"A new world war," he said, "will be a world war in which the two blocs of East and West Germany will be engaged."

Midwest Starts Cleanup After Blustery Storm

The upper Midwest began digging out today in the wake of a blustery late season snow storm that paralyzed traffic and took the lives of at least 39. Tapering off as it rolled into the East, the storm moved into the Atlantic today after dumping up to 10 inches of snow in northeastern New York. Snow crews moved 20-foot drifts that blocked main highways in sections of Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. Iowa and Michigan appeared to have felt the storm's impact most, with up to 22 inches of snow.

Parimutuel Betting Gets Overridden as Smylie Veto

BOISE, March 7 (AP)—Efforts to legalize parimutuel betting in Idaho fizzled again today as the house of representatives failed to override a veto by the state's chief executive. Gov. Robert E. Smylie said he refused to approve the gambling plan for two reasons: He thinks it is unconstitutional and he made campaign promises to resist it. "To now violate that promise to the public or to try and ignore it," Smylie said, "would be an act of political dishonesty. This I cannot do." The house failed to override the veto, by a vote of 30-25. The 25 votes lacked only two of the two-thirds majority required and were short of the 31-24 by which the measure first passed. The bill passed the senate 20-20, only one vote shy of the 21-20 majority required by the legislature's 1959 session.

Boy Finishes Traffic Theme; Girl Given Similar Sentence

Stricter traffic laws and sterner enforcement will do much to lessen the number of highway accidents in this county, a 16-year-old Buhl boy stated Saturday as one of his conclusions in a 5,000-word theme he was ordered to write on traffic problems. Meanwhile a 16-year-old girl got a similar assignment. Donald Sum, 16, in early February was ordered by Justice of the Peace George E. Scott to write the theme after the youth pleaded guilty to two traffic offenses. The young man was involved in an accident Feb. 1 just west of Twin Falls. At the time State Patrolman R. E. Young cited Sum for driving without a driver's license and for driving 70 miles per hour in a 60-mile zone. He appeared before Judge Scott and stated he could not pay the $200 fine. The judge then ordered him to write the theme within 30 days. The theme was due Saturday and was a similar assignment with the court order.

Young Mother of 4 Given 60-Day Term

Mrs. Ross Teeman, 28, Rogerson, mother of four children, was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail and fined $200 on Friday night after pleading guilty to drunken driving when she appeared before Mrs. Amos Williams, Castleford, justice of the peace. Her husband was fined $60 and costs for being drunk in a vehicle on a public highway. Both were arrested Friday night by State Patrolman Richard Burns and Deputy Sheriff Curtis Pryor. James F. Hamilton, received a commuted sentence of a year in the county jail when he appeared in Twin Falls district court Friday on a charge of drunken driving, repeated offense. Justice Theron W. Ward sentenced Hamilton to five years in the state penitentiary, commuting the sentence and granting Hamilton the right to move for a suspension in six months. Hamilton was arrested for drunken driving by city police on Feb. 16 in the 200 block of Washington street. He was convicted of drunken driving on Oct. 16, 1954, in Grouse probable court. He was fined $200 and $20 costs Saturday by Justice of the Peace.

Ex-Chief for Area Forests Writing Now studied law for two years at the University of Montana.

Since retirement, Mr. Daugherty has been selling real estate and life insurance. He practices his United States offer as challenge and explains, "It may be considered opinion that few, if any, areas in the United States offer so much in the way of hunting, fishing, camping and picnicking winter sports opportunities as the Magic Valley."

While it does not consider myself as an expert in any one field, I do feel somewhat qualified to write on these subjects because I have spent so many years working with all of them.

Mr. and Mrs. Daugherty were married Dec. 6, 1928, in Twin Falls. They have two sons, 30th anniversary. They have twin daughters, Mrs. Jack Fry, St. Ann, Idaho, and Mrs. William Goodman, Rupert.

His hobbies include hunting, golfing and pistol shooting. Strangely enough, Mr. Daugherty never cared for fishing.

In other ventures while still a forest service employee, Mr. Daugherty operated the first truckline into the Salmon country and also owned a garage at Jerome for four or five years.

Falls Sign Removed

Superintendent of Twin Falls city parks and recreation department, Ernest Craner, points out splintered post where an attractive sign erected by the Chamber of Commerce at Shoshone falls was destroyed by vandals. Missing Shoshone Falls Sign To Be Replaced by Chamber

A sign removed from the Shoshone falls area will be replaced, Chamber of Commerce directors decided Friday, but the sign and the vandals responsible for its absence are still missing.

The sign was erected near the falls to explain to tourists why water seldom flows over the falls. Sometime last week-end, vandals with axes chopped down the sign and either destroyed it or removed it from the area.

Other vandals at the park included removal of steel poles and barbed wire on the upper road to keep cars from becoming mired in the mud. After the barrier was removed, cars were driven across lawn while it was still soggy, raining sections of turf.

Pay of Back Wage Asked In Local Suit

A former Okay Food Center, Inc. employee filed suit in Twin Falls district court Saturday charging that the store owes him $1,750.96 in back wages and penalties.

—Jesse Rountree, who worked as a "lead man" in the store's meat department from June 1 until Nov. 15, 1958, charges that he would be paid at the rate of $231 an hour, or $77.50 a week at 40 hours, with time and a half for overtime.

—Rountree alleges the store failed to pay him in accordance with the agreement. He claims that a total of $1,256.96 in wages were not paid and that he was discharged without being paid the full amount he claims due him.

In his complaint, Rountree cites Idaho law (4-6-55), which requires an employer to pay a discharged worker all wages due him. In addition, the law provides that, if an employer does not settle fully with a worker when he discharges him, he must pay the equivalent of the worker's wages as penalty until the matter is settled, although the penalty provision lasts only 30 days.

Rountree claims that since the store has not paid him the wages he feels are due, it also owes him a full 30-day penalty, amounting to $370, or one month's regular wages at the rate Rountree claims was agreed.

—Rountree also asks payment of a $250 attorney fee and costs of the suit.

His attorneys are Carver, McClenahan and Greenfield, Boise.

Ski School Students to Get Pomerelle Area Certificates

BURLEY, March 7—Certificates will be given to students Sunday at the final session of the ski school at the new Pomerelle ski area on Mount Harrison, 30 miles southeast of here.

Developed by a group of Rupert businessmen, headed by Dick Beeson, the present facilities include a 1,000-foot rope tow and a large rustic warming hut. Beeson said plans are to enlarge the area to include a 4,000-foot tow with increased runs and parking facilities for next season.

The 4,000-foot Poma lift which is expected to be installed this summer will be over a 1,250-foot vertical rise, Beeson said. Other Rupert area men involved in the development include Harold Ferricks, Dean Anderson, Conrado DeThomas and Charles Norby.

More than 150 students have participated in ski instruction at the area this past season. Bill Lash, ski instructor at Alta, Utah, and former Twin Falls resident, conducted a clinic for instructors at the area last week.

Income Tax End Would Halt Foolish Spending, He Asserts

Editor, Times-News: One way to stop extravagance in Washington from spending our tax dollars so foolishly is to take the income of the revenue by stopping the 16th amendment.

The strongest modern advocate of a graduated income tax was Karl Marx. In his Communist Manifesto of 1848, he vigorously advocated a graduated income tax as a means of stabilizing an all-proletarian state and destroying the economic property.

After our Civil war an income tax ranging from three to five percent was enacted but soon abolished. In 1913 another income tax law was enacted. It was declared unconstitutional after a single year in operation.

Since 1913 our present income tax amendment has become a monster with which politicians deny each other the right to the full fruit of his labor. Today one-third of America's income is taken by complicated taxes.

Some people may think of the income tax as a tax on the personal income tax collected by the hungry government in Washington which annually costs $5000 or less.

In the 18th years from President Washington up to 1940 our government spent a total of 167 billion dollars. Now that figure is $1 trillion in one year even though our country is at peace. This bureaucracy runs like a machine since World War II, over 70 billion dollars in foreign aid have been shipped from American tax payers. The foreign aid program has not strengthened the free nations but has given us and the world stronger and stronger enemies.

It also makes conception unnecessary and a million servicemen home.

These several savings are estimated at 25 to 30 billion dollars. They would equal the major portion of our present personal income tax.

The best way to repeal the 16th amendment is by the state legislatures as is provided in article 5 of the constitution.

If we can get enough people to enter the United States to write their state legislatures and congressmen in Washington we might get the 16th amendment before the social and inflation take over all the way.

APPOINTMENT WITH BEAUTY

With the increase in both size and number of windows in today's smart homes, window treatments—particularly draperies—have become one of the most important appointments in every room plan.

Window treatments today are required to do much more than flatter the window and let in the light. We urge them to call attention to attractive outdoor views, to emphasize good structural arrangement, to make small, insignificant windows look large and important, and even to make our walls seem to be made entirely of windows.

Class of 1926 Here Slating First Parley

The Twin Falls high school class of 1926 is planning a reunion for the first time since graduation 33 years ago.

The reunion co-chairmen, Clarence Wagner and Mrs. Margaret Conant, say the class has never held a reunion, although it has been talked about for several years. A banquet and other activities are set tentatively for August. At the moment, those planning the event are busy jousting class members who have moved from areas or who have otherwise dropped out of sight.

Of a graduating class of 117, the planning committee has failed to locate 12 members. Information is needed regarding the whereabouts of the dozen class members still unaccounted for.

Names of those still not located are: Mary Banks, Harry Hamilton, Howard D. Owen, Marzaret Hill, Raymond Joseph McMillen, Jessie Juanita Ostrom, Walter L. Roberts, Frank Orin Howell, Helen Blanche Sherrick, Elizabeth Adeline Wulitzer, Charles Elmer Clark and Edwin Sullivan Debus.

Others planning the reunion besides Mrs. Conant and Wagner are: Mrs. E. W. McRoberts, Mrs. M. V. Whitehead, Sidney Knight, Mrs. Isabel Miller and Russell Papp, all of Twin Falls; Walter Slaughter, Kibbey, and Mrs. Edith Davis, Duhl.

Church Stirs up Much Interest With Proposal to End Atomic Weapon Test

WASHINGTON, March 7.—For a mere freshman in the Senate, the foreign-relations committee, Idaho's Sen. Frank Church has stirred up a lot of interest in his proposal to stop testing of atomic weapons.

Out of Church's proposal are getting nowhere with the suspicious Russians on proposals to send large "inspections" to a manure to monitor nuclear stockpiles. Therefore, let's settle on a less ambitious scale, agree to stop only those fittings in the Earth's atmosphere which can be detected by scientists stationed outside Russia.

Here's Church talking in the Senate:

Soviet spokesmen, from Khrushchev down, have repeatedly expressed their fears and suspicions concerning the movement of foreign inspection personnel within Russia. Their characterization of our position, as amounting to a thinly disguised attempt to gain military reconnaissance of their country, is based upon their propaganda agency of teams of technicians sneaking into every corner of their country in the guise of checking seismic disturbances, earthquakes, to see if they are nuclear origin.

Still to be stopped by later negotiation, under Church's plan, would be shots made underground or under water or in outer space.

The state department has been violating the foreign-relations committee in secret sessions on the imminent total breakdown of negotiations with the Reds in Geneva on an agreement to stop all forms of testing. The U. S., British and Russia have been meeting on the problem since last October.

The prospect of letting the Geneva talks break down completely have frightened Church and others. His point is that further testing by the "big three" alone would dangerously poison the air. However, now France, Red China and Sweden also want to start testing. Many other nations might, in time, further pollute the air.

Among those supporting Church's position was Sen. Ernest Gruening, D. Alaska, who said: "Our gains in this field, with the ultimate objective of world peace, will not be made along the line of a grand design, but will be achieved in a series of small gains, advancing by inches, trying to establish a new forward position of variety of fronts."

From the chairman of the foreign relations committee, Sen. William Fulbright, came this accolade: "I think this is an excellent example of constructive states-made his public proposal on this

Church's position is somewhat between the state department and the committee in Geneva will endeavor to do something they can't get the Russians to agree to it."

Also joining in was Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D. N. M., chairman of the joint atomic energy committee, who said: "I think the Geneva conference is in grave peril, if not in the utmost period of decay, (we should try) to find places upon which we may agree and try at least to arrive at a proposal which can be acceptable."

"I think people may subsequently blame both sides for intolerance," Church also made this point, "if the Russians are not negotiating in good faith at Geneva, as I strongly suspect may be the case, then what better way to expose their game than by offering them an international inspection and control system which can safely cut the slow pollution of the atmosphere without possibly doing them any internal mischief?"

"By forcing the Russian hand, refusal to accept such a proposal would reveal their hypocrisy before the world."

Church's ideas on the subject originally were contained in a letter he wrote to the acting secretary of state, Christian Herter, last month. The letter was circulated at top levels there before Church

Care of Your Children

Marian Martin Pattern

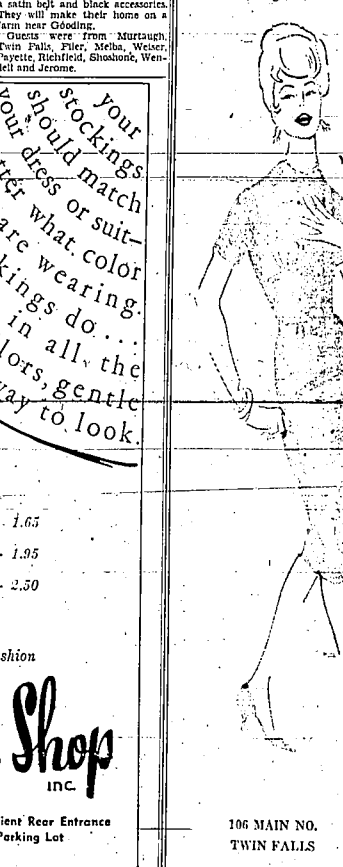

Take the charge that American children miss their parents. American children are backward in education compared to European children; that Dr. Devey is responsible for children's ignorance and backward learning... All American children? All parents? Consider the great group of parents in this country striving to give their children the best education. Consider the earnest, dedicated teachers scattered all over this land. Think about the church congregations and their leaders who have had no effect on this generation of youth of course they have... Common sense tells us that our educational system is open to adverse criticism. So every department of government in existence is being administered by those who believe and reflect their failures. But, and this is what saves us, they also reflect their successes. Could it not be possible to credit some teachers, some parents, with intelligence and ability in their own fields?

Pancake Mixing Contest Climaxes Leader Training Workshop

Results Told for Survey And Research on Mixes

Results of a survey and home demonstration program on pancake mixes were announced last night at the home of Mrs. Russell Miller. The program was conducted by Mrs. David Nelson, leader of the program. The survey included a comparison of various pancake mixes, including ready-to-mix and from-scratch mixes. The results showed that ready-to-mix mixes were preferred by most participants. The home demonstration program was also successful, with participants enjoying the process of making pancakes from scratch.

Mrs. Russell Miller required two trays to hold the preparations. Florence Schultz, who conducted the workshop, told the group the deciding factor in using the prepared mixes is what is most important to the individual, to save time, energy or money. (Staff photo-entourage)

Mrs. Miller's figures for home-made mixes are as follows: 35 cents for a mix and crust from mixes cost 35 cents, while Mrs. Miller made a cream pie for 24 cents. Pancakes from a mix cost 12 cents and "from scratch" nine cents. There was little difference in the cost of Mrs. Nelson's blueberry muffins cost 41 cents and Mrs. Miller's cost 47 cents. However, little were made. Only chocolate cake showed a higher cost in the homemade product, costing 49 cents to 35 cents for a mix.

Mrs. Miller prepared chocolate cake three ways, from the shelf to the oven she prepared a mix in 12 minutes, a hand-mixed cake in 20 minutes. The layers of the mix weighed one and one-half pounds each and the homemade layers, one and five-eighths pounds. Mrs. Nelson prefers the ready-to-mix products because she finds them faster and easier to prepare and like the variety. She cited the blueberry muffins as an example. In making them from scratch she said "chances are she would not have a cup of blueberries on her cupboard shelf, she has an 11-year-old son who likes to cook and she packaged them in a easier for children to prepare.

Mrs. Miller, who has done extensive test baking for a milling company for this altitude, urged women not to let their children "step up" but knowing what good food tastes like. Mrs. Charles Chambers, Piler, who is an ardent supporter of the "do-it-yourself" method and baked bread for her family of five, compared the costs of homemade bread. Her graph showed the cost of five slices of bread for seven and two-thirds cents per loaf, this did not include the cost of milk and which is produced on their farm. It included the percentage cost of sugar and flour bought 10 pounds a time and yeast by the pound. Buying yeast by the cake package and flour and sugar in smaller lots and including the cost of milk and lard her chart depicted the cost at 15 cents per loaf. Pancakes from a mix cost 12 cents and "from scratch" nine cents. There was little difference in the cost of Mrs. Nelson's blueberry muffins cost 41 cents and Mrs. Miller's cost 47 cents. State Junior Rifle Tournery Set for T.F.

Annual Idaho state junior rifle tournament will be sponsored in Twin Falls March 22 by the junior division of the Twin Falls Rifle Club, Inc. The match draws the top junior shooters from throughout the state each year, participation restricted to shooters who have not reached their 19th birthday. The tournament will be composed of eight matches for 270 and 300 yard individual competition. It is open to any junior who is a member of a national rifle association, listed club or NRA with rating of expert or above.

Thanks to Gary Tomberlin, Jerry Dellinger has bowed out of four district matches. His reputation still intact, that of leading Jerome to the regional tournament almost all the time.

For Dellinger, who was raised to take the athletic direction at his high school, this season's performance has represented this district in the state playoffs. With Twin Falls going along with the Tigers in the regional tournament, this district will be well represented but we feel Milano should go along.

While the Spartans' tournament showing was not impressive, still the season record is strong. Out of 15 games they won 13 straight and last they took 2 of 3 games during the year. They feel they are slumped at the wrong time.

Twin Falls rolled through a district one in Idaho but Jerry Tomberlin was a surprise. He was early enough for the Bruins to regain their polish in time for the tournament. The Bruins' team has to slump sometime during the season to feel they are slumped at the wrong time.

TWIN FALLS IS FOURTH DISTRICT AAA BASKETBALL CHAMP

Wendell Drubs Kimberly 53-33, Forces AA Tourney Into Extra Night

Ballantyne Leads Bruins to 51-41 Win Over Jerome

Twin Falls Bruins overcame an early case of tournament fever to come from behind to beat Jerome's Tigers 51-41 and become the class AAA fourth district basketball champions Saturday night. Both teams represented this district at the Tom Ballantyne tournament at Pocatello March 10. Proof that good basketball is not confined to the bench when the game is over, Wendell Ballantyne, captain of the Twin Falls team, quickly showed that he was not a "benchwarmer" by leading his team to a 21-10 lead in the second quarter. The 5-foot-7-inch junior stayed in the game and tanked a 13-point game which baited his way into the final by knocking out Wendell Ballantyne 33-33 in the first quarter. Ballantyne, who led before the game, was hit by a 10-foot shot from the Jerome team, which he missed. The two teams will meet again at 8 p.m. Monday in Shoshone gymnasium to decide which will go to the class AA regional meet at Jerome as the champion.

Ghost Town of Silver City Has Population of One Where 2,000

This is Silver City, a ghost town in Owyhee county and one of the last remainders of the gold rush days in Blaine Idaho. At one time it boasted a population of 2,000; now it has one. That single resident is an 81-year-old man who was born there. It operates a souvenir store. This is one of the areas that O. A. Keller speaks of during his slide-lectures on Idaho's ghost mining towns. Keller explains that what looks like a public square in the center of the town was at one time filled with store buildings. He says one of the most interesting buildings in the town is the Idaho hotel, the building with the balcony at center right. The church is at top right. Keller has taken more than 3,000 color photographs of three old mining areas in Idaho, Silver City, Idaho City and the area around Rocky Bar and Atlanta. He explains that as a volunteer field representative of the Idaho State Historical society he spends his time in ghost towns. Other volunteers "walk" on their appliances through the state. All the information gleaned by these "volunteers" is eventually turned over to the society for future reference use. Keller photo—staff engraving

History Society Volunteer Goes Into Old Towns

Since 1957 when he was appointed volunteer field representative for the Idaho State Historical society, O. A. Keller, Twin Falls, and his usual mode of travel by car and auto-trailer. They have a 10-foot house trailer to make the outback more comfortable. "This is a family project," Keller says. "I've been old-fashioned enough to believe that parents should raise their own children, and that vacations should be taken as a family group should be. Speaking of his wife, he says, Betty and I believe that our youngsters are interested in the project as we are." Mr. and Mrs. Keller have two children, Peggy, 8, and John, 11. The Kellers take most of their trips in Magic Valley during July, August and September. Keller explains that some of the ruins are still snow-covered and that there is always a danger of being isolated by an October blizzard. The week-end and vacation months have resulted in enough material and photographs for Keller to form three slide-lectures on the different mining towns in the Silver City area in Owyhee county, Idaho City area in Boise county, and the Rocky Bar and Atlanta area, some 70 miles north of Mountain Home. He also has material and slides on Virginia, Sawtooth City, Cluser and Bonanza in Stanley basin. Keller notes that the Silver City area opened in 1893 and once had a population of 2,000. It now has a permanent population of one, 81-year-old Billy Hawes, who was born there. He and his family operate a souvenir store during the summer months. In the winter months Hawes stays there alone, getting his supplies from the outside world from relatives who sometimes have to snowshoe the supplies in to him. Keller says the Silver City area first drew gold seekers but it was

Varied Meaning of Winter Sports Noted for Magic Valley's People

Unsurpassed winter scenery unfolds at the feet of these three skiers on top of Bald mountain near Sun Valley. Breath-taking views are recreated for the skiers who visit the "top of the world" during this more important form of winter recreation. (Sun Valley photo—staff engraving)

By CHARLES L. DAGHERTY (Former Supervisor, Northwest National Forest)

WINTER sports mean to the people of Magic Valley. It means many different things to many different people. To a great number it means business such as the operation of hotels, resorts, motels, cafes, sporting goods stores, transportation by all means as car, railroads and air, ski lift and ski tow operation and business for the shop and manufacturer all such goods and equipment.

To some it means employment both directly and indirectly. It requires trained personnel to operate all these services, to act as ski instructors and in some places ski patrolmen.

It means the opportunity for capital investment for it requires a considerable amount of money to install ski lifts, ski shelters, chaises and all the other facilities needed.

Winter sports, as we know it today is relatively young in Magic Valley and in the West in general. It started here in 1936 when the Union Pacific Railroad company purchased the Blue Heron ranch at Ketchum and built the Sun Valley lodge.

As a ski lift it might be of interest to some to know that while Sun Valley does not look like a steep ranch it all materialized as one. The same number of steps purchased with it are still run on the place and they're rangers as they were for many years in the past.

O. A. Keller, Idaho Historical society volunteer worker, holds the headboards from the grave of DeWitt Smith at the old Rocky Bar cemetery. The notations on the board can hardly be read. He died at the age of 35 years on Aug. 19, 1885. Smith was secretary to the first territorial governor of Idaho and was appointed to that position by Abraham Lincoln. (Keller photo—staff engraving)

Hawaii "Begging" Again To Be Accepted as State

By CHARLES PARMITER (Hawaii) (Special Staff Writer)

March 7 (AP)—Hawaii's bid to become the 50th state of the United States is back again this year, as the islands in quest of statehood.

The bulk of the nation's press supports her claim. The American people, in general—nationwide polls, overwhelmingly have endorsed statehood for this sun-drenched, verdant strand of volcanic mid-Pacific islands where a half million Americans live.

A variety of arguments have been advanced by Hawaii's opponents in congress to support their so-far successful efforts to block her admission:

1. The territory's small population. Representation of larger states in the senate would be diluted if Hawaii were admitted.

2. A lack of continuity to the rest of the United States. Its value virtually destroyed by Alaska's admission, this argument now has become one of distance, rather than contiguity.

3. The racial composition of Hawaii's largely Oriental population, which breaks down about 100 to 1 Japanese by per cent. Caucasians 25 per cent, Hawaiians and

American, Russian Radar 'Watch' Plane Heading for Bering Strait

By SAUL PATT (LITTLE DIOMEDE ISLAND)

How often have I seen flying north toward the Bering Strait. You can be sure the Russians are watching us on their radar."

"That's the Siberian mainland. You can be sure the Russians are watching us on their radar."

"It was an odd, unrelenting presence. Three men and an Eskimo boy in a tiny, single-engine plane being closely watched by the electronic eyes of the two giants of the cold war."

But older still was the sight that lay directly ahead, in the narrow neck of Bering Strait separating the mainlands of the United States and the Soviet Union.

Ahead of us, in the middle of the strait, we could see two rocky snow-covered crags—the Diomedes, one American; the other Soviet, only three and one-half miles apart and welded together by a frozen channel. And somewhere between them stretched the international dateline. Here is the one spot in the world where Soviet and American territories brush elbows. Here they are little more than 6,000 yards apart.

On our right, Little Diomedes Island, American. And it was Thursday there.

On our left, Big Diomedes Island, Soviet. And it was Friday there.

And on both islands, Eskimos related to each other, Eskimos who used to visit back and forth but now remain apart, divided by a cold war they never made.

Olon made one low pass between the islands, between jolting and towering houses, a carrier load and crates to Little Diomedes.

On Little Diomedes, we could see fifty clusters of about 20 clapboard and tarpaper houses, a school house and a church, all hugging the foot of a steep 1,000-foot mountain. The island is about four miles long and two miles wide and is all rise. The airport that awaited us was a strip of bumpy ground near the shore, marked off by "cutting fences," by real cedar, spruce and tamarack. Because of bad weather, Little Diomedes seldom gets visitors from the mainland in the winter, and then only by small planes. Their immediate supplies of food had been running low.

The wind was sharp, and the temperature was 21 below, so we adjusted quickly to the neat but tiny schoolhouse for interviews. The whole military contingent of Little Diomedes—10 Eskimo members of the national guard—fired me, like most visitors to the island, they spoke good English.

Had they seen any Russians lately?

"We see them almost every day. But the water is clear," said Sgt. Mike Oskopnik. "Through our binoculars or telescopes, we see their dog teams, supply sleds, landing near the north end of the island. They carry their rifles. We carry only M1 rifles."

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

"Honey in the bottom" was found by inventors of the MICHFIELD tract when they started remodeling the house. Mr. and Mrs. Brady Jackson, TWIN FALLS, purchased the farm, known as the honey bees, the newcomers, and their sons, Oliver and Thurman, and Twin Falls, cut through a double floor in the bedroom and took out a full tub of honey. Witnesses were Michael, Pat and Jeffrey Ward, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ward, who live across the road.

A side effect of cutting a hole in the ceiling resulted when Mrs. N. E. Silvey, former tenant farmer's wife who had locked the Jacksons out of the house, saw the honey. She had been out of the house for some time and had been out of the house for some time. She had been out of the house for some time and had been out of the house for some time.

The officers inquired from the Deacons about the honey and accompanied the men back to the ranch.

Another house in north Richfield, known as the honey, is owned by Fred Rutherford, now has 13 swarms of bees in it. The swarms were introduced through woodpecker holes.

Patterson recommends removal of bees from a house by the method of locating a bee nest. Cyto gas is an effective but dangerous way, as the gas can seep into the interior of a house and prove fatal unless adequate ventilation is provided.

A hole under the eaves, around the foundations or where wires enter the house is the best place for bees to make their permanent home. After entering the house, bees set up housekeeping, build their own wax cells, store large amounts of honey, and stay in the house for the winter.

In the early days of beekeeping, no effort was made to keep bees from swarming. Men were hired to watch the yards during the swarming season and hive bees swarms as they emerged. The modern beekeepers prevent their bees from swarming by cutting the queen cells and other bees which swarm are lost.

One of the important products of the honey bee is beeswax, Patterson says. It is the only wax that will contract and expand under heat and cold without cracking.

Elmo (Big) Patterson has operated an apibay at Richfield the past 13 years, moving here from CAREY where he began working with bees four years earlier. He places his 1,500 bee hives in the Carey and Richfield areas.

Recent visitors at the Herbert Meyer home in GOODING were the Rev. and Mrs. Medford Leidenfrost who are completing a nine-month tour in this country after spending 27 months with the Kpelle (pronounced Pella) tribe of natives in Liberia, French West Africa.

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

"The Faithfulness of Jesus"
By H. B. WALKUP
(Pastor, Assembly of God Church)
One of the outstanding characteristics of Christ is shown in the first days of His earthly life. Recorded in St. John 1:11 are these words, "None received Him because He came into the world."

Jesus was faithful to His friends, the disciples. He would let nothing hinder His feeling for those who loved Him. He was faithful to His friends and to His Father, having loved His own who were in the world. He loved them to the end.

It was prophesied by Isaiah in chapter 53 that faithfulness was to be the attribute of the servant of the Lord. In the Revelation He is spoken of as the one faithful and true, if there is any characteristic of Jesus we should appreciate and seek to follow it is His faithfulness.

Here, Jesus faced with the cross, betrayal, denial and forsaking of His friends and disciples, He remained faithful to the end.

Family Displays Mementoes of Old Towns

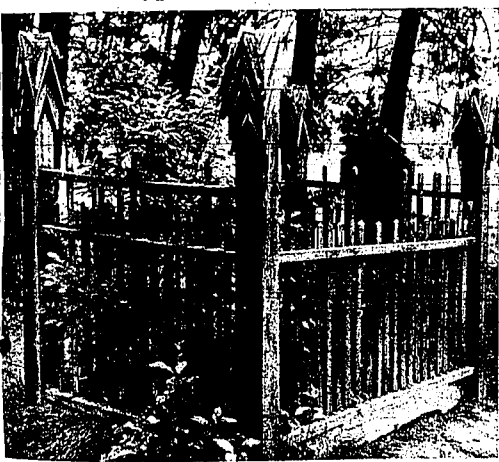

Mrs. O. A. Kehler and John Kehler hold a face curtain from a building in Silver City. The curtain has been framed to preserve it. It will be placed eventually in the State Historical society's museum in Boise. Percy Kehler holds an old bottle that Mrs. Kehler found at Rocky Bar. The bottle has been checked by an expert who says it is more than 100 years old. The project of checking the old mining towns has become a family project for the Kehlert. Idaho Historical Society's Volunteer Is Photographing Gold Rush Towns

(Continued From Page 17) The Idaho City area was settled in 1862 and Kehler notes an interesting historical fact concerning this area. It seems it was the gold from this region that eventually won the war for the North during the Civil war. Kehler adds that more gold was taken out of the Idaho City area than has ever been taken out of Alaska. Presently, Idaho City is a city of 200 population and there is little large scale mining, Kehler says.

This Is Typical Grave at Idaho City

This is a typical grave at Idaho City, one of Idaho's old gold mining towns. O. A. Kehler notes that the graveyards in these old towns are a rich source of information concerning the history of the town. But he adds that most of the old ghost town cemeteries are in disrepair and that in a few years they will be useless as a source of information concerning the families who lived there. After they have completed their study of the three different mining regions they will compile all the facts and send them. "This will then be a description of what we did and what we saw."

For 40 years the chamber has maintained a calendar listing company, banquets, meetings, conventions, or any events that will draw a group together for a specific purpose.

The intent behind the calendar is to provide a method to avoid awkward situations whereby two or more organizations schedule meetings at the same time.

WARBERG'S MOVING STORAGE RE 3-7371 ALLIED VAN LINES

Coming Events Calendar Helps Eliminate Conflicts

Two officials of the Twin Falls Shrine club talk with William Grange, secretary-manager of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, and make a notation on the chamber's coming events calendar. They are scheduling the Shrine Circus on June 20 and 21. This is done to avoid conflict with other activities of like interest at the same time. The chamber keeps the calendar as a service and notes the scheduling of events, days or years in advance. A calendar is Charles A. Bush, president of the club, and James Stokes, secretary. The Chamber of Commerce secretary urges everyone to use the calendar. (Staff photo—enraving)

Chamber of Commerce Calendar Aimed At Elimination of Conflicting Events

The Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce is working for the resident who faces the dilemma of choosing between two simultaneous events in which he is interested. Although the chamber has been working on the matter ever since it was organized 40 years ago, the problem still exists. Sometimes two similar events are scheduled on the same night because circumstances don't permit one or both events to be rescheduled.

Penala, sometimes steel grave-stones and break windows in churches. Kehler had to sweep out the history of the Silver City church before he could take a picture. It was covered with particles of glass from a window someone had shattered.

At the chamber banquet—the Junior citizen, senior citizen, and the outstanding young farmer awards were presented.

This was an event of interest to businessmen and farmers. At the Grange pulchuck award a Grange member and his wife introduced members of the farming community to members of the business community. It is a project suggested by the National Grange and was started four years ago by Harvey Quesnell. This, too, was an event of interest to businessmen and farmers. The Grange was forced to schedule its event on last Wednesday in February because of a complicated set of circumstances, but the example serves to illustrate how large gatherings can come into direct conflict.

Grange notes that such an occasion happened on Feb. 25 when the Junior Chamber of Commerce had its annual distinguished service awards banquet at the Turf club and the Twin Falls Grange held its annual farm-city night at the Grange hall.

When the chamber notes on its calendar that a convention is to be held on a specific date it also gets information on how many people will attend and where they are meeting. This provides information for anyone wishing to schedule a meeting at the same time.

Grange adds that the Bortolomich club has provided a calendar that gives the dates of regular club, lodge, church and civic government meetings throughout the year. This is prepared a year in advance and lists only permanent meeting dates.

Grange adds the chamber can schedule any future date and scheduling aren't limited to 1959. The chamber officials always has events on the calendar several months in advance.

BENEFIT SLATED HOLLISTER, March 7—A supper and dance will be sponsored by the Hollister PTA beginning at 6 p.m. Friday at the Grange hall. Proceeds will go for the hog lunch program. There will be a fishpond, cooked food sale and games as well as a dance.

Competition Important in Winter Recreation

Winter Sport Has Different Meaning For Different People in Magic Valley

and all his facilities and they do not have to travel far to reach them. Most of these also have all skiers and lunch counters.

They are the Klondiker near Ketchum, Rola Run just west of Teller, Boulder Mountain a few miles north of Fairfield, Magic Mountain south of Hansen and Pomeroy in Howell canyon southwest of Albion. These areas are well improved and operated by competent personnel, snow conditions on them are usually of the best.

With all of this before us what does it mean to those who participate in the sport?

There are many too young to remember that we have not always had a winter sports season. We have always had the season with ample snow and perfect slopes but certainly we have not always had the sport.

Winter sports to some of us means a cabin up in the deep snow but close to an old highway and with excellent terrain for cross-country skiing, downhill skiing and toboggan runs. Perhaps most important of all there must be skis for quick and easy transportation to the top of the slopes. The snowmobile for comfortable travel to more remote areas also has come to play an important part in our equipment needs.

Some of us can still remember when these snow-covered slopes were not places of enjoyment. We tried them with skis and snowshoes but it was not for fun. There was work to do and skis were the best means of transportation across the time. Living and working in those same hills was a hard and dangerous business. The snow slides, the wet sticky snow on warm afternoons and the bitter cold nights when one slept under a tree and tried to keep a fire going made the use of these slopes a far different thing than it is today.

Remembering these past conditions with all the discomforts is not too important now except to make us realize how far we have come in the use of these hills of ours. It might also make us think of how far we are going and what else we need to make wise use of them in the years to come.

What does seem important now is that we use these snow-covered slopes with the fine facilities which have been placed upon them for outdoor recreation. We want our young people to use them for pleasure, for relaxation, for building strong bodies and for just getting the feel of living and playing in these hills. And maybe they will know at times what it was once like to be here. We want them to feel and become a part of the drama that is found only in these hills of ours—truly the "hills of home".

The younger ones will find excitement and release for the vast energies they have. They will come home at night with a feeling that they have experienced at least some phase of long ago past and a new thrill of the present. They will be tired but they will look with keen anticipation to going again. The older ones will find something which helps to keep alive the spirit of youth—something which helps them to keep alive and restore the enthusiasm of living.

Millions of dollars have been spent in the installation of improvements on these areas and for highways and roads leading to them. The participants should only spend a small amount of money and a great amount of energy to take full advantage of all of them. The cost is small and the rewards so great that no man can say he has great things really are.

No people on earth have ever been blessed with the outdoor recreational opportunities which are ours today. These are the things of recreation which will keep mind and body well conditioned and alert. In this hurried life of today such recreation can fill a vital need in the lives of many.

How much and how well will we use these slopes of ours? What is the value to American youth and to many who are no longer so young? We cannot accurately answer these questions but we venture to say that this use will continue to grow.

Also to like to think that such may be one factor in keeping this land of ours filled with individuals who will understand and love individual freedom and hate to keep it strong in a world where it is suffering so much. These magnificent snow-covered slopes are ours—let's keep them and use them, now and in the years to come.

T.F. Woman Recalls Many Adventures Of Exciting Alaskan Gold Rush Days

Mrs. Minnie Lang, who was night manager of Wray's cafe from 1927 until 1937, has had enough adventure in her life to provide material for several best sellers.

At the turn of the century when Alaska attracted thousands of gold rush fanatics, Mrs. Lang was in the midst of the excitement. She can recall horse droppings in the main street mud of Nome, when dogs went to dance and Swift Water Bill threw gold nuggets and notorious dance hall girls like "Ullah Pilly," "Queen Marie" and "Gold-Tooth Gertrude."

Mrs. Lang, who is approaching her 84th birthday anniversary, came to the United States in 1892 from her birthplace, Roskoff, Germany, an east-Germany Baltic seaport.

She came to this country to care for the children of a former German family living in Washington, D. C. After three years in Washington she got the wanderlust. "I thought I would see the world," she says. "I always did like to travel and it seemed like a good place to go."

In San Francisco she worked for another family, caring for their children. But the urge to travel was strong. In those days San Francisco was a busy city and she was a busy girl. It was a "jumping off point" to Alaska-bound gold rushers.

"All the newspapers were full of the news of the gold rush," she says. "I met another woman and my two brothers preparing to leave for Dawson, Yukon Territory, on the gold rush."

"We decided we were going to get to the gold rush territory, or at least to the Yukon Territory, by November, 1897. After eight months of travel through the primitive area that was then Alaska, they arrived safe, but not with gold."

It was the beginning of 12 years of adventure for Mrs. Lang in the boom towns of Alaska and she arrived in Skagway, Alaska. There was no town there then and the prospectors were virtually dumped on the tundra and left to their own resources.

Nearly 100 persons set up camp on the cold tundra and prepared to strike out across country to Dawson.

"We had to get all our provisions ready and packed and then we started walking to Dawson," she says. "It took us three months to get to Lake Bennett."

Lake Bennett was a point between Skagway and Dawson where the early gold rushers stopped and built their camps and then continued their journey by way of several different rivers, all of them dangerous and marked by swift rapids.

On the lake Mrs. Lang and the rest of the party spent several days building a boat and then started down the river.

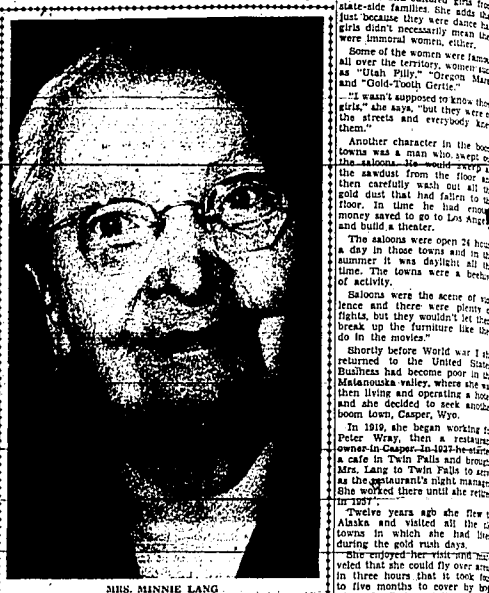

During the trip their boat passed through rapids and struck a large rock. The boat was shattered and members of the party and their provisions were tossed in the river.

Mrs. Lang perched on a rock in the middle of the river until she was finally rescued by another party of gold rushers.

"Many persons were wrecked on the floating log," she says. "I sat on a rock in the middle of the river for about a half-hour. Finally I got out safe and sound and there was a rope with a big cork on the end of it. I grabbed it and they pulled me through the water. I really prayed."

She recalls that the entire stretch of the river at that point was littered with the remains of boats and provisions that had been wrecked in those rapids. "You could see provisions all along Thirty-five miles into the Yukon Territory," she says.

When they finally arrived in Dawson, Mrs. Lang was hospitalized for six months, chiefly because of extreme fatigue. She recalls treatment in the hospital was excellent, if somewhat primitive.

"Everyone on the frontier was more merciful to one another there in those days in the evenings from 8 p. m. on. The noise and the excitement was wonderful. Early in the evenings the prospectors would start walking up and down the streets shouting advertisements about the different saloons and dancehalls."

She explained that most of the towns didn't have newspapers in the early stage and all the advertising was done by the prospectors who made a living by walking around town shouting the virtues of establishments.

"About 8:30 the brass bands would move out on the sidewalks in front of the saloons and dancehalls and start playing. There would be four or five bands playing at the same time."

"The noise of the 'speakers' and the bands would vibrate with the music and the crowd of streets and the dogs would start howling when the bands began to play."

"In the summer all the doors to the gambling houses were open and you could walk down the sidewalks and see all the money being stacked on the tables," she says.

She explains that the coastal towns used gold money, but the interior towns, particularly in the early days, used nothing but stacks of washed silver.

"The towns didn't lack character. In Dawson there was a 'Switz Water Bill' who was a miner and was one of the most attractive to the ladies only because cause of his great wealth. Mrs. Lang says he was famous all over the territory because he would sit in the dance halls and look at the nuggets to the dance hall girls. "I wasn't romantic," she says. "The dance hall girls were getting state-side families. The girls from just because they were dance hall girls didn't necessarily mean they were immoral women either."

Some of the women were famous all over the territory, women like "Ullah Pilly," "Queen Marie" and "Gold-Tooth Gertrude."

"I wasn't supposed to know these things," she says. "I was just in the streets and everybody was there."

Another character in the boom towns was a man who worked in the sawdust from the flour and then carefully washed the flour and the gold dust that had fallen to the floor. In time he had enough money saved to go to Los Angeles and build a theater.

The boom towns were open 24 hours a day in those towns and in the summer it was daylight all the time. In the towns there was a beauty of activities.

Recreation was the scene of violence and there were plenty of fights, but they wouldn't add to break up the furniture like they do in the movies."

When she had been working in the United States she had become poor in the Klondike valley, where she had then living and operating a store and she decided to seek another boom town, Casper, Wyo.

In 1919, she began working for Peter Wray, then a restaurateur-owner in Casper. In 1927 she was a case in Twin Falls and brought Mrs. Lang to Twin Falls to care as the proprietor's night manager. She worked there until she retired in 1937.

Twenty years ago she flew to Alaska and visited all the boom towns in which she had lived during the gold rush days.

"She enjoyed her visit," she revealed that she could fly over some of the towns that it took her five months to cover by foot when she first went there.

"I still prefer Alaska as it was then," she said. "There was something about it when I was young, you felt so free. It seemed so free. She no longer feels it still has its attraction. "I wish she was back in the old, old, or I absolutely would visit."

Visit Is Over

North Side Residents Are Proud of Old Cars They Keep in Near-Perfect Running Condition

Three members of the Gooding Regional Horseless Carriage club pose at a luncheon with their cars. The purpose of the club is to preserve and maintain the mechanical value and historical value and to serve as an information source for the members as well as the general public. From left, they are Ben Box, Jerome, with his 1930 Ford model "A", Chester Rice, Wendell, with his 1917 Ford model "T", and Ben Hon, Jerome, with his 1927 Hudson sport coupe. Box and Rice have "Old Timer" license tags on their cars. These are available for cars over 20 years old. They can be purchased for $10 and are good for a lifetime. They are issued to the individual, not the car, and they are used to display purposes only on cars that are driven occasionally. The object of the members is to get an old car, the older the better, and restore it to new condition. Restoration of some of the older cars that lack certain parts takes months and sometimes years before it is complete. (Staff photo-epicure)

High hand rubber wheel, the motor under the seat, uses a tiller instead of a steering wheel. Lacks fenders and utilizes splash boards. In other words, it looks like a horse carriage.

Box notes that one of the biggest problems for drivers of relic cars is the modern day motorist. When a driver takes his 1927 Hudson sport coupe on the highway he runs the risk of tying up traffic. Curious motorists, while by in their chrome-bedecked modern cars are sometimes curious they will drive their cars in the ditch or simply slow down and hinder traffic.

Vigorous detective work is not involved on the search for automotive parts alone. It seems these people want to go all the way. They want to be truly authentic. They want to dress in the clothes that were in fashion during the time the car was popular.

So as they search for the car parts they also search for old clothes. The clothes must be old, they can't be made by a tailor. That's the way the game is played.

They wear long dark coats and overcoats. Looking through our binoculars, we can see them looking at us through their binoculars.

What was the last contact they had with the Soviet 24th Army? "I see water. Our tanks before any of us knew it, a man named Odojak walked over the ice from his tank and handed me a map. I appeared in one of our houses. He said he wanted to see his relatives here. He said he wanted to go to get fish for Ivory. He got the fish and promised to return with the fish. He never returned.

Mike explained that several families on Little Donnie recognized the visitors as cousins they used to see frequently.

Before the Korean war, he said, everybody on both islands used to go back and forth across the ice without passports or incidentals. Then the Soviets began to discourage visitors. The last time American Eskimos went over was six years ago.

As Mike was talking, a shout came up from the observation post. We all raced out to the telescope. I was invited to look.

There, on the north ridge of the Big Diomedes I made out some sort of structure behind blocks of snow and on the top a small metal chimney. And to one side, a human figure. He seemed to be looking at us.

"You can be sure," Mike said, "He's watching everything—when your plane arrived, what was unloaded, how many people got out and when it leaves. He must report all this to his mainland just like we do."

Old Car Fan Has No Time for New Car; He's Busy Poking Around in Junkyard

While the average resident of Magic Valley spends considerable time trying to buy a new car, Chester Rice, president of the Gooding Regional Horseless Carriage Club, has no time for a new car. He is busy poking around in a junkyard, searching for old cars to restore. Rice, 52, has been restoring old cars for over 20 years. He has a collection of over 100 cars, including a 1917 Ford, a 1927 Hudson, and a 1930 Ford. He has spent thousands of dollars on these cars, but he says it is worth it. "I love these cars," he says. "They are a part of our history. I want to keep them as long as I can."

Rice is a member of the Gooding Regional Horseless Carriage Club, which was founded in 1954. The club's purpose is to preserve and maintain the mechanical value and historical value of vintage cars. The club has over 100 members and holds regular meetings. Rice is the president of the club and is responsible for organizing the club's activities. He has been president of the club for several years. He has also been a member of the club since its inception. Rice is a well-known car enthusiast in the Magic Valley. He has been featured in several local newspapers and has given many talks about vintage cars. He is a very knowledgeable and passionate car collector. He has a deep understanding of vintage cars and their history. He has spent a lot of time researching and restoring these cars. He has a great eye for a good car and is always looking for new ones to add to his collection. He is a true car enthusiast and is proud to be a part of the Gooding Regional Horseless Carriage Club.

Idaho Agency Goes Slow on Any Idea Of Introducing New Fish Into State

BY TIM HUMBOLDT
Idaho Fish and Game Department
Newcomers to Idaho often dream about how it was back home about the channel cat, the walleye and northern pike, the muskellunge and a host of other fish species not indigenous to this state.

Such yearnings along with other symptoms of spring fever about this time of year are vitalized and translated into letters beseeching the state fish and game department to introduce exotic fishes, particularly pickerel and spiny-ray members such as walleye and white bass.

While the department does not turn a deaf ear to suggestions for the introduction of some species of fish not presently found in the Gem state on the extension of the range of some already here, there is considerably more to such a program than communicating with another department in an appropriate state and ordering a million or so fertilized eggs, fingerling or fry.

To begin, it must be demonstrated on the basis of scientific research that the introduction of any new species will add rather than detract from the present and future potential of the state's sport fishery.

Next, the state has had, almost three-fourths of a century of experience with more than a score of exotic or "foreign" species, beginning with the lowly-esteemed carp. This omnivorous feeder first was transplanted into Idaho waters in 1858 when 21 residents received 650 carp from the U.S. fish commission. Now it is widely scattered throughout most of the upper Snake and Boise rivers. Intended originally as a pond fish to be used solely as food (as it is in Asia, it never has been appreciated by sportsmen because it competes with other fish for the animal foods available. Moreover, carp roots up the bottoms of streams and lakes, overturning plants and destroying vegetation, muddying the water and making it unsuitable for the spawning of many warm-water species.

Today the introduction of this exotic species by a few enterprising individuals before the state fish and game department came into being stands out as the greatest mistake in the history of fisheries management.

Another mistake of the past has been the transfer and release of bass, particularly members of the minnow family, from one drainage to another. The release of such species by ignorant or careless sportsmen has been the near-ruination of waters where they were liberated. The use of live minnows on the relatively short stretch of the Kootenai river where anglers catch line sets flows from Montana into Canada.

These and other bad effects arising from the wrong species being let into a complete embargo on "tiny foreigners" however, because about 30 exotics have been officially introduced into this state as game or food fish. Many of them have made the grade, among them being the channel catfish.

Over the past few years the channel catfish has gained popularity as a sports fish from Swan falls to the mouth of the Snake river. Bumpus stated, the history of this transplant dates back to 1893 when the U.S. fish commission released 100 in the Boise river. Since none ever were reported taken, this early project has been judged a failure, probably because environmental conditions were not suitable.

The species again was introduced in February 1910. Between 1910 and 1915, 100 channel cats were taken from the Little Wood river near Gooding, Snake river near Burley, and from Glens Falls to Weiser. No catfish ever has been reported taken from the Little Wood or Snake river above Shoshone falls, but a sizeable population presently inhabits Snake river from Swan falls to its mouth, and downstream in the Columbia river.

Which brings up another point. Although channel catfish and bullheads are both fine sports fish, excellent eating and have demonstrated that they can prosper in some Idaho waters, the fish and game department nevertheless still is reluctant to extend their range. Chief of the fisheries management division, James C. Simpson, has this to say on the subject: "We have found that so few people fish for them we hesitate to extend their range unless we are reasonably certain that a fishing pressure would develop to keep their numbers in check. Catfish, particularly the bullheads, are extremely prolific."

Largemouth bass is another introduced fish now prevalent, especially in the lake region of northern Idaho. Earliest Idaho record of the species refers back to William H. Ridenbaugh, who transplanted 100 bass into the Snake river pond back in 1871. Five years later he made a planting of 2,400 pond-raised bass in the Boise river to which the federal fish commission added 1,377 more. These thrived and spread over most of the state. Drainage and filling-in of sloughs along the Boise in later years, however, have reduced bass populations in this river to the point of near-extinction.

Another fish which has been widely distributed over the state since plantings were made years ago is the yellow perch, which is commonly found in the Atlantic and Great Lakes waters. It is commonly found in the Atlantic and Great Lakes waters. It is commonly found in the Atlantic and Great Lakes waters.

Simpson lists many species which have been introduced to Idaho waters as game or food fish with amount of success ranging from complete failure to excellent results. They include Atlantic salmon, chum salmon, brown trout, Kenai trout, rainbow trout, Golden trout, Mackinac brook trout, lake whitefish, grayling, channel catfish, brown bullhead, tadpole minnow, yellow perch, smallmouth bass, largemouth bass, black sturgeon, bluegill, sunfish, pumpkinseed, sunfish, goldfish, tench and, of course, carp.

Simpson concludes that "the majority of these fishes were brought here because someone believed a particular species to be a good game and/or food fish with little or no thought given to biological requirements of the particular species. No doubt, in their native habitats, all these fish were good game or food fish, but here, when introduced, they have become nuisances."

Her "Fast" Watercolor Won Honorable Mention

"Exotic" Carp Is Nuisance in Idaho's Fishing Waters

First "exotic" fish species introduced into Idaho waters from other parts of the world was carp back in 1858. This omnivorous feeder now is scattered widely throughout the Snake and Boise rivers and has proved to be a nuisance. It not only competes with other fish for animal foods available, but also roots bottoms of streams and lakes, overturning plants and destroying vegetation. This also muddies the water and makes it unsuitable for the spawning of many warm-water species. James F. Keating, fisheries biologist, holds one of several hundred channel cats now prevalent in shallow waters eradication project while fish were spawning in Idaho waters. Water is dotted with dead carp. More than 30 species of exotic fishes have been introduced in the state, with amount of success ranging from complete failure to excellent results. Watercolor Completed in One Day After Surgery Is Contest Winner

JEROME, Feb. 23.—A watercolor painting completed by a Jerome woman just after she returned from a hospital after major surgery, recently won an award in a national contest.

Mrs. Donald Daw, Jerome, says "I was determined to enter this contest." But she had only one day to beat the deadline after returning home from the hospital in the one day, she completed three watercolor paintings for the figure-drawing contest. One of her handily-completed entries received an honorable mention award in the competition sponsored by Art Instruction, Inc.

"This is the first year she has participated in the professional class. Mrs. Daw is a former student of the school and this year she is acting as a volunteer. She had to complete as professional, whether they were working professionally or not."

Asked if she was going to enter the contest this fall, she says, "Yes, but I'm not going to do them all in one day." She adds that she is heartened by winning a prize by working just a single day on her contest. This year she is going to spend more time and money on her art.

She explains that the school's contest is sponsored chiefly to give recognition and publication to its students.

Mrs. Daw has been painting art for about seven years. She works mostly with watercolors, pencil and pen and ink. With two children, she paints "in my spare time," but "I have to make spare time."

She explains that in order for a housewife to have time for painting she must work hard and try not to get behind in her household duties.

"I can't believe these people who say they don't have the time to do the things they want to do," she says. "We always have the time to do the things we really want to do. I see so many people who have the time and talent but don't use it to good advantage."

Mrs. Daw, who at one time wanted to be a professional dress designer, is enjoying her art as much as an avocation as she would as a vocation.

"Before I was selfish when I had a career in mind. But now I enjoy art even more. I can give my art to my children and I can see how much they enjoy it."

In addition to painting, Mrs. Daw also has an interest in handicrafts, weaving, floral designs, quilting, jewelry work and candlemaking.

She is a former instructor in the handicraft program of the Twin Falls city parks and recreation department, and a charter member and first president of the Hobbycrafters Club.

The Jerome woman has so many hobbies she has trouble keeping a track of them. "My handicrafts hobby is a standard right now," she explains.

She has worked considerably with copper wire and jewelry. She became interested in jewelry when she was designed in becoming a fashion designer. Her object was to create jewelry that would complement designs.

She first designs jewelry out of brass or copper wire and then uses the same design with silver wire. It is cheaper to experiment with less expensive metals before making the final product.

Art and handicrafts should be enough to take up all her time. Mrs. Daw has another interest, poetry. Although she has been interested in writing poetry only about two and one-half months she has written two or three poems a day.

She believes poetry and painting are related. "Actually, I think they're integrated; that I don't see the difference."

Currently she is working on illustrating a book of poetry that she and Adrian Adams are writing. She estimates the book will be published within the next few days.

Hawaii Back on Capitol Steps Again "Begging" for Recognition as State

...Hawaiians 17 per cent, white 12 per cent, Chinese 8 per cent, others 4%. But 10 per cent of all Hawaii residents are U.S. citizens by birth, regardless of their ethnic ancestry.

...The doubtful loyalty of her people is an unhappy truth that she cannot ignore.

...Hawaii is no inherent tropical paradise, populated by peculiar savages and dive for pearls in palm shaded alighting lagoons.

...It is an honest - to goodness 1931 - developing, fast - maturing modern American community.

...Hawaii is sufficiently solvent to meet the obligations of statehood.

...The governor of Hawaii, appointed by the President, is an employe of the U.S. interior department. His salary, and the meager wages of territorial legislators, are paid by the federal government.

...The whole tab amounts to something over $50,000 a year, and must be picked up by Hawaii if it wins statehood.

...Hawaii's economy rests today, as in old territorial days, on an agricultural base. Sugar and pineapples are still the islands' two largest industries.

...An influx of new industry - steel mill, oil refinery, clothing manufacture - is pushing Hawaii's economic growth curve steadily higher.

...Hawaii is the nerve center of America's widening Pacific defense network.

...From his office just outside Honolulu, Adm. Harry D. Felt, commander in chief of all Pacific forces, rules a vast command empire which stretches from the West Coast to the Aleutians and around the entire Pacific basin.

...Defense department representatives repeatedly have told congress that the security of our nation and its armed services could not be impaired by statehood for Hawaii.

...Four times since 1947, Hawaii statehood has come to a vote in congress. Three times it passed the house, only to die in the senate.

...In 1955, a joint Alaska-Hawaii bill was remanded to committee by the house.

...Statehood means much to us Hawaiians.

...We will have four representatives - two senators and two congressmen - in Washington. We will elect our own governor.

...Our courts, now administered by federal appointees, will be run instead by locally selected judges.

...Close ties with the mainland will destroy the illusion that Hawaiians are foreigners, and aid local businessmen in obtaining financial support.

...Before 1941, there was legitimate doubt where the loyalty of Hawaii's Japanese Americans lay.

...That question was firmly answered by the Nisei who served in World War II's famed 100th battalion and 442nd regimental combat team, described by Gen. Mark Clark as "the most decorated unit" in the entire military history of the United States.

...More recently, charges of disloyalty have been directed at the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, run by leftwinger Harry Bridges.

...The ILWU hold enormous economic power: it controls Hawaii's docks and the labor force in the important sugar and pineapple industries. But its political influence in the islands has been highly exaggerated.

...Hawaii does have a communist problem. So does every mainland state. But Hawaii has laws to combat it, and secret's charged with investigating and controlling it.

...Will Hawaii win statehood in 1957?

...Certainly Alaska's success in the 55th congress had enhanced Hawaii's chances.

...In the last few months, strong resolutions urging statehood have been passed by the council of state government, the western governor's conference and the western Republican conference. Both political parties have endorsed Hawaii's immediate admission.

Easter Promenade

HUDSON'S-TWIN FALLS

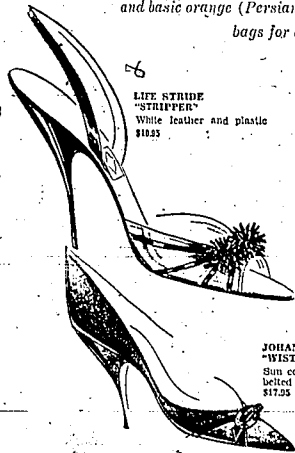

Ah, Spring! Ah, Easter! 'Tis the season of brighter smiles, greener grass, and beautiful women. Each in her favorite new-season costume . . . complete with her favorite shoes from Hudson's! Just look at the parade of famous shoe names: DeLiso Deb's, Johansen, Florsheim, Selby, Italian Adore', Town and Country, Naturalizer, Life Stride. And all the wonderful colors: green (gourd or ice), pinks (hot or cool), sun copper-bronze, tan, browns, cocoa, bone, white and several colors beyond black in shiny new patents. Blue, too, and basic orange (Persian melon or maybe tiger butter). And a host of pastels. Matching bags for all, of course.
