

Flu Outbreak Continuing to Lash Country

By The Associated Press

Flu like a broken-field runner, tramping hard over some communities, dodging others, but generally dealing stiff blows.

Whether it was mostly Asian flu, or combined with other varieties, was uncertain. But either way, a wave of coughs, aches, fevers and sniffles was on. Vaccine deaths were termed by some too late or too little.

The U.S. public health service said estimates of Asian flu cases had passed the million mark, with heaviest occurrences in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Arizona and New York City.

Few Deaths

An Associated Press survey showed that other states also have been seriously hit at some points. Persons stricken usually recover in a few days, but at least 15 deaths this month have been attributed to flu complications.

Many public schools were closed. Dances and social affairs were called off.

After schedules crumbled, football games were postponed or canceled by scores of high schools and some colleges. Of a 26-man McAlister, Okla., high school team, 23 were out with flu.

Infirmaries Crowded

At many educational institutions, infirmaries were crowded or overflowing. A former men's dormitory at Stanford university in California was converted into a temporary convalescent ward.

The infection also struck in factories and industries—even prisons. In the State Reformatory for Men at Hagerstown, Md., 126 prisoners more than a tenth of the inmates—were down with flu. Visitors were barred.

Some hospitals also restricted visiting. Others refused to admit flu cases, due to its highly contagious nature. Doctors and nurses wore masks.

In a state home for retarded children at Medical Lake, Wash., staff physicians along with their patients—were ill with flu, and shaving machine orders from bed-nurses were put on double shifts.

No Pattern

The influenza sweep seemed to follow no definite geographical pattern, striking hard at some cities and other nearby scarcely hit, then jumping full force to distant areas.

The public health service reports localized epidemics in areas of Utah, Wyoming, California, Texas, South Carolina and Florida, with sporadic occurrences in New Mexico, Oklahoma, Missouri, Indiana, Oregon, Nebraska, Dakota, North Carolina and Georgia.

Since identifying Asian flu requires elaborate laboratory procedures, the majority of the cases were not confirmed as being this type. But the scattered analyses showed the Asian disease was widespread.

The presence was revealed in most areas of heavy infection.

Britain Avers Reactor Fails In 'Accident'

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The atomic energy authority announced today Britain's major atomic reactor pilot-producing plutonium for nuclear weapons has been knocked out of operation "for some months" by a fire accident.

The accident occurred at the Windscale plutonium factory in Cumberland, near the Scottish border.

The machinery is driven by power generated from Calder hall, which Britain claims is the first plant in the world producing atomic energy for peaceful uses.

An atomic energy spokesman said a number of uranium cartridges yesterday became "over-heating" to the point of red heat. Some oxidation of uranium has occurred.

There is no evidence there being any hazard to the public.

Nevertheless, workers stationed to number over 200 were ordered to "remain under cover" in the factory area.

The spokesman said experts are checking the area to see if there has been any increase in radioactivity.

Youth Who Set Blaze Fatal to Three Is 'Adjusting' in Prison

BOISE, Oct. 11 (AP)—Fire swept through a dormitory on the University of Idaho campus in Moscow nearly a year ago, killing three students. Now, in the Idaho penitentiary, the freshman convicted of setting that fire is reported to be receiving the psychiatric care recommended for him.

Warden L. E. Clapp said today that Paul D. Matovich has been examined by a psychiatrist.

"We are carrying out the recommendations of the psychiatrist and the psychiatrician," Clapp said, but he declined to say what the recommendations were.

The 21-year-old former journalism student entered the prison last April 15 following his conviction in Moscow on a charge of second-degree murder. The jury recommended psychiatric treatment. Judge Hugh A. Baker, Twin Falls, sentenced Matovich to 25 years in prison.

Under Idaho law he must serve a third of that term before he becomes eligible for parole.

The charge against Matovich stemmed from an early-morning fire at Gault hall last Oct. 19. Paul Johnson of Davenport, Wash., John Knudson of Idaho Falls, and Gary Shumberg of Corvallis, died in the flames.

The building was badly damaged, but has since been restored. The fire was immediately labeled "murder by arson."

Matovich, a freshman from Kellogg, was arrested several weeks later after an investigation.

He is now studying architectural drafting and journalism "in the prison school and is a staff writer for the prison publication, 'The Clock'."

In the latest issue he reports on the progress of construction on a new addition to the prison's license tag plant and discusses the institution's school program.

He describes the drafting class "undoubtedly the most educational and beneficial of the non-academic sections," and the speech class as "one of the biggest stepping stones toward rehabilitation here."

Clapp said Matovich, who had a long history of arson prior to the Gault hall blaze, has started no fires at the penitentiary.

"He is apparently making a nice adjustment," said the warden, "but he is emotional and some things upset him. For one thing, every article written in the newspapers about him appears to upset him."

Clapp said the young prisoner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Matovich, live in Carey.

Checks Possible Fire Hazard

Twin Falls County Agent Warren Deligh, inspects a faulty electrical connection in an effort to be more aware of possible fire hazards in local buildings. Deligh has announced that the local branch of the U. S. department of agriculture is cooperating with local officials in the occasion of national fire prevention week. Deligh points out that many farms have electrical wiring that is quite old and neglect and improper care may result in extensive fire damage. (Staff photographing)

Fire Prevention Easier Than Halting Flames, Official Says

"Don't give a fire a place to start! Plugging the cause is easier than halting the flames," Warren Deligh, Twin Falls county agent, warned Thursday. Deligh issued the warning to remind farmers of National Fire Prevention week which opened Sunday. The department of agriculture is cooperating with the National Fire Protection association in observing the special week.

"During 1956," Deligh notes, "farm property loss because of fire came to $145,000,000 and more than 5,000 farm lives were lost in rural and urban fires." A national survey conducted showed the cause of about one-fifth of all farm fires to be defective heating. Other causes were misuse of electrical wiring and faulty chimneys. Careless smoking caused another major portion.

Deligh quotes Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson in that "fire prevention is a major part of the farm safety educational program of federal and state extension services." "Because of many older homes in Magic Valley," Deligh says, "faulty electrical wiring is a major contributor to local fire damage. Farm owners should take steps toward having older, faulty wire connections checked immediately."

Seaton Views Urgent Power Demand Soon

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—Secretary of Interior Seaton said Friday that nearly two billion dollars must be spent on new electric power facilities in the next 20 years to meet the nation's skyrocketing power requirements.

The effort must be shared by federal, state and local governments and private investors, he said. "We have to put every power dollar available to work to build the private source to work to build the power plants America will need 20 years from now," Seaton said. "Otherwise the job can't be done. It's just that simple."

In a speech prepared for an 11-state Young Republican conference, the secretary said federal spending alone would be a little over $1 billion. Only teamwork will work.

Seaton said the Democrats had favored a "theory of federal preemption of hydroelectric sites" and adhered to a doctrine of federal duty or no duty at all. But, he went on, the Eisenhower administration favors "the principle of teamwork."

"We believe that the federal government should build some new power facilities, the state governments some local government some, and private utilities some, each one in accordance with its ability and with the public good," Seaton said. The speaker reviewed the controversial proposal for federal development of the Hells canyon area of the Snake river in the Pacific Northwest. Efforts have been made in several sessions of congress, including the one this year, to enact a bill providing for a public power dam in Hells canyon.

Idaho Power company has been granted authority to construct three Hells canyon dams and some work is under way. "The latest proposal for a federal dam," Seaton said, "was simply an attempt to get around the unanimous decision of the bipartisan federal power commission that the three dams of the Idaho Power company would best assure comprehensive development of the Snake river basin."

What the proponents of a federal dam were really arguing for was a return to the discarded theory of federal preemption of hydroelectric sites. He said Democratic power policies had resulted in a "power crisis" in the Pacific Northwest. He added that in 45 years, the Eisenhower administration provided that region with almost "three times as much new licensed power capacity as it got during the 20 talkative years" of Democratic administrations.

U. S. Testing Cheaper Fuel For Reactors

IDAHO FALLS, Oct. 11.—The United States this month undertook the practical development of a relatively inexpensive fuel for atomic power reactors.

If successful, it could mean considerable practice abroad for American in development of low-cost atomic power.

The atomic energy commission (AEC) is confident of the success of the process. It is produced by the irradiation of natural uranium (U238). But it is different from U235, a chemical without fissile to neutrons and fission.

Success Expected

That is why it has been developed yet. But Dr. John E. Francis, director of nuclear physics for Phillips Petroleum company, here, says too much difficulty is expected in successfully adapting the process to a reactor.

Phillips operates the materials testing reactor (MTR) at the national reactor testing station (NRTS) at Idaho. The AEC picked MTR as the reactor in which plutonium will be used.

Louis J. Rodda, deputy director of reactor development for the AEC, announced the plans for plutonium as the first part of the MTR's new brother.

Rodda said the MTR will be the first test reactor ever to use plutonium as the fuel. It was used briefly in a small reactor at Los Alamos in 1949.

Rodda said it would be of great value to foreign countries, for instance, which cannot yet afford atomic power.

U235 usually is used as the reactor fuel. But natural uranium contains only 0.7 per cent of the U235 isotope, a consequently expensive.

The AEC plans eventually to use plutonium in the core of an experimental breeder reactor (EBR-II) being developed by the Argonne national laboratories at the NRTS.

A December 1958 EBR-II is planned to be the first breeder reactor, demonstrating the first breeder reactor, production of more fuel than is consumed.

U238 surrounds the core of the breeder reactor. U235 is the fuel of the core. The fission of U235 produces neutrons which in turn bombard U238 and produce plutonium, which fissions as U235. But all the plutonium produced is not needed to sustain fission. An excess of fuel results.

When it then will eventually produce its own fuel and use that to make more for wherever might want it.

The same thing would happen if thorium were used in place of U238, except that U233 would be produced in place of plutonium.

It is felt that the successful adaptation of the resulting fuel (plutonium or U233) to a breeder reactor is essential to a fairly abundant, as compared to the small amount of U235 naturally present and its laborious separation from the natural uranium.

Dr. Myer Novick and his associate, W. W. Thwaites, are in charge of the breeder work at NRTS. For two years they have been working on a breeder reactor core for EBR-II and expect another two years to that before EBR-II is completed.

Dr. Evans is doing fundamental research on U233 at the MTR. He says a great deal is still to be learned about it and its fission cycle.

MRS. ELEANOR ROOSEVELT
ENDORSES AMAZING NEW HEARING INVENTION

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt has now joined other prominent Americans and people from all walks of life in endorsing a revolutionary new hearing device called "The Listener".

"I have used 'The Listener' for the last few days for the hearing of my ears," said Mrs. Roosevelt.

Continuing, she added: "If people only knew what a revelation it is to me, they would not for a moment hesitate to wear one. This is the first hearing aid I have ever used. It is exactly what I needed. I didn't realize a hearing aid could be as good as this."

So widespread is the interest in this remarkable new electronic hearing device that the makers have printed an illustrated booklet giving full details. Those interested in obtaining a free copy from:

Launching of Another Russ Satellite Seen

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The state department said today it would not be surprised if Russia launched a second space satellite "at any time."

The statement, made in a press briefing, came shortly after President Eisenhower met with his cabinet and top defense officials in the continuing reappraisal of the U. S. and Russian rocket-missile programs.

No Details

No word of the exact hour, cabinet discussion or an earlier conference among the president and defense chiefs was revealed.

The meetings and the state department's cryptic comment came on the heels of a Russian promise to send another and more advanced satellite spinning around the globe first month—before the United States hangs even a small test "moon" in space.

Asked whether the United States anticipates a second Russian launching, Press Officer Jameson Parker replied, "We would not be surprised by a launching at any time."

Meanwhile, a Senate Republican leader, William F. Knowland said he saw no need to abandon the administration's $5-billion-dollar ceiling on defense spending.

Knowland said Russia had demonstrated that she could shoot a sphere into space with rockets or missiles power but that being ahead in one phase of development did not mean that she was ahead in all.

"It doesn't mean that we should change our foreign policy or accept Russian domination," he said. "It certainly does not call for any change in our system of collective security."

He was asked about suggestions, particularly from some administration members, that the state department spend more money on a "crash" program to surpass Russia's rocket development.

"I think the basic question is whether we are getting our full value for the $5 billion dollars," he said. "If we eliminate fat and concentrate on muscle I think $5 billion will provide a first-rate defense."

Children Now in School May Be First to Set Foot on Moon

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—Some boy or girl now in school could become the first child to set foot upon the face of the moon.

The girl, grown into a slim young woman, could be the first specially picked just because she weighs less.

Space trips by humans are apparently coming.

This is the quickening promise of the space age, opened just six days ago by Russia's Sputnik or baby moon.

Sputnik marks the first break in the chain of gravity keeping mankind bound to earth.

The success has expert scientists predicting rocket flights to the moon within a few to half a dozen or 10 years more.

Just how realistic are these predictions? What are the next solid steps? Why worry about space now?

At any moment, the U. S. air force will launch a four-stage rocket expected to soar 1,000 to 4,000 miles into space. If it can be given an extra kick sometime later, this rocket, conceivably could whiz right on and bang the man in the moon in the nose. Telescopes could see it hit.

The rockets will be lifted by balloons 20 miles high over Eniwetok in the Pacific. Then its rocket engine will fire in sequence to make the deepest penetration yet into space. It will carry a small package on instruments and radio voice to witness facts from space about cosmic rays and earth magnetism.

But it is not the baby moon flights are essential first steps before man can send rockets to or around the moon, or ride aboard them himself.

First, men want cautiously to explore the mysterious oceans of space, or what are the hazards, what peculiar events go on out there?

What are the chances that pressurized space ships can be punctured by meteors, snuffing out the lives of human occupants? How can they way up there in the realm of cosmic rays, or the powerful X-rays and ultra-violet light coming from the sun?

Could man take it? The moons can tell. Sending animals up in moons is a next stage, says one Russian scientist, to see how life in the cosmos affects them.

Pointing to sketches already drawn by U. S. and German scientists as well, he foresees creation of space platforms, circling the earth, much as Sputnik is doing. These go rockets, timed to become a train of closely bunched rockets. Then men in self-propelled space suits, each seized yesterday was "part of the American plot to overthrow Russia's current regime."

"PLOT" DETAILED
DAMASCUS, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Syrian press said today an American press agent today announced that he had been seized yesterday was "part of the American plot to overthrow Russia's current regime."

in space, to see whether the human body can tolerate them, or as a prelude to experiments in duplicating the emotional strains of long space voyages.

Even if human space travel should never come about—if it proved too dangerous—the explorations of space promise invaluable knowledge for man on earth.

His baby moons and their instruments can answer tantalizing questions. They promise new knowledge of weather, the causes and progress of hurricanes. They can tell us new facts about the sun and its radiations affecting the earth.

They can solve puzzles of comets, meteors, gravity, magnetism, radio transmissions between points on earth, help depict the true size and shape of the earth itself, give us insight into the question whether the continents ever drift apart.

Their mission is preposterous, part of the cooperative quest for knowledge of the International Geophysical Year (IGY).

The moon-manned moon is a new tool of science, possessing enormous power to expand knowledge of our earth and environment, to tell us a prominent IGY official.

The moon will win knowledge obtainable in no other way but going into space. And as they do, they open wider and wider the door to the space age.

Shooting a rocket around our real moon, with TV eyes aboard to see its uncharted dark side, is another possibility.

Scientists already speak of harnessing atomic energy to drive manned rockets on long trips or to power space ships.

France Finds New Crisis in Whisky Woes

PARIS, Oct. 10 (AP)—Frenchmen are not only drinking more whisky, but most of them consider drinking to be the only way to live without whisky among the French.

American detective stories and a general mood of despair made whisky one of the rare alcoholic beverages not produced in this country.

Project Vanguard Chief Undaunted By Russia's Successes With Satellite

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (AP)—Anna-Louise Vanguard, the U. S. project director, said today that she was not daunted by Russia's successes with its satellite, the first of which was launched last March at the air force missile test center, Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Dr. John P. Hagen, her deputy, said that Vanguard, 40-year-old native of Ambler, N. H., is the project director.

He didn't like it any better than anybody else when the Russians put up a satellite first.

But, his associates say, he isn't waiting time or energy in passing ahead with his job, citing it the Soviet achievement has affected him.

He has been to make him more determined than ever to go on with the moon into the sky. His program:

He could use existing rocket technology, but he could not borrow any of the larger missiles on which the army, air force, and navy were working.

Project Vanguard was kept separate from and given a lower priority than the other missile programs.

After a one week setback, Vanguard this year finally came up with what looks like a successful first stage of the three-stage rocket which will push the satellite into the sky.

It has undergone much ground testing and two flight tests. A third test, with second and third stages "dummed in," is imminent at Cape Canaveral.

The overall launcher is a bullet-shaped vehicle 22 feet long and weighing 22,000 pounds. The first stage is 45 inches in diameter, the rest 37 inches.

Half of Vessel's Crew Hit by Flu

BOSTON, Oct. 10 (AP)—More than half of the 120-man crew of coast guard cutter Escanaba have been stricken with flu 1,500 miles at sea and headquarters today ordered the ship to port.

Coast guard district headquarters, New Bedford, was ordered from its weather station at sea to New Bedford because of a flu outbreak affecting over half of the crew of 130 men.

"The cases are relatively light with quick recoveries," the coast guard said. "But a shortage of which-ladders make providing the necessary service in connection with the patrol difficult to accomplish."

Nasser Urged To Get Tough Against Reds

CAIRO, Oct. 11 (AP)—President Gamal Abdel Nasser's top aides are urging him to get tough against the communists, diplomatic sources said today.

They said Interior Minister Zaki Farouk and other officials are getting anxious about renewed rumblings among Egypt's outlaws, communists, particularly in trade unions.

These officials are said to be pressing Nasser to take stronger measures than are involved in the trial opening tomorrow (Saturday) for 18 persons identified as minor league communists.

Reports circulating in Cairo say Egypt's clandestine Reds, who previously were splintered into many groups, now have consolidated into two factions—one espousing Sovietism and the other embracing the Yugoslav style.

The number of party members in Egypt is not known.

The latest issue of the communist underground newspaper "Al Intisar" indicates the Reds would try to use the trial starting tomorrow to stir up sympathy and supporters for their cause.

It said the trial was "only a means of disrupting the national front and attempting to preoccupy nationalists with a struggle among themselves instead of facing imperialism."

It said anti-communist action by the government would only split the people between the government and the people.

The communist organ urged the trial defendants to "make the court the pulpit for their defense of communism and the position of national communism."

It also pressed for a campaign to eliminate "reactionary laws."

In brief, we should divert what is aimed at serving a bloody capitalist system into a gain for the communist cause," Al Intisar said.

The newspaper warned not to attack Nasser or leading government personalities directly, but it did bid Mohammed Hassan, editor of the independent newspaper "Al-Ahram" and a close friend of the president.

Reds Give up For Incoming White Regime

SAN MARINO, Oct. 11 (AP)—The 12-year-old communist government admitted defeat last night in the post-stamp republic's bloodless civil war. It is expected to give up power by the week-end in an anti-communist faction.

Interior Minister Domenico Morandi, red strong man, said after a three-hour meeting with leaders of the anti-communist provisional government.

"It is pretty obvious that we are moving out because we have been given no choice. There is nothing much we can do about it unless we want to start a civil war, which we absolutely do not want."

The communists lost their control of the government in which factions and the anti-communists were quick to take advantage.

Podestico, chief of the official prime minister of the so-called white regime, said his government and Morandi's Reds agreed to disarm.

Treasure Located On Building Site

REGGIO EMILIA, Italy, Oct. 11 (AP)—Workers digging the foundations for a new building have uncovered ancient coins and jewels of very high value, it was disclosed today.

Archaeologists said the Byzantine gold coins dated back to the period between 476 and 486 A.D. and the rest of the treasure to the time of the barbaric invasions. That is the collector's value of the find would run into tens of thousands of dollars.

Mixed-up Nature of Ocean Wins Woman Encyclopedia

Curiosity as to why a male sea slug is called a male when it does the work of a female got Mrs. Ernest Baxter, route 2, Buhl, a set of encyclopedias. The set wasn't sent to her so she could answer her own question but because the question, sent to Eugene Burns, Times-News columnist, was the best one submitted to the writer.

Burns answers Mrs. Baxter's question in his column which appeared in the editorial page of today's Times-News. Mrs. Baxter is the second Magic Valley reader to win a set of encyclopedias through questions sent to the columnist. The first set went to Dee J. Poole, Buhl, who asked a question about a project homemaker, who was seeking a way to battle jackrabbits that were eating up his farm. While Poole received hundreds of letters in answer to his question, the problem still remained pretty much unsolved.

Mrs. Baxter also asked Burns to include more information on life in the sea in his column.

"She never has been on the sea but has taken many trips to the shore. She says living 48 years in a desert area has given her a real interest in the vast expanse of water that is covered by water. She says she reads considerably about the oceans and the strange forms of life contained in them and sea animals."

In her studies she learned that male sea slugs do most of the work of the females of the species but find no answers for the reversal from the "normal" way of life on land. Burns doesn't exactly tell her why male sea slugs behave the way they do but does point out the strangeness, in maritime life, is not unusual.
