

Four of Six Red Defectors Escape To Safety in West

BERLIN, Jan. 3 (UPI)—Russian refugee groups reported today that six Soviet soldiers deserted from communist East Germany New Year's eve and four of them bent their way to the West through a ring of Soviet troops. The emigrants said one defector was shot and captured and another still was at liberty. The escape plot, coming while the communists were celebrating their biggest holiday, touched off unprecedented activity by Soviet troops on the borders of Berlin.

Water Rights Contract Vote Set for Areas

RUPERT, Jan. 3—Landowners of the Paul and areas of the county will vote Jan. 10 on acceptance of the Palouse water contract with the Minidoka Irrigation district.

Two final meetings to explain terms of the contract are slated for 7:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at the county courthouse in Rupert. The meetings will be held in the presence of the Palouse water contract and District Manager Cunningham.

The Palouse water contract, known as NTS, backed it up. The NTS said the quick action by the Soviet army blocked the flight of deserters on an even larger scale.

The Russian emigrant "Truchovitch committee" in Berlin first reported the defections and another Russian emigrant group, the "Soviet resistance committee" in Frankfurt, known as NTS, backed it up.

Louise Shadduck Is Appointed for Post

BOISE, Jan. 3 (AP)—Gov. Robert E. Smylie yesterday named Louise Shadduck as acting secretary of the department of commerce and development. Miss Shadduck has been assistant secretary under A. B. Jonsson, the department's first chief, who resigned effective Dec. 31.

Miss Shadduck was appointed assistant secretary of the department shortly after the 1957 legislative session ended. She had been acting as secretary of the department under Jonsson since his resignation.

Injured Youth Hears Family Crash Victims

EUREKA, S. D., Jan. 3 (AP)—A 16-year-old boy, who with a sister survived a traffic wreck that killed his parents and seven others, looked up from a hospital bed in pain and from a hospital bed in pain and asked his grandfather, "what's to become of us?"

The boy, Wilbert Beck, 16, Eureka, had been informed a short time before that his parents, three sisters and a brother were dead—killed New Year's night in one of South Dakota's worst traffic crashes.

Also killed in the grinding head-on collision were three teen-age boys in the second car. Doctors said a fourth victim of the wreck was Mrs. Beck's unborn baby which was to have arrived in March.

The only other survivor was Wilbert's younger sister, Mary, 6. Both were hospitalized with fractured legs and the little girl also received internal injuries.

Mary was told of the tragedy late yesterday morning, but a physician said she was in such shock and pain that the information made little impression.

"She doesn't realize the impact of it," the doctor said.

The wreck equaled the worst single car accident in South Dakota history. Nine persons also were killed in 1956 in a collision near Wall.

"Folks said the crash occurred on one of the best stretches of highway in South Dakota" when the car carrying the teen-agers apparently veered into the wrong lane of traffic and rammed the Beck car head-on.

There were no witnesses to the crash, about three miles west of Eureka.

A mass funeral service is scheduled Monday in the Eureka city auditorium for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Beck, 45 and 47 years old, and their children, Harold, 19; Ruby, 17; Eric, 14; and Doris, 2.

One of the three boys in the other car, Larry Weidmeyer, 16, Eureka, also will be buried Monday.

The others, Marvin Neuharth, 18, the driver, and Cyrus Klein, 16, will be buried Sunday.

Wilbert's grandfather, Fred Hoff, Eureka, Mrs. Beck's father, informed the boy of the extent of the disaster.

"What will happen to us? Who will take care of us?" were the boy's first questions.

"Don't worry," the grieving grandfather replied, gently. "The first thing to do is get well . . . we'll worry about the rest later."

Hoff said he and his wife talked over the situation with their other children in the Eureka area. He said no definite plan was reached, but indicated Wilbert and his sister probably will live with one of their uncles, Orlan Hoff or Edwin Hoff, when they leave the hospital.

Sell Holdings, Firm Is Told

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—The federal trade commission has ordered Crown Zellerbach Corporation of San Francisco to sell its holdings in the St. Helena Pulp and Paper company.

The commission ordered Crown Zellerbach, the nation's second largest paper producer, to submit within 60 days a plan for complying with the order.

In that time, the company must draw up a timetable in which it can reasonably get rid of its holdings in St. Helena. The FTC will then set a deadline.

The commission ruled yesterday that Crown's purchase of St. Helena in 1953 violated the anti-trust law. Before the purchase, St. Helena was one of Crown Zellerbach's biggest competitors.

It was the first time the commission has ordered the break-up of a merger in a contested case. The law forbids mergers which tend to lessen competition in any particular industry. The firm has the right to appeal the FTC decision to the courts.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON.—The conflicting views of Washington officials on America's military strength in relation to Russia's increased West European action and skepticism over political opinion in British large circles over the situation in the East is a hostile.

Pentagon experts, including members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, have testified before the Johnson preparedness committee that the "Whirligig" is in "dire-peril." At private sessions, they have asked for more money to buy more arms and munitions. The secret and suppressed Galbraith report is in the hands of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in the war of the Whirligig.

Ray Tudge, New Braun—The scientists must be responsible for the atom bomb and Hitler's V-2 projectile, respectively—have been even more in the present state of activity, they predict that Moscow may "shoot the moon" first that this country could probably do it.

Dr. Tudge says that this country could probably make a strike, but not a lunar landing, in five years. If he and his staff were given funds and the green light for such an awesome attempt.

NATO COMMANDER OPTIMISTIC—As against the pessimism of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the sources, Gen. Lauris Norstad maintains that the West has a "safe" lead in retaliatory power, and can retain it until belatedly.

Even though Washington experts disagree on the date when the U. S. can produce even a 1,500-mile missile, respectively—have been even more in the present state of activity, they predict that Moscow may "shoot the moon" first that this country could probably do it.

THE TRAFFIC CONFERENCE—America's roads and cars are going to be home to a bigger load in the effort to cut highway deaths.

The car manufacturing industry in Detroit, and traffic police all over the country, must be examined to determine what changes must be put out to reduce the highway toll.

These are the findings of the recent public officials traffic safety conference, sponsored by the President's committee for traffic safety.

The meeting was unique because it was the first time such an imposing list of state governors and traffic safety officials gathered to attack this grave problem on a national basis.

And the results were impressive beyond imagination. A general agreement reached among the officials as to what had to be done, in what order, to start paring down auto accidents.

A general sentiment also expressed at the meeting was that traffic safety is not a problem for the federal government to tackle through such things as uniform traffic laws.

Some opinion has been growing since a few traffic experts that Uncle Sam must step in on this problem, because the states have failed.

Top priority was assigned to improving driver licensing requirements. The specific plan which received most support was a requirement that all persons under 18 must complete a state-approved driver education course in order to get a license to drive.

This would mean practically all public high schools installing driver education courses which had to meet a state standard. It would also mean that private driver schools would have to come up to the standard.

Insurance companies have come up with solid statistics to show that drivers with had professional training have a substantially lower accident rate. Starting new drivers off on the highway with no training is the best way to attack the highway toll, experts believe.

Second most important program to launch against auto accidents is the establishment of uniform minimum fines and jail sentences for traffic violations, the conference decided.

When a driver is aware that a violation of a certain traffic law will get him the same punishment whether he commits it in the city, county or neighboring state, he tends to be more careful, it was felt.

New legislation in most states would be required to provide this brake on traffic offenders. And it would take cooperation and support from traffic judges.

The conference also recommended that courts be abolished as an item separate from fines. This will help to eliminate the "profit motive" in a traffic court administration, it is pointed out. The handing out of excessive traffic tickets tends to break down the respect for the law just as much as too lax enforcement, it is known.

Sometime soon key members of the conference will be going to Detroit to confer with the auto manufacturers as to what they can do to improve car safety. The recommendations of the conference for voluntarily halting the excessive advertising of increased horsepower.

The industry has also agreed not to engage in so much racing competition for the sake of advertising faster. The industry is still sensitive about the criticism which claims that the new cars are too fast and too powerful to be safe.

The auto industry points with most pride to its record of better brakes, improved steering, and dependability as being safety factors. It claims that more power in cars gives the driver a greater margin of safety on passing especially.

Another study project which the conference has set for itself is an investigation of the minimum needs of traffic policemen in the way of equipment and proper supervision for the proper enforcement of highway laws. The recommendations of the conference were just the most important agreed upon. There were many others, including the need for more research on the causes of accidents and continuing education programs to keep the public aware of driving hazards.

ODDS AGAINST ADL—When the Eisenhower administration invited Adlai Stevenson to consult on plans for the Paris NATO meeting, it naturally wasn't much concerned over the effect this might have on the political fortunes of the two-time Democratic presidential nominee.

But Washington observers say now that Stevenson's three weeks in the diplomatic showcase stirred fresh interest in him as a 1940 prospect.

Up until this moment it has been largely a foregone conclusion that Stevenson's day as a presidential candidate was over. He himself has said a number of times that he would not try again. His goal is reported to be the establishment of state-subsidized housing.

A fairly recent poll of 1936 Democratic convention delegates by Charles Cleveland, Chicago Daily News political editor, disclosed that four-fifths of the 1,055 did not favor another Stevenson.

Since his brief tour of duty in the capital, however, there are several reports of an upturn in Stevenson sentiment among these delegates and other political figures.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

NEW YORK.—Soon after the war, Freddie Manfred, a waiter for Christy Cella in the first of the 4th street, was dedicated to the proposition that a steak in wait at least 10 joined two other waiters in a room which they called "the Press."

The other two were Harry Storms, a bartender, and a waiter named Pegler. Storms said, "I am a waiter, and I am associated with my waiter friends in the restaurant business. SAVE-ON BEATS RUSSIANS TO SPECTACULAR PRICE CUTS

The Russians may have been the first ones to build and launch an earth satellite, but even Khrushchev himself would have to admit that nobody on earth or in outer space can get ahead of the SAVE-ON DRUG when it comes to slashing prices and offering spectacular bargains! SAVE-ON is getting ready for inventory and clearing their shelves to make room for new merchandise. We intend to get rid of all odd lots and one-of-a-kind items regardless of cost or profit — so come on in and save!
