

Man Awaits Sentence in Death in '33

KANSAS CITY, June 13 (AP)—Arthur E. Eschman, 51, was convicted yesterday of first degree murder in the slaying of Nadine Vogel in 1933. He was sentenced to death by a district court jury which brought in the verdict promptly. Eschman had pleaded guilty to the crime. He said he would probably appeal the sentence after ruling on a motion for a new trial. He was arrested on a bad check charge in San Francisco last October. Eschman confessed to the slaying of Nadine and said her death had been his conscience.

But he said he was maintaining during the trial that he accidentally struck her with his car and then panicked, disposing of her body on a wooded hillside. The state said the child was raped and strangled.

Eschman's former wife, Elizabeth, shared the secret of Nadine's death through the years and is awaiting trial as an accessory after the fact. She testified against her ex-husband.

Measures to Control Cherry Fruit Fly Are Advised Now

Now is the time to start control—the cherry fruit fly, says Warren Hatch, Twin Falls county extension agent. Several control methods are effective if they are used from the moment the fly from the insect stage.

Some cherry growers, said Hatch, have cooperated by installing sticky boards from their trees during the past week. Hugh V. Hunt, district inspector for the state department of agriculture, reported that he found some of these first flies developing on these boards.

Used for all the sprays with 2 pounds of 50-per-cent wettable powder in 100 gallons of water every 10 days up to two days before harvest.

None of the areas in the state quarantined at the present time by the state department of agriculture because the fruit fly has been found in all cherry growing areas. Therefore, control is mandatory only for those growers who ship out of the state into states which have a quarantine against Idaho cherries.

The cherry crop is very short in Idaho this year and also in some other cherry-growing states in the northwest because of fruit damage this spring.

Ex-Banker Is Charged for Taking Fund

DOEUR D'ALLENE, June 13 (AP)—FBI agents Friday night arrested Fred C. Derby, 41, at his ranch at Emmarville in Shoshone county. Derby is charged with embezzling $2,000 from the Weber bank at Kellogg in 1951 while employed as a cashier-manager.

He was arraigned here last night before U. S. Commissioner W. P. Quarles and released under $2,000 bond.

Quarles said Derby asked for a preliminary hearing and said a date would be set later.

Harry Maynor, special agent for the FBI, said Derby is charged with violating the federal reserve act on or about April 20, at Kellogg.

Derby allegedly set up a fictitious loan to a W. Kelly and converted funds to his own use and benefit without consent of directors, Maynor said.

Scholarship Won

SHOSHONE, June 13 — Judith Love, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Love, was awarded a scholarship to Colby college, Nevada, Mo. The award came from the Idaho PEA Colby college scholarship fund and was made at the state PEA convention held at Boise recently.

Joyce Braun, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Braun, who graduated from Twin Falls business college, was chosen to represent Idaho PEA loan girls and gave a talk at the convention.

are Ray Cronk, Lynn Wiley, Martha Perry, Lorraine Carlson, Joan Shantz, Carol Cook and Corinne Aberglen. All are certified by the American Red Cross, whose water safety program is recognized internationally.

Mrs. E. R. Bacon, executive secretary, Twin Falls chapter of the Red Cross states that efforts are being made to set up a course here either later this season or early next summer with the Western Regional instructor to offer the instruction course to additional recreation workers from this area. Present instructors have attended life water safety schools in other places in the area, but Ernest Craner, city superintendent of parks and recreation, and Mrs. Bacon feel there are enough people in this area needing the instruction, that it would be best to bring the instructor here.

The swimming program has the highest degree of participation of any of the activities sponsored by the city recreation program, Craner said.

Some 1,600 Tourists Greeted At Hollister Area Roadblock

About 1,600 tourists entering Idaho at the Hollister port of entry Saturday received a cool welcome as well as a warm one.

A courtesy roadblock, arranged by the auxiliary police unit of the American Legion in cooperation with the Idaho state police, was given a big boost by the Idaho Dairy month promotion.

Milk, ice cream bars and pop slides were given warm and weary travelers. Coffee and cold soft drinks also were provided at the roadblock with nearly 100 percent participation by the tourists. Most of them were enthused with the opportunity to rest under the shade of umbrellas, and refresh with the treats provided.

game of catch on the grass to limber their tired muscles. One small girl took off her canvas shoes and wigged her bare toes in the grass.

Mr. W. Silvers, Twin Falls, of the Legion unit, said nearly all comments were favorable and reported the travelers cooperative in accepting the rest-stop suggestion.

Silvers reported about 400 cars went through the roadblock and about 90 percent of this total from California.

Swim Instruction Is Popular Part of Recreation Program

Six or seven swimming seasons, satisfactorily completed the instruction with 200 children registered for each season, are to be conducted this summer as part of the city recreation program. Children with an inherent fear of the water, who refuse to even put their face down in the water when they begin, paddle around certificate issued by the American Red Cross showing they have attained a few lessons.

In addition to the practical application of swimming strokes, the instructors also teach the children procedures to be followed in the event of an emergency in the water. The advanced classes learn life-saving techniques, but the small youngsters are instructed to throw something for the victim to cling to, while they go for adult help. Many instances are recorded of multiple drownings due to young or inexperienced swimmers attempting rescues.

School Vote Is Set in Bellevue

HALLEY, June 13—Qualified voters of the old Bellevue school district will vote from 2 to 8 p.m. Monday in the school building on the question of whether or not the Bellevue high school will continue to operate for another year.

Following legal notice by the Blaine county school board of their intention to discontinue the school as an attendance unit for the school years of 1959-1960, a petition was filed for election.

If the vote shows 60 per cent or more of the Bellevue district voters in favor of the school, there will be no discontinuance.

Park's Archway, Monument Finish Rotary Club Project

A project undertaken by the Twin Falls Rotary club in 1955 has resulted in a substantial addition to the park area of Twin Falls, Idaho. In 1955, as a project for their 50th anniversary year, the club decided to sponsor a fund drive to purchase two and one half acres to adjoin the same amount of land donated to the city for park purposes by David and Warren Barry, Twin Falls and Arthur Barry, Boise, Ariz., as a memorial to their parents.

On completion of the fund campaign, the city parks and recreation department constructed the park, complete with play equipment, swimming pool and brick building for use of recreational groups.

The club completed construction of the ornamental gateway and monument under direction of Harold Gerber, writing him to another community service project by the organization.

The memorial is built of ornamental iron and concrete and weighs 6,000 pounds. All work was done on it locally. The state of Idaho was used in the design because of the extreme interest of Mr. and Mrs. Barry in development and promotion of the state. The bronze plaque bears an inscription to Harry and Harriet Barry and includes the emblem of Rotary International.

Assistance of the Barry family and club in obtaining the site enabled the city parks and recreation department to continue with its plan of providing park facilities within a half mile of all youngsters in the city limits.

Modern Spaceman Visits Modern Circus

Magie Valley residents who have not seen a real spaceman will have a chance to see Clown Locke Lorraine's conception of what a visitor from outer space looks like when the seventh annual Magie Valley Shrine Clubs Polka Brothers circus comes to Twin Falls June 20-21. Terry Blaquier of the Aristobelia appears as if she doesn't quite believe what is happening to the modern-day circus. Performances will be given twice daily at the Jaycee ball park. One of the comic highlights of this modern-day circus will be Clown Locke Lorraine's conception of a visitor from outer space. New animal acts are Prince J. Kirodo's jungle-bro male and female African lions, the acrobatically inclined chimpanzees of the Konyola and the circus world's first performing elephant hounds as a feature of Burger's Ken-L-Kade.

The Beaulo elephants and foot-balancing Ood will be with the circus, as will the George Hanneford's "royal family" of barrelback riders.

The Grosvenor Trio will challenge precedent by the perch-top double revolve.

Ringmaster Ross Paul will keep the show moving at a sharp pace and Henry Kyles will direct the music. Dr. Frank J. Steiner is president of the Shrine club and Dale Berlein is general chairman of the circus committee.

Livestock Wheat Report Influence Is Termed Dues

CHICAGO, June 13 (AP)—The government wheat crop report this week was described by grain futures traders as a dud factor as a market influence was not all others scored good points on the board of trade.

Oats and rye led the advance with gains running well over a cent. The 1959 crop report made small but almost daily adjustments up to more than a cent, Soybeans added 1/2 cent, which moved up about a cent.

The government wheat crop estimate, released Wednesday, was greeted by a few traders at the time as both mildly bullish and bearish. Some called it bullish because it predicted a slight and sprouting wheat crop yield of about 200 million bushels less than the record high 1958 production.

Others said it was bearish because the harvest was somewhat higher than had been expected.

At the end of the week, wheat was 1/4-1/2 cent higher, highest at a week ago for the 1959 crop.

Wheat Report Influence Is Termed Dues

CHICAGO, June 13 (AP)—The government wheat crop report this week was described by grain futures traders as a dud factor as a market influence was not all others scored good points on the board of trade.

Oats and rye led the advance with gains running well over a cent. The 1959 crop report made small but almost daily adjustments up to more than a cent, Soybeans added 1/2 cent, which moved up about a cent.

The government wheat crop estimate, released Wednesday, was greeted by a few traders at the time as both mildly bullish and bearish. Some called it bullish because it predicted a slight and sprouting wheat crop yield of about 200 million bushels less than the record high 1958 production.

Others said it was bearish because the harvest was somewhat higher than had been expected.

Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI

Flag day should be as important in the school's routine as any other celebrated day, but because there are so many "days" so much to do, and so little time to do it, this day is too often given passing attention. This should not be so, especially when our history is no longer emphasized as a major subject in the elementary schools, lumped as it is with the social sciences.

What? The children need to know what each star and stripe says to them. They need to know about the meeting in Philadelphia, the Fourth of July, the war that followed and what has been men and women of that day did to give the flag its meaning.

Bills Enacted On Final Day Of Girls Meet

CALDWELL, June 13 (AP)—The 213 teenage delegates to Springs Girls' state met and passed to each other and to senate politics today. They finished a week-long government workshop yesterday with enactment of a wide range of bills that ended with a mock enactment of a right-to-work bill.

The measure, prohibiting certain labor contracts such as the union shop, was signed by Lete Joy Parks, Carey, the girl governor. After the session the girls returned to their headquarters here at College of Idaho.

They elected as delegates to Girls' nation in Washington, D.C., their secretary of state, Jane D. Fior of Wallace, and their unsuccessful gubernatorial candidate, Julie Hammond of Preston.

Nancy Young of Kellogg and Robyn Tink of Idaho Falls were given Girls' state citizenship awards. Both houses of the all-girl legislature passed bills abolishing trading stamps. The double handful of measures passed during the busy day also included a bill to split the present 60-day biennial legislative session into three meetings of 20 days each.

Grandfather Clock Made From Tree Cut 30 Years

Buhl, June 13—Shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Lyle H. Peterson, Buhl, were married more than 30 years ago, he cut down a walnut tree and started curing the wood. That same wood has been taking a new form during the past 18 months and now serves as the woodwork for a stately grandfather clock Peterson has labored on for months.

Grandfather clocks are hard to find and even more difficult to buy. All his life, Peterson says, he has wanted a grandfather clock, so in the fall of 1957 he set to work and simply constructed his own clock.

Except for the clock mechanism, every bit of the clock was made by hand by Peterson. He estimates more than 400 hours of labor were consumed in building the clock. The clock face alone took about 50 hours to construct from a six piece of 1/2-inch sheetrock.

Ordinary Tools Used
 The clock is 84 inches tall, 20 inches wide and 18 inches deep, and weighs about 175 pounds.

The work was done without the benefit of many modern tools. Peterson says he used only three power tools—a jig saw, wood lathe and sander.

Peterson is superintendent of the Clear Lakes power station north of Buhl on Snake river. After he cut the tree down shortly after they were married he put the wood in his garage and let it cure for three or four years with the bark on it. He did this so the wood wouldn't check. Then he had the lumber cut into rough planks. And nine years ago he had the timber planed.

Even the clock mechanism has quite a history to it. Peterson says he bought the clock, originally a jeweler's wall clock, from a Jeweler's widow, Mrs. Charis Norton, Bismarck, in 1939.

Mechanism Was Gift
 Peterson, who has been with the Idaho Power company for 23 years, was then superintendent of the Bismarck power plant. The clock served as the plant regulator. He explains that when the plant was abandoned in 1952, officials in the company knew of his interest in clocks and they gave him the mechanism from the clock.

This was the impetus that Peterson needed to construct the giant grandfather clock.

He notes the mechanism is well made and old. According to inscriptions inside the clock, it was first cleaned in 1883. It may be old but he adds that it keeps time to within a one-second accuracy.

Peterson started on the clock in the fall of 1957 and finished it last month. He had made three clocks before, but they were much smaller. He made one four-foot clock.

Lyle Peterson, superintendent of the Clear Lakes power station north of Buhl, started building the grandfather clock in the fall of 1957. Now he has a clock that is worth more than $1,000 and he says he has only about $50 worth of materials in the clock. Peterson built everything except the clock mechanism. (Staff photo-graming)

Family Has Worked on Twin Falls Farms for Last Nine Years

This is the Bicente Hernandez family, migrant workers who have traveled to Twin Falls each year for the last nine years. They pose in front of the car that takes them from harvest to harvest. They work here and then go to Arizona for the early potato harvest, then return here for the fall potato harvest. In the winter they travel to Arizona to work in the cotton and carrot fields. They are from Texas originally. Standing, from left, are Bicente Hernandez, Rosie (holding Cha-Cha), Joseph, and Maria Hernandez. Sitting are David and Ester. Mrs. Hernandez would prefer a more settled life. (Staff photo-graming)

Woman Describes How Family Happened to Become Migrant Laborers to Make Living

Ever wonder why a family joins when they leave Idaho? Mrs. Bicente Hernandez, who the migrant labor crew or what their life is like and where they go now lives at the Twin Falls labor camp, describes how her family began migrant labor work and how they spend the year and where they work.

The Hernandez family and the way they live is rather typical of many migrant labor families. They differ mainly in that they travel as a family in one car rather than "with two to five other families in the back of a truck."

There are six in the Hernandez family—Mr. and Mrs. Bicente Hernandez and four children, Ester, 18, David, 16, Joseph, 15, and Maria, 11. And there is Cha, the big yellow cat that likes to take baths.

Together this family and the other families in the Twin Falls labor camp, following the harvest from Arizona to Idaho, Each year they arrive in Twin Falls about May 3, and get an apartment at the labor camp.

"This is our ninth year at Twin Falls," Mrs. Hernandez says. "We always come here because we like it better than anywhere else. It's the cool weather better."

The Hernandez family began migrant labor work nine years ago when their house and all furnishings were destroyed in Lardito, Tex., by the rampaging Rio Grande river.

Since then they have had no permanent home and have followed the crops in quest of higher wages. Mrs. Hernandez doesn't particularly like migrant labor life.

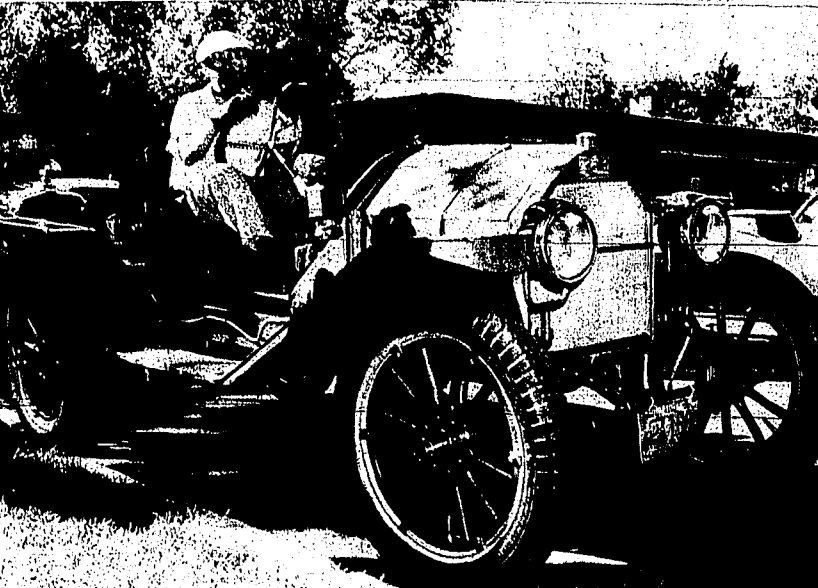

"I asked what she would wish for if she could be granted one wish, she replied she would like to send her husband to better colleges."

"I have been telling my husband, Bicente, that he should go to a better college, so he could get a steady job. I'd would be better that way. But he needs six months training."

She explains that her husband would probably work in San Antonio, Tex., if he were to go. He was born in Mexico and does

Oldest Car in Horseless Carriage Club Event Is 1910 Marion

Last Sunday, 12 old cars chugged and splattered their way on a road tour from Twin Falls to Buhl and then back to the Twin Falls city park for a picnic supper. The drivers were all members of the Gooding Regional Horseless Carriage Club. When the cars were sold in 1910 it cost $1,000. Walk from the car at Gooding where a farmer was using it as a truck. Most old car owners use them only on short drives to preserve them. (Staff photo-graming)

Club members met at the Twin Falls city park at 2 p. m. and from 2:30 p. m. they were on their way to Buhl. They drove to Buhl and then returned to Twin Falls for a picnic supper and business meeting in Twin Falls city park.

These cars might be old, but there is hardly a rattle among them.

Fred Van Engelen, a club member from Twin Falls, explains that the road tour enable members to get together and display their cars to other members of the club. They can trade mechanical know-how and help each other by giving tips

Long Trail in Louisiana Leads to Mental Clinic

Editor's note: In a story country here, we pick up the story of Governor of Louisiana and the state has never since. But with the completion of the late legislative session, the Long dynasty was crumbling.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
 BATON ROUGE, La., June 13 (AP)—The long Louisiana political feud through Louisiana politics for 30 years has wandered tragically to the gates of a Grayston, Tex., mental clinic where Earl Long, Huey's younger brother, is confined after two shockingly public speeches to the legislature.

Will Earl be back? Is the Long dynasty dead?

These are the questions being asked openly and answered guardedly in the 15-story state capital building that rises as a giant headstone over Huey P. Long's grave.

A sanity hearing next week will provide some indication of the 63-year-old governor's political future.

Since Earl's departure, no one here dared to pick up the Long mantle but some have tried up to snuff at it.

Rumors persist that U. S. Sen. Russell Long, Huey's son who bears a striking physical resemblance to the late senator, will attempt to take over the Long force and run for governor in the December election.

Both deny that any deal has been struck.

"I've always had an ambition to be governor and someday follow my father in the manner," Russell Long said in an interview, "but I have serious doubts at this time about leaving the senate for that governorship. The normal political path is through the governor's office to the U. S. senate, not the other way around. However, if and when the only way of keeping the Long faction together, I might consider running."

The senator joined in the family

State Comptroller Bill Dodd, both potent vote getters. There are even rumors that the governor's wife might be persuaded to run.

Segregation leaders, growing in political power since the supreme court school decision, are convinced that Earl Long's breakdown, if it occurs, would mark the end of the Long dynasty, regardless of whether his eye

In Louisiana the governor cannot succeed himself, but a few weeks are came up with a scheme to resign before his term ends in favor of Earl Gov. year, and then run to succeed Frank.

Long collided head-on with segregation leaders when he attempted to create by legislation a vote registration cleanup that in the past three years has removed thousands of Negroes from the rolls.

Although he insisted that he was "100 per cent for segregation," and merely out to protect the poor white vote, segregationists accused him of making blatant play for Negro support.

For 30 years Long against anti-Long has been the dominant theme in Louisiana politics, with each certain of anywhere from 20 to 40 per cent of the vote, and there are those who say it always will be a major factor as long as there is anyone around with the name of Long.

But night or day, Huey's shadow falls Louisiana, and riding it people as he has, the past 12 years into the board, put would be king—and one man should make it.

Drive-in Church Starting Third Year in Twin Falls

The Magic Valley Drive-in church is starting its third year at the Motor-Vu theater, Twin Falls. Each Sunday until Sept. 6, non-denominational services will be held at the theater. Services will last from 8 to 8:45 a.m. The services are sponsored by the Kimberly Christian church and the First Christian church, Twin Falls. Each

Drive-in Church Starting Third Year Of Early Sunday Services at Theater

The Magic Valley Drive-in church began its third year of early morning services last Sunday at the Motor-Vu Drive-in theater, Twin Falls. The non-denominational services are sponsored by the Kimberly Christian church and the First Christian church, Twin Falls. Pastor of the Kimberly Christian church is the Rev. Paul Kenny, and pastor of the First Christian church is the Rev. Donald Hoffman.

The services are presented with the approval and cooperation of the Ministerial association. Although the program is not sponsored by the Ministerial association, ministers from many congregations throughout the area participate. Guest Ministers: The summer's program is planned and coordinated by the Rev. Mr. Kenny and the Rev. Mr. Hoffman. They plan individual programs and present each Sunday service, then a guest minister presents the sermon. Each Sunday with a few exceptions, there will be a different minister to present the sermon. The drive-in church began three years ago. The idea for such a church service started because it would appeal to many persons, especially persons who wouldn't normally go to church. The Rev. Mr. Kenny and the Rev. Mr. Hoffman explain that such services appeal to persons who are hard of hearing; persons who don't like to go to church in a committee of six laymen who crowd, older persons who can't do much traveling, out-of-state tourists who are traveling through the area, families with small children, persons who don't have the time to change their clothes to attend church. Farmers who want to leave their work for a short time and attend a short service, fishermen who are anxious to get to the streams and lakes, Sunday picnicers who desire an early service.

Simple to Attend Both men point out that it enables some persons who are self-conscious about their clothes to attend a church without the usual Sunday clothing. Attending the church is rather simple. Interested persons simply drive into the Motor-Vu theater on Eastland drive, select a parking space, set the speaker on their car door and enjoy the services in their automobiles. The altar is placed atop the projection booth. A portable altar, held by a crane, supplies the music. Services are held rain or shine, according to the Rev. Mr. Kenny. He says if the weather should become too foul the services are conducted from within the projection booth and the congregation can still enjoy them from within their cars. Coffee Served The services begin at 8 a.m. and conclude at 8:45 a.m. The Drive-in church will be held through Sept. 6. Following services free coffee and doughnuts are served at the snack bar. The Rev. Mr. Kenny notes that this is to permit the congregation to get acquainted. The Rev. Mr. Hoffman, the Rev. Mr. Kenny and the guest pastor who are aided in the church chores by a committee of six laymen who assist in parking the cars, hand

"Lure of Outdoors"

By ROBERT E. KEIM
Pastor, Church of Christ
Summer has come with its realization that God spoke to him from everything, everywhere and all the time. The wind, the thunder, the rain, the still small voice of calm had a message of importance for his life.

Who labor in modern world need the relaxation of nature's beauty. The therapy of hill and forest is the essence of healing. Not that David had the water that will cause all thirst to disappear. He gives life the freshness of the dews that will not fade in the heat of everyday life.

let us remember that our God never sleeps, that our God never slumbers. The bridge over is a mountain lake or basking in some sunny beach He may come. Let us live in readiness for the moment when He may call us. There is no holiday for the Lord nor is there time for our laziness in order after the call has come.

Who labor in modern world need the relaxation of nature's beauty. The therapy of hill and forest is the essence of healing. Not that David had the water that will cause all thirst to disappear. He gives life the freshness of the dews that will not fade in the heat of everyday life.

Long Trail Winding Through Politics Of Louisiana Leads to Mental Clinic

Illicitly political activities. Those who reverse the late Kingfish as the best friend the poor man ever had, those who remember the Kingfish as a ruthless, petty, vulgar and vindictive.

When Governor Long was shot full of noxious and flew off to a Texas mental clinic after two profane and abusive speeches to the legislature, Louisiana noted another dramatic chapter in the bizarre history of its famous political dynasty.

The eighth of nine children of a backwood farmer in the pine lands of Winn Parish, north-central Louisiana, Huey entered public life as a traveling salesman. Glib, ambitious, gifted with folksy philosophy and earthy humor, Huey peddled a kitchen knife door to door, and studied law in his spare time. Sitting out World War I because he "wasn't mad at anybody" in his election to the rotary commission, promptly became a hero by championing the "little people" in the wake of the Standard Oil company, the telephone company and major utilities.

By the time he was on the minimum age for qualifying, Huey ran for governor, promising free school textbooks, free tramping, good roads and reduced gas taxes. Relying on his growing up-time following from turning out in the expected numbers, but four years later he swept in on the wings of bigger and better promises.

String of Cars Harkens Back to First Quarter of Century in Club's Event

Except for the wide highway and the modern Magic Valley Memorial hospital in the background, this would look like a scene from the first quarter of the 20th century. Actually, it is the Gooding Horseless Carriage Club on a road tour. Last Sunday members drove to Buhl and then back to Twin Falls to give their cars a spring warm-up and to hold a business meeting and potluck supper in the city park.

The Twin Falls city park. Twelve cars made the trip with 33 passengers. The next four tour will be held sometime in August or September. At the meetings members trade mechanical know-how on old cars. A person doesn't have to own an old automobile to become a member of the club. (Staff photo-engraving)

Horseless Carriage Club Musters 12 Vintage Cars on Jaunt Over to Buhl

Although members enjoy the outing, VanEngelen explains such road tours aren't possible most often because of the wear and tear on the older cars and the terrific amount of gasoline the old models gulp—this 1920 Stutz sedan gets only seven miles per gallon. Although the club is concerned with collecting and restoring old cars, VanEngelen notes a person interested in joining the club need not own an older car to qualify for membership. Nearly 40 persons rode on the road tour and attended the pot-luck supper and business meeting in the city park. Members and passengers who rode on the tour and the model car include 1927 Hudson 6, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Box, Jerome; 1922 Model T touring car, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Rice, Wendell; 1917 Model T jumbletop, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard 1910 Marlon, Robert Walk, Rupert; 1929 Ford pickup, Mr. and Mrs. Nat Spofford and Jim Hunter; and Bruce Martin, Jerome, and a 1925 Stutz, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon VanEngelen, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hedner, Twin Falls, and Dick DeHart, Helena, Mont.

The club will meet next July 31 at Gooding.
SERVICE HELD
GHOSSONE, June 13—A funeral service will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Dille following Sunday evening sacrament services for the MTA, Henry Eddington will speak.

Breakins Are Reported for Gooding City

GOODING, June 13 — Four Gooding buildings were broken into Thursday night by unknown persons with minor damage resulting. No money was reported missing and police and sheriff's offices reported the investigation was continuing.
The buildings were all apparently entered by using a screening bar which was taken from a truck which was burned and parked near the rear of Edmund's garage. The garage was entered and a window broken.
The only items taken were from the V. A. Thompson truck company where some freshly laundered coats and a suitcase were missing.
A cash register in the Gooding Grain supply building had been inserted to the rear of the building and opened, but there was no money in the register.
Entry to the Bass-Payette lumber company was made by opening a large back door. Some drawers had been ransacked in the office.

Many Claim Title of 'Methuselah', but Chances of Living to Be 100 Are Slim

NEW YORK, June 13 (AP)—Age is going up. Some experts forecast a potential human average span of 100 to 150 years.
Medicine now is helping the longevity claim of Walter Williams of Houston, Tex., last July survivor. Perhaps he could have lived even longer than he will if he had had the benefits of present medical knowledge all his life.
Again, perhaps not. His amazing age could stem primarily from heredity — Williams says his grandfather reached 117.
In perilous caveman times, average life expectancy was a cut-on-the-bloom 30. Romans reached the low side of 30. Americans born in 1900 could expect only 50 years, average.

Moscow reported the death of the "oldest man in the world," 107-year-old Igor Korreyev, a Lithuanian boy in a Russian army that battled Napoleon.
Javier Perera, a Colombian Indian, died last year at the self-styled age of 108. New York doctors had examined him earlier, couldn't fix his age, but said he might be 130 for all they knew.
U.S. experts are cautious about trying to say who is the oldest living American, or who lived the longest. Old records are unreliable, they feel. A news item in 1927 told of the death in Chicago of Annie Eliza Williams, who had aged 100 to 147. Two years ago, said she was 125.

Each numeral panel has 325 forty-watt bulbs. 351 silver contact points control the lamps. 3 electric motors operate the mechanism which shows 17,280 time and temperature readings every 24 hours. The double "TT" unit weighs approximately 1,600 pounds and contains over 2 miles of copper wire. The time is controlled by a self-correcting synchronous motor and the temperature is electronically measured at the sign location by a device similar to those used by the weather bureau. Wind or sun has no direct effect on the temperature readings. T. F. Man Relaxes to Answer Doors With Novel System

This man doesn't answer doors or climb stairs to talk with people in other parts of the building. The building is too big and besides, there is an easier way. Tom Maundlin, an engineer at KLLC, designed and built an ingenious intercommunication system for his home. It saves many steps and much work to answer all doors from one spot. Maundlin Uses Brains Instead of Feet In Beating Stairs, Answering Doors

Bon Maundlin has chosen to use his brains when it comes to climbing stairs and answering doors. Mr. and Mrs. Maundlin live in the building at 36 Third street north, that formerly served the church of the Brethren. The building serves as their home and as the studio for Mrs. Maundlin's dance classes and private kindergarten. This works out pretty well because it is economical and handy. There is plenty of room for both private living quarters and the kindergarten and dancing classes. But the fact that there is plenty of room presents an annoying problem—at least it did until Maundlin, who is a radio and television engineer at KLLC, put his electrical know-how to work. The big building caused the Maundlins no end of trouble and work. There are five doors in the building and three stories. Each time there was a knock on the door they had to climb a flight of stairs and dash across the building to answer the door. That is, if they could hear the knock. They live in the basement of the building and this caused them considerable trouble about answering the various door knocks and letting people and students in for classes. Maundlin says there were exactly 100 steps, including stairways, between the kitchen and the front door. The running and hobbling necessary in such a building was compounded by the fact that Maundlin has his workshop on the third floor of the building. Maundlin sat down with a pencil and a piece of paper and designed an elaborate intercom system. After he worked on the design for two months he decided to build it. Four months later he had the system time there was a knock on the door.

New Highway Plans Sought By Shoshone

SHOSHONE, June 13.—The Shoshone Chamber of Commerce decided at its Tuesday meeting to ask the Gooding Chamber of Commerce for cooperation in requesting the state highway department to route the new interstate highway directly from the Rupert-Burley area to Bliss. The components were cheap. Maundlin bought them for 10 cents a pound. Maundlin estimates such a unit would cost $300 if it was made from other than surplus and second-hand parts. He estimates the unit would cost $500 if it was custom-made—which is the only way a unit could be procured. Maundlin has kept careful track of the expense involved in constructing his unit. It cost him exactly $31. Components were cheap. The components were cheap. Maundlin bought them for 10 cents a pound. MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT Mrs. Peter Link Recalls Varied Life Of Time as Young Girl in Germany

HANSEN, June 13.—Mrs. Peter Link, Hansen, has traveled a long way and done many things since she was a young girl in Germany. She has worked as a house manager for an American consul general in Germany, served as an assistant manager of J. Magnin and company, one of the more exclusive women's ready-to-wear stores in the nation, and finally came to Idaho in the 1920's as the wife of the late Peter Link, a pioneer farmer on the Twin Falls tract. Mrs. Link was born in Koblenz, Germany, a city on the Rhine river about 90 miles from the French border. Even as a young girl Mrs. Link wanted to travel to America. "During my school days I was always fascinated by America, especially in the history and geography classes. America fascinated me more than any other country." After she finished school in Germany she eventually became house manager for the American consul general. She managed the affairs of the large house. Eventually her dream of coming to the United States materialized. She got her visa—and with nothing but a letter of introduction to a family in Milwaukee and no knowledge of English—she boarded a ship and sailed for the United States. The consul general had advised her to go to Milwaukee because of the larger German population there. She made her way to Port Washington near Milwaukee from New York and immediately moved to the farm south of Hansen. Her husband had been born in Germany, too, and after moving to the United States had lived in Missouri, Washington and Alaska, eventually coming to the tract when it opened in 1905. Mrs. Link's father had always liked this part of the country and adds that when she travels to California to visit old friends she is ready to return to Magic Valley by the time two or three days have passed. "There is nothing in the United States or in Europe, that I have seen, that can quite compare with this little valley," she declares. Mrs. Link has returned to Europe two times since when her mother died in the early 1920's and again a few years ago when she and her son, Peter Link, Jr., traveled to Europe. Her son was just graduated from the University of California. He now lives in Berkeley.

Virginia Still Believing in Santa 62 Years After Query

NEW YORK, June 13 (U.S.)—The unseasonal theme of the baby June evening was "Is there a Santa Claus?" But it was appropriate, because it honored the gentle Virginia whose query brought a famed answer 62 years ago. It is an 8-year-old, Virginia O'Hanlon wrote a letter to the old New York Sun asking that pointed and poignant question about Santa Claus. The editorial reply on Sept. 21, 1897, has had countless re-printings and translations into 20 languages. Thursday night Virginia, Mrs. Laura Virginia O'Hanlon Douglas, answered her to thousands of kids who come under her supervision. Only the other day a middle-aged cab driver turned to his passenger, who was Virginia, and said: "I'm Harold from public school. I used to think you was a greater person than the President."

Highway Need Cited

The immediate need of a highway east from Dietrich through the new Kimama area prompted the Shoshone chamber, Smith said. He said in the last few years that the area has been turned to farm and has only a dirt road connects the area with Shoshone. The chamber also said the highway would be shorter and more direct if routed in a straight line from the Burley junction to Bliss along the Union Pacific right-of-way. The route was planned by the highway department to go through farm land south of Jerome and farmers south of Eden and Hazelton have a lawsuit pending to force the department to use a northerly route that would take the highway along the side of the settlement. Nothing, Maundlin says he usually comes with, "Who is me?" Maundlin notes the only major part of the unit that wasn't built from cheap second-hand components is the electric alarm clock that turns the unit on and off at determined times. The unit has saved the Maundlins a great deal of running around the large building. It even turns itself off and on.

Jerome Fisherman Has Answer to Hasty Trips

The man who looks like he has solved a problem is C. E. Harder, Jerome, who knows how to prepare rapidly for a fishing trip. Harder is a Jerome merchant who can leave his store, pick up his fishing gear and a sack lunch, and be on the road in two minutes and 45 seconds. The secret is the sack lunches he keeps in his home.

Pre-Fishing Preparation Streamlined By Jerome Angler for Quick Getaway

Jerome, June 13 — Fishermen are generally repacked by friends, relatives, wives, and fellow fishermen as the slowest persons in the world to get their equipment together and get on the road.

This is true of most fishermen, but not of C. E. Harder, where Jerome angler.

System Devised

Harder has devised a system whereby he can be bitten by the fishing bug and be on the road, heading for fishing waters, within minutes.

His record time is two minutes and 45 seconds.

Harder's system is simple, but effective.

He realized last summer that he was wasting a lot of time getting ready to go fishing. He fumbled around gathering equipment. The project that took the most time was packing a lunch. It was a terrible, time-consuming job. He decided to solve it by packing and freezing his lunch, the kind that is packed each fishing day.

Harder gets his daughter, Myrna Kay, to pack him about 10 picnic lunches. Then he places them in his home freezer. Now he is ready to go fishing on a moment's notice.

Grabs Quart of Milk

The lunches consist of two sandwiches, cookies or cake and fruit. He grabs a quart of milk from the kitchen refrigerator on the way out of the house.

Harder explains that time is important to him. He runs Harder's, Inc., in Jerome and on slow business days he will often decide to go fishing. Since he isn't able to plan most fishing trips, it is important that organizational time be set to the minimum.

Harder explains how he was able to set the 2 minute, 45-second record last summer.

Someone walked into the store and said, "Let's go fishing."

Nightsawless Handy

Harder agreed that was an unparalleled idea. He walked out the rear door of the store, grabbing a can of milk from a refrigerator at the back of the store.

His car is parked in the alley. Once in his car he has to drive only three blocks to his home at 120 East Third avenue.

Here is where his efficiency expert says come into full play.

Victim of Stroke Devises Exerciser

G. W. Turner had a stroke shortly after Easter. The stroke paralyzed his entire left side. Turner recently left the hospital and immediately realized he was going to need help in exercising. At the hospital nurses had helped, but at home he is by himself during the day and lacks someone to help him walk. Turner put his imagination to work and came up with apparatus in the photograph. The horizontal bar gives the needed support and it revolves on the vertical bar, enabling him to continue walking in the same direction. (Staff photo-engraving)

Eden's Citizens Report Jaunts

EDEN, June 13 — Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Lukens and their houseguests, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bailey, Long Beach, Calif., left Thursday for Lander, Wyo., where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Rowlett went to Boise Thursday to attend the state Disabled American Veterans convention.

Stroke Victim Devises Simple Gadget To Help Him Recover From Paralysis

A Twin Falls man, G. W. Turner, devised a simple little invention that is helping him recover from the after-effects of a stroke and could aid any person with a similar handicap.

Turner is a former shoe repairman who entered the Gooding tuberculosis hospital in September, 1957.

Last December he was ready to be released from the hospital when he had a stroke.

He stayed in the hospital recuperating from the stroke until shortly after Easter. He was given physical therapy to help him recover from the paralysis of his left side. Nurses walked him day after day to give him the needed exercise.

But Turner faced a problem when he left the hospital—he had no one to help him exercise. His wife works during the day and he needed someone to stabilize him while he walked.

There wasn't anyone to do this simple duty, so Turner designed a unique apparatus that gives him support and enables him to walk and never leave the room.

It consists of a nine-foot vertical cover from the paralysis of his left side. Nurses walked him day after day to give him the needed exercise. A horizontal bar, four feet long, is welded at waist-level to the vertical bar.

By holding the bar, Turner can stroll around the room in a wide circle. It gives him the needed exercise and the necessary support.

He says he uses the gadget about three or four times a day and makes about 12 circles each time. He installed it June 1, and already he notices an improvement in his walking ability.

His daughter, Mrs. Donald Schonover, says, "He is already walking with more stability and he can get along much better without his crutches."

She adds that he sometimes stumbles at 5 a.m. and starts his exercises. He takes his last turn at the exerciser after supper in the evening.

Turner notes that the exerciser helps both arms and legs.

Turner designed the exerciser and a friend, Bert Fritsch, built it. He estimated anyone interested in having such an exerciser could have one built by anyone with a welding outfit for about $6 plus labor cost.

Rushing Water Affects Fish Migration

A steelhead trout is half obscured by foaming water (see arrow) as he struggles against the descending stream at Selway falls on the Clearwater river. Idaho fish and game department biologists are studying the effects of these falls on upstream migration of steelhead in an effort to find a method to improve conditions for the runs of anadromous fish. Grandfather Clock Made Out of Tree model four years ago for his daughter, Mrs. David Sorenson, of Astoria. This was his first clock. Since then he has built two more smaller clocks, one for his sister, Gladys Peterson and another for his brother, Elmo-Peterson, both Parma. But the big clock is Peterson's masterpiece.

"My interest in grandfather clocks dates back to my late boyhood and my school days at Parma. One of our neighbors had one. It had been made by the child's grandfather, who was a clock maker in Salt Lake City. "Subconsciously I have always wanted one. That's why I saved that walnut log."

Drawing Used
Peterson built the clock from a drawing he got out of a magazine. The clock is a colonial type, and the style is called "The Spirit of the Century."

He notes that he saw two grandfather clocks that resembled his clock when he toured Mt. Vernon, Va., on his vacation last summer. "Taking the sketch from the magazine, I set to work to make one and a lifetime of craftsmanship, Peterson fashioned the clock."

He spent six months of his time off and on holidays. He had the most trouble fashioning the clock's four chimers from one-inch brass tubing. Each tube, or chime, had to be cut to a specific length to provide the correct notes.

"I had a pretty rough idea on the correct length," he says. "Then I borrowed my sister's tuning fork and tuned them."

"The clock uses what is called the Westminster chime. The chimers notes that are used in Westminster Abbey, London, England."

Four-Note Chord
At 15 minutes past the hour the clock plays a chord of four notes. At 30 minutes past the hour it plays two notes of four notes each. At 45 minutes past the hour it plays three chords of four notes, and at the hour it plays four chords of four notes each. Each time the notes are varied in their rhythm. The notes of four notes are: Peterson notes the chimers gave him the most trouble. "I really had a time of it getting the hammers that strike the chimers. I finally broke a piano hammer. The next I really had to turn out little hammer heads on the lathe."

From the time he began the construction, Peterson says he made it a point to construct the chime clock from materials readily available. The next he really had to hunt to find some of the materials.

Won't Mar
He finished the case in rubbed effect varnish. He explains this finish will maintain a waxed finish and won't show conventional marbling.

Another big job was fashioning the clock face from a flat piece of brass sheeting. He spent about 50 hours with a compass laying out the design and then pressing it with a nail set.

"This was a noisy and tedious work," Peterson says. "The numbers are not of the proper size and they are not finished with a chromium spray. The outside face of the clock is finished with a chrome plating. Not content to make everything but the gears and the case handsome, Peterson says, "Some day I'm going to make some hands for the clock."

Asked how much he thought the clock was worth, Peterson says it is hard to place a value on something that you have built for your own satisfaction but a person of his acquaintance recently paid $1,040 for a grandfather clock.

He adds there is only about $50 worth of material in his clock—the value of the clock would be based on the tremendous amount of time spent on its construction. "It's not a bad thing," Peterson says, "but it's all worth it now," asserts Peterson.

Effect of Falls on Fish Migrations Is Investigated by Fish Technicians

BY MILT WILLIAMS
Idaho Fish and Game Department
In this age of many investigations of groups and situations even such objects as rocks and boulders may be suspect. In one such case an investigation is being carried on into the private affairs of Selway falls 120-mile east of Lewiston.

The investigation, aimed at determining just what effect the falls may have in delaying fish migration to the spawning grounds, is not being conducted by detectives or attorneys, but by fishery technicians. Selway falls is not likely to change character or alter its actions and attitudes under the pressure of a new investigation. Rather, it will continue on as unfeeling and serene as nature has intended it should.

Invasion-Began In 1937
This invasion of the falls' privacy began in the fall of 1937 when the Idaho fish and game department began work under the Columbia river fishery development program to provide biological data on which to base a program of improvements benefiting the anadromous fish runs. Selway falls is looked upon as a partial migratory block. The degree has not yet been determined completely.

The team of biologists has surveyed various tributaries of the main Clearwater drainage seeking to tabulate the total possible spawning capacities. This tabulation includes information on those areas not presently used by the fish due to migration blocks such as falls, log and brush jams.

Selway falls, because of its location on the main stem of a large branch of the Clearwater system, is receiving much attention in the study. The falls consists of two tiers over which the water drops approximately 25 feet at low water.

in a 550-foot stretch. At high water the drop increases to about 12 feet because of the unusual shape of the overall channel through the falls area.

Flow Varies
Water flows over the falls vary tremendously throughout the year according to daily volume readings taken a few miles below the falls. The minimum flow record was 100 cubic feet per second on Jan. 1, 1937, which compares in astounding fashion to the maximum of 48,800 cubic feet per second on May 22, 1948—a difference of 48,700 cubic feet per second.

Fish passage-at-the-falls is affected by extremely low flows up to about 2,000 cubic feet per second. Flows of between 3,400 and 12,000 cubic second feet apparently form a velocity block which the fish are unable to surmount. The velocity block results from the water being channeled at great depths between huge boulders which dot the river bed through the falls.

Problem of Timing
With fish passage assured at various flows, the next problem is one of timing. Since spring runoff is not a stable thing from one year to the next, the periods of possible water flows over the falls do not always coincide with the migrations. When this occurs the fish are detained and often are not able to continue upstream until about the time when they should be preparing to spawn far up the headwaters of a tributary stream. Thus, a bad year could conceivably have a pronounced effect upon the continuity of a fish run.

The ultimate goal of the study on migration blocks at Selway falls is a suitable plan to eliminate the problem and allow the fish ready access to the upstream spawning beds. All possibilities will be explored before any conclusions are drawn. It has been suggested that the large boulders in the falls should be blasted out. Removing the boulders which act as buffers to the force of the water might cause undermining of the rock formations on the south side of the channel to the extent that a portion of the mountain side would slough off into the river to cause a more complete block than now exists.

Some type of fish ladder might be the solution, but it would necessarily have to be designed to withstand the terrific pressures which would be exerted upon its structure by high water. One thing is apparent as brought to light by the surveys of the spawning ground potential in the Selway drainage. It would be possible to maintain migratory fish runs greater in size than we now have if the migration blocks are eliminated. There is some feeling throughout the Northwest that migratory salmon and steelhead runs as we have them today from the ocean will continue. This feeling is the eyes of fishery technicians that fish runs from the ocean will continue. This feeling is the underlying purpose of the Columbia river fishery development program work in the Clearwater drainage.

Buhl Bowmen Smash Small Targets to Show Fun, Dangers of Archery Today

Buhl, June 13.—By breaking a ping pong ball and a cube of sugar or demolishing a small candle, for suspended from a target, the Buhl Bowmen exhibition team shows that archery can be fun and dangerous.

The team has been performing on special programs and for regular civic meetings throughout the Clearwater valley since January. The team's hope is to create an interest in archery as well as show that a bow and arrow in the wrong hands can be dangerous.

Used for Sport
Although only a few isolated tribes still use the bow and arrow for protection and in the United States for sport, deer and elk are hunted with the bow.

No "Play" Arrow
He also warns that many persons erroneously think of the bow and arrow as a toy or something Robin Hood once used.

The team consists of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Byer, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Thomas and Geneth Ward, all Piler, O'Dell Sweet and Bob Dick, Twin Falls, and Mrs. M. P. Smith, Buhl.

To prove their point that there is no "play" arrow, the group presents one act where a shooter uses a one-fourth inch piece of plywood as the target. For its weapon he uses a light bow and an arrow with no point.

The arrow-punctures the ping pong ball and the aluminum rod, which is the most effective because of its absolute uniformity. Smith says the glass arrow is best for hunting because of its durability.

Instinctive shooting, shooting at still and moving targets, balloon bursts, and other colorful acts are included in each show. The team has its own equipment, which includes a bright and colorful 40-foot target. They charge nothing for a show.

Rocket Enthusiast Heads up Local Group of Young Scientists

William Ellis, son of Mrs. Evelyn Ellis, Twin Falls, is president of a new group of young science students who are interested in rocketry. They have formed a club called Rocket Research Association. Eventually they hope to obtain permission to set up a rocket launching area in some of the remote country near Twin Falls. The club has...

rigid safety rules and will operate under the supervision of adults. Recently they came under the sponsorship of the Twin Falls army reserve unit. In this photograph Ellis stands in his laboratory in the basement of his home and demonstrates the body and tail section of a home-made rocket. (Staff photo-enslaving)

Experiments With Rockets and Fuels Planned by Science-Minded T.F. Club

The current interest in rocketry captured the interest of a group of persons in Twin Falls. The result is formation of the Rocket Research Association, a club that intends to experiment with rockets and propulsion fuels under strict safety conditions. The club is finally getting word start towards forming a more active organization. William Ellis, son of Mrs. Evelyn Ellis, is president of the club. He has that the club was begun by a group of six high school students. All intend to enter some phase of scientific study in college. The club members are: William Ellis, son of Mrs. Evelyn Ellis; Kenner Whittle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whittle; John Laidner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laidner; Calvin Knight, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Knight; and Dan Sackett, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Sackett. Ellis stresses that club members realize the potential dangers of such experimentation but adds that all experimentation will be done under the constant supervision of a member who will receive a permit to set up a launch area. He is getting ready to write again, and he hopes the sponsorship of the reserve unit will give the needed authority to prompt action from the office. He says, "We are more than willing to abide with the law if the law will just give us some consideration. We want to cooperate fully with the law."

Radio-Telephone Service Is Added

RUPERT, June 12 — A radio-telephone tower, completed last week, will add another service to that already afforded the community by the Project Mutual telephone cooperative. Manager Don Dickson says the tower is part of an expansion in service which will include radio-telephone service to subscribers. Dickson said delivery of the base unit and radio-phones is expected within the next two months. With the installation of the telephone in cars and trucks, calls may be dialed to any other listed number. Calls will use one frequency while the receiving will be on another frequency. The company hopes to have from 15 to 20 units in operation soon after the complete installation has been made. The 163-foot tower was installed by the Alto Tower company, Pendleton, Ore. This month dial unit will be the only one in the area.

Family Visits

JACOBSON, June 12 — Mr. and Mrs. Eric Lethman have received word their son, Darrell, who was graduated May 31 from Idaho State college with a bachelor of science degree in architecture, will be employed during the summer by H. J. Hilvers, architect, Pocatello. ATTEND CONVENTION KING HILL, June 13 — Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Knox attended the bankers' convention in Sun Valley.

Precautions Taken

Ellis says several precautions will be taken before a launching. In the first place a remote location of land will serve as the launching site. About one week before a launching the club will notify the proper authorities of the intended firing, time and place. This will enable officials to post warnings to aviators. The launching site will be out of the normal air traffic pattern. At the site about six range officers will tour the perimeter of the area in deeps. They will be equipped with field radios and will warn chance travelers of the launching and be prepared to extinguish any fires that should be caused as a result of the launching. At the site itself many elaborate safety precautions will be enforced. Emphasizing the importance of safety, Ellis says "It is going to be a lot easier to get out of this organization than it is to get in it."

Hectic Dangers of First Flight Across Atlantic Recalled on 40th Anniversary

By BERNARD GAVZER
AP Newswriter

The twin-engine Vickers Vimy was finally assembled in Newfoundland and local sketched and drafted the plane could fly across the Atlantic.

There was a tense expectancy of danger," wrote a reporter. "The thought of flying any distance was far from the mind of any man only a few weeks earlier, had been their first airplane."

Just before John Alcock and navigator Arthur Whitten Brown took off on their flight in 1919, the plane was in a state of confusion. The plane was in a state of confusion. The plane was in a state of confusion.

Cutting off the engines, Alcock began a series of glides to warmer air below. At 5,000 feet, the ice began to melt and the snow in the cockpit turned to slush. Still lower they emerged from the cloud bank at 2,000 feet with the Atlantic level beneath them.

Less than an hour after they had taken off, they spotted land and touched down at Clifden, Ireland in a peat bog. The Vimy, as it was named, tipped over on its nose. Both men walked away unharmed.

Woman Tells How Family Happened To Accept Work as Migrant Laborers

not speak English. He came to the United States when he was 3.

Mrs. Hernandez says he understands English. "But he doesn't speak it because he is afraid he might say a bad word."

In San Antonio he could work in the Spanish-speaking sections and English wouldn't be necessary. And Mrs. Hernandez adds that it would be easier for the children to go to school and get jobs there.

In Twin Falls the Hernandez family, except for Mrs. Hernandez and Isidro, will work in the fields for about six weeks until beef thinning and hoeing work is finished.

Then they will go to Parma and work in the early potato harvest until September. In Parma they rent a small house.

After the early potato harvest in Parma they will return to Twin Falls and work in the potato harvest through the remainder of September and October and a few days in November.

In early November the entire family packs the car and a trailer, and Chas-Cha, the cat that likes to take baths, and heads for Arizona. They drive to Avondale, Ariz. There they spend the major portion of the winter and don't live in a labor camp.

"There are a lot of people around for the season of the cotton and it's hard to find a place to live," Mrs. Hernandez says. "But they always manage to find a small rental house for the winter months. Hernandez works in the sweet potato fields and picks cotton and later works in the carrot fields. Joseph, David and Isidro go to school.

"They are proud of David, who was just graduated from the eighth grade," Mrs. Hernandez says. David is a good student and is particularly fond of science.

"He likes to study science. He even has a little microscope that he takes with him. This year maybe we can get him a little bigger one. He loves to study all kinds of insects."

"He likes school very much. He wants to join the air force. I don't know if this can happen, but we are going to try very hard. His cousin is in the air force and he tells David to study and try to finish school and join the air force."

They visit for a short time and then drive to Twin Falls.

Mrs. Hernandez notes many people from southern Texas have joined the migrant labor crews.

"She says most of them join the migrant labor movement in order to pay bills they have accumulated."

The Hernandez family moved from that area not only because their home was destroyed but because of low wages.

"They were paying very small wages there then," Mrs. Hernandez says. "We couldn't afford to raise our children on that amount. We had to go somewhere so we could raise our children."

She explains Spanish-Americans must compete with laborers hired from Mexico. They work for 20 to 25 cents per hour, according to Mrs. Hernandez.

"That is a lot of money for them," she says, "but not for us." "Since then we have been traveling around so we can make some money to buy a home. I don't know when I hope someday."

Mrs. Hernandez says a day in the life of a migrant labor family doesn't vary much.

They arise early, eat breakfast and Mrs. Hernandez prepares lunches for members who work. They leave for the fields about 6 a.m. and return about 6 p.m. They eat supper and the boys watch television until 9 p.m., then they must go to bed.

In the meantime Chas-Cha takes a shower. Ester gives the water-loving cat his daily shower. She dries him and sprays him with face powder. She does this every night. Mrs. Hernandez explains that since the cat lives in the house it is necessary that he be clean and smell good.

According to Mrs. Hernandez, the cat has always liked water.

Chas-Cha is exactly a year old. Mrs. Hernandez rescued him at Castleford, June 11 — Mr. and Mrs. Howard Barnes have come to Mackinaville, Ore. to get their daughter, Betty Barnes, who has finished her freshman year at Linfield college.

the tiny cat and nursed him on cow's milk soaked in a cotton patch.

Later she got a doll-bottle and fed him until he was weaned. Now his favorite foods are chocolate candy, cake, milk and fresh liver. This is what he eats each day.

"Chas-Cha is a very lazy cat," Mrs. Hernandez says, "all he does is look at the birds."

Mrs. Hernandez says the migrant workers' life is more pleasant when a family has its own cat.

When there are four or five families to a truck there is enough room and everybody has to eat, sleep and stop when the leader whistles.

One reason the Hernandez family is able to travel by themselves is because Mrs. Hernandez speaks good English, an ability that many migrant workers lack.

"And we are lucky we have a car," Mrs. Hernandez says, "because if the work isn't good we can go where we want to."

There are few families who do migrant labor because they prefer it. "It does it because they have something to pay for," she says.

Sometimes, she hopes they will be able to afford a home in San Antonio and her husband will be able to go to better colleges and the Hernandez family and Chas-Cha, the cat that likes water, will be able to live and work in one place.
