Vigorous Program Is Planned to Put Whole Farms Into Soil Bank Reserve

WASHINGTON, April 12 (Special)—Department of agriculture plans a vigorous effort to making the conservation reserve of the soil bank.

This development is taking "brass" against the background of frank hostility from USDA officials. The White House and congress itself only the farmers seem to like the scheme) to the acreage reserve feature of the soil bank. Further, it also comes at a time when only a small portion of the total amount

Leaders Urge More Interest In Civic Roles

HAYDEN LAKE, April 12 (AP)—High officials from both major U.S. political parties reaffirmed today the need for Americans to become more active in the country's political life to preserve the nation's strength at home and abroad.

Shirley the speaker's platform were Paul Butler, Democratic national chairman, and Bertha S. Adkins, assistant Republican national chairman, at the first national conference on political parties.

"Our strength in the world," said Butler, "is bound up with the country's political life. It is our duty to have a person join the Republican party than to have no party at all. It differs in its attitude to both parties."

He said another obstacle to party strength is that party policy is established only once every four years. He said the time is near when there must be either biennial policy-making conventions or establishment of some committee which would have "interim power" to determine party policy.

Mrs. Adkins said the future hope of the party system lies mostly with women, explaining that the present organization is the key to political success and organization is the job that women do well.

"I'm convinced," said the Republican party leader, "that the voter who has been approached personally is the one with the better understanding of issues and candidates."

Butler and Mrs. Adkins spoke at the third day session of the conference being sponsored by Congress University, under a grant from the Ford Foundation. The conference ends tomorrow noon.

No Shortage Magic Valley farmers need not worry about a lack of labor during the coming work months, according to R. B. Day, manager of the Twin Falls Unemployment-Sugar company plant.

Day says a report that Mexican national labor would be short during the summer did not apply to United States citizens of Spanish and Mexican descent who have traditionally moved north into Idaho and Oregon to help with farm work.

The local sugar company arrangements with an employer in San Antonio, Tex. for approximately 2000 laborers a year.

Day says the workers are brought into the area "at quite a cost to the local beet sugar industry."

CLASS PLANNED SHOSHONE, April 12—An inquirer's class of the Christ's Church Episcopal will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday at the parish house. This will be the first in a series to be held each week at that time at the parish house.

"Last year we had the best growing weather since the time men cleared the Indians into the hills. I shudder to think what the output would have been without the soil bank."

But there also is some dissatisfaction at USDA over the way the conservation reserve is set up. To pay a farmer for raising grass, some officials say, is only postponing trouble. The only permanent solution (and one congress will not accept) is pay farmers only for planting trees and building dams and ponds.

Proponents of the plan to take whole farms into the soil bank are counting heavily on good results from the stipend in Maine.

Three hundred and fifty-four farms in that state (with a total acreage of 20,000) were taken into the bank for five and 10 year stretches. The area includes 18,000 acres of rich land in the potato belt of northern New York.

It says one USDA official hopefully, "would make quite a dent in Maine's potato production."

$51,129 Case Is Filed Over Crash in T.F.

Twin Falls Yellow Cab company and P. A. Carrell, company manager, were sued for $51,129 Saturday in Twin Falls district court by Mrs. A. J. Franklin as result of a traffic accident last January at city street intersection.

Named defendants along with Carrell and the taxi cab company were Gill and the taxi cab company, and Devon Williams, Oklahoma.

Mrs. Franklin was thrown from a collision with a 1952 Ford driven by Williams in the intersection of Shoshone street and Fourth avenue west. The Franklin daughter, Rebecca Franklin, a passenger in the taxi cab with her mother, also was injured.

Mrs. Franklin, through her attorney, Rayborn and Rayborn, says she incurred permanent and lasting injuries when she was thrown from the rear seat of the taxi cab to the pavement. They charge that the taxi cab driver, Devon Williams ran a red traffic signal at the intersection.

The complaint says Mrs. Franklin incurred cerebral concussion, cuts and bruises which result in permanent injuries, mental and physical pain and that Rebecca Franklin incurred injuries to her left ankle and arm.

The court is asked to award $50,000 for injuries to Mrs. Franklin, $500 for injuries to Rebecca Franklin, $626.18 for doctors and hospital bills.

Lana Revives Enough to Go See Daughter

LOS ANGELES, April 12 (AP)—Lana Turner, 33, was revived Saturday from the coma of yesterday's dramatic recall of John Stompano's fatal stabbing at Beverly Hills hospital to Juville hall today to see her daughter.

The girl, 14-year-old Cheryl Crane, was absolved yesterday of criminal responsibility in the butcher knife slaying of her mother, which friend, described by police as a sigilo, a hearing is scheduled April 24 to determine her future custody.

Normally, visitors are not permitted at Juville hall on Sundays, but Lana was welcomed by Stephen Crane, called on her later Saturday.

When told that the boy had absolved her, Cheryl said: "My prayers have been answered."

Not blind

The jury's verdict is not binding upon Santa Monica Juville court Judge Allen R. Lyles. He will conduct the hearing to determine whether Cheryl is to remain with her mother, be given into the custody of her father, the second of Lana's four husbands, be given to Miss Turner's mother, Mrs. J. H. Turner, or placed in a private institution.

Miss Lynch could certify the girl as an adult, leaving the door open for her prosecution for Stompano's death.

Dist. Atty. William B. McKesson indicated there would be no prosecution, however.

Checkup for Child Asked

All parents of children entering first grade this fall were urged Saturday to take their child for a pre-school checkup during the next two weeks, by George E. Taylor, summer roundup chairman of the Twin Falls PTA council.

Mrs. Taylor said, arrangements have been made with both physicians and dentists for the annual examinations and that they have urged parents to bring their children in before May 1. Parents are to go to the doctor of their choice.

Most of the checkups will be determined by the individual doctor and dentist, Mrs. Taylor explained. She also stated plans are under way in the individual schools for the May day party when those entering first grade in the fall are introduced to the school and teachers.

Parents also were advised that if they have a child who will be 5 years old on or before Oct. 15 to telephone or go to their nearest elementary school Wednesday between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. to register the child for the 1958-59 term.

Letter Cites Need To Put Postoffice On Paying Basis

Editor, Times-News: For the past year or so we have read reports and watched television news coverage of the difficulty encountered by the federal postoffice in maintaining an efficient postal system. The root of its troubles seems to be a lack of money and we were glad to understand that the postoffice is to be paid, better methods of operation could be used, and very important, the department could get "out of the red."

But now comes the announcement that the postoffice is to be paid for selected communities in the post office. It is to be paid for the postage on the mail.

I am not against new postoffice buildings. I do think that the postal rate has increased so that the postoffice is not paying a paying basis as we have seen in the media of advertising prices brought by the federal postoffice. It is a realized after the operations are brought to the time and dollars when it will be the time to pay for the new, splendid buildings.

"Cut Comedy," T. F. Resident Asks Idaho's Congresswoman

Editor, Times-News: Why does the Times-News prefer to daily feature dry cartoons like "Out Our Way," and "A Job for Joe," and parodies, feature the best comedians in the West, Grace Frest?

She out-did Major Hoops when she accused the Republicans of being responsible for the farmers' loss. How can anyone accuse the Republicans when the Democrats have had control of the house of congress for the past three and a half years? If Grace is familiar with the facts, then she is lying; if not, then she is qualified to represent the new dealers and the Republicans in congress.

The Republicans and Democrats who are for America First are having a Roman holiday over this recession. Knowing the 1934 trade agreement act (low tariff) that was passed during FDR's first administration encourages imports of cheap labor products in direct competition with the higher wages paid in America.

At present, most of our mines and mills are shut down, beef, wool, and other products are being destroyed when pre-war economy levels off.

Take a map of the U. S. and check every congressional district that is hard-hit by this recession and with a few exceptions you will find that the representatives of that district voted for the continuation of the 1934 trade act in 1956. We are going to tell you how the congress voted.

The 1934 trade act expires on June 30 of this year. If congress does not renew this act, the 1930 tariff goes back into effect. Under this act (1930) America reached the highest standard of living in the world.

If these facts are presented to voters of northern Idaho, Grace would cut the comedy.

Motor Transport Unit Appreciates Parley Coverage

Editor, Times-News: I would like to take this opportunity on behalf of the Idaho Motor Transport association to thank you for the splendid coverage given our ICC safety clinic held in Twin Falls a few days ago.

The meetings were most successful, with almost 100 in attendance. It was a great deal of success of the program is due to your newspaper for the fine publicity given by your photographers. . . were both most cooperative.

We do a tremendous amount of work in the field of safety, as actual safety is our business. We just can't have business and have accidents. We have a great deal of interest to you at any time. I would be most happy to share some of this material with you. Much of it is of general nature and suitable for the average motorist, as well as for professional drivers, if you would care to use the material, there would be no need to give us credit.

Again, thank you most kindly for your splendid cooperation, and if at any time we can be of service to you in any way, please do not hesitate to call upon us.

KENNETH E. HARTZLER (Managing Director) Motor Transportation Association

'Faith-Healing' Lacks Results, Brings Profits, Claims Writer

Editor, Times-News: An article in the Times-News states that a noted faith-healer is coming to Idaho this year. Would it be possible in your paper for the benefit of the people of Idaho? My experience has been in so-called divine healing from the earliest of nearly every major exponent of divine healing of the times. But as no time was any holding such as situated our Lord's kingdom or the nearness of the kingdom in the Apostles' day.

Functional complications are usually mental in their origin, and can be cured by faith. However induced. Appealing to the Bible is the greatest incentive to faith, adding to this the great psychological effect of mass meetings and you have a powerful means of ameliorating functional disorders.

One of the most noted "healers" of recent years was investigated by a commission from the archbishop of Canterbury, who wanted the truth as it coils, but it had over 40 years and of the one mentioned in your paper, at least 20 times. But as no time was any holding such as situated our Lord's kingdom or the nearness of the kingdom in the Apostles' day.

Results turn out to be disappointing.

Careless Motorist Is Subject Of Letter From Area Woman

Editor, Times-News: Last night, April 8, while our officers were investigating a serious accident one mile west and one-fourth mile north of Castletford, we were coming home from Nuhl around 10:30 p.m. behind the wreck, or which was nearly one mile ahead of us. Between us and the wrecker there was another car. We were less than one mile from the mile east corner from Castletford and the car ahead was nearly one-fourth mile from the same corner.

Now a mania coming from the south caused this highway at a speed exceeding 50 miles per hour without even slowing down for the stop sign.

"To this driver I'm asking, 'Are you playing a game with death?'"

Are you ready to die? This could of been a far more serious accident than the one the officers were investigating if the party ahead of us had been traveling much faster. Now our law enforcement officers can't be at every corner to see that you stop at every stop sign; but they are faithful to investigate all accidents and accidents in scrapping up mangled and broken bodies. Bloody and gory isn't it? Well, this is what our officers are faced with every day.

I'm writing this as a warning because I know the one who was driving that car will read this; and it just burns me up to see accidents like this happen.

MRS. AMOS WILLIAMS (Castletford)

Woodworking, Seeds and Tin Cans Make Hobbies

Woodworking heads the hobby list of Mrs. Paul Miller who with her husband just recently moved to an acreage in Twin Falls from a farm at Hollister. She makes all her own wall shelves, picture frames and other small items in her own workshop equipped with power tools such as jig and rip saws and mending tools. She started the woodworking as a supplement to another pastime, making pictures from seeds. She built the expense of frames for her pictures was prohibitive as they were to be custom-made. The pictures require a little deeper frame than commercial ones. By fabricating her own she could design the type of molding and frame she wanted. The seed pictures are begun by sketching a design on a piece of plywood—similar to hardboard—using a good glue that dries clear, the seeds are applied over the sketched design. For flower pictures, Mrs. Miller uses seeds such as sesame or whatever kind will gain the effect she desires for the stems and a variety of seeds such as watermelon, cantaloupe, sun flower, cucumber, popcorn and various other corns, squash and hollyhock are used for flowers. Everything from alfalfa seeds, whole spices including cloves and whole black pepper, weed seeds and all kinds of flower seeds are used. Anything her imagination dictates for accent. These are fashioned on a rim of chicken wire sprayed with silver paint to keep it from rusting. The leaves are cut from the sides of the cans and the flower petals from the tops. Scissors are used to cut the metal and Mrs. Miller said she found the way the cuts are made is the way the metal curls. One side of the leaves will curl up and the other side down as the leaf is turned and clipped-down the opposite side. Flowers are made from various sized lids placed on top of each other, each smaller than the last. When cut and curled up they resemble organ-bellows. Pointed petals can be made from the sides. A fine wire is used to anchor the flowers and leaves to the chicken wire and plastic or glass beads strung on the wire are used to centers and accent. For spots lengths the shorter the “rip” is the accent, the thicker the can. Pincenoes which have been dipped in shellac or varnish are sometimes added to the cans for the Christmas season. The metal is painted the desired color, usually with the type of paint used for figurines as it doesn’t peel or mar, and sometimes tipped with gold or silver. Mrs. Miller occasionally does pot carving, making shadow box pictures, but finds this more tedious and time consuming. She may prefer to see her finished article sooner. Figurines and textile painting growing African violets and encheiling with tiny glass beads strung on the thread for highlights on dolls, also are included on her hobby list.

There is more truth than poetry to the old decorating cliché—"Space is what you make it." This is especially true when applied to the little back bedroom with scarcely enough room to turn around in.

Color, scale and arrangement are the three most important decorating factors that make a room appear to be larger than it really are. All of these have been employed with marked success in the tiny bedroom sketched above.

FOUR PLAYERS ASSIGNED TO MAGIC VALLEY FOREST BY CUBS

Cowboys Schedule Drills at Jaycee Park Next Sunday

MESA, Ariz., April 12—Heading into the final week of spring training, the Magic Valley Cowboys of the Pioneer league began filling the roster Saturday when four players were assigned to the club by the Chicago Cubs. Heading the list is Ken Fisher, centerfielder, who is touted by Cub officials as the brightest prospect in the camp. In addition, Jerry Fisher, catcher, Joe Hester, pitcher, and Gary Sorenson, second baseman, have been added to the roster.

Players to be added to the Cowboy lineup each day, reaching an 18-man total by next week-end. The Cowboys will fly to Twin Falls Saturday in preparation for their first home game April 21. Manager Dick Wilson reports fans will get a preview of the team next Sunday as a practice session has been set for 1 p.m.

Wilson said Saturday he was "well pleased" with the players picked. "I know you know Jerry Fisher," he said. "He's a good pitcher and he's got a good arm. He's a player who can do anything and do it in big league style."

Only unknown quantity is Martin, a pitcher from Portland. "I don't know too much about him, but he looks like he's got good stuff," Wilson commented.

The fourth man, Sorenson, who opened the 1957 season playing shortstop for Magic Valley. A hard hitting infielder, he was assigned to the outfield after seeing little action. "I'm glad to see him," Wilson said. "He had three hits, including a homer, while out of the bullpen during the week. He batted .375 and got past Carlsbad 4-0."

Little remains on the agenda for the Cowboys until Saturday. They will leave Mesa Saturday morning and arrive in Twin Falls that evening. Wilson said they will leave Thursday, "pick-up his family at Reno and drive to Idaho."

POCAHONTO, April 12—Montana State college got top pitching from the Bengals in a doubleheader Saturday and whipped Idaho State 3-2 in 10 innings and 2-0 in a diamond doubleheader.

MSU swept a three game series that ISU had opened with a 1-2 victory. In the long game Saturday, Frank Hoey played alive when his sacrifice attempt failed in the 10th.

Strandberg got his hit off reliever Dennis Shoemaker, who had come on the mound to face Strandberg in the second game. Val Johnson threw a four-hitter at the Bengals and struck out 10.

ISU put together three doubles and a triple into enough runs to win the second game. Val Johnson threw a four-hitter at the Bengals and struck out 10.

Both games were won with four-run innings. The Vandals scored four hits in the first inning of the first game and the Pirates pulled out the next game with four in the sixth.

Minimum Flow in Streams Below Dams Is Sought

HAILEY, April 12—Obtaining a minimum flow of water below dams to protect fish resources was stressed by G. Leonard, Idaho fish and game department director, at the fourth district Associated Sportsmen's club meeting here Saturday. Some 83 sportsmen and government agency representatives attended the one-day meet.

Leonard said the department feels fishermen have a certain right in expecting fishing conditions to be maintained at a successful level below a dam. The minimum flow, which is in the Boise area, as an example, Leonard said the department had spent over $50,000 in stocking the area but lack of water in the stream below the dam has resulted in entire loss.

He also struck at pollution of streams by raw sewage. He noted congress has provided $50 million dollars to eliminate the condition. In other action, the group disapproved a measure to reduce control of predators and made several recommendations on big game hunting season.

They asked the deer and elk hunt on the main Salmon river drainage in Blaine, Clatsop and Lemhi counties from Clatsop county to the Falls. The minimum flow will be held the same time as in 1957, Oct. 1 through Oct. 31.

They called for an open 15-day hunt of mountain sheep in inaccessible areas and left hunting of deer to be accessible to all. The deer and elk hunt on the main Salmon river drainage in Blaine, Clatsop and Lemhi counties from Clatsop county to the Falls.

They also asked that a big hunt be held in the east end of the Snake river valley. The Jerome Road and Gun club suggested an open hunt of deer and elk on the main Salmon river drainage in Blaine, Clatsop and Lemhi counties from Clatsop county to the Falls.

The Fairfield Road and Gun club urged maintenance of Soligier mountain game preserve and suggested 1,000 elk permits be made available to the public. The club also asked that the hunt area be enlarged.

Manlius E. Buehler, asked for a fish study of Lake Walcott. He noted the lake had lots of good fish but no good hunting. Evidently the study would be made with an eye toward stocking the lake if feasible.

Charles Blake, Jerome, district 64 biologist, noted a report of 64 roosters to 100 hen pheasants has been carried over the winter. He said population is controlled by conditions during spring reproduction. Blake added hunters did not harvest last year's young birds although 90 per cent of all pheasants killed were of the 1957 crop.

The Central Idaho Road and Gun club, Challis, called for aid in improving hunting and trapping on Salmon river between Challis and the forest boundary. The group noted fisherman and camper have created a definite health hazard.

G. W. Carlson, Barlow National Forest chief biologist, noted demands for recreational facilities in the forest. He mentioned since 1948 a total of 12 miles of trails. Last year, some 555,000 visitors used the forest's recreational facilities and this number is expected to reach 600,000 by 1962.

To meet these demands, the forest service built 50 family recreational units at Redfish lake and surrounding areas. Carlson said the units are now open.

True Davis, Jr., named his 1958 Kentucky Derby candidate, Sam Joseph, for his home town in Missouri.

Burley Group Meets to Talk Tax Problems

BURLEY, April 12—The congressional action committee of the Chamber of Commerce met Friday morning for a breakfast meeting at Cousin Burley's dining room to discuss tax problems.

Burley banker, presenting the program on taxes.

He asked the question, "If Congress cuts taxes would the extra money in the pay envelope be spent or would people just get a taste of the talk of recession?" He brought out the fact that a sizeable tax cut would have to be made to be effective and that such a cut would probably cause a deficit in the budget.

He pointed out that when the congressional action committee meets and the representatives return to work that pressure for a tax cut will be irrefragable.

During the session which followed Burley's presentation, Truman Bradley, chairman, said he recently advised people to buy—who should do so. He said that he has already contracted themselves to the bill, or those who have money saved.

Savings are at an all-time high and it was the consensus of opinion that people should not wait for something they couldn't see themselves able to pay for within the specified time.

State Sen. K. V. Barlow said that the small income group should receive the tax cut first. He made and that small businesses should be given fair consideration.

He reminded the group that within the past 30 days the cost of food has taken a one per cent rise and stated, "We have to eat so money goes for food instead of for items such as appliances, machinery and automobiles." If politicians would quit upsetting the economy by election time by passing tax cuts and spending to please any and all groups that it would remain stable, he added.

Edgar Moorman, farmer, stated that the government should cease its deficit spending in peacetime. "If we can't pay our way in peacetime, where are we headed?" he asked.

Bradley reviewed all the past meetings and their accomplishments and asked each member to write the representatives in congress stating his own personal thinking on the subject.

The group went on record as being opposed to any tax cut at this time if it means deficit spending.

Others in attendance were Cliff Strom, chamber president; K. H. Blauer, Jess Parsons, A. H. Nielson, R. O. Hatch, Jim Roper, Bud Sedam and Fred Anderson.

Next Friday morning, 8:30 a.m. will discuss social security.

McLemore Holds Nationalities Endowed With Certain Talent

By HENRY McLEMORE

At a party the other night someone said something about a sensational tap dancer whom he'd seen from Finland. And right away I said he must be wrong—that Finns couldn't tap dance to save their lives.

Now, I don't know for sure whether Finns are capable of tap dancing or not, but I don't believe they can. The way I feel about Finns and tap dancing is typical of the way I have nationalities called a "figure" as to what they can and cannot do.

It is absolutely impossible for me to visualize an Englishman as a professional wrestler. An Englishman just doesn't go with grunting, roaring, grunting and rolling around on the mat. You might just as well try to convince me that Englishmen barbecue in their back yards, wearing big chef's hats and aprons with cow buttons lettered on them. I can't explain the reason for my feeling that where a person is born determines his aptitudes, and that being born Mexican, say, eliminates any possibility of his ever being an airplane pilot. But I do. The fact that I have ridden in Conries and DC-6s with Mexicans at the controls has in no way shaken my belief. I am sure there is some trick to it somewhere.

I can see Mexicans jumping horses over high walls, prosecuting a criminal in the courts of law, and a million other things. But you might as well tell me that a Mexican could build a safe, dependable airplane that he could chauffeur a big plane.

There must be hundreds of capable Chinese surgeons in the world, but I could take a day off and do nothing else but try to conjure up a picture of a deft, sure Chinese surgeon, and I wouldn't get to first base. My catalogue has no place for a rebbed Chinese surgeon, scalpel in hand, knowing where to cut or what to take out after he cut. If one ever worked on me I wouldn't need chiropodist—I'd be out before he got his mask on!

When I read that the Russians had taken up tennis in a big way and planned to compete in international competition, I laughed out loud. Why? Don't ask me. A Russian probably will win Wimbledon in a few years, but to me the whole thing is a joke. I see him tripping over his shoelace, or losing his big fat hat while chasing a drop shot, or getting his legs all tangled in the long ash of his racket. Russians can't play tennis, and no one will ever convince me that they can.

How did they ever get the Eiffel tower built. I wonder? You know that Frenchmen never could work on high steel. They'd all get excited and fall off in droves.

I saw Australian men doing the long ash of his racket. Russians in Sydney and Melbourne, but I didn't believe my eyes. If they had been back and singing, or rock rolling, or something like that, it would have seemed perfectly natural. But there is no more connection between Australian men and a graceful ballroom dance than there is between a kangaroo and a tea kettle.

How do I feel about Americans? Ah, that's different!

I have catalogued Americans as being able to do anything, anytime, anywhere—and a little bit better than anyone else.

Silly! Maybe, but you see I was born in America, and I can't help feeling it's the best.

Late Snowstorms Piling Snow to Record Depths on Mountains to South and High Country in Vicinity of Galena Summit

Snow measured 74 inches in depth at Magic Mountain ski resort area last Monday when this photo was taken. Earlier, an "unseasonal" storm had dumped 12 inches of new snow in the area. The ski area has been closed since March 31. (Staff photo—engraving)

State highway department rotary snowplow bites into deep snowbank on the Galena summit road, widening a path through deep drifts. Late season storms have piled snow to a record depth of 181 inches at top of Galena. (Staff photo—engraving)

Spring Snowstorms Piling Snow to Record Depths for Mountains to North and South

Unseasonable snowstorms have piled up new record depths atop Mount Baldy near Sun Valley and Galena summit north of Ketchum and have piled up snow to nearly equal the record at Magic Mountain. A snow measurement by the soil conservation service at Hatley shows 110 inches of packed snow atop Galena summit and 113 inches on top of Mount Baldy. Edward Fourraker, forest ranger, says Magic Mountain snow depth is 74 inches, just 14 inches short of the record of 88 inches recorded there in March 1957.

Claude Smith, foreman of the state highway special maintenance crew which has been working to clear Highway 93 over Galena summit, says, "The wind was terrific." Smith says, "and whipped the snow around so much that visibility was cut to only 15 feet during the storm." Smith explains that the wind piled up drifts 15 feet high in some places along the Galena summit highway, and in many places to six feet deep. But workmen were on the highway Saturday, April 5, in spite of high winds which lashed after the first snow storm, and punched "a hole" through the summit. By Tuesday, April 8, the men had the roadway clear to the summit for two-way travel and one way travel from the summit down to the Stanley basin, in spite of the threat of snow slides in highway cuts that had been blown full of snow by rotary snowplows.

mountainous roadway, and snow removal is accomplished only by the rotary snowplows which can tear the snow nearly 200 feet. But in some places, according to Smith, the ridges are piled so high with snow that snow plows with plowing wings have to "top off" the ridges up about 10 feet high so the plow can throw the snow on top of the ridges. A few snow slides occurred during the cleanup operations, Smith says, but the plows have been able to cut through them. Yet the slide threat prevails and, Smith said, until the threat of slides is over the pass probably will remain closed. He expressed concern over the threat of a snowslide on an area of the highway one-fourth of a mile from the summit on the Ketchum side, but hoped for the snow to slide while the crews were working the area so they could remove the snow immediately. Smith said that if the snow did not slide of its own accord the crews

Mrs. Barber Just Walks up on Roof to Shovel Snow at Galena Store

Pearl Barber has no trouble climbing up on the north side of the roof of her store. She merely walks up this roof-high pile of snow to shovel new snow off the roof. Barber, 65, was nearing the end of her task of clearing nearly 28 inches of snow from the roof in the wake of a storm about a week ago. Since then, more snow has fallen in the area, resulting in record depths. The late season storms are reported the most violent of the season. (Staff photo—engraving)

Covered with snow, this rotary snowplow shows the effect of wind blowing the snow back onto the snow while it tears it all right. The plow was operated by Claude Smith, foreman of the special highway maintenance crew from Shoshone. The crew has worked during the past two weeks to clear snow from highway 93 over Galena summit, with more snow falling most of the time. (Staff photo—engraving)

Well Driller Finds Water By Use of 'Divining Rod'

"Most people make fun of using a divining rod," says Tosco Harley, a partner in the G and H Drilling company, Jerome. He uses a divining rod to tell where to drill water wells, but adds, "I've used it enough to prove to me it is all right." Harley has been drilling water wells for 13 years in Magic Valley. He began here right after World War II and worked for C. B. Eaton and Sons Well Drilling service in Wendell, then in 1950, he and Ed Greer, Twin Falls, began the G and H Drilling company. Their company has drilled at least 50 wells in the last three years, Harley says, and all the wells have been located by a divining rod. None has been a dry hole. In fact, Harley guarantees 50 inches of water from every well he drills if he can name the spot the well is to be drilled. He has never gone back on his guarantee, he says.

The owner of the well can pick the general area, but Harley wants to pick the exact spot. Harley uses a divining rod. Not a special one, he says, but just any forked stick will do the job, the size or type of wood makes little difference. "I have even used a forked piece of aspenbrush," Harley notes. He says he generally prefers to use a light and flexible branch from a tree so it won't hurt his hands when it sways downward when reaching to water. Harley notes that when he works for several hours with a divining rod the palms of his hands get sore because of the constant twisting of the stick, despite a very firm grip. He emphasizes that a divining rod in his hands works well and actually will bend to show where water is. He will bend to show where water is, he says, "I don't twist the stick, or use any tricks." The forked stick actually works. "In fact, in the spring of the year I can take a stick full of sap from a tree and hold it so it will pull the bark off in my hands when it bends for water," Harley explains. He notes there is no special height to hold the divining rod and no special grip, either. He became interested in using divining rods when as a boy in Missouri he watched his father find water with a forked stick. "I can't explain it, either," he says, "but it works." He explains that a forked stick won't react for everyone. His partner, Ed Greer, can't get a divining rod to work. (Continued on Page 11, Column 1)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

A Japanese hand-painted picture hangs on the north wall of the dining room of the new Wood River Convalescent Center, SHOSHONE. The painting was given by the Center by Mrs. Kame Norikazu, who has made 120 paintings since 1929.

Mrs. Norikazu has expressed with the new building when she visited it a few weeks ago and purchased the picture especially for the spot. She bought it from a Japanese salesman on the south side of the Snake river, who might have called at the Manhattan cafe. She was convinced there in the year 1911, a picture of a woman and child, and joined her husband-to-be in Pocatello.

Her favorite pastime is gardening. Until World War II, she raised all the vegetables for the cafe, but has never gone into the business on that scale since. She does care for her own flower garden, however, and enjoys sewing.

Though Mrs. Norikazu is looking forward to the trip back to Japan, she hastens to assure her friends she will be back.

The state school GOODING receives a load of boys recently when Albert Baylis, SHOSHONE, who makes a hobby of repairing discarded toys, look them there and gave them to the school. His wife provided a truckload of toys for each year for the past several years.

The toys include wagons, tricycles, cars, chairs, dolls, doll houses, doll furniture and other toys.

Baylis collects the toys from junkyards and backyards where people call him to pick up their discarded toys. When completed, the toys look almost like new and in many cases are more durable.

The good neighbor policy is a reality to M. E. McKendrick, who is conversing at his farm home north of Shoshone. A group of his neighbors came recently to plant 20 acres which they will drill into wheat when the ground is dry enough. Last week the same group spent 30 hours hauling and spreading fertilizer.

Dinner was served by women of the Wood River Center Grange at the home of Dean Guthrie. Among those helping were Rose Boyd, Gene Guthrie, Clifford Stutzman, Carl August.

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

"Easter? So What?"

By DONALD L. HOFFMAN
(Pastor, First Christian Church)

"What do you give to church tomorrow for Jim?" was a question overheard last Saturday by the writer.

"Why Bob," said the teenager. "Don't you know that tomorrow is Easter?"

"Easter? So what?" was the reply. "Next Easter has come and again it will be the same. Some of us went to church, perhaps even more than one service. And the church was crowded. The choir sang beautifully. We listened, for a change, to the sermon, and it was good! Of course we give that Jesus rose from the dead. That is wonderful news, even though it is almost 2000 years old. Certainly we believe there is life on the other side of death. But so what?"

And like Peter did before the crucifixion, too many of us follow Jesus' path after the resurrection. Far too many of us miss the real meaning, the real thrill, the real joy of the Lord is risen. But do we know the reason? Many of us do not! It may be weeks, even months, before some of us give Him again of our time. And our service? Well, now we are just too busy!

Do you know why most Christians worship on the first day of every week? It is because it is His day, for the first day of every week honors Him and His wonderful victory over death. That is why the early Christians worshipped on the first day of the week. And we should live for Him each day of the week, because He lives for us; so why not live for Him?

We may not like it, but it is true that the way many of us keep Easter gives us the attitude of "Easter? So what?" It might do us all good if now, a week after Easter, we examine our own attitude. Was Easter just a celebration? Or was it a real experience? Were enough Christians here? But does life live in me? Am I living daily with the Living Christ?

Jesus said, "Ye shall be one of my witnesses." Would you like to be one of them? A witness for the Son of God? It isn't easy, always. In fact He said, "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow Me." But there is joy, real joy, wonderful joy for the person who has the faith, and the courage, and the love in his heart to do it. And that person shall hear the Living Lord say, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

When Distance Is Always Tempting!

Take a new Cadillac—point its hood toward some distant destination—and watch what happens!

We would be willing to wager that day's end would find you far closer to journey's end than you could ever have imagined!

We say this because we know how wonderful the miles are when they pass beneath the wheels of a new Cadillac—and how tempting distance is when seen through the windshield of the "car of cars".

First of all, imagine how comfortable and rested you would be! The seat-cushions are soft and deep and perfectly contoured. The steering wheel is ideally positioned... and the car is wonderfully spacious.

Then consider how easy the car is to handle! It is incredibly agile and responsive—and wonderfully smooth and level of ride. In fact, if you have selected the extra-cost option of Cadillac's air suspension, you can scarcely detect the presence of the road.

And think of your pride and contentment! The very knowledge that your motor car is so highly admired and so widely respected adds its own reward to each and every mile.

You ought to try it soon. Your dealer will be happy to explain the virtues of Fleetwood coachcrafting—and to give you the facts on every model, including the exclusive Eldorado Brougham.

Ordinary Twig Becomes Divining Rod

Oscar Harley, Jerome, cuts ordinary forked stick from any handy tree to use as a divining rod in his search for water. This particular one happens to be ash, but Harley says he has used forked sticks from even asparagus. (Staff photo-engraving) rod to water. Harley can hold one branch of a forked stick and let someone else hold the other branch and the stick will react.

Harley tells of his uncles in Missouri who can find silver coins by using a forked stick. "But I've never measured with it," he says. He adds that he has heard of men who have been able to find minerals underground with forked sticks.

Some men claim to be able to follow underground pipe lines with forked sticks, Harley says, but he has never been able to. Even claims as to the depth of the water have been made by divining rod enthusiasts, but Harley says he places no faith in it.

Some well drillers use scientific methods of finding water, he relates. One method is to take samples of water from various wells and compare the samples to find the route of an underground stream.

Still other drillers use divining rods and follow underground streams to the place where they meet, he says.

"Harley says he doesn't use either method, but covers an area with his forked stick, using his experience to tell the best place to drill.

"I've never had a dry hole yet," Harley says.

The deepest he has ever had to go to find water is 725 feet. The shallowest well was only 95 feet deep.

Harley's most recent success was a divining rod was at the Glen Nelson farm on the Salmon tract. Harley used a divining rod to locate the exact spot to drill and the completed well produced 257 inches of water where Nelson expected only 80 to 100 inches.

He tells of one of his earliest successes where he was expected to find no water but he did. Harley drilled on the O. A. Schlitter ranch in 1933 and hit 150 inches of water at 500 feet.

It takes a few hours to locate the exact spot to drill after the general location has been determined, Harley says. He has spent up to one full day searching for the spot with a forked stick, but says the shortest time was only a couple of hours.

Harley gets firm grip on forked twig, holding point high as he starts looking for water. Although he keeps the wood firmly in the branch with his hand when the tip points down for water. (Staff photo-engraving)

Two Divorces Granted Here

Two divorce decrees were issued Friday in Twin Falls district court on grounds of cruelty.

Allan N. Tully received a divorce from Mrs. Mary M. Tully. He charged extreme mental cruelty.

The court awarded him custody of four of their five minor children. The fifth one is in California with the mother. He also was awarded a 1952 Plymouth. He is to pay her $100 a month for the other child.

The divorce was granted by court order by the court at a cost of another jurisdiction.

They were married Jan. 24, 1942, at Paris, Ark. He was represented by J. Dean Mosher.

Mrs. Hope Wise was granted a divorce from Charles Wise. No children were involved. They were married Nov. 17, 1932, at Elko. She was awarded community property consisting of a trailer house, a 1952 Hudson, sewing machine, television set, lawn mowers and two lots at the Sunset Memorial park.

Cruelty Charged In Divorce Case

Mrs. Pearl A. Peters filed a divorce complaint Friday in Twin Falls against Lewis J. Peters charging him with cruel and inhuman treatment.

They were married Aug. 29, 1940, and have one minor child. She asks the court to award her community property consisting of a trailer house, a 1952 Hudson, sewing machine, television set and several other household items and $75 monthly child support and $75 monthly alimony. She is represented by May and May, Twin Falls, Idaho.

Rotary Plows Fight Record Snow on Highway; Woman Resident Digs Path Through Deep Drifts

Two rotary snowplows are nearly obscured as they throw plumes of snow high into the air while widening the road leading to Galena summit. One plow follows a short distance behind the leader, with each plow taking a "bite" out of the high snowbank at the edge of the open road. The Galena summit has been closed several times by new storms in the last two weeks. Because of the danger of slides, travel over the summit has been discouraged. (Staff photo-enslaving)

Mrs. Pearl Barber, 55, stands in path she shoveled from her Galena store to woodshed through some 34 inches of snow. Mrs. Barber, who did not spend the whole winter at her store, returned recently only to be "snowed out" for a time at the North Fork store a short distance north of Ketchum. That "unseasonal" storm left another 16 inches of snow. (Staff photo-enslaving) would try to make it slide. He explained that snow is easier to clean out immediately after a slide rather than waiting for it to settle.

Unseasonable Snowstorms Piling Snow To Record Depths on Area's Mountains

"We try to keep the highway open the year round because if we let the snow settle very long the job is twice as hard," Smith says.
The method Smith planned to use to make the snow slide was to have a rotary snow plow at each end of the slide area and throw snow on the mountain side.
"If we can get enough added snow on the slope it should force a slide," he explained.
However, he expected the snow would slide by itself when the weather warmed enough during the afternoon.
Aloft Magic Mountain the road has been open to the ski area and pany. One foot of water per share ranger station since last Monday, according to Fournier. He indicated the snow is melting fast but he adds if it melts too fast it could add to some officials, unless the strong winds continue.
Winds accompanying the recent storms and those that linger afterwards cause more trouble than just hindering snow removal, according to soil conservation service officials.
The strong winds cause the moisture in the snow to evaporate and ultimately less water is available to trick Colson, principal of the King canal companies in the valley who depend on the snow to supply irrigation water.
An example is in the mountainous areas from which snow provides water for the Salmon Canal company to woodshed through some 34 inches of snow. Mrs. Barber, who did not spend the whole winter at her store, returned recently only to be "snowed out" for a time at the North Fork store a short distance north of Ketchum. That "unseasonal" storm left another 16 inches of snow. (Staff photo-enslaving)

Great Deal of Field and Office Work Necessary to Set Big Game Seasons for Idaho's Hunters

The Rock creek checking station cabin is used as headquarters for game survey crew. Vehicles and equipment are parked by the members of a combined, inter-agency winter game survey conducted on horseback in a portion of the Cassia division southeast of Twin Falls. ## Task of Setting Big Game Seasons in Idaho Is Tough, Extends Many Months

By BETH RHODENBAUGH (Idaho Fish and Game Department) A recent news release announced that the Idaho fish and game commission will meet in Boise on April 23 to set Idaho's big game hunting seasons and regulations. That announcement is true enough, but it oversimplifies a long and arduous chore.

Actually, setting this fall's hunting seasons started during big game season last fall. Checking station personnel helped start it by gathering information about the animals taken in the areas covered by each station. Sportmen helped by sending in their kill report cards. Later, when the snow was as deep as it ever got last winter, and the weather as cold, department field officers flew over, camped in and tramped through scores of big game wintering areas. They conducted both general surveys and detailed trend area checks. At the same time, representatives of other agencies (especially the U. S. forest service, fish and wildlife service, and bureau of land management) were conducting their own investigations of local land, range and wildlife conditions throughout the state. Meanwhile, Idaho's many sportsmen's clubs were holding their regular meetings. Most of them met together about once a month from September to May, at least. They exchange observations, opinions, and informal reports among themselves, often consulting department or other (technical personnel) for necessary biological information.

Simultaneously with all these, farmers, ranchers, timbermen and other landowners and landusers also were gathering information in the field to clarify conditions in regard to their own, particular interests. Three groups also held meetings at which wildlife was discussed, but often from a somewhat different point of view.

Setting the big game hunting seasons in Idaho today involves all of these groups, and some others. About the time the cheateague turns green on the foothills and the big game animals drift back to graze on it, the commission ordinarily holds its first hearing during the first afternoon of the season. In former years this was a rather busy afternoon. However, attendance has dropped off since the department began meeting with the various groups in their home areas. Moreover, a better understanding of wildlife biology on the part of the commission has made it possible to forecast the results to be expected from the various types of hunting seasons. Thus, the seasons can be set in accordance with facts, rather than custom or sentiment.

For the past several years, the trend has been toward a uniform opening date so as to spread the heavy hunting pressure of the opening days. It also gives the hunters a better opportunity to plan their hunts in advance, as many are compelled to do. However, game supplies and hunting seasons are expected to vary from area to area and closing dates are varied accordingly. More and more, the commission will continue to be a better family with each other's trend in their own area as well as in

Every card on this table represents a successful deer hunt last fall. These are the tag report cards sent in by hunters who killed deer. At the table, Biologist Wes Shaw, seated, and Roger McCormack discuss tabulations of game information taken from the cards which will be summarized for the use of the Idaho fish and game commission at its April session prior to setting the 1958 big game hunting seasons. (Fish and game department photo—staff engraving)

Cowmen planes cruise over known elk calving grounds each spring to check the calf crop as a clue to the general trend of herd increase in the area. Here, nearly two dozen elk calves are taking it easy in Bear Valley under the watchful eye of a few "baby sitting" mature cows. The rest of the cows will probably be feeding somewhere in the vicinity, untroubled about the welfare of their young, who will stay where they are left somewhat better than the young of some other species. (Fish and game department photo—staff engraving)

Runs in Families Exact Cause for Gout Is Still Poorly Understood

By EDWIN P. JORDON, M.D. (Division for NEA Service) Gout is reported as a diagnostic in about one out of 100 patients attending clinics devoted to arthritis and related diseases. The exact cause of gout is still poorly understood. It appears to run in a considerable degree in families and is much more common in men than in women. It is associated with a disturbance in the chemistry of the body in which substances known as purines accumulate.

There is considerable debate on the part played by foods and alcoholic beverages, but apparently those rich in purines, can bring on an acute attack of the disease. Whether this is true also of alcoholic beverages is more doubtful. Gout by itself appears to be rare. The most characteristic feature of an acute attack of gout is the sudden appearance of terrific pain at the base of one of the big toes. The pain is generally followed by swelling and extreme tenderness and has been described as feeling as though someone were trying to put the joint apart with a red hot poker. Actually, other joints can be involved very early in the disease. One of the first patients I ever saw with gout had swelling and pain in the knee with nothing at all in the big toe. An acute attack of gout can generally be relieved rather readily by drugs, particularly on known as colchicine.

After relief the problem becomes one of preventing recurrent attacks. This is generally attempted by dietary measures and exclusion of those foods containing large amounts of purines. Drug treatment is also commonly used. There is some difference of opinion on diet, however, and I am told and in and near some of the joints. They can reach enormous size and cause a good deal of destruction to the joint tissues. Fortunately, gouty arthritis is less common than acute gout. The objective of treatment is to try to prevent the development of gouty arthritis by drugs, of which there are now several kinds available, and by the prevention of attacks of acute gout. In some cases of gouty arthritis surgery has definite value and involves cutting out the crystal deposits. The increased interest of the last few years in gout has already brought improvement in its management and understanding. This progress will doubtless continue.

County Agent Leads in Idaho Experience

Dean of Idaho's county agricultural agents is C. W. Daigh of Twin Falls county. He has worked as a county agent for 34 years, beginning his work in Oregon, then operating in Rupert, Pocatello, and now Twin Falls. Daigh, who spends considerable time in the field, sits between two desks in his office on which various circulars, letters and communications are piled. (Staff photo—news-tribune)

Daigh Is Dean of Idaho County Agents After Working 36 Years in Two States

With 36 years of work as a county agricultural agent, C. W. Daigh, Twin Falls county agent, is dean of county agents in Idaho.

Known to almost all farmers in Twin Falls county, Daigh has held his position here since 1947. Before that he worked for 13 years as Minidoka county agricultural agent with offices in Rupert and before that spent five years as Bannock county agent in Pocatello from 1934 to 1939.

But even before Daigh began as county agricultural agent in Idaho he had spent eight years as agent in Casco county, Oregon, with headquarters in The Dalles. It was his first job and he began working there only three days after being graduated from Oregon State college.

Daigh was one of two graduates of a class of 98 students at OSC who were recommended for extension work. His high academic average in college enabled him to obtain the job, he says.

He was an above average student in animal husbandry and was listed into the Alpha Zeta honorary agriculture fraternity and the Phi Kappa all-school honorary which compares to the national scholastic honorary Phi Beta Kappa.

The work of a county agent has changed considerably since his first went to work. In Oregon Daigh had no assistants and he had to do all the work himself, including 4-H and home economics projects.

But it was gratifying work, he says. He is especially proud of the work he did with 4-H students in Oregon. At one time he had the largest 4-H delegation in the state to attend a two-week short course at OSC.

Daigh's primary work when he began as an agricultural agent was to try to justify the expense of farming by predictive programs and he worked principally on dry land wheat production, cherry production and with livestock.

But now he operates an educational program for stabilization and protection of agricultural interests in the county to make farming and farm living more profitable, cultural and secure and to help reduce costs and losses.

"I work as a representative of a land grant college (the University of Idaho) and the United States department of agriculture, employed by the county," he explains.

He is assisted in his work by Donald Youst, who works as an extension agent and with the county 4-H club and Florence Schultz, home demonstration agent.

Daigh was born in Pawnee county, Neb., and attended high school at Garretts, Kans. Later his family moved to Ontario, Calif., where they farmed.

After he was graduated from high school and before he began college Daigh worked for a year on a farm in the Imperial valley in California, and then again after his first year in college he worked during the summer on the farm.

Just before he went back to college to begin his second year the United States entered World War I and he was drafted. Daigh explains that he had tried to get into an officers candidate program while still in school, but the man in charge told him since he was taking agriculture he would be needed more in farming than in the army.

"I was a shanghaied volunteer," Daigh says.

He spent just one year in the army, inducted on the day colleges

ers of Bannock county could get government loans to see them through the worst of the depression and drought.

Then he spent considerable time buying cattle and sheep under a drought program.

"I purchased nearly 3,000 head of cattle and 2,000 sheep and shipped them out," Daigh notes. "I told the farmers, 'Don't be droutht'."

But after the drought was over the farmers, infested with scurries and rodder and Bannock county bought 100,000 pounds of poisoned grain to combat the scurries. Daigh was responsible for handling the project and seeing that all the grain was distributed.

All of the depression-fighting agriculture programs which came up during the war, usually by project agents, Daigh explains and it became quite a big job explaining the project to the farmer committee men plus handling the routine organizational work.

"And while I was at Pocatello we began testing commercial fertilizers for farm use. We had to run field trials and study the effect of crop yields, then give advice on use of fertilizer," he explains.

Daigh states that at first farmers used phosphate for fertilizers, but in the last 15 years they have been using more and more nitrogen.

Daigh says he usually projects the use of DDT in the households against flies and other pests. Daigh supervised as county agent.

"We even had a project for control of cattle grub and sprayed 3,000 cattle per year."

In 1935 Daigh moved to Minidoka county and set up his office in Rupert. He says his biggest job at Rupert was during World War II when the farmers were hit by shortages of labor and farm machinery.

Daigh arranged the program to handle prisoners of war for farm work and to supervise the prison camp at Paul.

He explains that the German POWs worked well on the farms but the Italians who had been prisoners of the English for four years before coming to America, knew all of the ways of getting out of work.

Besides the Germans and Italians, there were Japanese and a few Japanese from the relocation camp who worked for the farmers, says Daigh.

To solve the machinery shortages Daigh set up a community machinery auction in Rupert. He says the farmers brought their old surplus usable machinery to town every Saturday and it was sold to other farmers who needed it.

The Saturday machinery auction turned into one of the most successful in the state and also the largest, Daigh explains and says almost all of the other towns in Idaho started similar auctions.

"But the Rupert auction got so big it kept two auctioneers busy all day," he relates.

Daigh prefers his job in Twin Falls county to previous ones because he says his county has a better balance of livestock and crop programs. In fact, he says he likes Twin Falls county more than any county in the West.

Since he has been in Twin Falls county he has helped organize winter cattle feedlot tours, which are the largest in the state, has worked with the director of the sheep marketing association to get better grades of marketable lambs and improve quality of wool, and for several years has been chairman of the junior fat stock sale committee which is one of the largest in the nation. He also attended the county soils testing program 10 years ago.

Daigh has given considerable attention to bean and seed production and has worked on the problem of root rot and the ramifications from the root rot problem. He also has worked on the germination program of garden seed beans.

Of all the crops grown in the county, Daigh singles out alfalfa as the key crop because it improves soil fertility, and helps control soil

Grange Plans Rewiring for King Hill Hall

KING HILL, April 13—King Hill Grange voted Wednesday to investigate bids for the rewiring of the Grange hall. The Rev. R. L. Barnes presented an outline of the wiring plans sent to him by the Idaho Power company.

The King Hill Grange will enter into the Elmore County Pioneers Grange in June with a picnic. Reports were given by Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Harty, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jones and Karl Anderson on the Pioneers Grange Monday at Mountain Home.

Frank Jones, community and Grange representative for the vocational agriculture project, announced he would meet April 22 with the Glenn Perry Chamber of Commerce.

Master Lynn Sherman announced a roving auction sale April 18 at the Grange hall. Losers of the ticket selling contest will be the winners at April 23 meeting.

Mrs. Lynn Sherman, lecturer, arranged games for the program. Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Leonard Verick.

Minor Accidents Reported in T. F.

Two minor accidents were reported to Twin Falls city police Friday afternoon and night but no injuries were reported and damage was relatively light.

A 1934 Ford driven by Dorothy Purdy, 1606 Piler avenue east, and a 1955 Nash operated by Robert Wilson, 140 Park street, collided while the Purdy vehicle was being backed from a driveway.

Lewis M. Slaughter, Piler, reported that while he was pulling from a parking space, his 1955 Chevrolet struck a car parked in front of him and broke a tail light on the vehicle. The other car and left the scene when officers arrived.

Road Good

The Rock creek road to the third fork is in good condition. Reports the Sawtooth national forest officer in Twin Falls.

Edward Jarch, forest engineer, says the road "from the end of the pavement to the third fork has been treated by the Twin Falls highway district and the forest service."

Jarch says the camp grounds are "acceptable," but notes that no spring maintenance work has been done yet. He says this work will start "within the week."

Class of 1948 to Meet on July 19

A reunion is being planned by the Twin Falls high school class of 1948 July 19 at the Turf club.

Several members have been contacted and anyone having information is asked to call Mrs. Be Woodward, 3-1725. They are Robert Foster, Thurma Gregory, Margaret Harp, Jerry Harper, Kenneth Harp, Margaret Buckett, Mary Centers, Eugene Riet, Joan Roberts, Tumeo Takemoto, Alvin Thompson, LeLama, Martha Lee Johnson, Colleen Wickhorst and Bryo Jo Hansen.

Draws Jail Term

James Van Dyke, 61 Casper, Wyo., was sentenced to 15 days in jail and assessed 20 cents Friday after a jury trial before Police Judge J. O. Humphrey.

Van Dyke was charged with vagrancy by city police and later pleaded not guilty. The trial was held Friday in the city attorney's courtroom.

Van Dyke was not represented by counsel and Judge Humphrey said he offered no testimony in his own behalf.

THIS IS AN INVITATION

From a group of local businessmen to the residents of Magic Valley to participate in a campaign to help raise funds for CAMP CAPE HORN, summer camp for the Snake River Council of the BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA. Camp Cape Horn was purchased two years ago, with payments spread over a five-year period. Since the regular financing of the Snake River Council does not sufficiently cover this expenditure we are asking your support for this worthy cause.

The sponsors wish the public to understand that this is NOT A REQUEST FOR DONATIONS, nor can any be accepted through this campaign.

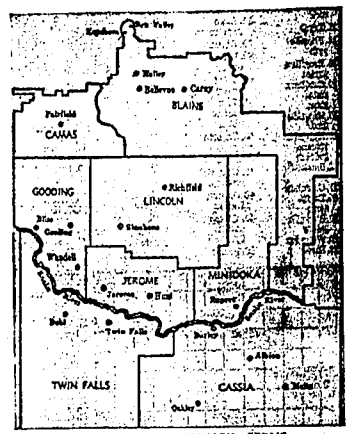

The list below contains over 100 nationally known publications, and we are authorized to accept your NEW, RENEWAL AND GIFT subscriptions.

This plan offers the people of Magic Valley an opportunity to place their Magazine Orders through a reliable source, and to keep a large share of the money here at home.

The prices of these publications are the same regardless of where they are purchased. If you have in your possession a special offer received from the publishers of any of these magazines we can accept it if you ATTACH IT TO YOUR ORDER.

—NOTE—By EXTENDING the subscriptions to your favorite magazines for another year or two—NOW—, instead of some future date, you can help make the project a success.

MAIL ORDERS ONLY, no one will call at your door. WON'T YOU SIT DOWN AND MAKE OUT YOUR ORDER RIGHT NOW—Thank you for your support.

WHO DOES OUR COUNCIL SERVE

The Snake River Area Council serves Scouting in nine Counties of Southeastern Idaho. At the present time there are 180 units and over 1381 adult leaders who bring Scouting to 4,100 boys.
