Crash Victim's Body Was Sought in Murtaugh Lake Coulee

Searchers probe the shallow water of a coulee running from Murtaugh lake for the body of Luther Hayes Callen, 21, Murtaugh, who was killed in a traffic accident early Saturday morning. Unknown to the men in the boat, which includes State Police Lieut. Clark Hand, Callen's body was lying about 100 feet away in the high green cattails. The mangled 1958 Chevrolet was found on its wheels 54 feet from the right bank of the coulee. At the time the photo was taken, officers believed the body had landed in the coulee. Hand says he believes the body was thrown from the car as it struck the coulee. Note the bent and crushed catalina at left and right which mark the path of the rolling and spinning vehicle. Nuclear Meet Ends; Secrecy Alert Is Made GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 13 (AP)—The world's atomic peace conference wound up Saturday with 1,000 nuclear scientists alerted against a government attack to surround their work with secrecy.

"Secrecitism is a lingering and insidious disease, and releases are needed," warned French physicist Francis Perrin in a closing speech to the assembly of scientists from 69 nations.

Secrecy, the biggest international scientific meeting ever held, provided the occasion for the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union to lift the secrecy curtain from their respective atomic work.

Perrin said a third Atomic Peace conference may be necessary to break down the secrecy barrier that could creep back into government policies. He added the next meeting might have 10,000 delegates.

Disasters Discussed

Adm. Louis B. Mountbatten, former chairman of the U. S. atomic energy commission, called for an international convention to avert nuclear reactor accidents.

The possibility of large-scale disasters caused by accidental release of deadly radioactivity from nuclear power stations has become one of the subjects discussed at the conference.

Most scientists agreed such disasters are "virtually" avoidable with new reactor techniques and safety regulations.

U. N. Leader Says Mideast Talks Useful

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP)—Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld of the United Nations returned from the Middle East today and said his talks with government leaders there had been highly useful.

"It is stated that his mission was to obtain background information and not to negotiate or mediate."

The secretary general's 17th mission was an Arab-sponsored resolution in the U. N. general assembly expressing a desire for peaceful relations.

In a statement issued on his arrival at Lufthansa airport, Hammarskjöld said his trip "has not been as long as people have felt sometimes, for negotiations. It has not been as long as to argue the case or that kind of line of policy or the withdrawal of troops or whatever."

"It has been to get first-hand views on matters as a background for practical advice in order to assist in a resolution."

"I followed that line, and the agreements have likewise been made as a basis in their contracts."

"I must say the contacts without exception have been highly useful for the intended purpose, giving me much better background for the decisions which will have to be taken here."

He said that "what comes out of it all" will be contained in a report to go before the U. N. general assembly by the end of the month.

Names of Egyptian Dictator, Idaho Student Sound Alike

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, Sept. 13—The names sound the same, but that's all.

Nasser, no relation to the president of Egypt who spells his name "Nasir," has enrolled in the University of Idaho. Who's asked the inevitable question, the 21-year-old student from Lebanon, smiles, shakes his head and says "No."

Nasser was graduated with a bachelor's degree in agriculture from the American university in Beirut and will continue studies at Idaho toward a master's degree in horticulture.

"The climate here is very similar to that of Lebanon," said Nasser. "I feel it is best to study in an area that has many of the same agricultural problems that my country has."

During the summer months, Nasser will work on agricultural branch experiment stations to study actual farm and orchard operations in Idaho.

Public Forum Twin Falls Man Is Scared of Implications of 'Work' Issue

Editor, Times-News:

I have just finished reading the right to work initiative and I don't mind telling you I'm scared.

Men have worked, event, yes, even died for decent working conditions and here in one initiative is an attempt to make us slaves again.

It gives us a right to work all night; a right to work or quit; a right to work under dictated conditions at dictated hours for dictated wages.

Under section six of this act it says "any employer or labor organization, and any person acting for employer or labor organization who violates any provision of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $100 or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than six months, or shall be punished by both such fine and imprisonment."

Does this sound like an act for labor? It is not only directed against labor but makes the employer also responsible if he deems to listen.

It is the right to work initiative states that "the term 'labor organization' as used in the act, means an organization of any kind—or any agency—or employee representation committee, or union, or plan, in which employers participate and which exists for the purpose, in whole or in part, of negotiating collectively or dealing with employers concerning grievance, labor disputes, wages, rates of pay, hours of employment or other conditions of work."

It will, if passed, break the union's back. It will deny to the working man any voice, except he stand alone.

The union or organized labor was built by laboring men for laboring men much as the United States was built by the people for the people.

United we stand; divided we fall. The main controversy against unionism is the union strikes. I do not advocate strikes; however, a strike is the best resort of labor to be used as a last resort as a bargaining power for decent working conditions and wages.

The working man's labor is his product. The strike is his bargaining power to sell his product.

If you will but read it, it will destroy itself.

Warren Spahn Breaks Record by Getting 20 Wins for Ninth Time

Warren Spahn became the first left-hander in major league history to win 20 games for the ninth time as he pitched the Milwaukee Braves to an 8-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday. The Braves' southpaw ace, finishing up his 20th victory against 10 losses, broke a tie with two immortal American League pitchers, Lefty Grove and Eddie Plank, both Philadelphia, each of whom had registered eight 20-game seasons. Spahn also moved into a tie with Grover Cleveland Alexander for fourth place among all pitchers in the game's history. Gro Young came within reason of 20 victories or more, followed by Christy Mathewson with 13 and Walter Johnson with 12.

Spahn has had better days but was good enough to win—thanks to a five-run outburst by his teammates in the fourth and a three-run eighth inning. He performed before a crowd of 36,022, allowing the Cards nine hits, striking out 10 and walking none.

The Pittsburgh Pirates launched a 12-hit attack against five Los Angeles pitchers and whipped the Dodgers 9-4 in the farewell game of the season between the two teams. Pirate second baseman Bill Mazeroski drove in two runs in the fourth inning when he hit left fielder Charlie Egan with a line drive. Dick Groat was a big help to the Pirates attack with a double and two singles. Bob Skinner belted a double and a single. Dick Stuart, the Pirates' lanky first baseman, fired a National League record—seven "no-hitters" for the sixth straight time in the second inning. He had lost four consecutive times Friday night.

Brookline Andre Rodgers' first home run of the season in the ninth inning proved to be the winning run in a San Francisco Giants 6-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. But the hero's mantle had to be reserved for outfielder Willie McCovee.

Kirkland appears to be making a career out of helping beat the Phillies. On May 28, he pitched a homerun in the ninth, whipping the Phillies 7-0. Then he set a homerun off the Phillies' Ray Semproch in the 14th inning of a June 22 game, winning that one 5-4.

Saturday, he was sent by Manager Bill Rigney after the Giants used a runner for Frank Sauer in the seventh. The sight of the Phillies must do something to Willie. He cracked an inside-the-park homerun off his old friend, Dick Farrell, clinching a five-run, eighth-inning rally which craved a 3-0 Philadelphia lead.

American league castoff Alex Keller, aided by some lusty hitting by his teammates and some shoddy fielding by Chicago, pitched the Cincinnati Reds to a 9-2 victory over the Cubs.

The victory gave the Redlegs undisciplined possession of fourth place in the National League as the St. Louis Cardinals lost to Milwaukee.

OUTWARD TO THE STARS (24)—What Does It Mean? — By Don Oakley and Ralph Lane

Which will it be? A missile against a city or a mission into space? Man has nowhere to look for the answer but to himself. If he is worthy of the knowledge his mind has brought him, we need not fear the choice. If he is not, the Space Age may write his epitaph.

Moved from an orbiting station, man will be able to see half his small world in a glance and circumnavigate it in 90 minutes. For the first time, the idea of "one world" will—or could—have real meaning. The conquest of space will of necessity be an international cooperative undertaking.

More than a physical challenge to man, space will pose moral questions—but only the old questions in new frames of reference.

On the other hand, man's adventure into space can benefit his world in many ways.

Satellites could bring world-wide radio and television communication, extreme long-range weather forecasting, gravity-free observatories, hospitals and research stations could orbit the Earth. New industries and opportunities and a new face to life on Earth, should result from the terrific impetus given to science by the Space Age.

Looking heavenward, man of the 21st century will become more conscious of the unthinkably distant stars. Like his primitive ancestor before him, he will feel a closeness to them he has not felt for ages.

Man will ponder more deeply the question of other life in the universe, and his own place in this staggering prospect of infinite worlds. Someday the questions will be answered—not by him, nor by his children, nor his children's children—but someday.

Twin Bridges Across Snake River Indicate Size of Highway Project

Part of the first Idaho phase of the construction project is starting to take shape in Snake river valley north of Declo. Three miles north of Declo, the highway will be built on a 100-foot wide right-of-way. The highway will carry only eastbound traffic and the other will handle westbound traffic. One joint bridge was deemed not feasible for the project. The bridges are being built about four miles south of the point where by comparison, the right of way for highways U.S. 20N and state 77 meet. From the bridge, the superhighway section under construction extends east about 20 miles. The size of the bridge project is a superhighway. Every phase of the project is big and will result in a superhighway across southern Idaho which will make present highways U.S. 20N and state 77 meet. The right of way for the superhighway will be 300 feet wide, equivalent to a city block-wide. The big job is the interstate highway system authorized by congress under the federal highway act of 1956. It is to be completed during the days of the 85th congress and signed by President Eisenhower in time to initiate the program during the 1957 fiscal year. The plan provides for 511 miles of Idaho interstate highways. One segment runs from the Washington state line east to the Montana state line at Loneburg pass. Another state line runs from Oregon south to Idaho to Pocatello, passing through Boise Valley, Magic Valley and American Falls. A third section runs from the Utah state line south of Malad to the Montana state line at Loneburg pass via Pocatello and Idaho Falls. The remaining section begins near Stoevick, Utah, and runs northwesterly through Sublett to a junction near Rupert with the route to Boise. This last section is under construction, as are other segments in northern and southern Idaho. The interstate system will encompass the entire U.S. with two lanes of traffic in each direction. The grading (roadway) construction contract on the 20-mile stretch was let to Eagle Construction company, Boise, for $1,650,000. That includes only preparing the roadbed for gravel and culms, which will be contracted later. Contract to build the bridge went to W. J. Cahoon company, Pocatello, for $435,811.75. This figure includes all work on the bridge, including finishing, Louie E. Smith company, Twin Falls, sub-contracted all concrete work. Concrete was from June, 1958, until October, 1959. Earth moving and grading have been the work of the Eagle Construction company thus far. Cahoon has been driving piles, while Smith has completed 14 of the 28 reinforced stringers. Project chief L. R. Young, Jerome, says the bridge work was running behind schedule until recently. However, construction is now running ahead of plans, and there are possibilities the job will be completed next summer. Pile-driving operations for the bridge comprise a difficult job. Before any final driving begins, test drives are conducted to establish depth at various intervals across the river. This was done several weeks ago. Upon completion of these tests, engineers figure an accuracy as possible the exact measurement of every pile to be driven. These figures are sent to the factory where the piles are manufactured in Berkeley, Calif. The piles are 14-inch diameters three-sixteenths of an inch thick. On the bottom is welded a three-quarter-inch plate, because when driving is finished, concrete is poured into the steel casing. Actual pile setting is a trying task. Every pile is calculated to be driven in a certain spot. Because of the uneven current, bedrock and driftrock cover, every pile takes close to an hour to long up. After that driving can be done in 10 to 20 minutes, according to Alvin Connerly, Cahoon's superintendent on the job. Driving is accomplished with the aid of a 20-foot crane used to pick the piles up and guide them into position as a double acting Texas hammer bangs away at the top. The hammer connects to a long hose filled with sand from a barge mounted on five barges which support the crane and other equipment. Piles are shipped by rail to Declo, (Continued on Page 19, Column 1)

Here's start of 372 piles which will support new parallel bridge across Snake river north of Declo and south of Highway 30N-highway junction. At the average of eight piles per day, it is expected that piles will be driven in two and one-half months. They are 22 to 40 feet long, with 15 to 18 feet planted beneath the river bottom. After all are driven, they will be trimmed to elevation, filled with concrete and capped. Operations were begun from the middle of the river. (Staff photo-enslaving)

Jerome Man Lectures While Planetarium Put in Operation

Would you like to take a trip to the moon? See the Earth rotate an entire 24 hours in only four minutes? Or look at stars, planets, nebulae or other planets through a telescope? If you're interested, Twin Falls now has one of the finest amateur observatories and planetariums in the West available for public use. About the first of August the observatory opened its doors to the public in order that interested people to visit the observatory on an individual basis. About 500 persons visited the observatory during the first couple of weeks. After that, it began to grow smaller, and it became necessary to close the observatory to the public. This greatly discouraged operators, who have worked long hours and spent much money to provide this educational structure. They feel for people living in this space age, it is imperative to know more about the universe and our place in it. "If we draw the people, we'll be open for another month," says Norman B. Herrett, observatory and planetarium force behind the observatory and planetarium at 1220 Kimberly road. Herrett provided the initiative to build the structure and then asked for others with astronomy interest to help operate it. Almost every evening amateur astronomers are studying the skies and outer space. Inside the observatory-planetarium are various displays depicting different phases of the solar system. One shows operation of eclipses, another explains the moon. Several meteorites and their stories are enclosed in a glass case. Last year Herrett took his home-made display to school around the valley and explained them to students. Now the displays are permanent fixtures of the observatory. The member made each display from pictures to models. They are fiberoptic models. Each is equipped with an earphone which trips an electric circuit when light strikes a sensor recording the explanation what the viewer sees. The planetarium is designed to allow the viewer to get a better idea of what happens on the Earth rotates. The movements of heavenly bodies are projected onto the ceiling from light emitted through small holes in a fiberglass shell. The body certain movements of a solar system in the skies. When the lecturer explains what each movement is and where it is seen to it. First the planetarium shows night with stars shining. Then sunrise, daytime and sunset are shown in the order of a day. The 24-hour day takes only four minutes in the planetarium. After studying movements on the ceiling-downwards, the lecturer leads the viewers upstairs to see the telescope and to look at galaxies painted on the dome with fluorescent paint. Black light (ultra-violet light) is used to make the galaxies show their structure. The paint spots on a toothbrush. The planetarium is independent of the building so no vibrations can jar

Hard-Hit Area Planning Winter War on Rabbits

However, this method of discouraging the rodents from entering fields proved inefficient. Rabbits still flocked into green alfalfa or clover plots. This past summer has been a heavy year for the rodents. They have caused considerable damage to crops and ranches. It is almost impossible to estimate actual dollar and cents losses to numerous ranches and farms; however, entire fields have been leveled by the pesky animal. After much concern for growing harm to crops, Grangers and other interested persons banded together to begin planning what to do. One of the hardest hit ranchers in the county is David Chadwick, southwest of Stollaker. He says rabbits aren't as thick this year as they were in 1951, but this is a "severe" season for them. In 1951, Chadwick recalls killing 300 to 350 rabbits every night without "exerting oneself." This summer his luck has been slightly less. He has tried several methods to combat the rodents. Of course, his gun mows down several scores of rabbits any night he has time to spend shooting. But unless every gunning rabbit, the rancher gets out and shoots, little or no progress is possible. This method is almost out of the question since the ranches are several miles around, and it would take an army of men to kill every rabbit before it enters the fields. Moreover, even if 100,000 rabbits are (Continued on Page 19, Column 1)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Yae Schofield, RUPERT, have returned from a three-month vacation spent in South America. The trip was a visit to the home of the American ambassador for tea, a trip to the opera, and viewing an Argentine independence day parade on July 9. They visited almost all the Latin American countries during their trip which took them as far south as the Argentine pampas.

The Schofields went primarily to meet their son, Gary Schofield, who was just completing a two and one-half year mission for the LDS church, and to visit another son, Keith Schofield, on the embassy staff at Montevideo, Uruguay.

They left New Orleans, La., May 29, traveling down the east coast of South America and returning to Los Angeles by way of the west coast of the continent, Central American countries and Mexico.

The first stop was in the Virgin Islands, from where they went on to Brazil.

From Rio De Janeiro, where they spent two days, they went to Petropolis which is a resort area where the people spend the hot months to get away from the city's heat.

From Rio, they went on to Montevideo where they met their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Schofield, who are with the embassy staff.

From there they went on to Buenos Aires and then to Lima, Peru, and from there to Guano, a city 23,000 feet high. There they gave their son, Gary, a special gift.

"What Ought We to Do? Which Way Shall We Turn?"

By DONALD B. BLACKSTONE (Pastor, First Presbyterian Church)

Any way, for better or for worse we are constantly asking these two questions, "What ought we to do? Which way shall we turn?"

It is clearly Church's conviction that if the future had depended entirely upon men's answers to these questions, hope would long ago have been destroyed.

At our worst we are constantly asking these two questions, "What ought we to do? Which way shall we turn?"

At our best we are constantly asking these two questions, "What ought we to do? Which way shall we turn?"

Community Observatory Completed Here

Norman H. Herrett, jeweler, looks through observatory door which allows the telescopes to rise up and down as desired to spot solar bodies. Dome also rotates automatically when button is pressed, making it possible to view any section of sky. The observatory is made entirely of fibreglass and plastic. Herrett was helped in the construction of the building by a number of local businessmen. In foreground are two of the 11 telescopes Herrett has made. Viewers using these are at right angles because they aren't high enough to see over the top of the building. (Staff photo-encouraging)

With the help of contributing citizens and companies, Herrett has built the observatory from scraps and junk. He estimates it is worth about $25,000. So far as he is concerned, it is a gift to the community, and "I've flopped if the people don't use it," he declares.

Herrett recently attended an astronomical meeting at California Institute of Technology, where he lectured on the newly-opened amateur observatory. Several interested parties from other cities are considering building an observatory similar to the one in Twin Falls.

Herrett financed much of it, and he received donations in materials and money from about 35 local merchants and companies to help defray expenses. The observatory is a gift to the community from Herrett, who hopes everyone will take advantage of it. (Staff photo-encouraging)

Changes Made For Shoshone Tax Schedule

SHOSHONE, Sept. 13.—Lincoln county commissioners have approved the 1938 tax levies as submitted by the different taxing units. There were a few additions and some eliminations in comparison with last year's program.

Total levy for the county this year is $2,141, per $100 valuation. Last year the county levy was $2.33.

The current expense levy set at $1.10, including a 10 cent and road control at 10 cents to total $1.20 for those sections. Last year's tax levies in the corresponding bracket ran $1.43.

The county school fund levy is 70 cents and the teacher's retirement is set at 10 cents. Last year the two school funds totaled 80 cents while this year it runs 80 1/2 cents.

The state tax this year is set at 22 cents, sleep at $3, livestock disease control 30 cents, water drainage 5 cents, boys per colony 5 cents, honey advertising per colony, 6 cents.

All highway district levies are $1. The Richfield country levy remains the same at 8 cents and the Lincoln county cemetery levy, 10 cents.

School districts set levies at $1.50 for Gooding district No. 231, $3.75 for Shoshone district No. 312, $2.75 for Jerome district No. 201, $2.45 for Richfield district No. 210, $3.50 for Dietrich district No. 314-12, and $3.10 for Jerome district No. 201.

Shoshone district No. 312 raised the levy from $3.70 last year to $3.85, Shoshone district No. 314-12 from $3.50 last year to $3.75, and Jerome district No. 201 from $3.81 last year to $3.91. Other levies are $2.50, same as a year ago; the village of Richfield, $2.50, up from $3.00, and Dietrich village remains the same at $1.

The fair levy will remain 10 cents and the fire district, which is new, was set at 30 cents.

University, Tony Schneider, 1958 graduate of Twin Falls high school, and Benjamin Johnson, an eighth grade student at Twin Falls Junior high school, Allen is the only adult lecturer.

All amateurs, the men have a tremendous amount of knowledge about astronomy which they give out to interested persons without charge. Herrett commends his helpers, saying, "I don't know enough about astronomy. This is especially for younger people and these kids may be good astronomers some day."

He states without them, he just couldn't have the observatory open because he isn't trained along that line.

The jeweler says, "Youth, interest and enthusiasm is the key to operation of the observatory."

If people show interest by driving out to 1250 Kimberly road, Herrett will give the public another month to visit the observatory. If the people don't come out, he'll close it to the public use and only members of the astronomers club, school classes, church groups and other organizations will be admitted from then on.

The dome-shaped structure seats 45 persons at one time. However, the observatory has had as many as 75 placed during the corresponding period last year.

Another agency employee, David Lewis, reported that, from January to August, 1937, the agency placed 3,139 workers, compared with 2,160 placed during the corresponding period in 1936.

However, Lewis said, 65 handicapped persons were placed from January to August, 1937, compared with 110 handicapped persons placed from January to August, 1936, in spite of the fact that total placements were nearly 100 lower in 1937.

ernor's award for an outstanding employer.

Pile Lined up for One of Twin Bridges

Gordon L. Stalworthy, left, Paul, watches Alvin Connerly, project superintendent for W. H. Cahoon Construction Company, Peacetto, as he uses "come-along" to maneuver piling into position. The piles are guided into place by a 30-foot crane, driven a few feet, then leveled and jockeyed into proper position. Some are placed in an angle, others straight up. Because of stream current and differences in bedrock and bedrock cover, it is necessary to align each pile several times before final driving is completed. (Staff photo-encouraging)

When all piles are in position, which will take about two and one-half months, it is necessary to trim their tops to exact elevation. Then concrete is poured down each 14-inch shaft and the piles are capped by two two and one-half foot concrete slabs.

Other finishing tasks include painting and adding hand-railings, and pedestrian walks.

When the bridges are completed they will resemble the Burley-Ley and Burn and Montgomery bridges, the latter near Rupert.

John Green is district No. 10 bridge engineer on the project. Ethen loaded onto trucks for the short haul to the bridge site. After red lead and another coat of paint color the castings they are rolled onto a barge and propelled to the center of the river with an outboard motor.

The barge is tied to a floating island of other barges. As piles are needed, the crane picks them up and with leveling and maneuvering, the desired angle and place is established for each pile.

After several piles are driven from one place, the floating island is propelled to another location with a 10-horsepower outboard motor. In all, there will be 372 piles. They range in length from 22 to 40 feet. Snake river is 10 to 20 feet deep at the bridge site.

There are six piles in a group every 40 feet. Every fourth group has 12 piles which allow for expansion.

Inspector for the bridge construction is Duane Halverson, Rupert, who expects eight piles to be set each day. However, in some locations mantle over the bedrock is softer than in other places, and because of breakdowns, this average could vary from five or six to 10 or 12.

Trip to Moon, Rotation of Earth Are Among Features at New Planetarium

(Continued From Page 17) selling on some other object. Depending on sky conditions and the ability of the telescope operator, Herrett says it's possible to see something on the moon as large as the day hall.

Herrett calls the displays and displays planetarium "teaching tool—its says—use of the telescope and telescope is the essential part."

The jeweler notes, "We can't teach astronomy in one hour, but we can make people conscious of astronomy's existence."

If numbers warrant it, Herrett will keep the building open to public use for another month. After that, however, the observatory will be used only by groups of 20 or more who wish to tour it.

The jeweler says clubs, church groups, school classes or "any group of 20 or more" are welcome to reserve a date for a lecture tour. "Lecture tours are by appointment and can be made by calling Herrett."

Leading the tours and giving lectures are Adrian Allen, Jerome; Ellis Miller, Twin Falls high school graduate now attending Brigham Young

Data Obtained About Sage Grouse

Basic information concerning sage grouse is obtained at fish and game department checking stations set up during the hunt. Some of the data collected includes hunter success ratios, age and weights of birds and sex seen by hunters. (Idaho fish and game department photo—staff engraving)

Historical Records Lacking, but Sage Grouse Probably as Old as Idaho Hills

BY MARSHALL EDSON
Idaho Fish and Game Department

Historical records are lacking with accurate information concerning sage grouse, or as they are known in Idaho, sage grouse, in the early days of settlement in southern Idaho. The old story of these birds being flushed from the hills in the sagebrush country of southern Idaho for thousands of years before the coming of the white man.

For example, some of the Indians of the Snake River country are modeled after the antics of the sage grouse. When the sage grouse hops into the air, and will sound "booming" sounds on the ground in many places.

Certainly these birds have been found in living in regions where they are still extant, or where they have been known to exist in the western United States and parts of Canada, for countless centuries.

The Lewis and Clark expedition was the first to see these birds in 1805. In 1831 the sage grouse was officially classified as a game bird in Idaho.

Even then, the sage grouse still had to have room for nesting, and

Chest X-Rays Schedule Set

County residents in occupations or professions required by law to have annual chest X-rays are invited to make use of the mobile unit of the Idaho State Tuberculosis Association beginning Tuesday for three weeks.

Mrs. C. J. Sillar, president of the county tuberculosis association, announced the unit will be parked in the lot next to the city hall. It will operate from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday. The unit will remain in Twin Falls a week and then will move to give service to the county's west and east ends and the Kimberly area. Mrs. Sillar said persons required by law to have chest X-rays include teachers, dentists, bus and truck drivers, food handlers, cooks, bartenders and cashiers in eating establishments. Special arrangements will be made for home patients and persons with tuberculosis and other lung diseases.

There is no charge for the service. The program is made possible by the community support of the annual Christmas Seal sale.

APPOINTED DIRECTOR

WENDELL, Sept. 13—Larry Roe, publisher of the Wendell Irrigator, was appointed Crook county director of civil defense by the Crook county commissioners this week.

660-Acre Field of Pinto Beans Could Be Largest Ever Grown in This State

Probably the largest bean field ever grown in Idaho—660 acres of pinto beans—will be sown this week.

The field is part of 1,200 acres owned and farmed by John Black, Poetello, Charles Chastain, Idaho Falls, and Jack C. Turner, Salt Lake City. It is located west of Salt Lake City, 15 miles west of Salt Lake City, near Highway 30, near Highway 30.

During the summer a large portion of the field was planted with alfalfa, clover, lucerne and green leaves. In late fall and winter their food is the leaves of sagebrush.

As a result of careful management of the soil, the beans are generally being maintained, and in some places increased, to provide limited harvest every year.

Land use patterns are constantly changing, especially in those places where there is a high concentration of grove populations in that particular area.

"Far as Eye Can See" Almost Describes Bean Field

Burley Street Festival Beef Inspected

Al Putnam, left, general chairman of the Burley street festival, inspects beef at the Bryant Packing company where all beef and lamb are being slaughtered for the free barbecue next Saturday. Looking on are Betty Bryant and Gene Bryant, right, who is chairman in charge of securing and preparing food for the event. (Staff photo-enlarging)

Work Nearing End for Burley Streets; Celebration Is Slated

BURLEY, Sept. 13—The last coat of white paint is being applied to Burley's new streets as Chamber of Commerce activity increases with plans for the street festival at 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Five loaves and five lambs will be barbecued in the new plaza provided by the city. Negotiations are under way to secure a movie star and possibly top on the program. Life magazine has been approached about sending a reporter-photographer and Paul Harvey is expected to give his special emphasis on one of his programs. Sen. A. M. Dorr indicated that he probably will be able to attend and confirmations of attendance have been received from Gov. and Mrs. Robert F. Smylie; Ben and Mrs. O. Dvorzhak; Rep. Hiram H. Budge and Mr. and Mrs. Rocco Rich. American Linen Supply, Twin Falls, is supplying chef's hats and dancers have asked to participate with square dancing and will furnish their own records and cater.

Western attire will be the vogue of the day and the two blocks from Main street to Thirteenth street on Overland avenue will be blocked off early in the day in order to place the city's picnic tables at the edge of the street where people may sit down to eat.

Two long serving tables will be placed just west of Overland on Thirteenth street—lines will form on either side of both tables for quick service.

Concessions will be located on East Thirteenth street, just off Overland and any organization wishing to set up a booth is asked to contact Al Thaxton, Al Putnam or Benny Sprague for reservations.

BON BORN

Sudden, Unexpected Among Allergy Diseases, Hives Rates Importantly

BY EDWIN F. JORDAN, M.D.
Among the allergic diseases hives, or urticaria, occupies an important place. Unlike seasonal hay fever (whether the result of pollens from ragweed, trees, grasses or something else) hives may appear at odd times of the year. Consequently, the cause of this condition is usually more difficult to identify than ordinary hay fever.

An outbreak of hives usually comes suddenly and unexpectedly. It shows on the skin as reddish swollen spots of various sizes with intense itching. The itching generally involves not only the raised spots but the entire skin.

These signs often disappear as fast as they come and sometimes last only a few hours. One of my children had an attack of this sort and I never did know what caused it.

Too often, however, hives goes on for days or weeks and even sometimes turns into a chronic condition which does not disappear for months or years. Chronic hives is, of course, the most troublesome variety.

Hives may follow the eating of some food to which a person is sensitive. It can also develop after a drug or serum has been given or infection, exposure to heat, sun, insect bites and many other things. It is not a single disease, therefore.

Urticaria differs from many other kinds of allergy in that a sensitive person does not always show a skin reaction when the offending substance is placed in contact with the skin by scratching or patch tests (a type of testing used in many allergies).

Often this failure of the skin to respond makes diagnosis of the cause of hives particularly difficult. Furthermore, no one knows why red spots should appear on the skin as a sign of sensitiveness. They do not seem to serve any useful purpose.

In many instances, however, drugs which are known as antihistamines and these should not be taken unless advised by a physician—bring great relief. These drugs do not cure the underlying cause, but may relieve the itching and cause the disappearance of the skin lesions for fairly long periods.

Many features of urticaria are still unexplained. The completely unexpected appearance of hives in a person who has never had the condition before is one of the many problems which has yet to be explained.

Chronic urticaria, when the cause cannot be discovered, the situation is particularly unpleasant. The skin is unattractive, and itching is often intolerable.
