which natives of the area declare is the "best place in the world for rattlers."

The isolated location of Roberson's hole makes it a fine place for someone who wants to "get away from it all" but anyone contemplating establishing a home in the canyon should be rather fond of rattlesnakes.

Sheer rock walls explain why canyon of the East fork of the Bruneau river is practically inaccessible. Except for cattle, the area remains practically in its natural state. The canyon abounds with deer, a few cougar, coyotes and bobcats. Abundance of rattlesnakes makes travel by foot rather undesirable and keeps most people out of area. (Staff photo-engraving)

Meat Packers in West Hurt by Rate Cuts on Meat Going West

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (Special) — Spokesmen for western meat packers say they have suffered "a near mortal" blow in the failure of the interstate commerce commission to suspend rate reductions on dressed meats going West from the Midwest. This became effective Aug. 15.

They were hopeful that the ICC would do so but a special three-man panel of commission members upheld its suspension board's finding by refusing to delay the reduction.

Rates on live animals, in the meantime, move at old rates. ICC took the perfunctory sign of ordering an "investigation" to see if western packers would be hurt as much as alleged.

Stockmen heartily supported the position of the western packers, who contended that they furnish competition for live animals in Midwest markets.

A spokesman for the National Livestock Producers association, Chicago, however, said of ICC's ruling: "We've backed up the western packers to this point. Now it's up to them alone to prove their case by showing ICC that there is less competition for our animals."

Fighting for the change are the railroads, who've been losing a lot of business to trucks in the dressed meat field. Also, the large national packers in the Midwest want the reduction so they can compete more effectively for the ever-expanding consumer markets in the West. The large farm groups have been standing aside and watching the battle.

L. Blaine Liljenquist, Washington representative of the Western States

Meat Packers association, contends that the "next move will be to get a reduction on rates for dressed meats going East. We're just the first to be hit by this thing."

The fight over reductions in rates going West is no new thing. Two years ago, similar reductions were ordered by ICC.

However, they were suspended by ICC following public hearings on the problem in Salt Lake City. This time around, the result was quite different.

Construction on Truck Route to Last Two Weeks

City Manager Joseph H. Lattimore announced Friday that construction on Washington street north will continue at least two more weeks and possibly three.

Lattimore noted all truck traffic has been rerouted on Addison avenue west and Blue Lakes boulevard north and will remain that way until construction is completed. He said efforts were being made to complete the work prior to the opening of school.

Construction is being done from Five Points west to Filer avenue.
