"Let's talk dry cleaning"

By Bob Tucker

Stains are a lot more dangerous than skeletons in a closet. Leaving a stain in clothing shortens the life of the fabric and makes cleaning more difficult. Using a hot iron on stained clothing—as is often done with the idea of getting "one more wear" before cleaning—is not a good idea. The heat may "set" certain stains and cause deterioration of the fabric.

Best treatment for stains of any kind is prompt cleaning. Use a "home treatment" but cleaning by experts who know just what methods to use for particular stains. It will make your cleaner's job easier and help him do a better job if you can tell him the nature of particular stains when you bring your clothes in. Remember... The sooner soil and stains can be removed from a fabric, the less chance they have to attack the material and cause weakening of the fibers.

Whether your clothing has the normal accumulation of grime and soil or special stains, you can be sure of expert cleaning care when you bring it to Bob Tucker's. Call 825 West 1st or call for prompt pickup and delivery!

POT SHOTS (Dear Pot Shots: There was a wreck out by my place yesterday and the teen-ager who was driving one of the cars came in to use my phone.)

WASHINGTON (By Peter Edson) present social problems. They do not want aid from their former colonial protectors, Britain and France.

Benefit Set at Wendell for Girl Who Was Badly Burned (WENDELL, Jan. 16—Keri Minnig, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Minnig, Logan, Utah, granddaughter of Mrs. Ann Aquar again to host.)

SUCH A MODEST REQUEST! Idaho's new department of commerce and development could get to be quite an organization if a movement under way at Pocatello is any indication.

FACTS ABOUT A STEEL-PRICE BOOM! The other facts for talk of a "fix" stems from the belief that steel prices will not be raised until after the election.

DEAR POT SHOTS: We have five puppies to give away free. They will be small and are 12 weeks old.

WASHINGTON (By Peter Edson) Many countries requesting and needing such help would probably scream "robbery" and "unethical" at any such suggestion.

Richfield Notes School Projects (RICHFIELD, Jan. 16—School improvement projects were being made at the Richfield school building at the January meeting by Mrs. William Jones.)

As the old saying goes, you can't blame anyone for trying. But it would seem presumptuous for Pocatello to assume that the state department of commerce and development should supply that community with a full time staff member to promote its local interests.

THOSE ACCURATE FRINGS OF ATLAS MISSILES—Those "frings" consist of 10 accurate fringes of the Atlas missile mean that we are catching up with Russia in long-range shooting.

WASHINGTON (By Peter Edson) Where countries like Korea and Panama have special defense requirements they cannot possibly pay for out of their own resources.

Director of Idaho Farm Unit Praises Editorial on Hopes

Editor, Times-News: The editorial you wrote and ran in the Times-News last week on the philosophy of government as adopted at the American Farm Bureau national convention in Chicago, made everyone around here feel mighty good. It was a fine boost for our program and what you had to say was right all the way through.

The Idaho Farm Bureau is the only nationwide organization carrying on an effective campaign against the general economic depression in this country, and the organization has no more to gain or lose than any other citizen or group.

To have the support of such editors and newspapers gives us confidence and by working together we may get something in this fight against socialism and communism. If it is not won before, it is lost for good. If we can't get some headway in our next election, it is doubtful that we can ever.

But the Bureau is going to town this year in an all-out effort to help get some right people in high office who believe in the constitution as it is about through with its old policy of neutrality. While we have not seen our opponents and the opponents of state's rights going around the state, we are getting several other kind elected.

Writer Agrees Some Men Are Worth More; Lashes Inflation

Editor, Times-News: J. W. Wright's "Wage price spiral" is pointing out the evils of the day for a number of years with him, some men are worth more on the job.

But 27 years ago a "party" of politicians look completely out of the economy of America. There are lots of movements and some today that are not any good. Some of the dirtiest undermining ethics that are being used in politics are in all phases of the economy, not just on paper. I'm not going to set the blame on any particular group.

I'm aware that this will not serve me but interests here due to pressure groups with which I am thoroughly acquainted, I am in four years of more state in my family. Will furnish evidence and facts on request.

To stop this inflation we are going to have to start with the wholesaler and merchants associations and set up price controls. Since we can see they are not in favor of price control, then let the government call an emergency price control. There goes my name on the list. No man can live on $400 a month that would be a good buy for two weeks of groceries in these big fat supermarkets or maybe some groceries don't cost much as mine.

Ask any modern preacher and he will tell you that people don't want you to tell them about their sin. Likewise, this will not be resolved with constructive suggestion.

Another point from which to start is politics as was pointed out.

But few of us know what that is from the results of our vote. The vote don't seem to choose what is best for America.

Let me give a description of inflation as it is today. Inflation is a state of not having the means to transact—a medium of exchange.

You pay close attention now and see who is to blame for inflation. Vote is a small word. We voted for a group of politicians that started to legislate our money—mark that "our money" except the national debt and only spend $43.78 for lilyhill insurance on a car. It's an excellent fact because God is not in it.

Do I need to tell you that the $43.78 would have bought my two oil boys overhauls and all their books, etc.?

If you can't see the handwriting on the wall, then you had better see a minister. There was a time when America loved God and the constitution of America was upheld, thanks to the good old friends of the home of the free.

There is a danger of getting something for America if it takes voting to do it.

Paper's Help in Christmas Flood Of Mail Is Hailed

Editor, Times-News: Now that the Christmas rush is over and "the offices" have closed, I want to take this opportunity and express on behalf of myself and employees of this office, thanks for the wonderful cooperation received from your paper and members of your staff during the 1959 season.

It was the publicity on the "Mail" for Christmas programs that reminded our patrons to mail early. This was accomplished and for that reason this office has all mail delivered by afternoon Dec. 24.

Again I want to express my thanks and appreciation for a job well done.

He's Impressed by U.S. Debt, But He Figures It Differently

Editor, Times-News: I was deeply impressed by the lead editorial in last Sunday's issue, "Our Share of the Debt."

Senator Dworthak, Congressman Budge, the Times-News and several other persons have been working long and hard to reduce the national debt, but only seem to make it worse. I have wondered if they have the proper approach.

I don't know how he arrived but upon a better method of attack.

In the first place the senator (I understand it) was his figures are certainly by one every four seconds or something like that, but the debt is climbing, too, so I thought it would be fair to put a static figure even though the whole process is dynamic. The number of counties is 3,668. That gives each county a population of 60,272.

Or if I use a similar method on the state, Idaho will come up with a population of 3,720,000 people, enough to throw some weight around. Do you see how much more effective my method is?

But numbers are not the only criterion. Some people say that property and wealth are more affected by debt than people. I doubt that, though. We can use the average method and see if there are mudholes in the road to understanding.

Stock Market Declines for Current Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (UPI)—Stocks during the past week ignored record industrial production and a sharp rise in employment, and were pointing down on a deficit in the balance of payments abroad.

They declined on light money news of further-increased money rates, including a rise in the discount rate, a justice department appeal to the supreme court of the Du Pont case to force it to divest itself of its 53 million shares of General Motors; decision to sell nickel from the stockpile, and deflationary effects of a budget in balance.

Du Pont, suffering from the appeal, fell more than five points on the 2 1/2. International Nickel fell three on the two plus a loss of one point in General Electric. Production of industrial output rose 1.5 percent but fell lower on the electric.

So far in 1960 industrial shares have fallen in eight of the 10 sessions. The stock market has lost 100 points and the two gains to 1020 points, leaving the average down 60 points from its high 700.

Rails and utilities had six losses and four gains each.

Monday the market ran into heavy selling that knocked industrial down 2.7 points, their widest loss since the market's start. These stocks declined 0.4 points on Sept. 8. Thursday's loss amounted to 6.7 points on Wednesday to $1.20. The market rallied 4.09 points on Thursday and dipped 0.85 for the group on Friday.

A letter was read to the group Wednesday night by the group's public library, pointing out that a junior college was constructed in Twin Falls. It would be a burden on the public library. DeVolder stated he didn't think the library should handle the project, but it was with the present information.

Chairman Zetson related on the meeting Wednesday at the city hall to discuss the possibilities of the college.

As taxpayers, seemed vitally interested in how it will affect them in the future. He said it was felt that before much was actually done on the project, the elementary, junior high school and high school in Twin Falls, Idaho, should be interested in the project, but they would need the necessary support before considering it.

The board decided to turn the matter over to the Chamber of Commerce education committee for further study.

Chairman Zetson, Chamber of Commerce secretary and manager, read a letter telling of the Chamber of Commerce. The letter might be printed and sent to about 60 persons in Twin Falls to check out the project. It is an important project for the board to act on during 1950.

Chairman Zetson's development committee meeting held Thursday evening at the Rosegarden hotel. The committee voted to contribute $100 from the general fund to the association.

It was announced that Jack O'Brien will discuss the sugar beet project with the Agricultural division of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night at the Rosegarden hotel Roundup room.

Members were asked to attend the winter meeting at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 4 at the National hotel dining room in Burley. Dr. Robert E. Smith will be principal speaker. Also announced was an association of taxpayers of the Rosegarden hotel, which will meet at 10 a.m. Monday at the Rosegarden hotel. Members of the board of directors will attend an annual meeting of the Buhl Chamber of Commerce Monday.

Ray O'Connell, financial director, gave the financial report comparing the 1948 and 1949 fiscal years.

The board members voted to accept the proposal of the First Federal Savings and Loan association.

Knausa told officers he sat in the lounge after getting off work and when he started to leave he dropped the sack containing the gun. ### Members of 3 Separate Units Rehearse for New Production

While the leading players in the county fair following them "Annie Get Your Gun" rather than the junior high school each week to create the roles of Annie Oakley, Frank Butler, Buffalo Bill, Sitting Bull, and others, the men and women who will produce the background rhythm and color hold their own practice sessions.

Members of the three separate groups, chorus, ballet and orchestra currently hold separate rehearsals in the city hall.

Members on the stage of the junior high school audition to coordinate their work into one big production.

The Dilettante group of Magic Valley will produce the Irving Berlin musical comedy on March 14 and 15 at the Piller high school auditorium. The Dilettante group next year staged "Carousel" for six days to capacity crowds.

The vocal chorus for "Annie Get Your Gun" is being directed by Robert D. Wilson, who says the music is not so difficult as that in "Carousel."

Wilson, who has about 20 persons in his chorus, says he is in need of several good men, both tenor and bass. Anyone interested should come to rehearsal at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the junior high school.

Several members of the chorus appear in the show as extras, including Melvin Schubert, former state chess champion, and other parts, but most of them sing in the group. The chorus has two major numbers, "There's No Business Like Show Business" and "You Got the Sun in the Morning."

The vocal chorus and Wednesday evenings at the junior high school are 28 high school girls who are members of the ballet for the musical. Mrs. Joseph O. Hackney, choreographer, is creating the two big production numbers for her ensemble, as well as several solo and duet numbers.

Many girls came to auditions to try for dancing roles which would limit the selection to treatment and cost. Mrs. Hackney explained. She says the ballet group numbers come from various dancing schools in the city.

The dancing highlight of "Annie Get Your Gun" will be the musical production of Annie Oakley in the Rosegarden hotel Roundup room.

The Rosegarden hotel Roundup room will be the site of the final contest Sunday.

Merchants at Burley Urge Stamp Store

BURLEY, Jan. 18.—Twelve Burley Gold Strike merchants attending a special meeting held at the Chamber of Commerce office Friday voted to discontinue the stamp office unless redemption alternatives were brought here.

The chamber has corresponded with the Post Office for two years trying to get a redemption store here. The company operating the stamp office is a suggestion was made to contact the Boise office and a telephone call was made to James Berlin, Boise, concerning this matter. Berlin stated that he was under the impression that plans were under way for a center in Burley.

Max Olsen, general manager of the stamp company, called the chamber office Friday morning and stated that the stamp office was operating on a catalog type of store for Burley when the business declines. Three catalog stores will provide a special program which will provide satisfactory in the East.

A sample of each piece of merchandise is displayed in the store and can be ordered and received within a week.

Olsen stated that a Gold Strike representative would meet with local businessmen within the next 10 days to help solve the redemption problem.

A chamber member said the move to the Boise office, made in Burley was not one to drive stamps out of the community, but to make redemption facilities available to residents in Cassia and Blaine counties.

Writer Surmises What Went On at Party for Steel Crowd

By SAUL PETT
NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (AP)—According to the papers, the official strike crowd met again the other night at the home of Richard M. Nixon in Washington. The stories said that the top negotiators of both management and the union gathered at the Nixon place to celebrate the settlement they had worked out after many nights of negotiation. Beyond listing the guests, the stories didn't say what happened at the reunion dinner except that the late bitterness was dissolved in expansive good fellowship. But reports said nothing. So I've been trying to imagine that evening. As nearly as I can visualize, the Nixon served drinks in the living room to their guests, who included Secretary of Labor James W. Mitchell, Roger M. Blough, chairman of the board of U. S. Steel Corporation, R. Gooden Cooper, chief industry negotiator; David J. McDonald, president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America; Arthur J. Goldberg, union general counsel. The cocktail hour went off nicely although the maid once gave McDonald's bourbon to Blough but though passed over the mistake lighted. There was another round and then they went in to dinner. The 150 or so guests started to line up on opposite sides of the table under one side manager argument on the other, but Pat Nixon insisted they mingle on both sides, and they did, and that was that.

Polio Card Event Slated for Jan. 27

RUPERT, Jan. 10 — The annual polio card party will be given by the Pioneer Grange Jan. 27 at the Grange hall. It was announced at the Wednesday night meeting of the group. Master Charley Easton conducted the business meeting Wednesday night and Mrs. George Sullivan, lecturer, was in charge of the program. Sullivan read a poem and Mrs. Russell Acock reported on The National Grange meeting at Long Beach, Calif. in November. A raffle of the 1959 women have played in the setting of the United States was given by Mrs. Sullivan. She told of the role in politics played by prominent women since the colonial days to the present and of the fight for suffrage culminated by legislation in 1920 granting women the vote.

Jerome Board Gets Tips for School Policy

JEROME, Jan. 10.—Recommendations from local education leaders for a "re-education" of the Jerome school board were presented to the board at a meeting held at the Jerome school building.

The five committee members, headed by Tom Peterson, Victor Camozzi, C. E. Harder, William M. Cramer and Bert Wright, presented a report of pressures which overemphasize the portion of curriculum which is expensive and a balanced program that would meet the needs of the community and the financial ability of the district.

All high school teachers should stress proper English usage, they note. World history was recommended as required as well as an elective at the ninth grade level.

Another recommendation was that one part of speech be required and that physical education be extended through grade 12.

The board agreed that the use of the slide rule be incorporated into all advanced mathematics courses and that a secondary remedial reading program be started under the supervision of staff can.

Elimination of adult education, closer supervision of high school curriculum and activation of a summer athletic program were other recommendations.

It was suggested a pre-school testing program be used to replace the age entrance requirements. A faculty adviser system be instituted in the 10th grade and the student council be utilizing more for discipline.

More vocational courses should be offered for students going to college and a coverage should be necessary for a student to represent his school interest in school activities, the committee suggest.

The board authorized the transportation service to be extended to the atomic energy reactor plant at Arco.

It was announced that Dr. George DeHoff, president of the Magic Valley Teachers' Association, was named as speaker for high school graduation. The Rev. Donald Ross will be the eulogist and speaker.

School principals were relieved by the board. The policy manual was completed and accepted.

Burley Cleric Talks of Reds At Club Meet

BURLEY, Jan. 10.—International communism will never rest until the whole world, including the United States, is under the hammer and sickle, stated the Rev. Edward E. Dixon, at the address of the members of the Burley Lions club Friday.

The Rev. Mr. Dixon outlined aims of communists and the methods employed to get children and young people to be their followers. He pointed out indoctrination is given nine to 12 hours in schools six and seven days a week with visual education of all kinds.

They work in small groups, personal interviews, infiltrating into other groups and areas trained in espionage, he said.

"What more could we do to prepare our young people to meet the challenge of communism?" he asked.

The pastor noted, "We must not be lulled into a false sense of security and know its nature and methods."

Personal questions were asked of the speaker concluding his talk of his personal experiences with communism in North China, Sumatra and Indonesia.

Announcement was made that the chapter night for the Lions and their wives will be held on Jan. 30 with Mrs. Bode as chairman of the event.

"The first issue for January and February carries an article, 'Too Close for Comfort,' by Arthur R. Porter, assistant director of the highway and traffic section of General Motors, which should be of interest and value to young people of the nation and adults alike," Hopper commissioner pointed out.

Arrangements have been completed by George Benney, director of the motor-vehicle bureau, to supply the publisher with names of all newly licensed young people in Idaho.

Challenge of Reds Means "Sacrifices"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Harvard university's center for international affairs cautioned today that the Soviet challenge will demand heavy free world sacrifices for years to come.

It advised against being lulled by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's exhibition of "greater sensitivity to popular pressures" at home and called his regime "a more formidable challenger than Stalinist Russia."

As far as the foreseeable future is concerned, the report prepared for the senate foreign relations committee concluded, it would be risky to base U. S. policy on the assumption that Soviet totalitarianism is in process of erosion.

Ben-J. Williams-Pulbright, D. Ark., the committee chairman, commended authors of the study for their emphasis on the point that democracy will not survive unless it rests on the "bases of tyranny."

Pulbright said the study, together with others, will be the subject of hearings in which the committee will make its own recommendations for changes in policy.

It has been estimated there are approximately 80,000 people in the United States who have been cured of cancer.

Gooding Sets Forage Class

GOODING, Jan. 10.—A forage school to discuss production of the important forages of the Magic Valley was held at the Gooding Grange hall starting at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

The special school was held at the suggestion of the county agent's advisory council and according to county agent J. H. (Doc) Hill, will be of interest to all farmers in the county.

A team of University of Idaho agricultural specialists will furnish instruction, including Robert Higgins, Extension Specialist, county agent; C. O. Anderson, dairyman; and Charles Palmer, soil specialist.

Topics to be discussed will include recommended varieties of alfalfa, clover and other forage crops, soil varieties, pasture mixtures, seeding rates for forage crops, cultural practices, mowing and guages, seedbed preparation, irrigation, soil pH control and wire crops.

Harvesting of hay and silage, stage of maturity, methods of harvesting, and storing of hay and silage material will be discussed, as well as feeding and importance of quality forage. The speaker will present comparisons at different stages of maturity and total TDN production per acre of various crops.

Also included in the discussion will be the use and value of various fertilizers, cover and green manure crops, value of barnyard manure and slurry manure.

At the conclusion of the program there will be a question session. Graded stacks of hay and silage will be exhibited for inspection.

Hill states that with higher feed cost and the emphasis on silage this year it will be well for all farmers to attend the forage school and find out how they can produce the most feed per acre on their farms.

Lunch at noon will be served by women of the Gooding Grange.

TF BEATS BORAH, NAMPA TO COP SOUTH IDAHO LOOP LEAD

Bruins Run League Record To 3-0 With Ballantyne And Strong Setting Pace

The Twin Falls Bruins, lightly regarded when the conference season opened, stood all alone on top of the Southern Idaho loop standings today after whipping Borah and Nampa over the week-end. The Bruins, paced by the long and short of it, 6-foot, 8-inch, Tom Ballantyne, and 6-foot, 3 1/2-inch, Bart Strong, dumped the previously unbeaten Borah Lions 61-48 Friday night and followed up with a 47-38 conquest of the Nampa Bruins Saturday. Twin Falls remains the only unbeaten team left in the league. Twin Falls has won the loop crown only once, that in 1951.

Sports FROM ALL ANGLES

By Larry Hovey Experience is more of a determining factor in "high school" wrestling than in any other sport, maintains Minico State wrestling coach S. S. (Speed) Rasmussen. He led the Spartans from an off-beat position last year to the district poor this season. Rasmussen and his assistants, who have been making it up without giving too much ground, the powers of the state, in their second year of wrestling. Gooding State, which promoted its program for its blind students, has been in the loop longer but the state school cannot be considered an all-around threat for district honors for lack of manpower. Twin Falls and Buhl have been wrestling at Minico Monday night. Rush is emphatic in his assertion that experience is more in wrestling than basketball or football. "An experienced boy is bound to turn the wrong way and he's planned immediately," Rush says. "The coaching staff at Minico Falls and Buhl have been beaten by the more experienced clubs. We are about the same thing last year, when we first started," he said. "We were on the receiving end. A year will make a lot of difference. Both clubs will probably be pretty good next year. We are getting a lot of sophomores and juniors this year."

TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, SUNDAY, JANUARY 17, 1960

One of First Big Parties Held by Elks Lodge Was in 1914

This is an early Blabac photograph of one of the first big parties held at the Elks lodge in January, 1914, at Twin Falls. The lodge was then located on the third floor of the McCormick building. This was a "western party" complete with waltzes on the floor and those "women" aren't really women, they're Elks in disguise. This year the Elks lodge celebrates its 50th anniversary. Membership has grown from 40 members in 1910 to the present membership of 1,591. (Staff photo- engraving)

Local Elks Lodge, Now 50 Years Old, Has Increased in Membership From 40 to 1,591

Twin Falls Elks lodge 1183 celebrates its golden anniversary this year. From a charter membership in 1910 of about 40 men the lodge has grown to the present membership of 1,591.

According to Doner Bertsch, secretary, the Twin Falls lodge got its dispensation in January, 1910, and received its charter in July, 1910.

The lodge is planning an anniversary celebration to commemorate the founding of the lodge for Thursday, Feb. 11.

The special celebration will be held at 8 p.m. in the lodge basement. 186 oldtimer members in the lodge will be a cocktail. The cocktail hour will be followed by a fire dinner for exalted rulers, present officers, and members of the lodge, the meal trustees. An old timer member will be followed by the regular meeting of lodge meetings between 8 and 8:30 p.m. This will be the major celebration this year, but Bertsch says there may be an additional celebration later in the year.

Bertsch notes there are many men in the lodge who have been members of the order for many years. Out of the 186 oldtimers, the top 10 are: W. P. Dinley, who has been a member 60 years; A. B. Colwell, 58 years; B. O. Kester, 58 years; J. G. Thorpe, 57 years; A. H. Anderson, 54 years; W. J. McFarland, 53 years; J. C. Bradley, 50 years; James A. Gallier, 50 years; B. A. Olson, 50 years, and Ralph Pink, 50 years.

Gallier is the only living charter member of the lodge. Bertsch says Gallier, still a member of this lodge, but now living in Clarkston, Wash., will attend the special anniversary celebration.

The lodge was started by a group of men, former Elks, who had moved to Twin Falls shortly after the tract opened. The lodge was one of the first such organizations in Twin Falls.

The first lodge room was located upstairs over the space now occupied by Hudson's shoe store. In 1916 the lodge room was moved upstairs over the Idaho theater and in 1922 the present Elks building was constructed. Previously the lodge had incorporated itself and sold bonds to finance the building's construction. Now the second floor and the basement areas are used for lodge functions, but the main floor is rental property. Bertsch explains the building was planned so the main floor rental property would help maintain the lodge and pay for the building.

In addition to the lodge's social activities—there will be about 20 dances during the next year—there are other activities. The lodge sponsors Boy Scout troop 185, headed by...

Buses Assembled Here to Save Money, Meet Needs

Every so often a mechanic makes some clever changes in automobile chassis that show up the highly trained engineer at the factory drawing board. Such is the case of two brothers—Garth Kirkman, Elmer, and Richard Kirkman, Twin Falls, pugners who operate the buses that carry Elmer and Twin Falls school district children.

Their latest "creation" is the "baker" since 1955 and now have 25 buses under contract to the two school districts.

Since 1954 they have assembled seven school buses from parts they buy from various manufacturers, and the end result is a bus better adapted to their needs.

Most of the work has been done by the two brothers above, but recently they have recruited two new mechanics, Walter Schroeder, Twin Falls, who also doubles as a bus driver.

The men have made two basic changes in conventional buses that make the buses immeasurably easier to service and more adaptable to the dusty roads the buses sometimes encounter that makes the bus easier to service involves putting the engine on a sliding mount in the rear of the bus. When work is necessary to overhaul an engine a door is opened in the rear and the engine is rolled out and all the accessories can be cleared and taken from the bus in 30 minutes.

The entire unit slides out in a motor mount just like an oven rack is slid out of an oven. In order to free it these parts, only 30 bolts have to be loosened.

Device is Time-Saver

This design is basically simple and is a great time-saver compared to other designs. Garth Kirkman says it takes about four hours to remove an engine from a front drive bus and about three to four hours to remove an engine from a conventional, commercial rear drive bus.

It is a particularly valuable feature when three men maintain nearly 30 buses.

This is a particularly valuable feature when three men maintain nearly 30 buses.

The other feature grew out of the inferior service by a commercial rear engine bus. Before they started assembling their own buses, they bought a "commercial" rear engine bus. The air intake was on the side of the bus, about waist high to a man. This didn't work in Idaho, especially on dusty roads.

Dust sucked up by the wheels was sucked in through the side vent.

and promptly detailed on the engine, necessitating a weekly cleaning. This weekly cleaning was time-consuming and costly in man hours.

So they redesigned the bus and came up with a trouble-free design. The men relocated the air intake and placed it above the dust level on the left rear corner of the roof of the bus. This supplied more air. It was cleaner and provided a strong downdraft because of great amounts of air pulled in by the air scoop on the roof. This solved the problem of dirty air messing up the engine and the strong downdraft of air provided a constant blast down over the top of the engine, keeping dust out of the engine compartment.

The air is scooped in on the roof of the bus, rubs down a large flue in the left rear corner of the bus, is sucked through the radiator by the fan and then is routed down over the engine and out at the bottom of the bus.

This abated the dust problem. Previously they had to clean the engine about every 400 miles, now Garth Kirkman says "the 'Engines' the problem of dirty air messing up

They Head Four Chief Service Clubs in Twin Falls

These are the presidents of the four Twin Falls service clubs: Mack Doolan, president of the Exchange club; Joseph H. Lattimer, Elks club; Max Brown, Kiwanis club; and Warren Barry, Rotary club. Throughout the years these varied projects to help the community. (Staff photo- engraving)

Better Community Is General Goal Of 300 Men Belonging to 4 Clubs

About 300 citizens of Twin Falls meet weekly in four different groups to discuss certain aspects of the community and how the community can be bettered. These groups are the four main service clubs that have a strong national or international organization—Exchange club, Kiwanis club, Lions club and Rotary club.

Each year club members work at various community projects. They are in the news a lot but sometimes the public doesn't know the purpose and design of the clubs.

The Exchange club is the youngest of the service clubs, being formed in 1952. Robert Gillespie, past district governor of the club, traces the club's history back to 1888 when several businessmen in Toledo, O., met regularly and informally to exchange ideas on current business topics. This seemed like a good idea and the luncheon meetings became a tradition, leading to the formal founding of the club in 1911 in Toledo. Since that time clubs have been established throughout the United States.

The purpose of the club is education and "this is reflected in many of the annual projects. The club motto is "Unity for Service."

Currently the club has 52 members. Members are from every business and "professional" phase of life. Unlike other service clubs, the club doesn't limit membership to long-time members from each territory. Any man who is approved by the board of control and then approved by club members. Board of control members are Kenneth Simpkins, Edmund Walsh, Ivan Skinner, Meta Clarence E. McCoy and Norval Wildman.

The club meets each Tuesday noon at the American Legion hall. Gillespie says the meetings provide a chance for members to "exchange" ideas on how to better the community—just as the original club began in "the home."

Present officers of the club are Mack Dodson, president; Ralph Olmstead, vice president; Edwin Lloyd, secretary, and Delnoe Day, treasurer.

The club has several annual projects. One of the biggest is "Crime Prevention week" Feb. 7 to 14 this year. The object of the observance is to present information to the public on how to prevent crime in the community. The theme is "Crime prevention begins in the home."

Believing church activities can be a deterrent to crime, the club will start the week by writing every one to attend the church of his choice on Feb. 7. This will be followed by several major activities during the following week.

There will be open houses at the Twin Falls police station in cooperation with the school system.

Students will be shown how a police station operates. Also during the week members of the club will be available to speak to various groups, classes and clubs in the community concerning crime prevention.

Feb. 8 will be "Exchange Club day" and the club plans to bring a well-known law enforcement officer to speak to members, their wives and guests. The speaker has not been chosen. Throughout the week fact sheets about crime will be distributed to the community.

This begins the fourth year of the club's flag project. The club will buy flag poles, flag poles and attached flags. Each year members place and take down the flags in the downtown district of Twin Falls on seven national holidays.

This is a money-raising project. The money, $1 a year from each downtown merchant, is turned in to the Twin Falls fire department.

Rural Fire Protection Is Furnished by Volunteers

Nearly 50 volunteer firemen operating more than $200,000 worth of equipment provide rural fire protection throughout Magic Valley. The volunteer firemen are available to speak to various groups, classes and clubs in the community concerning crime prevention.

Falls, branch manager of Snake River Mutual Fire Insurance company, a company that writes a vast amount of rural fire insurance north of the river, explains there is a provision in the Idaho code whereby citizens of an area can set up a fire district.

First, county commissioners are petitioned by the citizens to hold an election. If a majority of the voters desire the fire district, the commissioners appoint three men to the fire protection district board. The three men are appointed for one, two and three years, providing that a new member will be elected each year.

Fire-fighting equipment is then purchased by the commissioners for the district from funds made available from taxes levied for that purpose. After the district is set up, fires are fought by volunteer crews, usually three or four men. Most of the equipment is kept in the cities in the district, either in their quarters or in a building in the district proper. Fire alarms are telephoned and then a crew in the community is blown, day or night, and the crew can be ready within a few minutes. According to Hamilton, most of the trucks are within 15 minutes of the boundary of the district.

There are 10 fire districts in counties other than Twin Falls. Gooding farm fire protection district, Wendell fire protection district, West End (Paul) fire protection district, Shoshone fire protection district, Ketchum fire protection district, Curry fire protection district, Arden fire protection district.

LIFE IN MAGIC VALLEY

Mrs. Bessie Callen, JEROME, received her three-gallon pin at the last Red Cross blood drawing. This is the last time she will be able to donate blood as she has reached the age of 70.

Mrs. Callen first donated blood in 1951, and has missed only one time since then. She donated regularly because she was president of St. Benedict's Hospital Guild and because she felt "blood is needed." Mrs. Callen is type A-negative, which is a rare type.

Now that Mrs. Callen can no longer act as a nurse aid for the bloodmobile, she realizes the difficulty of finding a replacement. Mrs. Callen is 70 years old and on March 22, 1954, she and her husband, Mr. R. H. Callen, sponsored the next two visits of the bloodmobile to their own home.

Mrs. Callen is still an active member of the Jerome Garden club and a charter member of the Jerome American Legion. She is also a member of the Christian Science church.

Her hobby is her flower gardens. Mrs. Callen has more than 150 varieties of flowers in her garden. She has a special place for her favorite and the now has more than 150 varieties of flowers in her garden.

Excess Pounds Reflected in Mirror Not Alluring, May Be Health Hazard

By OAYNE MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

You are overweight? You bulge? You are carrying extra weight more than 10 pounds above your desirable weight—your height—weight? You are carrying extra weight more than 10 pounds above your desirable weight—your height—weight?

Today, you are living in an age when diabetes, cardiovascular and other diseases associated with obesity are increasing. Excess pounds reflected in your mirror may be a health hazard.

Go whether your high urge is to lighten your life or to increase your weight, you can see what you must banish.

Scientists indicate that a large-scale health problem many outstanding scientists are studying is the cause, prevention and cure of obesity.

Food Goggles Listed
Now lists translate those objectives into market list terms. You must eat some food every day from each of these groupings of familiar foods.

Meat, poultry, fish, cheese, milk, eggs, and other animal products. These foods are rich in protein and are essential for health and to get full of life—three vital objectives for a healthy diet.

How many calories do you need? This is a decidedly personal question. It varies with age, sex, and activity level. A man who is tall and large-boned, you'll need more than a little neighbor with very delicate bones.

Of course, good nutrition and effective weight control require a balance of all these factors.

Dr. Charles Glen Kling, executive director of the Nutrition Foundation, says:

"The solution to overweight, now one of our major national health problems, lies in the control of our way of eating to modern life and what we have learned about it."

Drastic reductions in food, unless medically advised, or increase in physical activity, or both, are the only ways to reduce weight. But another aspect of the physical and emotional balance of the diet and your body is a substitute burden on the heart.

What Will You Gain?
So you want to lose a few pounds if you lose weight and sense of well-being? Or for a man to lose weight, his belt, if at the same time, with his free-hand he reaches out for drugs and diet pills?

What we have received from God, God also loves the world that he gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life. (John 3:16)

Fluoride Aids Children

Miss-Trouble-of-Teeth

BY HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.
Written for the Service for Fluoride

Fluoride is a relatively rare chemical element that is closely related to the common mineral of sea water and table salt. When the concentration of fluoride in drinking water is about two milligrams or 1/32 grain per gallon, it is considered to be a beneficial level.

Simple Feed Mill Mixes Concentrate, Grains

This is Lynn Hempleman's simple feed mill. He uses straw in his concentrate and has it ground in with his grains. The large barrel at the right contains molasses syrup. The smaller drum beneath is his inexpensive homemade mixer, an outfit that contains an auger and paddles that stir the grain, straw, molasses and supplements into a mixture. (Staff photo-entirely) because of higher costs, Lynn Hempleman wishes his 80-acre farm south of the sugar factory were twice as big, but a visit to his farm shows the small operator can afford to try out new ideas and make them work for him profitably.

He planned only 70 days of feed, but Hempleman feeds his steers a precise ration in order to push them up gaining better than 2.5 pounds a day. His ration consists of one pound of concentrated meal, 1.5 pounds of barley and milo in equal proportions, two pounds of molasses syrup and one and one-half pounds of finely ground straw mixed in for bulk.

Lays in 100 Head Cattle This fall he was lucky enough to lay into his all-concrete feedlot 100 head of heavy steers, averaging 800 to 900 pounds at the low November price of 21 cents a pound.

Green Alfalfa Is Fed He also feeds his cattle from four to five pounds of green alfalfa a day, which is all they will eat free-choice. Since Hempleman does not grow any alfalfa on his farm, he had to convince his banker that the high price of alfalfa this year would hardly affect his feed costs, so little being part of his fattening ration.

Experiment Feeds Feeding The way he gets them on full feed so quickly is the result of an experiment he made on some cattle a few years ago under almost identical circumstances. At that time he mixed some chopped straw in with the ground grain, thereby making a bulky, fluffy feed that didn't hurt the cattle. In a few days the cattle were eating 16 pounds of grain a day without harm.

He planned to continue this type of rotation on his farm as long as it continues to be productive, and he sees no indication that the soil is dropping off in fertility. Hempleman was graduated from the University of Idaho in the late 1920's where he majored in agriculture. He has a technician's understanding of the soil. He also worked in dairy husbandry and while he was studying the nutritional requirements of livestock as a junior, he devised a feed chart that received attention in several regional areas.

Hay Shredder Used by Hempleman

Hay shredder built by Lynn Hempleman is still used in three. The blades are placed in front of the roller cylinder, striking and cut into larger pieces than comes out of hay chopping machines. (Staff photo-entirely)

Motor Compartment of School Bus Redesigned by Pair

Garth Kirkman, left, Miller, points out how he and his brother have designed the motor compartment in the rear engine buses they assemble in their Fliter garage. The motor simply slides out of the back of the bus and then can be lifted free for overhauling. It takes about four hours to remove an engine from a conventional rear-engine bus, but their design has cut the time about 50 percent. At right is Walt Schroeder, who is putting some finishing touches on the motor mount. (Staff photo-entraping)

Kirkman Brothers Assemble Own Buses To Meet Special Needs and Save Money

(Continued From Page 11) buses they assemble would cost about $14,000. If bought commercially, he estimates they cost about $10,000, labor included. The result is a saving, a better bus for this area, and a more sturdy one. Garth Kirkman says they always use as heavy, or heavier, components than used in similar commercial buses. "We do this to avoid a chance of failure resulting from using too light materials. Of the seven buses they have assembled, five are rear-engine buses. Garth Kirkman explains that the rear engine drive is used because of the shorter wheelbase. They can build a rear engine drive bus with a 209-inch wheelbase that will accommodate 72 passengers. But a front engine bus with a wheelbase

50 Volunteers and $210,000 Worth of Equipment Give Rural Fire Protection

(Continued From Page 11) throughout the valley. They are paid a small hourly wage while actually fighting fires, but both men note the wage is simply a token payment and the men are individuals with a strong sense of community spirit. It costs about $10,000 to supply an area with proper fire fighting equipment. This includes a pump truck that carries its own water supply and can take water from other sources and all the other paraphernalia needed to fight fires. The units are expensive to maintain, costing an average of $3,300 to $5,500 per year to supply and maintain. Hamilton notes the expensive fire-fighting hose, pump park, and the firemen's clothing are expensive items and are often replaced. All equipment must meet specifications set up by the Idaho survey and rating bureau. Hamilton says that the average life of a fire engine is about 10 years. "The rural areas benefit from organized fire protection by superior fire fighting equipment in the area and from reduced insurance premiums," Hamilton notes that most any company will give reduced rates—10 to 15 per cent—on insurance premiums in an area that is protected adequately. The exact discount depends on the type of equipment owned by the district and the size of the district. First railroad passenger service in New England was operated between Boston and Newton, Mass., in 1825.

Story of Brink's Robbery, Largest in U.S. History, Recalled After 10 Years

(Editor's note—Exactly 10 years ago, a band of robbers staged the richest heist in U.S. history. It has been recalled in an anniversary review of the crime's history, violent aftermath.

BOSTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—Five men worked late into the night in the heavily barred second-floor offices of the big armored car garage on the street in Boston's North End. They were handling millions of dollars in cash and securities, re-rolling packaging fat bundles of bills and payroll in preparation for the most daring robbery in U.S. history. Brink's, Inc., to banks, investment houses and business offices.

Security in a safe-like room formed by a heavy wire screen and with six locked doors between them, and the street, the men had taken off their identities.

Suddenly there came a hoarse bark: "Open up!"

"It's a stickup—don't make trouble."

With pistols aimed through the wire partition stood a group of men, identically dressed in dark trousers, navy-type pea jackets, chauffeur-style caps and grotesque rubber Halloween masks.

It was exactly 7:10 p.m. One of the Brink's men started one of the doors in the case. The bandits quickly tied the workers, handcuffed them with adhesive tape over their mouths and forced them to lie face down on the floor.

"They didn't heavy" canvas bags and began stuffing them with bundles of cash and securities.

Twenty minutes later the building was quiet again—even quieter than before, with the only sounds the muffled men struggling to free themselves.

By 7:30 p.m. they succeeded and his alarm which started one of the biggest, longest and most costly manhunts in history.

The lock that winter night 10 years ago Jan. 17 was $1,218,211.20 in cash—the biggest cash haul in the history of U.S. crime. The loot included another $1,557,183.23 in checks, bonds and securities. Some of the latter were negotiable.

Fantastic as was the robbery, the full story of how it was planned and carried out was even more fabulous.

That story was told finally by one of the men who planned it and carried it out for there was no honor among these thieves.

Why did he tell?

Joseph J. (Boss) O'Keefe sang terms for his part first appyed him most of his share of the loot and then imported a hired gunman to silence him when he complained. The hired gun failed, although he came close. O'Keefe escaped a hail of machinegun slugs with only a wrist injury.

A witness stand in Suffolk superior court in 1956, O'Keefe told the gang, which numbered 11 men—most the loot for months. Finally they made the first move. The watchman's rounds had been timed, and when the gang was sure of a period when an outside door would not be tried, they picked the lock.

Now came the alibiest part of the plan. They took the outside door right out after door and had a key made—returning—the lock before it was missed. They did the same with the other doors. The building over a period of many months. That's how they were able to break in a moment.

After the robbery the gang drove the huge amount of loot to a safe. The money bags were unloaded quickly—simply heaved over a hedge and down the line being. The truck was dismantled and junked.

The gang found the loot too much to count the night they got it. And they were in a hurry. It wouldn't do for them to be caught before the time being.

Nearly all were questioned in succeeding months by police investigators.

Three years after the robbery all but one of the gang were called before a federal grand jury which conducted an investigation on the date of the expiration of the three-year—U.S. statute—of limitations.

The detectives were very close to the truth they could not, at that time, prove they were unable to obtain indictments.

Then O'Keefe got into a jam in Pennsylvania. Caught with a loaded pistol, he was sentenced to a 120-day term.

When O'Keefe got out and came home to demand his share of some of the undivided money, the abortive attempt was made on his life. O'Keefe went to jail again in Massachusetts on a gun charge in 1953, and after many months finally confessed the Brink's job.

On Jan. 12, 1956, the FBI rounded up eight of the men. Two others were arrested. The remaining eight were tried later that year. All eight were convicted and were sentenced to life terms in state prison. They still are appealing.

O'Keefe, who pleaded guilty to the robbery charges, still is in jail awaiting sentencing. That probably will be delayed as long as the convicted men have any chance to appeal.

The eight men going home are Henry Baker, 52, Natick; Adolph (Jazz) Maffie, 51, Quincy; Joseph P. McNeil, 51, Boston; James J. Costa, 44, Pembroke; Michael V. O'Keefe, 40, Milton; Anthony Finn, 31, Boston; Thomas P. Richardson, 51, Weymouth; and James I. Fagerty, 47, Boston.

John (Trigger) Burke, the New York gunman imported to silence O'Keefe, was arrested on a charge of possessing a machinegun the day after the failure of his attempt on O'Keefe's life.

What happened to the loot? The checks and securities simply disappeared, probably destroyed by the gang members.

Nearly all the cash was split among them—about $100,000 each. None of that ever was recovered.

1960 Budget For Lincoln Is Approved

SHOENONE, Jan. 16—The proposed budget for Lincoln county for 1960 was set at meetings of county commissioners this week but the figures have not been tabulated. The budget was approved by the county clerk.

A 1959 Dodge pickup truck was purchased on a bid of $1,800 from the county. The truck was purchased from the county assessor's office.

The county also purchased a 1959 Dodge pickup truck for $2,000 from Rawson's Chevrolet, Shoehone; $1,254.68 from Lee's; $1,195.75 from Martin Motor and $1,299.25 from Harburt's. All bids were based on a trade-in. The truck from Harburt's has been used by the assessor for past several years.

The truck was driven to the lot must be prepared by the truck before release to the press.

Registrars for the coming year were appointed. They include Mrs. Margaret Haddock, Shoehone; Mike Urriaga and Harry Edson, Shoehone; and Mrs. H. A. Sandy, North Shore. Mrs. Ida Lemmon, Richfield, and Mrs. Preston Page, Richfield, also were appointed.

Conservation Board Meets

SHOENONE, Jan. 16—Plans for the new year's work and meeting of the county conservation board were discussed at a meeting of the board of supervisors of the Wood River soil conservation district this week.

Jack Fry, executive secretary for the state soil conservation commission, attended. Annual reports and finances were discussed.

On application for later or later of the year, the board of supervisors of the Wood River soil conservation district has approved for E. G. Hilton, Burlington, who farms a tract of land about 20 miles southeast of District.

Hilton plans to raise certified Latax orchard grass seed. At present, there are not enough acreage producing certified seed of this variety, and it is hoped that other farmers will take an interest in seed increase planning, official state.

Latax orchard grass grown for seed has been known to produce from 225 to 500 pounds of seed per acre, depending upon the kind of care given the stand, and producers have indicated that certified seed with high germination has been bringing about $1 per pound.

First Idaho Town Indicated on Map of Early Trails, Routes

John E. Hayes, Twin Falls trail pioneer, points to Franklin, the first town in Idaho. The map was made by Hayes twenty years ago and is just one of many he has made through the years dealing with early trails and routes through south Idaho. Hayes has gone to a great deal of work to gather information for the map. He used old township maps to insure the greatest possible accuracy in locating old trails. He has used pioneer diaries to gather information about trails and historical sites. He says the map is a good way to fix the state's history in the mind. (Staff photo-engraving)

Pioneer Makes Map Showing Routes of Old Trails Through South Idaho Area

Any student of Idaho history who is a lover of good maps would enjoy inspecting some of the maps that John Hayes, Twin Falls pioneer, has made throughout the years. Hayes, a professional surveyor, made the maps at a steady pace. He is a devoted student of Idaho history and says the maps are a side-light on many years of study of the state's history. One of the biggest maps he has made is a detailed map of the early pioneer trails, roads and pony express routes of southern Idaho. The map shows the route of the Oregon trail, the California trail, the Hudson trail and various other trails that existed in the early days of Idaho. This particular map Hayes completed many years ago. He estimated that he has about $1200 worth of maps made and is planning to publish them in the near future. This doesn't include the many hours of historical research that Hayes has done in drawing an authentic map. Hayes, through these maps, has revealed the actual location of the various trails. Hayes says he has been able to determine the routes of many groups of pioneer residents of Idaho and has located their homes to a great extent. He explains the trails often varied in their exact location and route, depending on water and grazing for the animals and the needs of the pioneers. Hayes adds the trails often varied because they became cut and dusty and the pioneers

Overhaul for Equipment Is Eyed by Unit

The Twin Falls soil conservation district discussed overhauling the heavy equipment owned by the district, at a meeting Friday in the conservation office. Lyle Schlichter and Ella Puller, both Twin Falls, were appointed as a committee in charge of having the equipment repaired. Plans were made for a grass seed production meeting to be held in Twin Falls in February. The date and place will be announced. Members of the board felt that many people living within the district are not aware of the equipment and services provided by the conservation district. Arthur East and Gordon Schroeder, both Twin Falls, were appointed to investigate this problem. In addition to the regular business discussion, a special guest, Jack P. Boise, secretary of the Idaho state soil conservation district, spoke on various ways of improving the districts program and encouraged the board to inform more people about the program. Plans were discussed for a dinner for supervisors and their wives on Feb. 5. Time and place will be announced later. Nelson, chairman of the board, presided at the meeting.

Lattimore.

Fined at Buhl

BIBBIE, 16, and Lyle W. Starnes, 13, of Buhl, were fined $20 and $10 respectively for having mud flaps on their truck. He was cited by State Patrolman Richard Burns. Lawrence R. Hill, Castleford, was fined $5 and costs by Judge Rudy for driving with faulty equipment. He was cited by State Patrolman Frank Mogenssen.

Three Bill Active

Lattimore says there are still three charter members currently active in club activities, Blaine Phillips, Dr. O. E. Hays, and H. O. Hayes. The club meets each Wednesday night in downtown Twin Falls. The motto of the club is "We Serve". The present club has 70 members and there are clubs in 102 countries throughout the world. Anyone can belong to the club at any time. The club is headed by directors, but Lattimore says the club usually tries to have only one member from each category in each business profession. ## MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT

U. N. Terry Has Been Active in Events Here Both as Educator, Businessman

For many years U. N. Terry has been active in Twin Falls community affairs, first as an educator and later as a businessman. His first came to Twin Falls in 1917 as principal of the high school and served in principal until 1924. At that time he started an insurance business and is now district manager of the Equitable Assurance Society of the United States. Terry was born and raised in Spokane. His father was a wheat rancher. He attended elementary schools in Spokane and finished high school at Rosalie, near Lewiston. College Degree Earned Terry entered Spokane University and was graduated in 1920 with a degree in sociology. For the next two years he worked on a farm, then a farm, although he had not decided in college to enter education. During the Christmas holidays in 1922, he received a long-distance telephone call from a woman in Kennewick, Wash. She had just moved to Boise and was in Kennewick. The Legion eventually acquired the house and moved them to the area just east of the present Washington courts. They installed sewer and water facilities. 300 Applications Needed By the time the trailers were ready for occupancy, the Legion had more than 300 applications and only 42 trailers. The American Legion then arranged for the removal of 42 apartment units from nearby military posts to Twin Falls. All this the American Legion did with money borrowed from local banks. The housing situation was greatly alleviated," Terry says, "and the effort proved to be a landmark success for the American Legion." The apartments were sold by the American Legion just last summer. "Thanks to the city of Twin Falls and the national housing administration, the premises were provided to the American Legion on a rental basis of one dollar per month."

U. N. Terry

During the summer of 1927, 1928 and 1929, Terry worked as a master's degree in education at the University of Idaho. He returned to Twin Falls in 1929, working on his PhD degree in education work. Terry started out as a special agent for the insurance company and was appointed district manager in 1942. He now has 10 agents under his supervision. His territory includes all of Magic Valley and Elko and Humboldt counties in Nevada. His job as district manager is to recruit and train agents for the company. Terry notes that he has retired as district manager and returns to selling his insurance. "Throughout the years, he has been active in many clubs and community projects," Terry believes "the most interesting and rewarding project he and other members of the Legion have undertaken is when emergency apartment units were provided to the city of Twin Falls during the World War II."

Terry has kept in touch with young people since he stopped teaching. He has always had an interest in Boy Scouts and in the past was a Scoutmaster. He recently was made a vice president of the Snake River council of Boy Scouts. Terry has been a member of the Kiwanis club since 1928. He served as secretary from 1941 to 1944, vice president in 1944, and president in 1945. In 1948 he was district secretary of the Kiwanis club and in 1949 he was lieutenant governor of the Idaho-Idaho district. He also is a member of the Twin Falls Elks lodge. Terry is past president of the Eastern Idaho Life Underwriters association, present chairman of the Twin Falls housing administration and has been a member of the Christian church since he was 16 years old. He is a past chairman of the board of the Twin Falls First Christian church. He also is a member of Phi Delta Kappa, an honorary educational fraternity at Stanford University.

His philosophy of life is "cast thy bread upon the waters, for thou shalt find it after many days." He has reference to the peace of mind and satisfaction that one finds not just the material things along the way, but the satisfaction and peace of mind one receives through service and help to others," he explains.

He has interest in Farm Bureau and the national housing administration. Although Terry stopped full-time farming when he entered the teaching profession in the 1920's, he has continued to maintain his interest in agriculture. He owns and supervises operations of two farms south of Kimberly.

Bagging Big Deer Is Commonplace in Idaho

Bagging big deer such as these taken along the middle fork of the Salmon river is commonplace in Idaho hunters. The state has two species, the whitetail and the mule deer, with the big mule deer selling about 60 per cent of the 250,000 or more population. Since much of the lower valley country has been taken over by man, the chief limiting factor to Idaho deer numbers, both whitetail and mule deer, is failure of the winter range, where herds have overused the main food plants on which the animals depend season after season. Proper hunting helps the animals by removing surplus animals; while deer numbers are double checked in the form of two sets of main beams. (Fish and game department photo—staff engraving.)

Two Species of Deer Provide Bulk of Big Game Shooting for Idaho Nimrods

By JIM HUMBLID
Deer hunting is almost incidental in the scheme of things for many Idaho "big-game" hunters. Their main view each fall is to stalk elk, moose or even more wary big-horn sheep and Rocky mountain goat. Getting venison for camp meat or locker virtually is an afterthought. Nevertheless the state's 350,000 or so buckskins are the real "bread and butter" animals because they provide more sport to more people—and put more meat in the pot than all other big game species combined.

Whitetail Number Small
About 15 to 18 per cent of all Idaho deer are whitetail, with most of their range north of the main Salmon river. The only other species is mule deer. These are found in every county, although in larger numbers in the rough, open mountain and foothill regions of the southern half of the state.

While not considered as valuable a prize as the elk, moose, antelope, bighorn sheep or Rocky mountain goat, the deer still is ranked No. 1 in the minds of most hunters.

There are constant reports of other types of deer being seen over most of the lower range of north Idaho, but the species claimed to have been identified are willow deer, fan-tailed, Columbia black-tailed and hybrid cross of the mule and whitetail breeds. The normal range of these types is west of the Cascade mountains in a narrow belt extending from southern Alaska to central California. With a small spur east to the Sierra.

All Were Whitetails
Biologists have examined several deer which hunters believed were Columbia black-tailed. In every case they turned out to be whitetails. The country has been produced, the official view was that there are only two species of deer native to Idaho—the whitetail and the mule deer.

A rare black color phase called "melanism" of the whitetail deer has been reported in the lower d'Ale area in recent years. This is of interest to biologists since it never has been reported before. The creature for this species. A five-point buck shot at Wolf lodge in November, 1934, and a tree-trunk buck shot at Harrison flats during the same month of 1936, both exhibited the black color phase trait.

Local Elks Lodge, Now 50 Years Old, Grew From 40 Membership to 1,591

by Scoutmaster Arthur Langdon. Membership in Letters of the Elks number is now 200. The president is Mrs. Eugene Breinholt.

The annual picnic at the Pile-Fairgrounds usually attracts about 1,500 persons. The Elks lodge is the main sponsor of the annual Charity ball. Funds from the ball are used to buy Christmas decorations for needy families in Twin Falls. The Elks lodge has 79 food baskets for needy persons for the month of December.

Another important project is the work done by the Elks lodge community welfare committee. Each year about $1,200 is given to needy persons for various reasons by the committee. The money is used to buy food, clothes and pay for medical and dental care.

The youth activities committee sponsors several dances throughout the year and also handles the local scholarship and youth leadership contest. Winners of the contest are awarded a $100 scholarship. The national contest, when the national contest, on the national scale, the Elks award $2,000 in scholarship money each year.

In addition to the local projects, the Elks lodge has a medical center and helps support the Elks Rehabilitation Center in Boise. This is a medical center that can supply many types of therapy. Anyone can use the facilities at the center. Every Elks lodge member in stopping after only a hundred yards or so to gaze curiously back at a hunter.

The curiosity which gives the mule deer a reputation for being slow-witted, especially when he stands broadside to danger, is not so with the whitetail. This species attacks even a hunter and may become an enemy of the woods of any year.

Pawna Born in June
In Idaho most mule deer fawns are born in June. Many twins are observed and sometimes triplets. Under poor range conditions the doe may have only one fawn. The young have spotted coats, semicircular for camouflage, since they crouch to the ground and blend with the surroundings when danger threatens. Several weeks later they are nibbling tender green forage. The doe generally weans them by the end of September. Much the same is true about whitetail fawns, which are born in May or June and spotted with white on reddish coats, and are able to travel with their mothers within a month.

Although the southern limit of whitetail range in Idaho is about the latitude of Warm lake, in Valley county, some of these animals have been transported by the fish and game department from Kootenai county to the Payette river and the Teton drainage. It is possible that the whitetail will be established in these areas. Since some of the transplants are shot each year, some sportsmen believe they are "wilders" even though they were found to be native in the southern Idaho long before the first white settlers appeared.

Heavy Cover Preferred
The whitetail prefers the heavy cover of a humid habitat, and generally ranges lower than do the mule deer. It is typical of a deer of broad-leaved-woodlands-and-dense evergreen growth rather than the more open semi-arid country, however, apparently thriving well in close proximity to man if sufficient cover provides concealment.

Since much of the lower valley country has been taken over by man, the chief limiting factor to Idaho deer numbers, both whitetail and mule deer, is failure of the winter range, where herds have overused the main food plants on which the animals depend season after season. Proper hunting each year helps this condition by removing surplus animals and giving fawns the opportunity to grow. Artificial feeding has not proved to be the remedy when conditions by removing surplus animals the policy of permitting the kill of both sexes and fawns does much to aid the proper harvest of surplus big deer numbers.

Results of the 1938 deer harvest on the two species are not all in and tabulated, but it is believed that the kill of surplus animals has been adequate in most management units. During the 1938 season, 33,818 mule deer and 12,857 whitetails were bagged throughout the state. Indications are that the 1939 harvest, with approach that figure.

Trees Will Be Furnished to Lincoln Area

SHOSHONE, Jan. 16 — The Idaho fish and game department is furnishing trees for windbreak plantings in this year. They ask only that the farmer prepare the seedbed, agree to irrigate and care for the trees by weeding, cultivation and protecting them against damage by livestock and rodents, officials at the soil conservation office here announce.

The fish and game department furnishes the trees without charge and does the planting. Farmers are urged to apply for the trees they want at the Wood River soil conservation office.

In 1938, March 10 was the deadline for sign-up. It is assumed that deadline will be about the time this year.

Farmers are urged to apply early so that the department can determine how many trees will be needed for this year's plantings. Many varieties are offered.

Nanking, bush and sandy cherry are low down type plants and are used to apply for the trees they want at the Wood River soil conservation office.
