WASHINGTON—Numerous practical and possibly insurmountable difficulties beset the Eisenhower-Dulles program for formation of a grand anti-communist alliance. The program, which would limit the freedom of movement of NATO into a more powerful bulwark against a Russian invasion of western Europe.

These difficulties were discussed in preliminary conversations on the scope of the anti-communist alliance conference on Dec. 18, which Vice President Nixon and Secretary Dulles attended. The conference was held at the Eisenhower residence, there have been extensive talks in Washington, London and Paris.

As a result of these exchanges, it is probable that no detailed decision will be reached at the top-level conference in the French capital. It is expected that the heads of the 15 states will frame a broad program, and leave writing of the actual blueprint to experts in the fields of war and peace.

The program will be submitted to another meeting. And that final assembly of presidents and prime ministers will be held in the near future. It is a question that will be decided at the time.

Observatory's Head Is Leader

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 3.—In a square brick building here, a young man with a friendly smile and a head full of ideas is leading a team of astronomers in the study of the stars.

This man who was so interested in his job that he returned for a second year of study at the observatory, is Fred L. Whipple, director of the observatory.

Whipple, just 34, has made a name for himself in the field of astronomy. He is a member of the American Academy of Sciences and the National Academy of Sciences.

INADEQUATE DRIVER TRAINING

If a factory or an office is being operated inefficiently, you can't necessarily remedy the trouble by installing a new boss or a new system. The problem may be that time, like sleep in the habits of the ordinary working man.

Bad habits, once established, are hard to eradicate. And it's the same in driving an automobile. That's why it makes such good sense to "get 'em young" in teach driving courses.

It is the theory that lies behind driving courses in high school. Sound habits become fixed before bad ones can develop and take out onto the streets and highways with a better prospect of avoiding an accident.

Unhappily, the theory has not been put into practice nearly as widely as it should. This year about 40 per cent of all the nation's high school students eligible for such training will actually receive reasonable complete instruction. The other 60 per cent will get insufficient training or none.

Only Michigan and Montana require that 16 and 17-year-olds seeking a driver's license must first pass a driver education course. Altogether, just 12 of the 48 states rate training programs vital enough to merit financial aid to the schools for that purpose.

But the nation's 21,000 high schools, about 60 per cent, with some 100,000 students involved, offer driving instruction. Offhand this sounds fairly impressive. But too many give guidance only on a minimum classroom basis without actual experience. Safety experts consider such instruction inadequate.

Surveys indicate that automobile dealers, automobile clubs, insurance firms and numerous organizations from the National Safety Council on down do their part admirably.

That driver training programs are not universally required in U. S. high schools seems to be the fault of lawmakers who are not up to the task. This is a case of laws being ignored. In most places the laws to compel such education do not exist.

The situation constitutes a record of neglect and indifference, and it makes a mockery of the law. It is a case of laws being ignored. In most places the laws to compel such education do not exist.

If anyone is of a mind to suggest that it's all not too important in the light of our nation's 9,000 young drivers lost their lives in accidents and 370,000 were injured.

OUR DUAL PRESIDENCY
The American Republic has undergone a marked change in character.

Reporters close to the White House are telling us that as result of the slight stroke which befell President Eisenhower we now have quality in the executive power without precedent in history.

Vice President Nixon, while not assuming in actuality the duties of the presidency, has become in effect an alternative president. If President Eisenhower were to die, the NATO conference will head the United States delegation with presidential powers to commit our country.

Due to limitations imposed by his previous illnesses, Mr. Eisenhower has been compelled to function at a percentage of his capacity. Some reports have placed this at 50 per cent. The American people clearly understand that this was the prospect when they returned him to office last year. Because he told them this was the case.

It is inevitable that if Mr. Eisenhower continues to hold the presidency—and his press secretary has indicated he has at present no other thought—he must take more and more golf, spend less time wrestling with the frustrations of our military, scientific, economic and political problems.

Mr. Eisenhower is a symbol—perhaps more than any other man in our time save Winston Churchill—of the optimistic hopes and capabilities of the free world.

CONGRESS MAY BE RELUCTANT TO AGREE

It is probable that no detailed decision will be reached at the top-level conference in the French capital. It is expected that the heads of the 15 states will frame a broad program, and leave writing of the actual blueprint to experts in the fields of war and peace.

250 Turn Out To Meet With League Chief

BOZEMAN, Dec. 3.—Five hundred and fifty representatives from twenty cities and villages in Idaho attended a series of meetings conducted by Mayor Theron Ward, Jr., president of the Idaho municipal league, to compare a program for better local government, during the past two weeks.

All seven districts agreed unanimously that there must be a redistribution of tax funds along the lines proposed by the interim tax committee of 1956, so that any new tax levied, such as a sales tax, shall be partially offset by tax relief in property and income taxes.

Out of the redistribution, cities and villages must have a greater per capita return than they are now receiving, Ward added.

Each district agreed that all taxes as now distributed, despite state level program, will not permit growth and development of the communities. To attract tourists, home-owners and new business, the municipalities must be financially capable of providing the services necessary, in addition to financial relief, the cities and villages demand the right to home rule under the state constitution in the same degree that states enjoy under the federal constitution.

Mayor Ward said the third point of unanimous agreement is that there must be some type of local government authority to zone the areas in the counties immediately adjacent to the cities. This is considered mandatory to the future growth of the cities and villages.

For its fourth point the league will promote legislation to prevent pollution of water pollution by either towns or industries. In the past two years cities and villages have increased from 25 per cent to 50 per cent in sewage control and treatment, but industry has made little improvement in this field, he notes.

The population of Idaho is now 56 per cent urban and the people living in the cities and villages are entitled to greater consideration than they have had, and the municipal league is determined that these people shall be heard, Mayor Ward said. Toward this end the representatives of the municipalities will hold more frequent local and district meetings, will interview prospective legislators and throw municipal support to candidates who are sympathetic with the needs of local government units.

Flies Studied for Tumor Research

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The agriculture department, said today the ordinary house fly is being used to test compounds which may inhibit the growth of tumors in humans.

Department insect physiologists have discovered during trials in recent months that several anticancer compounds act as inhibitors of ovarian growth in female house flies.

The tests were undertaken to find a chemical that would cause sterility in insects and eventually lead to an effective means of insect control.

Vessel Heads To Port After Ramming Ice

LONDON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The British Antarctic ship Shackleton was hit by a battle with ice in the Lofoten sea in the world and is heading for the safety of South Atlantic coast, protected by the royal navy patrol craft, Protector.

The Shackleton, 1,100 tons, ran into an iceberg Friday night and took a gaping hole in the side. The crew battled the icy waters for 24 hours but closed the hole and saved the ship. There were no casualties.

The ship, which sailed today the Shackleton's passengers were transferred last night to the Protector.

Twenty-eight scientists and 30 crew members were aboard the Shackleton when it hit the miniature iceberg.

On route to Falkland Islands.

The scientists were en route to the Falkland Islands to study the dependencies, a string of scientific bases strung along the fringes of the continent.

The crew used timber, canvas, canvas, collation mats, sackcloth, and aluminum putty to stop the flow of water into the hold which would have caused the ship to sink and plunge the 58 men and 60 men aboard to certain death.

Reduced speed.

Captain Norman Brown, 28, reduced speed to three knots, just enough to give sufficient average to keep clear of further ice, and the ship's boats arrived just in time.

The ship has 1,000 miles southeast of Cape Horn at the time.

The first vessel to reach the Shackleton was the British ship HMS. The ship was the whole carrier Southern Light.

The ship's 12-ton fishing vessel kept which over the Shackleton through Saturday night and all day yesterday until the British naval patrol vessel Protector arrived last night.

Together with the Shackleton is now sailing for South Georgia off the southern coast of Africa where she should arrive by Wednesday morning.

'Ike' Is Silent In Office Aim After Ailment

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—President Eisenhower hasn't been seen since his mild stroke to the head after his heart and intestinal attacks. Told the country how he feels about continuing in office.

Judging from the way he's been acting, he'll do what he did before. He has "no doubts" about his ability to carry out his job fully until his second stroke in 1951. That's what he said after his previous illnesses.

Eisenhower—as if to show his stroke was a minor episode and that Vice President Nixon was right in describing him as a "rock" in his desire to get back to work—went to the White House to meet his staff.

This may quiet some of the speculation on whether he'll continue or continue in office. But the speculation exists, nevertheless, just as it did after his other illness. It may be even stronger now.

There is a limit on how many times a great mind can be hit by a stroke without its ability to do what his job requires.

At the core of any such speculation is this question: Can he give to the presidency all the time and energy needed for it? Or does he return more and more into the background, letting others do more and more of the job?

As a time when Eisenhower's doctors say his activity must be "substantially" reduced for some weeks, the President faces problems and decisions far more serious than those which confronted the nation when he was ill twice before.

Besides getting the budget and his legislative recommendations ready for the Congress, which returns in January, Eisenhower must assert leadership in rebuilding American alliances and meeting the Russian missile challenge.

Inspection Moves Trucks Off Road

BOISE, Dec. 3 (AP)—A recent truck check at the Ring Hill port of entry station resulted in 20 per cent of the vehicles being put out of operation, a federal official reports.

Clyde W. Campbell, local supervisor for the bureau of motor carriers, said safety inspectors V. C. Mordant, Inspector 46, and others put 14 of them off the road.

Campbell said the trucks were reported to be "in such a state as to possibly result in a breakdown or accident."

He said the percentage of out-of-service orders "shouldn't run over five per cent" normally.

Senator Asks U. S. to Push Energy Plans

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Sen. A. S. Monroney produced the administration today to push production of high energy physics equipment "just-as-big" as the Russian "just-as-big" than their equipment "half as big."

The Oklahoma Democrat's Washington office disclosed that Monroney has had an exchange of telegrams with Dr. J. R. Kiliian, White House assistant for science and technology, on the subject of high energy accelerators.

Monroney urged Kiliian to give his attention to proposals "thus far neglected" by which Stanford University and the Midwestern Research Association would equal or surpass the $6 billion volt accelerator now under construction in Russia. Monroney said Kiliian described the experimental device as "one of our most important frontiers in basic research." Kiliian said he thinks President Eisenhower is personally interested in their development.

Monroney said an accident crippling the Brookhaven national laboratory's cyclotron last month leaves the United States with only the University of California's 8 billion volt accelerator and two one-billion volt accelerators at Cornell and California Institute of Technology.

planned equipment. Monroney said, includes an AEC 25 billion electron volt machine for Brookhaven and installations at Argonne national laboratory, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and one for Princeton and the University of Pennsylvania in the 3-12 billion electron volt range.

Monroney said the high priority will be given to "just-as-big" rather than half-as-big reactors in the development of federal science policy," said Monroney.

"I'll Take That One"

Four-year-old Johnnie Rose tells Lieut. (Jr.) Ralph Blanchard that he is in the market for one of the four surplus "Mara" flying boats the navy plans to sell next month. The big ships originally cost about two million dollars each but the navy feels it will be lucky to get 710 percent back. The airplane manufacturer has shown interest in using one as a "test bed" while an island-hopping airliner hopes to get one for freight and passenger service. Want one? The bids are still open. Anglers Haul Live Mine to Belgium Port OUTTEND, Belgium, Dec. 3 (U.P.)—Belgian experts have successfully exploded a live mine which the "Hilling" vessel (Hilling) hauled aboard and brought to port with its lights catch last Friday.

Deliberate attempts in port had been stopped when the mine started ticking, giving the harbor area its worst scare since World War II.

A Belgian naval minesweeper then towed the unmanned floating vessel plus the ticking mine, out of the harbor and grounded it on a deserted beach.

There, two experts climbed aboard the floating vessel and gingerly laid the mine to cable.

The tide gave the ship an increasing list which eased the mine, inch by inch, clear of the deck.

The experts then lowered the mine to the sand after detaching the cables, anchored it on the spot. Finally, they ignited it with explosives connected to a quarter of a mile of electrical wire.

At next high tide Saturday the (Hilling) was swept away and the mine was set off under almost six feet of water.

The explosion threw up a 180-foot column of water.

2 Men Must Pay For Frozen Cows

CARSON CITY, Nev., Dec. 3 (U.P.)—Nevada's supreme court has ruled that two cattle ranch operators have to reimburse their landowners for cattle frozen to death during Operation Haylift in the winter of 1951-52.

The high court upheld a ruling to Elko county, in favor of William Rahms, owner of the Secret Valley ranch.

Albert A. and J. M. Smith were short 58 head of cattle when they returned the ranch to Rahms after a three-year lease expired.

The missing cattle were among thousands frozen or starved by the severe snows during the winter which brought air force help to clear the northern Nevada. Hay was dropped to stranded cattle from planes.

Cars Damaged
RUPERT, Dec. 3.—Damages to two cars were estimated at $400 following an accident at 6 p.m. Sunday when Tom E. Roberts, Pocatello, stopped his 1956 Plymouth to avoid some cattle in the road. His car was struck in the back by a 1953 Plymouth driven by Maurice A. Green, Treadon.

Damages to the Owen car were $250 and to the Roberts car, $150, according to State Patrolman Roy Thomas who investigated.

Tragic Figures

While deaths from disease among pre-school children (ages 1-4) have steadily declined, the proportion of accidental deaths has risen by 25 per cent over a period of 20 years. Newchart, based on Metropolitan Life Insurance company statistics, shows major causes of fatal accidents. The company points out that by becoming aware of types of accidents most common at certain ages, parents can eliminate hazards and teach safety measures to children.

Joan Smith, maid of honor, wore a ballroom-length gown of blue tulle, fashioned with three-quarter length sleeves, long neckline and a full skirt of unadorned pleats. She carried a colonial bouquet of abashed yellow carnations, gladioli and white lilies. The bridesmaid wore a blue tulle dress with a white collar and white gloves.

A bouquet of pink mums flanked the fireplace in the fireplace room of the church for the reception. After the ceremony, arrangements of white mums also were used for decorations.

Pink tapers in crystal candlesticks were on either side of the cake. The cake was decorated with pink roses and white lilies and topped with white and pink ribbons.

Mrs. Henry Hatfield, host, cut the cake. Mrs. Charles Hatfield, sister of the bridegroom, served punch, and Mrs. John Bolton, bride, presided at the coffee service. Mrs. Paul Duff, Mrs. Bern Roberts, bride, also charged of the guest book. Shari Bartlett and Shannon Swan assisted the girls.

Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI

Most children love rhythm and rhythm has a way of setting the body in motion which, becomes rhythmic. This is known as dancing. The very young ones, under five, cannot do the formal steps and should not be asked to, but they can move to the music and the interest of watching adults, they begin making co-ordinated movements. This is a fine exercise for them since it helps to develop their muscles and increases their confidence in themselves.

This can be called creative dancing; one wishes but to the child it is dancing and great fun. It is allowed to develop naturally and will lay the foundation for formal dancing later on. In the meantime they enjoy dramatic interpretation to music. The teacher tells a story that lends itself to free transposition. There must be a good feeling in the story so the gestures, and the movements made by the children in response, will be graceful.

A story that tells about the flight of birds in the wind in trees is the sort required. Children of the first year grades in school need this experience for several reasons. It relieves the tensions of the classroom for both teacher and pupils. It strengthens the children's ability to coordinate their movements. It relaxes them and lets them go back to work with a refreshed mind.

As the children grow in understanding of this art they like to do interpretive dancing. That is, they listen to a piece of fine music and dance out the feeling the meaning of the music. This is a fine exercise in physical culture, in music and dancing. It is a therapeutic exercise in junior high schools, since these children are in adolescence and are developing their minds and bodies are in unsteady equilibrium and this sort of lesson period delivers them of pressures and strains.

Formal dancing and ballet are forms of dancing that come much later. Ballet lessons should not be given very young children as their bodies are not sufficiently matured for the development of the specialized form of the dance and only children of the special type are necessary for it should take it on.

Social and formal dancing is for later years. It is a social activity for the young people. It is a social activity for the young people. It is a social activity for the young people.

We, the Women

BY RUTH MILLITT
NIA Service

Why let us women? That the most honest of women—if put to the job of appointing committee chairmen for an organization—will promise almost anything in order to take in a hard job that it won't be "any trouble at all."

That the woman with the most of her in her mind is the woman who is always telling her husband, "I haven't a thing to wear."

That a woman can continue her life's work almost anywhere she sees in a store—if the price tag shows the price has been cut in half.

That the poor housekeeper usually assumes that her house is more livable than a house that is kept in apple order.

That so many women are tired that they married to a man since then the right to correct any statement he makes!

That so many women can hold down a full-time job and do the housekeeping too, while most men come home from a day's work too exhausted to do anything but sprawl in front of the TV set.

That a woman who looks positively beautiful when dressed for a party will let herself be seen at the supermarket in pin curls and shorts that loudly proclaim she would look better in a dress!

That women find it so difficult to turn down an invitation they know promises only a dull evening!

That so many women are tired that they married to a man since then the right to correct any statement he makes!

Keel Laid for First Nuclear Surface Craft

QUINCY, Mass., Dec. 3.—The keel of the navy's first nuclear-powered surface ship was laid today, 13 years after the first atomic-powered submarine was launched at an abandoned shipyard.

Adm. Jesse M. Green, commander of the U. S. Atlantic fleet and NATO supreme commander in the Atlantic, presided at the keel-laying ceremony for the guided-missile cruiser USS Long Beach at Bethlehem Steel company's shipyard.

Latest Link

The 72-foot cutter is the latest link in a chain reaction begun Dec. 2, 1942, when Enrico Fermi stood before the world's first nuclear reactor in an abandoned squash court under University of Chicago football stands. The reactor is scheduled for completion early next year.

Fermi's cyclotron was the first demonstration of atomic fusion, the principle underlying power of atomic reactor vessels and bombs.

Displaces 10,000 Tons

The Long Beach, displacing 10,000 tons and 72 feet at extreme beam, is the first surface ship armed with a main battery of guided missiles and powered by a nuclear power plant.

She will be armed with modern surface-to-surface and surface-to-air missiles, including Thor, Terrier and Regulus. The Thor missile is distinguished as the first cruiser built from the keel up since World War II.

Named for Private

She is named for a World War II private who saw service in the Pacific and now is on loan to the Japanese navy as a defense force.

Weathering Electric Corporation is constructing the reactor compartment components and the six turbine generators, each of which will have a rating of 2,500 kilowatts. General Electric company is constructing the main propulsion turbine and shaft.

Although the ship's reactor won't pose a radiation threat for two years, Bethlehem Steel has begun its safety campaign. The company said it is complying with safety standards set by the Federal Atomic Energy Commission.

A radiation protection engineer already was at work setting up safeguards, both for shipyard employees and the surrounding community.

Institute Planned

BOISE, Dec. 3.—The Gen. Frank C. Smith, Jr. Institute for the Study of the University of Idaho has been selected by the National Science Foundation for a 1958 summer institute to train high school teachers in the use of mathematics.

Church said he has been notified by the foundation that the university is the only institution in the country to have been selected for such an honor. The institute is scheduled to open in July 1958. It will include a summer session for high school teachers and a summer session for students and stipends up to $75 per week.

Bus Stoppage Hits Counties Of California

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3 (AP)—More than a quarter million commuters in four southern California counties today faced prospects of a long, paralyzing transit strike.

Bus riders in Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside counties were left to look for other means of transportation yesterday after a strike of 1,200 drivers for four companies.

Federal Councillor Harry Malcom held little hope for any early settlement of the strike, which started Sunday when regulations broke down between the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Metropolitan Coach Lines and Asbury Rapid Transit system.

Drivers on municipal lines in nearby Glendale and Pasadena joined in the walkout yesterday morning, forcing even more riders to seek other means of getting to work.

Freeway, normally jammed on Mondays, were even more clogged yesterday as more persons brought their cars. It was like the last day of the Christmas shopping season in downtown Los Angeles.

The bus riders formed car pools, walked when possible to Los Angeles transit lines routes which have been unaffected by the strike, clumped rides and took taxis.

Malcom said that if both sides held to their present positions prospects were that the strike would continue for a "good while."

Negotiations broke down over rules and wages in converting from a six to a five-day week and fringe benefits.

The union sought a 25-cent hourly pay increase, while the companies offered a 21-cent boost.

Publisher Dies

FRANK E. GANNETT, publisher-emeritus of Gannett company, Inc., widespread newspaper chain, died yesterday at the age of 81. He had been undergoing treatment for injuries sustained in a fall.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 3 (AP)—Frank E. Gannett, who rose from a farm boy to a position of great prominence in the newspaper world, died at his home here today. He was 81.

He spent nine months in Highland hospital following the injury, and had been under hospital care several times since.

Gannett was president emeritus of the Gannett company, Inc., one of the nation's largest newspaper organizations, at the time of his death.

The Gannett company controls 22 newspapers in New York, Connecticut, New Jersey and Illinois, four radio stations and three television outlets. The company currently is negotiating for the purchase of a fourth television station in Sacramento, Calif.
