"LIVING IT UP" STANDARDS: Could it be our "live it up" philosophy which concerns itself little with individual security and contributes greatly to an artificial prosperity has finally run its course?

Standard is being living beyond our means? To use a cliché, is it a case of having had too much and now being faced with the sobering reality of paying the piper?

They don't like to admit we used poor judgment when, with "prosperity" at its peak, we continued to pour money down the drain instead of applying it to our nation's debt.

While we were telling ourselves "we had never had it so good," we gave little thought to why it was necessary to continue raising taxes and going more deeply into debt.

As recently as two or three years ago, it would have been difficult to get the average American much concerned about the possibility of a recession.

It was this complacency that paved the way for the great wave of entrenched bureaucrats to go on an unprecedented spree of throwing money to the four winds.

We shouldn't think of this sort of thing as applying to Detroit and other heavy industrial centers. We're having our own problems right here in Idaho.

There are definite signs we already have reached the point of doing just that. Either we must change our standards of living to world conditions or lose many an economic battle with our foreign competitors.

Model of Aircraft Carrier Is Displayed Here by Recruiter

A one-twentieth scale model of an Essex class aircraft carrier was displayed Friday and Saturday in front of the navy recruiting station at 249 Main avenue east in Twin Falls.

Chief Quartermaster Louis H. E. Hauge said it is complete in detail down to the last small gun.

The scale model carrier is 48 feet long to compare with the actual Essex class carriers which are 950 feet long and carry a crew of approximately 2,000 officers and men.

The little carrier is used throughout the West for recruiting purposes, according to Chief Steward Robert Z. Walker, who brought it here from Salt Lake City. It was made at the North Island naval air station in San Diego and took two years to construct, from 1947 to late 1948.

Chief Walker says the model was made from scrap material during the spare time of its creators at no expense to the government. It is made of wood, metal, and cloth and is mounted on a two-ton truck chassis.

Inside of the realistic-looking carrier is an engine which operates an electric generator to power the searchlights, gun mounts, radar screens and a sound amplifier and an air compressor which provides the power to fire the miniature guns.

The truck chassis houses the flight type display in parades or for short distances, but when moved between cities, it is carried on a semi-trailer.

Essex class carrier intercepter airplanes, both jet propelled and conventional propeller driven, are placed on the carrier's deck during displays. Propellers of the planes are powered by small electric motors in the plane.

The miniature carrier arrived in Twin Falls Thursday from Idaho Falls and was on display Friday and Saturday. It was taken Saturday night to Salt Lake City to be displayed, then to Pocatello, Logan, Provo, and then to Boise for the Snake River Stampede. It also will be displayed at the Rose festival in Portland, Ore., according to Chief Walker.

Library to Feature Space Theme This Summer

Listening attentively to a story about rockets and space read by Librarian Dorothy Evans are 8-year-old Judy Goley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Goley, and 4-year-old Jay Ronk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ronk, all Twin Falls. Summer Reading Program of Library to Begin Monday on "Outer Space" Theme

Twin Falls public library inaugurates the annual summer reading program for children Monday with themes based on the International Geophysical Year.

Librarian Arthur L. DeVolter says the program is highlighted with the theme, "The world in space," and "Through the spaceway with books."

"Countdown, three, two, one, zero" should be a common phrase in the library's juvenile room this summer," DeVolter muses.

The librarian says elementary school children will be urged to read a minimum of 10 books in categories which include fantasy and science fiction, sports, animal tales, biography, adventure, travel and history, science, pioneer and Indian stories.

In conjunction with the reading program, a weekly story hour and "record parade" will be held every Monday at 11 a.m. in the children's room. New books will be displayed and available for circulation.

DeVolter points out that to carry on the theme of the reading program, each participating child will be assigned a cutout missile showing his name and grade. "This replica of a space ship will be placed on a board on which there is a simulated moon and rocket-launching platform," the librarian says.

"As the child reports his reading progress, his ship will be advanced toward the moon," DeVolter notes, adding, "If he completes his reading assignments of the books in 10 categories, he may land on the moon which will be his base of operations."

In 1957, 320 youngsters registered for the "Rocket to Adventure" club. DeVolter notes, "Of this group over 112 children read five books or more. Parents are urged to encourage the children to participate in the program to keep up with reading ability during the vacation period and help

Economic Advance Said 'Bad' for West

WASHINGTON, May 31 (AP)—The West may be threatened today as the result of an economic offensive undertaken by hardheaded businessmen.

The Soviets are winning through in underdeveloped countries through the sale of commercial trade and the sale of loans, while the West is losing through the sale of goods to the communist economic club.

The booklet was published by the National Economic Development Council, which describes itself as a nonprofit organization devoted to the study of the economic problems of the West.

It was written by Michael Sapir, an economist now working for the United States Information Agency in Latin America.

The booklet is written by the secretary—under-secretary—of the study as a "clear and concise" study of the economic problems of the West.

Traffic Smash Is Reported at T. F.

Approximately $100 damage was estimated by Twin Falls city police as the result of an accident Saturday afternoon at the intersection of 6th Street and 6th Avenue North.

City police reported the accident involved a 1953 Chevrolet pickup truck driven by Willard M. Cronroy, 50, 211 Harrison street, and a 1954 Pontiac driven by Alice E. Siren, 42 route 7 in Twin Falls.

Damage to the right front fender, right door, right side, cab and trunk of the Chevrolet was estimated at $150. No injuries were reported.

Policemen said the pickup driver stated the Siren vehicle ran a stop sign. Cronroy was traveling on 6th Avenue North and the other car was traveling on Shoshone street.

No citations were reported on the police accident report.

Ike Receives Epistle From Soviet Chief

WASHINGTON, May 31 (AP)—President Eisenhower received a letter today reportedly agreeing to a truce to police any war on nuclear weapons.

Khrushchev had proposed to Eisenhower a work stoppage to be held in Geneva, Switzerland, by mid-June. He suggested that the western side be represented by scientists from the United States, Britain and France.

Khrushchev's reply was considered by officials here to mean that the meeting of Soviet and Western experts will get under way within the next two weeks.

Being translated.

The letter was given to Under-Secretary of State Christian Herter by Ambassador Mikhail A. Menzhinskiy. The state department said it was being translated and sent to the president.

Though the message was not made public it was considered to be a positive reply, from the point of view of American interest in trying to work out ways of enforcing a moratorium on testing.

The general secretary's fourth degree letter could lead to an East-West agreement for test suspension. Eisenhower has received recommendations for such a decision from Secretary of State Dulles and his science advisor, Dr. James R. Killian, Jr. He probably will rule in favor of the recommendations in the next few weeks.

Slope Tests

The Soviet government announced earlier this year that it would hold no more nuclear tests but reserved the right to reverse its position unless the United States and Britain followed the Russian example.

The United States and Britain nevertheless went ahead with planned experiments and the U. S. tests now under way in the Pacific will not be completed until some time in the summer.

All boys interested in playing American Legion Junior League in Twin Falls are asked to report at the Harmon park baseball diamond between 5 and 7 p.m. Monday night. Coach Harold Brown, who will handle this local practice, is eligible. He was on Twin Falls boys to try out again this year. Mantle Frets Over Number Of Strikeouts

NEW YORK, May 31 (AP)—Mickey Mantle is worried about his mounting streakout total after an inordinate swing around the West. "I've pitched six times in the last two days at Kansas City where the New York Yankees are playing," Mantle said. "I now have 32 whiffs for the year in 32 games. 'I've got to lick the thing myself,' said Mantle to The Federalist of the New York Journal-American. "I've got to get my way out of it, and I will."

Algeria Seen Less Hostile Toward U.S.

ALGIERS, Algeria, May 31 (AP)—Anti-Americanism is rampant in Algeria at the start of the army offensive May 31—has declined with the evolution of events in Paris.

Two weeks ago reporters arriving in Algiers were greeted by a stern French major with the comment: "We don't like Americans here. You'd better watch your step."

Only a month ago an American correspondent was roughed-up by toughs who tore up his notebook.

But today paratroopers salute and French officers often smile at U.S. newsmen. Crowds demonstrate wildly every day in the city, smilingly make room for Americans to pass.

It's a far cry from the day three weeks ago when mobs attacked the U.S. information center in Algiers. Frenchmen seem to want to forget about that.

"It was a mistake. The whole thing got out of hand," some say. "What brought it on?"

Reasons explained:

Some think the attitude of non-interference on the part of the United States has something to do with it. For some time, French nationalists here have felt the United States was trying to replace France in North Africa. The U.S. British good offices effort in the recent French-Tunisian talks inflamed French nationalists here.

Also the leaders of the "new movement" want to create a favorable reception for it among Americans.

The Algerian press daily reports U.S. press reaction to the French-Algerian strike. Editorials that viewed as inevitable the return of Gen. Charles de Gaulle to power were put on the front page.

"America has finally understood us," one publisher said.

Grandson Golfs With President

GETTYSBURG, Pa., May 31 (AP)—President Eisenhower played some golf today with his 10-year-old grandson.

The youngster, David Eisenhower, joined his grandfather on the second nine of an 18-hole round at the Gettysburg Country club.

David didn't play the entire nine. He was having a bit of trouble with his iron shots as he came down the stretch to the club house.

The President found the going a little rough, too. He took a one-over-par five on the 18th hole and apparently had other difficulties after a good 300-yard drive off the first tee at the start of the round.

Mosquitoes Aren't Much of Local Problem Unless Puddles Formed

Control of mosquitoes in Twin Falls is not a big job because the country is naturally arid... but if irrigation or rain water is allowed to form in puddles, mosquitoes will breed and grow in abundance...

Mosquitoes are controlled in Twin Falls by use of an oil and DDT solution sprayed on non-flowing water... by use of certain chemicals containing DDT and oil tossed into the water...

Ingalls explains the methods of control are not selective because of a small need. Nevertheless, some areas in which mosquitoes breed are not controlled...

Over the years, the city sanitation department has found the usual breeding grounds for mosquitoes and treats the areas annually...

Some small spots are unintentionally missed by the sanitation department, thus some mosquitoes are allowed to survive. The spots that are missed are small out-of-the-way puddles which are hard to find...

Just a cupful of water is enough to accommodate 250 mosquito larvae... Ingalls says.

Mosquito eggs get into small puddles of water because they are laid in mud during the fall and over winter till in the spring when they are washed downstream to the various ponds by spring floods...

To determine if mosquitoes have hatched from the egg to the larva stage, City Sanitation James R. Ingalls inspects small pools of water in the city by dipping out a cup of water and inspecting the water for the egg-laying little larvae...

Hubcap Comes Off in First Step of Changing Flat

Even getting the hubcap off is out of range of some motorists when it comes to changing a flat tire. Another cause of trouble is not knowing which way to turn the lugs on the wheels. Sandra Dessenberger, Twin Falls, says she knows how to change a tire. (Staff photo-courtesy)

Some Drivers Are Really Stymied By Flat Tires, Can't Change Them

Flat tires, not as common as they were 20 years ago, still are an irritation to some drivers, and for others as perplexing as anything could be because some motorists just don't know how to change tires...

Charles Herrick tells of changing at least four tires a month for motorists and John Nussbaum, who operates a wrecker truck, says he has changed 15 or 20 tires for motorists in the last two years.

Other garage workers in Twin Falls report an equal number of service calls to change tires for motorists. Not all calls are made because the motorists lack the knowledge to change tires, but 80 per cent are for that reason...

Herrick adds some persons don't even know they have a flat tire until they get to the gas and begin to smoke. Few people are in that category, he adds, but some people have been tired to him to be fixed that show the effects of being run several miles with flat.

Contrary to some thinking, the best thing a driver can do if inclined to believe his car has a flat tire is to stop. The only exception to this rule, state police point out, is when driving on a bridge or in a situation where stalled traffic is a safety hazard.

State Patrolman M. J. Bays, Jr., says if the eyes flash while crossing a bridge, such as Perrine Memorial bridge, they should continue on their own vehicle is off the bridge before stopping.

"We might not arrest them, but we would make them move their car, flat tire or not, because it is a safety hazard," Bays says.

The principle of changing a tire are simple, Nussbaum notes, but the

A hazard of motorists when changing flat tire is to allow the car to fall off the bumper jack. It is not so bad if the car falls away from the motorist, but if it falls towards the motorist as he works, it can be quite painful, as this motorist's face shows. (Staff photo-courtesy)

New Fishermen Get Tips on How To Reach Home With Fresh Catch

By BETH RHODENBAUGH. The fish and game department has a number of tips for new fishermen to help them get the most out of their fishing trips...

If the weather continues hot for the post-summer weeks, the fisherman will do well to give some extra thought to keeping his fish fresh, even if he is making only a one-day trip...

While nearly every experienced fisherman has a few special little customs of his own, all are usually aimed at keeping the fish in good condition...

Robert Irving, district conservation officer for north-central Idaho, says one who favors special attention to the creel. He insists on something with a firm frame—not a sack—with the fish rather carefully placed in it, with areas between...

In Case You've Forgotten, Season Opens Wednesday

Heading out Wednesday when the 1958 fishing season opens in Idaho, Mrs. and Mrs. Al Schumaker are making Ortigue creek. Here's Easiest Way to Get Someone to Change Flat Tire

For some drivers, the only way to know to change a flat tire is to ask the assistance of other motorists, and who wouldn't stop to help Harry Sturgeon McCoy and Sandra Dawson? Service men at Twin Falls garages and service stations report a number of calls for help because motorists lack the knowledge to change tires on their automobiles. Nine out of 10 of the calls are from women, garages note. Some of the calls asking for help are from motorists who lack the necessary tools to change tires. (Star photo-engraving)

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAITS

Neither Age Nor Custom Has Affect on Mrs. Sturgeon McCoy, Long Active Here

"Age cannot wither her, nor custom change her inflexible variety," Shakespeare's comment is a truer description of Mrs. Sturgeon McCoy, 927 Elm street, one of Twin Falls' leading citizens. She is a member of the church, civic and political affairs, and is a person who is not only active in politics and people duplicate her—Mrs. McCoy emphatically denies.

Currently she is serving on the state hospital board which deals with Hill-Burton federal funds and inspection of nursing and convalescent homes throughout Idaho.

Pointing out that Idaho has a higher percentage of older citizens than some states, Mrs. McCoy says her present interest is in older citizens and their care.

One of her more important activities in addition to being a leader in county and state Republican circles for many years, is school teaching. Mrs. McCoy comes from a long line of school teachers, both her parents as well as grandmothers and two aunts having been in the same profession. Mrs. McCoy was a school teacher in the same profession as her mother-in-law, Mrs. Sturgeon McCoy, who died in 1941. Mrs. McCoy was educated in the Attitude School in Cleveland, Ohio, and returned to her hometown to teach.

After her marriage to Sturgeon McCoy in 1910, the young couple came to Twin Falls where they lived north of Hansen. Mr. McCoy had purchased the farm two years before.

Life as a pioneer proved a rude shock to the young teacher from the old established Ohio town where she had led a sheltered life.

Here I had my first experiences with all kinds of things and I'd never seen either before, she recalls with a chuckle.

"The only trees in the whole area were along Rock creek and we would go there so we could sit under a tree if I ever wanted."

"One thing was that the rough life was a 'wonderful' effect—only the fact that it was between the city and the country, only because the mud and dust were just as thick on both when you got to Twin Falls.

"Many flat tires and blowouts can be avoided by motorists if they check their tires frequently," Nussbaum explains. By maintaining proper air pressure in the tires, they wear less and frequent inspections motorists can locate flats in the tires or weak spots.

He cautioned motorists not to depend upon air pressure readings after the tires have been driven any length of time. The air in the tire heats up and gives an untrue reading. To get a correct reading in the tire pressure, the tire should be checked before it is run, and the inside air will be of the same temperature as the outside air.

MRS. STURGEON MCCOY

Two Falls where she continued her teaching as a substitute in both grade and high schools. She taught Sunday school in the Presbyterian church nearly all her life and has always been an active church worker.

Red Cross has been another field of service for Mrs. McCoy. During World War I she was in charge of making special dressings at Hansen.

"I couldn't make one to save my life, but I sure could boss the job," she recalls with a chuckle.

A new concept of Red Cross work was developed in Twin Falls during the time Mrs. McCoy was president of the county chapter. She was elected vice chairman of the GOP state central committee and attended the national Republican nominating convention in 1952.

She has long been interested in politics and believes firmly that government should be the concern of every individual.

She was one of the early members of the League of Women Voters when it was organized in Twin Falls 17 years ago, and stresses her belief that "the way to have better government is to get in a party and work to make better government."

Her interest in young people is what keeps her "outlook young," Mrs. McCoy believes.

Her husband died several years ago. Mrs. McCoy has two sons, Harry S. McCoy, Spokane, and G. P. McCoy, Philadelphia.

Some Drivers Perplexed by Flat Tires Because They Just Can't Change Them

So cannot be accomplished unless the motorist has the proper tools, a lug wrench and a lug wrench.

The jack is used to raise the car to get the tire off the ground so the wheel and tire can be removed. Jacks are relatively simple to operate, says a says out if not used properly, and with caution, can be dangerous. Most important thing to remember when using a jack is to have the car so it cannot move. The best way is to put on the hand brake, leave the car in gear or "park," and block the wheels.

The jack should be placed under the bumper on the side of the flat tire, or if a floor jack is used, it should be placed under the axle. Most new or late model cars come equipped with bumper jacks.

The jack should be on a firm foundation so as not to sink into the ground when pressure is applied. Most bumper jacks have a small lever, which when in an upright position will cause the jack to raise the car. When the lever is in their down position and the jack is adjusted the jack will lower the automobile.

Motorists should be quite certain they have a lug wrench (used to loosen and tighten the lugs on the wheels which hold the wheels to the axle). The lugs are sometimes called nuts, and the lug wrench should be of the proper size.

Different makes of automobiles have different size wheel lugs, so lug wrenches are not interchangeable.

"We have been called to help many motorists because their lug wrenches were not the right size for the lugs on the car's wheels," Herrick notes.

Head lamp wrenches are designed to serve three purposes. Besides being used as a lug wrench, they serve as a screw driver and as a bar to pry off the hubcap.

If the lug wrench is not made to fit the three purposes, motorists should be certain they have a handle to take off and counter-clockwise to the opposite. Some automobile manufacturers mark the lugs with an A or an R to designate which way to turn the lugs when taking them off.

When the wheel is raised sufficiently to clear the ground, remove the lugs and place them in the hubcap so you won't lose them.

The spare tire, usually kept in the trunk of an automobile, should be taken out of its housing before the tire is raised. Most spare tires are held in place in the housing by one lug, similar to the ones holding the wheels on the car. By using the lug wrench to loosen the lug, then unscrewing it by hand, the spare tire can be lifted out of the trunk.

A tip from the garageman is to get a pair of gloves handy in the vehicle so as to not get hands dirty.

When the lugs are removed from the flat tire wheel, the wheel will also fly off the mounting and out of the fender well by pulling it from the bottom outward.

The spare tire and wheel can be installed on the vehicle in practically the same manner as the flat tire and wheel is removed, first pushing the tire and wheel into the wheel housing top first, then lifting it upwards so as to line it up on the mounting, then put on the lugs and tighten them as much as possible.

When the lugs are sufficiently tight, then lower the car on the jack, remove the jack and tighten the lugs again.

But don't get the lugs too tight, Herrick cautions. The threads of the lugs can be stripped by too much pressure or it is actually possible to damage the wheel by getting the lugs too tight.

Put the spare tire back in the trunk of the automobile, put the lugs back on the wheel by simply pushing it into place, put the jack and tire wrench back into the trunk and the job is complete.

"But be sure and get the flat tire as soon as possible, Nussbaum says in a mail purchase, when the next flat tire will occur.

He adds that if the tire goes flat in a mail purchase, and the nail is still in the tire when it is changed, don't pull the nail out, leave it for the mechanic, because the nail is easier for him to find the leak.

When changing tires, police caution motorists to be sure their automobiles are well off to the side of the road, and at night it is best to post someone with a flashlight to warn oncoming traffic.

A tip by garagemen as to how to locate a flat tire, for instance, is to take a hubcap in front of a headlight which reflects the light back to where the person is working on the tire.

Many flat tires and blowouts can be avoided by motorists if they check their tires frequently, Nussbaum explains. By maintaining proper air pressure in the tires, they wear less and frequent inspections motorists can locate flats in the tires or weak spots.

He cautioned motorists not to depend upon air pressure readings after the tires have been driven any length of time. The air in the tire heats up and gives an untrue reading. To get a correct reading in the tire pressure, the tire should be checked before it is run, and the inside air will be of the same temperature as the outside air.

Gifted Pupil Often Ignored, 'Dullard' Pushed, Says Idaho College Professor

lead or draw out, to bring whatever special abilities the child may have to full development. To get on with education, it is necessary to discover a child's abilities, and to understand the optimum conditions for their flowering. Crude as our tools are for these determinations, they are yet adequate for rough classification as to general scholastic aptitude, and evidence showing the need for different learning conditions for students of markedly different scholastic aptitudes.

In view of all this we ask again: Why has the gifted child been ignored? A second answer that presents itself is that the bright child does not present a conspicuous problem in the classroom. He completes his work rapidly, and the ensuing boredom is not often noted. In addition, because he is not a problem to the teacher, she ignores him, and these children, of course, do not copy their own supplementary activities.

Some time spent in special classes is more rewarding to the child, and does not interfere with his general development. Further, it has been proven that time spent in special classes has a harmful effect on the child's personality. Special provisions for the gifted child are especially important not only in view of his greater potential, but to society, but in view of the much lengthened training program necessary if he is to follow a professional career.

This neglect of the gifted is even more difficult to understand, for yet another reason — one that revolves about a simple matter of scholastic aptitude. Teachers working with the returned children often experience extreme frustration at the very small gains made, and the extreme demands placed upon their time and energy to achieve these small gains.

One teacher can handle only a small number of pupils, for otherwise she can not hold their attention. A great deal of special equipment is also needed. On the other hand, teachers working with the returned children, at their willingness and ability to devise projects, and at the extent to which they are able to direct their own activities. Given little more than a room, a few small pieces of equipment, a few books, an hour or so from the regular school routine, a little guidance, and they launch themselves to a large extent.

This suggests that money spent on the returned child probably is a little compared to the results of equal spending on the gifted child. Mr. Wainwright, however, stresses that money spent on the gifted child should be spent on the gifted child, and not on the returned child.

Local Man Has Plenty of Experience With Wrecks

Wrecked automobiles make daily work for John W. Nusbaum, who operates a wrecker truck in Twin Falls. The driver of this car lost control of it while attempting to pass a truck, and the car careened down...

the borrow pit and struck a telephone pole. Nusbaum had to pull the car out of the ditch first before figuring how the car could be towed. (Staff photo-entouring)

With the wrecker car close to his truck, John W. Nusbaum hooks cables from the wrecker's boom to the rear end of this car and pulls it into towing position. The rear wheels of the car were practically torn...

off when it struck a telephone pole, so Nusbaum towed it backward, conducting the steering wheel so it would not allow the car to swerve. (Staff photo-entouring)

Wrecker Operator Notes No Two Calls Alike, Tells of More Unusual Tasks

"No two calls are alike," says John W. Nusbaum, who operates a wrecker truck in Twin Falls. "I have had the truck almost the same but I usually wind up doing each job a little different because of the situation."

The job he performs with his wrecker truck includes a variety of things, ranging from lifting a steer out of a pen to towing a loaded diesel truck that weighs 72,000 pounds to Twin Falls from Berger.

Most of the calls he receives are not over the police radio, but over the telephone, and many of them are from persons in need of a tow to get them out of the mud, or to get their disabled cars to a garage.

Of the two and one-half years he has had on the job, he says he has been only six days vacation. Some one else ran the truck on his vacations, because there has never been a day or two go by without his weekdays, Sundays and holidays that the wrecker truck hasn't been working.

"It is the kind of job I wanted though, and I love every minute of my work," he explains. "It is an exciting job and sometimes requires plenty of ingenuity too, figuring out methods of pulling cars or trucks or working out means of towing one car off from another."

He claims to thrive on working for long periods at a time, noting he sometimes gets weary when he works for periods of 12 or 24 hours. Being on call 24 hours a day is just that, he explains. Nusbaum maintains radio in his truck, at the garage and in his home which he uses to monitor city and county police radios.

The 2200-pound diesel truck he towed to Twin Falls was an easy job, Nusbaum explains. The engine on the truck had failed, so Nusbaum went to the rescue.

The truck was loaded with steel and it contained on top of the car, pinning the driver of the car. Nusbaum says he had to lift the truck out of the way first, then bystanders immediately began to remove all the steel so the driver could be reached. Both the truck driver and the automobile driver were killed.

Mosquitoes Not Much of Problem Here Until Irrigation Puddles Not Drained

(Continued from Page 1) Irrigation ditches with insufficient slope. A few minutes with a shovel is all that is necessary to open many pools to allow them to dry up, Ingalls explains.

Three years ago when Rock creek drained, Ingalls suggests using a solution of oil and DDT. The solution can be purchased already mixed through retail stores or can be mixed by the individual.

Ingalls suggests that farmers should water solution. A foam nozzle allows the solution to be used over a large area and is best because it kills the oil and DDT is needed to kill the breeding areas. (The same as local breeding, because the mosquitoes will blow across country to agitate humans and lay eggs to bring more mosquitoes.)

Control of flies is another of the jobs of the sanitation department and is accomplished only by offering corrective measures. The most effective method of controlling flies is to destroy their breeding grounds such as garbage cans or refuse dumps.
