Soviets Agree to Sign Nuclear Plan With Big Three if Promise Made

GENEVA, March 19 (AP)—With a big if, the Soviet Union offered today to sign a treaty proposed by President Eisenhower to ban all Big Three nuclear tests except low-powered blasts underground. The big condition was that the United States and Britain must join the Soviet Union in a promise to refrain indefinitely from conducting the small underground blasts. This would be an honor system arrangement, the proposal was said by the Soviet ambassador, Vyacheslav Molotov.

Seymour K. Tsingkinis announced the change of front at a special meeting of the three-power nuclear conference, which he presided over. He said the government would make the treaty subject to a special meeting within a few weeks.

U. S. Ambassador James G. Wadsworth and British Minister of State David Green also described Tsingkinis' move as a serious attempt to break the conference deadlock. They promised that the government would make the treaty subject to a special meeting within a few weeks.

This was the first time in almost 17 months of negotiation that the Soviet government has expressed willingness to enter into a partial truce.

The small underground explosions which would be prohibited by the treaty would be prohibited by the treaty.

Solons Back Changes for Grazing Act

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP)—An amendment to slow stock grazers to contest interior department decisions in local federal courts is being co-sponsored by Utah and Idaho senators.

Sen. Frank Moss, D., Utah; Henry Dvorak, H., Ida; and Frank Church, D., Ida, are backing the proposed amendment to the Taylor grazing act.

Under present regulations, appeals based on decisions of Interior department involving federal grazing lands must be taken to District of Columbia courts.

Moss said this involves too much time, distance and expense for most grazers, and thus they are denied their day in court.

The senator said witnesses appearing in Pull, Ida, hearing in January asked for a change in the court procedure so they might contest the decisions in courts closer to their homes.

Moss pointed out that nearly all the people involved in such actions, including those from the interior department, live in the local area.

Plea Is Made For Residents To Top Quota

Twin Falls Red Cross blood donors Dr. Harvey Van Wieren, Saturday expressed hope that residents would again top their quota at Sunday's bloodmobile visit as they did in January.

"With a rather pathetic record in 1950 of using about 600 units more than we provided, we are most anxious to fill our own blood needs," Dr. Van Wieren stated.

The January bloodmobile visit netted 215 units in Twin Falls, and Dr. Wieren stated that Twin Falls should be able to provide more than 200 units per visit, especially in view of the fact that they consistently used a great deal more of the rate O-negative type blood than is provided by local donors.

"We have had shortages of this type of blood and will need it especially early in the next O-negative bloodmobile visit," he said.

Long Service Of Red Cross Women Seen

More than 45 years of volunteer service to the local chapter of the American Red Cross was acknowledged by chapter officials with presentation of 15-year service pins to Mrs. Howard W. Gillette, Mrs. Jane Wiersching and Mrs. Richard Clark by the chapter chairman, A. F. Nelson.

The three women have worked in the Red Cross volunteer, nursing program, first aid and blood program. All have assisted with the bloodmobile, both during the war, for the armed services, and since Twin Falls joined the regional program in 1958.

Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Gillette completed the Red Cross volunteer nurse aid course in 1952 and worked three days a week at the hospital all during the war and on through the nursing absence, without pay.

They also have assisted with crippled children's clinics, and other voluntary services. Mrs. George Glavinis and Mrs. Sidney Elliott also have served 15 years. Mrs. Alvie Knight also was recognized for 15 years in the home nursing program and Mrs. Weldon Hoskins in the nurse recruitment work.

While the chapter has only one part-time paid worker, hundreds of hours service are given in the community through the numerous programs carried on by volunteers.

Nelson pointed out that a detailed study of Red Cross services was made by Theodora Hanner, former chairman of the board of Mrs. Hochback and company, who reports that $30 of service results from the volunteer program for every $5 contribution to the Red Cross. Hanner is national chairman for the 1959 American Red Cross national fund campaign.

FEDERAL AID, ROTTING DOLLARS

The reason for taking advantage of this opportunity to pick up $10,000 of federal money...

It will do no harm, however, in pointing out to the people of this vicinity that there's another side to the story.

With a total budget of approximately 14 million dollars...

So it's a question of whether there was a pressing need for this additional amount...

Did the board's action follow out the over-worked line of reasoning that "if we don't take the money, somebody else will get it?"

To protect the "other" side of this story a little further, let's ponder what Lyle C. Wilson, United Press International correspondent...

"War and the welfare state," he wrote "are an expensive combination. (But) ask any taxpayer why his taxes are so high and why government deficits are so frequent and you are pretty sure to get the wrong answer."

"The domestic-civilian spending figure for fiscal year 1961 represents an 86 per cent increase since the Korean war. In the same period, defense spending will have increased only one per cent!"

"THE BIG BUCKS ARE SPENDING OVER THE PAST 10 YEARS IS ACCOUNTED FOR BY THE COST OF WHAT THE TAXPAYERS OR THE POLITICIANS, OR BOTH, INSIST THAT GOVERNMENT MUST SPEND DIRECTLY OR INDIRECTLY ON THE PART OF U. S. CITIZENS."

Wilson describes all this sort of thing as a "heads-I-win-tails-you-lose" proposition so far as the taxpayer is concerned.

"Another 30 years of such," says Wilson, and the U. S. taxpayer will be done in. The United States will be done in with him. Deficit spending, which has afflicted this nation for more than 30 years, is the basic cause of the rotting of the U. S. dollar, more often called currency inflation.

"The U. S. dollar lost half of its purchasing power—its value—in the 20 years 1939-59. In comparison to 1939, the U. S. dollar is worth less than 50 cents today."

"It has been demonstrated that an economy-minded president cannot impose economy on the U. S. government. It has been demonstrated that the taxpayer-voters prefer in congress legislators who are committed to more and more instead of less and less spending."

Or, as we like to see it, the U. S. dollar continue to rot with ever-increasing inflation, until the taxpayers and the United States are "done in," there's no point in thinking about such things as the school board's action in getting $10,000 from the federal government—a relatively small amount which probably could have gotten along without.

It's quite amusing, however, to witness the pressures that are turned on to influence the acceptance of even such piddling amounts of federal aid as was apparent in this particular instance.

It demonstrates the kind of thinking that plays right into bureaucracy's hands. So long as opportunities are identified and politicians can perpetuate themselves in office by playing us for chumps, by making us believe we are getting something for nothing, we'll be moving toward the end that Wilson predicts.

When some young men go into a barber-shop for a haircut they look like they need an oil change.

THE VALUE OF TIME

A Massachusetts court has ruled that a trust fund left by Benjamin Franklin for the benefit of Boston and the state must keep an accumulating office building in Worcester's largest city since 1941.

DISASTROUS IN ALL S. A. COUNTRIES

However, the austerity programs which some of the governments are introducing in accord with the requirements of American investors, public aid and the free economy, there is, in spite of the fact of coming elections, no doubt that the people are suffering.

Views of Others

According to a Milwaukee Journal editorial, the state of Wisconsin began thinking about building an office building in Wisconsin's largest city since 1941.

"Worst roads in the world, but this new Chevy takes all the roughness out!" Out near Wathena, Kansas, farmer Bill Rounly tends 800 acres with only one helper—the 1959 Chevrolet pickup. The truck almost never runs on Kansas' fine state highways—itstead it averages about 2,500 miles a month on unimproved back-country trails or on bauld into the fields of the road. "In my book, these are the worst roads in the world," Mr. Rounly says, "but this new Chevy takes all the roughness out. It doesn't lurch or whip around like other trucks — I can steer it with one finger!" They're speaking right up, these owners of 100 Chevrolets. Everywhere you go, they're giving out glowing reports on a revolutionary new truck ride that leads to a bigger day's work at less expense, getting back home that knows the most about saving money. It's Chevy's total prowess they're talking about. And you'll be doing, too, once you turn a new Chevrolet loose on your money run. Your dealer can get you started, right away! If you take Chevy's new Torjon-Spring Ride to smooth out a road like this!

Castleford Justice of Peace Explains Law, Urges Support

Editor, Times-News: I was glad to read the article in the March 15 issue of the Times-News regarding the Castleford justice of peace. ## Jerome Man Takes Issue With Idaho Power Figures on Dam

Editor, Times-News: This letter is in answer to the speech given by the Idaho Power representative, Hal Walker, to the Jerome Chamber of Commerce and Jerome County Road and Gun club on March 15.

I do not feel that the facts regarding the dam in Idaho Power's multiple Snake river project have been adequately explained to the public.

The following are points of disagreement with statements made by Mr. Walker:

The statement that had the high hills canyon dam been built there would have been no flooding is irrelevant, because there is no high hills canyon dam. And one who has been to the site knows there was no provision for fish passage.

A contributing factor toward the Idaho Power company receiving the license for the present dam was the support of the fisheries agencies and organized sportsmen who are in Idaho Power company's interest.

It is a fact that the dam will be built on the Snake river, and the dam will be built on the Snake river, and the dam will be built on the Snake river.

Rock Creek Project Praised; I. T. Creed's 'Dream' Lauded

Deferred Jail Term Started By Buhl Man

Elmer Jackson Tramel, 21, Buhl, was committed to the Twin Falls county jail Saturday morning when Police Judge J. O. Pumphrey deferred judgment on a petty plea by Tramel to malicious injury to property.

Tramel was committed to jail in lieu of $100 bond set by Judge Pumphrey. He was arrested Saturday in Kimberly on a warrant issued March 7 by Judge Pumphrey.

Tramel was charged in the warrant with breaking a door window with a beer bottle at the Royal Lounge March 5. The charge said Tramel was asked to leave the lounge by the owner, Ronald Milton, and after leaving the building he threw the bottle through the door glass. The window was valued at $15.87.

Police court records reveal that Tramel was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail Oct. 4, 1959, for disturbing the peace. He was paroled after serving a short time and then arrested again for violating parole and eventually served the entire sentence.

On Jan. 17, 1960, Tramel was convicted of malicious injury to property at the Perrine hotel and fined $50 and costs. He served two days in jail before paying the remainder of the fine.

Ingenuity Transforms Hat Into Becoming Style

Mrs. William Grange is adding the finishing touches to a hat she restyled for Mrs. James Rude. The hat was remodeled into a completely different style after steaming by stretching and shaping over a hat block. Mrs. Grange notes that felt is very flexible when damp and by repeated steaming and pulling it will work into almost any desired size and shape. She compares the process to molding a piece of clay. Steam, she says, should never be dampened, only stretched. (Staff photo-entourage)

Outmoded Chapeaux Are Restyled by Mrs. Grange

One sign of approaching spring is when a woman's fancy turns to hats. When this happened to a group of women, the Merry Martini's Home Demonstration club, they had Mrs. William Grange show them how to make a new Easter bonnet out of last year's outmoded chapeaux.

Mrs. Grange, a professional in several fields, much prefers to do anything on an amateur basis and experiments in her own way. Millinery is a perfect outlet for this. Her millinery projects are not limited to experiments in styling but also call for improvement in methods. Steam is the most essential thing in restyling a hat. At home she uses a kettle in the kitchen. Demonstrations ending up in a kitchen have proved a crowd posed a problem so she came up with the idea of using an old electric coffee pot to provide the steam.

Steam or water is the only means of blocking a felt hat along with much pulling and stretching. The better the felt, the more can be done with it. A hat block is another necessity. But since felt have access to one, Mrs. Grange suggests a kitchen bowl padded into the right size and shape with cotton and covered with aluminum foil.

She notes that felt is extremely flexible when damp and by repeated steaming and pulling it will work into almost any desired size and shape. She compares the process to molding a piece of clay. Felt even can be worked thoroughly under a tap and re-shaped and dried on the block, although this takes much longer. Men's leather hats will reblock and make a nice hat, but most men's hats are too heavy. An old felt hat can be made into a crowned hat with a brim by this process. To do this Mrs. Grange puts a rubber jar rim on top of the hat block to make a circular rim at the top and adds a bit of braid at the crown and steam it just enough so it doesn't puff up too much at the top.

worked in an exclusive dress shop in Salt Lake City, where they had their own shop. They moved in 1953 to Twin Falls. She has given many demonstrations in leatherwork, chair upholstery, flower arranging and millinery. She and her husband have instructed leatherwork classes in ceramics as a hobby. Mrs. Grange also has taught classes in textile arts and their work when it was the Vogue.

Grange and cooking are her favorite things. She and her husband landscaped their yard. They are of the opinion a lawn is the best thing to have. They planted lots of flowers. Mrs. Grange also raises African violets because she can experiment with them and they do not have a dormant period. Experimenting with anything never brings discouraging results.

She upholsters and slips covers furniture, makes the drapes and does things for their home, such as her own clothes, including coats. Her affinity for experimentation runs into a lot of entertaining. When the current magazines arrive in the mail she avidly reads the food sections, finds a recipe that sounds impossible or outlandish, makes it and tries it out. Her husband's standard comment when a strange dish is set before him is, "This out of a book and it to eat, or did you experiment with it?"

Lutheran Students Receive Help From Teacher

Pauline Fraun, elementary school teacher at Clover Lutheran school, helps students during class. The school has been operated since the Clover track was opened and now has an enrollment of 81 students, grades one through eighth. Any student in the area, regardless of religion, can attend the school tuition free. The school is operated like any public school, except one hour of religion is taught each day. The school is financed by free-will donations of the Clover Trinity church. (Staff photo-engraving)

Clover Community Prospers With Close-Knit Church, School Unity

CLOVER, March 19.—One of the rural life reminiscent of the early Magic Valley is Clover. Located seven miles southwest of Filer, the community maintains the close-knit religious, social and intellectual life of the early church and the Lutheran school. The church is the Clover Trinity Lutheran church. In an age when urbanization draws the farm population from the countryside, many rural churches divide in membership.

New Tuberculosis Group Formed for Magic Valley

A new tuberculosis association, which in the course of time, will extend the work of the present tuberculosis associations. The officers elected are: Harold Butler, Blaine, president; Mrs. Sidney Knight, Twin Falls, vice president; Mrs. M. H. Manning, Burley, secretary; and Mary Moeller, Jerome, treasurer. Elected directors are: Mrs. C. M. Manning, Burley; Mrs. Clyde Gooding, Pocatello; Mrs. Russell, Jerome; Mrs. Victor Carl, Pocatello; Mrs. Ebert, Pocatello; Mrs. D. H. Blumaine, Shoshone. The first three persons were elected for a one-year term and the remainder for two years. Butler will serve as chairman of the board. Also present at the meeting were Frances Goodwin, Boise, executive secretary of the Idaho Tuberculosis association, and Mrs. Florence Able, program director of the association. They gave guidance in forming the new group. According to Mrs. Knight, who is also the public health nursing supervisor of the southcentral health department, the new association will bring the programs of the different counties under one administration, with a representative from each county, and tend to facilitate the efforts of each county. The counties have worked together on a more informal basis for some time, but this is the first time they have formed a corporation. In 1926 they purchased a mobile X-ray unit and have car-

Local Siamese Cat Sports Gold Tooth After One Big Night Out

Sam, a Siamese cat owned by the Gordon Edgars family in Twin Falls, has a gold tooth. It's not just a little tooth, or a filling, but a huge gold fang. And Sam is a black-headed Siamese; that is, a Siamese with a black face and gold teeth. It's always visible. Sam seems a little proud, especially with a dish of concert. Mrs. Edgar says about a year ago, when Sam was 2 years old, he went out one night a feral cat and returned home next morning in an advanced state of disrepair. It was obvious he had been chewed upon from the tip of his tail to the end of his nose. The tip of his tail was missing, but the area around his nose got the brunt of the chewing. His jaw was broken and his left front leg was chipped.

Sam injured about the time he served days. Mrs. Edgar says he wouldn't eat properly and couldn't drink water. He favored the chipped leg. The Edgars family realized the chipped tooth was tender and Sam was not eating properly. Sam didn't get any better and lost weight. His pride suffered. With a broken tooth, his defenses were down, so action was needed. The Edgars consulted a dental friend. The solution was simple, he said, make Sam a gold tooth. So Sam was carried off to the office and while the family held the fangs, an impression was made. Within a week Sam had a new, decorated tooth. Sam soon regained his appetite, thrust and composure. The big gold fang protruded from his lip and visitors made over the black-fanged cat. For several days he just sat around and licked the fang tooth, unaccustomed to its size. Now he likes it and even sleeps on his back with the tooth protruding for all to see. As Sam was being wrestled about to have his picture taken, it was discovered that he had lost his other fang. So now Sam faces public scorn with the dentist. Of course, there's the possibility he broke the other fang so he would get another gold tooth.

Sam, the crossed-eyed Siamese cat, has a gold tooth. It replaces the real tooth he lost last year in a midnight scuffle with an unknown bigger-than-Sam animal. (Staff photo-engraving)

Low-Geared Machine Designed for Mountain Trails

Motor Scooter Designed for Use On Byways and Mountain Slopes

Donald Baldwin, shop foreman at the Palouse Equipment company, demonstrates a Trail Cycle he has built. It is a low-geared, rugged little machine adaptable for mountain trails. Baldwin hopes to have the Trail Cycle on the market by April 15. It is a specially built motor scooter designed for the byways and mountain trails. It weighs about 120 pounds and will carry a wheel and a deer over mountain trails. It is geared to tackle steep, narrow, it will go places the large-geared common to the trails and rider. Baldwin negotiates a 200-pound buck could be packed over average mountain trails on the scooter. The Trail Cycle is able to do this because of the low gear ratio. And a three-horsepower, four-cylinder engine. They have an automatic centrifugal clutch that works through a two-speed gear box. The machine is geared so low to give the front tire the can be placed against an immovable object and not a deer and rider. Baldwin will

ROOMS GET INTO RUTS, TOO

Especially bedrooms. Too many of us cling to the outmoded idea that the bedroom should be done in pastels with timid print fabrics for accent. True, some effective rooms are created from this formula if originality of treatment is insisted. But all too often a nondescript run-of-the-mill room results, and this kind of room does nothing for your morale... Your bedroom is the most personal room in your home and should bear the imprint of your personality just as definitely as your most personal possessions do. Besides comfort and convenience, it should offer you a restful haven where you can withdraw in peace and serenity—a place that seems with the colors vibrant or subdued, that give YOU a sense of well being and security. The bedroom sketched above is restful and attractive in the atmosphere of today, matching wallpaper and fabric in tones of sandalwood brown and cream create a pleasing uninterrupted background which plays up the elegance of the gold-tooled ivory leopards furniture. Natural finish wood would be equally effective in this setting. Wall-to-wall carpeting in creamy beige. Pictures matted in corn-flower blue and striking color accent... You'll find all the furnishings for the bedroom that matches your dreams in our new bedroom groupings. Modern, traditional and Provincial styles. Every piece in every size an example of excellent design, masterful craftsmanship and outstanding value.

Large Machine Used in Harvest of Green Peas

Paul Wood, Butley, fieldman for the California Packing corporation, stands by the large cylinder of a pea de-viner. The draper has been removed for the winter, but the cylinder turns, and the rubber rolls assist in breaking the peas out of the pods, the peas sliding down a canvas into small hoppers and into small bins placed beneath.

New Cannery Operation Scheduled in Murtaugh-Hansen Region This Season

A new cannery pea operation has been planned for the Murtaugh-Hansen area this season. The company that has contracted farmers to raise green peas for them is California Packing corporation, with district plant facilities at Frankfort.

About all the necessary acreage for this year's crop has been signed up already, says the company fieldman, Paul Wood. He will talk with interested farmers within the area about next season's crop.

According to Wood, the green peas raised for the canning process are mostly Perfections, and are harvested by company crews and machines about one month earlier than dry peas.

Normally, harvesting begins toward the end of June and is completed before August. Payment for the crop is also early, said Wood. The contract reads that payment for the green peas will be made by Sept. 21, but usually farmers are paid before the end of August.

The crop is given like dry peas on similar ground, but with about five bushels of seed planted to the acre. The peas are raised on the rigations to bring the crop to the desired stages for harvest. He is already uniform watering so the entire field will bear the same grade of peas.

There are 12 grades, with the degree of maturity determining the particular grade assigned to a truckload. Wood said that although No. 1 grade warrants the largest price per ton, the company plants that grade 5 to 7 return the highest yields to the farmer and still qualify for top canning projects. The farmer also has contracted farmers to raise green peas for them in California Packing corporation, with district plant facilities at Frankfort.

In the Burley area, where the crop has been raised for the company, known also as CalPac, the past four seasons, the average yield to the farmer has been $80 per ton.

Wood said a good farmer can net $100 an acre from the company. This figure is the return after seed and harvest costs have been deducted from the crop. The timing is also ideal for seeding the ground, he added.

The crop is stagger-planted and then harvested by company personnel in two work shifts. The crop is cut and brought into the area where the peas are located between early evening and noon of the following day, about 10 hours.

A large labor crew is required to perform all the operations during this time, said Wood. The crop is cut by small swathers mounted behind tractors, which in turn are driven backwards.

Wood said the peas are then loaded on trucks which haul them to a silage stack. The vines and leaves go to another side, up a conveyor and down to a silage stack.

He also said from 40 to 50 men work at the stationary pea viner, forking and making a silage stack, including the men on the tractors, maintenance men, truck drivers, 80 to 100 men are required.

At Butley, 16 pea viners are placed on blocks for the harvest, with CalPac through its brand tractor is favored, the driver's seat are expected in the Murtaugh-Hansen area, and so far it is expected they will be placed south of Murtaugh lake. Wood said he had attempted to keep the contracted areas within a nine-mile radius of where the stationaries, will be maintained.

CalPac has contracted about twice the acreage this year as in 1949. The farmer's total share of each dollar grocery customer spent for beef and pork declined last year, the agriculture department reported today.

Of each dollar consumer's pork bill in 1949, farmers got 62 cents compared with 63 cents in 1948. Farmers got only 48 cents of shoppers' pork dollar last year—an all-time low—compared with 57 cents in 1949.

The foreign agricultural service (FAS) reports U. S. imports of livestock, meat and meat products, excluding wool, totaled 551 million dollars last year. Exports of these commodities amounted to 330 million dollars. The imports were 3 per cent more than 1948 and 11 per cent above the 1951-55 average.

The agency said these changes reduced net imports of livestock, meat, and meat products from 228 million dollars in 1949 to 215 million dollars in 1949. The FAS said this improvement in the U. S. import-export balance was expected to continue during 1950.

The field superintendent for CalPac in southern Idaho is Clayton Allan, Frankfort. The Mountain states division office is located at Ogden and the western states office is located in San Francisco.

According to Wood, the Mountain states division is the largest processor of canned vegetables in the two states. The company is the largest canner of fruits and vegetables in the world, and has offices across the United States in Hawaii.

Most people are more familiar with CalPac through its brand marketing name, Del Monte.

Farmers Will Have to Make Decisions For Planting Wheat in Mixed Grains

Farmers will be on their own this year in determining how many pounds of wheat to plant with their mixed grains. Various opinions have been offered but as yet no one will stick his neck out and state what the planting mixture should be.

The responsibility apparently rests with the grain division of the U. S. department of agriculture, which has laid down next year's rules without recommending how the farmer is going to comply and still get maximum returns. Some farmers are expected not to buy any mixed grain for their cattle next year unless it has a good percentage of wheat. They are expected to avoid any mixed grain made up only of barley and oats.

Some farmers plan to skip planting any mixed grain to avoid any potential trouble. The irony of the situation is that when the mixture could contain 50 per cent wheat, then a 30 per cent mixture was assumed at planting.

Many Phases of County Weed Problem Aired at Meet of Weed Bureau, Groups

Many aspects of the weed problem were thoroughly aired at a recent meeting of the Twin Falls county weed bureau with the farm advisory board and members of the ASC committee.

The subjects ranged from testing the strength of sprays to methods required to get cost-sharing funds on the individual farm from the local ASC board.

Ultimate Needed First

Carl Boyd and Homer Lutz, of the ASC office, stated any farm-level chemical must first be written estimate of needs from weed director, Twin Falls county weed director, upon receiving the written estimate, the ASC will allocate funds for the cost of the chemicals and will pay for one-half of the total amount. Last year the limit was $100 per farm, but this year the amount may be increased, said Boyd.

Purpose behind this procedure is to avoid situations where a farmer last year when some farmer might apply for 200 gallons of 2, 4-D and lose only five dollars in seed money. Money was then tied up that might have been allotted to another farm.

Caution Urged

Warren Dashi, county extension agent, stressed later that farmers should be particularly cautious about getting clean, certified seed for their crop plants. He said the situation is particularly bad in the purchase of non-certified legumes and grasses.

The sources of weeds are wind, seed in the soil, and feed. Farmers should make every effort to know what they can about preventing spread of weeds, he added.

He pointed out that farmers who reduce crop yields an average of 10 per cent, waste water during the heat of summer, and reduce the need for cultivation. Estimates place 20 per cent of the row crop cultivations on the need for weed control.

In addition, weeds are host plants for destructive insects, such as the Colorado potato beetle on nightshade.

Law Professor Cited

County Commissioner Harold Lancaster, chairman of the weed bureau, pointed out that farmers who noxious weeds go to seed is actually illegal, according to Idaho law. He said also that seed dealers who have some relation to public health, particularly with reference to people with allergies and sinus difficulties.

He pointed out how essential a good highway program is to control weeds, too, and in preventing obscuring regulatory signs.

It is also a matter of simple economics, Lancaster said, to clean up weeds on the farms. He offered the example of the weed control program at Drayton, where 2,4-D was used at American farmers 4 billion dollars last year, a sum equal to one-third the national farm income.

Pleased With Program

Warren Lowery, county director, reported the Twin Falls highway department is pleased with the spray program last year and has agreed to participate in the county program again this year. The Rose-Young contract company will handle the county weed bureau spray can banks this year and set aside certain test plots to evaluate which sprays work best under particular conditions.

He discussed with members of the advisory board the state's attitude on spraying waterhats at the head of Snake river, and told of spraying commitments made with the forest service and the bureau of land management.

He then went over the problem some farmers had last season with commercial sprayers whom they suspected of using sprays with less strength than required to kill weeds. He advised that any farmer can take a sample of the spray from the nozzle in an empty bucket and bring it to his office for analysis.

All participating members at the meeting felt this area will avoid "crabgrass" problem if farmers will follow directions on the labels of containers.

Farmers were warned to purchase chemicals only in sealed containers, so they have labels to read. Then they can determine for themselves the exact strength of the material.

"Just because you buy 2,4-D," said one of the advisory board, "doesn't mean you buy the same strength at all places. The strengths vary like they do in fertilizers."

Caution in the manner and time of application of chemicals was stressed by him. As an example, he expressed it, "I would be had if someone used amine in a wheat field, and a federal inspector condemned the entire crop. Any farmer who happens to buy, or buy livestock feed crop."

The bureau now has four tractors mounted with sprayer equipment. New boom are on each with prep: 8000 gallons of material. The accurate calibrations can be made by the field crews.

"Tank Cleaned Out

Solution tanks have been acid-blasted and re-coated with a plastic chemical to prevent corrosion and all the equipment has been re-painted for longer wear. A new case "400" tractor has been replaced by two smaller tractors so that it can cultivate fellow fields as well as spraying before plant emergence.

A new shop also has been constructed at the maintenance yards and this winter the foreman worked on all the machines over in redness at this season's demands; lost or decreased on account of this shop and all other changes," were made at the recommendation of the weed advisory board.

Lowery reports his office has complete weed records on 2,700 farms in Twin Falls county. He made up through the weed sprayings 700 acres were taken out of production in the county last year in the fight against heavy infestations of weeds.

He also reported sales of aminotriazole increased 40 per cent last year and 2,4-D sales increased 15 per cent. He credited the suggestion of the advisory board to have equipment and chemicals placed at convenient points throughout the county.

"If these chemicals had been applied properly, 7,000 acres would have been sprayed last season," Milton Bell, Kimmerly-Hansen, said. "The figure includes railroad spraying contracts, the highway, but even so, it points to how much crop is lost."

An interested visitor at the meeting was Harold Shropshire, Jerome county weed director, who presented the county program there.

Also from the ASC office was Ross Orin, C. Smith, manager of the Green Giant company.

Small talk about the same number of acres has been contracted last year.

Some 1,200 acres of grain were turned down, mostly on account of wild oats, and 300 acres of beans were rejected for other weeds.

Lancaster said there is a 4 mill levy for county weed operations. The balance of the money needed to fight weeds in the county is made up through the weed sprayings and the sale of chemicals. The man with weeds is paying the bill against heavy infestations of weeds.

Weeds Cost Seed Grower at Least $30,000 in Year

Weeds cost at least $30,000 in the pocket of Idaho seed growers last year.

The Idaho Crop Improvement association reports 2,000 acres of seed crops were rejected in 1959, only because of weeds.

In red clover fields, 400 acres were rejected on account of dodder, buckhorn and yellow trefoil. Of 6700 acres of grasses, 462 acres were rejected mainly on account of Canadian thistle and quack grass.

Some 1,200 acres of grain were turned down, mostly on account of wild oats, and 300 acres of beans were rejected for other weeds.

Welcome Mat Is Advised for Lady Beetle When She Shows

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP)—The agriculture department advises gardeners to roll out the welcome mat for the lady beetle when she shows up in the spring.

The lady beetle helps keep the garden clean by eating destructive aphids, scales and other soft-bodied plant-feeding insects. Both the larva and the adult lady beetle devour the fast-multiplying aphids.

The most familiar lady beetle are bright reddish-yellow with one or more black spots on each side of the back, and the black ones, which have four or more white spots. They sell themselves in the numerous tiny black varieties.

Many of the lady beetles are native to the United States. But

Increases Noted In World Trade Of Wool in 1959

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP)—The agriculture department says world trade in raw wool and wool products increased substantially in 1959 in contrast to the severe declines in 1958.

All segments of the world wool industry gained significantly in 1959, the department said in its publication, "The Wool Situation."

Although most prices in world markets had eased in recent weeks, they have been relatively firm since early last fall as a result of the good demand for the wool.

Prices now are considerably above a year ago when they were at a post-World War I low. A few minor adjustments in price levels occurred as demand and supplies

Meat Grading System Is Criticized for Fat Basis

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP)—The American Meat Institute (AMI) says the meat industry takes a dim view of the government's new meat grading system of red meat because it is based on an "outdated" concept that the fatter the animal, the better.

From the consumer standpoint, the fatter animal is not the best, AMI President H. R. Davidson told a lunch group here. "But the government grades meat on the basis of fat," he said.

Davidson said the two things the housewife wants most in return for the 25 per cent of her food budget that she spends for meat are tenderness and a minimum of fat.

"Excessive fat production is an economic waste," Davidson said. "Present grading systems set a target for the producer which doesn't really reflect the consumer's desire," Davidson added.

The retailer complains about fat, but he still tends to want to use

Athletics Part of Curriculum at Church School at Clover

Athletes play an important role in the curriculum of the Clover Lutheran school. The school has a fully-developed intra-mural and inter-school athletic program for the elementary and Junior high school students. (Continued From Page 19) power of the word will draw people to our church and our parish."

The school also is a binding force. Students get interested in school and church activities, and then parents often become interested, too.

"One of the most active organizations within the church is the Lutheran Laymen's League, a 50-member group composed of adult men members of the church. It meets at 8 p.m. on the third Wednesday of each month at the school. The national organization sponsors the Lutheran Hour, a Sunday radio program. It also helps sponsor the Lutheran church camp, Camp Perkin, near Alturas lake. The camp was started about five years ago. It serves as a place for conventions, leadership training conferences, and other church activities.

Laymen help set up the program for the camp, lay out the summer program, and help finance the program.

The league sponsors athletic teams within the school. The school encourages students to take part in athletics and the students are active in touch football, basketball, baseball and track.

Members of the league turn out for work programs during the year. They recently completed the terrace next door to the school and they turn out annually to paint and refinish different sections of the school and church.

"These men are good workers," the Rev. Mr. Loser says. "They do their own work and readily turn out for four times a year. And when they get going, it doesn't take long to get the job done."

But the work isn't limited to working on the church and school alone. Where any member of the league has a misfortune, the church and school are there to help. Last year Martin Holten, a long-time member of the league, fractured his leg shortly before spring field work began. In two days, league members turned out with every conceivable kind of help. Holten's fields plowed, fertilized and seeded.

About five years ago John Latz, a member of the league, fractured his leg shortly before spring field work began. In two days, league members turned out with every conceivable kind of help. Holten's fields plowed, fertilized and seeded.

Each year league members have a food drive. The food is sent to the Lutheran school, Camas, Oregon, Portland, to help defray tuition costs for students.

The Lutheran Women's Mission League is another active church organization. This 50-member of

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT

Twin Falls Man Had Lived in Area for Years. When Tract 'Pioneers' Arrived

Pastor Richards was a long-time resident of Magic Valley when "Pioneers" arrived on the Twin Falls tract, Nov. 20, 1925. The notice of the building houses in Coeur d'Alene had started his business before the turn of the century.

Since 1926 he has been a partner in the business. He was transferred to the 20th floor in 1928. Richards later was a bookkeeper for the 20th floor. Shortly before the building houses in Coeur d'Alene had started his business before the turn of the century.

PARKER RICHARDS

About this same time, in 1898, Richards bought an 80-acre farm. He paid for it by clearing sheep. It was his first business. He then operated about the fastest and most successful sheep-shedding outfit in the Magic Valley. He had a set of business ventures that would leave his mark on the Coeur d'Alene area.

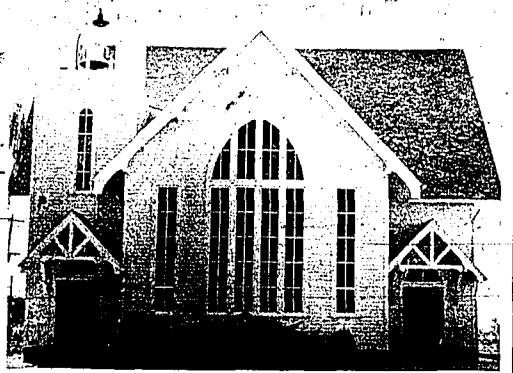

"The business contribution" he made to the community around here was the first hotel. He built the family lived on a farm for a year and then moved to Coeur d'Alene. There he built a permanent frame building in the town, Richards says. "When we first moved there, there were no frame houses, just the log houses with the sod roofs. We soon changed that."

The family built a large frame house with a lively stable and open to the public. Richards had the first hotel in that part of the country.

When the harvest season was finished he set work contracts in the houses. If he didn't build practically every house in the Coeur d'Alene area, he had a good one for himself. Long ago he had a count of how many frame and concrete houses he had built there. Richards was a busy man.

One day it was standing in front of the building in Coeur d'Alene. "I was waiting for a part to come in for my building. The stage was the first one to come out of the station all morning."

"I was waiting for a part to come in for my building. The stage was the first one to come out of the station all morning."

The Clover Trinity Lutheran church has played a leading role in the Clover tract community. According to the Rev. Carl Loser, pastor of the church, about 85 per cent of the people on the Clover tract are members of the church. The church and the Lutheran school at Clover are both supported by free-will donations of the congregation. (Staff engraving)
