Lost Pilot Turns Up Safe After Landing in Desert Southwest of Castleford

Buhl, Oct. 30—Jesse B. Combs, 38, Salt Lake City pilot who walked to safety Thursday after his single engine craft was forced down approximately 30 miles southwest of Castleford, was scheduled to return to Salt Lake City this afternoon. The pilot, who is a sales engineer for Keesy-Johnson company, flew his plane this morning to the Buhl airport. He took his out to the single engine "Swift" airplane which he was forced to land on a desert plateau when the fuel ran low Wednesday afternoon.

He said a Thursday report intended to tell the plane when he got home, so he decided to fly it to Salt Lake City instead of trying to land on the desert plateau. He was in a telephone booth when he lost his way while making a maneuver. He made an emergency landing on the 4,500-foot high plateau about 3 p.m. on Wednesday. The plane was damaged but he was only 20 minutes flying left. The plane was not damaged in the landing.

The pilot weathered freezing temperatures through Wednesday night huddled in the two-seat plane. While heavy snow buffeted the plateau, he was clad in a light suit and a hat. He did not have any food.

He said Thursday he tried through the night to make contact, but the battery went dead.

"It really got cold," he commented.

The filer said that when the weather cleared, about 10 a.m. Thursday, he took a compass reading in the plane then started walking across the hilly, canyon-walled desert toward where he thought Castleford should be.

After walking about 20 miles he was spotted by Ed Wells, a Castleford fireman driving a water truck who picked him up and took him to the Castleford hospital where he was treated.

Aeronautical officials said Combs left Salt Lake City, Utah, on Wednesday and had enough fuel to fly until 3:40 p.m. When the plane ran out of fuel, he was forced to land on the desert plateau. The plane was damaged but he was only 20 minutes flying left. The plane was not damaged in the landing.

Ogden Surveys Heavy Damage Of High Winds

OGDEN, Oct. 30—Violent winds poured down the west face of the Wasatch mountains today, unroofing houses, breaking windows, tipping over trucks and foreign cars, and forcing evacuation of the Hill air force base control tower. Power and telephone lines also were damaged by crashing trees.

The Utah highway patrol partially closed U. S. highways 89 and 91 for 75 miles in the north part of the state from Salt Lake City to Tremonton. The closure was ordered after wind tipped over 11 freight trucks and one foreign car.

Hill air force base evacuated its control tower. Winds were recorded up to 80 knots or 92 miles per hour. Incoming planes were held at the Salt Lake municipal airport.

The winds were all along the west face of the Wasatch mountains in northern Utah, but were strongest in the area between Ogden and Salt Lake City.

Most schools in the hardest hit area were closed.

Damage of windows throughout Ogden Farmington, Bountiful and other cities were broken. At least 200 persons were injured by flying glass and windows broke in their homes in Ogden.

Telephone and power company crews were out all day attempting to repair lines blown down or broken by crashing trees.

Officials declared the winds in the worst in Ogden's history.

The weather bureau said the winds were blowing from the west, beginning to decline tonight. It said they were caused by a low pressure system east of the continental divide, from which air was flowing toward a low pressure system over Arizona.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 30 (UPI)—Flash flooding, a vicious killer turned loose by a ship sinking at the desert, took the lives of two children who were swept from their mothers' arms last night. The other victim was a 4-week-old child, who was swept away when the parents' car was knocked 600 feet off the old Apache Indian trail east of here and buried in sand and water.

Six of the children were members of one family. A fireman risked his life to rescue the only survivor, Simon Jockley, 13, a baby-sitter. She was burned over most of her body and reported in "very critical" condition at a local hospital. Fireman Robert Knox was credited with saving the baby-sitter. ## Reuther Is Target for Bitter Blast by Soviet Trade Unions

By The Associated Press
The Soviet Union's government-controlled trade unions leveled a bitter blast at Walter P. Reuther yesterday, accusing him of despoiling a Russian wife in the 1930s.

Reuther, AFL-CIO president, responded that this was a propaganda attack "based upon complete fabrication and falsehood."

The attack in "Trud," the trade union newspaper in Moscow, is an outgrowth of the September debate Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev held with Reuther and other U.S. labor leaders when Khrushchev was in San Francisco.

The meeting was closed to reporters, but Reuther gave out an account of the discussion. "As the Soviet news agency, several days later accused Reuther of spreading a fantastic report, 'The Soviet Union newspaper, got the recriminations down to a personal level yesterday."

In the early 30s Reuther, according to the Who's Who biography, spent three years in Europe and the Orient "observing auto plants and machine shops." He was for a time in a group of American workers at the Soviet's Gorky auto plant.

Trud's denunciation included letters from persons who said they worked with Reuther at Gorky. A document alleged to be Reuther's employment record, he left the Gorky job March 27, 1935, and was not a Communist party member.

A woman, signing only "N—the Russian signature for anonymity," wrote that she first met Reuther when she passed the place where he lived and heard a voice call "Hello miss, one moment."

WASHINGTON—We have added years to man's life. Now we face an even greater challenge—adding life to those years.

This pointed statement by Dr. Louis M. Orr, president of the American Medical Association, during a recent visit to Washington and throughout the country for some kind of federal aid to the aged, has been a constant theme in the social security system.

The same sort of groundswell of public sentiment and political pressure that resulted in the creation of that safeguard against old-age poverty in 1935 has been urged at recent sessions of public health, preventive, welfare and hospital organizations.

President Eisenhower has considered the subject so important that he has scheduled a White House conference on aging for January, 1961. In the interim, a committee of cabinet members and expert advisers are studying the problem and plan to present their views on the administration, Dr. Orr and the AMA oppose any solution which amounts of "socialized medicine."

McNAMARA'S COMMITTEE SPEARS HEADS CAPITOL HILL DRIVE—A Senate subcommittee on government operations headed by Sen. Robert A. Taft, R-Mich., Michigan, spearheads the drive on Capitol Hill. It has held hearings in Boston and Pittsburgh and is expected to hold similar sessions through November and December in Charleston, W. Va., Detroit and Grand Rapids, and Miami.

The committee is doing a thorough job. Besides listening to social, health, economic and industrial experts, it visits various areas of the aged, old-age homes, developments, lodging places and old ruins.

CARDS STACKED AGAIN OLDESTERS—Commenting on his feelings, Senator McNamara says, "There and there we saw encouraging signs of progress. But we saw discouraging signs of a real estate boom, rising home prices and rising rents. It would appear that for many older men and women the cost of living is a major problem."

Apparently with Senator McNamara's approval, a witness who describes as an "eminent economist" suggested $4,000 as the minimum annual income needed by a retired couple to live in a reasonable home, pay for medical expenses, and have a bill annually by Rep. Almon E. Ford, D., R., and backed by many welfare-minded members, would operate like a system. Employers and employees would contribute a certain amount that could be tapped in time of illness, disability or death.

AMAs OPPOSE FORNARD MEASURE—Other proposed solutions include increased social security benefits to increase payments to retired people, a special type of housing for the aged and elimination of the prejudice against employing people beyond 65. The AMA contends that the Ford measure would boost taxes, crowd hospitals, result in less efficient care through shortages of personnel, and, in short, head into "socialized medicine." Both sides disagree violently on the operation of that system in England.

VIEW OF OTHERS

THE WAR GOES ON
 The break in the strike-baiting steel industry's solid bargaining front which came Monday when Kaiser signed a new contract with the Steelworkers should cause no great surprise.

The wonder, perhaps, is that the front of the industry, with 12 of the largest producers carrying on a strike in Twin Falls this week, held out as long as it did against the solidly organized workers force.

The end was virtually indicated several days ago when President Eisenhower, without even suggesting any terms for settlement of the dispute, ordered the army to take over the steel industry and to halt the strike.

Both Kaiser and the Steelworkers' chief now assert that their new agreement is non-inflammatory. That goes to the heart of the controversy. Actually, though, it can be no such thing because when, as in this latest case, a small group of men scores a new gain then all those on the lower rungs will inevitably be spurred to demand more for themselves and is inevitable that the cost of labor is an important element in the rising spiral of prices—which is inflation.

Kaiser and the Steelworkers may intend, though, to convey this impression only that the concessions this agreement yields to the workers will not warrant a new rise in the price of steel. They are at any rate now committed to that proposition, and it is very definitely up to them to prove it—if they can.

Considerably more than just a possible boost in the price of steel to the American consumer is involved. There's serious question, brought to attention rather prominently in this controversy, that the steel industry in this country is in real danger of pricing itself out of the market both at home and abroad.

If the trend in that direction continues, it's quite probable that the workers now chalking up a victory would be in greater jeopardy than would the owners of the blast furnaces and the mills, because the latter could more readily move their operations to foreign countries.

A situation might develop where, as it once did when a New England hardware plant was forced to close down because it couldn't sell its product at its price, and both labor and management then in an extremely hot down to business seriously and worked out a plan of operation on a more reasonable basis.

In this now indicated settlement of the big steel strike a skirmish may have been won, but the war goes on.—Boise Statesman.

WHAT IS A DEATHKIND?
 At last we know exactly what deathkind is. Pressed for a definition by American College Dictionary, author-spokesman for the best generation Jack Kerouac responded thus:

Members of the generation that came of age after World War II—Korean War—who join in the relaxation of social and sexual taboos and espouse anti-regimentation, mystic disaffiliation and material simplicity values, supposedly as a result of "existentialism."

Now we can understand why there aren't many deathkinds. It isn't much fun being eternally against things. According to their definition, they aren't FOR anything.

They are against the social and sexual conventions of society. They don't recognize the rules by which men work together towards common goals. They loathe religion. They refuse to put values on wealth in any form.

There is probably a little deathkind in each of us. Do men work deathkinds because they want to or because society dictates? Women certainly wouldn't have worn sack dresses out of preference. We all have the value of material things in too high, even the value of money for our teen-agers. But the driving force of most of our lives are FOR power, honor, or just happiness. And it may not be for ourselves, but for our families or our community.

Until the deathkinds decide what they stand for, they will never be numbered among minority groups such as the greenbackers, populists and advocates of the "back to the land" who tried to shape the destiny of America.—Salem Statesman.

POT SHOTS

THEY'RE PRETTY
 While lots of hunters are pursuing the wily pheasant in Magic Valley fields, flocks, waterfowl and along the highways and ways, one Twin Falls woman is admiring the pretty birds in her car.

She has five pheasants to add color to the yard. But she's not a hunter. She's a bird lover. She has a bit of time watching and holding her breath as a call stalks the flocks. She can't understand why the pheasants aren't afraid of her.

And no, you can't go out to her house for a bit of pheasant hunting because they're too pretty and anyway it's against the law to kill a gun in the city limits, so there!

REAL WESTERNER
 Pol Shote:

No one can say that the exchange teacher from merry old England isn't making the very most of her time in Twin Falls this winter. She may even develop into a real westerner and an avid booster of Twin Falls before her time is up next spring.

She was out at the Twin Falls Rifle and Pistol club range the other night taking her turn on the firing line with the Junior shooters. Common courtesy keeps her from saying anything about her marksmanship.

But I am embarrassed. I know the T-N had a story on her, but to state my neck, I can't remember her name!

GENTLEMAN IN THE FOURTH ROW

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

NEW YORK—Should Earl Warren decide to commit a nuisance in 1960, he might drive another bargain with the nominee as he did in 1952 and confirm his title of King-maker, to the discomfiture of two Deweyes.

There are two powerful political forces with few friends outside their own families. One is the Dewey machine and the other is the Warren machine. The Warren machine is the more powerful of the two. It is the more powerful of the two.

Warren has great power in California and a dozen governors in the United States. He is the most powerful politician in the country. He is the most powerful politician in the country.

Warren is always an important consideration with Warren and Nixon. He is running the Rockefeller machine and his power is $100,000 a year from California. He is guaranteed about $100,000 a week for life. This gives him the highest permanent political income in the country. He is beyond temptation now.

In 1940 when Dewey was trying to round up support for the nomination which went, instead, to Wilkie, it was understood that Warren would not accept a nomination for vice president because the party would not meet the cost of raising his large family. There are few if any other influences in which a politician can choose to be vice president with the obvious possibility of success.

Warren's success in California was progressive up to the governor's office. He was a progressive up to the governor's office. He was a progressive up to the governor's office.

Actually, there was no difference in a day when Wilkie and Dewey both tried to beat Roosevelt by imitating him. No more lovable than Dewey, Warren was nevertheless one of the most competent politicians of the time and in a state where political corruption is known as chesecake or ho-

Youths in Valley to Trick or Treat for Others Halloween

Teen-agers and younger children from 20 churches in at least eight Magic Valley communities will be "trick-or-treating" for others Saturday night on Halloween.

In five communities, the program will be collecting coins for the United Nations children's fund, which provides medical aid and food for children in 100 different countries.

In Butte and Twin Falls, teenagers will be ringing doorbells Saturday evening for the "Share Our Suffering" program. Sponsored by Church World Service, this program is a means of helping Americans share the abundance of food in U.S. stocks-of-surplus commodities with hunger-ridden people overseas.

The money collected last year paid shipping charges for food sent to nearly 20 million people distributed free from U.S. government surplus, reports the Rev. Kenneth G. Reall, of the Butte office.

Warren probably would be the high Republican today but for his error in deciding to take the job on his own. And he was not a part of the radicalism, the probabilities all would favor the overthrow of his whole life.

He still can raise a commotion about it. He is a man of fun and at no pains in his sensitive pocket-book.

RIGHT AND MIGHT

Right now the Red Chinese are not making any visible preparations for an assault upon the Nationalist-held island of Formosa. But obviously they are trying to strengthen their paper claims to this stronghold.

Perhaps in exchange for their paid lip service to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's call for an end to the cold war, the Chinese may have induced him to underwrite their Formosan claims.

He has written President Eisenhower that he fully supports Peiping on this issue. And, possibly this man who keeps saying lately that force should be forsaken as an instrument of policy has recently not persuaded the Chinese Reds to tie it out against Formosa.

Khrushchev, of course, adopts the usual Communist posture that any aggression, it chooses to practice is an "internal affair" and thus none of the world's business. What worries free men is that some day Moscow and Peiping may treat the whole globe as their internal affair.

The facts about Formosa do not contradict to Khrushchev's newest statement of position. From 1895 until 1945, at the close of World War II, the island, lying 100 miles off the Chinese coast, was officially the territory of Japan. It had been ceded to the Japanese after the Sino-Japanese war ending in 1895.

After Japan's defeat in World War II, the island was returned to then free China under Chiang Kai-shek. Four years later the Reds drove Chiang from the mainland to Formosa, where he clung to the remnants of his army.

Here we must remember a critical point. The Reds gained their authority over the mainland by force, in a civil war. Triumphant on the mainland gives them no automatic claim to those Chinese territories they did not subdue.

That Chiang holds sway on Formosa means the Reds failed to complete their civil war conquest. Ever since, Peiping has been asking Chiang and the West to hand the island over in peacetime, to cede what Communists could not win.

There is nothing in international law that requires this. We are not compelled to pull Red China's chestnuts out of the fire.

Formosa's freedom is the free world's good fortune—a measure of Peiping's failure. The Communists have no "right" to Formosa, any more than they had a "right" to the mainland. They simply took it—and might make right.

Chiang the Formosan, the United States, with broad Western and even Asian support, stand in the way of Peiping making right with might on this vital island. Free men will do the same to guard free soil anywhere today.

PAST MASTERS
 The wary types warn us repeatedly that one of the big things Soviet Premier Khrushchev wants from a summit meeting is a freezing of the status quo. He has expressed it a tact Western acceptance of all the gains Soviet-Chinese communism has made since World War II.

Free doubt that this is a Russian goal. But perhaps not too many of us realize how sly Khrushchev and his Kremlin associates seek to expand the definition of "status quo."

Time after time on his visit to America, he bridled and lashed out at questioners who mentioned past Communist transgressions. His response was always the same.

"We want to end the cold war. But it won't be ended if you keep raking up the past. There is nothing to be gained by going over these old matters."

With the notion gaining force that Khrushchev may really want a break in tensions and an interval in the arms race, this kind of talk has a fairly plausible sound to some people. Why not put the past behind, and start afresh?

The trouble with that is the Communists include within the status quo, the scaled past, everything that happens up to the moment of agreement.

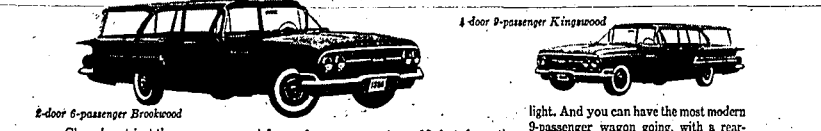

Did they wrongfully seize an American diplomat in Moscow and try to force him to spy for them? To bring it up, under Khrushchev's approach, is to "rake up the past."

His representative used the same deceitful tactic in arguing before the United Nations that no one should look into Red China's crude depredations against Tibet. How can we and the cold war, he asked, if you insist upon dragging up this ancient affair? (It's not even a year old.)

What this comes down to, obviously, is that the Soviet Union is possibly prepared to negotiate some sort of settlement with the West, provided we accept for good and all every Communist conquest, every crime against humanity, every flouting of human dignity and liberty that has ever occurred.

When we agree to question nothing the Reds have done, up to yesterday, they just might favor us with a truce in the cold war. This is the gangster saying that if you'll forget about his 15 murders, he may be willing to let you live any more. Where is the honor in these terms?

A professor says you have to make allowances for college students. Yep, by check.

Funds Sought For Plans of Space Rocket

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (UP)—The pentagon space rocket program will get twice as much money next year, if congress approves. But Dr. Werner von Braun, who heads the project, wants even more.

Von Braun and Roy Johnson, director of the pentagon's research projects, announced yesterday that congress will be asked to appropriate 140 million dollars for Saturday in the next fiscal year, double this year's amount.

The Saturn project and Von Braun's team of scientists are being transferred from army jurisdiction to the civilian national aeronautics and space administration. Johnson said, however, the defense department, with NASA's approval, will make the appropriation request for the next year.

Von Braun, in an informal news conference with Johnson, said the Saturn project could absorb 250 million dollars next year.

Von Braun said the cost of the taxpayers in the long run if we spend more earlier. He added he hoped that under the new sponsorship of NASA we will get more steam behind Saturn.

Von Braun is conferring at the pentagon on details of turning the project over to NASA. In spite of his desire for more money, he is apparently concurred on the request for 140 million.

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 30 (UP)—James C. White, 70, a law enforcement agent for 42 years, advocates a return to public whipping to attract attention out of youth cases.

White, Austin, is in Dallas for a conference of former federal agents of investigation agents. He was with the FBI from 1921 to 1947.

In an interview yesterday he said youngsters who cannot be straightened out need humiliating, not pampering.

"Kids need whipping at home and in public too. The old public whipping post ought to be used again. Nowadays, you have to raise children right or they'll grow up to be criminals," he said.

Truman Says Stevenson Is Losing Cause

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 30 (UP)—A Houston political leader backed Adlai Stevenson for the Democratic presidential nomination today.

Former President Harry Truman told him, "You're backing a loser."

Jack Matthews, secretary of the Harris County Democratic executive committee, said the conversation took place during Truman's visit to Texas Oct. 18-19.

At a breakfast in Dallas Oct. 18 it was mentioned that I was president of the Texas-for-Stevenson club," Matthews said. He said the breakfast was arranged by Dan Perlin of Dallas.

"He (Truman) said, 'You're backing a loser.' And I said, 'No, I'm not.' Matthews related.

Ships Collide In Harbor at Eastern Port

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (UP)—The liner Israel and a freighter collided last night in clear weather just north of the Statue of Liberty. One crewman of the Israel was reported missing.

The coast guard said the 264 passengers on board the Israel, bound for London, were uninjured. The 827-ton ship was overtaken. Although some passengers were shaken up, no serious injuries were reported.

The accident, which occurred shortly after 8 p.m. during 10-mile visibility off Bedloe's Island, was the third collision this year of ocean-going vessels in the New York harbor area. Bedloe's Island lies across the harbor from the lower tip of Manhattan.

The 827-ton freighter, the American Press, with two kipping holes in her prow, was towed safely to a Hudson river pier. No one aboard was hurt.

The Israel, hit amidships on its portside, received damage extending from the boat deck to the water line. The coast guard said the vessel took on a negligible amount of water.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (UP)—Mamie Eisenhower and the 40-year-old Women's National Press club jointly celebrated their birthday anniversary yesterday with luncheon, poetry and champagne.

There also was a bid to end discrimination against newspaperwomen because of their sex.

White House press secretary James G. Hager, among some 400 guests, called on the few men present to drink a toast "to our hostesses, who are every bit as good—if not a little better, than most of us—in the business of reporting news of the Washington scene."

Mrs. Eisenhower, who will be 63 Nov. 14, obviously enjoyed the luncheon and blew kisses in return when musical comedy star Celeste Holm led in the singing of "Happy Birthday."

She was toasted in champagne and given a corsage of pink and white carnations to wear on her Italian black brocade suit.

Pomona Unit For Gooding Names Aides

GOODING, Oct. 30 — Gooding Pomona Grange committee chairmen were announced by Pomona master, Richard Jasper, Wendell, Monday evening at the Gooding Grange hall.

Chairmen include Mrs. Melvin Olson, Orchard Valley, home economist; David Lake, Gooding, and James Freeman, Wendell, youth and juvenile; Melvin Olson, Orchard Valley, legislation; Mrs. Arthur Byce, Wendell, home demonstration; and representative and representative.

Each chairman is to obtain other members to assist on his committee. Jasper also expressed appreciation to the Gooding Grange for the use of the hall for the Oct. 30 joint installation of officers.

Melvin Olson presented a copy of the census blank which have been sent out and urged those providing them to fill them out before the census enumeration begins. He stated there are over 300 censuses, but many not pertinent.

Answers needed include amount of acreage farmed, whether owned or rented, approximate bushels per acre from grain, approximately income from livestock and general information.

It was at a meeting earlier this year, Pomona members from each Grange agreed to promote and sponsor a fund raising project for the treasury. Mrs. Arthur Byce reported she had been turned in from the public card party sponsored by the Wendell Grange last week.

Since there were no volunteers for a November project it was voted to draw Grange names for months to decide the order of these fund raising schemes. They included Bula Pomona, members for November; Hagerman members, December; Gooding members, January; Wendell, February; Orchard Valley members, March; and Tuttle, April. All fund raising projects will be open to the public.

Jasper reported that Mrs. Ira Kistler, lecturer, was absent because of attendance at the State Grange season, but that she had said that there be an officers training school for all officers of the subordinate Granges, with local Grangers acting as teachers rather than asking for state help.

Omar Schmitt announced that tonight would be held at Orchard Valley on Nov. 13 and all Pomona members are invited. Gooding county agent, Edward Koester, presented a program on 4-H club work. He stated that the aim of 4-H training was not only to teach how to sow, cook, raise livestock and crops, but the aims were to develop self-confidence, leadership, the value of research and exchange ideas. He said it also aided youth to realize that education never stops and people need to keep learning.

The training stresses healthful living, strengthening of personal standards and learning to work cooperatively and one theme of the 4-H is "reacting by doing."

There are 44 clubs in Gooding county this year with 27 different projects and 18 leaders and 20 junior leaders assisting, Koester said. He also showed slides of 4-H activities including judging, camping, annual 4-H congress at Moscow, individual projects and pre-fair showings of livestock.

Mr. and Mrs. David Lake served as chairmen of the refreshment committee. The next meeting will be at the Wendell Grange hall Nov. 22.

By BOB REESE
The giant silver dirigible was named the Hindenberg. She was the largest in the world, and this was her maiden voyage over the ocean from Germany. She arrived at Litchburn, N. J., and began journey to settle toward the earth. The ground crew moved out to moor the ship. Passengers gaily waved toward the people on the ground. Suddenly there was a great explosion. Flame burst out from the tail of the ship as it tipped toward the ground. The blunt nose dived up, hung suspended for a moment, then crumpled toward the field. As it crashed, crew and passengers were hurled from the ship by the impact. The sudden, terrible horror of that moment was caught by motion picture cameras in one of the most famous newsreels of all time. This was the end of the Hindenberg... and it marked the beginning of the end for the zeppelin as a means of flight.

No Mill Levy Hike Seen in Airport Issue

BURLEY, Oct. 30.—Citizens of Burley will have no increase in the mill levy when they vote for the airport bond on Nov. 10, Don Hansen, of the airport committee, reported at the Burley Kiwanis Wednesday luncheon meeting at the National hotel.

Cassia county will be voting for a two-mill levy and residents of Minidoka will be voting for a three-mill levy, he stated.

The traffic patterns of the present airport and the proposed one would overlap, so two airports could not exist, therefore the two-mill levy now going to the present airport will be transferred to the new airport, so there would be no additional taxes for residents of Burley, Hansen said.

This levy would mean about $2 tax on the average $10,000 home and between $8 and $10 tax on an improved 80-acre farm. This amount includes personal as well as real property taxes, Hansen continued.

Hansen presented the question, "Why do we want an airport?" Residents pay 26 mills levy tax in Burley whereas $22.5 mills are levied in Twin Falls. Industry, even though they would have to pay twice the mill levy, would rather go where there is an adequate airport, the speaker said. Consequently, if the Mini-Cassia area had an adequate airport with only half the taxes, industry would rather settle here, he said.

"We are wide open for industry here with all of our raw materials the farmers produce. Distant markets will be right at our door step, thus creating more profits," he continued.

The question was asked, "What would stop West Coast from pulling out of Burley as United did out of Twin Falls?"

Hansen answered that the civil aeronautics board won't allow service airlines to pull out until there is another equal or better service available. In order for the airport to have a permanent certificate with an airline, there has to be a 6,000-foot runway, and now it is only 4,125 feet, Hansen noted.

Hansen added that West Coast has been operating on a two-year temporary certificate. The present airport has been condemned by the American Pilots association. If there were to be one fatal accident at the present airport, West Coast would have no alternative but to cease its operation, he declared.

Hansen stated that with the farmer getting higher prices for his produce, the business man would sell more products. With additional industry and a better wage earner would receive high pay and more jobs would be created which would in turn keep the young people of the community at home.

"When our youth has completed schooling he will settle elsewhere unless there are jobs available for him here," he said.

The housewife also will benefit by the new airport because new industry will mean new jobs and jobs that will keep her family around her, Hansen concluded.

He presented a letter to the club "Mr. Withers Slops the Clock" showing a city that lost its airport.

President J. Han announced that the training conference for the newly elected officers would be held for Utah and Idaho in October, Nov. 28 and 29. Newly elected officers will take office the first part of January.

Phil Long and M. J. Berdahl were guests of Don Loveland, county assessor.
