T.F. Citizen Shocked and Alarmed at Light Voting

Editor, Times-News:

Another election concerning issues vital to the safety, growth and development of Twin Falls has come and gone. I for one was shocked and alarmed to learn of the meager number of citizens registered to vote at the election, and the few who voted on the issues—not even 2,600 people of the reported 18,000 population of Twin Falls.

What will it take to teach our people the value of their right to vote?

No blame for failure of the election should be laid to any group of people or organization of our city. It appears from the record that our citizens are just not interested either in the welfare of our city or their American birthright—the right to vote.

With world news of strife and rebellion across the seas every day brought about by dictatorship and oppression in countries where elections are a farce, one wonders if our people will even read or listen. If they did they would surely heed the warning.

DAV Auxiliary Gives Support To Holiday Closing of Stores

Editor, Times-News:

I can remember when I was a member of the Disabled American Veterans auxiliary, I readily and heartily agree with the letter written by Frank W. Hogeness in the June 1 Times-News.

We feel that all persons should not patronize any business house that is open on Memorial Day, Veterans Day, Nov. 11. Those days, we feel, should be to honor our war dead and not a day of celebration.

I am quite sure if the public did not stop to buy on these days the business people would soon find out it would not be profitable to open and would automatically stay closed. Also on the Sabbath.

Mother of Jerome Girl Riding In Car Says She Doesn't Drink

Editor, Times-News:

In your account of the accident which occurred on June 22 at Falls avenue east and Blue lakes boulevard north there are two glaring errors in paragraph 2, page 2, "The five... had an all day beer drinking party."

No, Lenora Stowell does not drink. Any vote made will prove her sober.

No. 2—She attended Sunday school as is her custom, at dinner at home, washed the dishes and left about 1:30 p.m.

We know the grandparents of the little girl. They are aware of our grief and sorrow for her death. Our regret cannot restore her to life. And how, above all, can people keep the homes they own in Twin Falls and pay all these extras and live on $100 a month social security after 65 years of age, some only $80?

Apology May Be Due, Says Idaho Woman in Note

Editor, Times-News:

Mrs. Grace Pfost says congress tried to raise their salaries from $15,000 to $22,500, but she did not mention the extra office expense of $1,000 or the increased postage for each congress member.

Now, my information came from a Democrat who has been in Washington for many years. Mrs. Pfost did not deny she voted for the ex-fra federal judge mentioned in my letter to the editor at a salary of $15,000 per year for life. However, if my information was wrong I want to make apologies to her on the daily support price.

They're All Together for First Time in 55 Years

Two sisters and a brother were together for the first time in 55 years Friday at Filer for the purpose of a family reunion. Separated in 1903 from their home in Nebraska, were, from left, Mrs. Effie L. Smith, Santa Barbara, Calif., Homer Schnell, Filer, and Mrs. Irene McNulty, Sutherland, Neb. They planned a family picnic and reunion for today. (Bluff photo-engraving)

All Together for First Time Since 1903, Trio Sets Picnic

FILER, June 28—After 55 years, two sisters and a brother were reunited Friday at Filer and immediately began to make plans for a 25-member family reunion picnic at the home of Homer Schnell, 215 North street, Filer.

The three Schnell, his sister, Mrs. Effie L. Smith, Santa Barbara, Calif., and a half-sister, Mrs. Irene McNulty, Sutherland, Neb., were separated in 1903. Schnell and Mrs. Smith were taken to Oklahoma by one of their parents and Mrs. McNulty, then 2 months old, stayed in Johnson county, Nebraska, where they were born. In later years, they have seen and visited each other, but the meeting in Filer is the first time all three have been together.

Mrs. Smith, a former resident of Twin Falls, was married in Oklahoma. Schnell, who was 9 when the separation occurred, later left Oklahoma and went to Colorado where he was married. Mrs. Smith came to Twin Falls in 1924 and lived there until she moved to California in 1936. Schnell came to Filer in 1924 and has been a canal ditcher for the past 22 years.

The reunion came about when Mrs. McNulty went to California to visit her sister, Mrs. Smith. The two sisters decided to come to Filer and visit their brother and hold a reunion.

Approximately 25 members of the trio's families are expected to attend the reunion picnic Sunday. There could be more if all families of the three meet. Mrs. Smith has five children, 13 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. Schnell has four children and eight grandchildren and Mrs. McNulty has one son and the grandchildren.

'Oust Manager, Stop Waste,' Asks Resident of South Park

Editor, Times-News:

Yes, it took South Park voters to beat the bond election. Now let's oust the city manager, stop so much waste of money such as hiring farmers to work for the city and people who own and rent homes and talk about wanting to force people to pay for spraying.

Just look along the rock wall in South Park and other places where the city is supposed to clean and burn, a place for bugs to breed. We have too much taxes now. How can people whose wages have not been raised in years pay these extra expenses? How can young people ever own homes and keep up a city patterned after California cities when no new factories or payrolls are brought into town, when other towns are getting new factories and plants to make payroll?

And how, above all, can people keep the homes they own in Twin Falls and pay all these extras and live on $100 a month social security after 65 years of age, some only $80?

Anti-Freeze Vote Of Solon Blasted By Man in Area

Editor, Times-News:

Sunday we attended a party at the Turf Club. Wonderful party, wonderful place, wonderful city, wonderful people, wonderful dance floor and no one dancing. The organ was playing the Missouri waltz and I invited the leading lady for a dance. "Here, I would love to, but I am afraid."

You know Congressman Budget said he voted against the farm price freeze, and he did, ya he did.

He voted against every farmer and businessman in Idaho.

So with your love for Maale Valley and the demand for individuals whose performance is above average and therefore different, lets forget we inherited our politics and all vote for our fellow townman, Bob Summerfield, for we all know he will represent Idaho.

Writer Seeking Aid in Locating Kin for History

Editor, Times-News:

Could you help me locate descendants of Ida Lambert? Her father, Blacey Adria Lambert, died in Twin Falls. Her mother's name was Sarah. She had four brothers, George, David, Henderson and James (1885-1924) and a sister, Sarah or Bady.

WASHINGTON

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (RE)—Elzenhower administration public relations got some pretty rough criticism here at the Republican headquarters today.

The GOP school for the GOP state chairmen.

Principal complaint was that the Elzenhower programs and so-called "peace" claims hadn't been sufficiently well sold to the general public.

Elzenhower cut Truman's budget in 1954—was 40-60 million dollars.

There have been income tax cuts of 7.5 billion dollars.

Seventy million Americans received income tax reductions.

Over 80 per cent of the cuts went to middle and low-income families.

The health bill of 1954 made it easier for people to buy, build or rent adequate housing.

The minimum wage was raised from 75 cents to $1 an hour.

All these statements affected average people. They should have known they had been benefited, but didn't.

One reason given for this result was that President Elzenhower, though he has frequently used nationwide broadcasts, hasn't had the policy ability of his predecessor Franklin D. Roosevelt in selling his programs in intimate district clubs.

Another more cynical view of the Elzenhower findings was that the results were no different from what would have been expected.

It was argued that American voters are always pretty uninformed about political issues. It was said that people vote by instinct, not reason.

In support of this view, it was argued further that it didn't make any difference if people didn't know what was true or false, because Elzenhower was sure.

This brought out another conclusion of the Elzenhower survey. It was an attempt to answer the question, "What makes people vote the way they do?"

Four principal motives were given: Ability of the candidate. Personality of the candidate. Party loyalty.

When it came to party loyalty, the conclusion was reached that people generally vote for the slogan of ability and personality. Laues and party loyalty are considered secondary.

In voting for senators, the survey indicated that a combination of ability and ability had most influence.

In voting for representatives, party loyalty was said to be the dominant factor.

Jordan River Seem
Small for History

AMM—For a stream that has made such a place in history the Jordan River seems so small that it is almost unnoticeable.

It is only about 65 miles from where the sacred river rushes out of the sea of Galilee to where it pours into the Dead Sea. For much of its length it is a mere trickle in an international situation, it is perfectly safe to visit.

When it was first visited, I grabbed it.

From the air, the river looks like a long green and brown ribbon winding its way across a barren landscape. The Jordan is a few hundred yards across the Jordan plain. It is a few hundred yards across the Jordan plain. It is a few hundred yards across the Jordan plain.

But as one approaches the river from the east, by land, he is unaware of its presence until he comes to the brink of the trench. It has gouged out of the Palestinian earth. Even then he will probably not see the brown water of the Jordan in the Jordan plain. The reason is that the river bottom lies in a sort of groove it has cut in the ancient earth.

Bank Files Case
To Revive Claim

The Chase National Bank of New York filed an action in Twin Falls district court Friday seeking to revive a judgment for $1,884.27 against John J. Wolfe.

The bank says on July 18, 1952, it obtained a judgment in Twin Falls district court against Wolfe. The complaint states the judgment remains unpaid and has become dormant. J. Dean Mosher is attorney for the bank.

THE NIGHT RAIDERS
Ride Again...

What probably lured him this was a succession of carion fates, each one 30 to 40 miles farther up than the one preceding. At that rate it would be no trick at all to wander the 200 miles distance we were from the Nile.

The vultures hang in the sky, slowly circling thousands of feet up. And they aren't watching the ground with their telescopic eyes. Each one keeps looking at its neighbor. When one starts down, those nearest follow and so on in a chain reaction that can easily include each one of the great birds for scores of miles.

Ex-Ketchum Men
To Remodel Hotel

POCAHONTO, June 22 (AP)—One of the new owners of the Yellowstone hotel says renovation will begin Tuesday in a campaign aimed at returning it to first-class status.

The owners are D. D. Daniels, Democratic state treasurer and state attorney Frank D. Sobala. Both are former Ketchum residents.

Daniels said the renovation program will be spread over a five-year period.

Mac Saves Inspirations That Come to Him While Sleeping

By HENRY McLEMORE.

For years I have been reading how men and women who write for a living always keep a pad and pen on their bedside tables, and how they are always hopping up in the middle of the night to jot down their inspirations. I have been planning to do this for a long time, but it was not until a couple of nights ago that I got around to doing it. Before I crawled into bed I placed an open book where I could grab it, and beside it I placed a fountain pen that would write under water, just in case I knocked over the glass of water in my haste to get to work when inspiration hit me. What a shame it would be, if I mentioned as possible presidential candidates? Seems like we always have five or six old standbys, and no one else.

There must be hundreds, if not thousands, of capable, talented, dedicated men in the United States capable of doing a good job as president. With elections two years away, we already know the handful of names from which the Republican and Democratic candidates will be chosen.

Why? The men we know about are okay, yes, but there must be many many more men equally as blessed with brains and integrity, etc. If there is no way to uncover them? Could it be that only a few men have the brass required to stand up before their countrymen and say, "I am the most capable man in the United States and should have the job of running this? Does take a bit of gall, at that, you know."

Note No. 2: Why are we all so excited about having a rocket shot to the moon? It won't do a blasted thing for us a particle of good. It would make more sense for us to get all hepped up about the invention of a can opener that really worked, or a paper towel that really dried, or an airplane that would give up its fat cubes without a last-ditch fight.

Things Are Looking Brighter On Farms to GOP Politicians

WASHINGTON, June 28 (UPI)—Things political are looking a bit brighter for Republicans on a number of places—the farms.

Not on all of the farms, of course, but enough of them to give some farm belt Republican candidates something cheerful to think about.

Credit for that will be disputed by those who believe that the Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson substantially credits his conservative farm policies which tend away from high and rigid farm price subsidies.

A Democratic wheat farmer in western Kansas would be more inclined to credit the almighty and weather which are bringing in toward harvest a big wheat crop. However much the weather may help, it is obvious that Benson.

Anything, in fact, that would affect our daily lives right now.

None of us is going to get to the moon, and if we did—well, so what? You can see that I am not going to bother about a pad and a pen any more.

After the July meeting, all meetings will be on the fourth Thursday of each month instead of on the third Tuesday.

Delegates found the ice caves more interesting than the type of caves in the Black Hills of South Dakota and in other states.

Special Barge Used to "Knit" Giant Fish Net Behind Brownlee Dam

It's on this specially built barge, 152 feet long and 48 feet wide, that workmen now are weaving that giant net for Brownlee dam's unique downstream-miscellaneous fish facilities.

Here, with the aid of those wicket-like hoops on the deck, they first fasten wire mesh to stout steel cables unreeled from spools such as the one at right. Then they stretch the mesh with 1/2-inch-square openings to the wire mesh with special clamps.

As the net grows in this fashion, it is being floated horizontally across the reservoir toward the Oregon shore. The bottom of the net will be allowed to sink when fabrication is completed, pulling the net barrier into its vertical position. First of its kind over built, the 2,800-foot-long and 120-foot-deep net is designed to prevent salmon and steelhead fingerlings from going through Brownlee's turbines or over its spillway as they swim downstream. Three legions "salmoners" attached to the net are expected to trap the young intruders, which then will be delivered through a rubber pipeline to tank trucks on the Idaho shore. The trucks will return them to the river below Obovo dam, 12 miles downstream. Idaho Power company is spending several million dollars to build the pioneering facilities and expects to have them in operation in August. Brownlee will produce the first of 14 250,000 kilowatts of power by September. (Staff engraving)

Egger Hands Wait for Slice of Fresh-Baked Bread

Six-year-old Sheila O'Halloran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry O'Halloran, is eagerly awaiting for the first slice of bread which her mother is buttering for her from a freshly baked loaf. Mrs. O'Halloran, who bakes fresh bread and rolls for her family at least once or twice a week, keeps the surplus in a deep freezer. She does not find it extra work to bake bread regularly but just another homemaking routine to please her family. (Staff photo-engraving)

Homemade Bread's Daily Feature on Family's Menu

The rounded, crusty loaves of bread that end the pantry list at the end of each day's baking are a quick becoming memory of a generation. But the art of making bread is not a lost one in the home of Mrs. Harry O'Halloran, nor is the scent of fresh-baked bread just a memory.

Even though freezer shelves have replaced the pantry shelves, Mrs. O'Halloran still bakes bread once or twice a week for her family, her husband and the three daughters still living at home, Colleen, Annette and Sheila. When their other three children, Mrs. Herman (Barbara) Severs, Mrs. Dick (Patsy) Stirling and Tony, who is going to Cornell college, Helena, Mont., were at home she baked more frequently. Even now they never leave home empty-handed.

Mrs. O'Halloran said her mother and mother-in-law always made their own bread and it was something she more or less took for granted along with other homemaking routines. She added that the fact that her husband all but refuses to eat bakery bread is what still keeps her doing it.

Many homemakers use the time involved as an excuse for not baking for their families. O'Halloran finds it too trouble to fit it in a busy schedule including working three hours a day, running errands, and a street to assist her mother care for her invalid father, making all the dishes for her daughters, baby sitting with grandchildren and other activities. Occasionally, daughter Annette's work "dovetails" with hers.

She also is at work. Her standby recipe, one she has found to be the simplest and all ways seems to turn out good, is a straight-dough process using 10 cups of sifted flour, three heaping tablespoons lard, five tablespoons yeast, two tablespoons salt and one quart of lukewarm water plus two yeast cakes or 250 packages dry yeast, one tablespoon sugar and one cup lukewarm water.

Dissolve yeast and one-tablespoon sugar in one-cup lukewarm water.

By The Associated Press
St. Louis rookie Gene Green banded out his first major league grand slam home and veteran Sal Maglie gave up only five hits Saturday as the Cards routed Philadelphia, 10-1, in a game marked by the season's third major league triple play. Twin Anthony A. PGA official, suggested a $1,000 fine after being told of Bolt's performance at Piping Rock.

It was claimed Bolt used abusive language to Shields who met him at the airport. Bolt reluctantly started play in the one-day charity event at Piping Rock but quit after nine holes. He said he was not feeling home. He said there was increasing reason to believe the major leagues are going to step into the minor league more frequently. He said a special meeting to discuss the plight of the minor leagues was being held in New York City.

Cardinals Tip Phils Despite Triple Play

By The Associated Press St. Louis' rookie Gene Green banged out his first major league grand slam homer and veteran Sal Maglie

Here's how the triple play came about: Flood bled out an infield hit to the seventh inning. Wally Poff dropped a fly by Stan Musial and Ken Boyer lined to second baseman Phil Mena.

The pace—setting Milwaukee Braves, with nothing to show for seven games with the low Los Angeles Dodgers this year except defeat, finally turned on their offensive to hammer out a resounding 7-3 victory.

Rookie right-hander Carl Willey was the distance as he limited Los Angeles to four hits. It was Willey's second straight major league victory.

The Pittsburgh Pirates put the odds on a 7-game losing streak, thumping the Chicago Cubs 7-3 with the help of four-run homers by Bill Mazeroski and Earl Bateman.

Bob Skinner's base-loaded single, an error by shortstop Ernie Banks and Ted Kluszewski's double produced the runs in the fifth.

New Signs Direct Tourists to Famed Shoshone Falls

Signs being erected by the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce and the Shoshone Falls Tourist Committee are designed to answer the most frequent question asked by tourists, "How do you get to Shoshone Falls?" Thirteen of the signs are being erected on U.S. highways 23 and 30 and Idaho state highways 50 and 74. Erecting this sign are, from left, Mack Dodson, member of the tourist committee; Mitchell Hunt, chamber secretary; manager; Bill Chancey, chairman of the tourist committee; and Garth Olson, a "drafted helper." Big Plow Capable of 36-Inch Deep Furrow Used on Sandy Farmlands

A plow which digs into the ground 36 inches is showing promise of turning nearby 10,000 acres of sandy farmland southwest of Jerome into profit producing land, according to Dale Munk, local soil conservation district conservationist.

The big plow with three 50-inch discs is being used by the SCSS to turn good clay subsoil on top of the present sandy soil to give a good loam soil, Munk explains.

Used on Trial Basis
The northside soil conservation district is using the plow now on a trial basis. If it proves a success, as Munk believes it will, the district plans to purchase it. The plow is to be used cooperatively by the farmers of the district. The plow, valued at approximately $6,000, is made by a firm in California and distributed by the Western Equipment company in Twin Falls.

Partners of the soil conservation district paid freight on the big plow to Jerome for the trial.

Tried on Farm
The plow is being used by the SCSS and farmer Ed Bowman on Bowman's farm one and one-half miles south of one mile west of the Orchard Valley school. Bowman's land, which is sandy, produced poor crops and the sand drifted. In addition he had considerable irrigation problems.

Munk explains the plow turned up the clay subsoil so that the land is now a satisfactory mixture of clay and sand which will make farm land.

Munk notes that the plow presents a few problems. However, he feels most of the problems will be worked out satisfactorily.

Hydraulic Problem
Most troublesome problem of the machine is that it is raised and lowered into the ground by hydraulic mechanisms powered by a hydraulic unit mounted on the tractor which pulls it. Munk says the farmers intend to use the machine behind several different tractors since the hydraulic unit will fit only certain types of tractors. It cannot be rotated as the farmers desire.

Tractors of the Caterpillar D-7 or D-8 or International TR-18 size are necessary to pull the plow.

Munk proposes to make a modification on the plow which will incorporate a self-powered hydraulic unit on the plow so it can be pulled by any tractor and can be hitched easily to the tractor.

More Flowing Scheduled
"As soon as we get the hydraulic system worked out satisfactorily, we intend to use the plow every day. We already have 140 acres of sandy farmland scheduled to be plowed with the machine," Munk notes.

The plow will cut a swath 30 inches wide using two of the discs on it or about 45 to 50 inches wide using three discs. By pulling the plow with a D-7 Caterpillar tractor it can pull half an acre of land per day.

Munk explains the slow plowing results because the device is made to plow only one way and the machine has to return to the end of the farmers' field.

At first glance, it appears Ed Bowman, farmer southwest of Jerome, is working in a ditch. Actually, he's measuring a 23-inch-deep furrow left by a huge disc-type plow at his farm. Land is being plowed by northside soil conservation district to turn under sand and bring clayish subsoil to top to improve qualities of soil. (Staff photo-engraving)

Tourists Ask Many Questions at Local Motels, Service Stations

"How are the highways between here and the Shoshone?" asked Mrs. Irvn G. Christian, operator of a service station. "Most tourists want to know how to get out to the (Shoshone) Falls," Christian says. "However, they ask about routes, good motels, good places to eat and other things about the weather."

There is a service station on almost every corner along the highways offering as much information as it can to help tourists enjoy their vacations. Floyd Ireland, manager of a station on Kimberly road, says, "It takes me an hour a day just to explain how to get out to the (Shoshone) Falls." He says more people ask about the falls than anything else except about maps they request.

"Sixty per cent of our trade is tourists," Ireland says. "Many are interested in Idaho agriculture and our hunting and fishing. We try to give them all the information we can, and the Chamber of Commerce gives us lots of pamphlets about the state."

"People write to us from all over the country," says Mrs. Rodney T. Can, office secretary of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce. "They want to know about the Sawtooth basin area. Many stop there and then go on to Glacier National park."

Mrs. Tegan says more people are camping out with their families, or are inquiring about renting small trailer houses for a week or two.

"What we need to offer tourists are ready-made camps," she says. "The closest ones are in the south hills and in Hagerman valley, and that is what I tell them. These are 25 and 35 miles away."

Mitchell Hunt, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, estimates that 5 to 10 per cent of the income of Twin Falls comes from the pockets of tourists.

The chamber, in cooperation with the forest service and other interested groups, tries to promote Magic Valley so tourists will stop here and stay a while. To help travelers find Shoshone Falls, a tourist committee headed by Bill Chancey has put up directional signs. Chancey says the committee hopes to have eight up soon. The signs direct tourists from state highway 50, U.S. 30 and Falls avenue east.

The slogan used by the chamber in this promotion for Idaho tourism is "What you see is what you get."

Ground Squirrel and Bird Are Best of Pals

Good friends are a parakeet and pet ground squirrel at the Lorn Mitchell home at 203 Adams street, Twin Falls. The ground squirrel has been in captivity for 14 months and plays with members of the Mitchell family as if it were a cat. The parakeet is of the same nature.

Ground Squirrels, Dogs and Bird Add up to Menagerie for Family

Farm Wife Finds Time to Work as Commercial Artist and Instructor

KIMBERLY, June 28—It would seem that Mrs. Leslie McInturf, Kimberly, would not have time for her farm wife duties, what with her extra-curricular activities of a commercial artist and an instructor. But she does the family housekeeping for her family of two girls, a boy and her husband, care for a flock of chickens and lambs and makes all of her family's clothes.

One recently she was a leader of a 4-H group, one of the most active in Magic Valley, but she has quit to be able to devote more time to art work.

Her art work consists of specialized fashion, cosmetics, jewelry and portrait work in mediums of pencil, pastels, water colors, India ink and oils. She teaches art to two classes of youngsters who go to her house once a week for lessons.

"I've been interested in art work since I was in high school," says the attractive mother. She was graduated from Hazelton high school in 1934. She never attended college.

From the first art course I learned a lot about using water colors and oils and about perspective, that is, judging the qualities of a picture, but I'm more interested in pencil drawings so in 1954 I subscribed to the second art course. I should finish it in two more months, mostly for advertising.

A farm homelife with plenty of work to do, Mrs. Leslie McInturf, Kimberly, still finds time to work as a commercial artist and art teacher. She teaches art classes twice a week and is now finishing one of two correspondence courses in commercial art. Mrs. McInturf explains she has been interested in art since she was in high school. She is making a pencil drawing of one of her two daughters, using a photograph as a model. The drawings surrounding the table are her work. (Staff photo-engraving)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

During a recent LDS conference, the people of the MOULTON ward, which was established in 1916, requested that their name be changed to the Lynn ward. Thorpe B. Isaacson, visitor from Salt Lake City at the newly-named chapel in Lynn, granted their request. Thus ends one of the last remnants of what was once a prosperous farming community.

The village of Moulton was located in the northern part of JUNCTION ward, approximately 15 miles south of OAKLEY and about nine miles west and south of ALMO. At one time, between 1916 and 1924, Moulton branch of the Almo ward with Farley James as pastor, included business from the Vipont mine, 10 miles west of Moulton, and production of 100 tons of coal, four schools, three postoffices, two stores, two doctors and a population of 700. There was no chapel.

With the closing of the mine and the coming of the drought, most of the families moved away. The schools and postoffices were closed and only three families now live in the vicinity. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Bullers and Mr. and Mrs. George Kirk-Patrick.

At the southern end of Junction valley about 15 miles south of the families moved away. In 1916, the settlement of Lynn, Idaho, was the only school, a postoffice and the new LDS chapel to which the families of Moulton moved.

Among the first settlers of Junction valley were John Lind, August Alexander Anderson, Jake Kinsey and Jerome Kempton, who arrived between 1882 and 1883.

The John Lind home became a halfway stop between Oakley and Terrace, Utah. For several years the LDS church officials stayed there quite frequently when Oakley belonged to the Tootle stake.

It is said that Heber J. Grant made one trip from Terrace to Oakley, returning via Ketchikan, Alaska. He reported that these settlements be joined to the Box Elder stake.

In the fall of 1888, John Lind's home was burned to the ground in an attempt to drive the LDS settlers out of the valley. Jake Kinsey sold to John Lind and Jerome Kempton sold his claim to a Mr. Ballinger in 1888.

CASSIA stake was organized in 1887 and members in Moulton were that placed in the Almo ward. When the YOST ward was organized the membership was moved there.

In 1902 and 1903, the south end of the valley was named Lynn after the postoffice and in 1908 to 1913, the north end of the valley was named Lynn after the postoffice. The name of the valley was changed to Lynn after the postoffice was moved to the north end of the valley. After William F. Moulton from Colorado and his followers who were not members of the LDS church.

In 1913, LDS members organized a Sunday school in the WOODCROW school house near LONG CREEK. Organizers were John D. Baker, David A. Simpson, Fred A. Harwood, Ernest D. Simpson, Henry Bird and Harry Crowther.

In 1915, Moulton was made a

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

By ROBERT C. SCHRECKENBERG, Pastor, Trinity Brothers Baptist Church

We are probably living in an age more things than in any age in history. We know about outer space, rockets, airplanes, Vanguard and other things, but in years to come the dark ages will be upon us.

In some respects, the age of Paul the apostle, was more like our present time. It appears that our knowledge is not leading us to establish their own righteousness, but to submit themselves unto the righteousness of God.

It is an obvious truth that man has no righteousness of his own—least none to cause him to stand again in God's sight. This Jesus did, through His death on the cross.

Jesus was the "sinless apostle Lamb of God." He was the virgin-born Son of God. He was born sinless, and became the obedient, perfect God man to take sinful man's place. He died, the Just for the unjust, the Sinless for the sinful. God wants man to know that he provided a Savior, and that man was not left to his own destruction.

There is a fourth thing I think Paul had in mind, and that is that we can be saved through faith in Christ Jesus. Paul told the Philippians an easier way to be saved in Acts 16:31, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved."

that we cannot come to the full knowledge of Christ by, or through, our own means. It is quite imperative then that the second thing that we need to know is that man cannot save himself. Salvation does not come through sinful man. We cannot work out our own salvation.

In Ephesians 2:9 we read, "Not of works lest any man should boast." And again we read in John 1:12, "But we are all as an unclean thing, and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags; Paul wrote of Israel in Romans 10:3, "For they being ignorant of God's righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God."

God wants us to know a few things and it is high time we arose and seek for Him. He wants us to know. Paul wrote in Philippians 3:10, "that I may know Him." This should be man's desire today. I don't know all that Paul had in mind in this verse, but I do know some of the things he had in mind.

First, I think he had in mind that we should know that we are sinners. This is of the utmost importance. It is this fact, that we are sinners, that makes the scientific knowledge we have so dangerous. A heart that is sinful is controlled by Satan, who is the arch enemy of man. He is the author of hate, greed, lust and war. We read in 1 Peter 5:8, "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour."

God wants us to know that we are sinners. We are told in Romans 3:23, "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;" and in Psalm 51:5, "In sin did my mother conceive me." So, by birth and by choice, we are sinners. This we must know before we can be brought to the full knowledge of Christ.

Since we are sinners it follows authorities took over.

Osterhout entered the service in July, 1901, and was sent to Germany in December, 1907.

A new foundation for the chapel was built and an addition was constructed. This is divided into a bishop's office, classrooms, kitchen and banquet room, turn-out room, cool room, rest room and storage room. The cost of the chapel was approximately $27,000.

When the work on the new chapel was started, there were only seven members of the higher priesthood in the ward. The ward now has 60 members, who acknowledge the first settlers in the valley whose efforts made the building of a chapel possible. Help and donations of friends, some of whom are also acknowledged.

Pfc. Gary D. Osterhout, who is stationed with the 34th signal battalion's A Corps in Ludwigsburg, Germany, recently sent a newspaper clipping to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Osterhout, DEGLO, which tells the rest of an unidentified German from the Neckar river near there.

Some that Pfc. Osterhout and Pfc. Edward D. Boulerie, Jr., both of 23, noticed a crowd gathering on both sides of the river near a bridge. They were told that a man had either fallen or jumped into the water from the bridge. Running to the banks, they saw the man floating helplessly in the swift current.

When no one made any attempt to save him, Osterhout took off his coat, plunged into the river and swam the man back to the river bank. He and his companion administered artificial respiration until the man revived and the German authorities took over. Osterhout entered the service in July, 1901, and was sent to Germany in December, 1907.

Plow Capable of 36-Inch Deep Furrow Being Used on Sandy North Side Land of the field each time without plowing.

It notes the plow has not been used enough to become familiar with all its possibilities. In some fields the plow can start at the center and plow both ways or if a field is large enough, the machine can go around the field.

The limiting factor to the directions which a field can be plowed is that the plow leaves a furrow 35 to 20 inches wide and up to 36 inches deep as the last furrow in the field.

Some farmers who have expressed an interest in the plow test it might take down fences on their return from better crops of $5,000. Farms so the plow could be used on 100 to 150 acres at a time. However, such use would mean their irrigation ditches, which they have worked years to get added and firm, would be torn out.

Cost of operating the plow has been figured by Munk between $13 and $20 per acre, depending upon the field. That cost is higher than wind erosion and will be easier to profit. Munk believes a farmer can spend $3,000 for the machine to plow a 100-acre field, yet he can receive a the land, irrigating to settle soil, and then using a light land plane to smooth the land.

The northside soil conservation district obtained the disc type plow because of rocks. Rocks encountered by the plow are not turned up on top of the soil, Munk notes. Since the rocks are so much heavier than the soil, they seem to fall to the bottom of the furrow.

When the modification is made on the plow's hydraulic system, Munk says, the plow will be used again on the Maurice Gregory farm one and one half miles south and one mile west of the Orchard Valley school.

The figure of $3,000 costs for a 100-acre field is based on $30 per acre for plowing and an additional $10 per acre for finishing work. The finishing work includes smoothing and making furrows in sandy

Tourists Given Directions to Famed Shoshone Falls

Andrew H. Manell gives directions to Shoshone falls to Dr. and Mrs. B. W. Frommack, Sacramento, Calif., at a service station at Fire Point east. The Frommacks are typical tourists wishing to see the many attractions in Magic Valley. Most travelers through Twin Falls comment upon the friendly attitude of Idahoans, the climate and high way. Deep Furrow of Giant Plow Brings Subsoil to Top

Giant plow used in renovating sandy soil southwest of Jerome sinks deep into soil as it moves slowly behind a big tract-type tractor working in low gear. Soil conservation service hopes to use the plow on some 16,000 acres of land. (Staff photo-engraving)

Dale Munk, soil conservationist of the Northside soil conservation district, Jerome, maintains the three 36-inch discs of the plow used by the district to farm sandy land southwest of Jerome. The plow turns the sand under and brings useful clay soil to the surface to make a loam soil. The plow will dig a furrow 36 inches deep and cuts a swath 45 inches wide when all three discs are used. It is such a big machine that tractors of the D-7 and D-8 Caterpillar size are needed to pull it. (Staff photo-engraving) trade is "relax . . . enjoy a vacation in your home state."

"We expect the tourists," says Mrs. Tegan, "but we want more Idahoans to enjoy their state."

Since the travelers are expected, they expect to be well treated. Many tourists, their journey through Twin Falls is their first trip through Idaho. Many of these first-timers are impressed with the treatment they receive.

"We have been well received," said

Mrs. C. C. Bragstad, San Francisco, "This was our first trip through Idaho, and we are planning to go to Sun Valley and the Sawtooths next summer."

Both Mr. and Mrs. James R. Evans, Oak Ridge, Tenn., said they appreciated the "friendly attitude" both on the highway and in the town.

Disappointment in Shoshone falls is voiced daily by many motorists. Dr. and Mrs. B. W. Frommack, Sacramento, Calif., said, "We came this way especially to see the falls. The scenery is beautiful in your state, but we wanted to see the water plunging down as it is shown in pictures."

"Idaho is booming," said Mrs. Clyde O'Neal, Page, Ariz. "Butley is surely built up, and Westerners don't need to go East to see pretty country," she commented.

Mrs. O'Neal said western service stations were much better for motorists in Twin Falls, at least one she entered Idaho that she could get the windshields and floor mats cleaned without asking. She and her family lets say the climate is what they like most about this area. Ireland says about 35 per cent say they would like to settle here in the valley, if work were available.

As for the roads and highways in Idaho, most travelers are rather disappointed about construction. They are "adequate," though, said Mrs. Bragstad.

C. A. Davis and D. N. Cavik, Carrollton, Mo., and Oklahoma City, respectively, said that the "roads are fine, and we like these parts. The people of Twin Falls are awful nice and gracious."

But most motel operators and service station attendants think the tourist trade is off. Some say as much as one-fourth.

Jerome Man to Display Collections at Idaho Gem Show in Twin Falls

William Peters, 734 East Avenue C, Jerome, displays a small portion of his collection of rocks on the shelf behind him and he is holding a plastic case containing gold coins all mined in 1848, the year of his birth. Peters collects rocks and coins, as a hobby.

The rocks on the shelf are fire opal, part of a big collection. Parts of his rock collection will be displayed at the Idaho Gem show here July 19 and 20. (Staff photograph by J. W. ...)

Jerome Collector to Display Rocks at Gem Show Scheduled Here July 19, 20

The need for a hobby that would give him out and thus build up his heart prompted William Peters, 734 East Avenue C, Jerome, to begin collecting rocks, stamps, coins and anything else worthwhile. Peters' sphere, along with many of the rock slab specimens from all over the world, will be featured in the Magic Valley Gem club's rock show July 19 and 20 at the Twin Falls Junior high school gymnasium. According to D. H. (Harry) Baltzer, Peters' rocks will be one of the features of the show. His collections of rare rocks and coins is one of the most extensive in Magic Valley and is valued at several thousand dollars. The 40-year-old former lawyer and onetime owner of Jerome's waterworks, Peters told me I would die of the heart trouble and a doctor 28 years old in Boise recommended I get a hobby, one that would get me tired I would just have to lie down and rest occasionally," Peters explains. "So I began collecting rocks, traveling all over the country to get them."

Area Irrigation Decision Voided in Higher Court

BOISE, June 28 (AP)—Further proceedings have been ordered by the Idaho supreme court in a suit involving irrigation ditch rights on farm property in Elmore county. The court, in a 4-1 ruling, reversed the judgment of the Elmore county district court. It ordered additional proceedings to determine what compensation should be made for land used for construction of an irrigation ditch and whether crop damage, caused by lack of water when a ditch broke, should be compensated for. The ruling was in a case brought by Victor Aguirre against Denver A. Hamlin, both of whom are farmers in Elmore county. A beautiful and decorative ornament made from rock is a sphere which can be made in sizes from 1/2 inches in diameter. Peters has several of which he has made into a child's marble top. He has made from rocks he has found and which he describes as beautiful. Rare coins became an addition to Peters' collecting hobby in 1947 while he was mining the red water works in Jerome. He explains that he became interested in rare coins after he counted the day's receipts and found several old coins. He has built a large collection of rare coins and pursues the rare coin hobby as much as he does the rocks. He has many old gold and silver coins minted prior to 1900. He is making a collection of gold and silver coins minted in 1848, the year of his birth, to give to his grandchildren. He intends to have five complete sets of gold and silver coins to give to the five youngsters. One of Peters' most valuable coins is a 50-cent gold piece purchased in 1832, which now has considerably more value. The coin was minted in 1832 in a private company to celebrate the centennial of the discovery of gold in California.

Officers Voted

SHOSHONE, June 28—New officers have been elected for the Idaho state department of public health at a meeting of the city engineer job at Coeur d'Alene. At the same time he operated a part time private consulting engineering business. As city engineer of Coeur d'Alene, Lattimore supervised the streets, sewer, sewage treatment, parks, cemeteries, docks and lake front facilities and the engineering department. In June 8, 1952, Lattimore accepted his present job as city manager of Twin Falls. He has complete administrative supervision for 150 employees of the city. The annual budget of the city is about $1,600,000. The city manager type of government is the most feasible type," Lattimore contends. "The city is the largest single business operating within any city. No business this size can operate efficiently without a full-time manager or similar official." A licensed engineer in Idaho since 1948.

City Manager Has 19 Years Experience in Sanitation and Engineering Fields

In one capacity or another, Twin Falls City Manager Joseph H. Lattimore has been engaged with sanitation and engineering for the last 19 years. On June 9, he completed his sixth year as administrator for Twin Falls.

JOSEPH H. LATTIMORE

A public servant all but four of the last 19 years, Lattimore holds two degrees in his field. One is a bachelor of science in civil engineering from the University of Idaho; the other is a master of public health from the University of Michigan.

Lattimore began his public career as a fellowman in the W. K. Kellogg foundation in June, 1939. He was a sanitary engineer in the Branch county Michigan, a post he held until September, 1940.

Following his work in Michigan, Lattimore was offered a job as assistant to the city engineer at Lewiston. He held this job until he was appointed as administrator for Branch county Michigan, a post he held until September, 1940.

After a year with the public health department, Lattimore became sanitary engineer with the Butler Construction company, which built the Farrarut naval training station. Lattimore was in charge of water, sewer and sanitation facilities during the construction of the several months after the station was completed.

Lattimore says the Farrarut plant had the largest water system, sewage system and sewer treatment plant ever constructed in the Pacific Northwest, about 20,000 people from 1941 to 1946.

In 1943, Lattimore started a two and one-half year tour in the South Pacific and worked to rid the islands of malaria.

Lattimore was in charge of all the malaria control on the occupied portions of the islands. While there he worked with a navy detachment and helped develop some of the first spray for light aircraft use.

"It was our job to spray areas before they were developed and to spray for light aircraft use. If we sprayed the tops of trees about two weeks prior to the landing, we usually got the majority of the mosquitoes."

Later Lattimore went to the north end of Ison island in the Philippines group, where he directed general sanitary controls for fish, garbage and burial of bodies.

Lattimore remembers a rest for the regular about the end of the war. He was put into the combat outfit after having served most of his time as a non-combatant.

"I was put into combat for 250 continuous days," Lattimore recalls. He was discharged in 1946 and returned to Michigan to work on his master's degree.

For two years after earning the degree, Lattimore was again with the Idaho state department of public health as a sanitary engineer on inspection. He traveled all over the state to check health installations.

In June, 1948, Lattimore accepted the city engineer job at Coeur d'Alene. At the same time he operated a part time private consulting engineering business.

As city engineer of Coeur d'Alene, Lattimore supervised the streets, sewer, sewage treatment, parks, cemeteries, docks and lake front facilities and the engineering department.

In June 8, 1952, Lattimore accepted his present job as city manager of Twin Falls. He has complete administrative supervision for 150 employees of the city. The annual budget of the city is about $1,600,000.

flowers while I look after the vegetables," he says.

"He also does some fishing and bird raising. In winter months, he's a skier."

"I'm sort of a do-it-yourself man," says the city manager. "My wife did the woodwork and I did the painting when we built our new home."

"Right now my project is working out an irrigation system," Lattimore continues.

Lattimore says he and his family enjoy the Twin Falls area very much. His especially points out the recreation, climate and congenial attitude of the people.

"Lots of people ask me if I like the pine trees of Coeur d'Alene," notes Lattimore. "But I tell them we are glad to get back to the suburbs."

He says he can remember the last winter that he was in the northern Idaho city. "We trucked snow into the business district for 33 consecutive days," recalls Lattimore. "Then we got 90 inches of snow that white out—50 inches on the ground at one time."

Ground Squirrels, Dogs and Parakeet Add up to Menagerie for T. F. Family

So fond of sourdough hotcakes are the two squirrels, that when Mrs. Mitchell gives them a hotcake in the morning they fight over each other's food while at the same time gobbling down their own food.

The older squirrel is allowed to roam outside of its cage at times, and it will beg for food like a dog. A constant companion and helper of the two squirrels in the parakeet is the family cat "Peanuts." Its care is next to the squirrels in the family.

The rabbit which the parakeet fight around free most of the time, Mrs. Mitchell says when it is not atop the squirrel's cage feeding them, it seems to be after the two dogs, pecking them on the back or kicking the dogs' nose.

The two dogs, one an Australian shepherd and the other a toy terrier, take an indifferent attitude toward the parakeet, Mrs. Mitchell explains. At times they seem to want to eat the bird, other times they seem afraid of it, but most of the time they just tolerate the bird.

"Peanuts is quite a character," says Mrs. Mitchell. "It isn't scared of anyone or anything. However, the little squirrel is of the same temperament and both of them seem to be out to get each other. Mitchell after the squirrel bit the bird's toe off one time when the bird landed on the squirrel's cage."

The bird has a noticeable limp now when it walks. The rabbit which the Mitchell used to own would fight the bird, kicking with its hind legs while the they get it, they stand up on their hind legs to eat, holding their food in their front paws."

The parakeet's talent for talking is, he says, only "burry up" and one of the four lettered words.

The two dogs are rather talented. The Australian shepherd will un- wags chewing gum and eat it, posture on a stool, and is loyal to one of the Mitchell girls. It sleeps in her closet, cries when she is crissed and when given food, it eats half of whatever it is given then offers first rest to the girl. It also has arthritis.

The toy terrier's only talent is that it will play hide and seek with the younger, hiding from the girl until it is found, then runs to find the girls when they are hidden, Mrs. Mitchell says.

The ground-squirrels have little talent for anything except one thing and that is to play with humans and will allow humans to hold it.

"But they are extremely amusing," Mrs. Mitchell explains. "They prowl around the house and when they see us they eat because they carry on so trying to get food and then when

When the family settled in Twin Falls they bought a five acre plot of ground, the same one on which Mrs. Combs is now building houses. While Mrs. Combs' husband worked in the real estate business, Mrs. Combs worked at her home caring for her family and the house. Not content with just being a housewife, she began raising pedigreed hogs, both for meat and for breeding stock.

Mrs. Combs is talented as a drummer and plays the drums with her son and his children in a band. Being a drummer she also plays the piano and paints, but her most unusual occupation is building houses which she does daily, working eight hours a day, six days a week. (Staff photo-enshraving)

My son was born at our farm in 1904. I used to go every other day to buy wheat for feed and then have the wheat ground at a grain mill south of Twin Falls. I mixed buttermilk with the wheat to feed the hogs and they really flourished," Mrs. Combs recalls.

All Birds in Species Look Alike, Say Managers Trying to Study Population

By ROBERT L. SALTER
(Idaho Fish and Game Department)

One of the things that has always plagued game managers in their efforts to make an intelligent study of a bird population is the difficulty encountered in trying to distinguish between individuals in the population. Few birds, to our eyes at least, have any identifying marks which enable the manager with certainty the same bird each time it is seen.

Some serious questions have been asked about the contribution that such birds make to the hunter's stake. In general, the results show that hunters recover about 20 per cent of the game farm cocks that are released in mid-summer. The closer to the hunting season the release is made, the greater the return.

It also has been shown that pheasants do not live very long in the wild since few banded returns have been recovered from birds 2 years old.

Much more visible than a leg band is the colored plastic ribbon around the neck of this hen pheasant held by Robert L. Salter, game bird supervisor. This type of marking is used especially to establish information on the nesting activities of hens released in the spring. Anyone observing pheasants marked in this way is asked to report time and place, and whether the hen was nesting or accompanied by chicks. (Idaho fish and game department photo—Staff engraving)

In an effort to solve this problem, several techniques have been developed whereby individual birds or groups of birds have distinguishable characteristics added enabling positive identification. These methods generally involve banding, marking, dyeing or a combination of the three.

The most common means of identifying birds is by use of a metal (generally aluminum) band. The bands are numbered serially and generally bear some statement of them indicating where the band should be sent in case someone other than the original bander should find it.

Without banding, we might have suspected, but never known for sure, such things as the fact that Alberta is such an important contributor of waterfowl for Idaho hunters, that the nesting populations of geese in southwestern Idaho is for all practical purposes a resident flock, that the nesting geese in southeastern Idaho winter primarily along the Colorado river on the Arizona-California border or that mallards have favorite wintering areas along Snake river to which the same birds return year after year.

A great many of the regulations governing the hunting of waterfowl, including the concept of flyway management, are based on information obtained from waterfowl band returns.

The aluminum leg band also has been widely used in tagging upland game birds. The original purpose in much of this type of banding was to determine the rate and degree of dispersal of birds released from game farms. We have discovered, for instance, that pheasants generally stay pretty close to the release site, with the majority being dead within a radius of two miles from where they were liberated.

In recent years the pheasant banding program has been designed primarily to determine the rate of return from game farms.

Several other systems which allow the observer to positively identify the birds as being one of a special marked group have been worked out. These methods have the decided advantage that repeated observations may be made on the same bird or group of birds.

One such technique entails putting a larger and more visible marking of some kind on the bird. Celluloid bands around the neck have been used in some cases. The Montana cooperative wildlife research unit has perfected a method whereby plastic ribbons are tied around the necks of birds. Each ribbon has various colors of ribbons and markings of different colors on the ribbons, many different combinations are available.

The Idaho fish and game department has been using this system to mark pheasants, those which are released from the same farm in the spring. We are interested in determining the percentage of birds which nest in the wild and succeed in bringing off broods to add to the fall population.

Another way of marking birds is by use of dyes. These may be applied to various parts of the body. Students from the Idaho cooperative wildlife research unit who have been working on a magpie study in the Haxelton area have been successful in spraying roosting magpies with paint and various dyes. A magpie with a yellow wing is pretty distinctive and a great deal has been learned about daily and seasonal movements of these birds.

One of the most spectacular projects utilizing dyes was carried out by the California department of fish and game several years ago. They succeeded in trapping and dyeing several hundred blue jays and snow birds. Except for black wingtips, both of these species have all-white feathers.

California doused them in various solutions and reports soon came back from observers all along the Pacific coast seeing pink jays, purple jays, yellow jays and green jays. Many valuable tips on the spring migration of these species were obtained from these reports.

All forms of tagging, dyeing and marking are worthwhile unless right records or returns are made of the marked birds. In interested persons can help by sending in any bands found and reporting any unusual looking birds, with game of the geology that birds are carrying on your eyes may not be fooling you as badly as you think.

Highway Publicity Man Travels in Well-Marked Car

International field director of North American "Holiday" highway, Richard H. Ransom, kneels next to the car that has traveled much of the scenic route that includes U.S. 93 and its natural extensions into both Canada and Mexico, and into Alaska and Central America. Ransom, who just recently headed north on the "Holiday" highway after spending three months in Mexico, says he hopes that ultimately the association will have members as far away as South America. Presently the North American Highway association has more than 1,500 members between Fairbanks, Alaska, and Mexico City. (Staff photo-entourage)

Promotion Tour Carries Idahoan Total Of 110,000 Miles During 18-Month Span

Traveling more than 110,000 miles in the last 18 months promoting U.S. Highway 93 and its natural extensions has been Richard H. Ransom, a Salt Lake City resident.

Ransom, a former state senator from Blaine county, has been with the North American "Holiday" Highway association since 1944. For more than seven years he was secretary-treasurer. Since 1954 he has been international field director for the association.

"My job is to promote the tourist traffic to the west," says Ransom. "Over 85 per cent of the tourist dollar is spent east of the Mississippi river."

The association has members along Highway 93 and its natural extensions into Canada and Alaska and ultimately into South America as far south as Buenos Aires. The organization has between 1,500 and 2,000 members along the route.

Every other year Ransom campaigns for members, while on the off years he publishes a brochure explaining the highway and its scenic attractions. Last year he traveled from Nogales, Mexico, to Edmonton, Alberta, and then back through Nogales to Mexico City.

From Jan. 9 to March 9, 1958, Ransom traveled along the Mexican coast taking pictures. He now has more than 200 colored slides of that area. All told, he estimates he has about 6,000 colored slides he has taken along the highway.

Explaining how it got the nickname "Holiday" highway, Ransom says the association held a contest among 14 members to provide a name. This one was judged the best. Other slogans printed upon the association's brochure are "Vacation way" "more to see on 93" and "International vacationland."

Within the pamphlet are pictures and information about the route. What Ransom describes as "one of the most beautiful slides in Shoshone falls. Also pictured are Mount Borah, Stanley peak, Craters of the Moon and Cathedral rock, near Salmon. About Twin Falls the brochure says: "Commercial center for vast irrigated districts of crops. Shoshone falls, higher than Niagara."

It includes similar information about some of the Idaho towns located along the highway. Originally the highway was paved from Nogales to 60 miles north of Edmonston. By the end of this year, a tourist will be able to travel from north of Edmonston to Panama City, all by paved highway. In 1960, the pavement will extend to Buenos Aires.

Ransom, who describes the route as "about a straight line on the map from Edmonston to Mexico City," says the mileage from Fairbanks, Alaska, to the Mexican capital is 8,384. He says there "is no doubt that it is the most scenic route and the only all-paved one connecting the three countries."

The field director doesn't claim to be a professional photographer. "All I do is take pictures of what I see," he says. "The Mexicans are wonderful people, according to Ransom. "They are very courteous."

He tells of an incident in Mexico when a policeman was directing road-bound traffic along the beach. Some tourists were having trouble finding their hotel and the officer lets his traffic duties to show the Americans where it was located.

"They (policemen) always help strangers," says Ransom. "I never give tickets to foreigners unless the offense is extreme. They do warn you, though."

Among his own slides, the field director has pictures of bull fights, fishing at Mazatlan, jungle scenes, hot fountains and so forth. He is especially proud of the shots of Mexican agriculture and flowers, Chacoalajara and Mount Mount Popocatepetl near Mexico City.

Ransom hopes to show his slides at Jerome, Twin Falls, Shoshone, Bellevue, Carey, Arco, Halley and Kelchum. He will be in this area for two weeks. He says, "Highway today are a commodity that you have to go out and sell. Highway 93 is the "longest promoted highway in the world," according to Ransom.

Good accommodations are available for tourists all along the way. "If people use a little common sense." The association was originally started as the Four State Highway association almost 27 years ago. Then it included Idaho, Montana, Nevada and California. In 1954 Utah was added to make it a five-state organization. Since 1956, the association has campaigned for members in the North American Highway association.

Members of the association are banks, stores, service stations, restaurants, motels and "many other businesses," according to Ransom. "They all give the best service and attention they know," he says.

Before stopping off in Twin Falls, Ransom made his 504th speaking engagement in "T" Rex. This includes both radio-television and service club talks.

At times he has spoken under stars while narrating his slides. He says once "most of the population around Lakeside, Mont., flocked to a small hill to see my pictures."

"A lot of people don't know that Highway 93 is available," says Ransom. "They take a coast route or go through Salt Lake City."

For the last four years "Magic Valley has been the association's outstanding supporter. I'm proud to see Idaho has an advertising campaign going to promote the state."

He tells his audiences, "This is BINGS, ROYAL ANNS and MONTMORENCY Are Now Here (picked or you pick) Crystal Springs Orchard DA 6-5075, Filer

Hearing Set

Look at the fields, the snow-capped mountains and the serene. The tourist trade is the nation's third most profitable business, according to Ransom, who says that the advertising of Idaho has been neglected badly.

Through his association, Chambers of Commerce, civic groups and the state of Idaho, the advertising for "Scenic Idaho" has picked up momentum during the past few years.

SHOSHONE June 28-A public hearing on the proposed city budget tax levy of 35 mills will be held at 8 p. m. Tuesday at the city hall.

The tax levy, if approved as set, will remain the same as for 1957, at the 35 mills on the dollar of $3.50 per $100 valuation. The tax levy will raise $21,415 on the $611,858 valuation of property in the city limits.

MEETING PLANNED

SHOSHONE, June 28-Correlation-meeting for the LDS church will be held at 8 p. m. Monday at the church. All auxiliaries are urged to invite officers and teachers to the meeting to plan for their month's work.
