Nuclear Tests to Resume

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—The United States will start a new series of small underground nuclear tests, perhaps before the end of this year. It will be for the third time in developing a workable test detection system and positive development of present tests.

President Eisenhower disclosed today at his Gettysburg farm here that he is resuming the work.

The fact that the United States leads in some advanced technology already has been disclosed in previous official announcements by the Atomic Energy Commission and other agencies. Underground tests, as well as all other types, had been suspended since 1958 when the United States and the Soviet Union agreed for as long as known, since late in 1958. The new series would resume an undisturbedly into the air, the White House said.

The White House announcement, supported by information from the defense department, provided a detailed information on plans for the tests, and the experimental monitoring stations which operate on the principle of seismic stations.

One indirect result of the presidential announcement today may have been to prepare for a subject which will come up at the summit meetings in Paris May 16-18.

The official announcement could have the purpose of showing the U.S. position and intentions on the subject in advance of the summit meetings.

ROBERT H. CLARK

GOODING JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL BAND

MOSCOW, May 7 (AP)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev said today Francis G. Powers, pilot of a U.S. high-altitude jet shot down by rocket in the high-altitude trials last Sunday, has confessed he was spying. The premier submitted Soviet Union as charged by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. The flight was not authorized by Washington officials.

It was one of the chief reasons for the plauding parliament — the supreme Soviet — in support of his charge that the twin-will pilot was photographic Soviet military bases and industrial installations for a S. central intelligence agency.

Nixon's Plan Is Based on Kennedy Win

WASHINGTON, May 7—Vice President Richard M. Nixon re-emphasized his plans today on a personal lunch that Sen. Hubert H. Hiram, Alaska, will with the rough West Virginia primary Tuesday and go on to support the Democratic presidential nomination.

Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press secretary, pointed out to newsmen that if his lunch is accurate, Nixon, as the expected Republican nominee, will be competing against a single opponent instead of the battle-dome Democratic presidential possibilities.

Even if Sen. Hubert H. Hiram, West Virginia, beats Kennedy in the West Virginia contest, Nixon regards Kennedy as a major factor in determining who will be the Democratic standard bearer.

Nixon still holds to his plan for accepting his campaign after the Republican convention has formally nominated him in July.

Nixon said the vice president already has mapped "the most vigorous, energetic campaign" he has ever conducted with stops and speeches to all 50 states of the union, including Hawaii, Alaska and Puerto Rico.

The big effort will start in September ahead of the November voting—because Nixon is convinced this will be a close election.

Chamber Sets Sign on Road Project Here

Signs will be erected on Kimberly road soon to explain highway construction, it was reported Friday noon at the regular meeting of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce directors.

William Grant, secretary-manager, said the sign would read, "Our streets torn up because we are expanding—please drive carefully and happily along."

Other business concerns, Harold and Charles Allen were appointed to work with the parks and recreation department in formulating plans for a permanent city facility at Shoshone with a person to work full time to control vandalism and operate a snack bar.

Directors also discussed the tourist information brochure to be issued soon at the Perrine Memorial bridge.

Douley Creed, state department of commerce and development, reported that he had secured about 400 stories of interesting tourist attractions including pleasure resorts, newspapers, and other country, and the response has been "very good."

Creed announced the Idaho Junior Chamber of Commerce convention will begin in Shoshone Thursday, and said continued reservations to date have far exceeded the total in previous years.

Harold Merrill, KLLL television station manager, said only one way to be for film and developing. He asked co-sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce. Directors tabled the matter for further information and discussion with a decision to be made next Friday.

Named to Board

IDAHO STATE COLLEGE, May 7—Thomas Schain, Butley, and Mrs. Joan Barker Lear, Filer, represent the 150 student body on a seven-member committee appointed to set policy for a proposed campus FM radio station.

The Luckiest $7 Ever Spent

By a Wall Street Journal Subscriber

Not long ago I picked up my first copy of The Wall Street Journal. I expected dull reading. Imagine my surprise when I found some of the best articles I'd ever read.

I went for a Trial Subscription. For the first time in my life I began to understand why some men get ahead while others stay behind. I read about new inventions, new industries and new ways of doing business that are helping ambitious men earn big money.

Also I got ideas on what to do to reduce living expenses and taxes. My Trial Subscription to The Journal cost me $7. It was the luckiest $7 I ever spent. It has put me hundreds of dollars ahead already.

This story is typical. The Journal is a wonderful aid to the salaried man making $7,500 to $25,000 a year. It is valuable to owners of small businesses and to anyone who wishes to see ambitious young men who want to earn more money.

The Wall Street Journal is the complete business DAILY. Has largest staff of writers on business and finance. The only business paper served by all three big press associations. It costs $24 a year. But you can get a Trial Subscription for three months for $7. Just tear out this ad and send for $7 and mail. Or call us bill post.

Published daily right on the Pacific Coast to get the vital business and Washington news immediately. Addresses—The Wall Street Journal, 240 Market St., San Francisco 19, Calif. Phone 398-9999.

Clothing Packed for World Relief

Mrs. Owen Kinney, left, and Mrs. W. W. Hunt, pack donated clothing into sacks at Our Savior Lutheran church. The clothing will be taken to the First Methodist church basement, local pickup point, where a Church World Service truck will haul the sacks of clothing to Modesto, Calif. to be sorted, repacked and sent to straggled and needy areas throughout the world. The project is sponsored annually by the Twin Falls Municipal Association. (Staff photo—overleaf)

League of Women Voters Gets Data on School Trustee Vote

Voters' service plans were reported Saturday by the Twin Falls League of Women Voters in preparation for the school trustee election set here Tuesday.

The league compiled and distributed a non-partisan candidate information sheet to residents zone 6 where three candidates have filed for trustee. There was no distribution in zone 2 where J. T. Anderson, Jr., present trustee, is unopposed.

The information sheet includes biographical data and answers of each candidate to four questions posed by the league.

Other activity by the league included a program on KLLX-TV Friday night and another with all voters participating at 7:30 p.m. Monday over KTFP. Each candidate will be asked the questions on the information sheets.

Members of the league point out only residents of trustee zones 2 and 5 may vote Tuesday at Baker or Lincoln schools. Polls will be open from 7 to 7:30 p.m. To be eligible, a person must be a qualified voter of the state, a taxpayer or the parent or guardian of a child under 21 and must reside in the zone concerned.

During the 19th century there were no states in English there. Audiences sat on long benches as without backs.

Mothers Honored By Stitch Group

RICHFIELD, May 7—Mothers were guests at the Stitch and Six club meeting this week at the home of Elene Brush.

Marilyn Faircross was elected vice president replacing Aida Nield who resigned. Miss Brush demonstrated making an ice cream milk and granulate drink and correct setting of a table.

Cookies made by the club members were judged by the mothers. Mrs. Thurman Hansen, club leader, Maryanne Lee and Agnes Schaller assisted with clean-up.

Sewing groups will meet Monday at the home of Glenis Conner.

July 15 Deadline For Wheat Noted

Twin Falls county farmers who wish to comply with their 1959 acreage allotments but have excess acres planted have until July 15 to file applications for the wheat allotment in future years.

Farmers who have questions about excess wheat disposal may contact the county office for further information.

TRAFFIC LAW LOOPHOLES: No doubt a good many residents of Magic Valley had mixed reactions...

The Judge, who had the case under advisement since the preliminary hearing...

If we are to assume that the judge's reasons for dismissing the charges in this particular case are well founded...

No one, of course, would like to see a 14-year-old boy convicted of negligent homicide in a traffic fatality...

It has been argued during many sessions of the state legislature that anyone who is responsible as old enough to drive a car should also be regarded as old enough to be held fully responsible for the way he drives.

The legislature has been far too lenient in establishing the minimum age limit for driving in Idaho...

Not only has the legislature been lenient in this regard, but negligent in enforcing laws which would prevent irresponsible driving by drivers too young to have good judgment...

Once such as this serve to discredit not only our legislature, but our courts and law enforcement...

The writer overheard such a conversation. It went something like this:

"This running-stop sign is pretty serious business. The courts are cracking down on such offenders every day. The only safe way to run a stop sign, it seems, is to be sure you kill someone in the process. That, apparently, is not too serious."

"Or," another coffee-breaker chimed in, "to have a lot of influence."

So much talk is there about, of course, so are the loopholes in our laws, which repeatedly make a joke of law enforcement in Idaho.

OUR HOSPITAL: National Hospital week, beginning today, should have special significance to the people of this vicinity.

It is not surprising that the writer has one of the outstanding institutions of its kind in the Inter-Mountain West, and that the people in this area are fortunate in having such an institution at their service.

We must never lose interest in maintaining the high standards under which Magic Valley Memorial is operating as a fully accredited hospital, with an outstanding medical staff and an exceptional administrative set-up.

We should be proud that our hospital is keeping pace with modern advancements, such as the recent addition of modern X-ray equipment.

We should constantly be on our guard against thoughtless observations that room charges at the hospital are too high; that the hospital is too expensive to maintain; that the institution, or other unwarranted speculations. The hospital administration will be only too glad to clear up any such misunderstandings with comparative facts and figures which speak for themselves.

MONEY DOES NOT ALWAYS WIN: The side with the larger campaign check does not always win. No one can deny that fact.

Organized labor, generally Democratic, does not provide a "bottomless fund" only one of every eight votes in the primary.

MONEY EFFECTIVE IN PRIMARIES: Total campaign costs for 1958 are estimated at about 140 million dollars for nomination and election of candidates throughout the year.

It is estimated that in 1958, money is more effective in general financial affairs than in politics. In 1958 it was thought that the party with the heaviest money bags always won.

Castleford Boys Named for Event

CASTLEFORD, May 7.—Terry Karcher and Jack West have been named to attend Boys' State at Boise June 12-18 in Boise.

Son of Mrs. Shirley Karcher, Karcher is a member of the club, annual and paper staff, FFA secretary and member of the school Pep and dance band. He is junior member of the Sunnyside Livestock 4-H club and has been in club work seven years.

He was on a trip to the National 4-H club congress in Chicago last December and is president of the club at the Methodist church here. This year he is farming 60 acres.

West, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil West, is a member of the basketball team, 4-H club, FFA and is secretary and member of the Junior class. An active member of the Church Trinity Lutheran church, he has been in 4-H work for two years. His hobbies are horseback riding, calf roping and hunting.

Shoshone Sets Trustee Vote

SHOSHONE, May 7.—There will be no contest in the school trustee election Monday at the high school building.

One candidate each has filed from the three zones in which terms of trustees are expiring. They are Howard Hill, incumbent, from zone four; Mr. H. G. Neber, incumbent from zone one and newcomer, Mike Urrutia, from zone three.

Howard Hill, a longtime member of the school board, declined to run from zone three this year. Hill's other members are J. H. Wery, zone two, and Donald Sandy, zone five.

Polls will be open from 1 to 7 p.m. at the high school building and only persons within the respective districts or zones can vote for the candidates from that zone. Mrs. Ella Vredenburg is clerk of the election.

Judges for the election are Mrs. Harry Turnbull and Mrs. Omer Shook.

Carey Eyes Hope of Water System

CAREY, May 7.—Possibility of installing a village water system is being investigated.

Meanson told a Chamber of Commerce meeting here this week.

He said such a project will cost $40,000 to $50,000 for a six-inch water main two miles long, five hydrants and a well drilled 250 feet deep with a combination electric and gas pump.

The project is being investigated because of the failure of local wells to produce water during the past two months, he explained.

Life span of the mains would be 40 to 50 years. Action will be taken if the water level becomes so acute next year as it has this year, he said. It is expected water will return to the wells soon.

Carey Farm Unit Discusses Wheat

CAREY, May 7.—The importance of the wheat program for farmers was discussed by members of the Carey Farm Bureau this week.

Fred Sever, state Farm Bureau commodity director, led the discussion, assisted by Harold Bedford, Farm Bureau fieldman for eastern Idaho. The Oregon Thompson, district leader, a film also was shown.

Members voted to write their congressmen concerning their feelings toward the new commodity legislation, reports Emory Smith, chairman.

Members Greeted By Richfield Club

SHOSHONE, May 7.—Two new members were welcomed to the Dairy Dairy 4-H club at Richfield at the last meeting, Mitchell Clements and Judy Pyle.

Record books were distributed by leader, Morris Swanson. Discussion was held on a float for the Outlaw days, but no action taken.

Pat Riley, assisted by Mike Swanson, demonstrated how to use a float. Refreshments were served by Janet Armstrong.

PTA MEETS MONDAY

3 Area Girls Receive 4-H Club Honors

RUPERT, May 7—Three 4-H leaders from Minico high school have received various club awards given outstanding club workers in the county, according to Vance Smith, county agent.

The 4100 Scholarship given annually by Trevino and Johnson was awarded to Arlene Wilcox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Wilcox. She had been active in 4-H work as a Junior leader, and has been a member of the school since this spring as a delegate to Clark state. Her plans are to attend the Utah State university, Logan, and take business or speech as her major.

Awards for the award is Gayle Kraemer who won the 4200 scholarship offered annually by the United Pacific Insurance company in study of home economics or related fields. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kraemer, Pauline Peterson is president of the 4-H Builders club and vice president of the Minico chapter of Future Homemakers of America and a member of the Future Teachers club. This award is Susan Latz.

Pauline Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Peterson, has been awarded two weeks of leadership training as district winner of the W. H. Dunsmuir award. She will attend from Aug. 1 to 14 at a camp in Michigan. Miss Peterson is a 4-H Junior leader and a member of the Future Teachers club.

All three girls are members of the Junior class at Minico.

Girls Earn Scholarships

Grange Hears Youth Worker

RUPERT, May 7—The second reading of an ordinance aimed at industrial development was heard at the Rupert city council meeting, with voting on the matter expected at the May 15 meeting.

The ordinance was presented at a special meeting April 25 after council members had been contacted by Frank Hines, California.

According to the ordinance, land owned by the S. A. Camp company located north of Rupert near Minidoka would be bought by selling three million dollars worth of non-irrigation bonds. The land calls for one and one-fourth million to be used for the down payment on the land and the rest for operation and improvements.

The farm would be operated by Rich and used as a "springboard" to raise funds to construct buildings that may be used for office space for industrial firms desiring to come into the area.

Any financial or other major moves in the farm operation would be approved by the council, and after the bonds are paid off in 30 years, the property would belong to the city.

Four-Way Contest Set at Richfield

RICHFIELD, May 7—A four-way contest has developed for the trustee post in zone four for Tuesday school district 20-316.

Incumbent Max Behr is being opposed by Mrs. C. F. Chaffield, Glen Hertzog and Donald Ward. Behr has served the past three years.

In zone two, incumbent Clifford Donner is unopposed. School officials note only citizens living within the two zones are eligible to vote if they are taxpayers, property owners or parents of children under 21 years of age.

Hours will be from 1 to 7 p.m. at the Richfield high school. Mrs. Reta Postell, Mrs. Frank Pope and Mrs. W. W. Sommer will serve as the election board.

Election next week for school operations and maintenance.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Schwager and Mrs. and Mrs. Shirley Edzo.

Village Buys Coin Meters For Hydrant

RICHFIELD, May 7—Purchase of equipment for a coin-operated meter installation at the Richfield fire hydrant, acceptance of a Gravelly moving machine for the park, and resumption of sprinkling rates for the village was decided by the Richfield village board at the May meeting held here.

Wayne North, representative of a water works equipment company, explained that the village could operate water dispensers and promised supervision of installation.

Fred Riley, Richfield fire chief, told the board of recent purchase of a park lawn mower by the Richfield Lions club. Board members agreed to place a responsible person in charge of operation of the mower.

Sprinkling rates were announced at the same time as in the past. The farm meter will deliver 20 gallons of water for five cents and 250 gallons for 25 cents in annual fees. A reconditioned water meter was also purchased for use if needed.

An report from the Richfield Public Library submitted by Mrs. Louise Baze, was read and filed. The report covered the period from Sept. 1, 1958, to Sept. 1, 1959. A permanent one year board of trustees was approved for Mrs. Laetitia Loving.

Mont Johnson, board chairman, was wanted to meet with the highway board to discuss possibility of turning Richfield road—receiving a strategic survey completed—over to the highway district for maintenance of village streets.

Gets Scholarship

ELECTRIC HOME HEATING CONTEST

Everybody wins with electric home heating!

Reddy congratulates the 72 winners and extends his thanks to all the other who participated in his electric home heating contest. Meanwhile hundreds of homemakers are winning non-convenience and comfort for their families as they install electric heating systems in their homes.

Electric heat wins TIME for you... time spent in caring for furnaces, cleaning time, worrying time. It wins SPACE for you, furnace space, fuel storage space, duct work space. It wins COMFORT for you with room by room temperature control and gentle, steady heat with no blasts of hot or cold air.

Electric heat is practical and convenient. New developments in design and installation, double doors and windows, and complete insulation in walls, ceilings and floors—plus Idaho Power's low electric rates—make electric heat costs far less than most people think.

Call at your Idaho Power Company office for full facts and assistance in planning your electric heating installation, or telephone your electric heating contractor.

Buhl Boy, 8, Not Hurt by Auto Mishap

BUHL, May 7—Jim Blair, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Blair, route 4, Buhl, escaped without abrasions of the chest, arms and head after he was struck by a car that ran a red light at the intersection of West Main street here.

The boy had come out with his grandfather, S. E. Blair, who had instructed him to stay in the car while the grandfather completed his business. But the lad decided to follow his grandfather and ran out from between two parked cars into the path of a 1958 Chevrolet driven by Mrs. Lloyd Ayres, 48, Buhl, according to Policeman Wesley Annis.

Mrs. Ayres saw the child in time to apply the brakes, but the car skidded into him, bouncing the boy against the front fender along the street which is about highway 30, Annis said.

The child was taken to a local physician by Annis and the elder Blair where he was examined and released.

Let's talk dry cleaning

By Bob Tucker

Most of the words that can be said about Mother's Day have already been said. . . many times. But we should do a special day set aside for the woman who gives us life, and sets aside time for her needs, passions and wishes, and understanding are so often taken for granted throughout the year.

It would be a nice idea if, in addition to the gifts and nice words we give on Mother's Day, we could also come up with some tangible things to do all through the year. . . . A special act of thoughtfulness that could make her task easier and remind her that Mother's Day is not just a passing thought one day a year.

Clothes care, for instance, is something that is usually left to Mom. Chances are she'd appreciate a hand with her laundry. . . . The items that need to be cleaned and pressed, emptying the pockets, too, so they don't get heavy. . . . (Sister) It's a good habit to get into.

The convenience, efficiency and low cost of our dry cleaning does a big job for mothers. . . . The ladies will be doing well. Prompt pickup and delivery is another convenience. Just call . . .

Lincoln Fair Board Gives Job Contract

SHOSHONE, May 7—Re-iding of the two barracks buildings at the fairgrounds will be done by Joe Broyles Construction company. Broyles' low bid of $154 was accepted by the fair board this week.

Other bids were submitted by Keck Construction company, Roy Brown, H. E. Hollibaugh and Sons. Bidding for the buildings will be green with green plinthe as first choice or light plain green as second choice with all white trim.

Murdo Gage, president, reports. . . .

Committee appointed by Gage include J. Howard Manning, general manager; Joyce W. Bernabe, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. Burt Atkins, 4-H home economics exhibit.

Other-committee include Mrs. Elden Guthrie, women's department; Mrs. Ralph Toomey, hobby exhibits; Floyd Silva, grounds and materials; Gage, commodity and/or resource exhibits; Burton Thorne, program and merchant displays; Don Ross, 4-H agriculture exhibits; and Sheldon Callister, PFA exhibits.

The Civic Club will manage the flower show, and Marvin Cole, the jamboree.

There was a discussion of re-building the style revue platform. Members decided on a portable type platform that can be taken down and stored. Definite arrangements for that were made, however.

Printing of the fair books was discussed and the members voted to have trophies again rather than medals for social awards. Rental on display booths will remain at $10 this year.

County agent J. Howard Manning reported on the possibility of securing kiddies' rides again for the fair this year.

The possibility of paying mileage for fair board members in work necessary to carrying out their jobs was considered, but no action was taken.

State Demos Take Aim on Republicans

By The Associated Press

Idaho Democrats, campaigning against each other, launched a drive for their favorite target—their opponents—with a series of opposite ends of the state tonight.

In Gooding, Democratic candidates for U. S. senator, including Polvin, American Falls, and A. W. Brundage, will be concentrated on the administration's monetary policies and the American farmer.

The farmer's vote, it is felt, "is counted in a price-cost squeeze. In years when his income has declined drastically the price of supplies and equipment he must buy is so high that he is in a bind."

"Much of this increase in cost is due to the attitude of the present Republican administration. Administered prices have replaced competition in many industries. Furthermore, when such individuals as William H. Connors of the Federal Power Commission have tried to protect the consumer against unreasonable increases they are accused of office wrongdoing."

"Legislation is needed to force a return to free enterprise competition—the free enterprise competition that made our nation great."

Tight Money Blamed

Brundage said "the government's tight money policy and increased operating costs, brought about by an indifferent monetary administration, have been the major contributing cause to the declining price of wool."

Another senatorial aspirant at Gooding, Compton E. White, Clark Fork, asserted that Idaho needs an active, aggressive man "to go to the federal power commission in Washington."

"I think I have the know-how and the ability to do a national job for the people of Idaho if I am elected," White said.

Cooperation Not Lacking, but Red-Cross Fails to Meet Goal

Editor, Times-News: Although Twin Falls failed to meet the financial goal set by the local chapter of the American Red Cross, it surely was not due to lack of cooperation of all local news media.

The board is extremely grateful for the many excellent pictures and the space given to news stories by the Times-News, KIDN TV and radio stations, including KIMB and KPTV, were all generous and cooperative. Many of our many workers gave of their time in conducting the finance campaign.

Veterans' Group Explains Reason For Flag Display

Editor, Times-News: There have been many inquiries as to why American flags were flown in South Sunday, May 7. We thought a letter in the forum would answer the question for many interested persons who saw the flags up Sunday.

President Eisenhower and the U. S. congress have designated May 7 as "Loyalty day." May 7 is designated as a day for the citizens of our great country to demonstrate their devotion to the principles of freedom and the American form of government.

Loyalty Day was originated 10 years ago by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and is celebrated in many communities. It is a day to demonstrate their devotion to the principles of freedom and the American form of government.

It was originated 10 years ago by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and is celebrated in many communities. It is a day to demonstrate their devotion to the principles of freedom and the American form of government.

Thousands of Veterans of Foreign Wars throughout the nation held some type of ceremony in observance of Loyalty Day. We placed our flag display in the front of our building on Sunday, in observance of Loyalty Day.

People Urged to Vote Tuesday in School Elections

Editor, Times-News: Residents of zone 2 and 3 of school district 411 are urged to vote in the school board election Tuesday.

To be qualified you must be a taxpayer or parent or guardian of a child, a qualified elector of the state of Idaho, and a resident of the zone. You may vote at either Lincoln or Nickel school between the hours of 1 and 7 p.m. All qualified electors in these zones are urged to vote to elect those who represent their school affairs.

In line with the league's non-partisan policy, candidate information sheets have been distributed in zone 5 where there is a contest. The contest will be held from 7:30 to 8:00 p.m. Monday for a candidates meeting. The meeting gives the candidates the opportunity to hear the candidates personally express their views.

Paper Thanked For Stories on Musical Activity

Editor, Times-News: I would like to thank you for your wonderful coverage throughout the year of the many musical activities of the National Federation of Music Clubs in Magic Valley.

Special appreciation is due you for making it possible to have such an interesting story in the January-February issue of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Because of the unusual advance notice of the music club activities, interest in our meetings was increased. A very good presentation of the music club was given at our recent convention. Thanks again.

They Soon Will Be Full-Fledged Baby-Sitters

These two girls are going through illustrative materials they received while attending baby-sitting classes at the YWCA. Sharon Cox, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Cox, and Nancy Mogenssen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mogenssen, are among 28 girls who will receive a card certifying that they have successfully completed the course Monday night. 28 Girls Will Complete Course in Baby Sitting Monday, 28 young misses will be awarded their baby-sitting diploma. The course was given for junior-high school girls in cooperation with the city police department, fire department and county health department.

Baby sitting is nothing new; most young parents were once asked to sit for the first time.

The girls are told baby sitting is not just a job, but a real occupation, and that even if they never babysit, it will make them better mothers.

A speaker from the health department, Mr. Roy Jacobson, explained to the girls how to handle children from babies to children of different ages.

The girls were also shown how to put a baby to bed, notice warning measures like making sure the crib side is up.

In emphasizing the importance of their role, she pointed out to the girls they were actually responsible for the lives of their small charges.

The fire department spokesman suggested the girls confine their sitting with children of people they know. He illustrated his talk with three short films.

The first, "The Torch," showed the dangers of electrical appliances, gasoline, smoking in bed, dirty chimneys, leaving cigarettes out of windows.

The second film, "Penelope Changes Her Name," was narrated by a little girl telling what would happen when too many articles were stored in a closet or attic.

The third film, "The Window," depicted a baby sitter who had the presence of mind to do the right thing in an emergency.

He told the girls there were three things that usually started fires: new candles and incense, but that in addition the common carelessness of people.

He was advised that if they ever smelted, or thought that they smelted smoke, to call the fire department. It was rather answer a false alarm than have the girls walk out the room full in before they called.

Dobbis, in outlining precautions to be taken, told the girls to keep the windows and doors locked to be sure they know how to use the telephone. He said it also is a good idea to know how the locks work.

He said that if a door is a little ajar, it is a "pretty" sign that it is not locked. He said that if a door is ajar, it is a "pretty" sign that it is not locked.

He told the girls to always put their keys in a safe place. He said that if they are going to sit as sometimes friends get the mistaken idea it

WISHERS, KIMBERLY SHARE CLASS B DISTRICT TRACK CROWN

Barnes Batters State Low Hurdle Record in Leading Field to Nine New Marks

Hurdle champion Keith Barnes, Castleford, led the way as the class B athletes smashed five new records and tied three more in the district track and field championships Friday. The record-breaking assault overwhelmed the tight battle for team honors which they had in common, competing in their second year in the state, sharing the title with the favored Kimberley Bulldogs. The co-champions scored 22 points each, followed by Valley with 18, Merritt with 17, and Coeur d'Alene with 16.

Preston Hurls, Hits Pirates Past Hailey

HAILEY, May 7—Big Mike Preston bowed out of his surmountable high school career for agecrammer high school today by pitching the district champion Pirates to a 5-2 decision over the Hailey Wolverines. Preston, a Juno, was accepted by the Air Force academy, spun a two-hitter around the Wolverines, and struck out five batters. The Pirates ended their final baseball season in undefeated style. The Pirates play again to meet besting next season.

The pitcher Tom Minton pitched Preston's bid for a no-hitter collecting both hits.

The Pirates in a tight battle until three runs in the fifth inning, but were unable to score until the sixth. Preston, making his last appearance at the plate, belted a double to right field, scoring Minton. Minton fanned four and walked one, striking in the late innings.

Hailey's pitcher, Tom Minton, pitched Preston's bid for a no-hitter collecting both hits.

Giants Rally Past Pirates, Tie for Lead

By The Associated Press

A wild pitch, seventh-inning featured by Eddie Bresson's inside-the-park three-run homer gave the San Francisco Giants a 6-5 victory over Pittsburgh Saturday. The triumph tilted the National League pennant.

They went into the seventh inning with a 5-1 lead. Bresson's homer, which was the last of his career, was the only run scored in the seventh. Bresson's homer, which was the last of his career, was the only run scored in the seventh.

Newest United States Citizens Pose With Judge Following Naturalization Ceremony

10 Given U.S. Oath In Ritual

At 2 p. m. April 28, ten persons stood in a line before District Judge Theron W. Ward, raised their right hands, took their oaths and became American citizens. The ceremony was brief and pleasantly short. The 10 people entered the room as citizens of many different countries, and converted to American citizens.

In the past months they have satisfied all requirements of the United States department of state, immigration and naturalization service. They have taken an oral examination to show they have a working knowledge of our form of government and filled out the necessary papers, immediately after the oath of citizenship. They signed their certificates of naturalization.

In a brief speech before they took the oath, Judge Ward welcomed them as citizens. He pointed out that the country's naturalized citizens are quite often the best citizens, adding that they, sometimes are more eager to contribute to the republic and less likely to simply make demands on the government.

The new citizens are Mrs. Galbreith Allen Browning and Patricia Ann Duchas, Twin Falls; Mrs. and Mrs. Carol Mori, Percy Caravan and Joe Goldara, Burley; Mrs. Thomas G. Noel, and Mrs. Donald F. Dickson, Rupert, and Mrs. and Mrs. David Nelwiser, Jr., Heyburn.

They range from grade school age to those who are transients. Before they can complete the requirements for citizenship they must live in the United States for five years. And they must get two citizens they have known for two years to attest to their good character. This presents a problem to those who have moved around the country, never living in one place for any length of time.

Work on Museum Project Kept up by Local Society

Members of the Twin Falls Historical society plug away at the proposed museum of items from the tract's early days—a project that every person in the area can further by donating articles to the museum. The museum is in charge of Dewitt Young. For over a year he has been collecting various items that will illustrate how the pioneers lived on the tract in the founding years. Currently the collection is kept in a room at the old hospital building, but plans are being made to establish some sort of a permanent showplace that will be open to the public.

Young says, "We are trying to build up a museum that will show how the settlers of this tract lived in the early days." He stresses that each such a wood cooking stove and had no idea that it was the type used just a few years ago rather than the everyday household of today. Young makes it that there are many items stored in homes and barns throughout this area that would contribute to the collection and that these items should be preserved in a museum. Young notes the Twin Falls county fair board has offered the society space in the antique building at the fairgrounds this fall. If the museum materializes, the board has offered to provide permanent space on the grounds for a museum. Between now and fall time, Young notes citizens of the county and members of the society must make every attempt to gather enough material to make an important and story-telling exhibit that will show how people lived here in early days. "If we can make the fair museum a success it will stay over there," he asserts. Once the museum is established, he probably will maintain regular hours, staffed by volunteer members of the society. "This project is not something that just a few persons can accomplish," he says. "It is something that all the communities in the tract must support. This is a tract project." He notes a procurement committee has been appointed by the society and anyone who has anything to donate to the museum should call the members of the committee and describe the article. Unusual Experiments Developing Springs on Arid Brown's Bench

Some of the most unusual experiments in obtaining irrigation water in this area are under way on the ranch of Chet Brackett on the east face of Brown's bench, just west of Salmon reservoir. Paul Clontz, Kimberly ranchman who has worked in earth excavation and land leveling projects in this area for years, has developed a method to get water that may be the answer to some ranchers' problems. Since March 1, Clontz has hacked and blasted at the east face of the bench, finally dressed himself, come close to freezing, hit on the head by falling rocks and had several stitches taken. But all the work was for a good purpose, for he has tripled the output of two springs on the ranch.

In a country where water is at a premium, this is a real feat. By tripling the water output of the springs, he has enabled Brackett to irrigate 75 acres of hayland, where he formerly irrigated only 15. Uses Dynamite Clontz has gone about this in an unusual manner. He has taken a lot of work, time and dynamite—20 cases to be exact. But if the experiment pays off in more water throughout the hay-growing season it will be of great benefit. Clontz has worked in that area for several years at land leveling, sage removal and created wheat grass planting. He has always had a hunch that more water could be obtained from the springs along the face of the bench. And so has Chet Brackett. This spring they pooled their hunches, and so far they have been right.

On March 1, Brackett-hired Clontz to work on some of the small springs south and above the ranch house. For years they have seeped enough water to irrigate 15 acres of hayland, both native and alfalfa, and timothy, around the ranch house. Eyes Spring Outlets Both men wanted to know if the output of the springs could be increased. When Clontz first started, it was the intention to clear away some of the big boulders that rested on the ground where the water emerged, about 100 feet above the hay fields. As Clontz worked at clearing the rocky debris away, it seemed a "hunch" was being fulfilled. For the water that merely seeped from the rocks and coarse soil, this led him into the mountain. He started tunneling.

He was literally led into the mountain by the water that appeared as he hacked at the rock and soil. When he first started on the job there was a small seepage of water from small cracks in the solid rock wall. Gets More Water Clontz used a pick and shovel backing at the moist face of the rock. As he chipped away, more water came out. "After I hacked away with the pick," Clontz says, "I finally got a stream of water coming out. I used the pick handle. I drilled a hole in the rock and got more water. Then I decided to dig a little. Each time I shot it, I got a little more water. So I just kept going." In one tunnel he "hit" rock going for about 100 feet. The further he went, the more water would flow.

In the long tunnel, which is about six feet wide and four feet wide, he managed to get a rapidly flowing stream of water that again, he would blast about two times a day and spend the intervals clearing away the rock. Each time he blasted more water appeared. The second tunnel yielded almost as much water as the first. Clontz believes each tunnel will produce more water as it is bored, and then started all over deepened into the mountain. The work wasn't easy. It was wet, tedious, dangerous, and since it was still cold, he thought he was going to freeze as he worked in the splashing water with a jackhammer, drilling dynamite holes. In the course of the project. (Continued on Page 11, Column 2)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

In spring a little boy's fancy turns to thoughts of snakes, small and frogs, or so it does with Earl Lovelace, 10, and David Lovelace, 11, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Lovelace, BURLEY. Every spring these boys start collecting water or blow snakes, and that in turn calls for the collection of other small creatures to feed the snakes. The boys started this hobby when they were just 4 and 5 years of age. There has never been a problem of keeping the snakes over the winter for they manage to get away by themselves. "Mother won't let us keep them in the house," the boys say. When the boys were quite small they found some small water snakes and brought them into the house, but then in the bathtub and gave them some fish fins to eat.

The family doctor came to call on this particular day and needless to say he was surprised to see snakes in the bathtub. The father recalls, but he was more amazed that the snakes were ending while in captivity.

The doctor stated that when he was a school teacher his biology class had captured snakes but had never been able to get them to eat, the father related.

Grandfather Liked Them. The boys' grandfather, Charles Lovelace, liked snakes, too. One day while he was plowing in the field near Burley he cut off the tail of a water snake and brought it in near the granary to help keep this mouse away.

The snake did the job as well as any cat and on warm days could be seen warning itself in the sun for several years, they recall.

They had their biggest snake last year when they caught a four-footer which they kept in a big box with a cover. One night when their dad was making the rounds before bedtime he noticed that the snake was gone from his box. It didn't take him long to find him in bed with the boys.

These snakes won't hurt people for they aren't poisonous but they do bite a few times. When they first catch a snake the boys force feed them, using a stick and hamburger.

Then they have to get busy and catch some frogs for them. This isn't much of a problem for there are "hundreds" of little frogs around the back yard and in the are red and black with a little white in their mouths. "It is fun to watch them eat and other insects. They are really benefited by the worms," the boys declare.

They took them to school one day and the teacher—didn't like snakes so they had to bring them right at home. The boys are in the fifth and third grades at Overland school.

This may seem a strange hobby, but it keeps the boys busy and at home. It has given them an inquisitive mind and they often refer to books for information on snakes as well as other creatures of nature, the father notes. One of the latest activities of the boys is swapping snakes with their friends for chum-bone boards.

A "hobby" party given by the Idaho county American Legion post No. 24 at HALEY recently turned out to be quite an expensive affair for Morgan B. Beard.

During the evening a scavenger hunt was held and three groups of Legionnaires each started out. In addition to the usual horse hair, autographs, tumbler and children's education are forced to concentrate on the development of superlatives since said jobs and promotions follow the winning team.

Practically no one considers water polo since the family has made a down payment on an automobile. The town park is too exhausted after struggling with the demands of the job and the ordeal of transportation to do anything more than to get a hearing aid. "I was afraid I needed a hearing aid. But thank goodness I don't need one after all. Maybe it will help you if it helped me."

If you hear, but don't understand, perhaps you don't know how to use your hearing aid. Learn from this revealing 43-page booklet, "Your Hearing and Your Health."

It doesn't sell a thing, not even a single word about Sonotone's new all-translator hearing aid. Contains facts about care of the ears; how to get a hearing aid; and drugs on hearing; whether deafness is inherited; and many other revealing facts. And this booklet is FREE. FREE of charge, and FREE of salesmanship.

It was difficult to establish a residence long enough to satisfy all the requirements. "It has been difficult to find witnesses who have known me long enough," she says. "It was difficult, but I've done it as soon as I could. I had lived in Twin Falls for five years and one week. I did a lot of auditing for the citizenship exam. My children and I went to school now, say I know more about U. S. history than they know in all the elections, including

Don't Be "Old Softie" Proper Exercises Make Person Feel Like Champ

By HAROLD THOMAS HYMAN, M. D. Written for Newspaper Enterprises Association. The Washington conference on youth fitness will serve the nation well if it points out both a strength and a weakness in current American life. As a people we may rightfully boast of champion athletes, strenuous sports arenas and the tremendous interest of thousands of spectators and millions of onlookers in amateur and professional contests of all kinds. Unfortunately, we seem to be neglecting the few at the expense of the many. Our worship of sports too often has led to the neglect of exercise. As a result, far too many of us have let ourselves become soft and flabby.

Although the primary blame for our poor state of physical fitness must be borne by each of us as individuals, the circumstances of our lives have conspired to encourage self-indulgence. Kids no longer walk to and from school. They're driven to bus stops.

From elementary school through college, many departments of physical education are forced to concentrate on the development of superlatives since said jobs and promotions follow the winning team.

Practically no one considers water polo since the family has made a down payment on an automobile. The town park is too exhausted after struggling with the demands of the job and the ordeal of transportation to do anything more strenuous than flip on the TV set. And the farmer travels by tractor if someone in the family has made off with the horseless buggy.

Quite naturally, the conference is interested mainly in the effects of our lack of fitness on the national defense posture. Military and as a physician, it is mainly with the harmful effects on individual health of sedentary living.

The flabby person imposes many handicaps upon himself. "He is more prone to injury, imparts a greater strain on heart and lungs when extra effort is required, slugs the getting of mental cobwebs at the end of a living day.

Beyond pointing out the need for regular exercise, there is little the adviser can hope to accomplish. So great is the variation in individual lives, tastes and wishes that each of us must select that form of physical activity he is most apt to continue indefinitely with some degree of enjoyment.

I've never known anyone to be fit for most forms of athletic sports, but hiking, fishing, horseback riding, boating, horseback riding, bicycling and swimming are among the capacities and means of almost universal enjoyment.

How about giving one of these forms of exercise a real try? You won't draw a million-dollar check for salary in Mickey Mantle's bracket, or thrill to the cheer of the crowd, but you'll live a healthier, happier and more self-satisfying life. That I can promise you.

Patricia is a third grade student at Washington school. The day after she became a citizen she took her exercise class. When including an American flag presented new citizens by the American Legion post and abandoned them to her classmates in the "American Legion" post and abandoned them to her classmates in the "American Legion" post and abandoned them to her classmates in the "American Legion" post.

Mr. Thomas O. "Norm" Born in Sherbrooke, Quebec, came to the United States in 1923 and made his home in Burley in 1927. She became an American citizen as soon as possible. She points out that Canadian days enjoy many of the advantages found in the United States, but stresses she is certainly going to take advantage of her right to fulfill her requirements.

Mr. Donald F. Dickson, Burley housewife and mother of three children, has lived in the U. S. since 1914. She is a native of Australia, who met her husband in Brisbane during World War II. She notes time has passed quickly and she hadn't gotten around to fulfilling her requirements.

"I've been busy raising a family and I kept putting it off, but the family finally brought me to task and I got to work on it."

"I guess I was the conservative Scotch blood in me," she says, "but still a faint trace of her Irish Australian diet."

She has enjoyed her life in the land of plenty and opportunity, but adds that life here is really not as different from Australia, where citizens don't stress career, as in England, where you are expected to be a professional man.

Noting she was long awaiting to when she was living in Australia, she says this fall will be the first time in her life she is not privileged to vote. "So that's the greatest day," says Mrs. Dutches.

She had the bill signed, on the day she became a citizen. Mrs. Dutches notes that the bill was signed just two months before Captain Dutches was due to return to Australia with Patricia to return with them, so they decided Mrs. Dutches would stay in Austria with Patricia and her parents were excited. "It means a lot to us," Captain Dutches says. "She has been brought up in an American home for eight years and it will be nice to be able to take her back home for when she becomes duty, as an American citizen."

And it means a lot to Patricia, too. Mrs. Dutches says that for a long day after she became a citizen she kept saying, "What a nice man that judge."

One of the married couples to register citizenship is Mr. and Mrs. Leo Quander, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Quander, 1550 Hansen avenue, who recently completed including in the navy 10-A school in San Diego and was second high in a class of 20. He has one boy who will leave here on May 11 for New London, Conn. for additional schooling and probably duty aboard a submarine. He has a fireman rank and will have 45 weeks of additional training.

Tunnels Blasted Through Rock Cliffs in Desert Setting to Increase Spring Flow to Irrigate Hay Fields

Paul Clontz carries dynamite up the mountain side to the site near Brown's bench. Photograph was taken from the mouth of one of the tunnels. Below in the background is highway that will utilize the added water and beyond is level land west of Salmon reservoir. (Staff photo-Engraving)

The streams, from two caves Paul Clontz blasted in the mountainside converge at this point, forming a small, fast-running stream that enters the hayfield irrigation ditch. When enough water has been placed on the fields, the excess will be stored in reservoirs. (Staff photo-Engraving)

What was formerly a rock wall 150 feet above hay fields is now the mouth of a cave. Paul Clontz, Kimberley, stands in the mouth of the cave he clipped and blasted into the face of Brown's bench on the Chet Brackett ranch, west of Salmon reservoir, to increase water flow. (Staff photo-Engraving) three employees quit working because of the conditions. Clontz doesn't blame them. He had to do about 75 per cent of the work himself. He says it was some of the hardest work he's done in years of construction.

There was no way to avoid working in the stream of water as he prepared the blast holes. First he tried working in hip boots. They soon filled with near-freezing water. Then he tried rubberized coats and pants. This combination was good for a few minutes, but the splashing water soon soaked him to the skin. Next he purchased surplus rubber survival suits that the air force supplies almen who have to parachute into freezing water. Only the face is capped. Still he got wet and cold. He would make several changes of clothes a day at the ranch house and dash back to more work.

Cold water wasn't his only enemy. Falling rocks, loosened by the blasting, presented a constant danger. After each blast he would wait at least 20 minutes for loose rock to fall.

One day if he had waited two or three seconds longer he would have been better off. Just as he entered the tunnel, a large flat rock with a sharp point tumbled from above, striking him squarely on the top of the head. Luckily, he had on an aluminum helmet but it was he had been wearing some-

Paul Clontz points to a small spring seeping from the rock face of the mountain side. A few feet to the left of this seepage another such spring existed, until Clontz went to work on it with a jackhammer and a few cases of dynamite. He blasted a 100-foot tunnel back into the mountainside and tapped the output of the spring. He did this in two locations, increasing the water output so that 75 acres of hayland can be irrigated instead of the former 15 acres. (Staff photo-Engraving)

Buhl Society Has Banquet

BUHL, May 7 — The National Honor society of Buhl high school held its annual banquet with a special program Wednesday evening at the B and I cafe.

Frank Gekka served as master of ceremonies. Special guests included Mr. and Mrs. John Burkhardt, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Borders and Elwood Cleidhill.

New members recently received into the society were introduced including Kathy Baxter, Catherine Brattford, Warren Dowd, Fontaine Hagedorn, John Rockelley, Linda VanZante and Bob Watt. Fontaine Hagedorn gave the invocation.

Mary Jo Larsen is retiring president, Warren Dowd, vice president. Bill Perry is acting chairman next school year until new officers are elected.

The program included two piano numbers presented by Joyce Cook and Judy Love. Better youths including Jim Olson, Jim Shields, Gekka, Doug Wasko, Gary Frank and John Barker sang several songs.

Frank Rockelley served as the accompanist. Committees included Linda VanZante and Catherine Brattford, place and seat setting, Kathy Baxter, Invitations and Bob Watt, entertainment. Warren Dowd was general chairman.

Device Permits Planting of 1,000 Trees Each Hour

This is the kind of work that went on last week at Arthur Kastner's farm south of Clover as the Idaho fish and game department planted 1,000 windbreak trees for him. Although the tractor moves slow and the crawling is low, the machine is making out the line for the next row.

On the left side, 1,000 trees can be planted by this two-man crew in an hour. The driver is Gene Blatner, Boise, manager of the wildlife management area at Morenci. Abe Schulz, Jerome, is on the tractor. (Staff photo-entourage)

Tree-planting is made easier with this small machine towed on a three-point hookup behind a tractor. A wide shoe breaks a furrow directly below the planter, while the drop-down tray drops into it. Then the two wheels below the seat firm the dirt against the planter. Schulz counts to himself to time the spacing while he reaches over to get another bundle of trees from one of the water-filled trays at each side of the planter. When this is done, the landowner is expected to irrigate on each side of the newly-planted trees and water them. (Staff photo-entourage)

Fish, Game Department Has Its First Windbreak Plantings in This County

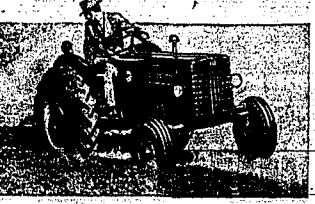

Towing a trailer loaded with a four-wheel tractor and tree-planting machine, a small team of men in a fish and game department pickup truck entered Twin Falls county last week and began the first tree-planting for windbreaks ever made by the department for county farms and ranches.

Between rains the crew planted more than 3,000 young trees and shrubs for farm windbreaks on the Balmain tract. Then they departed still without fanfare for other Magic Valley counties.

Arnold Coleman, Jerome, game biologist in charge, said his two-man crew would plant approximately 5,000 trees and shrubs in the Boise-Caldwell area before entering Magic Valley for the larger plantings.

Each planting is at least 500 trees and shrubs. The Twin Falls district had five plantings this year: Gooding and Blaine districts, three; Jerome, 22 to 24; Boise-Caldwell, 25; and Cassia county, 15 to 20.

California Visitor Tells How He Got Started in Ladybug-Selling Venture

A California "oldtimer" who has been selling ladybugs for nearly 30 years was a visitor in Twin Falls recently.

He is L. W. Williams, Dobbins, Calif., but he insisted on being called "Bug".

Williams was here to establish contact and sell ladybugs to George Wilkings, Security Feed company, and to try and interest the Green Giant company, Dunh...

Williams has no use for chemical pesticides, claiming ladybugs have been killed off heavily by sprays in fields in California, and that the mountains where he gathers his ladybugs contain fewer of these beneficial insects than ever before.

1,508,000 Great Plains Acres Damaged by Wind This Year

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—The soil conservation service reports that about 1,508,000 acres in the Great Plains as of April 15 had been damaged by wind action.

This was about 600,000 acres more than the amount reported a month ago. The estimate of land damaged on April 1, 1959, was 1,844,000 acres. The reports were from 21 counties covering 245,000,000 acres in the 10 Great Plains states.

An additional 11,142,000 acres were estimated to be in condition to blow this season, compared with 8,700,000 acres a year ago. The estimates of acreage in condition to blow decreased by 1,500,000 acres during March.

Of the land damaged this season, reports showed 147,000 acres or about 10 per cent of the season's total. Kansas has the largest acreage in condition to blow this season with 4,870,000 acres.

As of April 15, an estimated 147,000 acres of crops had been damaged or destroyed—an increase of 46,000 during March. This acreage was about 30 per cent more than in

Army Cutworm Invasion Spreads Into Hay Fields on Parts of Salmon Tract

Army cutworms invading some 3,000 acres of rangeland in southern Idaho from the Snake River valley into the Salmon tract in the Blaine area.

In some areas the cutworms can be found in numbers exceeding 30 per square foot. Until this week, infestations were considered heavy when they numbered some five or six to the square foot.

LAST WEEK'S report in the Times-News stated that cutworms were on the north side of Snake River in Magic Valley. Now they can be seen on some of the rangeland bordering alfalfa fields south of Twin Falls.

This past week, further inspections by Keith Evans, plant pest control, USDA, indicates cutworms may still be arriving in damage desert feeds and some hay fields in several areas.

Cutworm damage near Hollister was examined by Evans and an inspection party from the Magic Valley. Dr. Dale H. Patten, Twin Falls county agent, Dwayne Batthol, Billings, Mont., and James Maloney, Idaho New-entomologist, both here on a "scouting" assignment.

In areas where alfalfa fields on the side of rangeland was visible, cutworms were found in the alfalfa at least 10 per square foot. Most of the worms were large, at least an inch long, but others were still quite small.

The larger worms are expected to go into their transformation stage soon to moths, but the smaller ones may have another few weeks of "good feeding" before they finish this stage of their growth. Evans said the species should perpetuate itself in areas where alfalfa is grown, but the feeding in alfalfa this spring.

In alfalfa fields where the feeding line could be seen in the field, to that point the field may be cut and baled. In alfalfa where the alfalfa was green, the entire field had about the same thickness of cutworms.

An allotment of spraying material controlled by the bureau of land management, the worms were being sprayed over the alfalfa fields, digging into the crowns of straw and mustard, and others were high up on mustard stems already chewed bare of foliage.

This is one of the army cutworms that has striped bare a Twin Falls alfalfa field. The alfalfa was green with many mustards on grazing land south of Twin Falls in this field, except for a small patch hundreds of acres back to a barrier as well fertilized by chemicals (left photo showing).

Worms could be seen moving from plant to plant in a continuous line of dirt, a fourth of a foot in diameter. As many as 30 cutworms were concentrated.

The bureau office of the bureau of land management said seedlings of alfalfa plants in alfalfa fields thought a line of worms along the periphery of invasion, consisting of topside or even perhaps DDT may kill damage to alfalfa crops. # Chemist Reports on Accepted Use for Weed Killer Involved in Cranberries

Ammoniacal, the weed-killer that caused so much controversy last year in the cranberry industry, can be used on non-crop lands, according to a report by George Whorham, Idaho Falls, chemist for the Alchem Products, Inc. He said the use of the chemical on county weed bureau Director Warren Loring.

The two men went on an observation tour of the Roseworth tract in Lincoln county, where the stands, and to clarify rates of application for spraying 2,4-D in various stages of growth.

Whorham recommended about one and one-half pounds of 2,4-D to 30 to 50 gallons of water in small Russian thistles and young hedge mustards in stands of Siberian wheatgrass. Later, extra grass or bromo.

He said this rate, or even a higher rate of two pounds of low volatile ester wouldn't hurt seed producing grasses.

On new stands established last fall, he recommended from three-fourths up to one and one-half pounds of 2,4-D to 30 to 50 gallons of water. On never stands planted this spring, he recommended the farmer wait till late summer when the plant will be broad spraying for broadleaf weeds.

On the older stands, Whorham points out that if farmers let the hedge mustards stand up to harvest, at least another half pound of the chemical would be required to kill the weed. This makes spraying less economical at this late point, Whorham added.

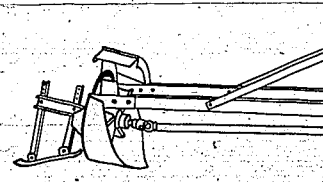

Whorham also had some pertinent information about the sprays used for chemical control of weeds.

He said contrary to popular belief, spraying at 30 pounds pressure will provide better coverage than spraying at higher pressure. He recommended that with large nozzles, low volatile ester can be used with considerable safety and bring about faster kills than are made with the amines.

In this area, esters have fallen into bad reputation because of a few unfortunate experiences with drift wherein a neighbor's alfalfa field was destroyed through improper use.

County Agent Advises Against Use of Non-Certified Culls for Potato Seed

Twin Falls County Agent C. W. Daily has heard from potato dealers that many farmers are making inquiries to acquire second- and third-year culls for seed.

Daily advised against this practice. The only seed safe from disease is certified seed.

Second-year culls are widely used by many farmers who want to pay the extra price for certified seed. But second year seed, and third-year culls, are not safe.

Both men state that "old seed" is not safe. They advise farmers to purchase certified seed from the county agent.

The danger of bringing disease to a farmer in his neighborly fields by this practice is great.

Daily said that in the Magic Valley, Twin Falls, who manages several farms and also raises potatoes, has known over the years that farmers using seed generations removed from certified seed had low yielding crops.

The situation is aggravated by the accuracy of good seed. With the high price for spuds received by farmers, but second-year new plantings are expected. The pattern of increased acreage follows a good year. Prices bring high for fresh potatoes, return the price of the potatoes in the year.

Scholarship Is Planned For Conservation Camp

The Twin Falls school conservation camp has announced that it will offer a $25 scholarship to a boy residing in the district to attend the first conservation camp June 6 to 11 at Alpine on the Idaho-Wyoming border.

The camp is sponsored by the University of Idaho agricultural department. The camp will hold the five-day training period from June 15 to 19 of next year. County reports should be completed by the young men interested in attending the camp.

In addition to studies on wildlife management, students will get a chance to learn to estimate grazing capacity on range lands, the season of use, and set some of the certified seed available through range management.

More Seed Available for New Variety of Red Mexican Bean

Considerably more newly developed UI 35 Red Mexican bean seed will be available to growers this year, according to figures released by Richard Prudden, Twin Falls representative for the Idaho Crop Improvement association.

Last season about 80 bags of foundation seed were made available to growers in Magic Valley and Boise areas. This year Prudden said there will be about 1,400 bags of certified seed available through dealers.

UI 35 Red Mexicans were developed at the University of Idaho experiment station, Kimberly, under the direction of Marshall LeBaron, superintendent. Bred to be resistant against bean mosaic, the new variety is greatly desired.

WEEKLY OUTPUT RISES
 Meat production under federal inspection for the week ended April 30 at a station at 10.5 million pounds, up 4 per cent from the same week a year ago. This represented an increase in slaughter of all classes of red meat animals—cattle, calves, hogs, sheep and lambs.

to the fresh market, which are now optimistic because of last year's prices are the ones most likely to have no source of seed for this spring planting and willing to raise spuds consistently and who purchase any kind of seed.

Boy Scouts Learn Safe Gun Handling Techniques

Boy scouts learn safe gun handling techniques from W. H. "Pete" Horning, fish and game department regional supervisor. Since receiving education in shooting and gun safety habits was begun several years ago in Idaho, close to 75,000 boys and girls have received the training throughout the state. Course includes basic gun handling techniques, with some shooting at indoor targets, as well as indoctrination in natural resource conservation and wildlife protection. This cooperative statewide program is sponsored by the National Rifle Association and locally by sportsmen. (Idaho fish and game department photo—staff engraving)

Spring Brings Boys Out Again, Ready For Great Adventure in Outdoor Life

By HEN HUNTER
Idaho Fish and Game Department
The crack of a 22-caliber rifle and the splashing smoke of campfires are becoming commonplace once more as make-believe Don Quixotes, Kit Carsons, Buffalo Bills and Izak Watzons gather along the creek banks and on the hill-sides with shooting irons and wren-cams — to the last man eagerly ready for adventure.
In other words, spring has come, dancing back into the hills of Idaho and hundreds, even thousands, of boys and girls are making merry in the woods and fields, and taking a "big brother" interest in the field of activities of the youngsters. Not with the idea of spoiling any fun, of course, but to spend Davey Crockett how to kill his imaginary "war" without danger to himself, his companions, or other life or property.

different youth Idaho communities, according to department records. Since the NRA-sponsored program was started in the Great West several years ago, close to 75,000 boys and girls have received the training throughout the state. The "basic three-hour" program was conducted on school time last year, with each school receiving three days of instruction. Assistants in the program were local conservation officers, faculty members and sportsmen. The course includes basic gun handling techniques, with some shooting at indoor targets, as well as indoctrination in natural resource conservation and Idaho wildlife concepts. Some local programs include range firing with 22-caliber rifles, where sportsmen are cooperating.

Added to these groups are the more professional "varmint" hunters, following a relatively new trend. For these shooters, the rock chuck represents what the rabbit does to small game hunters. He is the old standby, the dependable day-in and day-out target for continuous shooting in one season period of the year.

Human life is very dear in most parts of the world, cheap in others. No one will agree that a human being is a just-a-biological product whose worth can be pegged in dollars and cents, measurable in the same way a farmer reckons how much it costs to raise his livestock. The fish and game department, for example, knows about how much it costs to produce a pound of trout, although even the fisher treats somewhat from hatchery to home.

Wide spread throughout the country as well as Idaho the rock chuck (or groundhog) is probably the target for more 22 caliber load variations than any other "object" of varmint.

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT Public Service, Politics Interest Roscoe Rich, Cassia Area Sheepman

JURLEY, May 7.—One has to learn to face life, declares Roscoe C. Rich, well known sheepman of this county and member of the state highway board. He is one of the few operators still able to range lands because of extensive land holdings of 10,000 acres. This is former president of the Idaho and National Wool Growers association.

ROS COE RICH

He is a man living during the most interesting period of our civilization as today's man finds that 20 days to travel from Salt Lake to San Bernardino, Calif., and now it will take more than 40 miles used by jet plane. My father and his family visited Yellowstone park the summer of 1910, with tents and bugles and were gone 30 days of operation take half the trip.

Rich was married to Helen St. Pauline Rich in 1910. She died August, 1950. Later he married Josephine M. Rich in 1912. They had one son, Roscoe, Jr., and one daughter, Oak Park, Ill., and more recently of San Francisco and later with W. C. St. Pauline, who died in 1948. He had a son and died in 1953, and a daughter, P. Rich, Coateville, who died Feb. 11, 1950.

Rich's lands have been sold to a light and company for nine years and have been distributed from the West to the East Coast. This type of operation takes half the help, he said.

It is often said sheep men are cattle men never miss, but there do. Roscoe Rich found a few calves and Rich had 603 head of range cattle and had a herd of 12,000 head in 1920. They had asked the Panama-Redwood Corp. to build a dam on the Snake river. Rich was in partnership with his father and one brother, C. Rich, who lived in Paris, Mo., and another brother, C. Rich, who lived in San Francisco and later with W. C. St. Pauline, who died in 1948. He had a son and died in 1953, and a daughter, P. Rich, Coateville, who died Feb. 11, 1950.
