Five Pass One
pany has cleaned approximately 150 miles of canal, resulting in a total of 1,000 yards, hauled an additional total of 3,000 cubic yards of rock rip-rap and 900 cubic yards of dirt.

Repair and replacement of the 12 foot radial gates is progressing steadily. Work also was continued on the concrete footer and walls of the new canal.

During October and November—since this program was started in 1955 the company has placed 1,000 cubic material and about 250 cubic yards of concrete floor, he reported.

Small structures replaced included 20 steel wells and 47 concrete checks. Other construction work includes bank leveling with the help of the bulldozer, working with the new hydraulic ditcher.

Wilcomb reported no serious damage or injuries in the three breaks in the larger laterals the past season. Two occurred on the large lateral south of Hazelton on Oct. 1 and the other, southwest of Jerome, on Nov. 1.

"Chemical washing—Wilcomb said—is proving very successful. He also noted that the company's efforts of controlling noxious weeds—that of previous seasons, Wilcomb said, were effective.

The company did a better job of controlling noxious weeds than in previous years. Wilcomb said.

Wilcomb said—in spite of the fact that the company is not made by manufacturers, the 2-1/2-ton truck sprayer is the best around. Spraying from an economic standpoint has been good. Spraying year after year has also reduced the annual weed growth considerably and permanent grassed areas are now being established.

Wilcomb reported operation and maintenance costs have increased an average of 23 per cent during the past year, and a 12 to 15 per cent increase in assessment. Part of this has been offset by eliminating eight ditchlers since 1949, cutting down on labor costs and combining chain and chemical spraying.

Other money saving steps were undertaken by the company for maintenance and repair work, converting from wood to steel and concrete structures, prefabricating the concrete structures and using a team of assessments in short term treasury notes at 3 per cent interest until the money is needed later.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the North Side Pumping Company will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 22, at the North Side Canal Company, 10 a.m., St. Paul. One director from district one will be elected. The term of Ralph Balch, Baseline, expires.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—The basic policy and philosophy of the administration and the Republican party in the immediate future will be to substitute tolerance and understanding among warring elements in the country for the divisive effects that result from federal favoritism and domination. It will be the GOP's strategy in the presidential and congressional elections.

Besides striking this note in his messages to congress, President Eisenhower has also said that he would like to have a "Bible Talk" read twice.

"Boy thrown off school bus in dead of winter." Reason: Skunk in the furnace room.

Now comes the election from the same town where it was designed as punishment for a skunk being tossed into someone's furnace-room, the person figuring on the punishment having had no misdeeds.

It is noticeable, however, that few of the opposition's leaders on capital hill entered any strenuous objections to this middle-of-the-road stance.

PRESIDENT RECEIVES PUBLIC PRESSURE BEING FROM "WALL STREET JOURNAL."

President Eisenhower believes firmly that public opinion prefers relief from "wrangling" and new reforms at Washington. He feels that it is good politics, as well as a contributing factor, of the opposition's leaders on capital hill entered any strenuous objections to this middle-of-the-road stance.

Though much of the complaint has to do with the specified of program and policy, the President is also widely assailed for alleged failing to show leadership, for delegating too much responsibility and authority for not exercising the inherent powers of his office.

To weigh all these charges properly is really the task of the historians, for mountain of evidence must be considered and not all of it is available for study now. And into the balance must go all the evidence on the other side.

Yet, whatever the reactions toward these aspects of the President's White House career, there's probably wide acknowledgement that he operates at least from a high level and does not run his government with the notion of what his duty includes, but very little with the proposition that he performs it faithfully as he sees it.

After his 1955 heart attack, he made plain to the voters that if they chose him again he'd have to spend considerable time away from his desk to let his recuperative powers assert themselves.

This he has done. But he has also applied himself most diligently when on the job. And his recent 22,000-mile trip abroad demonstrated his willingness to take certain risks with his health in the interest of the cause of peace, which seems so large in his mind.

Mr. Eisenhower also has exhibited physical resilience. How many men who had suffered a heart attack, a mild stroke and a severe attack of ulcers would find themselves able to do the work of a president? He has now confounded the doom-sayers who saw his second-term election as a virtual death sentence.

Nor will many question that, whatever the detailed features of his administration, President Eisenhower is one of the most good-will ambassadors for—and as earnestly as he knows how—the welfare and security of the nearly 180 million people who have been entrusted to his stewardship.

The historians will tell us how well or how badly he performed as president. We know today, without waiting for their verdict, how sincerely he tried—according to his own best lights.

GHOSTS

The echoing waves of apparent anti-Semitic occurring around the world are being discounted by most thoughtful observers.

The power of suggestion upon people is great. The anti-Semitic incidents in Germany totally divorced from racial anti-Semitic items have seemed a chance to stir trouble.

The situation in Germany, however, cannot be thus dismissed. The brutal anti-Semitism of the Nazi era is still fresh in many minds in Europe and elsewhere. The fear must inevitably be aroused that this is the real thing again.

Neo-Nazi elements have always been present in post-war Germany. Generally they have been too weak to do much. It is to be assumed that they bear responsibility for the anti-Jewish outrages now taking place there; this must be put down as the first time control has failed.

We cannot doubt the good faith of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer when he gravely deprecates these incidents and takes action to stamp them out. No one can know better than he what harm can be done to the image of a postwar Germany to let it be known that its place in the society of democratic nations.

In the minds of the easily fearful, even the smallest anti-Semitic incidents stir the embers of the past. All the horrors of Nazism are called up. Men quietly ask themselves: "Is it to happen all over again?"

Fortunately, the German incidents are still minor and scattered, embarrassing as they may be for the Bonn government and the West. The German leadership has ample opportunity to find and deal with the perpetrators of these acts.

Adenauer and his associates deserve the West's full support in this effort. This is no time to desert the healthy and still overwhelmingly dominant anti-Nazi elements in Germany. Reform is not made lasting by seizing upon the first evident flaws and saying: "You see? They'll never change."

This is not a newdark chapter in Germany's history. But it is blackink spattered across the page of history. The hope of binding a resurrected Germany tightly to the free family of nations must hope these apertures can be quickly erased—and their recurrence prevented.

Your chances for safety are better in an auto that won't start than in one that won't stop at the proper time.

You usually think of the right thing to say in an argument just after you have forgotten to say it.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

THE A.P. REPORTED IN FRANCE that a German plane, known as the "Skunk," which bravely crashed the wrongful censorship to fish home the news of the German surrender, has been flying ever since. He had no such fighters on his side.

As I entered his office, Pegler snarled that my place was a safe. I said, "Take that up with your imagination work on it, Pegler." Pegler, the "Skunk," read thick.

"Boy thrown off school bus in the dead of winter." Reason: Skunk in the furnace room.

Now comes the election from the same town where it was designed as punishment for a skunk being tossed into someone's furnace-room, the person figuring on the punishment having had no misdeeds.

EISENHOWER WILL ACT ONLY TO UPHOLD LAW IT IS true that such efforts have failed to bring about legislative restrictions on their respective rights.

Just as he thinks that a series of summit conferences may resolve American-Russian differences, so does he believe that employment of the "method of trial-and-error" industrial procedure will result, in his opinion, from periodic get-togethers under government inspiration and auspices. The federal officials, of course, would represent the public interest.

Just as he thinks that a series of summit conferences may resolve American-Russian differences, so does he believe that employment of the "method of trial-and-error" industrial procedure will result, in his opinion, from periodic get-togethers under government inspiration and auspices. The federal officials, of course, would represent the public interest.

After his 1955 heart attack, he made plain to the voters that if they chose him again he'd have to spend considerable time away from his desk to let his recuperative powers assert themselves.

This he has done. But he has also applied himself most diligently when on the job. And his recent 22,000-mile trip abroad demonstrated his willingness to take certain risks with his health in the interest of the cause of peace, which seems so large in his mind.

Mr. Eisenhower also has exhibited physical resilience. How many men who had suffered a heart attack, a mild stroke and a severe attack of ulcers would find themselves able to do the work of a president?

He has now confounded the doom-sayers who saw his second-term election as a virtual death sentence.

Nor will many question that, whatever the detailed features of his administration, President Eisenhower is one of the most good-will ambassadors for—and as earnestly as he knows how—the welfare and security of the nearly 180 million people who have been entrusted to his stewardship.

The historians will tell us how well or how badly he performed as president. We know today, without waiting for their verdict, how sincerely he tried—according to his own best lights.

EISENHOWER WILL ACT ONLY TO UPHOLD LAW IT IS true that such efforts have failed to bring about legislative restrictions on their respective rights.

Budgets Will Be Aired at Boise Confab

BOISE, Jan. 15 (UPI)—Presentation and analysis of local government budgets will be aired here Feb. 1 at the annual session of the Associated State of Local Government, announced yesterday.

President W. L. Hendrix, Boise, said the "budget school" will be one of the features of that meeting. It also will include a forum on growth and security, organized to plan a nation-wide campaign in 1960 to combat inflation and prepare the nation's government and sound money.

"This campaign has been endorsed and encouraged by President Eisenhower and the out-going administration in Washington on Nov. 2 which was attended by representatives of 48 national organizations," Hendrix said.

Industry Unit Meeting Held In Twin Falls

Howard Beaton, Boise, executive president of the Idaho-Bureau of Economic Development, was one of the speakers at a meeting Thursday at the Rogeron hotel with members of various industry committees from Magic Valley Chambers of Commerce.

Chamber representatives from魔 Valley areas were present at the meeting.

Taste told the group that he makes periodic trips to Los Angeles, Calif., to keep in touch with the large number of industries seeking a central location sites in the Idaho-Eastern Oregon area.

The speaker pointed out to the group that when an industry inquires about a location, it should be furnished with a complete picture of the area such as labor and housing availability, taxes, building sites and buildings available, recreational activities available both within the community and surrounding areas, parks and schools situated there, climate and general availability in the area.

Besides the group that the entire more industry in the Magic Valley is "to talk" to industrial leaders themselves. "You have to get out and meet them," he said.

Harold Howe, chairman of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce industrial committee, spoke briefly on the chamber's efforts to help the trip to California with Gov. Robert E. Smylie. He told the group that the reception they received made many valuable contacts with industrial leaders there.

Truman "Mickey" Burley, vice president of the Magic Valley Industrial Council, was chairman of the meeting. Arrangements were made by William Orange, Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce manager.

Record Field of Skiers Entered in Sun Valley Open

SUN VALLEY, Jan. 15.—With skiing excellent at this Idaho mountain town, and the Sun Valley Open with the largest field ever entered scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, the coming week-end promises to be the biggest of the current season. More than 90 skiers are expected to take off in the downhill of the annual race starting at the round-house and racing down Olympic run, which is in excellent condition, according to some 40 skiers who have arrived and are being housed.

Another 50 racers have made known their intention to arrive tomorrow in a few hours, so the event could easily end up with 140 skiers Saturday. The names of the Canadian Olympic team have not been received but the Sun Valley Open has announced that 15 men and women on the team will compete.

According to pre-race sentiment, the race may develop into a dual between these skiers and the University of Denver team, which is comprised of Alan Miller, John McNamee, Jim Schaefer, Jerry Bjorkland. That latter skier showed particular promise in slalom when he raced at Sun Valley last year.

Two other Canadians are John Kallow and Odvar Bjorkland, both from Norway, who will represent the University of Denver in events at Sun Valley. Should Norway decide to enter a team in the Olympics.

Former University of Missouri Grid Star Is Prize Rookie of Cardinals

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—The majors-in-three years—was the optimistic timetable set by the St. Louis Cardinals when they signed him off a college campus in the summer of 1957.

The former University of Missouri football star was right on schedule. If he doesn't make it this year, he certainly will in '60.

The 21-year-old outfielder played at Rochester last year, batted .200

in triple A competition, and was named the league's top rookie of the year. Not bad for a youngster only in his second year in organized baseball.

The Cardinals' first year was a first string halfback on the football team as well as a baseball standout. The Cards knew he was good but were surprised when he got to

A Houston, where he drove in 104 runs and hit 18 home runs in a .261 batting average in his freshman year.

The Cardinals' doubt will take a long look at Tim McCarver, their newly signed 19-year-old, who had 20 games experience as a pro, including eight with the Cards at the end of the 1959 season.
