Area Man Hopes Continual Notes Are Not "Tiring"

Editor, Times-News:
I hope you don't tire of my continual letters.

In continuing on God's plan and purpose, we see that at last God's family of people was led over into Egypt because of a famine. At first they were well treated but as the course of time there was a wicked ruler raised up who made slaves of God's people and as time went on, because of their strength, they had become a strong people. Then Pharaoh began to kill them, because they were putting their burden more and more and because they continued to increase. Pharaoh began to kill them by making them build pyramids.

At this time, there was a son born that was very fair and his mother kept him hidden as long as she could, and when she could keep him concealed no longer, she made a small boat and put him in it.

She put him in the water at a certain place where this ruler's daughter went to bathe. When she came to bathe she heard the baby crying and she wanted him for her child. There was all made there at this time to see what happened to the baby. She knew the baby's father, so she asked Pharaoh's daughter if she wanted her to raise the child. She said yes, so she took the child to her home and she was named Moses. This boy was named Moses. This boy for God's people, saving them from their bondage, for they could not have saved themselves.

When their burdens became so heavy they could no longer bear them, they began to groan under their burdens. God heard their groaning and he spoke to him Moses from a burning bush and told him he had heard the cry of his people and he would send him to Pharaoh to deliver his people. So Moses became a savior for his people.

Pharaoh, working with Moses, performed many miracles, causing Pharaoh to turn them loose, but he

Five Million Jobless Are Not Investment, Declares Writer

Editor, Times-News:
May I present my one last article in reply to my article in the Sunday, Feb. 16, Times-News, which commented on the fact that the nation is not employed upon. So in defense of my article and the GOP party I would like to make this last comment, as I am leaving for Oregon or Washington in search of employment.

I have answered all the help that I could give in the paper and had no reply. I have to work more immediately as we are expecting our third child. I regret having to leave Magic Valley but I can do nothing here.

Regarding the reply from an article I wrote recently concerning the union and Senator Church, I am fairly well-versed on politics and their functions.

Therefore I do recall the popularity vote placed our young senator back in the top 10. The only other state is that people cannot prosper on another man's popularity. Financial status or other outside influences.

My claim is his promises, have never materialized, and what is it they call one who makes promises and then doesn't keep them? However, just for the record, my statement was not you can't fight him. "There is no such a difference."

Therefore I do recall the popularity vote placed our young senator back in the top 10. The only other state is that people cannot prosper on another man's popularity. Financial status or other outside influences.

Jerome Resident Notes Problems On Tax, Schools

Editor, Times-News:
It was interesting and instructive to read John Corlett's Feb. 23 Boise Statesman article on the office of the state superintendent of instruction. It stated, I believe, that someone had questioned the possibility of a way out of Idaho's school and tax trouble if someone, not a teacher, were to serve as superintendent of education.

We once had both, a state superintendent of education, I believe, a commissioner of education. I am not certain as to the official title.

As I recall, the Peabody report advised a manager of finance and a state superintendent of education. Whoever made the suggestion deserves much credit for doing some thinking and makes Mr. Corlett's article not only interesting and instructive but "encouraging." My observations are:

Highway Department's Policy For Galena Summit Reported

Editor, Times-News:
The following is Idaho department of highway's position on keeping Galena summit road open during the winter months.

Because of the low traffic count over the summit during the winter months (many days the only vehicle on the summit is the state plowing equipment), and the fact that the Stanley area has a winter route open down the river through the county area at Challis in winter months, it is the policy of the department to try to keep this hazardous pass open each winter.

The department of highways has been plowing snow on Galena summit the past few winters because of the comparative mild area and for the specific purpose of saving money.

The more snow which can be moved by our regular crews as it is fresh-fallen and light, the less extra cost to this department. This also allows our special crews to be free in the spring to repair frost-damaged highways instead of spending the time to open up the summit. Normal and bad winter conditions will likely cause the summit to be a condition where the local crews cannot cope with it, and we will have to let the pass close as we have in the past.

In order that you may know and understand the reasons for our policy regarding the closing of the highway with a chain, we will be glad to take you up on the summit and let you see the local crews at work. If you have any ideas what one would be open to the public, we will be glad to hear them.

We have not forgotten the insult to Senator McCarthy, neither do we forget the most courageous defenders this country ever had, should be ranked with the immortals.

Statement Notes Red Cross Blood Received as Gift

Editor, Times-News:
On behalf of the Twin Falls chapter of the American Red Cross, we call attention to the fact that the blood you receive is a gift from a volunteer donor.

There is no charge for the blood itself. A service fee of $4 per pint has been charged by the Red Cross blood center to cover a portion of the cost of collection, processing and distributing the blood. Any charge in addition to that mentioned herein is charged by the hospital administering the blood and does not go to the Red Cross.

So that blood will continue to be available, we ask friends and relatives of individuals receiving blood to replace the blood in the next blood drawing in your community so that there will always be adequate supply. The money you contribute in the annual drive is required to support the blood program. Support your Red Cross in its annual drive.

Blamed For U.S. Integration Row

Editor, Times-News:
Has no one stopped to consider integration is an issue promoted by the communists, aided and abetted by the "supreme court" who are themselves pro-communists, not and socialists? Shall we obey the mandates of such as these?

No people on Earth are more conscious than the communists. Let each state be an arbiter until liberty. Each knows the problems best. The sentiment of a state where colored people are in the minority is calm and quite different to the sentiment where they are the majority. Make their schools equal to our own and there let the issue end.

That President Eisenhower supports the supreme court and all its antics is open to question. We have not forgotten his insult to Senator McCarthy, neither do we forget the most courageous defenders this country ever had, should be ranked with the immortals.

Take me. I'm an aircraft worker. And take this ad. It tells people how much time and money they can save by flying.

Advertising like this is one big reason why air transportation has just about tripled in the past ten years!

And it's a big reason why there are more airplanes to build, more work for people like me, more money going into the pockets of everyone in the West.

And more people flying helps keep the fares down, too. Maybe you've noticed that airline fares have stayed at about their 1939 level. Fact is, in coach fares, they're lower.

The way I figure it, advertising air travel—or advertising most anything else—helps all of us.

Care of Your Children

New schools are going up all over the country today. It is so exciting to talk about what kind of schools they should be. Each community has its own peculiar needs and ideas. Every family with school children has their own ideas about what is needed. So the talk is necessary. It should be done in a town meeting, each neighborhood being its own "town" for the occasion. Meetings after meeting should be held and everybody, even the bitterest tax-paying neighbor, should be allowed to talk himself out. This is the only way to reach the best decision possible.

Glitter Pictures Are Newest Pastime

Local Woman Is Always Looking for New Hobby

Mrs. George R. Taylor, 343 Third avenue north, is always looking for a new design to make a stencil pattern, a new gadget to make a rug or a different idea for any sort of needlecraft or a hobby. Jack of all trades, master of none—she is Mrs. Taylor's words in describing her varied interests.

She is teaching an advance class at the YWCA in freehand shading in conjunction with stenciling and letter painting. The group she is teaching has attended previous letter painting classes but the freehand shading adds character and life to the design. Mrs. Taylor learned to do the painting in classes here and in Berkeley, Calif., to learn the detail work.

She has stenciled more than 100 pairs of trousers but only three of the painted ones in her home and has painted numerous lunchable cloth, hand towels and pillow cases for gifts and for her friends.

All the pictures in the Taylor home have been painted and framed by her. From hand painted pictures in the living room to gingham characters on china plates in the kitchen.

Her latest project is glitter pictures. These she makes from drapery fabrics. She prefers the scenic design but said the floral prints also are attractive. She glues the material in a piece of hard board or other material that will not warp when damp, with a white glue that dries clear. After it is thoroughly dry the picture is sized with a mixture of two parts water to one part of the glue and allowed to dry.

This makes a waterproof and washable surface. The design in the print is then highlighted with the glitter sprinkled on fresh glue in areas which are being accented.

Idaho Baseball Team Faces 35-Game Slate

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, March 1—The University of Idaho baseball squad faces a 35-game schedule this spring and squad members are at work in preparation, according to coach Wayne Anderson. Anderson said the team's schedule includes the first seven games of the season. The Vandals will start with eight lettersman and coach Anderson has 32 other hopefuls trying for places. The eight returning veterans include the seniors headed by the top hitter in the Northwest—Westerner Clark Anderson, Bill Steilman, Jim Throckmorton and Larry McDonald. The juniors include Val Johnson, Jim Christian and Harin McDonald. Of this group Anderson, Melton and Johnson are pitchers.

Those missing this season include a pair of fine pitchers in Doug Hand and Steve Hinchey, neither returning to school. Seniors who were graduated are captain Ron Braden, Ralph Johnson and Dick Johnson, Gene Aronson and Mick Pollock.

Anderson feels the Vandals will have fair pitching hopes with Clark Anderson and Johnson, right-handers and Melton, a lefty. The catching hope will be Steve Johnson, senior, who was named to the All-American team.

Anderson's schedule opens the pre-conference season March 22 at Walla Walla in a doubleheader with White State. This will be followed March 23, 28 and 29 with a tournament at Lewiston involving Oregon State, Washington State, Montana and Idaho.

Burley Man Gives Suggestion To Pull Valley Area Together

Clifford Strum, secretary-manager of the Burley Chamber of Commerce, outlined a plan for a committee of representatives of chambers of commerce throughout the area.

An executive committee of Magic Valley Chambers of Commerce would pull the valley closer together, he said.

Strum and the Burley chamber's office secretary, Mrs. Fred Anderson, were in Twin Falls Friday to report to the local chamber directors on a recent meeting they attended in Portland sponsored by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce to discuss national issues now being considered by the congress.

Mrs. Anderson said national officials told those who gathered in Portland and from all over the Northwest to inform "apathetic businessmen" and the uninformed about issues facing the country.

Phonics Important in New Reading System Being Tried at Lincoln

Students at Lincoln elementary school in Twin Falls practice phonics in the new reading program in which all of the students are placed in classes corresponding to individual reading level. The students practice applying the syllabics of a word by clapping their hands and saying the word aloud. Mrs. LaVon Sanderson is teaching youngsters after an upper half fourth grade, although the students are actually in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades. (Staff photo-entourage)

New Reading System Tried By Pupils at Lincoln School

In Twin Falls public schools, administrators and teachers believe students are being taught to read. At Lincoln school, reading is taught under a new method they believe will teach students to read even better.

The new method places students in classes where reading is taught at the individual reading level, according to Principal Clayton P. Ocker who planned the method.

Ocker, who holds a masters degree in education from the University of Idaho, pastored the new method after a system being used in the public schools at Joplin, Mo. He presented the plan in school districts who accepted the idea and the new reading system was put into operation on an experimental basis Jan. 27.

Under the new method, 10 reading classes varying from the upper half of the second grade level to the lower half of the seventh grade level are conducted each morning at Lincoln school from 9 to 10 a. m., Ocker says.

Fourth, fifth and sixth grade students, all tested to determine their reading level, have been placed in the classes which correspond to their reading level, regardless of their grade in school.

Each grade level is broken into an upper half and lower half, such as upper fifth grade and lower fifth grade, referred to as five-two and five-one. Ocker explains the purpose is to give broad coverage to students can be in a class more closely fitted to their reading level.

Under the new method, some sixth graders attend third grade reading level classes, some fifth graders attend sixth grade reading classes.

Ocker points out that the method does not mean that students are not learning. The work taught during the first hour in the morning, the remainder of the day they are in their own classes.

The method suits the students' needs, Ocker explains, and adds, "Students can be taught to read by normal methods, but the teachers cannot give enough individual attention to those students who need additional help. Some students do not learn as fast as others, some are advanced beyond the work taught at their grade level. Some students were read in the past, but they were not given the opportunity to read at their own level."

He continues, "With the new method, the students find they are equal to the competition and understand the work, thus they advance faster and have a better feeling of accomplishment. As the students' reading ability increases, they are advanced to higher levels of work."

"It is quite conceivable that a sixth grader placed in a fourth grade reading class or even lower could be at the sixth grade level at the end of the year," Ocker adds.

Fourth, fifth and sixth grade students participate in the program, Ocker explains the younger students do not have a large enough vocabulary to read at their own level and what they should be learning to warrant the method.

Some 23 students participate in the new method. The lower level classes are small, numbering about 22 students, while the upper levels have no more than 37 students.

A four-step lesson plan in reading is used in all elementary schools in Twin Falls and the new method also incorporates its principles. Ocker explains.

The four steps of the lesson plan are: motivation, interpretation, extending skills and abilities and extending interests.

In step one, the teacher is concerned with gaining the attention of the children, establishing background for understanding the story, introducing new words and stirring up eagerness to read.

Step three helps children build word-perception and interpretation skills. In this step the students continue to build a foundation of phonics which was started in the first grade, Ocker explains.

In step four students read aloud from books and stories of varied subjects. The purpose is to channel interests to other areas. Students receive a class in the city library on the use of library facilities. They also give reports on books they check out of the library.

In the accelerated class composed of fifth and sixth graders studying in the fourth grade level, in addition to the four reading steps, the students write short stories and read them to the class for the class to criticize. Students may also read a play, then dramatize it, writing their own parts.

The program has proved quite effective thus far, comments Ocker. "An example of the progress made is typified by a fifth grader who is reading in a lower level class. He has already made three book reports. During his semester he didn't make any."

Ocker attributes the boy's accomplishment to the fact that he is, for the most part, reading at his own level. (Continued on Page 17, Column 4)

Nearly 2,000 Rounds of Ammunition Fired Nightly at Gun Club's Range

Nearly 2,000 rounds of 22 caliber ammunition are fired each night for eight nights a week by the Twin Falls Rifle and Pistol club and the Junior Rifle and Pistol club.

The firing is done at the club's indoor rifle and pistol range at the end of Washington street north. Almost all of the 50 members of the senior club meet four nights a week to fire at the range, and most of the 42 members of the junior club meet every Wednesday night to shoot. For the senior group, the firing consists of intra-club matches, match with teams in Magic Valley and state pistol matches. The junior members fire 200-yard, intra-club matches and fire for National Rifle Association record.

Empty Cartridges Show Amount of Firing

President of the club, Morris Moore, notes 1, Kimberly, emphasizes the firing is one of the best forms of entertainment and training available to interested shooters. Moore explains, "We have two groups in the senior club, a group that fires rifles every Monday and Thursday evening and the pistol group which fires on Tuesday and Friday evenings. The junior club fires only with rifles and they meet every Wednesday night."

Moore continues, "That has been the interest in the club is thrilling. They fire every chance they get."

The club's range has been built inside a building the club secured from the Hunt relocation center back in 1945. Members of the club helped move the building to Twin Falls. Then, remodeling the interior to accommodate the range. But the cost of cleaning up the old building site was more than to move the building to Twin Falls. The building was a jumble of all the relocation camp. "It had a floor made of concrete 12 inches thick with steel reinforcing. That had to be cleared away and it was impossible to do by hand," recalls Lewis Hull, an old-time member.

The range building is constructed in two big rooms. The range itself is 50 feet long with space for 10 bulletys is about the size of the target. The targets operate on a cable that allows them to slide the full length of the range and the firers can pull the targets back to the firing line rather than go to the target line.

Only 22 caliber weapons are used in the indoor range-on target shooting about the size of a silver dollar.

Oral Reading Is Also Part of New System

Oral reading is as much a part of the new reading system being conducted at the Lincoln school as in any reading program, Donna Lynn Buttle, studying sixth grade reading, reads from a library book as part of step four of the program - expanding student interest. It is expected the students will seek outside reading from interest gained in the class. (Staff photo-entourage)

The senior club was organized in 1946. The first range was in the basement of what is now the Labor Temple on Second street south.

The junior club was organized in 1961. According to its present adviser, Grant Sanborn, it has been quite successful. Besides teaching the youngsters the proper way to handle a gun and correct shooting procedures, the boys and girls have a real good time. Sanborn asserts. A rifle team from the junior club set a National Rifle Association record in 1955 when it fired in a state match. The score was 1,140 of a possible 1,200.

That score is high enough so that it will be a long time before the boys and girls can be considered as anything but a real good team. (Continued on Page 17, Column 4)

New Drive Is Afoot to Unseat Benson, But He's Expected to Survive Efforts

BY OVID A. MARTIN
 WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—A new drive is afoot to unseat Ezra Taft Benson as secretary of agriculture. The drive prevails here that Benson will stay on the job until the end of the year unless the congressional elections.

A group of administration members of Congress, worried over their electoral prospects in farming districts, want President Eisenhower to replace Benson. They seek a farm policy that would be more acceptable to producers growing out of financial difficulties resulting from production costs, relatively low farm prices and restrictions on production.

Benson is determined to stick to his job and to carry out his contract. He has become—in the words of a congressional spokesman—a symbol of the administration's farm policy. This, of course, is the reason why his friends so strongly support him.

In Benson's favor, they are (1) for role in agriculture if farmers are not to suffer economically. They want greater use made of public lands and (2) the Republican party's support, production payments and foreign surplus disposal programs that are favored by both the President and his secretary of agriculture.

Benson's friends argue that it would be disastrous for the Republican administration to shift back to the direction of more government in agriculture. They say such a change would cause the party to lose the support of those in agriculture and many in other spheres of activity who favor present policies.

They argue further that such a change would not win enough support from the other camp to offset losses of present supporters. They say most of those who want more government aid are already largely tied up with or committed to the Democratic party or its leaders and supporters opposing more government aid. But the Republican critics of Benson say it is not necessary to change both Benson and the farm policy. They contend that a much

The predominant view here is that much progress opposition must be raised against Benson than has expressed itself so far if he is to be forced out. It is pointed out that there is no strong, concerted or organized move against Benson, including GOP associates, governors, national committeemen and others in position of party influence.

But this is not to say what might happen if it is pointed out in the forthcoming election.

Should the Republicans lose heavily in mid-year congressional elections, conceivable that ranking party leaders—with the 1960 presidential election in sight—would urge to press Eisenhower for Benson's removal. This, of course, presupposes the President would not ask for his resignation.

Yet, such a party "move" would raise questions about farm policy. Would the party pursue? Would there be changes? If so, what would they be? Or would a new secretary be asked to take the present ones and try to administer them in a different style? It is not clear placate dissatisfied farmers?

DOES SCIENCE PROVE THE BIBLE WRONG?

Some people are convinced that it does.

They read in the Bible, for example, that the stars are fixed in the "roof" of the world like luminous ornaments, which is the scientific opinion of the "scientific" great of the authors of Genesis. Later scientific knowledge proves that stars are incandescent bodies moving in space.

Although willing to acknowledge that God created the universe, the scientific-minded folk refuse to believe the Biblical account in which apparently it all took place in six days. Also, they contend that the scientific evidences of evolution appear to contradict the Bible in this instance.

As far as Catholics are concerned, there can be no real conflict between scientific truth and religious truth. From the time of Moses down to the present day, science has opened the doors to many of the earth's physical secrets—including in our own time, the fantastic secret of atomic energy. There will undoubtedly occur, in the foreseeable future, even more revolutionary discoveries. But in the plain remains that science has yet to produce any evidence that contradicts the basic truths of Holy Scripture.

The Bible—to begin with, is a book of religion, not a scientific textbook. A Book of Genesis should be regarded, therefore, not as a scientific explanation of the heavens and the earth, but as an exposition of certain divine truths. These include such matters as the creation of all things... the creation of man as the object of God's special providence... the unity of the human race... the loss of man's original blessedness through original sin... God's

That is the state match, which will be held in Twin Falls in the spring, according to Moore. The senior club possibly will be host for the state open rifle and pistol matches here. Moore adds, "Almost 1,000 shooters and spectators follow the matches." In Magic Valley, several clubs have been formed in different towns and all compete with each other in rifle and pistol matches. The Twin Falls club usually competes with at least one Magic Valley club each week, according to Moore. Also the club competes each week in a state postal match. In postal matches, the state club designates opponents and the teams mail their scores to the state headquarters to see who wins. "So in the Rifle and Pistol club we have competitive target rifles every night," Moore relates. The club operates an outdoor range next to the club's building. The targets can be placed up to 100 yards away on the outdoor range, but for pistols, the maximum range is 25 yards. Members fire on the outdoor range in good weather. On the outdoor range, members

Spring Weather to Bring Outbreak of "Sturgeonitis" to Fishermen of Idaho

By MARSHALL EDSON
[ Idaho Fish and Game Department ]
Each spring as the daylight hours lengthen and the ground starts to warm for the summer growing season, a large number of river- and stream-dwelling fisherman, especially those who fish for sturgeon, are likely to catch a disease known as "sturgeonitis."
It is catching and usually when contracted, recurs each fishing season. While it is seldom fatal, it is annoying and makes the victim hunt for work of any sort on his day off.
Since fishermen started to catch white sturgeon with conventional rods and reels with each passing season, the real test comes when a man tries to land a sturgeon with only a reasonably light rod, line and reel, instead of a half-inch rope and a team of horses.
Back through the years, sturgeon were considered a delicacy. The fish were especially when smoked, and sturgeon eggs always had a ready market as caviar. Consequently, when sturgeon were found in goodly numbers in the Columbia and lower Snake rivers, they were considered a "setback" and sold commercially. For many years the harvest was heavy, fishing pressure increased with increasing development. Impoundments along the Snake had their effect on the habitat.
When it became apparent that sturgeon numbers were declining, regulations were passed doing away with commercial operations. Since then, set lines have been abolished in all but a few stretches of the river. Set sizes and season limits have been put in effect.
The white sturgeon grows slowly. The females do not spawn until they are from 12 to 15 years of age, and the males until they are 15 to 20 years old. A sturgeon produces 500,000 eggs when they do start. For example, a sturgeon about 25 years old will deposit about 500,000 eggs in a single spawning time.
Sturgeon spawn in the spring, and the eggs probably do not hatch again for several years, although little is known about this part of their existence.
Sturgeon are bottom feeders. They move along slowly, extending their flexible tube-like mouths, sucking up small fish, worms, snails or other foods. Some have been caught with a stomach full of onions or potatoes.
This bottom-feeding habit provides the answer to fishing success. Fishermen use an air-curtain net with enough weight on the line to keep the hook on the cut sections of lamprey eel with a big job of earthworms, a clove smelt. Other elements are beetles, tadpoles, crayfish, shrimp, crawfish, mullet, rabbit and chunks of squawfish or suckers.
Most fishermen use a square two-handed, deep-sea type rod, large star-drift reel, capable of holding up to 500 yards of 70-110-pound test line, and a strong back heavy spinning reel. The line also are favored because of casting distance and the stretch factor in the line when pulling a fish.
The best fishing spots are the "hole" fishing spots are the deep holes above Thousand Springs near Hagerman; narrow near Olens Ferry; Hammett and Indian Cove areas; near Pals-Murphy-Manning stretch; near Welter, and all the way below Hells canyon to the mouth of the Salmon river.
Best fishing months are usually April, May and June, and again in September and October. Even at that, sturgeon are caught every month of the year.
Idaho regulations for 1968 require that sturgeon may be taken only with hook and line attached to a pole and fished in the conventional manner in Snake river from Pleasant Valley. Set lines are presently permitted in Snake river from Lewiston stream to the point Pleasant Valley dam site and up the Salmon river from its mouth to U. S. Highway 20.
Spray-Rose fishing now with Dermant Spray from Oblee Bae-123V.

Sturgeon as large as this one are seldom taken today in Snake river, but the modern sportsman manages to pick up "smaller" ones weighing nearly 400 pounds. This sturgeon was taken near Olens Ferry some years ago, and is reported to have weighed nearly 500 pounds. Records from the early days say sturgeon weighing as much as 1,500 pounds have been caught, according to the Idaho fish and game department. Biologists estimate that fishing pressure and changes in habitat have reduced the population in size as well as numbers, as the sturgeon grows so slowly that few manage to survive long enough to reach exceptional size. ### Fete for Cub Scouts Given At Shoshone

SHOSHONE, March 1—The annual Blue and Gold banquet for Cub Scouts and their parents was held at the Lincoln school cafeteria at 8:30 P.M. Thursday.
Mrs. Leo Kivela, Ben mother, prepared the birthday cake.
Each den provided table decorations and "Blue and Gold" themes was carried out in napkins and table.
Harley Handy, Scout executive, was master of ceremonies. Ralph Harris, Twin Falls, commissioner of the Snake River Boy Scout council, was guest speaker. Bishop Lloyd Smith gave the invocation.
Following the program by Fred McAbbutt, Tommy Heller and Andy Payne played a saxophone duet and Helen played a saxophone solo.
Executives present included E. I. Shaw, Fred Gilla, Russell Kelly, W. V. Gray, for PAGOGE, Ralph Smith, M. J. Dille and Jimmy Terry, and den mothers, Mrs. Ralph Williams, Mrs. A. V. Nelson, Mrs. Jean Barabina and Mrs. Knowles. Den chiefs introduced were Fredrick McAbbutt, Johnathan McAbbutt, Robert Tanaka and Craig Smith.
Dille presented awards for the month, with parents of the boys assisting. Larry Haddock received a denner strip, Andy Payne, boy scout badge, gold arrow and six silver arrows; Ronald Parkhurst, assistant denner strip; Kenny Knowles, wolf badge, gold arrow and seven silver arrows.
After awards went to Johnnie Berriochos, service star; Tommy Heller, bear award; Mark Dille, all-mer arrow; Andy Payne, Webster award; Bruce Everett, bear award; Christopher McAbbutt, wolf award; Richard Meyer, wolf award; Eddie PAGOGE, bear award; Jim Carothers and Warren Burgoyne, certificates of registration, and den mothers received certificates of appreciation.
The entire group joined in presenting the Blue and Gold medal to the Scoutmaster, gave the benediction.
Following the dinner and meeting of the Mayflower was presided by Harris.
Several times when they are first hooked.
Denner reports show that fishermen have "battled" sturgeon for three or four hours, only to have the fish come away on a live up from sheer exhaustion.
The largest authentic record reported for sturgeon was a 394-pounder taken by Glen Howard of Boise in 1950. This taker was caught below Swan Falls.
"One fisherman fought a monster sturgeon in the lower end of Hells canyon. His line finally broke. He drove into the river, carrying the end together before the sturgeon started another run. The story-book ending would be that the fisherman finally beached a record sturgeon, but the sad fact is that the fish was gone 30 minutes later—this time for good. Fishermen must have patience, initiative, good fishing tackle—and be ready and able to swim Snake river, at times!"

New Isolette Ready to Use in Pediatric Section of Hospital

A new Isolette ready to use in the pediatric section of the Magic Valley Memorial hospital, thanks to fund-raising activities of the hospital guild.
The Isolette is a closed-in incubator of glass where an infant may be observed without exposing him to outside factors, according to Dr. Luther Thompson, Twin Falls pediatrician.
A separate Isolette was purchased by the hospital for use in the newborn nursery on the hospital's second floor. Dr. Thompson noted it is unusual for a hospital in this area to have more than one Isolette.
"Infants born at another hospital or that have become ill after leaving the hospital are often admitted to the newborn nursery because of exposure of the newly-born babies to infection in areas," Dr. Thompson explains. They are admitted to the pediatric section, he says, where the new Isolette will be of great value.
Dr. Thompson says a specific percentage of oxygen and vapor and desired environmental temperature may be maintained correctly in the Isolette. "Through special openings on the sides and on a top nurse feed and care for and a doctor may examine the child," he says.
"All of these may be done without disturbing the prescribed environment within the Isolette," Dr. Thompson notes.
The guild raised the cost of the Isolette, about $500, with various young men must register within five days after their 18th birthday anniversaries.

Youthful 'Egyptian Dragons,' Accused Slayers of Polio Victim, Calm at Trial

NEW YORK, March 1 (AP)—The defendants in a slaying trial were calm and collected in clean shirts, neckties and dark suits except for the speckled jackets. They could pass muster at a school.

They all erect in straightback chairs in a row behind a table. When they file into the courtroom and their names are called, they quickly respond to the judge's questions. They never talk, seldom whisper to one another, remain almost impassive, unshakable for boys 15 to 18. Two are Negroes. Two are white. Two are Puerto Ricans. One is a light-skinned Negro from the Dominican Republic. Call them last a gang called the Egyptian Dragons. They listen attentively to what the judge, said, read to relatives in the spectator's area only as they enter or leave.

You expect it but it still comes as a jolt when a boy on the witness stand begins testimony—like this: "When did you find out he was dead?" "About 10 o'clock." "Were you scared?" "Yes, sir."

"You had this knife with you and you intended to use it?" "Yes, sir."

"You said you stabbed somebody with a knife?" "Yes, sir."

"Did you stab him?" "No, sir."

"The boy in the red shirt lies on a table. Next to it is a hunting knife with a five-inch blade."

"You did not go with the knife?" "I gave it to a girl." "What girl?" "Mary Jean."

"Why did you hide the knife?" "I was afraid I would be picked up with it."

"Although he is less than 15 feet from the jury box the boy mumbles so low that the jurors sometimes cannot hear and the judge has to repeat the answers he has made."

"Why were you carrying a knife?" "In case I got into any trouble I wanted to defend myself."

"You were standing in the bushes and you saw the knife?" "Yes, sir."

"Here comes two guys."

"How far were you standing from the Farmer-boy when he was lying on the ground?" "About six feet."

"How many boys hit him?" "Four or five." "Who hit him first?" "Eddie."

"Did you see John McCarthy at the scene?" "Yes, sir."

"What did he do?" "He hit him with his garden hose." "Where?" "On the left side. He already been stabbed."

"Yes, sir."

"Where did you go later that night before the incident where did you go?" "To 172nd street."

"What did you do there?" "I waited my gun."

"Where's your supposed to be at a meeting of the Dragons?" "Yes, sir."

"When did you go later that night?" "To 155th street."

"What happened?" "That was when they were lined up, nine on each side."

"And what did you do?" "I had to run through the middle."

"The boy on the stand is Jose Garcia, a Puerto Rican. He is not a defendant because he was not present when Michael Farmer was stabbed."

Widespread Mormon Church Increases Membership 50 Per Cent in 10 Years

By United Press

Mormons are a hardy lot. In less than 70 years—the space of one man's lifetime—they have made the transition from a small and persecuted sect centered in Utah to a large and wealthy denomination with a world-wide membership of 1,500,000.

Utah still has more Mormons—about 460,000—than any other state. But there are now thriving Mormon colonies in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Phoenix, Boise, Las Vegas, Washington, D. C., New York City, Denver, Houston, Jacksonville, Columbia, S. C., Portland, Ore., and many other cities far beyond Utah's borders. Total U. S. membership has increased nearly 50 per cent in the last 10 years.

The religious missionary movement also has carried the Mormon faith from the sea to England—10,000 in Germany (about 18,000); New Zealand (15,000); Hawaii (17,000); Samoa (48,000); and more than 100,000 in other countries of Europe and the Far East.

Once disenfranchised by federal law, Mormons today occupy many prominent positions in national life. The best known, perhaps, is Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson. Others are Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, whose signature appears on your folding money as treasurer of the United States; the president of American Motors, George Romney; the president of Standard Oil of California, Theodore S. Peterson; financier Marvin L. Breezy; and television pioneer Phil Farnsworth.

Despite its rapid growth in membership and respectability, the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-Day Saints—the official name of what is commonly called the Mormon church—remains one of the least-known of America's major religious bodies.

It is erroneous to assume—as many people do—that the Latter-Day Saints are just another Protestant denomination. Although Mormons believe in the divinity of Jesus Christ, their theology differs substantially from the historic Christian creed.

Their doctrine of eternal life, like only one example, has no close parallel in traditional Protestant or Catholic belief. It holds that each human being exists as a spiritual child of God, before being born on earth; that life in a mortal body is only one step in a soul's eternal progress; and that people continue to learn to grow spiritually and to live together in families in another life beyond the grave.

Many Americans still associate the name "Mormon" with the practice of polygamy—an association that Mormons consider grossly unfair. Plural marriage was never practiced by more than three per cent of Mormon families. It was based on religious conviction and ended a church at Fayette, N. Y., in 1820, when all plural marriages carefully restricted by church law. And since 1890 it has been outlawed by law church on penalty of excommunication. Although Mormons believe in the divinity of Jesus Christ, their theology differs substantially from the historic Christian creed.

own. Actually, they use the King James version of the Bible, supplemented by three books which are regarded as equally sacred.

One of these is the 200,000-word Book of Mormon. It records the history of certain Israelite tribes which are said to have crossed from Asia to North America many centuries ago to become ancestors of American Indians. The other two books are called "The Pearl of Great Price" and "The Doctrine and Covenants."

Mormons believe that these writings, which are the basis for most of their distinctive doctrines, came to the church as the result of a series of revelations—visions—of which these revelations is believed to have occurred near Palmyra, N. Y., in 1820, when all plural marriages were ended him to certain gold plates from which Smith translated the Book of Mormon.

Smith's followers formally organized a church at Fayette, N. Y., in 1820, when all plural marriages were ended him to certain gold plates from which Smith translated the Book of Mormon.

The church grew rapidly, and soon encountered persecutions from established religious bodies. The main body of believers moved to Ohio, then to Missouri, and finally to Naumoo, Ill., in a vain search for "eternal progress"; and in spring the children happily occupied their freedom of worship.

After Joseph Smith was murdered by an Illinois mob in 1844, his successor, Brigham Young, led the Mormons on an epic trek westward to a valley of Utah's Great Salt Lake.

Last year, more than a million Mormons visited Temple Square in Salt Lake City, where a magnificent monument stands as an enduring testimony to the heroism of the Mormons, at about the age of 20, they were pioneers who built first a volunteer for service as missionaries; and then a state in the midst of the mission field to which they are.

Many of these visitors are surprised to learn that there is nothing peculiar about the way Mormons or the Far East—and pay all of their own expenses.

The church has no paid, professional clergy. Every male member of the church is a member of the church. This office is now held by 84-year-old David O. McKay.
