Confab Is Set On Strike at Glen Canyon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—A meeting will be held next week in Washington in an effort to boost the deadlocked negotiations over water at Glen Canyon dam.

Utah's Gov. George D. Clyde and Arizona's Gov. Paul Fannin both have been pressing for a meeting with the contractor. He said he understood the company is to be so advised and that the department will be glad to meet with the reclamation bureau and Merritt-Chapman and Scott next week.

The main question is over demands by the unions for a pay increase which would be in excess of 10 per cent. Under contract terms between the company and the reclamation bureau the government must pay 85 per cent of cost increases due to wage hikes.

Do not the people know Benson has been in office only 10 months and that much money could not accumulate in that short time. The previous attorney general were Republicans since 1947, including Roy A. Robson, Robert Smyth and Glenn Smith who was collecting $125 per month besides his own salary for advising the head of the falls and I have wondered if the family who let us use their upstairs room can recall their visitors of long ago.

However the first impression of the tremendous volume of work which was flowing over the brink of the dam was almost obliterated by the cry of disapproval which escaped me when I saw the bleached and dried rocks which were exposed when the water was diverted elsewhere for the purpose of irrigation. I think I wept at the destruction of one of the great natural sights of our country.

I am trying to make my book a picture of fascination which brought the people from the east and also caused them to stay. No one left in Wendell of those who camped near Shoshone falls except Mrs. M. E. Leland who was at that time Miss Esbie Barrett.

More Steel Imported Into U.S. Than Shipped Out Has Steelmakers Worried

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—It is one-in-three chance that the last batch of steel mills were made in a foreign steel mill.

Foreign steel has been imported into the United States in record quantities this year, partly because of the shortage created by the steel strike.

More steel has been imported than exported for the first time since records have been kept.

Foreign countries which formerly were good buyers of American steel—all of Latin America for example—now look to Europe of Asia for part of their supply.

The possibility of permanently losing markets—both in this country and abroad—worries steel-makers.

About one-third of the supply of nails in the United States comes from abroad, according to the Commerce Department.

GREENAWALT'S

TWIN FALLS

Garth Holm, left, and his father, Art Holm, right, point out sections of their fine potato crop to Ray DeRoche, buyer and field man for Clover Club. The Clover Club people work closely with growers to achieve greater yield, better quality.

Clover Club's manufacturing plant at Boise turns out 800 pounds of potato chips and related products per hour. Purchased in 1952 and enlarged and remodeled in 1957, the plant employs approximately 50 persons in manufacturing processes, sales and in office work.

Clover Club's warehouse and storage facilities at Cotton Siding (6 miles from Idaho Falls) can accommodate 100 carloads, or 4 million pounds, of potatoes. Here potatoes are washed, graded and shipped — both for Clover Club use and for sale on the open market.

This finished-product warehouse at Idaho Falls is one of six maintained by Clover Club at scattered locations where Clover Club salesmen pick up freshly-delivered stocks of potato chips, corn chips and other products and deliver them fresh to grocery stores in the area.

CLOVER CLUB CELEBRATES 11th BIG YEAR IN IDAHO

Clover Club's Roots Are Deep in Idaho

Clover Club is as truly "Idaho" as the potatoes it buys!

All three Clover Club operations in the state — Clover Club Foods of Idaho, Inc.; Clover Club Potato and Produce Company and M & W Farms, Inc. — are Idaho corporations.

And more than that, Clover Club personnel are deeply rooted in the State.

Born in Oakley

For example, Bill Wilson, Clover Club's divisional sales manager at Boise, was born and raised in Oakley, Idaho. John L. Miller, manager of the commercial potato operation at Cotton Siding near Idaho Falls, is an Idaho resident of many years. And Kyle DeRoche, manager of the M & W Farms at Pingree, Idaho, is another Idaho native.

In addition, the vast majority of the approximately 100 other full-time Clover Club employees throughout the state are Idaho natives.

In Idaho Schools

Furthermore, N. V. "Hod" Sanders, president of the Clover Club organization, was educated in Sugar City and Blackfoot, Idaho; grammar school; the family of K. J. Cranney, executive vice-president, were Idaho pioneers and have been farming in the Burley-Oakley area since 1908; and Veri A. Walker, vice president for sales, hails from Idaho Falls.

Yes, without question — "Clover Club" means "Idaho."

Common Interest With Growers

Besides purchasing potatoes for manufacture into potato chips, Clover Club also buys and sells potatoes on the open market from its warehouse facilities at Cotton Siding, six miles from Idaho Falls.

All in all, approximately 20 million pounds (or 10,000 tons) of potatoes will be purchased from Idaho growers by Clover Club this year.

Clover Club research and field personnel maintain close contact with growers in all parts of the state to help them improve the quality and increase the quantity of the crop yield.

Firm's Growth Keeps Pace With Progress of State

As Idaho grows, so grows Clover Club!

And now the Clover Club organization is celebrating the 11th anniversary of its establishment in Idaho — 11 years of impressive growth and development for both Idaho and Clover Club.

Some 200,000 sacks of potatoes will be purchased from Idaho growers by Clover Club this year.

This boon to the state's economy is only part of the way in which Clover Club is growing with Idaho. For in addition, Clover Club's payroll in the state will exceed $30,000 this year — money which the employees return to circulation through purchases of all kinds.

Plant at Boise

Clover Club's largest operation in Idaho is the plant at Boise, which turns out 800 pounds of potato chips and other related products per hour, employing the most modern equipment and the strictest of quality and sanitary control measures.

Here approximately 50 persons work under ideal conditions — some in the manufacturing processes, some in sales, and others in office work. The plant was purchased by Clover Club in 1952, and was extensively enlarged and remodeled in 1957.

Potato Warehouse

Next largest Clover Club facility is the commercial potato operation at Cotton Siding, (6 miles from Idaho Falls), known as the Clover Club Potato and Produce Company. This installation has a potato storage capacity of approximately 100 carloads, or about four million pounds.

Here, under direction of John L. Miller, manager, potatoes are washed, graded and shipped — not only for use in manufacture of Clover Club potato chips, but sold on the open market as well. It employs approximately 50 persons.

Farm at Pingree

A third key facility in Clover Club's Idaho operations is the 640-acre farm at Pingree, 15 miles west of Blackfoot, owned by M & W Farms, Inc., another Clover Club subsidiary. This is where Clover Club has pioneered the development of an Idaho strain of Kennebec Potato Seed the yield from which has proven far superior to any other variety for the manufacture of potato chips. How has it proved superior? By greater crop yield.

more successful growth in areas of less desirable soil; resistance to disease; and ability to withstand temperature changes.

The five regular personnel at the farm are headed by Kyle DeRoche, manager. A substantial number of additional persons are employed during harvest periods.

Maintains Warehouses

To better supply grocery stores throughout Idaho, Clover Club maintains finished product warehouses at six scattered locations. Here the Clover Club salesmen pick up freshly-delivered stocks of potato chips, corn chips and other Clover Club products and deliver them fresh to the stores in the area. These sales warehouses are located at Twin Falls, Burley, Pocatello, Blackfoot, Idaho Falls, and Ontario, Oregon.

And Clover Club looks forward to even greater expansion — hand in hand with the growth of Idaho.

Chip Making—A Real Art

The manufacture of potato chips — Clover Club Potato Chips — is truly an art and a science.

It all starts in potato fields throughout Idaho where such Clover Club people as Ray DeRoche, buyer, and John L. Miller, manager of the potato company operation near Idaho Falls, select the choicest potatoes for purchase.

Shipped to Boise

After a proper "curing" period, the potatoes are shipped to Clover Club's manufacturing plant at Boise to begin their conversion into big golden-brown potato chips.

First, the potatoes are introduced into a "peeling" machine which buffs off the outer skins for discard. Then the potatoes move on, automatically by conveyor, to another machine for a thorough washing.

Slicing Machine

Next, the potatoes are conveyed to an automatic slicing machine which quickly reduces them to thin, neat slices. Continuing along the conveyor, the potato slices then enter another bath — but this time for a different purpose. This time the purpose is to remove as much starch as possible, and the agitator water performs this remarkably well.

Next stop for the now starch-reduced potato slices is the cooker. Here the slices are plunged into pure vegetable oil, heated to a temperature of 325 degrees. (No hard fats are used in the Clover Club process.) After two to three minutes, still automatically conveyed, they emerge as big, golden-brown, crisp potato chips.

Salt Sprinkled On

Then they move to another device which automatically sprinkles salt on them as they pass through. Lastly, the conveyor carries the chips to the packaging department where they're automatically bagged and sealed, then loaded into cartons to be rushed fresh to grocery stores all over the state.

That's the Clover Club process — the story of the big, golden-brown potato chip!

Gov. Smylie Lauds "Chip" Industry

In an official proclamation designating "Potato Chip Week" in Idaho, Governor Robert E. Smylie praised the chip industry as one which contributes "substantially to the economy of our State."

The proclamation pointed out that the State of Idaho is "known the world over for the outstanding quality and tremendous quantity of its potatoes," and that the ideal climate "produces potatoes ideally suited to the manufacture of potato chips."

It added that the potato chip industry "now uses more potatoes than any other processor, thereby contributing substantially to the economy of our State."

Taking part in a brief ceremony at the Capitol in connection with the governor's signing of the proclamation was Bill Wilson, Boise, manager of Clover Club's sales throughout the State.

After being peeled and washed automatically, potatoes here at Boise plant are being conveyed toward slicing machine. Roma Ruehlman stands by to inspect potatoes and to discard unsatisfactory ones. Clover Club maintains strict quality control throughout manufacturing process.

Here the chips are emerging, from right to left, from the huge cooker where they have just been cooked to a golden brown in pure vegetable oil. No hard fats are used in Clover Club chips. Moments before, the chips entered the cooler in the form of potato slices. Tom Kcono operates cooker.

After leaving the cooker, the chips here at upper right are coming through the automatic slicing machine. They then slide down on to another conveyor which will carry them to the packaging room. Nancy Brunstman inspects chips and discards unsatisfactory ones as they pass by on the conveyor line.

Here is one of the packaging machines which is fed by the conveyor line shown above. In this photograph, the machine is filling the Clover Club individual "Lunch Box" packs. Working at machine are, left to right, Bobbie Blackfield, Beulah Scott, Mary Foley. Ruth Bruller is in background.

They Travel Length and Breadth of State

Potato Chips Become All-Year Favorite

Only a few short years ago, potato chips were considered to be strictly a "hot weather food," used mainly on picnics and beach outings.

But today, the Clover Club manufacturing plants traditionally were shut down each year shortly after Labor Day and not reopened until around Memorial Day.

However, soon after Clover Club began manufacturing in Idaho, this changed. Today, the Clover Club manufacturing plant operates all year around, and sales are now higher in December and January than they were only a few years ago in July.

Forecast of 1960 Farm Income Would Have Hurt U.S. in 1932

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (UP)—The agriculture department has issued a farm income forecast for 1960 which—because of its character—would have drawn dark headlines and shaken business in former years.

But this time it was hardly noticed. The report this week said it appears now that farm income will decline 10 per cent this year and perhaps half that much more in 1960.

There have been times in the past when a much smaller drop in agricultural income signaled a nationwide business recession, if not depression.

The last time farm income fell as much or more than indicated for 1932 and 1933 was before the 1932 presidential and congressional elections.

The farmers' economic setback helped to feed the big depression of the 1930's. It helped to bring a turnover in administrations and broad shifts in economic and political policies of the nation.

But the complacency with which the latest farm income decline is accepted underscores the technological and social revolution that is sweeping agriculture.

In the early 1930's the farm population was one-fourth of the total population. Today it is less than one-tenth. Naturally, the adverse effects of a depressed farm income on the total economy was much greater than it is now.

This sharp shrinkage in the size of the farm population, both in numbers and as a percentage of the whole, reflects technological developments—the replacement of men by machines and the consequent reduction in unit costs of producing farm products.

The decline in farm income is being offset to a large extent these days by increases in earnings of industrial workers as well as by the pouring of borrowings—largely by the government—into the economy to pay for defense.

But all this does not mean that a sharp drop in farm returns goes unnoted among farmers themselves or political leaders.

The 1930 decline and that foretold for next year may well be among major issues in next year's presidential and congressional elections—at least in the farming states of the Midwest.

These states are bearing the brunt of the downturn. They are big livestock and poultry producers. It has been these products that have suffered the most and may continue to suffer next year from lower farm returns. While some traditionally Republican strongholds, they have become pivotal in recent presidential elections.

There are factors that tend to minimize the impact of a declining farm income even among farm states. One is the fact that year by year the "Carbon King" Utah Slack—Oil Treated $14.75 per ton—Delivered Intermountain Fuel Co. RE 3-621 year, the number of farmers goes down. Hence, as the size of the income pie dwindles, so does the number of persons sharing in the pie.

Another factor is that income from non-farm sources is playing a bigger role in determining the size of farm spending power. More and more members of farm families are working in jobs off the land to supplement incomes.

There's nothing like a new car—and no new car like a Chevrolet. This is the 1960 Chevrolet Bel Air Sport Coupé

PEOPLE SAY THESE ARE THE THINGS THEY WANT IN A CAR...and CHEVROLET for '60 comes closest to meeting every need!

Interviews with thousands of car owners across the country show clearly what they like or dislike about their present cars... and what they want most in their 1960 cars. Here's what the people tell us they want... and here's how Chevrolet meets their needs.

"Price, that's what's uppermost in my mind." All Impalas and Bel Airs with V8 engines are lower in price as are automatic transmissions and many other popular options. Also Biscaynes now include as standard equipment conveniences formerly optional at extra cost.

"And how about operating economy? And resale value?" You keep right on saving after you buy your favorite Chevrolet. For, And Chevrolet's exceptionally higher resale value means you'll get more back when you trade.

"Give me plenty of good old-fashioned comfort." There's comfort and then some in this one Chevy's long on-pace, for one thing. Once you're under way you'll know just how comfortable Full Coil suspension makes your ride.

"Safety—don't forget safety!" You're surrounded by safety features in a new Chevrolet. You've got big, sturdy brakes underneath, for example, that last longer. As it has been for years, safety is standard equipment in Chevy.

"Let's keep upkeep down, too." More than ever, Chevrolet for 1960 is built to stay on the road and out of the repair shop. You can tell that from its husked, unfrayed way of going, from Chevrolet's high floors. Of course, if you should need service, you're always near efficient, economical attention to your needs.

"I want a car that will stand up to the driving I do." For proof of Chevy staying power, just spend a minute watching the nearest road. You'll see more Chevrolets traveling on it than any other car—evidence of Chevrolet durability. (And that higher resale value attests to it, too.)

"Me for a sweet-handling car." Handling's always been Chevy's forte, and 1960 is no exception. But really, this kind of lightness and precision you've simply got to enjoy for yourself.

"... a car you can look at and be smug about buying it." Chevrolet for 1960 leaves the low-price field far behind when it comes to fashion. But you're the best judge of styling, so take a good close look at Chevrolet. We want you; you're about to fall in love.

"And performance. Let's have a hot one!" Chevy's spirited V8's have set the standard for ultra-efficient power in American-built passenger car engines. You've got a long list of performance-minded transmissions to pick from, too.

So that, friends, is what you told us you want. We think it can be summed up rather well in just one word: ride.

Tibetan Leader Is Believed to Have Taken Royal Treasury on Epic Flight

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 14—When the Dalai Lama made his epic flight from Tibet, it is said the invading Chinese discovered to their dismay he had taken along a good chunk of the royal treasury.

One story circulated in the United Nations that the fugitive leader and his party made off with the equivalent of 14 billion dollars of gold said that it was now being used to help the cause of his exiled government.

These reports began mushrooming after the Dalai Lama's brother, Gyalo Thondup, arrived in New York several weeks ago and launched a flashy campaign to enlist support for Tibet.

Thondup checked in at a plush hotel, hired an international lawyer and a high-priced public relations firm, then began feeding the press with lavish lunchrons.

Asked where the funds for this came from, Thondup's aides acknowledged the Dalai Lama had not left Tibet empty handed. They declined to say how much gold he took out, but hinted the amount was considerable.

Tibet has long been reported rich in gold ore. But fearing that if it were mined on a large scale it would start a gold rush from neighboring China, Tibet's lama warned that people that dig for gold would arouse hostile spirits in the earth and bring down floods or earthquakes in retribution.

It has never been learned, however, just how much gold may have been mined privately to supply the royal coffers.

Their discovery that the treasury had been lifted is said to have spurred the enraged Chinese reds to frantic efforts to head off the fleeing God-king.

The communists set up road blocks, destroyed bridges and launched an intensive air-ground search, but their quarry eluded them and made it safely to India.

The historic flight began the evening of March 17, 1959, when a member of the ruler's escape party gave this story of perilous journey.

On the night of March 17, Dalai Lama took off his spectacles and stopped out of Norbulingka palace wearing the drab robes of an ordinary monk. He stroled leisurely through the streets and no one challenged him.

After two days of hard riding, the party was met by a squad of loyal Khambra tribesmen. The armed Khambra took over from the Dalai Lama's personal bodyguard and dropped the Chinese reds in the Brahmaputra river in a vain attempt to cut off his escape.

On March 29, the Dalai Lama sent emissaries across the Indian border requesting the Indian government for asylum. Permission to enter India was quickly granted.

On March 31, the Dalai Lama, with his mother, sister, younger brother and more than 90 monks, entered the free zone of India.

Word of the fugitive ruler's arrival spread quickly. More than 4,000 mountain folk poured down from the Himalayas to get their first glimpse of the living Buddha who was now traveling by air-conditioned train toward his exile home in Mussoorie, northern India.

Our FURNITURE Department is located in the front showroom. With twenty years of furniture in Twin Falls, many people have asked why we added furniture to our appliance lines. Because of our membership and association with WEST-TORRE'S, INC., a buying syndicate consisting of 80 western stores, we have been exceptionally pleased with the response from our furniture shoppers. "That we can sell quality Furniture for less" is a statement we have proven to our many customers.

Back of our Furniture Showroom, is located our new enlarged SERVICE CENTER, under the management of R. C. (Bob) Adamson. Bob has increased his staff of trained personnel in T. V. and Electronics, Refrigeration, Automatic Laundry, General Appliance Repair and Electrical wiring to 10 men. He is operating the largest, most complete service center found anywhere in the Intermountain area. All of the manufacturers we represent agree that we have the most efficient service-personnel and facilities of any of their dealers anywhere in the Western States. If you have a service problem, you can do no better than call Bob. He and his men will guarantee you prompt, efficient service. We pledge to you "Complete satisfaction or no charge" - we also remind you of our slogan for the past 14 years - "If we can't service it - we won't sell it."

All used appliances and T. V. traded in on new merchandise is thoroughly reconditioned for resale by the service personnel, and is displayed in the same room as the Service Center. We have recently installed a steam cleaner and each used appliance is thoroughly steam cleaned after it is declared mechanically sound. T.A.G. Tested, Approved and Guaranteed.

In the basement of this building is located our spacious warehouse, as well as our modern paint room and antique parts departments and electric wiring supplies.

Note to you people in West End - we are in the process of enlarging our store in Buhl. Watch for developments.

Our Second-Avenue store is just across the alley from our 7 Main Street store with both a front and alley entrance.

'Books Battle' Rages Around Ike's Strategy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (UPI)—There is no surrender in sight in the "battle of the books" which has been raging around President Eisenhower and other top world war II allied military leaders almost since the actual shooting stopped 14 years ago.

This became newly apparent when smoke cleared from the latest skirmish, triggered by criticism of President Eisenhower in the district of Field Marshal Viscount Alanbrooke, wartime chief of the British general staff.

Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, who already had criticized Eisenhower in his own memoirs, said Alanbrooke in a new account of Eisenhower's "strategic abilities as supreme allied commander in Europe."

Montgomery also recalled that Eisenhower had been "ungenerous" to him and Alanbrooke in his own 1948 book, "Crusade in Europe." And he added that Gen. Omar N. Bradley had said some "extremely unpleasant things about me" in his World War II memoirs, published in 1954.

Here, in brief, is how the book battle shapes up: Alanbrooke, in his "Triumph in the West," said no one was running the land war in France before the battle of the Bulge in December 1944. He said Eisenhower, though supposed to be doing so, is on the golf links at Reims, entirely detached and taking no part in the running of the war.

The White House denied that Eisenhower played golf at Reims, and Alanbrooke said he had no intent to have this imputed. He said he merely meant Eisenhower was at his "forward headquarters" on an unstaffed golf course at Reims.

Eisenhower, in his own book, said he sat up a forward command post outside Reims. He said he could easily reach any portion of the front, even on days when flying was impossible.

He said he spent a great portion of his time in such travel, until the weather became so bad that it was impossible. Gen. Carl Spaatz, who commanded U. S. strategic bomber forces, recalled Eisenhower's remark was ruled out during the time of the "bulge" because of weather.

Alanbrooke and Bradley both recalled differences with Eisenhower and Montgomery over whether to strike into Germany and defend on front or to make a single powerful thrust into the Rhur. Alanbrooke and Montgomery, in their books, said the war could have been won in 1944 if their single thrust had prevailed.

Alanbrooke admitted he was wrong, Eisenhower's book maintained. This was described as occurring while both of them stood watching allied troops march into Reims into Germany in January, 1945.

Eisenhower wrote: "His turned to me and said, 'Thank God, Ike, you stuck by your plan. You were completely right and I am sorry if my fear of dispersed effort added to your burdens. Germany is now linked. Thank God you stuck by your guns.'"

Eisenhower classed Alanbrooke as "a brilliant soldier" who lacked ability to weigh calmly the conflicting factors in a problem and so reach a reasonable decision.

Alanbrooke said Eisenhower had "absolutely no strategic outlook" but made up for it by the way he works for good cooperation between allies. Bradley said Eisenhower was a "superb tactician" and if anyone disagreed it was because of Montgomery's attitude.

How has Eisenhower sided to the Montgomery-Alanbrooke camp? He is one noteworthy public relation man who has attended the press conference when he noted that "we won the war in 12 months, from the day we landed in Normandy and I heard no single prediction before that, at any time

Kiwanis Members Confer With Forest Officials on Watershed Care

Members of the Twin Falls Kiwanis club in cooperation with forest service officials are coordinating efforts to make both farm and city people more conscious of the importance of proper care of watersheds. Increasing demands both of agriculture, civilian and industrial uses force a more comprehensive study of the water situation, they believe.

Importance of Protecting Watersheds Is Stressed for 1959 Farm-City Week

Twin Falls Kiwanians are working jointly with the U. S. forest service in a program designed to bring about a better understanding of water facilities and problems.

The department of agriculture helps local communities with watershed protection and water management in many ways. Technical help to farmers and ranchers, cost-sharing and loans for conservation projects, research, and education help landowners and users to control runoff and conserve water.

Fish and wildlife values in federal water developments projects and in non-federal hydroelectric power and other projects are also given aid by the department of interior, which recommends measures to protect and improve the fish and wildlife resources.

Water is also a concern of the department of health, education and welfare, which cooperates with cities and states in a program of water pollution control. Sewage treatment plants to alleviate some of the extreme water pollution problems created by municipalities with industrial growth, water use will continue to increase, as it has in the past.

Irrigation now is using less water than industry, but still is second in usage. Much of the water for this area comes from the Targhee watershed. Unless good management is practiced, the water would be over in less than two years. "I think I have been criticized by everybody who can write a book and I will be in the future," he added.

procedures are followed, both quality and quantity of water will be affected, Daugh states.

Confab Eyed By Business, Union Heads

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—President Eisenhower has taken a step toward calling for a conference of management and union leaders. The agenda: New ways of settling the problems of the steel walkout.

A labor spokesman said Friday night that the president had asked President George Meany of the AFL-CIO to discuss the matter with Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell.

Meany had proposed the conference in a letter to the president. Excerpts from the letter and the reply were released by the spokesman. At Zack, public relations director of the AFL-CIO.

"I am asking Secretary Mitchell to confer with you as to your specific ideas on time, place, and composition of the conference you suggest," Eisenhower wrote.

"He will also explore with representative management leaders their ideas on the subject."

Meany had written Eisenhower that "our country must avoid drifting by statute into rigid, arbitrary rules for collective bargaining. Such drifting can only lead to a serious weakening of understanding of which democratic way of life."

The AFL-CIO president said he hoped a White House conference would "take out their problems and come to some collection—understanding of those problems typified by the attitude of both sides in the steel strike."

The president of the White House, Meany said, would put both sides at the conference "under public pressure to come to some kind of accommodation."

Gov. Aronson Flays "White Father" Idea

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14 (AP)—Government handouts, Democratic and his own state's voters came in for a tongue-lashing today from Gov. J. Hugo Aronson, self-styled Galloping Bredos from Montana.

In a statement to the Western Republican conference, Aronson denounced advocates who termed the Great White Father theory in government.

"They want to turn everything over to Washington to do out," he said.

"Of course, they don't tell the people that every dollar that goes to Washington has a cut taken out of it in the form of administrative expenses or some other type of red tape."

The Montana governor criticized Democrats who, he said, continue to rap businessmen in government.

"Maybe they oppose sound, business-like methods," he said. "Perhaps they prefer red tape, gobbledegook language and inefficiency."

Study Projects Can Aid Alaska

WENATCHEE, Nov. 14 (AP)—Two transportation studies now in progress can hasten Alaska growth and development, Sen. Warren Magnuson, D. Wash., reported today.

Magnuson addressed a meeting of the Highway 74 association.

He said a report is due in January on commerce department recommendations for extensions needed in Alaska to the present interstate highway system.

The other study under way is by the Alaska International Rail and Highway commission, which Magnuson heads. It concerns possible new rail and highway routes between the Northwest and Alaska.

Red China Brewing up Surprises From Advances Made by Stressing Sciences

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—Red China is brewing up some of the most surprising science and technology.

"For most of its 10 years, the Chinese People's Republic has stressed education and science as mainstays of her highly advertised 'great leap forward.'"

One goal was creating a new army of scientists and technologists.

"Now they are beginning to reap the fruits—and in five years or so we can expect some mazz-dazzle in science," says a prominent American physicist. He noted that he identified, since he has been continuing contacts with Russians and Chinese at international scientific meetings.

He recently observed some of the Chinese students studying in the Soviet Union.

"Even the Russians are flabbergasted about their energy and utter devotion," he reports. "The Chinese students will study until 2 a.m. then be up at 7 a.m., taking calisthenics before starting another 'long day.'"

One Soviet scientist remarked:

Passport Wording Change Is Asked

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—At the request of newsmen wanting to get into red China, the state department has agreed to change the wording of its passports.

The passports issued to 31 newsmen say they are not valid for travel in "Albion," those portions of China, Korea and Viet Nam under communist control.

The newsmen suggested that red Chinese authorities might have been annoyed by portions of the Communist Union alone. Scientists and universities in Peking now held by the nationalists.

The state department agreed to remove all reference to red China in the passport language.

Idaho Leading In Production Of Fall Spuds

BOISE, Nov. 14 (AP)—For the second successive year Idaho leads the nation in the production of fall potatoes, the U. S. department of agriculture reported today.

The total crop was estimated at $3,760,000 hundredweight, unchanged from the estimate a month earlier. Although the production was down seven per cent from the record-breaking crop of $4,111 million in 1957, the average for the preceding 10 years.

Quality of the crop varies. The USDA said earlier potatoes generally are rough because of the hot first week of the growing season. Estimated yields of all of Idaho's field crops, with one exception, remained completed Nov. 1 report from those made a month earlier. The exception was field corn with estimated production listed as 5,937,000 bushels, up one per cent from the Oct. 1 report.

For other major crops the production estimates included: wheat, 12,800,000 bushels; oats, 7,140,000 bushels; barley, 16,892,000 bushels; hay, 2,862,000 tons; sugar beets, 1,820,000 tons; dry beans, 2,482,000 hundredweight; dry peas, 1,720,000 hundredweight; apples, 1,200,000 bushels; prunes, 22,500 tons.

Agency Head Declines Job

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Nov. 14 (AP)—Dr. Charles L. Critchfield, told the defense department today it will have to find somebody else to direct the advanced research projects agency. He has decided he doesn't want the job.

"I accepted the appointment, declining government pay," the aircraft executive said. "It is obvious now, however, that general misunderstanding and public controversy have most certainly impaired my ability to serve."

Critchfield would have kept $40,000 annually while on the government job. After his appointment was announced, Rep. Clegg Hollifield, D. Calif., said his house government operations committee would study the matter to determine whether a conflict of interest might be involved.

Critchfield would have received no government salary. The previous agency director, Roy W. Johnson, was paid $10,000 a year. Critchfield would have had nothing to do with government contracts going to Convair.

Five hundred 100 books will go on display Monday, in the Washington elementary school auditorium. Thirty-one subject categories are represented in the collection, and all grades from kindergarten and all grades from kindergarten through high school are covered. Through both fiction (which breaks down into 15 sub-divisions) and non-fiction are included. The exhibit is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and will last through Friday. An important part of the exhibit is an annotated, graded, indexed catalogue, which lists the complete catalogue, and which is available for free distribution to teachers, librarians, and other professional readers. The books are made accessible by being grouped into grades and numbered catalogue. The scope of the exhibit is indicated by the following list of covers, ranging from aeronautics and adventure to story books and transportation. From science and conservation to nature, science and picture books. "Books on Exhibits, a cooperative enterprise of the country's leading publishers, has placed the exhibit here. Its primary purpose is to provide school teachers and librarians with an opportunity to examine the best of the new picture books, with a view to making it possible for them to do an informed and intelligent selection, declares Arlene M. Kleinig, assistant superintendent of schools. The exhibit will also find the interest of the general public, and certain parents will also find the exhibit of special interest and value. No books are available since Books on Exhibits, as a strictly promotional operation, see late orders.

Man Released After 25 Year Prison Term

ROBERT III, Nov. 14 (AP)—Roger may soon be released from the state prison after serving 25 years for a kidnaping. He says he is innocent, is not bitter. "I had no grudge, and I'm not looking for revenge," the Chicago gangster said today. "I'm not bitter. I just want to get out of here. I got Friday Friday, known as the 'turkey' in the prohibition when he was a gang leader. He was arrested in 1934 for the kidnaping of Al Capone's son, was granted parole. He said he will leave the state as soon as his parole is granted, and employment has been arranged. He is 41 years old, crippled, slight and gray-haired. He talked to reporters about his parole. "I want to live in peace for the next few years left for me," he said. "I will be thankful for the rest of my life for the way I'm already shown by the state and the parole and parole board."

New Procedures On Pension Told

Service in the women's army military corps between May 12, 1941, and Sept. 20, 1945, may now be credited for establishing pension computation eligibility. The new procedure the woman veteran also had to be in any armed branch of the military forces after Sept. 20, 1945, said H. Helwege, veterans administration representative, pointed out Saturday. A new law, enacted by the 86th Congress, provides that the requirements of 90 days of active service be composed of two or more periods of service in World War II, or in WAO service, or in WAO or other active service in the armed forces. Moreover, 90 more days of service in the WAO or other active service in the armed forces is required for pension eligibility when there is other active service even outside the war period. A woman with disability incurred or aggravated by service in the WAO with subsequent active service in the armed forces, is entitled to disability compensation on the same basis as any other woman. When disability resulted from disease, injury or other active service, Helwege added.

Quadrants Meet

About 20 representatives of nine air police squadrons met at the air force reserve center Saturday for their annual squadron meeting conference. In addition to reports from staff members, various problems and ways of improvement were discussed by the group. French colonists in Quebec had maple syrup with the Indians as early as 1685.

Diplomatic?

David Hearne, 21, son of Ireland's ambassador to the U. S., investigated "diplomatic immunity" and was set free in Washington, D. C., after an auto he drove struck and killed a 51-year-old woman. Hearne, arrested last month for allegedly socking a policeman, was released and is father, Ambassador John J. Hearne.

Immunity of Diplomats Is Noted in U.S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—As far back as diplomats can recall—and that's pretty far—they have enjoyed immunity on foreign soil. The ancient Greeks even had words for it. They declared an alliance on the person of an ambassador was an offense of the gravest nature. Diplomatic immunity was spotlighted this week when it was invoked here by David Patrick Hearne, 21, son of Irish ambassador John J. Hearne. A widow was struck and killed Wednesday night by a car driven by young Hearne. The law stepped into a corner—innocent—was called off—and the ambassador's son, a student at American university, went home to the embassy. Police say young Hearne has figured in three distinctly incidents in the last two and one-half years and was released in each case under immunity. The state department said Friday the Dublin government has offered to cooperate in working out some solution of the problems created by the envoy's son. The object of immunity—from the troubled days of rival and unscrupulous kings—was to protect an ambassador or emissary from arrest or harm as he acted on behalf of his country abroad. The immunity extends to members of an ambassador's family, encourage, household, employees and servants. Anyone who arrests them may himself be liable to prosecution, imprisonment and fine. The most part immunity is automatic. And it is considered that a foreign minister cannot waive it himself. Only governments can waive it, a state department spokesman said. In some minor cases diplomatic immunity has been waived, but diplomats consider any breach in the privilege may be a dangerous precedent.

Behind Scene Parley Noted For UN Post

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 14.—Delegates to the general assembly are working behind the scenes seeking a face-saving compromise to break the log jam over a disputed security council seat. But the Soviet Union is playing stubborn.

The assembly has failed after an unprecedented fight through 37 ballots to decide between communist Poland and U. S.-backed Turkey. The 62-nation body will resume balloting Tuesday after a two-week breather, but there appeared little hope of a breakthrough by either side.

Faced with the bleak prospect of having to stay in session until the election is decided, delegates are beginning to talk about a possible compromise.

The plans put forward range from a scheme to split the two-year council term between the two contestants to an involved deal that would give Turkey the seat in return for Western assurance of the presidency of the 1960 general assembly.

The United States, apparently feeling the heat, has been particularly active in promoting the candidature of Communist Czechoslovakia.

Little more each time the assembly goes through another round of futile balloting, it is expected to reach some kind of agreement that would end the deadlock and set the face for Washington and the Russians who don't want to sacrifice the only change they ever had to place a redistinctive communist 11-nation security council, are reportedly cool to any deal.

Discoverer of Plutonium Is Given Award

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, who discovered plutonium, is the winner of the $50,000 Enrico Fermi award for 1959.

The atomic energy commission which administers the award, said yesterday that Seaborg was recommended by the AEC's general advisory committee and the choice was approved by President Eisenhower.

Seaborg, 47, is chancellor of the University of California. The citation said the scientist was honored "for discoveries of plutonium and several additional elements and for leadership in the development of nuclear chemistry and atomic energy."

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 14.—Gen. Constantine Douvas, chief of the national defense staff, and Lt. Gen. Dimitrios Sefas, chief of the army general staff, resigned today.

Last Civil War Vet Requests Coffee, People on 117th Fete

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 14.—William Williams received his 117th birthday by demanding coffee, scrambled eggs, and lots of people and music.

"When are all the people coming and where's the music?" the last surviving veteran of the Civil War asked today when a daughter, Mrs. Willie Mae Bowles, wished him a happy birthday at 3 a. m.

"Otherwise, he didn't have anything to say about his birthday," Mrs. Bowles said. "He promptly called for coffee. A half-hour later he got the scrambled eggs."

There was another cup of coffee at midnighnoon. By that time several congratulatory telegrams arrived.

Among the well-wishers was Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who also was celebrating a birthday.

Before serving the eye-opening cup of coffee, Mrs. Bowles turned on a radio full volume so her father could hear early morning hill-billy tunes.

"She told him the 'lots of people' he had asked for would arrive Sunday, when the old soldier's family is planning the biggest reunion ever."

'Nikita' Speaks For Journalists

Slayton arrived Friday with his wife and four other astronauts and their wives had arrived earlier.

"It is not likely that we will soon experience any important gains in deposits," Schooner said, "and consequently productive in a way which we will appropriately make to our deserving customers will largely have to be made out of regular loan collections."

No Gains Listed In Bank Deposits

BOISE, Nov. 14.—Idaho banks shouldn't expect any gains in deposits soon, the president of Idaho First National bank says.

John A. Schooner advised those attending a meeting "Thursday to avoid long-term loans for the time being because they would tie up the bank's resources."

Sentenced

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 14.—A 19-year-old Polish gunman who shot up a police station in Wlodek, West style a month ago and killed a policeman, was sentenced today to 10 years in prison.

Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI. Schools are demanding more and more from the pupils. It is not just the amount of work that is being assigned, but the quality of the work as well. Parents are often faced with the challenge of helping their children keep up with the demands of school. One way to do this is by providing a quiet place for study and by encouraging your child to take responsibility for their own learning. It is also important to communicate with the teacher and to be involved in your child's education.

Church Urges Restricting of Dam Projects

LEWISTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—An even stronger version of a bill restricting dam construction on the Salmon river was suggested here by its author.

Sen. Frank Church, D., Idaho, said in a hearing of a U.S. senate subcommittee on interstate and foreign commerce convinced him that the bill "should be further strengthened to prevent construction of any dams on the Salmon river until such time as the fish passage problem is solved."

Church's measure, as discussed at the hearing, would prevent construction of dams higher than those already built in the Middle Snake river "in order to establish the salmon as a fish sanctuary."

Other proposals presented included a live-fish moratorium on dam construction in the Middle Snake area and a measure requiring approval of the U. S. fish and wildlife service for any Middle Snake dams.

In addition to commenting on his reaction to the hearing, Church Friday sampled the fishing on the Snake river and came home happy, with two big steelhead.

The youthful senator said he took him 20 minutes to land the bigger one, an 11-pound beauty. The other weighed six pounds.

Funeral Held In Place of Birthday Fete

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 14 (AP)—Members of the 1400 block club had planned to have a birthday party for Edith Brice Griffin.

Miss Griffin, 92 on Nov. 4, became ill about three weeks ago and was taken to the hospital. Thursday, she died.

Miss Griffin, a descendant of one of the founding families of Annapolis, was white. The other members of the club, though in all, are Negroes. All the other residents of the block are Negroes.

Miss Griffin was born in the house on McCulloch street. It was a fashionable street in those days.

When Negroes began moving to the neighborhood about 40 years ago, most of the white persons who lived there moved out.

Miss Griffin stayed — because she wanted to.

"I have nothing against colored persons," she often told her neighbors.

But this doesn't fully explain the special affection her neighbors had for her. What does, perhaps, is the phrase "good citizen," which many residents of the block called her.

What they meant is that Miss Griffin was an active supporter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Baltimore Urban Renewal and Housing agency, and the Northwest Residential Improvement Association in their attempts to guard the area from overcrowding, an excess of taverns, and other objectionable conditions.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—Allen W. Dulles, central intelligence agency director, places his hope for future good relations with the Soviet Union on evolution in Soviet society rather than a revolution there.

He told a senate-house subcommittee yesterday he believes any evolution into a state of society more acceptable to the West will take decades.

Dulles said his agency, which keeps a close eye on all world developments affecting American security, had noticed some loosening of government power in the Soviet Union since Stalin's death.

"The Soviet rulers have had to take increasing account of the needs of the people, he said, although to massive changes have taken place.

Dulles testified yesterday for the first time in public before a congressional committee. On previous occasions he had testified at closed-door sessions.

He issued a stern warning to the American people to take seriously what they have been hearing about Soviet economic growth.

He said the CIA believes, just as many economists have warned, that Soviet industrial output as well as that country's over-all production have been increasing twice as fast as the U. S. output in the past decade.

Nine tables were in play at the Saturday meeting of the Jerome Duplicate Bridge club.

Aide Predicts 'Evolution' in Red Relations

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—Allen W. Dulles, central intelligence agency director, places his hope for future good relations with the Soviet Union on evolution in Soviet society rather than a revolution there.

He told a senate-house subcommittee yesterday he believes any evolution into a state of society more acceptable to the West will take decades.

Dulles said his agency, which keeps a close eye on all world developments affecting American security, had noticed some loosening of government power in the Soviet Union since Stalin's death.

"The Soviet rulers have had to take increasing account of the needs of the people, he said, although to massive changes have taken place.

Dulles testified yesterday for the first time in public before a congressional committee. On previous occasions he had testified at closed-door sessions.

He issued a stern warning to the American people to take seriously what they have been hearing about Soviet economic growth.

He said the CIA believes, just as many economists have warned, that Soviet industrial output as well as that country's over-all production have been increasing twice as fast as the U. S. output in the past decade.

Railroad Officials Probing Why Heavy Train Ran Away

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Nov. 14 (AP)—Railroad officials tried to find out today exactly what made a 120-ton locomotive run loose through the night for 23 miles.

The unattended diesel was caught by another locomotive that faced ahead and maneuvered itself into a coupling with the runaway, at 50 miles an hour.

The locomotive, left unattended, slipped out of the Jersey-Central railroad yards late Thursday night. The throbbing giant built up brakeknock speed as it hurtled along the rails, which were cleared by frantic dispatchers plotting the runaway's progress.

The situation had awful possibilities, said Engineer Chester Gudmundson, 68, the man who finally caught it.

"I've never had an experience like that before, and I hope to God I never will again," said Fireman Harold Johns, 45, who helped him.

The railroad line called for an immediate investigation. A spokesman said testimony taken Friday was under study.

One train crew apparently walked away from No. 1706, a drill locomotive, before another crew reported. The dispatcher's office discovered the error, but it was too late. No. 1706 was on the road.

Johns, who went back to the halted runaway at Sayreville, said he didn't know whether he would find a dead engineer slumped to the floor or a fallen piece of equipment pinning the throttle.

He found nothing but an empty cab, filled with the odor of burning rubber from the hot handbrake, and an open throttle. He shut off the throttle.

FIRE AT QUEENY
TAIPEI, Formosa, Nov. 14 (AP)—The Chinese communists fired 23 shells at the Queeny-islands Friday night, then lapsed today into their usual even-numbered day silence.

"I've never had an experience like that before, and I hope to God I never will again," said Fireman Harold Johns, 45, who helped him.

Approximately $185 was made for the PTA. A complete report will be given later.

The men, under direction of Donald Koford, cooked and served the ham dinner. A band of the boys, doing in comical stunts and telling jokes, and under the direction of Koford, provided the entertainment.

The regular PTA meeting will be held Monday evening, Nov. 23, because of Thanksgiving day.

Funeral Held In Place of Birthday Fete

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 14 (AP)—Members of the 1400 block club had planned to have a birthday party for Edith Brice Griffin.

Miss Griffin, 92 on Nov. 4, became ill about three weeks ago and was taken to the hospital. Thursday, she died.

Miss Griffin, a descendant of one of the founding families of Annapolis, was white. The other members of the club, though in all, are Negroes. All the other residents of the block are Negroes.

Miss Griffin was born in the house on McCulloch street. It was a fashionable street in those days.

When Negroes began moving to the neighborhood about 40 years ago, most of the white persons who lived there moved out.

Miss Griffin stayed — because she wanted to.

"I have nothing against colored persons," she often told her neighbors.

But this doesn't fully explain the special affection her neighbors had for her. What does, perhaps, is the phrase "good citizen," which many residents of the block called her.

What they meant is that Miss Griffin was an active supporter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Baltimore Urban Renewal and Housing agency, and the Northwest Residential Improvement Association in their attempts to guard the area from overcrowding, an excess of taverns, and other objectionable conditions.

Church Urges Restricting of Dam Projects

LEWISTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—An even stronger version of a bill restricting dam construction on the Salmon river was suggested here by its author.

Sen. Frank Church, D., Idaho, said in a hearing of a U.S. senate subcommittee on interstate and foreign commerce convinced him that the bill "should be further strengthened to prevent construction of any dams on the Salmon river until such time as the fish passage problem is solved."

Church's measure, as discussed at the hearing, would prevent construction of dams higher than those already built in the Middle Snake river "in order to establish the salmon as a fish sanctuary."

Other proposals presented included a live-fish moratorium on dam construction in the Middle Snake area and a measure requiring approval of the U. S. fish and wildlife service for any Middle Snake dams.

In addition to commenting on his reaction to the hearing, Church Friday sampled the fishing on the Snake river and came home happy, with two big steelhead.

The youthful senator said he took him 20 minutes to land the bigger one, an 11-pound beauty. The other weighed six pounds.

Improper Wrapping Can Result in Mess for Parcels

W. W. Franz, Twin Falls postmaster, holds a good example of a kind of mess that can be generated in the mails if the package is wrapped properly. The box he holds is supposed to be black, but liquid is oozing through the wrapping. The jumble of goods in front of him has spilled out of a box that was wrapped improperly. This happens all the time, but the Christmas season is the worst time for such violations. Franz says if packages are wrapped properly, the mail will move faster. (Staff photo-entourage)

Father's Actions Show Value of Artificial Respiration Methods

The quick action of a Burley father, Charles Meyer, saved the life of a 2-year-old son on Nov. 8. The boy, Charles, Jr., had fallen into a partially filled cesspool. Meyer saved the life of the boy by using traditional and mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration.

Edward Stocking, first aid and water safety field representative for the American Red Cross, spent a few days in Twin Falls teaching local citizens the principles of first aid. Stocking notes the mouth-to-mouth or mouth-to-nose method of artificial respiration is becoming more popular and is a highly efficient method of reviving a person.

The American Red Cross now considers this method one of the most practical methods of artificial respiration for a victim of any age who has stopped breathing. Whatever the cause of cessation of breathing, some form of artificial respiration should start immediately. One of the advantages of the mouth-to-mouth method is that no special skills are really needed.

According to a Red Cross supplement on artificial respiration, any procedure that will obtain and maintain an open air passageway from the lungs to the mouth and provide for an alternate increase and decrease in the size of the chest, internally or externally, will move air in and out of a non-breathing person.

The mouth-to-mouth or mouth-to-nose technique has the advantage of providing pressure to inflate the victim's lungs immediately. It also enables the rescuer to obtain more accurate information on the volume, pressure and timing of efforts needed to inflate the victim's lungs than are afforded by other methods.

When a person is unconscious and not breathing, the base of the tongue tends to press against and block the upper air passageway. Procedures describe how a person can carry out emergency mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration and possibly save a life.

According to the Red Cross, the rescuer should first inspect the victim to see if there is any foreign matter in his mouth. If there should be, wiped out quickly with the fingers or a cloth wrapper.

Bill Bergadine, first aid chairman of the Twin Falls chapter of the American Red Cross, points out some of the basic preparations for getting a victim ready for mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration. The "victim" is his daughter, Bonnie, a fourth grade student at Harrison school. The mouth-to-mouth method of artificial respiration has saved many lives in the past few years and is becoming one of the more accepted methods. Bergadine shows here how the victim should be placed on her back with her shoulder blades on a pad for elevation; the head tipped back; and the jaw thrust forward. (Staff photo-entourage)

Postal Employees' Nerves Are Not Helped by Patrons at Christmas

The life of a postal employee can be a little more stressful during the holiday season. Some of the antics practiced by persons mailing packages bear a few earmarks of a campaign to frustrate postal employees.

The glut of letters and packages that floods the postoffice is enough to test the patience of a modern-day job. Each year many miscalculated and ill-wrapped letters, Christmas cards and packages are either referred for mailing in Twin Falls or arrive here in partial state of being, mostly because of haste and neglect on the part of the sender.

Saddle Is Reminder of Ranching

Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Morrell pose in the backyard of their new Twin Falls home with their dog, Wendy. Recently the Morrells owned and operated the Circle Bar ranch near Hammett. They sold the ranch and went into semi-retirement in Twin Falls. The ranch is one of the oldest ranches in western Idaho. The saddle belongs to Mrs. Morrell, an avid horsewoman. She says they had a few legends about retiring, and adds she certainly doesn't intend to give up riding. (Staff photo-entourage)

Circle Bar, One of Area's Pioneer Ranches, Is Sold

The Circle Bar ranch, one of the named Stevenson, who got his first water rights for the ranch and succeeded in enlarging it. Some of the first hay in this area was grown on the Circle Bar ranch during the summer of the 19th century insurrection. The ranch was sold by I. W. Morrell, a couple that have been prominent in ranching for many years. They recently moved to Twin Falls and Circle Bar is now managed by Domer Agricultural services. The four-bedroom house is constructed of native stone, with walls about three feet thick. There is an outer and inner layer of rock, with a filling of mud, deer hair, horse hair and straw. He notes that even in the coldest winters and hottest summers the house is well protected by the 19th century insulation. The second owner of the ranch was J. J. McElionis, who added more land to the ranch. He owned the ranch for about 25 years. Then it was bought by J. E. Summers and Dr. Ralph Falk and Harry Falk in 1916. T.F. Elks Lodge Sponsors Dance for Area Students

Something new has been added to the Twin Falls Elks lodge youth activities program. On Friday, from 9:30 to 11:30 p.m. the Elks lodge will sponsor a free dance at the lodge for all high school students in the lodge's jurisdiction. This is the first time the lodge has sponsored such a dance and the purpose is to offer a social program for high school students. Domer W. Berisch, secretary, says the lodge is always interested in youth of the community and at Castelford, Hagerman, Ruhl, Filer and Twin Falls. Since this is the first time the dance has been held, Berisch doesn't know how many students will attend. He adds the ballroom floor at the lodge will accommodate 125 to 150 couples. "The dance will be a little different than some high school dances. Only high school boys and their dates will be admitted. Boys must be male or suitable age cost attire. Girls in 1950's style dresses. It won't be a bluejeans and slacks event. When the couples are admitted to the building, their hands will be stamped. They are free to leave at anytime, but if they leave the building, they will not be readmitted. In addition to the dance, there will be a buffet luncheon and soft drinks. Several local businesses have taken a direct hand in sponsoring the dance and the buffet luncheon, including the Independent Ice Company, Great Circle Bottling Company, Shelby's Market, Drive-Way Market, Jerome's Grocery, operator, and the Twin Falls general banking company. The dance and buffet luncheon will be held in the newly reconstructed home and ballroom lodge building. # Life in MAGIC VALLEY

R. V. Walker, marshall of HANSEN, and his family, had a pleasant supper last week without having to hunt or fire a shot. It was almost as easy as looking at a picture of the Walker family living along near the edge of Hansen, turning from the Crook creek road into Hansen on Overland avenue, when he saw a "rodent" pheasant in a pasture.

He stopped his pickup truck to get the pheasant. He was the first one in the area striking the electric power line. It fell to the ground. Walker was obliged to stop with his truck at all, just a mark where the wire cut across the line.

Much better than biting down on buckshot, Walker says.

"I haven't any idea how many dresses I have made since that time in 1920, but for the past several years, it has averaged three a week." Mrs. Anna Dunn, RUF, FERT, business manager, is speaking of wedding gowns she makes as a sideline to her dress shop.

She came to Rupert in 1920 and was associated for several years with Mrs. W. F. (Ma) Wamsley in a tailor shop. She worked for herself in 1924, she opened a dress shop and has operated it since.

Mrs. Dunn is a native of Idaho, coming from so far away as Texas, Arizona and California. The girls attend their own schools. Mrs. Dunn makes what she calls a "skelton" which she sends to the girls for a fitting, then completes the dress.

Buying most of her materials and using only a basic pattern, Mrs. Dunn designs the dresses to suit the taste and wishes of each individual. Her fashions feature hand applique of lace, modicisms and good, and many other details of hand work, including handmade caps and veils.

When necessary, she spends many hours from early in the morning until late in the evening to complete a dress in time for the big event in some girl's life.

Mrs. Dunn was born and grew up in Sterling, Scotland, where she was apprenticed to the tailor-granddaughter, Renelle, also Portland, in addition to her busy life as a shopkeeper and seamstress.

In the Rupert Business and Professional Women's Club, is a member of the Rebekah lodge and the Hand Sewing club.

Each year the FLIER Junior high school has attempted to complete a worthy project under the leadership of the student council.

For the current year they will finance an educational trip to the University of Idaho for the junior class with the highest average grade for the year. Class extra aids are expected to bring up to the averages.

The high school extension was added to the high school building in 1923. That year the students covered the windows on the east side with 100 feet of 12-foot-wide wire netting to protect the glass from flying balls of mud from the football field adjoining the building.

For the protection of new grass they have fenced the lawn, setting the posts in concrete and painting them green.

The following term a fund was started for a grand piano for the school. The piano was purchased for $100 if any organization would match it. High school students voted to give $100. The piano is still in use at the school.

In two more years they draw plans for landscaping the circle drive in front of the building. Two small minor trees and several low-growing evergreens were planted in the space between the circle and the main building. Last year the seventh grade planned installation of floodlights for the school parking lot. The eighth and ninth grades installed neon lights and a sign over the Junior high school entrance.

Plans for other projects have been raised by the students. A large part comes from the sale of magazine subscriptions, carnivals, plays and other small activities raised the rest.

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

"What Makes the Difference?"

By WAYNE CUTSHALL
Pastor, First Avenue Church of God

Perhaps you have studied people and have wondered what makes the difference. I am aware that there are many inherent differences which we could not and would not wish to change.

Some live in the realm of sin, discouragement, defeat and despair. Everything seems to go wrong and is wrong to them, their wife, husband, the town, the school, taxes, politicians, wages, even the weather, and many feel the church isn't what it ought to be.

The smothering of joy, goodness, hope and faith will seem to never reach their path. Others live in the same circumstances surrounded with the same circumstances but their world is in a different realm.

Jesus sums up what makes the difference when he said, "The people which sit in darkness saw a great light and to them which sat in the region and shadow of death, light is sprung up. I am the Light of the world; he that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but life and even surrounding circumstances will turn to our good and even look different to us.

Two frogs one night fell in a mill of cream. One said, "What is the use, there is no hope, even the world has gone to the dogs" so he gave up and sank to the bottom. The other said, "What a wonderful world we live in! It is worth living," so he kept on kicking and the next morning he was sitting on top of a pat of butter just as happy as could be.

Paul tells us, "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature, but old things are passed away, and all things are become new." Paul really meant that God could make a new man out of the inside; thus making us new creatures. This new life will change the whole outlook.

Circle Bar Ranch Near Hammett, One Of This Area's Oldest, Has Been Sold

By CHARLES STAFFORD
former Ethyl Summers, lived on the ranch from 1910 to 1925, when the ranch was purchased by a corporation. She and Morrell were married in 1924.

At that time Morrell was working in the bank at Fairfield, for O. O. Hanny, Twin Falls, who was a banker. They were married in California, and he worked in a bank there until 1924. They spent some time on her father's farm in southeastern Oregon. Morrell says, "At that time I got the ranching fever. I used to read about it, the livestock and the outdoors."

Morrell decided to start ranching. They farmed in the Boise valley for a short time and then had a property in the old Circle Bar ranch. A few years before he had seen the ranch and decided he would like to own it.

In 1928 he bought the ranch, after he scurried about the countryside trying to raise enough money. Luck wasn't with him. The winter of 1928 was the worst they ever had on the ranch. It got down to 16 below zero and blew! Mrs. Morrell says, "They lost 10 head of hogs and 10 head of dairy calves. They had brought with them from the farm in the Boise valley. They simply froze in the extreme weather."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Morrell admit that first winter discouraged them. "We were about ready to throw in the towel," she says, "but there wasn't any question of stopping when we owed all that money."

"They had no beef cattle. The next spring they could afford to buy a few head of beef cattle. They increased the herd to a peak of 50 head of mixed Hereford and Angus cattle."

Morrell notes that when they took over the ranch it was all the ranch, but they always intended

Underground Coal Fires Now Causing Trouble, but Soon May Be Put to Use

By CHARLES STAFFORD
Associated Press Writer

Every now and again, the good earth gets a holler.

Careless man or errant nature touches a flame to a vein of coal or other volatile mineral. And it burns. And burns. And burns.

"They never will put it out," says Frank J. Powers in a dejected appraisal of an underground fire which has been burning in coal mines near Cumberland, Md., for 76 or 80 years.

Powers, director of the Maryland mine bureau, says the flames have eaten through six miles of the big vein of coal, destroying it and forcing the closing of another mine in the hills above.

"It is impossible to eliminate the fire, he says, but it runs into millions of tons of coal.

There are 21 underground fires in Pennsylvania alone, others in West Virginia, Ohio, Maryland, North Dakota, Idaho, and possibly in additional states. Most are coal fires, although Colorado has small fires burning in two limestone mines.

Joseph Kennedy, secretary of the Pennsylvania department of mines and mineral industries, estimates it would cost more than $2 million to put out the 21 fires in his state.

"Trying to extinguish this hellfire is a major business, but a necessary one."

The most common technique is to seal the mine with concrete or other material. The idea is to starve the flames by cutting off the oxygen supply. Another is to flood the fire area with water or oil. The third, and usually the most costly underground fire, is simply to dig it out.

The most costly underground fire of the moment has made Carbondale, Pa., old before its time. Many houses on the crowded West Side are built on a hillside that is marked and lined with cracks, the earth erupts gas and smoke.

The fire began 76 years ago in an abandoned surface mine pit which was being used as a garbage dump. Hot gases started a small blaze which spread into the old mine tunnel beneath the town.

Love states the navy is stressing the high school graduate and junior college programs whereby men may enlist and be guaranteed the chance to attend one of the navy's technical schools.

Peeled Poles Are Cut During Summer Months

These peeled poles are lying in an area of the Twin Falls district of the Sawtooth national forest. They were peeled during the summer months and left by a commercial post and pole company in Magic Valley because they were too dry. A permit from the U.S. Forest Service was required before these lodgepole pines were cut. (Staff photo-engraving)

Here is a young tree growing in a clear-cut area about 25 miles south of Hansen in the national forest. The area was covered with mature lodgepole pines. Ed Fournier, district forest ranger, says trees will grow as a result of the seed in the cones sprouting on bare soil that is exposed to sunlight. Without sunlight there is no natural seeding. (Staff photo-engraving)

Some Farmers Still Cut Own Trees to Use as Poles; Procedure Noted

Since pole-tie construction for livestock is used widely in Magic Valley, farmers and ranchers drive out to the national forests each year to get several loads of corral poles, posts, heavy timbers and tall straight poles.

Ed Fournier, ranger for the Twin Falls district of the Sawtooth national forest, says, "This year 40 farmers have cut 7,000 corral poles in pre-marked areas along the fourth fork of Rock creek."

The area has supplied Magic Valley farmers with posts and poles for more than 60 years and probably will continue to do so for many years more.

The cost to farmers for the 7,000 corral poles was approximately $700, according to Fournier, although the figure excludes labor time and equipment.

The trees are lodgepole pines, so named because in the old days they were used for their lodgepole knots. These tall, trees grow straight and slender in shaded groves, reaching high for sunlight.

A permit is necessary before any cutting is done, explains Fournier, and that a permit is actually needed to remove any material from the forest.

These permits are acquired from the applicant who will show the applicant where and which trees can be removed for use as poles. A minimum charge of $10.00 covers all permits for the three-use permit.

Under certain conditions that exclude some permits, dead material can be hauled away with this permit for use as firewood, or for any other purpose.

All other permits involve a charge. In the Twin Falls district four cents per tree is charged for a dead tree that has a diameter no larger than four inches; seven cents for a diameter of four to six inches; and ten cents for a diameter of six to eight inches. Larger trees carry a larger charge.

The diameter of the trees are measured at breast height, or about four and one-half feet above the ground. When they are cut, no more than 10 inches of stump can remain.

Part of the money received by the forest service goes into the slash disposal fund and part into the timber stand improvement program.

All trees are usually pre-marked, said Fournier, excepting perhaps some dead trees in an area. Just where green trees will be cut is determined by good forestry practices, the aim of which is to improve timber yields.

First, there are the young healthy trees marked in the fall and early 40 years old. Where stands are thick, the ranger will permit some to be cut in order to thin the stand. These trees are the ones used mostly for corral poles.

By thinning the stands, future yields in the area will be increased. This way a too-thick-planted field of trees will yield more after thinning.

At the same time healthy trees are thinned, diseased and damaged trees also are removed.

Secondly, there are areas which are marked in the fall and early spring for clear-cutting. In clear-cutting, entire areas are denuded. These trees are the mature stands, or even over-mature. Lodgepole pines are quite old when they are cut and are, in fact, old, and in this case, thinning

Production of Meat Will Go Up Next Year

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (UPI)—The agriculture department predicts that meat production will go up in 1960 to an all-time high of more than 28 billion pounds.

Production for this year is expected to total about 27,200,000,000 pounds.

There will be no new record next year in per capita supply, however. The population is bigger.

The food supply experts expect to give the average American about 161 pounds of meat during the year, six pounds less than the record year of 1956.

The department said the housewife also can expect lower meat prices. First on highest-cost cuts in the winter and spring, and then on lower-cost cuts in the hamburger next summer and fall.

Lower retail prices for practically all meats are forecast for the first half of 1960. The outlook for the last half of the year depends on the size of the spring crop.

Additionally, the department reported that net imports of meat will set a new record this year, 200 million pounds for the year.

Imports will account for more than 9 per cent of the nation's meat supply this year. Meat imports during 1960 are expected to grow heavily but not quite as fast as this year.

Total Investment For Price Props Above 9 Billions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (UPI)—The agriculture department says that total investment in price support programs rose to $9,077,212,000 last Sept. 30.

This includes more than $7,600,000 in surplus crop purchases by the government. The rest is accounted for by price support loans.

Additionally, the department said that total investment in price support programs rose to $9,077,212,000 last Sept. 30.

Total Assets of Farmers Raised

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (UPI)—The agriculture department says that total assets of farmers rose again this year, mostly because of rising land values, the agriculture department said today.

At mid-year, the value of farm real estate was six per cent higher than it was one year earlier, the department said.

U. S. Imports of Meats Protested

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (UPI)—Rep. Lawrence Brock, D., Nebraska protests to agriculture secretary Earl T. Benson against the high level of meat imports this year.

In a telegram to Benson, Brock urged government action to protect American farmers.

Opposition Organized to Stock Trail Plans From Magic Valley Into Nevada

Clatten, farmers and members of the Twin Falls chamber of commerce, have expressed their opposition to the proposed stock trail plan from Magic Valley into Nevada.

The plan, which would allow livestock to graze on public lands in Nevada, has been opposed by many Magic Valley farmers and ranchers.

The plan would allow livestock to graze on public lands in Nevada, which would be a significant loss of income for the Magic Valley area.

The plan would also allow livestock to graze on public lands in Nevada, which would be a significant loss of income for the Magic Valley area.

Price Is Higher On Alfalfa Seed

Idaho farmers received higher prices for alfalfa seed this year, according to figures released by the market news service of the department of agriculture.

Prices received Oct. 15, 1958, were $2.50 per hundredweight as compared to $2.38 for the same period this year. Prices received for red clover seed were down as compared to last year. The figures show $2.40 per hundredweight received last year as compared to $2.28 this October.

Milk cows sold for the same price, $25 per cow, according to the bureau's statistics.

Pesticide Banned

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (UPI)—The food and drug administration has issued an order which practically eliminates the use of a common food preservative called hexachlorocyclopentadiene.

The agency said recent tests showed the chemical forms on treated with it.

Cold Wind, Hay Price Cause General Apathy for Holstein Dispersal Sales

Cold winds and the prevailing high price for hay were contributing factors to general apathy at the farm dispersal sale last week of about 200 registered Holsteins by O. W. Warner, Twin Falls, a long-time dairyman.

Nevertheless, the sale came to life whenever Spero Bavels and James Farmington, Utah, saw an animal they wanted for their herd. These Utah buyers own a string of 250 registered Holsteins and are reported to have won several national awards last year at various show circuits.

Their bid stood for a young cow with only two lactations behind her, a full-blooded Holstein out of the Blue Eye, and then $170 for her 3-month-old calf, with a world of breeding behind her.

Spero Bavels and sons also paid $400 for a 4-year-old cow from a famous sire, and $10,000 of milk and a sire that has been classified as excellent and was the grand champion bull at Utah and other shows.

Another bid stood $500 for a spring heifer out of Rainbow Bold E, an A-B proved sire, which has been from the Blue Eye and has a dispersal sale was a 4-year-old cow, Little Spic's Regain, that sold for $130,000, large, white, full-bodied cow is out of Garrison Madcap Rainer, a gold medal bull and has two other prime bulls in his glorious background. She has about 200 points of outfeed in 228 days of this second lactation, and has the size and capacity to produce a mature cow.

Other spring heifers sold up to $425, with the general price for the other cows going from $225 to $400.

Other young calves from a few months old to yearlings sold from $80 to $250.

In another year, or perhaps at another time of this year, the prices for Holsteins will probably be higher for these registered animals. Buyers in the crowd also included many from eastern states as well as from Utah and local areas.

Auctioneer was Col. E. O. Warner and the sales were offered by R. E. Evers of the registered Holstein association.

Egg Production Drop Reported

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (UPI)—Egg production has dropped faster than government experts expected.

The agriculture department had been predicting that production through the end of 1959 would continue above 1958 levels.

A report shows, however, that production during October came to 118,000,000 eggs, down one per cent from the same month in 1958. The drop apparently was the result of low egg prices through much of this year, the department said.

NEW OUT DEVELOPED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (UPI)—Scientists working for the agriculture department and the California experiment station have developed a new variety of oats. The new plant is red and white, and is resistant to lodging and shattering. It is called "rust" and is adaptable for pasture and hay production.

Prepares for Artificial Respiration

In this picture Bergadine shows the approximate area a rescuer's mouth should cover when giving artificial respiration to an infant or small child. The mouth-to-mouth method is particularly good for small children because it is possible to insure smaller individuals when applying the more conventional methods of artificial respiration. On a small child or infant, both the nose and mouth is covered by the rescuer's mouth, on an adult just the mouth or nose is covered.

Saving Life of Son Shows Value for Technique of Artificial Respiration

(From Page 3)
The victim on his back with a support under the shoulder blades so the chest is elevated, tilt the head back so the chin is pointing up and pull or push the chin into a jutting-out position.
These maneuvers should relieve obstruction of the airway by moving the base of the tongue away from the back of the throat.
The rescuer should then open the mouth wide and place it tightly over the victim's mouth. At the same time pinch the victim's nose to prevent air from escaping.
The first blowing efforts will determine whether or not obstruction exists in the victim's mouth or throat.
The rescuer should then turn his head to the side and listen to the return rush of air that indicates air is being exchanged. The blowing effort should then be repeated.
On an adult victim, the rescuer should pinch rigorously at the rate of 12 breaths per minute.
For a child, take relatively shallow breaths appropriate for the child's size, at the rate of about 20 per minute. Children breathe faster because of their size and physical structure.
If the rescuer finds that he is not getting an air exchange, he should recheck the victim's head and air position. If there is still no air exchange, the victim should be turned on his side and struck several times between the shoulder blades. This may dislodge foreign matter.
The rescuer should again sweep his fingers through the victim's mouth to remove foreign matter. Persons who don't wish to come

Tearing Your Hair? Consistently High Blood Pressure Is Big Problem

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
(Written for NEA Service)
A person is said to have high blood pressure, or hypertension, when the blood presses against the arteries—more than normally.
However, it is not really easy to say what "normal" means because it is higher in some persons than in others without apparently doing any harm. It also has a tendency to go up slightly with age anyway, so this can be considered a "normal" development.
In fact, many people with blood pressures considerably higher than normal live in apparently excellent health about as long as others whose blood pressures are more nearly average.
But consistently high blood pressure is a real problem and cannot be ignored. It is a danger because it may result from several different conditions, some of which can be effectively treated and some not.
In most, however, the exact cause is not known and the condition is labeled "essential hypertension," which merely means that the doctors do not yet know what causes it.
Among the newer developments in the treatment of high blood

Caribou Spareribs, Buffalo Soup Featured on Odd Menu

BY FRANK LEACH
WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (UPI)—Invitations to the 18th anniversary wild game luncheon of the Antelope association didn't specify whether it was ante or post-luncheon planning they were planning to do. Either way, I took along a peanut butter sandwich in case I got stuck.
One look at the menu and I knew I had done the wild thing. A suggested appetizer was boiled antelope tongue with ragweed greens on the side. For balance, poison ivy with goldenrod also was featured.
In the nick of time though, as I started for my emergency ration, they said these and similar entries were listed only for laughs. On the real menu was plain old everyday American fare like arc-bow caribou spareribs and buffalo soup.
After these appetizers came the main dish which was camp style buffalo-meat, cooked for five hours over an oak and hickory fire.
The Antelopes were opening their annual fall series of gustatory bouts at the restaurant in the National zoo.
That's where the group got its start one November day in 1944 when a group of hunters, stirring from bear den to elephant house.
Dr. William Mann, then zoo director, was shaving his toes in front of the fire. A fellow from the fish and wildlife service, no doubt an Oklahoma originally, nostalgically said, "Just the kind of day to eat buffalo hands."
"You get the buffalo," said Gordon Leach, then and now boss of the restaurant. "I'll handle the rest."
"Not out of my zoo you don't get it," Dr. Mann is said to have cried in anger. "And I've already got the herd culled."
The following Dec. 10 a truck from somewhere backed up at the restaurant door. "Where do you want this buffalo pot?" the driver demanded.

Two Octogenarian Twin Falls Pioneers Walked Lively in Veterans Day Parade

Two octogenarians, both Twin Falls pioneers, marched briefly in the Veterans day parade Wednesday. The men were Bert Bowie, 88, and Peter (Petie) Pearson, 80. Pearson carried the flag at the head of the parade. He is a veteran of the Spanish-American war and Bowie is a veteran of World War I. Both men came to Twin Falls when it was just a dusty frontier town.
Bowie came here in 1908. He ran the barber shop in the Ferring hotel for more than 15 years. Later he worked as an automobile salesman until he retired six years ago. He first worked at the Union Motor company and later at the Younger Motor company.
Bowie says he didn't enter the Spanish-American war because his brother enlisted and someone was needed at home to care for the family but he enlisted in the marines during World War I. He was a printer-mechanic when he spent most of his time drilling. He says the marina emphasized drilling and he admits that it might have had something to do with his being able to march in the recent parade.
Pearson came to Twin Falls in 1912. He spent most of his life farming in this area. He owned a farm about four miles southwest of Twin Falls. He farmed until 15 years ago and at that time he went into semi-retirement, spending quite a bit of time in the real estate business.
Pearson developed six Twin Falls subdivisions. He began buying and selling real estate in the late 1920's and 1930's. Pearson bought and subdivided the land that eventually became the Pearson, Pearson number two, Unity, Philford, Ideal and Freestone subdivisions. Most of the subdivisions were divided into acre and one-half acre lots. All the subdivisions are west of the subdivision.
Pearson is a former department commander of the Spanish-American War Veterans. He enlisted for the Spanish-American war at Ft.

Idaho Rodeo Producer to Provide Some of World's Best Livestock for Rodeo's Top Event

Earl Hutchison, Gannett, rodeo producer, walks through a pasture and scatters grain to some of his stock. These animals look rather gentle here, a seldom seen aspect of their character. Usually they are seen under different circumstances—in a rodeo ring, bucking, kicking and trying to unseat a rodeo contestant. Hutchison has some of the best rodeo stock in the nation. Twelve of his animals, nine horses and three bulls, recently were selected for the National Finals Rodeo to be held after Christmas at Dallas. This rodeo is to be the rodeo sport what the world's best is to baseball.

Stock From Hutchison's Gannett Ranch To Be Used At National Rodeo Finals

Rodeo stock owned by Earl Hutchison, Gannett, was recently chosen to fill out the prime herd of stock that will be used at the upcoming national finals rodeo at Dallas, Tex., Dec. 23 through the 30.

The stock was picked by the cowboys and rodeo producers. The cowboys had a six-man committee and the rodeo producer, a three-man committee. The two groups picked the best stock in the nation.

Quality listed. The bucking stock was picked for its honesty and bucking ability, Hutchison says.

It is quite an honor to have the stock chosen for the rodeo, for only the best stock in the nation is chosen. Hutchison has 10 horses and three bulls picked for the event.

Thirty-one producers had stock chosen for the rodeo. Only three other producers had more stock chosen than did Hutchison.

He says the riders will probably make some pretty reckless rides and possibly many of them will be unseated.

Reckless rides. Hutchison has been in the rodeo producing business for 22 years.

Plans Are Being Made for Winter Olympic Churches

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif., Nov. 14.—Two ultra-modern churches are going up here—to serve Olympic participants during the 1960 winter games and visitors to the valley afterward.

The Roman Catholic church is constructing a 37-seat, $125,000 "Queen of the Snows" church. The Northern California Congregational conference is putting up a $140,000 United Church of Squaw Valley, which will seat 150.

The design typical for snow country. The Protestant church is an unusual three-dimensional appearance. A 60-foot spire-topped aluminum cross sets it off.

He's got to talk the fair's language, says Dr. William David Pratt of San Francisco, superintendent of the Northern California Congregational conference.

The language problem hasn't been overlooked. Dr. Pratt says efforts now are being made to conduct services.

During the games, Roman Catholic masses will be celebrated hourly from 6 a.m. until noon on Sunday and there will be a daily weekday mass. There also will be four masses each at Truckee, Tahoe City and Kings Beach, all within 20 miles of Squaw Valley, on the two Sundays during the games.

Elks in T. F. Will Sponsor Teens Dance

North and south winners were Mrs. W. H. Barnard, first and Mrs. W. H. Barnard, first and Mrs. W. H. Barnard, first.

Seven couples caparousing the dance are Mr. and Mrs. John Leitch, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Threlkeld, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Tippler, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lull, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Blenkie, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Murphy and Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Basista.

Anyone still interested in attending the bridge classes at 8 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursdays may phone Hutchinson for further information.

Plum Sherbet Is Called Palatable

Bertsch says the idea for the sherbet was brought to him last summer by John Leitch, chairman of the youth activities committee, and Leo Haxley, chairman of the music committee.

The Joe Downard band will play for the dance. Downard is a former Bull resident who now lives in Sun Valley. His band is popular with teen-age groups.

Bertsch is waiting for replies from the different schools so he can present a dance for junior high students.

Early Day Resident's Painting Given To T.F. Library by Tennessee Relative

The Twin Falls municipal library is the new owner of an oil painting done by an early day resident of Twin Falls, the late Lauretta Bondage, who lived here when she was a high school student.

She lived here from about 1910 to 1914. Although she left Twin Falls in her junior year, she was a member of the Twin Falls high school graduating class of 1910, according to Mrs. Jack D. Gibson, library director.

Mrs. Bondage was a prolific painter and was particularly well known for her oil. The painting the library will put on exhibition is an oil painting of an old log cabin, presumably in some nearby community.

Mrs. Arthur DeVolder displays a new painting recently donated to the library by Mrs. Lucille B. Jensen, Jackson, Tenn. The painting, when she was a high school student, she lived here from about 1910 to 1914 and was a member of the class that graduated in 1910. Miss Sondag died at an early age, just when she was beginning to achieve some acclaim. (Staff photo-entour)

Deer Season Extension Goes Directly Back to Disastrous Boise Range Fire

Boise, Nov. 14—One aspect of extending the Boise range deer season to Dec. 1, was announced today by the Idaho Department of Fish and Game. The extension is a result of the fact that the Boise range deer population is estimated to be about 500,000, the highest since the fire in 1950.

here's all you have to do:

How would you like to win a big, tender, tasty turkey absolutely FREE for your Thanksgiving dinner? It's easy — just clip the Free Turkey Coupons you will find in the ads of these cooperating merchants scattered throughout today's paper, fill them out, and deposit each (or a facsimile) at the respective stores named on each entry blank at your convenience any time before 4:00 p.m. Wednesday, November 18. It is not necessary to make a purchase. Drawings will be held in each store at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday. You do not have to be present to win, and the winners will be notified, but winner's names will also be posted on the "turkey box" in each store immediately after the drawing for your convenience, so that you can pick up your turkey Wednesday evening, and we know you will want to join the happy throngs and enter into the spirit of the occasion.
