Military Way Of Promotion Is Criticized

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (UPI)—A senate committee says that a more qualified man should be made way for the promotion of the major Jimmy Stewart in the air force reserve.

The committee revived the Stewart controversy yesterday in a report demanding that the promotion system be overhauled.

It said army, navy and air force reserve promotions to general and admiral ranks have been granted "without reference to the nation's need, to any known military requirements, or to the capability of the individual."

Stewart Not Orderly

Insured by the senate Preparedness subcommittee, the document declared that "there appeared to be no systematic order of logic in the selection of officers for promotion to these ranks."

Stewart was promoted to brigadier general last July. But the report said this was only after a two-year delay during which the air force mismanaged his mobilization status and a reserve member with better qualifications was recommended to provide a place for him.

The subcommittee said its criticisms were "not directed at any individual reserve officer, but rather at the extremely inopportune application of policies and practice, and suspect criteria" of the military service.

Stewart Isn't Navy

Stewart was not named in the report. But his case could be identified among 10 anonymous examples because of publicity given when they were opposed by Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R., Me.

The subcommittee said an airplane pilot who had fallen behind in training requirements, but who was qualified, was ordered from his reserve assignment to make room for Stewart.

The subcommittee said the pilot, whose name it did not name, had 30 more times as much training as Stewart as his civilian background was comparable to his mobilization assignment.

West Is Told To Take Serious London Serious

LONDON, Sept. 22 (UPI)—Leaders of both of Britain's major parties said in campaign broadcasts tonight the West should pay more attention to Premier Nikita Khrushchev's 27-year-old disarmament plan.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd urged the views of the Conservative and Labour parties. Lloyd, leader of the Conservative Party, said the West should take the proposals seriously.

London Affects Plans

Diplomatic sources linked the "new election" with the standstill pact. They said the pact is either the Conservatives or the Labour are likely to take a "strong" line on the disarmament proposal in the heat of a campaign.

It was said Khrushchev's proposals for phased disarmament closely paralleled the Conservative program.

"I welcome the fact that Mr. Khrushchev made these proposals," he said. They must be examined carefully.

"The conservatives want to move ahead by balanced disarmament and the abolition of all nuclear weapons of mass destruction and the end of the arms race. It is a level which will rule out the possibility of war."

Causes Trouble

"The difficulty is in getting an agreement to carry out the process. Trouble has always been over control."

Quibell said in a nationwide broadcast that the West should have welcomed the Khrushchev plan more warmly.

"The plan of all arms with proper control is something we should all welcome," the Labour leader said. "I say the best thing is to let it."

Khrushchev Tour Makes Asian Points

TOKYO, Sept. 22 (UPI)—Whatever the effect in America, there can be little doubt that Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev's tour of the United States is making points in Asia.

Khrushchev's dramatic disarmament proposal before the United Nations was just so much more frosting for the Russian premier's visit, which has captivated the "Asian animal" much as the launching of Russia's first satellite.

Chinese Shot?

TAIPEI, Sept. 22 (UPI)—The usually well-informed newspaper the China News speculated today that communist China agreed to name Marshal Lin Biao its new defense minister in return for Soviet backing in launching an Earth satellite.

Reports have circulated in Hong Kong and Taipei that red China would attempt to fly its first satellite on Oct. 1, the 10th anniversary of the Peiping government. The China News said Russian technical assistance in the project probably was offered in return for the Lin appointment.

Japan Arms Not Backed

What must be realized is that the pro-western Conservative in Japan have little heart for rearmament. These men would just as soon have their munitions money for something else and let Uncle Sam do it all.

Thus, there is great popular appeal here in this war-torn country for any major disarmament proposal—whether it is new or old. To a varying degree, this is true of most other countries in the world.

There is perhaps a Japanese exception. If the truth could be fully told—red China, which perhaps has a right to be so in this part of the world would like to see its armed might dismantled.

Truce In Meeting

Truce in meeting here that the U.S. state department and other governments holding the line is a bit happier in commenting on disarmament proposals. The department would score better here with a plain promise to study the proposal and then, if it felt it better today, the plan to explain why and not write it off as "nothing new."

Khrushchev had set exactly the right note from the start of his tour, so far as most Asians were concerned. This appeal was appeal of a fraternal man.

When Khrushchev told a gathering of capitalists that he didn't think they could convert him but that he sure didn't blame them for trying, the Russian leader applied to the spirit of fair play though there be honest differences of opinion.

General Bradley Is too Busy To Be Refighting Old Battles

BY HAL BOYLE
 NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (U-P)—Many old soldiers spend their time refighting in memory their half-forgotten battles.

Gen. Omar Nelson Bradley, who at the close of World War II commanded 1,000,000 combat troops, is largest body of U.S. soldiers ever to serve under a single leader.

"I don't think back on the war period very much," he said.

He is too busy at the staff, studying "doughboy" general's "war" records, more than that of when he played baseball at West Point as he is fighting a new enemy — space.

Bradley is board chairman of the Balboa Watch Company. The firm has turned out miniature safety and arming devices for 19 of the nation's defense missile programs.

"At the close of the war I had to worry about a 600-mile front," remarked Bradley dryly. "Now we deal with problems involving millions of an inch."

Size is of vital importance because for every added pound of weight in a missile you require several pounds of fuel to get it up," he said.

Although excited by the challenge of space conquest, Bradley observed, "We may have observers out in space, but I expect space armies in our lifetime."

If he don't think "we're going to have another war as long as we stay strong enough to act as a deterrent," he said. "The biggest danger is that a brush fire may get out of hand."

"If we don't retain our capability to fight a war such as the last one, we invite more Korea and Indochina. The doughboy and the tank are still obsolete," he said.

Bradley is a friendly, kindly man who was never one to throw his stars around. At the staff luncheon he found difficult his transition from military commander to civilian business leader. He points out that as the postwar veterans' administrator he is expected to administer a $1-billion-dollar annual budget.

"A military organization and an industrial firm are really quite similar," he said.

"There is, of course, one big difference. In one you worry about the lives of your men. In the other you worry about spending the shareholders' money."

Plan Changed For Astronaut Space Flights

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (U-P)—The space agency has decided against using a Mercury astronaut 120 miles out across the Atlantic in an Atlas ballistic missile.

Instead, the first American space travelers will go from about 100 miles up in Redstone rockets to full scale satellite launches with the Atlas.

The national aeronautics and space administration reported this morning in clearing up what is called an error on the part of its administrator, Dr. T. Keith Glennan, on a CBS-TV program, "Face to Face" Sunday.

Glennan said that in between the Mercury program and Redstone and satellite flights, there would be manned sub-orbital test launches with the Atlas, for a distance of 100 miles.

A NASA spokesman said Glennan erred. The Atlas ride, which would take the astronaut more than 200 miles above the Earth and give him some 12 minutes of weightlessness, was given consideration but was dropped, the spokesman told a reporter.

U. S. Nearer Nuclear Sub. Power Goals

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Sept. 22 (AP)—Another successful firing of a Polaris missile has moved the United States nearer its goal of nuclear firepower for submarines.

Yesterday's launching came shortly after Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said in a broadcast that the Soviet Union is scrapping some of its cruisers in favor of submarines and torpedoes.

Some of the submarines being built presumably are atomic-powered craft capable of firing ballistic missiles. U. S. officials believe the Soviets are building about 12 missile subs that must be ready to defend this country in the development of submarine-launched ballistic missiles.

The United States has nine nuclear subs under construction. Each will carry 16 nuclear-tipped Polaris missiles, probably by late next year. The Polaris will have a range of 1,200 miles.

Ike Expected To Be Tough On Spenders

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—President Eisenhower expects to ask an election year congress to balance the budget, halt indirect financing, lift bond interest ceilings and overhaul the tax laws.

Outlining this course, Senate Republican leader Everett McKinley Dirksen, Illinois, made it clear he expects Eisenhower to bear down again in 1960 against what the administration calls unnecessary spending. Dirksen summarized his views for publication in the Congressional Record.

Demos to Battle On the Democratic Side, Senate Minority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, Texas, said his party will not play politics to the point where its actions would paralyze the divided government. But he made it clear the Democrats will battle what he called the Republican "forces of inertia."

"We cannot agree with the President's view that it is sounder to build dams and reclamation projects in other countries and not build them in our own," Johnson told a Democratic rally at Dallas, Texas, last night.

Of about a dozen major problems listed by Dirksen for consideration by congress when it reconvenes in January, his list involved financial matters.

The senate minority leader said action is needed in the fields of general farm legislation, civil rights, education, self-employment, retirement, depressed areas and extension of the wage-hour law to cover additional workers.

Mayor Receives Praise for Talk

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 22 (AP)—Mayor Ron Gould received letters, telephone calls and telegrams yesterday, most of them commending him for his remarks to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev Saturday night.

Khrushchev threatened to quit his American tour unless he was taken home after Paulson told him at a dinner, "You shall not bury us and we shall not bury you."

Paulson said his mail for a Monday was one of the heaviest deliveries since he took office six years ago.

Judge Accused of Reckless Driving

SPOKANE, Sept. 22 (AP)—An Idaho judge was accused of reckless driving in Washington yesterday.

District Judge Carl V. Bond, 54, Couer d'Alene, was named in a complaint signed by Omond Leonard of the Washington state patrol who said he chased the jurist at speeds up to 90 miles an hour.

Bond was at 110 and 112 E. 2nd streets for the regular Tuesday traffic court session.

Bond was spotted by the judge's station wagon, traveling at high speed in the Spokane valley at 6:15 p.m. last Thursday and gave chase.

"How Do You Think We're Doing?"

Parts of Khrushchev, Labor Leader Discussion Reported

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 22 (AP)—Several voices interchanging across the table.

Reuther: The workers in West Germany are free . . .

Khrushchev: You are free, too.

Reuther: Do you have credentials to speak for the workers of the world?

Khrushchev: Do you have credentials to poke your nose into East Germany?

Reuther: This is part of our difficulty, the fear of the chairman that the United States actually wants to dominate the world.

Khrushchev: Not just wanting activities.

Reuther: And the other way around there, a chair in the United States, based on much evidence that the Soviet Union wants to dominate the world.

Khrushchev: The Soviet ruble does not know how to do the American dollar. At this point, Khrushchev raised his voice loudly and vehemently. You have been spotted by everyone howling down, by everyone crying and howling . . .

Reuther: You will not agree to universal inspection and control?

Khrushchev: Have you been asleep all the time? That is what we are for. I am sure you haven't read my speech.

Reuther: You have read your speech, and other propaganda. But we failed to find the basis for implementing the proposals.

Khrushchev: Disarmament is the question of questions, and if you misunderstand this there is almost no way out. What the Americans propose is control first, and then disarmament. What does this mean? Nothing! Let us station our bases in Mexico and Canada, then maybe you will have an understanding.

There was a fast two or three minute interchange across the table. At one point Khrushchev, talking to Curran, exclaimed, "How can you open your mouth like that and represent the workers?" Do you want a discussion of it this a bazoo?"

At this point Khrushchev became quite excited and pounded the table.

Hannah Is Predictable. She's Always Tired!

—by Motha Morgan

The most predictable person I know is Hannah Johnson, who lives through the week. No matter what day it is, she is always tired. Let me tell you how she does it. She is a mother of five children, and she is always tired. She is a mother of five children, and she is always tired. She is a mother of five children, and she is always tired.

Winter or summer, day or night, rain or shine, the answer is always the same. Sympathetic, jolly, and kind, she is always tired. She is a mother of five children, and she is always tired. She is a mother of five children, and she is always tired.

Hannah's a capable person, though—a good cook and a fine seamstress and quite an astute shop and she uses her talents often to help others. But sometimes the girl is gone when her weariness has taken her. It shows through so much.

It reminds me of some women I know who are "in everything," then always "talk about" how tired they are. They're busy by choice. I often think, so why inflict the headache of it on one other. And go to bed about Hannah. She is mistress of her own life. If she wants to work herself tired each day, that's her affair. But it does seem unnecessary to present such a tired face. Why not keep our lenses to ourselves, and turn to the world a happy countenance?

There is something I have to thank Hannah for though—and that's this recipe for individual Salomon Dips. It's become a favorite recipe of ours, and of Mary's family, too. And of mine. It's quick to serve, for the

Khrushchev's Trip Termed "Floating Debate Society"

BURLEY, Sept. 22—Khrushchev's trip to the United States is being termed a "floating debate society" by some observers.

It is a mad show playing one-off against the other, and it is not the ideological race.

Most of us, when we were young, don't quibble with our boss, however unrelaxed we may think them. But not Khrushchev. He is a quibbler.

But possibly all these disputes look more formidable than they really are. For the more one watches Khrushchev the more one expects that he takes to arguments in the wheeler-dealer way that other men take to women or to liquor.

So you keep reminding yourself, because in all this turmoil one of the most powerful men on earth, and the impression he makes on us, could affect the course of history.

Under the conditions, it's a scary thought. Many of us are in the industrialized world, and we are in a state of mind that is not a state of mind.
