Teacher Union President Hits Federal Educational Program in T.F. Address

The president of the AFL-CIO American Federation of Teachers Saturday night blasted the national administration's educational program and declared America's educational deficiencies begin at the local level. Addressing 70 persons attending the closing dinner of the seventh annual convention of the Idaho Federation of Teachers in the Turf club, Carl J. Megel, Chicago, declared, "America and its leaders are... educationally confused at the national, state and local levels. The national administration appears to be contemplating a spending program to catch up with Russia by launching a space moon, but it is not providing for the expansion of education to produce candidates for better scientific and technical jobs."

Officials Here for Teacher Union Convention

Megel charged the administration with keeping the genius of Charles A. Lindbergh and Robert Oppenheimer under wraps for "obscure political reasons." He said the desperate for men of their kind. Descending to the local level, Megel said, "Theories of education are operating with timidity and lack of vision. They have not faced up to the problems of school construction, modernization of curriculum, for salaries and working conditions that will keep and attract qualified teachers."

Pointing to Idaho he said, "This is especially true in Idaho, a state which ranks 26th in per capita income, but 20th in the amount of money spent for education. Teachers' salary are from $400 to $1,000 a year lower in Idaho than in any of the six states bordering it, and they are far less than enough to attract enough qualified teachers in adjoining states."

Concluding his speech, Megel said state funds are "very inadequate" in nearly all states and that the lack of state attention to education works to the advantage of U.S. enemies.

Our political and education leaders are not doing their job. Education has always been and always will be the base of civilization and our nation's strength. The union president declared.

During the day-long session three Twin Falls high school teachers were elected to state offices in the Idaho federation. They are Don Trubing, shop teacher, who will replace Mrs. Helen Baker, Pocatello, president; Louis Schreyer, English teacher, elected recording secretary, and Rex Olson, biology teacher, elected treasurer.

Robbers Hit Bank In Richfield, Miss Attempt at $20,000

RICHFIELD, Nov. 16—An apparently skilled team of bank robbers burglarized the Richfield branch of the Bank of Idaho between 8 p.m. Friday and opening time Saturday, making off with $118,677 in cash but failing in an attempt to get between $20,000 and $25,000 from the vault safe. A four-hour investigation of the burglary was being pressed Saturday but authorities gave no indication whether they had any suspects or important clues.

The FBI, Lincoln county sheriff's office and local police are working on the case.

Glenn Heidreich, manager of the bank, said he discovered the burglary when he arrived at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, said the burglars entered the bank through an air-vent in the ceiling.

They had entered an empty room in the bank building, which adjoined the bank itself, by cutting through a window from the sidewalk.

They entered the room, which either brought a step ladder, with them or found one in the room, authorities have not yet determined which.

They climbed the ladder, pried loose an air vent near the ceiling, broke in and then searched through the vault hole into an attic space. They crawled across the bank ceiling vent and went through the ceiling.

First Violator Of Gas Law Is Fined in Court

The first violator of the city's gas ordinance to appear in Twin Falls police court was fined $20 and $5 costs Friday for unlawfully turning on gas without an inspector's certificate.

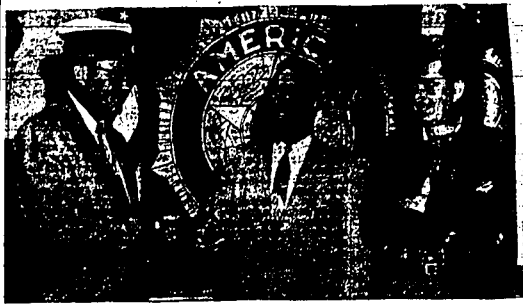

Joe Kiepp, 49, Piller avenue west, was charged with "willfully and unlawfully turning on gas in certain duplex apartments located on Shoup avenue west" without a certificate from the city inspector. The complaint was signed by Carl F. Scherle, city gas inspector.

Kiepp was charged with violation of section 4, subsection "a" of ordinance 1003. The ordinance was passed earlier in the year by the city commission.

Among other things the action violated states: "It shall be unlawful for any gas company or utility furnishing gas to set or cause to be set or connected, any gas meter or other device, without the certificate of inspection has been given."

The ordinance Judge J. O. Humphrey could have been more severe with the ordinance violator. The ordinance provides that: "Any person, firm, corporation or partnership who violates or permits any violation of the provisions of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not to exceed $100 and imprisonment in the city jail not exceeding 30 days."

One-Time Leading Artist of Records Coming Back Now

Entertainers who slip from their popularity peak do not "fade" as you would expect. At least this is not the case with Gene Austin, once upon a time recording artist and song composer who opened an eight day engagement Saturday night at the Shoup club.

For six years, from 1924 to 1930, Austin's Victor records sold more copies than those of any other performer. By the end of 1930 some 85 million copies of his records had been sold, a mark unbroken today. His recording of "My Blue Heaven" alone sold over 7 million copies.

But for 25 years Austin now is dropped out of the limelight entirely. His only contact with show business was in the promotional end and some nightclub work.

Now he is "coming back." Just recently on the Red Bullwin show he played a piano and sang some of his songs, familiar tunes like "My Blue Heaven" and "My Blue Heaven."

RCA Victor has just released an album of new songs sung by Austin called "My Blue Heaven." Austin is enthusiastic about the album. He wrote most of the songs and arranged all of them to suit his style. He still possesses a fine tenor voice. Interviewed here Saturday, Austin said of plans for a movie depicting his life story. He said it was hoped that the picture would be as successful as "The John Birch" film.

To attend the meeting along with two University of Idaho researchers are Bert Barlow, Hazelton, and Melvin Oppinger, Huhl.

In general Barlow said bean research is going forward in "three broad areas. They are agronomy—breeding of improved varieties, problems of diseases and cultural practices; marketing—storage, transportation, control of quality and processing; and utilization—basic composition studies, chemical reactions, improved cooking methods and new and different uses."

This work is being carried on by Cornell University, New York; Michigan state university; University of Idaho; University of California and Stanford Research Institute as well.

Versatile Bruin Senior Is Only Unanimous Choice of South Idaho Sports Editors

A speedy Twin Falls halfback who can play either halfback or fullback is the top choice of the South Idaho sports editors in the conference cities for a first team which was dominated by Pocatello, Caldwell and Idaho Falls failed to place a single man on the first team.

League champion Pocatello conference teams in the number one place on the list of the all-star list of string. The editors placed four men on the line, Nampa and Boise each had three, and the only Twin Falls player was named as the first team.

The 170-pound speedster was the only one from the Twin Falls team who had scored in conference games. He ended the season with 60 yards in rushing, despite being injured with an injury during the last game of the season.

Leading on the backfield were Mike Morris of Nampa, who was named as the first team player in the backfield, and Dave Davis, and Dawson Davis, a junior at Boise High School.

The game was played at the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, and the Dodgers' manager, Walter O'Malley, was quoted as saying that the team was "shocked" by the loss.

BOISE, Nov. 16 (AP)—Officials of the Big Six conference have decided to allow a double count in the scoring of football games.

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 16 (AP)—Rice's offense combined a mighty defense with the fancy work of two senior quarterbacks, Frank Ryan and King Hill, to upset Texas A and M 15-14 in the 20-year line before yielding the Aggie's score on the second play of the final period and take a 7-0 victory.

The difference in the score was the extra point kicked by Hill. The conversion attempt by Lloyd Taylor, Aggie halfback, was wide.

It was the first defeat for Texas A and M in 15 years and the last defeat of the Aggies at least immediate claim to the Southwest conference championship. Rice and Texas A and M are now in a showdown race in the final two weeks of the college season.

Teaches Hobbies

Wayne Klous, Filer high school teacher, has discovered the arts and crafts he teaches are popular subjects. Among his "subjects" are ceramics, leather-tooling and photography. Some of his ceramics are displayed on tables as he works on another project. (Filer photographer, class photo—staff engraving)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Hobbies for future pleasure are taught in the FILER high school by Wayne Klous in his arts and crafts class. The classes have been popular with students and are given to sophomores, juniors and seniors. In ceramics, Klous teaches modeling, trim and painting of cast articles and the use of different types of clay and glazes. All the ceramics are painted and fired in the art department. Many former students continue on with this work as a hobby.

Leather work is also taught and for service. Located on the main floor, it is accessible to ambulatory patients and visitors and will be open at all times for those seeking spiritual sanctuary.

All of the furnishings have been donated by individuals and organizations. The chapel has pale green walls and harmonizing draperies. The beige and brown tweed carpet, and 24 solid maple captain's chairs were purchased with money collected by youth of Canyon county for its tuberculosis organization.

Altar vessels were a gift of Henry McKinley, Gooding, resident and a patient at the hospital. Cahoon Construction company, contractor for the building, built and donated the altar and Mrs. Al Wilma, Gooding, furnished the wine red altar carpet.

A spinet piano was made available to the chapel through the tuberculosis hospital in Gooding. Funeral fund has been completed and is ready likely to explode, says Dr. Henry Hatter, they would be torn apart. Pieces of Sputnik or its rocket, even its rocket engine, could come smacking to Earth, not completely burned or evaporated by the intense heat.

Death Watch Is Started for First Satellite

One Russian scientist says the rocket is not made of aluminum, but of a strong material (not defined) which probably will not burn completely. There is a possibility some of it would reach Earth. It is man-made moon, weighing about 21 pounds and containing miniature instruments inside a thin shell, likely will turn to dust completely. The carrier rocket could fall to Earth.

As a Columbus of space, Sputnik is doomed to fiery death. No living thing about it could survive such a hot ball of return.

But even in death, Sputnik can provide highly useful knowledge. If it is accurately tracked in its final plunge, it can tell us much about the heights where our air begins to thin out, and just how much.

That would help in engineering safe return some day of human space-traveling rockets. How and where do they need to be slowed down—with rocket brakes probably—or what angle of approach must they take, to enter the dense atmosphere without heating to temperatures beyond human endurance.

Sputnik the first is a first book of knowledge in its life and death.

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 16 (AP)—Forest Burns has assumed his duties as a forest fire lookout at a fire tower in Marquette county.

Matching wine red velvet altar cloths trimmed with gold fringe were made by the occupational therapy department. Other donations include a large Bible, given by Earl Whispy, Gooding, and pictures which were gifts of the Thompson Furniture company and Mrs. Elven Cramblin, superintendent of courses.

Early Catholic mass will be held each Sunday, followed by Protestant service at which Gooding ministers will alternate in officiating.

AS YOUR MINISTER 'SEES IT

BY B. F. CROW

Pastor, First Baptist Church

"But we're in the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you," Matt. 6:33.

With the launching of Sputnik I, followed by Sputnik II, a wave of fear was started. Politicians fearing reelection, citizens fearful of destruction, scientists seeking recognition, have all united in condemning our government for letting Russia get ahead in the supposed "space race."

There may be many reasons behind the scene for our failure to keep the lead in rocket development.

However, the head of the Russian program has a finger on the pulse of the American people for their luxuries.

The fact is that the American public has been crying for lower taxes and lower governmental expenditures regardless of conditions of national defense. We really have been "killing" our own defense program by our national security just to increase our opportunity to enjoy a few more luxuries.

We have known ever since the end of World War II that we have been facing a ruthless opponent in Russia. In particular, and in communism in general, the communists' ambition to conquer the world has been plainly stated and menacingly exhibited on all fronts, yet, blindly we have refused to face the challenge until the circling satellites have forced us to do so.

Now we clearly are the choice we can have either increasing luxuries—or an adequate national defense—we probably cannot enjoy both. If we put the emphasis upon the luxuries, we will not have either for very long.

As Kipling put it "You pay your money and take your choice," we have to choose one or the other, and the time to decide is running out.

This is a sad reality, facing us in our spiritual world, too. Jesus stated this succinctly when he admonished men to "... seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and his righteousness."

The choice he gave to men was living for time or for eternity, living for self or for God. We can choose either one, but we cannot have both. Today the national choice of luxuries or preparedness, and the performance of national defense, are remarkably parallel lines. The man who lives only for time and for himself is all too likely to choose to enjoy luxury for a season. The man who lives for eternity and for God is forced to choose the Jesus way and think of future generations as well as of himself.

One course will lead to the destruction of our nation, the other leads to the preservation of our nation as the world citadel of opportunity, freedom and hope.

May God give us the wisdom to choose preparedness instead of the passing pleasures of luxuries. May God give us the vision to choose His Kingdom and His righteousness as well.

Treatment for Colds Is Staying Just About Same

BY EDWIN F. NEWMAN, M. D.
(WYATT FOR NEA SERVICE)

The season of influenza is here again. Said to relate, in spite of all our precautions, to the fact that on the average we shall probably have many colds this year as last, treatment of them has not undergone any remarkable improvement.

An interesting discussion of the influenza virus has been recently mentioned out that the latest average shows that four to four colds per person annually are the average. This is at least partially accounted for by the fact that a cold for three days, that could mean for it, a billion days of trouble for the world. In the year, besides the personal misery, there is a big economic loss.

A number of facts are known about the common cold. It is probably caused by a virus of which there are many strains.

So far they have been shown to attack only human beings and the chimpanzee.

Infection stimulates the body to resist further invasion only a little. Volunteers who have had one cold were given the same virus preparation a second time. They were given of resistance for two weeks but not for three.

When volunteers were inoculated with material containing the virus, only about half developed colds. The incubation period—time it takes between placing the material in the nose and the development of the

Another curious result of a study of colds with volunteers has been that transmission of the colds from the volunteers to normal persons living in close contact did not take place.

Old Switchboard Being Dismantled as Present Units Used Only for Long Distance Calls From Magic Valley

The local and long distance switchboard portions in the old Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company building here stand empty following the change to a dial system. Employees of Western Electric company have started dismantling the boards for shipment to Boise.

They will be checked and any repairs made before being sent to areas that have not been converted to the dial system. Most of the operators formerly employed on the old switchboard are now employed on the new toll board and as special operators. (Staff photo-enlarging) have been given operator privileges. These are persons who are blind, have astigmatism or because of illness are unable to dial. These persons are carried on a special dial and dial a special operator who then dials the number they desire.

As part of the program to acquaint Magic Valley telephone customers with the new system, some personal visits by company operators were made to homes to demonstrate the operation of the dial and answer questions.

In the event a customer's name and number have been omitted from the directory the information will be supplied callers by a special operator. Where two customers were given the same number, the company supplies each with a new number if it is practical.

number is listed incorrectly the listed number is assigned to him if possible. One case of a number being too similar to a "service" number resulted in a change for the customer. The telephone company's "time of day service," which gives the correct time when dialed, is now being used in the extension dial. It is directed automatically to an intercept operator. While the majority of operators are employed on the toll or long distance switchboard in the new system, many special operators are on duty.

The old switchboard, located in the old telephone building on the second floor, is being dismantled by a work crew from Western Electric. The equipment will be moved to Boise where it will be repaired. A part of the equipment may be sent to areas using operator-type equipment. The room on the first floor below the old switchboard will be converted to business offices as soon as the Main frames and equipment are dismantled.

The new toll board and operators are located on the second floor of the newly constructed building directly behind the old building. An open house at the new telephone building has been planned for late in November, Reynolds said.

Many Slips Found Between Theory and Practice of Waterfowling, He Learns

By DION HENDERSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

There's a slip, as most any veteran duck hunter knows and wishes he didn't, between the theory and practice of waterfowling.

As last count there were roughly 232,514 licensed duck hunters in the U.S. and after a day or two in a blind on a good hunting spot, you might be forgiven if you guessed that they all were or had been, at least, carefully retrained.

"Except this and me, of course," he said. "I won't be long before it'll be too bad about me."

Waterfowling is one of those ancient and time-honored sports where if the tradition were weighed on the same scale as the necessary equipment, hunters who dropped off a boat and fell out of their boat would have to be fished up by a sea-going dredge.

In other words, the waterfowl kick has got red claws, like bird dogs or trout fishing. That is, in theory.

In practice, however, duck hunting is another thing, the novice at practice, particularly if he is well schooled in theory, should be assured that duck hunting has not really attracted all the novice who are alleged outdoors without keepers. It only seems that way, once in a while.

Consider, for instance, these items noted during one sufferer's day in a blind built upon a justly named duck hunting area.

It is an hour before dawn, and dark as the moose are to be bad fishermen by fly fishermen. The marsh quita from the subdued clicking and amuffled explosion of hunters getting themselves arranged under cover. The gentle quacking of hundreds of ducks in puddle and weed rooms. Then it is a minute before shooting time, and the humane pre-dawn alarm is shattered by a hideous yowl. By the time every duck within 10 miles has sprung to the air and headed for the Gulf of Mexico, it is determined that the screaming is not really a mislaid spunk. No, it seems that one hunter, not having a trained retriever dog handy, borrowed a neighbor's hound for the occasion.

There was a time, according to theory, when such a practice would have rendered a man unrecognizable and unsafe—at his community peace supper for some years.

Quiet comes again, eventually. A trio of visiting mallards arrives by high, looking at your decoys. You putter invitingly on your duck call and they turn in. You keep silent and they set their wings. Then a guy who has allowed for a nap so far away from your blind pops up and blows away. He does not, but the duck, but he fatally misjudges the duck, and the duck falls. A wound five of your hand-made cork decoys.

Time was, a fellow like that would quickly leave town, and his relatives would tell acquaintances amiably that he was dead.

Presently, in practice, the sun is up. A single of three works its way down the marsh. These are the best game—the prize line, the fall shot, the later muller—the fall shot. Everyone is miraculously silent. The breeze comes lower. You see the clear mark of the cold eye of the lead range. Then a ninety full 100 yards behind you stands up and blows away. When the geese have flared up and away, unthought, he says out.

From a wood duck, naturally.

"You were right," he says. "A wood duck." And throws the bright cascade carelessly into the weeds.

Once upon a time, this fellow would not have spoken thusly. He would have sought out a constable and confessed that he was robbing a "Pittsburgh" porty at the time, and thus couldn't possibly have done such a thing as shoot a wood duck.

Or he might have expected a mercy little bank of fraternity brother dressed in pillowslaps to call upon him in the evening with a bucket of hot napalm skin bracer, and a few selected feathers.
