

Source Reports Soviet Scientists Are Planning for Fantastic Space Bomber

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (U.S. —) — A source today was reported pointing toward a weapon more terrible than the "ultimate" intercontinental ballistic missile—a manned, hypersonic missile that could glide at fantastic speeds through space and bomb and spy on any place on earth.

The United States also was described as interested in such a weapon, but far behind Russia in making progress, the source said.

This information came from non-official sources, the source said, and he said he was not a Communist. He said he was in a position to know much more about missiles program. They asked him to be identified. At least some of the other, they told newsman he expected to be presented before a congressional investigating committee soon.

The informant said:

1. The U. S. government has circulated word that by 1959 the Soviets can be assumed to have long-range missiles able to attack all U. S. strategic bases. All forward U. S. bases, such as those in Europe, Japan, the Philippines, and the intermediate range Russian ballistic missiles—with ranges up to 1,600 miles.

2. Russians successfully launched two ICBMs last August. They were in the 4,000-mile range but capable of being launched from the Soviet Union.

3. The Soviet Union is planning a launching attempt of a Russian ICBM-type missile, perhaps a Sputnik ICBM-type satellite, was announced by the United States Army's hundreds of firings of missiles with ranges of 1,600 miles or less.

3. It is not known whether the tests have solved ICBM problems of "how to get the missile into the Earth's atmosphere. President Eisenhower noted Thursday night the United States has successfully built the nose cone of a missile that can be launched from the earth to earth, without its being consumed by frictional heat as it reenters the atmosphere.

4. The informant said much work on reentry remains to be done.

5. A U. S. Air Staff department committee has been formed to look on proposed use of photons (light particles) to propel space ships.

6. The informant said he saw a picture of a Russian ship—showing a promise of enough push.

Local Woman Appointed to Library Task

Mrs. A. J. Peavy, Twin Falls, has been named as the state library planning committee, reports Arthur DeVolder, chairman of the Idaho State Library Association's library development committee.

Mrs. Peavy, who is a member of the county "Friends of the Library" council composed of representatives from all libraries in the county, has been in the county, librarians and library trustees automatically will form a part of the task.

Alides to Mrs. Peavy are Mrs. Vernon Routh, Mrs. Ralph O'Connell, Mrs. Harry Peavy, Mrs. Frank DeLuz, and Mrs. J. Dean Mosher.

All persons interested in promoting the library are urged to contact Mrs. Peavy, DeVolder or members of the committee. It is the aim of this group to have at least one representative from each organization in the county, DeVolder said. East and west side members will be named shortly to aid in the organization of the Kimberly, Hansen, Murtaugh, Hollister, Duhl and Caldwell areas.

Objective of the group will be to improve local public library facilities throughout Idaho by cooperative action and to aid in publicizing the services of the state library agency and help in the demonstration project which will be undertaken throughout the state when the library bookmobile begins its circuit after the first of the year.

A banquet and workshop for members of the advisory committee will be held in the Hotel Boise Jan. 10. Details about the workshop and its program will be available from the state library at 215 Fulton street, Boise.

Guild Hopes to Buy Isolette With Benefit Funds

Guild Hopes to Purchase Another Baby Incubator With Funds of Benefit Ball

Maglo Valley Memorial Hospital guild members hope to purchase another baby incubator for the hospital from the proceeds of their annual hospital benefit ball scheduled Friday at the Turf club.

It would be the third Isolette incubator obtained for the hospital. The first was purchased by the guild in the newborn nursery and the second was purchased for the nursery by the hospital on April 12, 1955.

The new Isolette, trade name for the floating incubator, will be put to use in the pediatric ward according to Mrs. Irene Oliver, hospital administrator.

"Every so often," Mrs. Oliver explained, "a situation arises in which a baby that is born in danger of perhaps transferred from another hospital, has to be admitted because of an acute illness. Obviously, it would be impossible to admit such a child into a clean nursery because of the risk to other babies."

Mrs. Oliver pointed out that large oxygen tents and other equipment designed for adults had to be utilized when babies were admitted to the hospital. The advantage of the floating incubator, she said, "would be that such a baby when placed in it would have a more efficient and less cumbersome environment."

Mrs. Oliver said the cost of the Isolette would total nearly $250.

Four Divorce Orders Given In T. F. Court

Three divorce decrees were awarded Friday in Twin Falls district court by Judge Hugh A. Baker.

Mrs. Juanita T. Toney was divorced from Lemuel N. Toney on grounds of mental cruelty. She was awarded custody of their one minor child, who they married Nov. 10, 1939, at Horthsburg, La. She was represented by James Cunningham, Twin Falls attorney.

Mrs. LeDonna Parrott was granted a divorce from Jack E. Parrott on grounds of mental cruelty. She charged mental cruelty. The court approved a previous property settlement which was given custody of a minor child but ordered to keep the child within the court's jurisdiction.

Parrott was ordered to pay $25 monthly child support, plus $10 monthly alimony and attorney fees. They were married July 19, 1955, at Wells, Nev. She was represented by Mrs. Deborah Fisher.

Mrs. Deborah Fisher was divorced from Jennie J. Fisher. She charged extreme cruelty. They were married Jan. 7, 1922, at Greeley, Neb. There were no children or property involved. She was represented by Roy E. Smith, Twin Falls attorney.

A decree was granted Mrs. Virginia Colman from Keith L. Colman on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. They were married Feb. 22, 1946, at Elko. She was represented by Rayburn and Rayburn, Twin Falls attorneys. She was awarded custody of two minor children and he was ordered to pay $25.00 monthly support for each child.

Council Seeks To Encourage Farm 'Majors'

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, Nov. 9.—Possible ways of increasing more Idaho high school graduates in the farm field of agricultural science were discussed by members of the university of Idaho agricultural consultants council at its annual meeting on the campus this week-end, according to George V. Yost, Emmett.

Representing the state horticultural society, Yost is chairman of the council. Included on the council are representatives of all major farm organizations of the state.

"The council felt that the new agricultural management curriculum, in operation this year for the first time at the university, provides the type of training needed by students going into any of the fields of the big agricultural industry," said Yost. "Too many young men today are of the opinion that training in agriculture means training for a career in some production field. Actually this training opens the door to a wide range of business, industrial and scientific opportunities."

During the council's regular fall meeting the institution's programs in research, extension and teaching were reviewed with Council members. One of the top-priority items in plant facilities is a proposed move of the farm building, barns and accessory buildings to a new location away from the fast-growing main campus. Yost reports the council felt such a shift to be highly desirable.

Members of the council at the meeting, in addition to Chairman Yost, included Carl Irwin, Twin Falls, representing the Idaho Grange; Sherman and Zinnat Blinn, Sacramento, Calif., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clinger.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Campbell left Friday for Missoula, Mont.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Drickell have recently moved from Riverside, Calif., to Great Neck, Long Island, N. Y.

Visit of Official

...SHOSHONE, Nov. 9.—Plans were completed Tuesday at the meeting of Lincoln chapter No. 42, Order of Eastern Star, for the official visit of Mrs. Hope Clemons, Gooding, worthy grand matron. The visit will be made Tuesday in special session of the chapter.

A past matrons luncheon will be served for the honored guest at noon, and she will conduct a school of instructions in the afternoon preceding the meeting. A banquet will be held that night at a local cafe.

Mrs. Arthur Martin, worthy matron, presided at the Tuesday meeting. She introduced T/Sgt. and Mrs. Harold Hatmaker, members of chapter No. 8, Pustatlenfledruck, Germany. He is a past patron of the chapter in Germany.

Invitations were read to attending neighboring chapters during the official visit tour of the worthy grandmaster. They were received from Jerome, Gooding, Buhl and Halley.

Mrs. Ida Stickney and Mrs. Clyde Rapp were appointed additional members to the refreshment committee for the next session.

Following a report on Red Cross work by Mrs. Robert Ferebauer, Mrs. Martin thanked those of the chapter who assisted with the mobile visit.

Sergeant Intmaker showed film from Germany; of the country and of the chapter there. He stated that used clothing sent to orphanages in Germany are taxed so heavily by the German government that it makes them cost almost as much as new Refreshments were served by Mrs. and Mrs. Ray Brown, Mrs. J. E. Potter and Mrs. Dorothy Clayton.

Second String Quarterback Leads Idaho to Win After Howard Willis Is Injured

LOGAN, Utah, Nov. 9 (AP)—A substitute quarterback left the bench and provided the spark which catapulted Idaho to a 35-7 victory over Utah State university Saturday in an intercollegiate football game. Gary Kenworthy, a senior from Spokane, Wash., entered the game for Idaho when star quarterback Howard Willis hurt his hand early in the game. Kenworthy connected on 12 of 16 pass attempts, good for 254 yards, and in the game.

Campbell, Ward Pace Tigers Past Challis

RICHFIELD, Nov. 9.—Paced by the running of Ron Campbell and the quarterbacking of Dallas Ward, the Richfield Tigers stormed past Challis 19-7 here Friday. It gave Richfield an even split in its eight-game schedule. Two untimely fumbles and a penalty kept Challis from scoring.

Sooners March Past Missouri For 39-14 Win

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 9.—Sharp and alert Oklahoma stormed over Missouri 39-14 Saturday to clinch an Orange bowl appearance and assure at least a tie in the state championship.

Coach Bud Wilkinson's Sooners, although offensively the past several weeks, struck for at least one touchdown in each quarter in scoring their 4th consecutive victory.

It was Oklahoma's fifth Big Eight victory this year. The Sooners need only to beat Nebraska in their final game to clinch their 10th undisputed title.

Missouri, which had a 29-0 record in the Big Eight, was defeated 39-14 in a clear-cut victory. The Sooners, who were favored to win, were 10-0 in the Big Eight.

Trailing by only six points at the half, Missouri's inept defense broke down in the third quarter. The Sooners scored three touchdowns in the third quarter.

Curly returned Oklahoma's kickoff 80 yards and a minute later kicked a field goal to make it 17-0. Before the quarter ended, Curly kicked another field goal to make it 24-0.

Stellar Passing By Lee Grosscup Befuddles Cadets

WEST POINT, N.Y., Nov. 9 (AP)—Lee Grosscup, 23, an amazing passer, befuddled the Army defense Saturday. Bob Anderson's superb running and Army's all-around strength proved too much for the Redskins. The Redskins pulled out a 39-33 victory. It was the wildest game in the history of the Army-Navy series.

Careers Day Program Set For Students

WENDELL, Nov. 9.—Some 400 students from six schools are expected to attend Career day activity for Gooding and Camas counties Wednesday at the Wendell high school, reports Arlin J. Rutter, Wendell school superintendent and chairman for the day.

Students from Fairfield, Hagerman, Bliss, Wendell, Gooding and the Gooding state school will attend. The program is under direction of the high school staff and Richard Williams, grade school principal. The Gooding county office of the Idaho employment security agency is cooperating in the activity.

Speakers will include Edward Ray, superintendent of the Idaho Deaf and Blind school, who will discuss teaching the handicapped; Dr. Clarence Moore, Idaho State college and other educators, elementary and high school teaching; Dr. C. L. Jackson, Idaho State college, speech, radio and television, and John A. McDaniel, assistant director of the college's trade and industrial school.

Stere Lamoreaux, IEO Journalism instructor, and Orin Garrett, Fairfield, editor of the Camas County Courier, will speak on Journalism and printing.

Other speakers are the Rev. Ray Thompson, Fairfield Methodist church, church vocations; an Idaho Power company official, engineering; State Police Lt. J. Walker Kirtley, Bliss, and Clark Hand, Twin Falls, and an FBI agent from Twin Falls; law enforcement; Mrs. Ellen Cramble, Gooding, superintendent of nurses; state tuberculosis hospital; Dorothy Duhl, dietitian, Thomas Webb, technician; Dr. H. P. Hollister, Dr. M. E. Schell, Dr. Walter Anderson and Dr. M. V. Klingler, medical profession and health occupations; Dr. Richard Hagerman, Dr. John Church, dentistry, and Dr. John Hama, veterinary medicine.

Other speakers include: Thomas Mahan, Jerome, certified accountant; D. B. Bradshaw, Wendell, advertising and sales; Ross L. Busad, Boise, district sales manager, West Coast Airlines, aviation; Glen E. Cline, Boise, architect; George Wahler, Wendell, banking and clerical; Edward Koester, Oboeing, architecture; R. J. Van Houten, automotive; Probate Judge James P. Gossett, J. Edwin A. Journey and James J. Miller, Twin Falls, forestry, and Orace M. Brown, Idaho State college, Pocatello, counseling.

Armed forces personnel from Twin Falls will give military service guidance in the various branches of service—army, air force, marine corps and navy.

Richard Savage, Pocatello, director of the Idaho State college placement bureau and alumni secretary, will accompany the Idaho State speakers to Wendell as an observer.

Students attending the program will be served lunch at the hot lunch room and at downtown eating establishments.

Joe E. Peters, Boise, counselor of vocational rehabilitation, will hold individual conferences with students who have disabilities that might qualify them for financial assistance in continuing education past high school or in preparing for specific jobs.

LDS Apostle Will Attend Meetings For Local Stake

Elder Marion G. Romney, member of the council of twelve apostles of the LDS church, will attend quarterly conference sessions of the Twin Falls stake next Saturday and Sunday.

The meetings will be held in the stake tabernacle with Stake President P. Lyman Schenk conducting. Elder Romney, who was called to the apostleship in 1951, is a prominent Salt Lake City attorney and has been listed as managing director of the church welfare program since its inception in 1936. He is a native of Mexico where his parents were among the early colonizers sent out by the church.

At the conference sessions, reports will be made of progress in the local organizations, and advice and counsel of matters temporal and spiritual will be given by the visitor from church headquarters.

Hospitals Report Nurse Vacancies

The U. S. civil service commission has announced an examination for filling professional nurse positions in certain federal hospitals and agencies located throughout the U. S. and Alaska, in the Canal Zone and in foreign countries. Salaries range from $2,070 to $8,000 a year. To qualify, applicants must have completed appropriate nursing training and must be registered professional nurses. For positions paying $4,000 and above, registrars responsible professional nursing experience is required.

Further information may be obtained from Agnes A. Sirock, Twin Falls postoffice.

Pump With 400-Horsepower Motor Irrigates Land North of Oakley

Oct Hagerman stands next to the largest pump in Magic Valley, a 400-horsepower motor-driven pump, located on his farm north of Oakley. Most of the pump is his area average 250 horsepower. Hagerman's pump draws over 200 inches of water. This is the first year Hagerman's land has been under cultivation. Trucks and other machinery in background testify to the mechanization of large-scale farming. (Staff photo-engraving)

More Wells Are Changing Desert Wastes Into Farms

In the last decade, large areas of non-productive desert in southwestern Idaho have been transformed into valuable farmland, serving to emphasize the name of Magic Valley. The transformation, achieved through private capital and the initiative and imagination of many people, is still continuing with a large tract being developed in the Oakley district.

The new development presents a striking picture of farm mechanization: Most of the new farms are large, 200 acres and more. To farm such large tracts of land modern machinery is imperative. An observer at most of the new farms north of Oakley can see three or four tractors to a yard, two potato diggers, two combines, two or three pickups — with radios installed and combinations of other new machinery.

The Idaho Power company has helped make this transformation from desert to farmland possible. The company has invested more than $3,500,000 in transmission lines and substations. New substations have sprung up where only jack-rabbits lived weeks before. Existing substations were expanded and modernized.

In fact, Idaho Power has built an average of two new substations a year to keep up with the demand for pumping electricity. Today, there are 15 of these substations ranging in capacity from 25,000 kilowatts to 1,000 kilowatts. They are named Edna, Minner, Arden, Lake Golden Valley, Kroyon, Island, Wilson Butte, North Butte, Orchard Valley, Salmon Falls Creek, Duffin, Clawson and Paul.

The need for power has never ceased. In 1949, there were 1,900 pumps in use. More than 350 new pumps a year have been put into service since then, until now, nearly 5,000 pumps are drawing water up from deep wells. This represents an aggregate of close to 200,000 horsepower.

Since 1947, the company has installed 117,000 feet of transmission lines. These lines, spread out like life-sustaining arteries, total more than 80 miles in length. In addition to the cost of erecting these lines and constructing the substations, Idaho Power must pay for year-round maintenance. The company's continuing investment in the progress of Magic Valley is part of a 200 million dollar investment in developing in the Hells canyon reaches of Snake river. Idaho Power officials point out facilities of all kinds throughout its service area during the 10-year period from 1936 to 1945. This program includes the three of hydroelectric power. Group's Goal Is Adequate Roads In Southwestern Part of County

Local roads to serve the southwestern part of Twin Falls county are being sought by farmers and ranchmen who have formed the Southern Loop-Road association. The group is made up of landowners in the south of Castleford and west of Jerome.

One of the men who formed the Southern Loop-Road association, R. A. Patrick, said the group is an all-weather road association. The group is made up of landowners in the south of Castleford and west of Jerome.

war improvement, road repair and maintenance throughout the southwestern part of the county. Patrick says about 40 miles of roads are involved in the drive to seek improvement, including 32 miles in Twin Falls county and about eight miles in Owyhee county.

He added that Owyhee county commissioners have pledged improvement of the section lying in that county as soon as work starts on the roads in Twin Falls county. Although the roads are used quite extensively, there is no all-weather surface in the area. Patrick points out some 125 ranchers and farmers, including those on the Roseworth tract, are involved.

Other heavy users of roads include in addition, many sportmen use the road west of Rogerson, including deer hunters and sagehen hunters. During the past season, the road had heavy use by fishermen going to the East fork of the Brunner river, Salmon reservoir and Roseworth reservoir. The latter reservoir yielded some of the best catches in the whole region last summer.

Japanese Almost Killed Young Man Who Could Be Next U.S. President

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP) — A Japanese aviator, blacked-out Japanese destroyer, knifing through the darkness in the South Pacific, almost snuffed out the life of the young American torpedo boat skipper who could be the next President of the United States.

His name is John Fitzgerald Kennedy — Democratic senator from Massachusetts.

That night in Blackett Strait, off the enemy-infested Solomon Islands, and the seven perilous days that followed Kennedy's brush with death on Aug. 2, 1943, were enough to leave an imprint on any man. At any rate, war hero Kennedy has spent in a hurry ever since.

Plunging headlong into national politics — courting and winning the most beautiful girl in Washington — dashing off a Pulitzer prize-winning best seller entitled "Profiles in Courage" — crossing the country to speak before serious-minded groups and widely against bobbysoxers.

"It's always in a hurry," says his wife, Jacqueline, better known as "Jackie."

Nationwide polls show him well ahead as the early front runner for the Democratic nomination in 1960. And in recent months he has received such a deluge of publicity that his sides go out of their way to deny he's being given a buildup by one of New York's powerful Madison Avenue publicity mills. "Sometimes we wish we had extra help," says "Jackie," full-time hostess, his legislative assistant on Capitol Hill. "We've had letters from all over the country asking to start Kennedy for President clubs. We have turned them all down."

Interviewed at his Boston apartment overlooking the rear of the old gold-domed Massachusetts statehouse the 40-year-old senator said: "I'm not thinking about 1960. I'm tremendously interested in my senate job and want to stay there."

But political biographies note that Kennedy, widely regarded as a shoo-in for senate reelection, is already running hard even though the senatorial contest is still far away.

JOHN F. KENNEDY

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

"It was a great experience" are the words of both Mr. and Mrs. Ralph King, well-known RICHFIELD residents, who spent the past summer as lookouts at Mosby Butte. Entirely new at the job, they were busy enough not to be lonely in the desolate lava rock and asphaltnite country about 34 miles from AMERICAN FALLS. Things they had to learn included their check occupation, detecting range fires, operation of the above-mentioned radio and communication with other lookouts, methods of checking water and humidity and identification of aircraft.

The Kings soon learned to operate the radio and a telephone was not missed with other means of communication. Learning to conserve water came harder, as all water had to be hauled in from American Falls. A battery stove and utility/replaced electricity.

A room lookout station was built to the south. The center of the room was entirely taken up with various stationary instruments prepared in their work. The center-of-the-clock job kept one of them in this room most of the day, as it was a necessary vantage point.

Many visitors relieved the Kings of the strain from what could have been a monotonous life. Nearby families, county agents, curious residents of close towns, relatives, and friends, looked on from the rim of the hill, all were made welcome by the friendly Kings.

"Highlights" of the week were the Monday morning visit to American Falls for groceries and water. In the afternoon, looking from NORTON, KIMMEL, and CHINIS. BREAK were alerted. The Kings were connected with three officers. SHOSHONE, SULLY, and IDAHO. FALLS. Messages also relayed to PINA-T, MOUNTAIN, BALD MOUNTAIN, SQUAW BUTTE, and SCHAEFFER BUTTE. A daily radio report was made to BOISE.

"The summer was not, without some harrowing incidents. Mrs. King will long remember the rat that jumped in her lap and right out again. "He didn't leave a hole in the cloth," she recalled. The rats were continually being chased by the Kings' dog, and this time King's dog and the dog were close together. The frightened rat that it misook Mrs. King's lap for a haven.

Another time the couple found a rattlesnake caught in a rat trap they had set the night before. This seven rattles were in the snake's collection.

The Kings were impressed by, but did not appreciate, the swarms of flying ants encountered during the summer. Windy days kept them under control. Coyotes and rabbits were night companions in the Mosby butte. A coyote seemed could be depended on during the early morning hours, just before daylight.

King often hunted jackrabbits in the evenings, walking down the butte road. He saw many jackrabbits, some cottontails and a rare type of pigmy rabbit which is found only in that part of Idaho and some parts of Nevada. The pigmy rabbit is brown in color, has cotton tail, and runs smoothly without the usual flop.

King, who has spent most of his life in construction work, came to RICHFIELD in 1939 after living in parts of Utah and WYOMING. He farmed near RICHFIELD, later selling the

The bureau of land management and the forest service, Patrick pointed out the road provided the only access to the Pole creek and Jarbridge ranger stations. The stations are located in the Humboldt national forest which maintains headquarters in Boise.

The two government agencies would consider heavy equipment over the road, which really churning up the road, which was wet.

Only last Wednesday, five heavy trucks came over the Three Creek-Rogerson road with loads of cattle for market. Patrick, who followed the trucks, said, "They really churned up the road, which was wet."

He recalls that 20 years ago the CCC—terrible—conservation—corps—made some extensive changes in the road. It was surveyed and changed somewhat to eliminate curves. A few miles were added.

"The road" seven or eight years ago, a light coat of gravel was put on the road from Cedar creek to Jarbridge creek. However, poor, local gravel was used and it was pushed down into the mud when the road was wet.

Only minimum maintenance work was done on the road for years. Patrick says. Graders are sent over the Rogerson-Three Creek road about twice a year to smooth out the rut. He said two graders started out from Jarbridge headed south, but they had their blades in the air most of the way. Graders operators tried to provide grades for low spots in the road, but the graders became stuck as soon as they left the roadway.

"We would like to see the road graded from Rogerson west to the Twin Falls county line," Patrick said. "And from Rogerson to the Rogerson-Three Creek road, we'd like to see the road at least graded and gravelled."

The Lilly grade should be widened to provide for two-way traffic, Patrick said. He noted that all the produce from the 5,000-acre tract is hauled to market over the narrow road. He also said members of the association would ask elimination of the hairpin turn on the west side of Salmon-Pole creek.

Lilly grade, that portion of the road on the east side of Salmon-Pole creek, is located in the Ruhl highway district, says Patrick. The creek is the dividing line between the Ruhl and Twin Falls highway districts. Except for the eight miles of road in Oneida county, the road is in Oneida county.

Rena and Rena are inseparable companions, but Randy, the lone wolf, occasionally condescends to join them in "playing house," and they join him in cowboy play. Singing is enjoyed by all three, with the horses and tuna picked up from breaking scores. All have good singing voices.

Weeks ago he won a standing ovation when he addressed a Democratic rally in Jackson, Miss., a hub of pro-segregation sentiment, and boldly reaffirmed his acceptance of the supreme court decision.

As for his Catholicism, Kennedy declined to say in an interview whether he thought it would be a hindrance to the presidency.

"I think it would be a mistake for a Catholic to comment," he said. "Some months ago, in a less recent mood, he said: 'People are more interested in a man's religion than his religious convictions.'"

"Though a son of a great mother, Kennedy lives a fairly frugal life. In Washington, he avoids the cocktail circuit.

Kennedy rarely smokes or drinks. He likes to quote Artemus Ward's crack: 'I am not a politician, and my other habits are good also.' He seldom carries more than a couple of dollars, often has to borrow cab fare, and insists that his wife runs their Washington home.

In suburban Georgetown, a district of the road mileage is part of the Twin Falls highway district, he adds.

Besides Patrick, organizers of the road to seek improvement of the roads include Curtis Eaton, Twin Falls; Roy Brashett, Three Creek; and Piler; J. H. Shilds, Jr., Ruhl; L. A. Schell, Rogerson; Theo. within his $22,500-a-year salary salary. He drove a 1954 Buick. His Vassar-educated wife, the green-eyed, dark-haired beauty, met Kennedy as a Washington Times Herald "inquiring photographer." Married in 1953, they had their first child by premature birth in August, 1956. They are expecting a baby early in December.

Rescued with 10 other survivors after a deadly week-long game of hide-and-seek with the Japanese, Kennedy won a navy citation for his heroic conduct.

"Today he says his back is stronger than ever after a spine-tuning operation in 1954 which kept him away from the senate for eight months."

He incurred a troublesome spine injury in World War II when the Japanese destroyer sliced through the crew were killed.

Gun Fancier Specializes in Collecting Lever Action Rifles

C. J. Ross, route 1, Twin Falls, kneels beside a part of his collection of lever action Winchester rifles. He holds a model 1885 and a model 1895 which are, in "mint" condition. The wood in the stock and forearm of the two prize specimens is beautifully grained. All of the guns in his collection are in working order and all have been fired by Ross. (Staff photo-photomicrograph)

Lever-Action Rifle Collection Started Six Years Ago One of Finest in State

Just everyone interested in guns now numbers over 80, is in workable condition and has been fired in a collection six years ago C. J. Ross. He does not collect rifles indiscriminately or just to amaze an arsenal of sporting rifles but to have one of the finest collections of lever action Winchester rifles in Idaho.

Ross in his collection of rifles he uses his rifles in teaching gun handling and safety to members of a junior rifle club of which he is adviser. Rifles in his collection include the famous Winchester 73 and the rare 76. In addition to his lever action rifles he has several Colt revolvers and equipment for reloading cartridges for all his guns.

Asked how he got started collecting he said, "I have always been interested in guns and hunting since I was a small boy. A few years ago I began to collect lever action Winchester rifles. The history of old guns connected with the West is an interesting field and the Winchester is particularly known as the gun that won the West."

While Ross does not hunt he brings to Winchester, he owns several old Remington single shot falling block models, including a 45-00 "old reliable". He also has modern bolt action sporting rifles for his hunting and three shotguns.

His collection starts with the 1885 model Winchester and includes all models down to the present ones manufactured. Included in the collection are a 45-00 model 76-00 Winchester which was at one time the official rifle of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The gun had a London, England, arsenal mark stamped on the slide.

Among his model 1895 rifles is a 463 Winchester, sometimes referred to as the "Reddy Hunter" because it was "Reddy's" favorite which he used on his African hunting trip. Only a few years ago Ross received a 465 model 1895, the world's record brown bear. The record has since fallen to Roy Lantry who also used a Winchester.

Boss has most all calibers in the famous 73 rifle, which includes the 44-40; 38-40; 32-20 and the 22. Recently Ross acquired from the estate of a Twin Falls collector several guns which are in top notch condition. Some had never been fired. The wood and workmanship on the guns is not done today unless the purchaser orders a custom job.

Asked what rifle he would purchase and use for hunting if he could only afford one, he immediately answered, "The 30-06." He said, "It is the best all-around gun for hunting. You have a wide choice of bullets in grain weight, from the 110 to the 220 in factory ammunition, you can always buy shells for it and for the average one hunting trip a year, man, it is big and powerful enough to kill any game found in North America."

He further explained that the average hunter is not a crack shot and by using a 30-06 he is reasonably sure of knocking down and killing game with a 30-06.

Boss favors modern bolt action, powered rifles for his deer and elk hunting. However, when on any hunt he always takes two guns along. His reason is sound as he explained, "Say a man is on an elk hunt. He has invested considerable money and time and has traveled many miles. More than likely he has set up camp in some remote spot. Should he have just one gun with him and it develops a malfunction his hunting trip is ruined. However, if he has an extra or spare gun at his camp he has only to walk back and get it and go on hunting."

His modern rifles include a 300 Weatherby magnum, a custom made 30-06 and a lever action Winchester 348. For bird and pleasant shooting he has Browning 16 and 12 gauge semi-automatics and a 12 gauge Winchester magnum.

times the case has been removed and traveling chairman for the section of Indian artifacts including source of the powder and make and (100).

In addition to being adviser to a local rifle club, he is Scoutmaster for the local rifle club. He is also a member of the Scout troop which is the land rearing.

A special office for his trophy, a record has been set up in a small building on the right of the road. He has many books on the history of the lever action gun. That is not in his collection.

Local Amateur Radio Operator Listens for Sputnik II

F. A. Robinson, Jr., 348 Third Lake boulevard, waits patiently for Sputnik II to produce radio signals which can be placed on tape. Robinson was one of the first amateur radio operators to receive the beeping sounds made by the first Russian earth-circling satellite. Ham operators throughout the United States unofficially added to the excitement by listening for the satellite in which his available, portable (hand-pumped) receiver

Local Man Has Recording of First Red Satellite, Listening Now for Sputnik II

Two days after Russia's Sputnik I, a Twin Falls amateur radio operator had the steady "beep, beep, beep" on tape and was comparing his recordings with other "hams" throughout the country.

Listening of 30,000 megacycles the afternoon of Sunday, Oct. 6, F. A. Robinson, Jr., 348 Blue Lakes boulevard north, made the first known recording in Twin Falls of the satellite pulse. A playback of the recording today gives the listener a strange feeling which Robinson must have sensed when he first heard the faint pulsation.

Robinson's recordings are from 10 to 15 minutes duration. Almost from a silent nowhere the weak audible beeps come from the tape recording. Gradually the faint but steady noise continues and with each beep the intensity becomes greater until a peak is reached and the listener feels a buzziness of the Russian invention. Afterwards the intensity declines and the beeps finally fade out.

Although Robinson was one of the first to make a recording of Sputnik I, he has only one of the thousands of amateur radio operators throughout the country who heard the noise. Ham operators across the United States collected and forwarded data through channels which eventually aided in establishing the exact orbit of the Earth-circling satellite.

Robinson, who is president of the Magic Valley Radio Amateurs club, says he has not been so successful with Russia's dog-carrying Sputnik II. Thursday morning he waited by his radio for the audible approach of the man-made gadget. As time grew closer for Sputnik II to make its approach, Robinson twisted dial along the band where he expected to hear the new sounds. For all his efforts and time spent waiting, he heard nothing identifiable with the satellite. Finally he gave up trying to hear it and rushed outside just in time to see the Russian-created moon pass over the horizon.

In Twin Falls there are approximately 10 active ham operators, Robinson says. Not all have receivers with a frequency which will pick up the satellite's pulsations. Robinson says the average household radio receiver does not cover the frequency on which the beeping sound could be heard. Even if it did, listeners could no longer hear Sputnik I since its radio equipment evidently has used up its power.

Although data collected by hams was used by the government in tracking Sputniks, the work was all unofficial. Amateur operators, however, have been commissioned to assist the government in its own satellite program. At least one amateur in the Twin Falls area has received instructions to help track this country's artificial moon once it has been placed into an Earth-circling orbit, Robinson says.

Listening to Sputniks is but one of the pleasures of being a ham operator. Long before Sputniks there were more than 100,000 amateur radio operators in the United States, all licensed by the federal communications commission.

Each operator has a separate set of call letters. Robinson's call letters in Twin Falls are WINTQ. Robinson, who is an industrial salesman, has been a licensed amateur operator since 1946.

There is no age limit for hams. Robinson says there is one operator on the air who is 72 years old. He says several amateurs are blind and there is at least one ham in Twin Falls who is deaf.

Falls who operates by Morse code to maintain contact with his children who are hams in other areas. Ham equipment ranges from simple homemade outfits to expensive commercial sets. Robinson says not all homemade outfits are necessarily simple or inexpensive.

One ham in Idaho has built an elaborate station and even the microphone is home built.

Amateurs have networks in different sections of the country. Robinson is local manager of the farm and emergency network which includes about 62 stations located throughout the major portion of the Northwest. Daily the net is opened during early evening and messages are dispersed and relayed from station to station.

In Twin Falls the local ham club has headquarters on the third floor of the old hospital building. The club consists of 23 enrolled members and a class of 14 new hams is being instructed. Robinson says purpose of the club is to further the interest in amateur radio.

Robinson says there have been occasions when ham operators were the only source of communication in a disaster area. He notes there are several emergency networks throughout the country and Idaho has a civil defense network. In event of war a network called HACES will be the only hams permitted to operate. Operating by call and dot location will group would relay messages to areas where other means of communication might have been destroyed.

Spring Feeds Enlarged Hagerman Hatchery

Tucker springs is one of two sources of water available to the state fish hatchery at Hagerman, which is being expanded. Recent improvements include housing a small spring at upper left for domestic use, new and improved pipelines from the main spring to hatchery and two-way hookup to provide emergency switch-over in case something impairs one of the systems or one water supply fails. The other source of water is Riley creek. (Idaho fish and game department photo—staff engraving)

Pouring concrete for new raceways at the Hagerman state fish hatchery is a big project. Two new double units are being built at the station which provides more than 100,000 pounds of trout annually for southern, central and northern Idaho waters. Each of the units will be 400 feet long and 30 feet wide. (Fish and game department photo—staff engraving)

Two New Pairs of Raceways Are About Ready for Use at Hagerman Hatchery

By RUTH RHODENBAUGH
(Idaho fish and game department)

Nearly ready to go into operation are two new pairs of raceways at the Hagerman fish hatchery, which supplies legal size trout throughout Idaho every summer.

These are the first of five pairs of new raceways to be built at the hatchery to increase production and partly to add security and efficiency to the operation. Each pair is 600 feet long and 30 feet wide, with concrete walls and good gravel bottoms. Meanwhile, 10 old earth-banked raceways will be converted like the new units, safeguarding production and making removal of fish easier for the staff and safer for the fish.

For this, the department's improvement supervisor is in charge of the project which also has rearranged the hatchery's water system, supplying almost two-way hook-up so that if something should happen to one, water would still be available by another. This system also will allow switching back and forth between Tucker springs and Riley creek as sources of supply, as a safety measure. In addition, a smaller side spring has been added to furnish water to the station's drillings, and to the hatchery's cold storage system where fish feed is processed and stored.

These changes are a part of the improvement program planned for many years for Idaho's largest fish hatchery, which this year supplied approximately 133,000 pounds of trout to Idaho fishing waters. The hatchery is located adjacent to the 700-acre Hagerman wildlife management area in Gooding county, and occupies a 35-acre tract withdrawn from the original management area project. It lies in the popular-lined Snake river canyon, between the river and the lava-rock canyon wall.

The Hagerman hatchery is known throughout the West for its abundance of excellent trout water, and its heavy production of trout. Last year alone, the hatchery's recreational features that have been developed for the hatchery area and the adjacent wildlife management area. Much water development and habitat improvement planning have been going through the years since the shorter, water temperature less favorable and food conditions varied in quantity and quality. Hatchery fish now get an improved dry diet in pellet form, furnishing a better and more complete diet, fortified with vitamins and other special elements.

The total fish production of the state fish hatcheries has increased gradually each year until it is nearing the half million pound mark, and Hagerman has been a leader in this advance. The new ponds and improved water system are part of a program to safeguard trout raising and place this heavy production on a firm foundation, as well as to allow for some increase.

The hatchery staff, under the direction of Supt. Elwood Grimes, has a big job in addition to working with the fish from the egg stage until they are grown to catchable size, they also take care of the hatchery buildings and grounds, load up the big transport tankers with water, ice and fish during the planting season, and keep up the constant experiments and studies on medicines, diets and other welfare factors that are necessary for fish living under the crowded conditions that are normal in hatcheries.

From Hagerman, as from the other production stations, the fish are hauled to distribution points from which field personnel take them in smaller lots and release them in designated lakes and streams. These fish are six or more inches in length when they are released. The optimum feed, water and habitat conditions, summer enable even rather infertile waters to support them. The fish are released to be caught, and not primarily to carry over the winter, as winter conditions usually are the reason why the natural reproduction is unable to maintain high populations.

Nevertheless, the fisheries division continuously finds evidence that many of these fish do survive during winter. In some cases of understocked waters such as new or unpopulated impoundments they have shown vigorous growth over the winter and surprised everybody with their size and quality the next spring. In ordinary waters where winter conditions keep the populations low, they cannot survive any better than the remnant of wild fish.

The improvements being installed at Hagerman are a part of an overall statewide program to bring the hatchery installations to the peak of their production. The Mackay, Sage, Clark Fork and Shoshone hatcheries also have received major improvements in recent years, and others are planned for the future.
