Symington Says Nixon to End Benson Plan; Charge Denied

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—Sen. Symington, D. Mo., said today Vice President Richard M. Nixon wants to abandon the Benson farm program. A spokesman for Nixon challenged the statement.

Symington said in remarks prepared for a Springfield, Mo., dinner that Nixon, "according to press reports," had said this week that if he could build upon the administration's farm program to such an extent that Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Tamm Benson would never reorganize it.

Symington, a potential candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, has severely criticized Benson's program. He called an order farmers continue to go down with Agriculture Secretary Benson until the ends to the taxpayers.

Herbert C. Klein, press secretary for Nixon, told reporters in response to questions that "the record will show that Senator Symington, in his prepared remarks, has misquoted the vice president."

"I hope the people who are supplying his information will be more accurate as the similar pictures for other issues in this campaign," Klein said.

In excerpts of his remarks, made public by his office here, Symington said farm income went down 19.3 per cent last year and is officially expected to go down another seven or eight per cent this year.

"If the vice president is really concerned about this," Symington said, "he should get together with his friend, Mr. Benson, and build a workable farm program now."

Symington quoted Benson as having said on a recent television program that Nixon had "participated in the development of present policies and was 'in sympathy with what we are trying to do.'"

"But Mr. Nixon now says Mr. Benson wouldn't recognize the farm policy he wants," Symington said.

Chessman Is Near Death; Review Set

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Calif., Jan. 30 (AP)—An one piece of paper removed from the gas chamber of Carl Chessman today.

He is scheduled for execution for several crimes including premeditated sex acts, rape and kidnapping at Los Angeles.

Chessman didn't know it, but about the same time Gov. Edmund G. Brown said he would review the denial of executive clemency for the convict.

The man who has spent 11 years on death row told newsmen the piece of paper would be an appeal to the U. S. district judge of yesterday's denial by an U. S. district judge Louis E. Goodman.

However, the judge suggested the governor might reconsider clemency.

Judge Respected The San Francisco News-Call published reported Brown, at Santa Barbara, said, "I have a deep respect for Judge Goodman. Anything he said I would take a serious look at."

Chessman also said, "Almost certainly we will get sent to the U. S. supreme court."

He said no action will be taken as a request for a stay of execution until the appellate court rules.

Chessman Makes 13th Appeal Kissing, too, Is Being Taken Over by Amateurs, Hal Says

Convict-author Carl Chessman, manacled and wearing a prison-made grey flannel suit, arrives at federal court in San Francisco for his thirteenth and possibly last personal bid to escape execution.

By HAL HOYLE NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (AP)—Kissing has become a hot act in parties come up and bass him up. America.

Every man's kissing history is roughly the same. It begins as an ordeal, gradually becomes a pleasure and a joy, and winds up as a form of nervous insult.

Kissing isn't much better when you first start school. Big girls in kindergarten develop a mania for chasing smaller boys, throwing them on the ground and kissing them.

But by the time a fellow goes into high school he develops a sudden interest in the matter. He discovers kissing is not only bearable, it can become a form of mutual fun.

Through college and up to his 40th birthday a fellow enjoys kissing.

"Let's talk dry cleaning"

By Bob Tucker

The average person buys clothes more for style and appearance than anything else. He won't get into the argument about whether women wear clothes to please men or impress other women! But there are factors in cut and construction which have a lot to do with the lasting attractiveness of your clothes.

Take, for example, "bias-cut" clothes. This is a familiar term in the clothing industry for a garment in which different pieces are cut and sewed so that the direction of the yarns is at an angle where the pieces are joined, rather than running parallel.

Inferior bias-cut garments will tend to wear less well than those conventionally constructed fabrics. Since the direction of the yarns in different directions at the point of joining they may shrink unevenly or in different directions when cleaned. The better garments are more likely to resist such pulling and shrinking.

Better dry cleaning techniques and equipment in the hands of thorough cleaners without injury to your valuable clothing. For the best cleaning service, for free pickup and delivery, it's

Federal Land Bank Speaker Talks at Meet

GOODING, Jan. 30.—Although the cold rainy day of the Federal Land Bank of Spokane reached a record high at the end of 1948, the bank was able to maintain an uninterrupted flow of sound, economical credit to Northwest agriculture as officials of the bank said here Wednesday.

William J. Holman, Boise, chairman of the board of directors of the Spokane bank, told 225 persons attending the annual meeting of the Federal Land Bank association of Gooding at the First Methodist church that "the money" is one of the economic conditions which the cooperative land bank system has obtained to combat for the nation's agricultural industry.

The system was created back in 1917 to assist farmers and stockmen by maintaining for them, on a cooperative basis, a uniform and uninterrupted supply of sound, long term credit at the lowest cost consistent with sound business practices," Holman said.

Northwest farmers and stockmen have used the facilities of their land bank system to provide themselves with $46,250,000 in credit in 1948, an increase of $5,500,000 over the preceding calendar year. On Dec. 31, 1948, the bank's outstanding loan account stood at $13,650,000, a new high for the bank's capital stock, all owned by 63 Federal Land Bank associations in the Spokane district, reached $10,200,000 at the end of 1948. It earned net worth and reserves for loans increased to $15,650,000.

The strong financial position has allowed the bank to meet the high cost of borrowed funds, he said.

Land bank service was extended to 40 farmers and ranchers in Alaska for the first time in 1948, according to the bank official. At the year end, 24 banks in 1948, 200 had been opened in 49 states, largely in the Mountain West area. The association's five state district now served by the Spokane bank is the largest land bank district in the nation.

Two directors were reelected to serve three year terms during a business meeting presided over by Julius Schmitt, president of the local association, presided over by Henry Fischer, Gooding, representing Camas county and C. V. Williamson, Jerome, Malheur district, and G. W. Schmitt, Gooding.

Mr. Schmitt, assistant manager, was in charge of registration of the bank's 1948 year of the local association, read the minutes of a last year's meeting and gave a financial report.

Guest speaker, Gooding County probate judge James P. Gossitt held the audience spellbound in an effort to become better persons to get examples for the youth of the county.

He said the average family, especially city families, have reached the state of no rules, regulations, leadership or guidance and stated there is a great need in parents and all adults to set better examples.

He stated that only three percent of the youth today get into trouble, but this could be reduced if parents would allow their children better living instead of just telling them "This can be done by observing laws more closely, straightening honesty and encouraging spirituality in the church and home."

To impress upon the group the seriousness of the situation he stated that the actual crime rate is greater today in our country, more parents are entering mental hospitals, juvenile delinquency is greater and bigger better institutions are built.

The speaker compared the program of growing up with that of traveling on a road unfamiliar to the traveler with no restrictions, stating that someone has to make the rules and regulations for a safe program to be made in this line if a program similar to the 4-7 program for country youth could be worked out for those living in the more heavily populated areas.

A dinner preceding the meeting was served by women of the Methodist church. The invocation was offered by K. W. Butler, Gooding, and dinner music was furnished by Mrs. Donald Blinn.

Fog, Winds Stop Search For Airliner

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 30 (AP)—Navy divers, harassed by fog and winds in their search in the Gulf of Mexico for the wreckage of a commercial airliner, will remain on the scene until the weather permits them to resume the diving operations.

Based on the weather forecast, the navy said today the diving will not be resumed until Tuesday, Jan. 31.

Two navy ships—the Vigor and the Penguin, also assigned to the operation of hunting for the Pan American airlines DC7B that crashed into the Gulf last Nov. 16 and killed 81 people. Rescue workers found only bits of the wreckage and 13 of the victims.

The Vigor, a minesweeper, spotted objects earlier on the Gulf floor with sounding equipment but without findings of a wreckage.

The FBI and civil aeronautics board want to determine the cause of the crash.

Spears Arrest Sparks Hunt The search was spurred by the FBI's recent arrest of Robert V. Spears, a Dallas, Tex., naturopath who was later found in Panama on the Miami to New Orleans flight.

Spears had taken out $100,000 in travel insurance in September and when arrested in Phoenix, Arizona agents found explosives in his luggage.

Spears' wife said her husband told her that William Allen, a pilot, had replaced him on the airliner. Taylor had been missing since the crash.

Manager for Area Clothes Store Retires

BURLEY, Jan. 30—After 15 years working in the clothing business in the Magic Valley and being away from his work only 10 days because of illness, Joe Smith, 51, retired as manager of Alexander's clothing store here Monday.

Smith came to Burley from Twin Falls in 1938 and became manager of this store in 1940. He has been devoted to his work and states, "It has been a lot of fun. I've always enjoyed my work. I like people and I have had many wonderful experiences. There is always something different coming up, even with the steady customers," he said.

Smith was born in Iowa and lived in Illinois before coming to Twin Falls as a small boy. His father was a veterinarian and after going to Idaho went for the city of Twin Falls from 1900 until his death in 1927.

As a young Joe Smith worked as a water boy when the Rogerson hotel was being built in 1908 and 1909. His first real job was with Joe Meyer who operated a general store in this new building. He was attending high school at the time. This job was the beginning of his life's work, for when this business was sold to E. J. Jenkins, father of Glen Jenkins, Chevrolet dealer in Twin Falls, he continued to work for this concern. He later worked nine and a half years for James A. Binsell who operated a men's clothing store before coming to Burley.

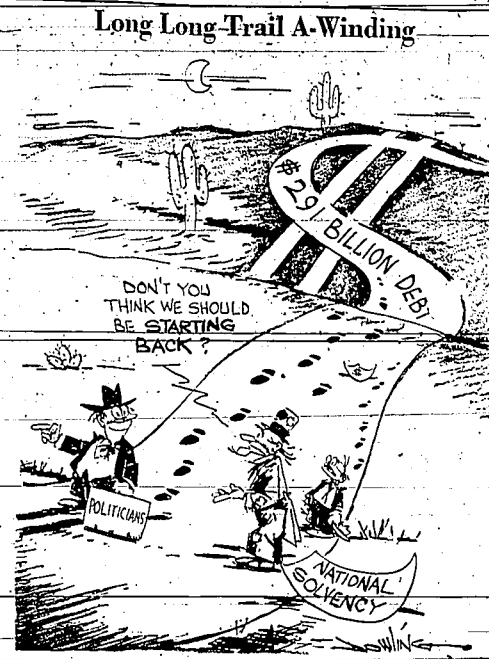

Smith attended Twin Falls schools with his sister, Mrs. J. Hartmann. Jerome, his wife, Teresa, was a dietitian in the Twin Falls hospital before their marriage in 1935.

Smith joined the Twin Falls chapter of the Masons in 1919. He is a member of the Commandery, E. Korah Shrine, Boise, and has served as worshipful master of the Burley lodge three different times. He likes to fish but hasn't had much time for that lately, he comments. He is an ardent reader and is interested in world affairs. He states that his family had been subscribers of the Twin Falls newspaper for 53 years.

Smith has no immediate plans for his retirement, "I'm just going to rest for awhile."

Lipstick Ban Is Postponed For Hearing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (AP)—The 60-million-dollar-a-year lipstick industry was another revenue foregone from a government order forbidding the further use of some of its most vital colors.

The order, which the industry has confided as a virtual kiss of death, had been scheduled to go into effect Monday after two postponements.

It was suspended pending the outcome of a public hearing Feb. 17 to determine whether government tests were sufficiently complete to justify the conclusion that the red, orange and yellow color materials are unsafe.

At the same time Commissioner of Health Administration, who announced the action, said three of the 17 colors in the original order were being restored to the harmless list. They will be subjected to further tests.

This leaves 14 color still being held up for review at the hearing. They are the bulk of a group described before a congressional committee last week as the cosmetics industry's most vital colors.

German Pilot Is Sentenced For Treason

KARLSRUHE, Germany, Jan. 30.—A West German naval pilot was sentenced today to five years in hard labor for treason and espionage for the Soviet Union. He was convicted of giving the Russians information about the German "complex X," but nothing was made public to describe the complex.

The supreme court said the act of treason committed by Horst Langer and his 10-year-old son, Langer's mate, Fritz Bismarck, was so grave that it can still damage the security of the western line if revealed publicly.

Four-Year Sentence Made
Bismarck, 33, was sentenced for four years on identical charges. The public heard only a minute part of the spy activities charged in the 11-year-old senior lieutenant and his wife's testimony on major offenses was given in secret session.

Langer's wife, Hannel Jaeger, 37, and her husband, Werner, 31, who were tried with the navy men, who were sentenced for treason engaged in treasonable activities by acting as go-betweens.

Jaeger got three years in jail and his wife one. Both were excluded from the secret sessions and apparently knew nothing about the complex.

The chief officer of the new German army forces to be tried in a spy trial was also sentenced to a training camp for five years. Jaeger was training at the Penzance and H. naval base at the time Jaeger gave them to Soviet intelligence.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Scientists of the Harwell atomic energy research establishment reported today they have established almost conclusively by intricate experiments—that a "basic premise of Einstein's general theory of relativity is correct.

The scientists, Dr. T. E. Whithead, Canada; Dr. H. J. Hay, New Zealand, and Dr. William Marshall, Britain, tested theoretical ideas, but with doubtful success, to explain it as a new conference.

U.S. Is Prepared With New Devices if A-Test Ban Ends

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The United States has a stockpile of sophisticated new weapons ready to try out if its present moratorium on nuclear tests should be called off, the atomic energy commission hinted today.

The AEC also indicated in its annual report to congress that it could start touching off the blast on short order if President Eisenhower decides to resume testing.

The commission reported special emphasis is being given in the development of smaller, immediately ready and more rugged devices for use in advanced weapons systems.

No indication was given of the specific nature of the devices for testing weapons, but the report presumably includes new concepts for use by foot soldiers and in missile-firing airplanes and submarines.

The report said the AEC would begin work on the Nevada desert has been kept in standby readiness since the United States decided to suspend testing between Nov. 1, 1958, and at least the end of that year. The moratorium was proposed during the start of negotiations with the Soviet Union.

Washington announced last Dec. 29 that the United States would cease testing fuel to resume nuclear tests.

Millionaires and Clerks Find Common Denominator, Enjoyment of Wilderness

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 30 (AP)—Two unshaven men crouched over a hand of sticks in a mountain drizzle, trying to start a fire. In slouch hats and denim, they look like bums. One is a millionaire manufacturer, the other an 800-a-week stock clerk. Neither knows the other's economic status, or cares. The important thing is that both are enjoying a cool fire going with damp wood.

The scene is typical of a Sierra club outing. The men have a common bond in their love of nature—along with more than 14,000 other members of the oldest organization in the United States concerned primarily with conservation of scenic resources.

The club spans the continent, its roster includes such valuable names as William O. Douglas, U. S. Supreme Court justice; U. S. senators and representatives, housewives and college students, millionaires (a few), laborers and juveniles.

"We've been accused of being a club of millionaires," says executive director David R. Brower. "The big majority of us worry about next month's bills just like the next guy."

The club is currently campaigning on five major fronts. Brower says they are:

1. Opposition to a proposed Mammoth pass highway across the Sierra in south-central California. The road would cut through a deep snarl from the remaining living wilderness in the state, 2,299 square miles.
2. Support of the "wilderness bill" to establish a national wilderness preservation system. The system covers 27 wilderness, wild primitive and roadless areas within the national forests, 48 primeval national parks and monuments, 20 national wildlife refuges and various other lands and wild areas for protection and preservation.
3. Creation of a national park in Utah—Dinosaur National monument in Utah-Colorado.
4. Support of the national outdoor recreation resources review commission appointed by President Eisenhower and headed by Lawrence H. Hagerman. The commission is to project expected recreational usage into 1975 and 2000 and recommend means of meeting the needs.

Burley's Leaders Eye Lengthening Airport Runway

BURLEY, Jan. 30—The runway of the Burley airport can be extended 725 feet, Mayor Leonard Salmon announced after a meeting of city, county, Chamber of Commerce and airline officials here Friday noon.

The group decided to investigate the cost of the possible extension, which would make a total length of 3,300 feet to accommodate the P-77A.

K. S. Perry, Helena, Mont., federal aviation agency representative, attended.

A rhinoceros' hide is so thick it looks like armor plating, and it is made of keratin when scraped off.

While most of the Sierra club's 14 chapters are in California and most of its outings range through the Sierra, some explore wilderness areas of other states. There have been 271 mountaineering expeditions into other countries. The Sierra club is a national organization with chapters in 182 countries.

Burley Holds Sugar Beets Awards Meet

BURLEY, Jan. 30—Castia 4-H and PFA members were awarded 100 in prizes given jointly by the Castia Sugar Beetgrowers association and Amalgamated Sugar company at the annual sugar beet award banquet Thursday evening at the Elks hall.

Outstanding achievements with sugar beet projects by PFA and 4-H members received $40, first; $20, second; and $10, third. A special award recognizing the participant with the best record book is given by the sugar company.

PFA winners were Eric Church, first; Roland Bean, second, and Jim Hill, third. Awards to 4-H winners were presented to Bill Edwards, first; Glenn Carter, second; and Lambert Anderson, third. Mary Deck received the book award.

The Burley bank, Castia National and Idaho Bank and Trust, furnished the banquet. Edgar Christensen, president of the beetgrowers, and Olen Lewis, secretary, presented the awards.

District Manager Ernest Blauer told the group that the farmers in the Mini-Casta district of Amalgamated Sugar company received 4 million dollars for sugar beets during 1958, and after final payments are made, the 1959 total is expected to be higher.

Growers are paid on a sliding scale contract according to sugar content of the beets and the net price for which the company sells its sugar.

The company paid 73 thousand dollars in taxes in both counties last year and had a payroll of 63 thousand dollars, he stated.

A good part of the cattle ration for 1959 was made up of the by-products of the sugar beet pulp and molasses. He stated that much was spent for freight, coal, lime rock and other supplies to keep the facilities in full operation.

Ever's slide race of beets raised here keeps 33 head of cattle on 100 acres of land.

The district produced 350 thousand tons of beets on 10 thousand acres of 16 1/2 tons per acre.

This annual annual and seasonal employment for 275 workers, Blauer added.

Several experts in sugar beet production will be featured at an educational meeting for beetgrowers to be held here at the Burley Junior High school at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 16, he announced. All growers are invited.

He traced the development of the sugar beet industry in Idaho to the first Idaho factory was built in 1903 at Idaho Falls. One was built at Blackfoot in 1906 and at Nampa in 1907, but the latter was moved to Spanish Fork, Utah. The Amalgamated Sugar company established the Nampa plant in 1943 which is still in operation.

The LaGrande, Ore., plant was moved to Burley in 1912. It closed in 1944. Twin Falls factory opened in 1916, and at Paul in 1917, he concluded.

John Bower, Burley, noted the importance of supporting home-grown products by local residents.

Included on the program are two vocal selections by Cliff Jackson, accompanied by Clarence Bailey.

Musical Research Is Interest of Local Newcomer

Mrs. Jane Merchant Lebovitz, a former concert artist now living in Twin Falls, scans a musical score which she copied from the original manuscript of an early American composer.

Former Concert Artist Will Present Program for Club

A view of the United States and she thinks that perhaps why she likes it. With the exception of her own grand piano, which she will give in the spring, she is completely settled here with her black cat, Purrit.

Wishing an older home on a tree lined street spacious enough for her piano, collection of impressionistic paintings and French provincial furniture, she had a house at 236 Ninth avenue north remodeled to fit her needs.

On Feb. 8 at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, she will present a program similar to one given on her concert tours and at the World's fair, the National Association of Composers and Conductors, John Henry Hadley, sponsored her in concert.

She was graduated in voice and piano from the Toronto Conservatory of Music of Toronto University. She also studied in Boston and studied opera with Patricia New York and Hackett in Chicago.

One of these was Mrs. Lloyd Walker, Twin Falls, whom she taught for eight years beginning when Mrs. Walker was 12 years old.

Shortly after her husband's death, Mrs. Lebovitz had a near fatal bout with influenza and a thyroidectomy. While recuperating she came here and Mrs. Walker decided this was where she wanted to live.

Committee appointments for the new year include Mrs. M. A. McClell, Mrs. Nola Cooper and Mrs. Roy Lancaster, program, and Mrs. Orlando Jackson, Mrs. Owen Bolan, jack and visiting.

Mrs. Lebovitz notes that another early American song to be presented, "Benath" the "Weeping Willow Tree" was written by Francis Hopkinson, a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Mrs. Lebovitz is directing the Westminster choir, the youth choir at the First Presbyterian church. Interested in teen-agers, she feels they should have training in voice before the college level if they plan to enter that field.

The Twin Falls Bruins watched an 11-point lead melt to one point in the face of a come back press but rallied in the closing minutes Friday night to defeat the Idaho Falls Tigers 49-19. The victory, which proved a team effort despite some remarkable shooting by Tom Ballantyne and a great overall game by Bart Strong, kept the Bruins on top of the Southern Idaho conference with a 6-0 record while Idaho Falls sits at 4-2.

JEROME—Jan. 30—Senior guard Gary Adams connected on a three-point play in an overtime period here Friday night to give the Oakey Hornets a come-from-behind 61-53 Big Seven conference decision over the Jerome Tigers. It was the second loop win for the Hornets and both came in overtime. Jerome dropped in a 3-4 record.

The game had the crowd on its feet in the final three minutes of the game. Adams, although Adams heroics won the contest, it was the pressure free throw shooting of Tom Matthews that made it possible. Matthews hit two free throws that denied the extra session. With three minutes left in the game, Adams put Oakey ahead by one point only to see Lavar Harris counter for Jerome. ### 4,500 Adults, Children Have Taken Shots for Diphtheria

An estimated 4,500 adults and children have passed through the health clinic at Twin Falls city hall during the past three weeks. Keith Harvey, acting director for the department in the area, said that some days total shots reached as high as 500.

Mrs. Knight said that the majority of persons in the area have been immunized and the chance is good that there will not be a diphtheria outbreak here, as there has been in eastern Idaho. "She noted that it would be impossible to estimate the total number of persons who have been vaccinated, as local physicians have been giving shots, too. She added that people have been motivated to get shots by confirmed cases in Idaho.

"So far there have been no cases reported in Magic Valley," Mrs. Knight said.

Private physicians have cooperated with the department of health by sending throat cultures to the laboratory to be tested, she noted. A few suspected carriers have been tested, but they turned out negative.

Mrs. Knight said the department has not been giving shots at the schools, as it was recently rumored.

"Students have been coming to the clinic for their shots," Mrs. Knight said, adding that if a diphtheria case is diagnosed in the area, the health department will then go into the schools and give shots to the students.

The department of health is encouraging booster shots for persons up to the age of 30, besides initial shots for persons who have not been inoculated before. This

...she says the whip to him. She has just started to walk, but has been riding for months. This position for exercise started when she was about 2 months old. Mrs. Schroeder says when Karen was that age she would stand in her mother's hand without any support. But she isn't the only one in the family with the help-standing talent. Her brother, Billy, age 2, used to stand in his mother's hand when he was 3 weeks old. Mrs. Schroeder says they put Karen on the horse when she was about 6 months old. After she got her construction for her young child. For the past few months she has been riding the horse regularly several times a day. She is standing up rather well but the horse is showing signs of wear. In all her wild stampeding, she has yet to be injured. Mrs. Schroeder says, "Every once in a while she loses her balance and starts to fall, and I run to catch her, but she always manages to catch herself—the two-minute and remain her balance." Asked if she thought Karen has a bit of the ham in her, Mrs. Schroeder says, "Well, I think she sure likes to ride that horse and to show off a little."

Special Lingo Is Spoken by 'Carney' Folk

If you ever want to find a job with carnival, just walk up to the owner and say, "I released a jazoob." This is "carney" talk and should introduce you as a person wise in the ways of carnivals. "Carney" talk is the method used by persons in the carnival business to carry on a private conversation in front of customers, or anyone else who is intended to be excluded from the conversation, according to James Busby, Twin Falls. Busby has operated children's rides in carnivals for many years. In order to get at home among the carnival workers, Busby says one of the first things a new worker must do is master the lingo of the trade. The basic statement in carney talk, translated, means, "I need a job." When Busby first went into the carnival ride business in 1942, he found himself one day in the presence of several carnival workers who would chatter along in English and suddenly launch off into some strange sort of language. "I knew it wasn't a foreign language," Busby says, "so I just played along and pretended I knew what they were talking about." "Later I got to know an older member of the carnival pretty well and I asked him about the talk," he said. The older fellow explained the simple rules of carney talk to Busby. Right There Is Where They'll Put New Drinking Fountain

Mrs. Wallace Bond, president of the Twentieth Century club, indicates on an artist's drawing the site of the drinking fountain the club will install in the small triangular park at the corner of Five North. Two Major Projects Are Slated as Twentieth Century Club Promotion

The Twin Falls Twentieth Century club is undertaking two major improvement projects, one in a city park and the other in the library. Mrs. Wallace Bond, president of the club, notes the club recently approved the two projects which constitute the president's project, an annual feature of the club. Plans are being drawn up for a fountain to be constructed in the little triangular city park at Five North. This is being done in cooperation with the city which will help in the design. Mrs. Bond says the fountain will be constructed of a native stone, Oakley rock, to give a local touch. The fountain will be a drinking fountain with a faucet on the side. Mrs. Bond says the fountain should move an extra to the park for it will provide added comfort to the many out-of-state tourists who stop there to eat lunch throughout the summer season. She says plans for the fountain are nearly finished and the fountain will be completed by May 1. She adds that the city administration has been cooperating in providing the water for the fountain. The remainder of the construction will be undertaken by the Twentieth Century club. "We want travelers to feel that Twin Falls is a friendly town and the fountain should make them feel more comfortable when they stop at the park," she points out, "that the little park is a popular stopping place for travelers from the time warm weather begins. The new project, nearly completed, is under way in the basement hallway of the library. For some time the hallway has served simply as a passageway, but soon it will be used to display various art objects. The club is financing the construction of pebbled panels along the entire length of the hallway on both sides. There will be 84 feet of pebbled wall with a total area of 254 square feet, according to Arthur DeVolder, librarian. DeVolder says, "This added space will permit the library to display its own pictures and, with the permission of the library board, local artists and possibly traveling exhibits. Many persons are interested in art and this new project should be (Continued on Page 21, Column 1)

Two Mountain Lion Cubs Taken Alive on Hunt Near Almo

Ben Eldredge, Twin Falls, tussles with two young mountain lion cubs he and hunting companion caught Monday near Almo. They got four lions in one day, shooting two and capturing two alive. (Staff photo-engraving)

Four Cougars, Two Alive, Bagged During 12-Hour Hunt in Almo Area

Four area men hunted nearly 12 hours in a snowstorm west of Almo and returned home with four mountain lions, two of them alive. The hunt was undertaken by Ben Eldredge, Twin Falls; Jack Mason, Burley; and Bill and Jake Broesch, Almo. The men got the cougars in the Almo Park region, about six miles northwest of Almo. The hunt actually started Sunday, Jan. 24. The men had been tracking a cougar all day and finally lost him in some barren ground. As they returned from the hunt they came across the tracks of a female lion and three big cubs. It was in the day of their decided to start the hunt Monday. At 8 a.m. Monday they started on the tracks. Eldredge says, "We found the tracks were about two days old." But the three hounds readily picked up the cold scent and tracked the cougar's most of the day. Eldredge says the hunters used cougar. It started to snow shortly after they started and continued to snow all day. Eldredge says it was a pretty tough hunt along the trail of the lions; there were places where the big one had led the cubs behind while he went out and hunted for game. The lions were hunting porcupines in the tall timber stands on top of the mountain. The hunters also found a carcass of a four-point buck she had killed recently. About 3 p.m. they came across fresh tracks. Eldredge says the dogs jumped the three cubs and he and Broesch carried them shot one cub and shook the other two out of the tree. Both were roped and muzzled with twine. They pulled one of the cats out of the tracks. Eldredge says, "While this fella was going on the dogs started circling and found a fresh track of the big mountain. She tread in about one-fourth of a mile. Eldredge says they got all the cougars in a 400-yard area and was thin and underweight. The big lion weighed about 120 pounds; she was still nursing the big cubs and was thin and underweight. Eldredge estimates the cubs weigh about 25 pounds apiece. They are the color of the adult lion but a few black spots remain on their sides. After the men led the cubs and put the alive and kicking cubs on their backs, they were carried by Eldredge says each man put a lion between himself and the other lion and carried them down the mountain. He notes the cats were somewhat disgruntled with the ride and persisted in snarling and biting all the way. They were firmly muzzled and no one was slipped. The men delivered their snarling passengers to the Broesch ranch near Almo, about 120 miles from where the hunt started. This involved riding down the country during the hunt.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

A trained bear who is an actor for Walt Disney visited students at HEYBURN last week. Mrs. and Mrs. Marlon Judd were instrumental in bringing "Howie," which is the little bear's name, to the children to see. They met Dell Ray in BUTLEY and discovered he worked for Walt Disney and that the bear had just completed his part in a picture entitled "Howie of the North" which will be released in about two years. Ray works for Disney the year around, training animals, and was exported from Canada to Arizona for his vacation.

The little bear is 9 months old and has a twin brother in Canada who also is a movie star, but not as good as "Howie" because sometimes when they are shooting a scene "Howie" as New's twin is called has to stop right in the middle and suck his paw. Then the scene has to be taken over again.

Ray will train wolves while in Arizona. His bear "New" who is black, was on a lead and well trained. He came into the Heyburn trade school during the lunch hour with children in the hall and did not cause any trouble.

He walked on his hind feet and is visiting friends and relatives at Portland.

Mrs. LaPorte, in describing Costa Rica which means "rich coast" says it is about the size of West Virginia and has a population of one million people. It was founded and settled by Spanish families and its people are of pure Spanish extraction.

Mrs. LaPorte observed women dress more formally in this centrally located country and do not wear slacks or shorts on the street. People are friendly to the United States.

It is a wonderful place for bird watchers, states Mrs. LaPorte. It seems when the birds migrate south, those traveling by land have to pass through this narrow country which seems to serve like a funnel for the traveling birds. The LaPortes were fascinated to see the flocks of birds passing through during the early morning hours.

During their stay in Costa Rica, Mrs. LaPorte was honored by being appointed by the government to serve as a member on the board of directors of the government commission on alcoholism. A clinic is maintained where the alcoholic are given medical attention and social service workers assist them and and let him in on the inner circle of carney society.

The rules of the language are rather simple and, if the user has a good ear, can be mastered readily. Some of the older carneys can rattle off the longest word in carney talk and be understood by others trained in carney talk.

Bussy says most users of the talk (translate into the shorter words) into carney talk. The speaker simply adds an "r" to the end of the word and it is still the same meaning of the second syllable. If a carney says "Bussy" the letters "r" are added at the end of the word and it becomes "Bussyr".

Thus, "I released a Jacob."

"This combination of letters can create some real tongue-twisters, but once the car becomes accustomed to the language, words and sounds can be altered somewhat to create a pronounceable word, or words of carney talk scattered throughout a conversation can be the most attentive catch-dropper.

Bussy says the language isn't spoken generally among the carneys themselves. It is used primarily in front of other persons. For instance, Bussy laughs when he recalls one time a carney was surprised when he used the language in front of a supposedly unknown customer.

Several carnival operators were standing in front of a concession. Two girls, one dressed in red and particularly pretty, entered the concession. It would be uncommon for a group of men to let a few female good-looking girls pass by without some comment, at least to a customer.

Bussy says one of the men murmured, "Pia means up with the ole in red and red" (Pia means up with the ole in red). The fellow was surprised when the girl turned around and gave him a mischievous smile. Bussy says the fellow, based on a shy type, hurried to the other side of the midway.

And carney talk isn't limited just to the "big boys" Bussy recalls that shortly after the concession was set up at a state fair he walked along the midway. A cute little boy, about 7 years old, was standing there. Bussy said he called and patted him on the head. The boy said, "Can you talk carney?" and the little boy spent a few minutes passing the time of day talking carney.

Sometimes it's a good thing if a stranger knows the lingo. An oldtimer told Bussy that one time, during the depression, the carnival weren't doing well. The carnival was in the East and his band had made little money. In the past days, it had been some time since he had returned to the fair. The oldtimer said he was a friend, "it's a pity you're a carney, 'til you go east." (If he spends a nickel, I'll go east.)

The man continued to play the game and when he was through struck up a conversation with the hungry carnival man and eventually invited him to his restaurant for a free meal. After the meal was finished he explained he was a friend, "it's a pity you're a carney, 'til you go east." (If he spends a nickel, I'll go east.)

Germms Cause It Respiratory Illness Not Related to Room's Heat

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D. (Written for NEA Service)

A correspondent from Ft. Paul, Minn., reports an unusually large number of colds and respiratory illnesses in a group of 80 to 90 telephone operators employed in an exchange where temperature is kept at 78 to 79 degrees Fahrenheit. She observed that the operators were ill more than might prove more favorable to health.

My answer is a qualified yes.

Also, convalescents must avoid handshaking and kissing and exercise the greatest care to avoid sneeze into disposable tissues. In addition, "mouthpieces" and "nasal aspirators" have been sprayed by droplets should be carefully wiped with a 1/1000 solution of bleach and thoroughly dried before use by other persons.

It is possible, less than usual, and "determined" group effort has much prospect for success, since a single careless person can undo all the good work of the remainder of the work force.

However, I can assure my correspondent that persons with respiratory infections will have less discomfort and fewer complications, and will make more rapid and complete recoveries if work-rooms and homes are kept at temperatures of 70 to 72 degrees Fahrenheit or slightly less.

Because of the unfortunate fact that the commonest respiratory infections are "cold" viruses of six kinds to "batter" exposure to a lowered temperature opens the way to virus invasions of the nose and throat.

Nothing could be further from the truth. Infections by out-lets, Eskimos and men who have been admitted on the open sea for days do not develop "colds" or related respiratory illnesses.

And, since the time of the immortal Dr. Francis Trudeau, patients with tuberculosis of the lungs have been freed from stuffy, overheated rooms and encouraged to "cure" in the cool and breezy air of mountain resorts such as New York's Adirondacks, Colorado's Rockies and the Swiss Alps.

Next time you have a cold you can prove to yourself that Dr. Trudeau's discovery applies also to minor respiratory illnesses.

Just compare the amount of your discomfort after you've been incubating in a sealed room with the relief you experience by merely

Last of Cellar Buyers Watches Sorting Operation

Marcus A. Pomerooy, Hansen, is shown here standing at No. 2 grade cellars. The No. 2 potatoes are being sorted at the portable sorting table. Pomerooy is one of the last potato buyers in the country who sorts the potatoes he buys while they are in country culls rather than in the central warehouse where small consumer packs are made. (Staff photo-entouring)

Hansen Man One of Last Spud Buyers To Work With Crop in Country Cellars

HANSEN, Jan. 30 — Marcus A. Pomerooy, Hansen, is one of the last potato buyers in Magic Valley who sorts spuds in country cellars. The retail trade in recent years has demanded specific packs of 10, 20 or 30 pounds each, and buyers—shippers have conceded generally to this demand by building central warehouses with facilities to make the packs.

But Pomerooy continues to package only 100-pound sacks of potatoes, and he still owns his portable sizer and washer on country roads from cellar to cellar. At present he is sorting his own home-grown spuds. Pomerooy is a former president of the Idaho Potato Shippers' Grower Association. He has been keenly aware of the trend in buying practices as the packer, buyer, or even the home consumer in his own way of buying and sorting potatoes. He knows that when the market in Chicago becomes more and more gassy, and the grade and package requirements become more exacting, the country who sorts the potatoes he buys while they are in country culls rather than in the central warehouse where small consumer packs are made. (Staff photo-entouring)

the whole, he has a sharp criticism of both the grower and shipper. He thinks the advertising program for Idaho spuds out of state is directed rather than in the common way, which tends some years to price Idaho spuds out of the market. He also thinks the grower should go back to raising better quality tubers. He knows the processing industry is helping all of the spud enterprises in that state by removing some of the fresh spuds from market and by setting some people to eat spuds in prepared packages who otherwise won't go to the trouble of preparing the spuds for their table. Nevertheless, he feels, as do others, that some of the overgrowth of potatoes would be lessened if culls were forbidden for use in processing plants.

He can remember back in late 1920's when the Idaho spud had a better net and had better growing quality than it does now. Of course, top yields there were about 200 sacks to the acre. He can remember some years when spuds were planted on the poorest ground on the farm, after grain, so that the spud would be another crop. The net was 200 sacks to the acre. At that time, 100 sacks of potatoes would be considered a good crop. He has been outspoken about the grade of potatoes going into processing. At a Sun Valley meet-was about 10 inches of frozen ground when they started the job. A short time after they erected the plastic shell the ground thawed, enabling them to dig in the soil and pour the foundations, without danger of freezing the concrete.

The two workers point out that the plastic helps everyone construct. It gives the workers an opportunity to work during bad weather and it gives the job done for the person paying for the project.

Considering this, the cost of the plastic covering is incidental, Zimmerman says he and Pamerien would turn on a small fuel oil stove and within 30 minutes the temperature was a comfortable. They could work in their shirtsleeves.

Nervous About Air Travel? Agencies Work for Safety

Associated Press Staff Writer

If you're the nervous type of plane passenger, the past few weeks may have been more unsettling than an air-pooling contest. Have recent reports of possible sabotage in two airline disasters made you look unusually at travelers around you?

One plane crashed into the Gulf of Mexico last Nov. 16, taking 100 lives. Investigators are looking into possible connections between the crash and a man named Robert Vernon Spears, a heavily insured ex-convict who was supposed to have boarded the doomed craft but didn't.

And 24 died in the mysterious crash of a DC-8 near Bolivia, N. C. Jan. 6. Among the victims was a young New York lawyer, Julian Frank, who had nearly a million dollars worth of insurance.

Whatever the outcome of investigations of these crashes, the FBI and other agencies, the problem of preventive steps has once more come into focus. How can you avert plane sabotage by people bent on dramatic suicide or mass murder for gain?

Airlines are concerned about the situation for the passengers of the general aviation agency, which writes and enforces civil air regulations, said the prohibition of stowaways from all angles. So far

Many Persons Visit Wildlife Areas Annually

Approximately 15,000 visitors came to the Farragut wildlife management area last year as compared to less than 15,000 during 1958. A former navy training station, this is one of 13 different pieces of land developed and maintained throughout the state by the fish and game department for the production of wildlife and the opportunity

Wildlife Management Areas Around State Attract Thousands of Visitors

By JIM HUNTER
Idaho Fish and Game Department
Much is said these days about the need to provide food and living space to accommodate the so-called population explosion that is world-wide and will jump Idaho's population level of about 650,000 to something like 700,000 residential this year and another 100,000 by 1975.
This inevitably means that considerably more space will be used for industrial and urban development, and a parallel reduction of habitat that formerly produced its share of fish and wildlife. Public access throughout to streams and lakes for hunters and fishermen will become increasingly important.
Fortunately for big game hunters and anglers, about 70 per cent of the state's 33 million acres are for people to enjoy hunting and fishing. With the exception of Farragut, all areas qualify for federal aid funds collected as taxes on firearms and ammunition, and allocated to the state on the basis of the number of licenses sold and land area. (Fish and game department photo—staff engraving)

60,000 Public Schools Spend 697 Millions in Year on Food

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (UPI)—A Washington survey shows that the annual wholesale market for food served in about 60,000 public schools is a whopping $7 billion.
The study of 500 sample schools indicated that the school market is primarily a local one, about 85 million dollars or 85 per cent of the total value of food used in schools was acquired through commercial channels in nearby markets.
The most important single food item in schools was found to be milk, accounting for almost one-third of the school food dollar. Whole milk was distributed during the year to provide each child with 84 1/2-pints. The half-pint is the usual serving unit.

Retiring Commission Chairman States Citizen Contact Made Work Enjoyable

J. Ted Davis, who has just finished eight years of work on the Twin Falls city commission, serving as chairman of the board for the last two years, says the contact with many citizens was one of the most enjoyable aspects of the work.
"I've enjoyed all my life but I have been busy to cultivate a hobby and that contact with people is about the closest thing I have to a hobby."
Davis has been busy most of his life and throughout the years he worked at many occupations.
He was born and raised on a farm between Flint and Dryhill, Mich. His father, LeRoy Davis, was a prominent wool and mutton sheep raiser and raised blooded sheep that served as breeding stock for many western state herds. Davis says his father was one of the men responsible for the better wool and mutton sheep developed in the West. His father sold improved sheep in the Mountain states, served as a consultant to breeders in the West and judged sheep and wool shows.
In 1908, when Davis was 13 years old, his father sold the farm and the family moved to Boise.
His father set up a purebred sheep operation south of Boise. The winter of 1910 was particularly hard and a herd of 2,000 sheep, only 600 survived. This particularly hit his father out of the sheep business for awhile. Mr. Davis decided to go to work on the first construction job he. Morrison Engineers construction firm started at Arrowhead dam.
As a young man, Davis worked as a "long line skinner," a person working either horses or mules on line skippers and hauling logs. Davis recalls that at times he worked 32 hours of 96 hours, at one time. Sometimes the string of horses would stretch out 300 feet in front of the wagon. He says one of the most interesting jobs he had as a "long line skinner" was when he worked for the Snake River Irrigation company, a firm that was hauling 12-ton pumps by wagon across the desert from the Snake river to the Grandview area.
In 1912 he worked for a construction firm that was building the dam from Boise to Meridian. The next summer, after school was out, he worked in the Grandview hydroelectric plant.
In 1914 Davis went to work for the Idaho Livestock company, with headquarters at Weiser. It was a big sheep outfit that ran about one million to two million head of sheep in the Snake river valley.
In 1915 Davis had an unusual job caring for a string of polo ponies for Edward O'Brien, Boise member, a construction man for the Idaho Livestock company. He was sent to American Lake, Wash., near Seattle, and took several weeks of basic training. After the training, Stockman Davis was attached to the 18th engineers railway in England, and spent the remainder of the war years building

After the war years building railroad facilities in France. Near the end of the war, Davis drove a car for an army general.
When the war was over he returned to Boise. One of the first things he did was buy some civilian clothes. As he was standing in a clothing store he ran into a friend who was a chief in Boise.
The chief wanted Davis to go to work for him. Davis didn't take him too seriously and told him, "If you had a motorcycle, I'd ride with you." The chief said he didn't have a motorcycle, he thought that was the end of that. But Davis was surprised the next day when the chief called him to the station, led him outside and showed him a motorcycle.
Trapped, Davis joined the force and became the city's motorcycle policeman until he decided about a month later that he wanted to return to the Livestock business. He fed out horses near Emmet and then joined the Capital Dairies & Supply company as a warehouseman.
After working for the builder's supply company and two oil and gas companies, Davis decided to re-join the "PacifiCorp" branch of the Livestock business. Davis decided to enter the automobile business.
Davis laughs when he relates how he got in the automobile business, a business in which he spent more than 20 years. Davis said after he left work for the oil company, he was wearing overalls and probably made the best appearance. He told his potential boss that he had been in the automobile business for a while. The man looked Davis over and told him that he was mistaken. They weren't looking for a salesman.
Davis left, went home, changed his clothes and went back and applied again. He talked to the man and got the job. He started selling Studebakers and was successful with that company until 1917.
Eventually, after selling cars, Davis operated an agency in Weiser in 1923 and operated one in Nampa. In 1925 he came to Twin Falls to an American Legion convention. He soon got the agency for Twin Falls and started a marketing business practice that would gain an average person.
After he volunteered in 1917, he was sent to American Lake, Wash., near Seattle, and took several weeks of basic training. After the training, Stockman Davis was attached to the 18th engineers railway in England, and spent the remainder of the war years building ly to find pasture for the sheep's polo string.

In the summer and to take care of the lambing in the early spring, Davis returned to Boise and re-joined Livestock company.
Just before he volunteered for the army in 1917, Davis decided to try his hand at bucking horses. He didn't feel he could cut himself in the true western time he had served some time as a cowboy. He worked on cattle ranches in the Grandview area.
After he volunteered in 1917, he was sent to American Lake, Wash., near Seattle, and took several weeks of basic training. After the training, Stockman Davis was attached to the 18th engineers railway in England, and spent the remainder of the war years building ment areas was cited by Leonard. An average of about 700 persons a month came to the C. J. Strick refuge to southwest Idaho, and an average of just over 600 monthly went to Hingerman in the southern part of the state. This compares with 230 visitors a month at Strick during 1958 and a monthly 480 at Hingerman the same year.

Many people question Leonard about how the development and maintenance of these areas are financed.
"With the exception only of Farragut, all areas qualify for federal aid funds provided under the Pittman-Robertson act. This results from the collection of taxes on firearms and ammunition which is allocated to the states on the basis of the number of licenses sold and land area of the state. The other half of the formula, of course, is in proportion to the number of licenses sold nationally and the land area of the United States."
In other words, federal aid money pays for 75 per cent of the cost of developing and maintaining wildlife management areas in Idaho. Most of these have a year-round manager. Buildings and equipment are provided. Food crops are produced, including grain, corn, alfalfa and grasses. Trees and shrubs are planted. Water treatments for the benefits of wildlife have been provided; others will be.
It should be remembered, however, that these are "people areas" and are not maintained as inviolate "refuges"; these places are serving their full purpose for wildlife plus additional values for human recreation.

Most Serious Jerome County Polo Patient Is Woman, 21

JEROME, Jan. 29—Barbara Rupert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rupert, is the most serious polo patient ever reported in Jerome county. Mrs. Rupert was only 21 years old when she contracted the disease 10 years ago.

For the last year she has been a patient at the Hensager Los Amigos hospital where it cost over $1,500 per month for her care. When she entered Jan. 4, 1929, she had been ill for only two or three years.

Now after extensive surgery with the help of the doctors and nurses at the hospital and the assistance of the National foundation, she is looking forward to a long life.

When Miss Rupert entered the hospital her spine was 12 inches apart. In order for her lungs to have more room to expand, her spine had to be moved over.

Since April she has undergone eight major operations. The first was a tracheotomy, which made an opening at the base of her neck and placed a tube down into her lungs. A tube extending from a portable respirator forces the air into the lungs in the same manner as an iron lung.

The second operation placed a "halo" around her head to which all appliances that were used to straighten her back were fastened. The "halo" was fastened to her head by placing three steel pins into the skull. A "halo" also was placed around her hips with the pins into her hip bones to hold the apparatus in place.

Her progress in this case nine months. During this period she had three or four spinal fusions. Life membership.

They're Learning How American Economy Works

Three students from the "consumer's economy" class at Twin Falls high school look over the Wall Street Journal, just one of the many periodicals they read in addition to their regular textbook. This is the second year the class has investigated a trust fund in the stock market. This gives them first-hand knowledge of how the American economy works. (Staff photo-engraving)

Investments seriously, often studying the stocks for weeks before buying, and they tend to choose stable, conservative stocks. . . Mrs. Anderson points out that the trust fund enables the students to feel the pulse of the American economy and get a strong, sincere interest in just how the economy works. They are learning out of a book in class, but also are being acquainted with the stock market. . . In class the students don't study stocks alone. Mrs. Anderson says the first three weeks are devoted to a general introduction to economic. This is followed by money management practices, such as budgeting and saving. Later they study the structure of corporations and how a business is set up. Early in December the class is introduced to the stock market. The course continues to dip into every phase of economics, but about one day a week, is devoted to study of a stock market. . . The students make reports and are urged to follow the stock market in newspapers and in specialized magazines. One of the first projects of the student is to choose 10 stocks that interest him. He then follows these stocks just as if he was going to buy them or actually own them. He charts the progress of the stocks. . . The first semester assignment is to turn in a report and show when he bought the stocks, what each stock had done each week, and when he chose to sell them, and then determine whether he made a profit or loss on the 10 stocks. The report paper at the end of the year is similar, but charts the history of one particular stock. At the mid-year semester students turn in a project that analyzes the financial statement of the company they choose for their final project. . . Mrs. Anderson says that the class is unappreciated. ### Consumer Economics Class Gets Close Look at Works for American Business

Students in Mr. William H. Anderson's "consumer's economy" class at Twin Falls high school are getting a glimpse look at American business and are noting how the American free enterprise system works. . . Through the donation of a secret benefactor, the students are continuing to invest money in a stock market, and are learning about the stock market by doing. . . A $5,000 trust fund was set up for the high school students to invest investment money more than a year ago. The trustees of the fund are officials of the Twin Falls Bank and Trust company. This is the second year for the class and the class now has about $2,500 of the $5,000 invested in diversified stocks—two chemicals, five industrials, and one railroad. . . At the end of the 1937 school term, last year's class had purchased four different stocks—10 shares of Boeing airplane corporation, 10 shares of Burroughs corporation, 10 shares of Idaho Power, and five shares of Eli Lilly company. . . This fall the class elected to add the five shares of Eli Lilly and buy five additional stocks—10 shares of Gillette Chemical corporation and five shares of Gillette company, five shares of Montgomery Ward, five shares of Tullock Chemical corporation and 10 shares of Allegheny corporation. The additional shares were purchased in late December, just before the end of the semester. . . Mrs. Anderson says because the class elected to buy these particular stocks doesn't mean the class particularly endorses them or that they are necessarily outstanding investments. They are simply stocks that interested beginning students in the stock market. She emphasizes that the company they should use their own judgment in buying stocks. . . There are 22 junior and senior students in the class, seven girls and 25 boys. Students in last year's class purchased four stocks by the end of the semester. This year, the students, deciding by majority vote, with the approval of the trustee board at their bank, have bought the following stocks and now enjoy a 53 per cent net gain. . . OR, the whole, according to Mrs. Anderson, the students take the

Mrs. Anderson says several students from last year's class write frequently and inquire about the stocks and several more visited her during Christmas vacation. . . Right now the students are keeping a watchful eye on the eight stocks they own and are prepared to sell or retain them, depending on the stock market. . . Mrs. Anderson smiles and says, "We'll do what a prudent man would do when dealing with his own securities."
