Heavy Truck Damages Are Set in Crash

An astronomical $18,300 in damages resulted early Saturday morning when a tractor and trailer loaded with dairy products left highway 30 on a curve west of Murrieta, slipped through two power poles and some fence posts and rolled on their top on a county road.

The accident scattered dairy products, electric wires and fence posts over a wide area from the point where the tractor and trailer left the road to the point where it stopped.

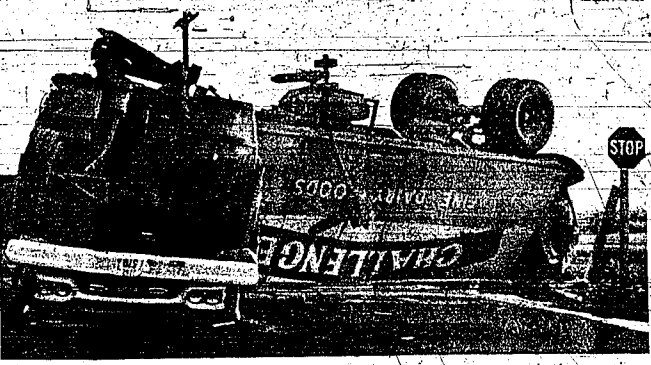

Driver of the 1949 GMC tractor and 1947 Plymouth trailer containing the dairy products made by the Jerome Cooperative Creamery, was Jesse G. Nicholson, Jerome. He was cited by State Patrolman S. D. Luckert for failure to drive reasonably and prudently under existing conditions.

Luckert estimated damage to the tractor at $9,000; trailer, $1,000; products, $1,300, and power lines, poles, fence posts and iron caps, $1,000.

Luckert said the accident apparently happened about 4:30 a.m. Saturday on a curve near the intersection of highway 30 and Artestan road, a county road. He reported the tractor and trailer left the road near the end of the curve and traveled 34 feet before stopping.

In the 34 feet, the tractor and trailer struck the poles, then flipped on their top when they hit the edge of the county road. The tractor and trailer came to rest at the intersection. The force

Fund Need Is Reported for Farm Agency

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—Idaho's agricultural experiment stations at Aberdeen, Caldwell, Parma, Sandpoint, Teton and Twin Falls, urgently need additional funds amounting to $101,000 in 1961, the state agricultural lands-subcommittee has been advised, Sen. Henry Dworshak, R-Id., said today.

For the fiscal year 1960 Idaho received $27,200. Total now sought is $73,800.

An appeal was made to the subcommittee by Dr. Norman Fogel, Purdue university, for $14,000,000 more than for the 1959 fiscal year for the 52 experiment stations in the United States. The President's bid in his budget for only $1,000,000 more.

The need for additional research in agriculture today is just as pressing as the need in any other sector of our economy.

He mentioned research needs in forestry, soil and water conservation.

French Chief Leaves U.S., Heads South

CAVENE, French—Gundar April 30—President Charles de Gaulle, fresh from his 14th tour of the United States and Canada, arrived today for a "welcome" as warm as the tropical temperatures of his French territory on the northeast coast of South America.

Specious plans landed in pouring rain from New Orleans last stop on his U.S. tour. The rain let up as his motorcade headed down a highway bordered by manure and palms to Cavenne, a city of 15,000.

Crowds lined the 10-mile route, cheering and waving. The president stood up in his car and returned the wave.

At the city square, DeGaulle got out of his car and walked through the crowds, grasping outstretched hands and shaking little gifts.

Unusual Breed of Dogs Raised Here

Helen Caudle poses with "Duchess" and "Frosty," 150-pound Great Pyrenees dogs, owned by Miss Caudle and her sister, Gladys Caudle. They have owned "Frosty" right for about four years. "Duchess" who arrived from Massachusetts Wednesday evening, was flown to Havelock, N.C., and was forced to travel by express the remainder of the trip because her crate would not go through the door of the plane. (Staff photo engraving)

Great Pyrenees Dogs Raised By 2 Women in T. F. County

Basqueville Corbelle (Duchess), of the dogs was wagging his tail and a small cackling piglet got caught in the fur. They also said there never has been an incident in history when one of these dogs bit a child. Great Pyrenees dogs usually have large litters of puppies, and make good guard dogs. They are intelligent and very loyal. They are bred to guard sheep and will guard anything in their possession. The dogs are usually a one-family dog. During the war the sisters pointed out, these dogs were trained to carry machine guns and supplies. Unlike most types of dogs, they could be rehabilitated into tame pets after the war. While guarding their owners' possessions, they will jump a person and hold him down, but seldom will hurt the child unless he hurts the dog first. The dogs were only 150 registered Great Pyrenees dogs in the United States in 1939. Some time ago, Gladys Caudle owned a pair of Great Pyrenees dogs named "Duchess" and "Frosty." The physical education department, directed by Mrs. Elizabeth Haggard, will present a variety of folk and square dance numbers. The boys from each grade will present stunts and tumbling routines and the girls from each grade will entertain with folk dances of many nations.

Public Health Officer Gives Special Talk

POCAHONTO, April 30.—The president of the American Public Health association said today in the first annual L. J. Peterson Memorial address to the Idaho Public Health association that the world has become a community and that an infectious disease in one part is a threat to all the world. Dr. Malcolm H. Merrill said that because of this public health has come to adopt the bold concept of total eradication of certain diseases. He said that the first to be attacked in this way, he said, would be malaria. He said that the first step would be to attempt to eradicate malaria by the use of DDT. Bandit Fooled

EFFINGHAM, Ill., April 30.—Clayde Martin, owner of a supermarket, walked through the back door of his home last night carrying two large bags of groceries and one small bag. A masked man appeared, snatched the small bag and fled. The man didn't say a word and mother did it. Martin said. Martin said he believed the bandit, though the small bag contained the day's store receipts. It didn't. All it held was a steak and a piece of cheese.

Bruins Complete Flying Baton Exchange

In addition to the 400-yard relay, there were 100-yard and 200-yard records in the mile medley, which was the last event of the day. It drew most of the attention of the crowd. Shepherd, who won the individual title in 11 feet, 7 1/2 inches cleared 11 feet 7 1/2 inches his second try. He licked the bar on the way down. Shepherd, usually mild as a pole vaulter, on these days, quit after his record; something long, standing 12 feet was all he wanted.

The half-mile record also was shattered but it stayed in the family. Cecil Gertch, who was after a sub-2-minute mark, took the 800 yards in 2:00.8 to break the record. He was followed by his brother, Darrell Gertch, who ran 2:01.2. The latter is currently running for West Point, and has a shot to his credit this season. He was the fourth time the Gertch family has won the 800 record.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 30 (AP)—Four meet records, including a 60-foot, 11 1/2-inch shotput by Bill Nieder in a grudge match, were fashioned today in the 61st Drake relay meet in Des Moines. However, the winning loss was nearly a foot and a half under Nieder's 65-foot, 7-inch effort. Nieder produced another record in the 100-yard dash, running it in 1:07.2. He also broke the 200-yard dash record, running it in 2:14.8. Another shot put giant, Dave Davis, 260-pound, broke the 100-pound shot record, throwing it 61 feet, 8 1/2 inches.

FROM ALL ANGLES

THE HONEY
Doubt the stock of the NCAA during the holidays for punitive action which was rather spectacular and may have over-shadowed what could well be a more important aspect in the field of amateur sports.

In breaking with the AAU over the matter of admitting suspended amateur athletes, particularly in track and field, the NCAA would seem to take a step toward a more sane view toward amateur sports. The NCAA pointed out that it is time for a more liberal policy to be adopted. With the AAU in black and white, a coach who knows when he is tiring with a runner he would become the coach of the AAU.

While the NCAA cited the action of the AAU against two basketball players, the AAU's action was the evulsion of Kansas City's Wes Sauter for receiving more than the minimum amount of money from promoters several years ago.

While the various opinions of the AAU sometimes range far from the AAU's official position of "contamination," under the AAU's thinking, an amateur who competes against a professional athlete is "contaminated" by this competition and therefore loses his amateur status.

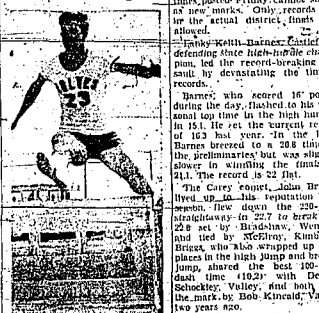

This ranges down from the national scene and into the high school level locally. The state high school boys' basketball team who high school boys to enter such innocent affairs as pro-nations and local tournaments.

There would be some merit behind the idea that high school boys shouldn't team with a professional. It is a commendable idea that high school boys, of course, under the thinking of the AAU and down through the lower levels will be "contaminated," maybe.

Still, the same youth can take lessons from a professional. There is no contamination there. The reason for the competitive amateur standing is it varies with different sports. It is virtually impossible to become a professional in bowling. A pro to that sport is considered one who gives lessons but at the same time, the ranker wishes to compete in a money-making business against "pro" teams in a tournament. Either all amateurs are professionals or else they are not.

The most stringent rules seem to be in tennis where almost anything will make a professional of a player. Basketball seems to be an exact sport to separate the amateur from the pro. Still, college boys are given good-paying jobs by various companies to play semi-professional during the summer and are still eligible for college athletics.

Hurdle Champion

Kimberly Barnhis, defending state high-hurdle champion, led the record-breakers to a victory by devastating the timber record.

Barnhis, who scored 10 points during the day, flashed to his personal top time in the high hurdles in 21.7 seconds, a record that was set by Briggs.

Smith Takes North-South Golf Crown

PINEBLUFF, S. C., April 30.—Charles Smith, riding a "cup" during the afternoon challenge of extra holes, won the North-South Amateur golf tournament 5 and 3 today.

The 10-hole, 360-round Sgull, a Gaitano, N.C., auto dealer, won his first major tournament by pulling up a commanding lead on the back nine of the morning round.

The 18-year-old rival from Princeton, N.C., who led the state high school team, was unable to catch up.

The 7000-yard No. 2 course of the Pinehurst, County club swallowed Smith from a 19-foot hole.

Twelve times he was trapped and he lost nine of the holes, including four of the par three. Smith played out of the sand only twice in the afternoon round.

Medical scores were 76 for Smith and 79 for Green in the first round, against par of 72. For the 36 holes played, Smith was seven over par and Green 13 over.

21 Feet, 1 Inch

John Briggs, the "Crazy Comet," set a record of 21 feet, 1 inch, in the 21-foot hurdle during the day.

Briggs, who scored 10 points during the day, flashed to his personal top time in the high hurdles in 21.7 seconds, a record that was set by Briggs.

Following Wendell in the Northside division were Glenn Perry 5 and 3 today.

I WAS TIRED OF "LIVING ON PEANUTS"

So I Started Reading The Wall Street Journal

I was in a large city. One period of time noticed that when I read the Wall Street Journal, I am better dressed, drive better cars, have better homes and eat in better restaurants.

"I'm tired of living on peanuts," I said to myself. "I'm going to go to the Wall Street Journal and see how it can help."

Well, to make a long story short, I tried it and it DID. Since I started reading the Journal, my income has increased from $9,000 to $14,000 a year.

This story is typical. Because the reports in The Wall Street Journal are so accurate, you get quick warning of any new trend that may affect your income. You get the facts and figures to protect your interests or seize a profit. The Journal is a wonderful aid to salaried men making $7,500 to $25,000 a year. It is valuable to owners of small businesses and to those who are interested in young men.

The Wall Street Journal is the complete guide to the DAILY life largest staff of writers on business and finance. The only publication in the world with three big press associations. It could save a man just one year of his income. He could save three months for $10, just read this aid and check for it. It is available for $1.00. Published daily through the Wall Street Journal, 1640 Market Street, New York, N.Y.

Helping Parents Project Added To 4-H Work; Popularity Gains

One of the newer projects in the area of 4-H is the Helping Mom and Dad project. New within the last year, the project is gaining popularity among members of the various 4-H clubs.

Last year about 25 members of the club participated in the project, and Donald Young, assistant county extension agent, believes there will be more interest in the project during the coming summer.

Young points out the necessity of the time the project's supporters, one that can be applied to any of the major 4-H stock project.

Boys Give Light

The project can be undertaken by both boys and girls. Among the members who engaged in the project last year were about 15 members of the Wale Asak-Livestock club. The project was very successful in teaching 4-H stock projects. The group has under the direction of Mrs. M. J. and Mrs. G. J. Olsen.

Another feature of the project is that it lends itself to younger members who might have trouble wrestling a 100-pound steer.

The beauty of the project, according to Young, is "It fits in with family life. An encouraging boys and girls to take a responsible 4-H project, it is a family life by performing tasks in the home, the house, that have to be done."

Parents Helped

The project consists of helping parents around the home and farm or yard and then compiling a notebook that records just what the member has done.

Since the member plans activities with parents and decides on certain chores that will be done around the home, there is kept a careful record of these chores. They do two of the daily tasks for at least four weeks and one of the weekly or occasional jobs at least 10 times.

The daily tasks include such things as washing dishes, dusting, serving meals, cleaning the refrigerator, caring for plants, cleaning the bathroom, making beds, hanging up clothes, emptying wastebaskets, feeding pet animals, sweeping, cleaning, getting wood, oil, or kindling, and carrying out ashes, cinders or garbage.

Chores Are Done

The weekly or occasional chores are such things as raking leaves, help with the laundry, wash windows, mow lawn, vacuum floor, help with garden and yard watering, and weed garden.

In addition to doing the above, members must show and tell how to do at least one of the above chores with a demonstration talk at a club meeting.

They must also make at least two more or three more such things as a knife rack, bulletin board, long-handled dust pan, spice rack, step shelves, broom cover, clothes pin apron or bag, clothes basket liner, or a cleaning basket or cleaning apron with pockets.

Although some of the chores are household chores, there is nothing about the project that precludes a member from doing them.

This is just one phase of the kind of work 4-H club members can undertake to fulfill requirements for the Helping Mom and Dad 4-H project. Christa Hill, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hill, Hanes, is the table. She is a member of the Sun and Sun 4-H club. Leaders of the club are Mrs. Clarence Hollifield and Mrs. Clarence Stanger. Unusual Stationery Used in Hobby

Mrs. Otto Hill has some of the unusual stationery she uses in her hobby of tracing. One of her family tree. On the outside of the envelope is a poem blessing the receiver of the letter. Mrs. Hill found the poem some years ago, thought it quite nice, and had some special stationery printed to carry her letters to the many persons with whom she corresponds. (Staff photo-entouraging)

Envelopes in Ancestry Research Feature Poem

Probably some of the most interesting of the stationery that Mrs. Otto Hill has made is a hobby of hers. She writes literally hundreds of letters throughout the year to complete, arrange, and make them for information. She has been writing poetry—many—since she was about four years and continues to do so. She has sent about 150 of the letters during that time.

She first read the poem in some literature she received in her genealogy research. She wrote and asked for permission to use it and then had the envelopes printed.

On the envelope is printed a poem, upon which there is a copy of the poem. Mrs. Hill says she likes the intention and sincerity of the poem. She says, "I think I could be a religious message," she says, "and I think it serves the purpose of introducing me as a religious individual."

Interested in the work about 10 years ago, she was born in southern Utah, but her father and mother moved to Idaho and she had never known much about the family. When she was in her thirties she discovered that the family was in the mountains of Idaho during one of Chief John Smith's expeditions.

"She is now in the process of tracing the family back to ancestors in Ireland and France. In her work she writes all types of messages—many and very interesting, courts, judges, lawyers, and even messages to those who are interested in the family's history."

She says it is a satisfying work.

Thousands of Job Seekers Are Processed Annually by Agency

Each year thousands of job-seekers are processed by the Twin Falls branch of the employment security agency. In the calendar year 1949 the office placed 4,000 non-agricultural workers, 35,000 agricultural workers, processed 7,500 new applications for work, counseled 900 workers in job placement and helped them secure text and paid out $26,771 in unemployment compensation.

As the local office manager, J. S. Cutler, says, "It is the purpose of this office to place the right person in the right job." The office, he says, is divided into agricultural and non-agricultural divisions. As claims for unemployment are usually filed in January and February, the office is shifted from unit to unit. The high and low unemployment periods in the office are determined by the weather to a large extent.

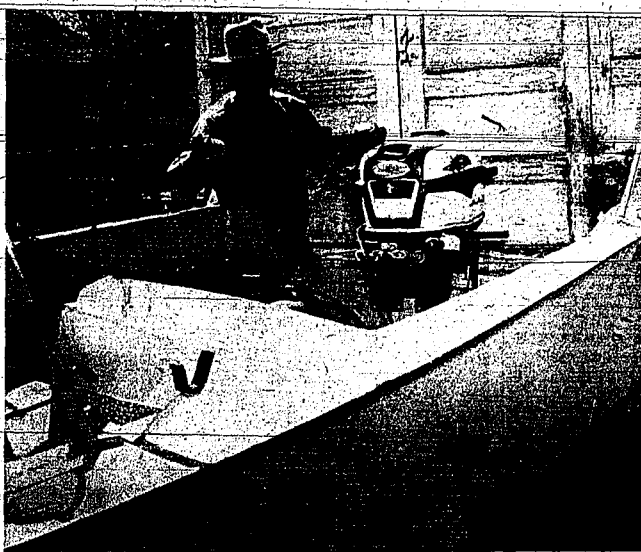

Cutler points out that the high and low periods of employment are rather standard each year. By the middle of November unemployment starts increasing and reaches a peak in late January or early February, and then begins to decline by early April. Claims for unemployment are usually filed in January and February. For this year the highest figure yet and latest available was for January. During that month $42,716 was paid out in 1,274 claims for unemployment compensation. This is a jump over the December total of $35,176 paid out in 779 claims.

Cutler says there was a slight rise in employment in this area over last year. He estimates about 10,000 new jobs were created last year. (Continued on Page 2, Column 1)

Official Ready for Rash of Summer Emergencies

Sheriff James H. Benham places drag line implements in his boat, part of equipment to aid in the event of any type of emergency that might arise in the county during the summer. Each year several persons are injured in water accidents, hiking accidents, hunting misadventures, fires and farm accidents. The accident season is just beginning and Sheriff Benham notes that his office is the first place persons should call for aid when an accident occurs in the county. Staff photo.

Spring Brings Usual Disaster Season; Sheriff Gives Pointers on What to Do

Spring has brought the disaster season. Sheriff James H. Benham notes one of the first things anyone should do in the event of any type of disaster in the county is to call his office and inform either Benham or deputies of the trouble and describe exactly where it is.

Already this spring there has been a drowning, one boy fell in a river, a young boy got lost in back creek canyon, two men were killed in a boat accident, a young boy got lost in back creek canyon. These incidents will continue until the hunting season is over in the fall and the outdoor season draws to a close.

Cope With Lost Children. In the meantime the sheriff's office will cope with lost children, water accidents, both boat accidents and drownings, persons who wander off cliffs, farm accidents, fire, traffic accidents and lost hunters.

Benham says drownings, or near drownings and cliff accidents are two frequent disasters here. He says spring and early summer are the worst times for cliff accidents. People are getting out and hiking. The grass is green and slippery on cliff areas and the frost is leaving, making the ground unstable and rocks fragile. This is a particularly dangerous time to hike in cliff areas.

Make Him Comfortable. Benham says the first thing to do with a victim who has fallen from a cliff is to make him comfortable. Don't move him. Then call the sheriff's office immediately and give an exact description of where the victim is located. The sheriff's office will contact any other needed personnel.

The sheriff explains victims shouldn't be moved, except by trained personnel. The chance of further injury is possible if the victim is moved by someone not acquainted with principles of first aid. The possibility of puncturing a lung with a broken leg, or severing a spinal cord with a broken back is too probable to chance a victim being injured person out of a canyon. Benham says: "Just make them as comfortable as possible and keep them warm and then call our office."

Be Careful on Cliffs. He points out, cliff accidents aren't limited to children and adolescents and everyone should be careful when walking in cliff areas. Young children should be watched carefully when families are on picnics in dangerous areas. With all the water in this area, both natural and irrigation waterways, the chances of a drowning incident are more probable. Unlike the person injured in a fall, the drowning victim must be rescued immediately.

Benham warns that unless the rescuer is a strong swimmer, every effort to aid a drowning person should be done without actually coming into physical contact with the victim. An inflatable swimmer can be pulled under too easily with the victim. Benham says if possible, a pole, rope, or rope extended to the victim is a much better way to pull him from the water.

If possible, nearby swimmers should be taught to "sit in the search. When the accident first occurs someone should call the sheriff's office immediately and give the exact location. The sheriff's office can enlist aid needed, such as fishermen to operate a rescuer or skin divers. If the victim is recovered, artificial respiration should be given until help arrives.

Common Call. Another common call at the office gets in when outdoorsmen are lost in the hills. Benham says most accidents occur during the fall hunting season, although such accidents can happen any time of the year. Benham suggests that the lost per-

CURTAIN CALL

Draperies and curtains play a more significant role in home decoration today than ever before. This is due in a large measure to the importance that draperies and curtains are currently giving windows. Generally speaking, windows are the entire walls, make a room a great deal larger than before and it is not at all uncommon for the entire walls, made of glass. When this occurs, the draperies become an important decorative factor.

When planning your window treatment, it is the general effect you wish to create. If you desire a soft, airy atmosphere, then the draperies will be treated as part of the background color and if pattern is used, it will be identical to the wall color.

If you order a more vivacious effect, you will then treat the draperies as part of the foreground with them.

Bold patterned linen that picks up the colors in the foreground has been used for the draperies in the sitting room attached. One chair cover matches the draperies. Large windows all have been painted white to lighten the room. Other walls are a sea-green which matches the carpet.

Our experienced decorator and available whether you need advice on draperies, color schemes, or the decorating of your complete home. We cordially invite you to avail yourself of this professional service whenever the need arises. Come in for a free consultation.

Cattle Won't Eat Stiff-Wheatgrass Stubble

Cattle Refusal of Crested Wheatgrass Stubble Points to New Grass Problems

A situation arose this spring on the farm owned by Willard Lanting, south of Twin Falls on the Salmon tract when cattle refused to eat crested wheatgrass. The incident points to range management problems that are jumping to various areas as ranchers accumulate experience with newer dryland grasses. This spring Lanting turned his cattle into a large field of crested wheatgrass he had been cutting a few years for seed and the cattle wouldn't touch the stubble. They ate around the clumps of grass, but the stems were new shoots growing, and at some weeds

Weed Director Has Only Two Specific Restrictions on Weed Chemicals Here

Warren Lavery, Twin Falls county-weed director, has been asked by chemical companies for only two specific restrictions pertaining to the use of weed chemicals in this area. The first is that 2,4-D should not be sprayed on grain fields after grain goes into the boot stage and under no circumstances to use this spray for broadleaf weeds after the grain has headed out. It has always been advised, even when the plants are in the boot stage, to use 2,4-D when grain is in the boot stage because lower yields would result. Added now is the warning that spraying with 2,4-D on grain headed may result in a residue in the grain kernels, for which no tolerance has been established by the pure food and drug administration. Lavery stated there are misgivings by some farmers as to what precisely the boot stage of wheat. A glance at a textbook on botany and reference in the dictionary will show that the boot stage for wheat goes into the boot stage

New Grass Seedings Are Advisory Group's Topic

The advisory committee for establishing new seedings of grass to control the pest leathopper, which feeds on the leaves of leathoppers, met Wednesday afternoon at the business of entomology building, Twin Falls. The group included county agents, stock men and representatives of federal and state government agencies. Joe Pailin, Boise state supervisor for the bureau of land management, said the meeting was called to receive and hear discussions from the point of view of the various agencies. Pailin said last year's recommendations of planting 200,000 acres of grasses and legumes to control the leathopper was completed. The construction of 40,000 acres of grasses and legumes in the Boise-Burley-Rhoades district is under way. The committee also discussed the need for planting 200,000 acres of grasses and legumes in the Boise-Burley-Rhoades district. Entomologist Evans didn't think the population of army cutworms would perpetuate into a continuing state of trouble, but some of the damage done to crops in the Magic Valley during the winter months is so extensive and noticeable, damage for another month before turning into adult moths. They feed on many small grains, and in the fall around clumps of grass and under litter. The young worms are pale green in color and have a mottled pattern on their backs. They are the same size as the wingless of the adult moth. Although a second generation is expected to be present this spring, a report by the USDA and the University of Idaho extension service there is that the worm is not the same as the one that was reported a few years ago. The lopper came into alfalfa and clover fields after the first cutting and kept feeding on the plants. Much confusion is noted by looking for larvae in the field and not finding any. More than 300 more individuals were employed in the area. The office serves Twin Falls county and the eastern portion of Owyhee county. Culler notes the majority of unemployed workers are construction workers and Twin Falls area does not have a great many workers laid off during winter months compared to some areas where there is a great deal of industry. Impaired by bad weather or where certain specialized workers are laid off by certain industries. The work in this area is comparatively all-weather.

The list of offices who are placing workers in jobs. Any person legally qualified which means practically anyone may use facilities of the office to find work. An applicant is interviewed and a card filled out. Information concerning job history is used to give them a job title and a code number. This classification and code number are determined by consulting an occupational dictionary, a book containing 40,000 titles and 28,000 job descriptions. The job title and code number helps the office locate a suitable person when an opening is available.

Sometimes a person can have several job titles and codes depending on the workers' history. After an opening appears the person who has the qualifications for the job is told about the job and given an introduction card to present to the potential employer. This card introduces him to the employer and notes that he has been classified by the agency and is likely to meet the employer's needs.

The employer who calls the agency and asks for a certain type of worker is under no obligation to accept the person sent him. He can either return the introduction card to the agency with a "yes" or "no" written on it. Culler notes that with nearly 3,000 applicants each year it is the largest source of employment in the valley.

who are psychologically unprepared for the type of work they are presently doing and are searching for a change. Many of these individuals can be helped by the general aptitude tests given by the agency. The tests determine the individual's aptitudes and relate them to certain jobs. If a person has an aptitude for a certain type of job and is interested in that job, the agency will try to place him or her in that type of work.

Culler notes that the agency works with area high schools in this kind of testing. Graduates are just entering the labor market and often are undecided as to the type of work they would like to do.

Each year the agency gives the general aptitude tests to students who want to take it at the Twin Falls, Buhl, Castledale, Kimberly and Murren high schools. They are given the tests in the fall and give a test about one each month. All the tests must be completed by hand in the Twin Falls office. After they are graded, the student is called in and explains the test results.

"The tests reveal their aptitudes and provided they get good training, also reveal the areas in which they will most likely be successful. The office sends students to the training center where they receive training in the job which they are going to take. This is the most important type of work for him to consider. If this is the particular type of work for him to consider, then he should go to the training center where they receive training in the job which they are going to take. This is the most important type of work for him to consider.

The agency has used some of the tests in the middle 1930's to determine the aptitudes of students and older workers who are changing jobs. Often they are persons who are forced to change because of a hardship, or maybe they are older persons no longer able to perform the work they have done all their lives. Sometimes they are young persons who don't know just what they want to do, and occasionally they are persons previously worked at a job covered by the employment security law and carried a qualifying wage. Examples of work not covered by the law are agricultural, municipal, county and non-profit organizations work. The law in a state law. Although some employers have felt they were paying a tax, yet their employees weren't entitled to benefits. Culler says there is no chance under the Idaho law for an employer to be taxed unless his employees are eligible for benefits. The unemployment funds were paid out of state funds and the administrative costs of the agency are paid out of federal funds. The unemployment benefits are derived from a payroll tax levied on covered employees. An employer is taxed depending on the turnover record in his particular type of business. It varies from 2 to 5 percent of the quarterly payroll.

The building and maintenance costs are paid by the government. Culler explains, the building belongs to the state and was financed by a federal grant made available by the Reed bill. In addition to proving that he is a bona fide employer in a career job, the worker also must show he is able to work, available for work and that he is separated from his last job with a good cause. A person receiving unemployment benefits may take a part-time job without jeopardizing his benefits, providing it doesn't exceed 50 percent of his benefit check. Anything over that is subtracted from his unemployment benefits, Culler says. "The law is as general as it can be."

"After interviews, if the agency can't place a person on a job, the office will make the person's claim for unemployment. But the worker must prove that he is unemployed. It is the worker's responsibility to find a job. The office will help him in this process. If the agency can't place a person on a job, the office will make the person's claim for unemployment. But the worker must prove that he is unemployed. It is the worker's responsibility to find a job. The office will help him in this process."

State Legion Officer Hits Veterans Law

Douglas D. Kramer, Twin Falls, state commander of the American Legion, Saturday night criticized certain elements of this country's not wanting to keep the responsibility of caring for disabled veterans. Kramer discussed the "flight of the money source" at the Eighth district American Legion convention held at Lander. The commander noted that part of the care-of-war-is-the-care-of-disabled-veterans-but-aid. Many elements in the United States seem to refuse to recognize this proposition. "Throughout the history of this nation men have been drafted for wars that few have understood. Many have died and many more have been drafted and in fact were held many thousands in the actual circumstances of fortune. The Twin Falls man pointed out that the disabled veteran's pension is limited to three receiving less than $2,700 per year regardless of the money source. A veteran's wife's income also is included in this figure, as are social security benefits and insurance situations. Kramer stated, "Social security and other annuities are matters which have been paid for and it is highly unfair to penalize the disabled veteran by counting these things as income." Kramer blamed this kind of treatment as making it difficult to live. There are plenty of chances by young people who believe that the years spent in service of their country at small pay are simply years where their future competition is established in business by the time they return. "Veterans are proud to have served and they are proud to have been recognized. When these veterans become disabled the country should be established to provide for them."

Cleaning Windows Part of 4-H Work

Nancy Hoffield, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hoffield, Hanson, cleans a window at home as a part of her "Helping Mom and Dad" 4-H project. This is a new project, introduced during the last year. It consists of undertaking a variety of chores around the home and then recording them in a record book which will be exhibited at the county fair. Nancy is a member of the 4-H and 4-Club. Report Made On Reservoir

SHOSHONE April 30—Magie reservoir contained 125,000 acre feet Wednesday, compared to the high point of 170,000 acre feet last year on the same date. Storage gain was the highest on April 15 with more than 10,000 acre feet per day and has decreased steadily to 1,200 acre feet in the past few days. At a special meeting of the Magie committee, composed of William Adams, Chief, Fredrick Robert Myers, Clifford Davies, and Charles Peterson, it was decided to turn the water out from the reservoir Thursday morning. The water from American Falls is not from the reservoir. It is about the same as the water from the state and was financed by a federal grant made available by the Reed bill. The building and maintenance costs are paid by the government. Culler explains, the building belongs to the state and was financed by a federal grant made available by the Reed bill. In addition to proving that he is a bona fide employer in a career job, the worker also must show he is able to work, available for work and that he is separated from his last job with a good cause. Helping Parents Is Addition for 4-H Clubs' Projects; Popularity Gaining

(From Page 25) They must also list one safety hazard they found around the home and what they did about it. Such things as loose knives in the drawers, tops or articles on the stairs. Such hazards can be eliminated by fitting a box for the knife or a toy box for the youngster's toys. At the county fair the project books are just one phase of the program. Such things as demonstrations, judging, group action, contests, and recreation all play an important role in the program of broad project schedule. There are the clubs. Plenty of things for members to do in the club. Youth points out. Last year 600 members within the county fair. The projects usually end with the county fair. It points out the new project is simply another in the line of projects that is built around the principle of learning by doing. Project work is just one phase of the program. Such things as demonstrations, judging, group action, contests, and recreation all play an important role in the program of broad project schedule. There are the clubs.

May Day Week-End Marks Start of Many Outdoor Activities for Summer

By JIM HUNNING
Idaho Fish and Game Department
This May day coincides with a week-end for the first time since 1925 and having exceptionally disagreeable weather, Idahoans and their "guests" should "run" true to form and use it to mark the beginning of another season of interesting outdoor living...

Attorney General Edward J. Achenbrenner clarified Idaho statutes relative to the rights of private citizens, hunters and trappers in relation to the rights of private property owners in an abstracted reply to the conclusions summarized in Idaho law on these points as follows:
1. Hunters, fishermen and trappers in Idaho may travel the public streams of the state from the high water mark on one side to the other side and this without civil or criminal liability...

R.L. Pence, Pioneer Produce Dealer, Develops Into Lodge Aide, Booster

BURLEY, April 30.—R. L. Pence, Burley's pioneer produce dealer, has served as a part-time secretary of the Jerome Mill area for more than 25 years and is probably one of the most unobscured men in the area...

R. L. (BOB) PENCE

When in Burley, Mr. Pence was the manager of a railroad agency and held positions for the C.R. and C.P. When he was a young child he finally moved to the Black Hills in eastern Wyoming in 1897. They moved to the vast plains land by water to Ariz. Colo. where his father secured a position for him in the United States Agricultural College at Greeley, where he earned his degree in 1906...

Pence still owns a large warehouse on the west side of Burley, which is leased to the Union Seed Company. Pence continues to feed cattle at this warehouse site. "I just can't seem to get out of the business," Pence said.

Workers Told

KING, HILL, April 30.—Mrs. Earl Ellis has been appointed chairman for the American Cancer society fund raising and educational drive for the King Hill district by Mrs. Olive Orestrom, Mountain Home, Elmore county chairman.

Rearing units, patrol stations and the like.

Access to hunting and fishing areas is becoming acute, says Leavitt, particularly along the Boise and Snake rivers. And access to Silver creek in Big Wood river valley rests on a delicate balance of relations between landholders and sportsmen. Similar problems are to be found all over the state.

Indusly Helped

Pence notes the industry brought to Burley by men such as Simpson has helped the city greatly. He says the future of Burley and its area lies in industry related to agriculture. He adds that the water supply in the north side is unlimited and that the farm areas will continue to grow and expand the Burley trade area.

Looks Back on Wrecks

Harry Borshardt, who for 22 years has operated a wrecker at Rupert, looks over a stack of clippings and pictures of wrecks on which he has worked.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

A decision made while plumed underneath a wrecker car by a boy has led to 22 years spent as operator of a wrecker for Harry Borshardt, RUPERT.

It recalls that in 1930, a carload of young people was returning from a church picnic when the car turned over, pluming four of them under it for more than 30 minutes until passerby saw the pile of twisted metal.

It was a lighter side of the business also has its lighter side: adding his many times he has been called out in the middle of the night to "loosen jaws" when the car has become stuck in the sand or mud, depending on the season.
