Sheriff Gives Car Keys to Girl

Twin Falls County Sheriff James H. Benham presents the keys of a 1960 Valiant to Meredith Cooper, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vince Cooper, Twin Falls. Miss Cooper won the car, which was one of 50 to be given nationwide, by identifying the silhouette of a Valiant, the correct Meadow Gold shield and writing a lyric. Mr. and Mrs. Cooper and Meredith have not yet decided what they will do with the car, but they definitely plan to buy her a bicycle, which they think she will enjoy much more. Girl, 9, Wins Automobile in Nationwide Icecream Contest

"We won—we won!" exclaimed Meredith Cooper, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vince Cooper, Twin Falls, when she won one of 50 1960 Valiant given nationwide in a Meadow Gold contest. Ace Johnson, manager of the Twin Falls branch of Meadow Gold, announced the winner. Mrs. Cooper said Meredith showed great surprise when she found out she had won a new car, but she doubts that Meredith fully realizes yet just what she has won. Mrs. Cooper also pointed out Meredith seemed more pleased with free soft drinks and icecream bars given to her by Meadow Gold officials than she is with the car. They have not yet decided what they will do with the car, but are considering getting her a bicycle which will be more useful to a 9-year-old girl. Meredith will not be able to drive for five years.

Plane Flights Are Delayed By Ill Pilots

NEW YORK, June 18—Pilots reporting sick caused some cancellations and delays today in Pan American World Airways flights. The cancellations were a result of "ill pilots" and "ill pilots" that has disrupted Eastern airline service for a week. Two Pan American flights were canceled and three are delayed at several airports. The canceled flights: A jet that was due to leave at 8:30 a.m. for San Juan, Puerto Rico, with 80 passengers. A piston-driven airliner that was due to leave at 12:30 p.m. for Bermuda with 24 passengers. Seventy pilots told Pan American by telephone they were too ill to report for duty. Besides, some by pilots are called to help maintain a jet.

A Pan American spokesman said he believed the sick pilots might have stemmed from the objection to a federal aviation agency rule that federal inspectors occupy a third pilot seat on each flight rather than an extra seat in the rear of the cockpit. This was the cause of the Eastern airlines walkout by members of the Airline Pilots Association. The pilots contend that the "third seat" practice is unfair. Contentment Clauses Asked In Chicago, a lawyer representing three airlines asked for a federal court injunction against pilots who disobey an injunction banning them from interfering with flight service. Attorney George B. Christensen made the request of U.S. District Judge Julia H. Miller on behalf of Pan American, American Airlines and Trans World Airlines. The judge deferred action and meanwhile ordered representatives of the airlines and the pilots association to meet with him Monday.

Report Given On Reservoir Water Depth

HAILEY, June 18.—Mans-Coffin reported Thursday afternoon that there are approximately 130,000 acre feet of water in Magpie reservoir. When the reservoir is full it holds 191,000 acre feet. He stated that of the 100 second feet of water usually drawn from the reservoir only 60 second feet is being drawn this week because farmers who use the water below the reservoir are hinging. Rights down to priority date of 1900 have been turned off by Magpie Reservoir. At its peak this spring the reservoir had only approximately 160,000 acre feet of water. Officials of the Big Wood canal company note the 120,000 acre feet is about 6,000 acre feet less than the reading a year ago when it contained 126,000 acre feet. Hinging has been started in full force on the Gooding tract with both chemical and draft officials state. The American Falls water picture is not good with prospects of conditions being worse. There is possibility of losing water if it is available and from a strip 20 cents an acre foot reservoir measurement. That will put the price onto the land at possibly 50 cents an acre foot, or an average of $1 per day on each 30 acres, officials note.

BELLEVUE, June 18.—A new in Blaine county for about 18 outlook on life is expected for Arny Lance, Bellevue, who will regain his eyesight after "graduating" from the Guide Dog for the Blind school, San Rafael, Calif., Saturday. Lance, who lost his eyesight last July 7 in a dynamite explosion at the Little Wood river and Carey, is one of five blind persons taking the four-week in-residence training required by California law before obtaining a seeing eye dog. Lance worked at Triumph mine at Hailey and after it closed he was employed at Brownie dam, then moving to the construction work at Carey. The family has resided in Blaine county for about 18 years. Identical Brothers Train With Guard

Max Ivan Johnson, left, and Capt. Ivan Johnson, identical twins reading in Maglo Valley, completed their 13th annual active duty training camp at Goresen field this week. The two are also shown during military training at the 10th armored cavalry training in the field. Major Johnson is from Twin Falls and Captain Johnson is from Halley. Identical Brothers from Area Confuse Their Gen National Guard Companions

Identical twin brothers, born and reared in Twin Falls and now living in separate parts of Maglo Valley, completed their 13th annual active duty training camp together Saturday.

The twins joined the national guard Sept. 17, 1947, as members of company A, 10th cavalry, at Gooding. At that time the cavalry regiment, traveled in vehicles that were horse drawn.

That enlistment time is recalled by Major Johnson: "They would let me let my brother enlist because they're already signed up."

Another time they communicated during the war was by long distance phone from coast-to-coast over a popular wartime radio program. Captain Johnson, then stationed in California, called Major Johnson who was stationed in New Jersey.

Their identical appearance caused the active army on occasion during the service when Major Johnson was stationed at Norfolk, Va.

"It was on duty in Norfolk and I was on duty to visit my brother recalls. "I was working in the signal corps and had a security clearance. I was called to the base, told by the security guards and into the classified radar control room before they stopped him."

Both men spent their World War II time in the South Pacific, but they never once saw each other. The closest they came was when Major Johnson was assigned to the Philippine Islands and he arrived late in the night after his brother had left.

When the two were released from the active army they immediately returned to the Idaho national guard. Ervan was one of the 15 charter members of the regi-

More Jobs, Personal Income Heartens Business This Week

NEW YORK, June 18.—More jobs, more personal income and more industrial production heartened business this week.

Even so, some economists felt that things ought to be better. The Federal Reserve board reported production of factories, mines and utilities advanced to 113 per cent of the 1957 average. This was one per cent above April.

Dr. Edwin Gibson, commissioner of the labor department's bureau of statistics, describing the economic situation, said:

"Employment has not advanced in proportion to production, production is not rising as rapidly as we would like it to, and unemployment has remained at high levels. This occurred in spite of the fact that the stock market found nothing to worry about."

For the first time since January, industrial output increased in May. The federal reserve board reported production of factories, mines and utilities advanced to 113 per cent of the 1957 average.

Another record was set when personal income climbed to an annual rate of $33,400,000,000, a gain of $1,600,000,000 over the April rate. This occurred in spite of continued decline in steel production, which—lasted widespread layoffs.

Congress was busy on legislation which it was hoped would stir up the economic stream. The Senate voted to increase the defense budget. A House committee approved a $1,300,000,000 housing bill which would eliminate down payments on FHA homes existing up to $12,500 and reduce them on more expensive homes.

A House committee approved a $1,300,000,000 housing bill which would eliminate down payments on FHA homes existing up to $12,500 and reduce them on more expensive homes.

Because of declining demand, Pittsburgh Steels company, a subsidiary of U. S. Steel corporation, laid up 13 of its Great Lakes steel mills.

New car sales chalked up another increase in the first 10 months of 1959. About 1,840,000 were delivered. This was 13 above the comparable 1958 period.

Production dipped to an estimated 137,000 cars from last week's 140,000. This was partly because of a wildcat strike at Ford Motor company's Edsel-Comet assembly plant in Lincoln, O.

Strikes and threats of strikes hit other industries. In the aircraft industry about 70,000 workers were striking in their jobs after a walkout. Statements included a strike at Continental's Tulsa plant. A construction of facilities to launch the Atlas missile.

Railroad merger talk continued to fill the air. Northern Pacific and the Great Northern were reported close to an agreement which would create the nation's largest steam system.

The Chesapeake and Ohio asked the interstate commerce commission for authority to acquire control of the Baltimore and Ohio. The New York Central moved to get into this combination after applying the ICC to reject new applications for Eastern mergers until a thorough study of consolidation is made and new rules set up.

Briefly around the business scene: Americans will spend more than $1 billion dollars on foreign travel this year. B. Altman company of New York, offering short-term suits for men, contends the style may be ahead of its time. Prudential Insurance company agreed to lend 30 million dollars to Koke Steelworks, Ltd., of Japan. President John F. Kennedy of the American Bankers Association said commercial banks will spend 300 million dollars on advertising in 1960.

Almost Half Of States to Gain Solons

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Almost half of the 50 states will gain or lose seats in the new congress representative because of the 1960 census.

On the basis of preliminary population figures announced last week, 24 states will be affected. The final figures could change this, but it is doubtful that more than two or three states would be involved in any later shifts.

Changes Show Up
When the census bureau made its most recent estimate 18 months ago, it said 18 states were likely to gain or lose seats. However, an Associated Press computation based on the official formula shows that the preliminary count indicated these changes since the last official estimate.

1. Fast-growing California will gain one more seat than had been expected, eight instead of seven.
2. New Jersey, Ohio and Maryland are likely to lose one seat each, a development not anticipated heretofore.

Other Predictions Made
A Texas and Michigan probably will pick up one seat each, as each listed of two as was estimated by the bureau earlier.
3. Oklahoma, Nebraska and Kentucky, which were supposed to be unaffected, are likely to lose one seat each that was believed in jeopardy.

The census bureau must transmit to President Eisenhower by Dec. 1 the final population figures for each state, together with the bureau's plan for reapportioning the house.
Congress may make changes Eisenhower will send the prospective reapportionment to congress early in January, and the changes will go into effect with the 1962 congressional elections. Congress may make changes in the reapportionment plan, however.

Crews Resurface T. F. Alleys

MAIT Paving and Excavation company employ, Richard Hartman, empties the "doodle-bug," a gasoline-driven portable lade filled with asphalt emulsion as another employe stands ready to begin spreading the solution with a trowel-handled rake. Alleys in Twin Falls Receive New Surface at Less Expense

The black, sticky substance which has been poured over many alleys in the downtown business district in the past few weeks reportedly is saving money. It is a method of paving using a liquid asphalt emulsion, according to Martin Amos, owner of Mait Paving and Excavation company, which is doing the work under contract with the city of Twin Falls. It costs less than the regular method using a hot-mix of asphalt and gravel.

The asphalt comes from Billings, Mont., by tank truck. Water is added before it is used. Sand and aggregates are thrown over it to seal the surface and, later, an added coat of sand is applied to speed its use. The company has eight men laying the emulsion. The asphalt runs from the back of a concrete mixer. A total of 200 boys took the tests. Like pouring sugar from a jar, Men spread it with large wooden boards. Twin Falls, according to H. H. Ballenger, superintendent of streets and waterworks, uses about 200,000 gallons of regular asphalt an

Banquet Held For Officers Of Spud Unit

PAUL, June 18—More than 90 members and guests attended a banquet honoring officials of the Idaho Potato Bargaining association, sponsored by the Paul Chamber of Commerce Friday night at the Homestead cafe here.

Ed Purdie, Spokane, representing the Idaho Farmer, was a guest and spoke briefly. L. A. Gillette, state president, outlined the goals of the association, noting the "family" situation that individuals are faced with when bargaining by themselves.

He pointed out the 25 per cent increase the association had gained from processors last year. Farmers should at least be able to break even, he noted, and urged farmers to become affiliated with the group.

"If the association does the job it intends to, it must have the support of all growers in the state," the president said.

Alfred Longhurst, president of the Blackfoot association, noted that one of the main objects of the association is to inform the public of the problems facing potato growers.

U.S. Welcomes Japan's OK Of Pact; Bases Still in Doubt

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—The United States welcomed with obvious relief today Japan's unqualified acceptance of the new Tokyo-Washington security pact, despite riotous opposition. But anxiety about the future of U.S. military bases on Japanese territory persisted.

Officials predicted the United States now would act with all possible speed to complete its role in the ratification and try to bring the pact into force in a matter of days.

Officials privately expressed admiration for the determined stand made by Premier Nobusuke Kishi in defiance of communist, socialist and left-wing demonstrators generally, who by violence and threats tried to force his resignation.

Publicly the state department issued a statement on the ratification which said, "We naturally are gratified. We share Mr. Kishi's realization, and we view this as another demonstration of U. S.-Japanese friendship."

The statement also said the United States is sure that the new pact will be mutually beneficial to both countries. It extends a U. S. pledge to defend Japan against attack, and it provides for continuing for another decade U. S. air and naval bases in Japan about 10 major installations plus numerous supporting operations.

Through the trains will not carry missiles, but they will carry test equipment. The tests will be conducted on the West coast Monday morning. Part of the reason for the test runs is to determine the feasibility of developing the Minuteman for air-to-air use in the event of war.

Youth Works After Heart Surgery

Robert K. Kirsh, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kirsh, 114 Ostrander street, does work at a pace that could have caused him to have a fatal attack before the operation. Kirsh, a physician, was struck by the fact that his activities included running wild horses, lifting heavy machines in his father's shop and hunting. Kirsh received eight pints of blood during the operation. The scar from the operation, if stretched out, would be about two feet long. (Staff photo-encouraging)

Family Realizes Value of Red Cross Bloodmobile After Brush With Death

The Robert Kirsh family, 134 Ostrander street, Twin Falls, Idaho, realizes more than Mingie Valley families the importance and value of the Red Cross bloodmobile since the oldest son of the family had a brush with death. The increased knowledge of the bloodmobile began when Robert Kirsh, 10, underwent heart surgery in the Salt Lake City LDS hospital on April 26. His operation, which meant that the main artery from the heart, was narrowed. This condition causes extremely high blood pressure. From the time he underwent surgery until the day he was released from the Salt Lake City hospital, Kirsh received eight pints of blood from the bloodmobile. Kirsh, a physician, was struck by the fact that his activities included running wild horses, lifting heavy machines in his father's shop and hunting. Kirsh received eight pints of blood during the operation. The scar from the operation, if stretched out, would be about two feet long. (Staff photo-encouraging)

After Non-Stop Drive Hank Discovers He's Middle-Aged

By HENRY McLEMORE. This comes to you from a nursing home, the Wash Noble nursing home, located on a quiet corner of home, just east of the middle-aged men who have forgotten that they are middle-aged. I entered this nursing home at 10:30 p.m. on New York to Miami. There was no one at the wheel but me, and I had no sleep.

The journey I just over 1,400 miles and took me just under 20 hours. When I reached Miami I could not get out of the car. This did not surprise me, for it took me half an hour to get out in Florida, S. C. which is many miles farther north. Why did I make the trip non-stop? Why did I not pause for a night in Washington, another in Richmond, another in Raleigh, and so on, as I would have believed a man of my age?

The incident breaks on his left side underneath the heart, continues around his left side to within several inches of his back-bone, then goes up almost to his right shoulder. If the incision were stretched out, Mrs. Kirsh estimated, it would be nearly two feet long. Robert recuperated wonderfully from the surgery. Mrs. Kirsh means shop and hunting, the doctor wondered how Robert had heavy exercise for the next year. never had a stroke before.

and consulting a physician long about South Georgia. Perhaps some long-ago virus had attacked through the steering wheel. It never occurred to me that this was the reason. Neither did it occur to me that I was a poplite. It today I ache so that there isn't enough water in the Atlantic to bathe away my pains. I haven't been out under redwoods because I am very thin-skinned. I haven't been exercised for fear that my stiffened bones will snap like wishbones. When I return, I'll make the trip in 100 easy stages, stopping for a night's rest after every 14 miles. And I am going to throw away my copy of life beams at 40, 45, 50, or by any other number. (Distributed by McNamee Associates)

Cattle Are Cut At Laidlaw Park

HALLEY, June 18—Members of the Laidlaw Park Cattleman's Association cut their respective herds at the association's corral five miles southeast of Carey this week. Owners belonging to the association took their cattle to the park April 18. It has been necessary to take them out of the good feed in the park 10 days earlier than usual because the water holes have all dried up. The cattle will be taken to forest service areas or private grazing allotments. Frank Kolter, Halley, and Q. Farnsworth, Carey, were in charge when the cattle were taken to the park five years ago. They had accompanied him here for four years to look for the men. They usually bring a trailer house during their stay there.

Sociological Experts Pondering Decline Of Father as Head of American Family

By JOY MILLER Associated Press Writer

Sunday dad gets a breather. But Monday the social scientist will be back on the firing range, busily melting down fresh survey and series of letter symbols for blasting away at beleaguered American fatherhood.

Figured. Blurred. mauling. American fatherhood symbolized as henpecked introvert. Animate maul ticket.

These are some of the less lurid, these lobbed into what many of the several years now anthropologists and sociologists, psychiatrists and psychologists, family counselors and marriage advisers have been wringing their hands over the decline of dad.

Dr. Janet Bloch of the Williams A. White Institute of Psychiatry, Parnassus and Psychobiology says: "The lone-established pattern of family life in which father was boss has largely disappeared."

Dr. Doris Milman of the New York State College of Medicine, New York, has abolished all "male" completely.

Geoffrey Gorer, an English anthropologist: "In few societies is the role of father more vestigial than in the United States."

Russell Lyne, social critic, deined fathers: "The new servant, to think long thoughts and infuse class."

Throughout the barrage—many a pop has come from. Can it be true, as some critics contend, that housework is keeping him too busy to read reports of his decline? Or is it that he can't figure out which expert to apologize to? For the theories all but outnumber the theorists. Pop would have to lead four lives, to make such a multiple mass of fatherhood.

There is some excuse for the old man's confusion when this sort of thing is conceivable? Dad reads about an eminent anthropologist, Dr. Otto von Mering of the University of Pittsburgh, who is bewailing the changing role of father from Victorian lord and master to that of an "onlooker at a mother-child coalition."

Paralyzed at the thought of being an outsider in his own home, father seizes a diaper and advances upon the coalition's smaller half. Then he hears that another eminent anthropologist, Margaret Mead, is distressed because American men are so busy tending babies they have no time for world problems.

Dadfully pop takes the safety pins out of his mouth and retires spend considerable time wiping their noses."

As father flounders, the experts close in with devastating crossfires. 1. Because he is away from home so much and exercises no supervision, dad is creating juvenile delinquents full of violence and hostility.

2. Because he is too much of a homebody, he is creating weak, dependent, passive males. It is his role to see daddy doing dishes. Don't worry too much about it, dad, though. Maybe he is the walking stockpile of inadequacy feeling discrimination and exploitation; the experts claim but there are more ads around today than ever before.

And, there's no doubt about how he rates with his family. After all, he is a he or a pipe or a pad, new slipper Sunday, didn't he?

Reservoir Depth at Salmon Dam Is Measured

Albert Goodeyer, caretaker of Salmon dam, leans over the platform east of the dam and takes a measurement of the amount of water in the reservoir with a plumb line. The weight is seen just below the platform. The weight is lowered until it touches the water and then an electrical circuit is completed, enabling Goodeyer to take a very accurate measurement. Administrators of Schools Having Usual Vacation With Busy Summer

If there is one June question that can annoy a school administrator it is to have someone stop him on the street and ask, 'Well, what are you doing now that you are on vacation?' The question sounds harmless enough, but the plain fact is that summer months, especially June, are the busiest months for most school administrators. Although the three so-called vacation months are months of hard work and constant strain, far from the supposed vacation-time the layman sometimes thinks administrators are enjoying.

At the answer to this common question, Kleinkopf says, 'As just to smile and tell them June is my favorite month.' He adds the title applies to Everett Haglund, superintendent, and V. L. Leteborg, principal of Twin Falls junior high school. A vast amount of planning, ordering and report making fills the days of the summer months. It is not the time of peace and calm. Kleinkopf says a great percentage of the thousands of dollars spent on supplies during the year is spent during the summer months. Nearly $40,000 was appropriated for the payment of teachers' salaries and supplies during 1959 and 1960.

During these months administrators occupy themselves with everything from the annual school district report to whether there are enough brooms on hand for the coming year. Currently Kleinkopf is working on the school district report, a time-consuming report which district makes to the Idaho state department of education. The report notes the past year's activities and makes estimates on the coming year. From this report, information enables the state to determine how much state aid each district will be granted.

This large report takes a vast amount of time to gather all the information. Both Kleinkopf and Haglund work on the report. Kleinkopf estimates it would take one man a solid month to assemble all the information. The two major purposes of the report is to the state can determine the amount of aid the school will receive and to forecast future educational trends. Based on the information given, the report is published and distributed throughout the school year.

Kleinkopf is currently making book orders for the school district. During June he will complete ordering for all the schools. He anticipates ordering $20,000 worth of textbooks, $2,500 workbooks, $4,000 supplementary books, and $200 of different sources and each order must be made out and then listed on the record books. While he undertakes this work, Haglund is busy ordering all the supplies that will be needed by the school next year. This includes everything from paper clips to supplies for the science classes. Haglund must pour over dozens of catalogs during the summer.

According to the Rev. Mr. Cronk, this is the first time such a course has been offered in this area in nearly 10 years. In the past anyone who wanted to receive the water safety instructor's certificate had to go to a considerable distance and expense to get it. The closest place they could get the needed training was at Hayden lake. And many of them had to go to Tulelake, Calif., near Fresno. The Red Cross sponsors aquatic schools at both places.

Surrounded by books and assisted by an adding machine, Arthur H. Kleinkopf, assistant superintendent of schools for class A school district No. 411, busily makes out book orders for the coming year. This is just one of the major jobs facing school administration during summer months. (Staff photo-engraving)

Two Men Work Releasing Flow of Water at Milner, Salmon Reservoirs

Only two men have the actual duty of releasing the flood of water that flows in the canals in the valley and serves as the life-line of the area's agricultural system. They are the caretakers of the dams at Milner, and Salmon Reservoirs. Each year during the growing season these men constantly regulate and adjust the gates that control the water flow in hundreds of miles of canals. The superintendent of Milner Dam is R. H. Seymour, who has worked in that capacity for 13 years. Albert Goodeyer is the man who cares for the waterflow at the Salmon reservoir. He has been there for five years. Both men work at a sort of lonely job, but both realize its importance and enjoy the work.

The Milner dam dispenses a vast amount of water each year. Seymour is the man who releases and lowers the gates and controls the output of the gates, with instructions from different canal companies. Water from Milner dam flows into four major systems—the south side canal, the north side canal, the Milner-Goodier canal, and the Milner low lift canal system, an area south and west of the dam irrigated by water pumped from the reservoir. Seymour, with one aide, W. R. Eberharting, assistant superintendent, keeps a year-round, 24-hour watch on the gates into the canal systems. Seymour points out that 435,965 acres are irrigated with water dispensed from this diversion point. The water leaves the reservoir with a roar and once in a digital trickle in some people's corrugated life pipes spilling the water will travel a total of 84 miles before it is turned into the corrugates of the fields. He adds that 44 per cent of the land irrigated by the Snake river, to this point, is diverted by the Milner dam.

Seymour takes care of the four sets of gates on the three gravity canals and the gates on the dam itself. The water for the Milner low lift canal is controlled by a pumping station across the reservoir from the dam.

Keeping the proper amount of water constantly flowing, according to the daily orders he receives from the canal company offices, is not a constant chore and is affected by many things—even wind and moods. No explains that wind deals them one of their biggest headaches. It occurs that the contrary Idaho wind will actually shift a vast amount of water about the reservoir, altering the level of water at the release gate. When the wind changes, the caretaker must take this into account, re-measuring the output of water in a gauge house, and make alterations in the water gate adjustment.

Most growing in the river, especially between Fred and the Milner dam, deal them some trouble, too. Seymour explains the moss starts to grow in the river as soon as the weather gets warm. It builds up in the stream, building in effect, a botanical dam. When the water pressure gets strong, the moss will give away and release the backwater, creating a slight minor flood in the reservoir. It is enough to alter the level of the reservoir and necessitate a gate change.

Other than coping with these unpredictable forces, the job is somewhat routine. The day for the dam keepers starts early. They are up at daybreak, checking the water levels at the yard's gates by 5 or 6:30 a.m. If necessary, they make a report to the company offices. The adjustments are made. Then Seymour reports to the Idaho Power company plant and informs them how much water they can expect in the river channel for power purposes. At 8 a.m. he makes a report to the bureau of reclamation offices at Burley and informs the office of the amount of water dispensed from the reservoir into each canal. The remainder of the day is spent making routine checks at the gauge houses on the canal. There is a gauge house below each canal gate. If necessary, appropriate changes are made.

It's a rather lonely job, but Seymour says there are occasional visitors to the dam. He says most of the visitors are older men who had worked on the dam as young boys and are coming back to visit, one of the places they once knew. They now vary in occupations from such things as a New York real estate man to a California college professor.

The growing months are busy months, but there is always something to do in the winter. Seymour says he has been in the office for 13 years. (Staff photo-engraving)

Sixteen Valley Residents Learning Ways to Lessen Drownings in Area

Sixteen area residents are doing their part to lessen the number of drownings in this area by taking the tuition-free water safety instruction given at the Twin Falls municipal swimming pool. According to the Rev. R. B. Cronk, representative for Oregon and southwestern Idaho, most of these persons will use their training to instruct swimming and water safety courses throughout the valley. According to the Rev. Mr. Cronk, this is the first time such a course has been offered in this area in nearly 10 years. In the past anyone who wanted to receive the water safety instructor's certificate had to go to a considerable distance and expense to get it. The closest place they could get the needed training was at Hayden lake. And many of them had to go to Tulelake, Calif., near Fresno. The Red Cross sponsors aquatic schools at both places.

The Rev. Mr. Cronk says the first weeks of the course is devoted to preliminaries. Since many of the students are taking refresher courses, part of the first week is spent reviewing basic techniques. They are briefed on current life-saving techniques, both theory and methods of artificial respiration. Considerable time also is spent perfecting the nine different swimming strokes they must know. There are 15 hours in this part of the course.

The second week is devoted to teaching methods of water safety. Students are taught how to teach the different techniques they have learned to perfection in pool courses. Many of them have a degree of course in their field. The prerequisite for the instructor's course is a current senior life saving certificate. There are 10 different swimming and life-saving certificates that can be earned from the Red Cross. Students are taught how to teach the many different swimming strokes. The Rev. Mr. Cronk says interest in such courses has been increasing. The more trained persons there are in swimming and water safety, the fewer accidents will occur. He says, 'A simple presentation can prevent many drownings.' (Continued on Page 21, Column 1)

Just Let Him Loaf Vacation Is Period for Worker to Convalesce

By Harold Thomas Hyman, M.D., Writer for Newspaper Enterprise

The concept of a 5-day work week with a rest on the seventh day is not new.

So far as I am aware, neither Old or New Testament makes mention of an annual vacation, which the worker vacates his mind.

Nevertheless, this happy and necessary rest is a right of every worker.

Dr. Hyman, a physician, is a greatly disturbed by the injustices and hardships that arise from misuse of the vacation period.

By directing your attention to some of the reasons why it might not help you to avoid or correct any that might arise in your household.

To begin, I want to state two general principles, neither of which will win the unanimous approval of the vast majority of families.

The first is that, for the worker and wage earner, the vacation is a brief period of convalescence.

It is intended primarily to give the individual an opportunity to recover from the wear and tear of continuous toil.

The second, that the vacationing individual should plan the brief period of convalescence so that it does not add to the wear and tear imposed on others in the household.

Perhaps my meaning will become clearer if I personify what I am trying to convey. Let's start with our first principle.

We'll suppose that the vacationing individual is the father, who is entitled to be away from his job or desk for two or three weeks with pay.

The best way for the wage earner to recover from the wear and tear of 48 or 50 weeks of work is a matter of individual choice.

My plea to each family group, partially in his self-interest, is to let the individual, as far as possible, be free to return his wife home.

And if he wants to include in some sort of activity, let him fish, hunt, swim, or do anything that he likes to do.

When he returns from whatever it is he enjoys, he'll come back with a renewed vigor and vitality.

And when the couple of weeks pass all too quickly in history, he'll tackle whatever it is he has to do with redoubled vim, vigor and vitality.

So much for my first principle of vacationing to their families and communities with first-hand knowledge of the real world's customs and ways of life, the truth about the participating countries and the people who live in them.

Rupert Plans Shifting for Grade Pupils

RUPERT, June 18 — Plans for shifting students in the Rupert school system this fall into the new elementary school building is completed as announced by Supr. Gordon Meyer.

Preliminary work at the site is slated to begin Monday and until the classrooms are completed it may be necessary to move the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades to the Milner high school to make room for students at Washington and Latona schools.

These plans are tentative, Meyer pointed out, noting some solutions will have to be found until the new units are ready since Washington school cannot hold all the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grade students.

The new building will house grades one through fifth, leaving the old Lincoln building for the fourth and fifth in the Washington school for grades six through eight. Tentative plans were discussed to open bus bids for the immediate construction of kitchen facilities at the Milner school.

Meyer said plans for this addition, together with additional classrooms, were approved under the bond issue early this spring and that since it would be impossible to complete the classrooms in time for the fall opening of school, it was decided to plan for the kitchen unit should be started now since the present facilities are inadequate. Since classrooms will be built on the opposite end of the building, there would be no duplication of labor or materials.

In the reorganization of the school board, Gordon Peterson, selected chairman with Russell Adams, Paul, as vice chairman, Les Monte, Fred, as secretary, and clerk, Mrs. Jay Olson will be treasurer and Henry Cresson will continue as legal adviser.

Wilbur Butler, Acquia, newly-elected to the board was invited by Della Goodman, teacher at the Milner school for several years, to be a member of the board of the new school to be constructed in Rupert.

Other elementary teachers approved include Carol Dwyer, Norma Ewer, Ruth Blum, Jim Malyer and Gary Mason. Approved for the high school staff were: Bruce Stephenson, English department; Paul Butler, drama; Monte Bates and Robert Egan, Winward, social science. The board accepted the resignations of Monte Bates and Robert Egan from the high school staff.

Crowd of Ranchers Attends Field Day Tour on Malta Salt Desert

These are some of the ranchers who attended the East Cassia field day tour on salt desert areas near Malta. Standing in center in dark coat is James Hill, cattleman and resident of the area for more than 70 years. At right front is Vard Chaburn, ...

Albion, one of the supervisors in the soil conservation district. Hill can remember when the same salt desert now overrun with haloxylon, Jackrabbits and ant mounds, was thick with wheatgrass and grass for cattle to graze. (Staff photo-eyering)

Wide Repercussion Possible From New Study of Crested Wheatgrass Grazing

MALTA, June 18 — A tentative conclusion about grazing cattle on crested wheatgrass ranges may have wide repercussions throughout the West. It was offered this week by Lee Sharp, University of Idaho range management specialist. The conclusion so far notes that cattle are being taken off crested wheatgrass ranges when only 50 per cent of the forage has been utilized and this is not sufficient in the best interests of range management and should be increased. Generally, range managers have been of the opinion that crested wheatgrass should never be grazed down closely, not if the stand is to remain in a vigorous condition year in and year out. Sharp made these statements toward the conclusion of the East Cassia field day tour held this week in the Raft River country. He bases his claims on studies at the Point Springs experimental station where cattle were weighed three times during a day grazing period, either spring and fall. Grass and rainfall studies were weighed before and after grazing. Cattle gains varied from two and one-half pounds a day for spring grazing, and between one-half and one and one-half pounds in fall grazing. None of the fields was grazed both spring and fall, said Sharp. The same fields were grazed the same way year in and year out during the study. Future studies will be made to determine what happens to cattle and grass under combinations of spring and fall grazings on the same fields. Agree With Bledy When asked what he thought about the conclusions reached so far at the Point Springs experimental station, Dean Bledy, district manager of the Blacklegged generally with the study. The trials were conducted on the BLR ranges and the fences for the enclosures were put up by Wilson's office. Both the university and the university are equally and the usually have been working on the BLR. The cattle, usually over 300 head of yearlings, were furnished by members of the Raft River stockmen's association. This is the kind of study we've tried, Wilson said. We aren't absolutely sure to what levels crested wheatgrass could be grazed to benefit the cattle best and still maintain the stand in top shape. If the stands survive and do well, that's all we care about, he added. Wilson adds that in good stands of crested wheatgrass, 200 to 300 acres of land have been assigned for an annual unit (one acre in every year, and on occasion good-moisture, two acres may do for a unit). He also theorized that every two or three years, the crested wheatgrass should be grazed down to about 85 per cent utilization. Season Begins Early Wilson notes that in many years the grazing season on crested can be kept up to the time the snow keeps up with plant growth. He didn't know yet how the time factor would work in with the opening of the forest grazing season, especially if cattle were grazed on salt lands for 45 days. The tour began in the morning on salt lands where few cattle graze. At the first stop, near Malta, the tour was led by James Hill, who pointed out by Paul (Jim) Torrell, University of Idaho range specialist, that the salt desert is a salt desert. He said that the salt desert is a low-growing desert shrub that has increased in crowded out by generating years.

of phosphate in the grass seed. East Cassia soil conservation district and that ranchers may well try under the guidance of Jack to consider feeding supplements. Pierce, Malta; Vard Chaburn, Albion. The entire trend of the cattle in-bred, and Gordon Price, Burley, Idaho, is to provide a fast-growing, soil conservation technician. Also light, fat steer. Dr. Hill thinks present on the tour was Dolan. A supplement feeding in the fall on salt desert, bureau of land management, who had been working for over a month had that first cutting hay was going to be as high as last year. Now that some of their fields have been tested this year, what will happen during the second growing period may be another matter. Hay looked poor until three weeks ago, then fields jumped 100 percent during the hot weather. The bud stage came along fast and as it seemed that some farmers were cutting their alfalfa early, the fields began to show signs that look as if they are last fall's new seedings.

ASSIGNED IN TEXAS JEROME, June 18—Alfred J. Lonson W. Standler, son of Hugo Standler, Jerome, just completed the fire control systems course at Lowry air force base, Denver, and has been assigned to the 85th aerospace-electronics squadron at Dyess air force base, Texas.

By rabbits chewing off the tops that is so often the plant can kill itself and by infestations of ants. Haloxylon has filled the "vacuum." Torrell pointed out that under these conditions it seems best to make an attempt to re-establish native salt shrubs and revegetate the area from seed since the native shrubs don't need themselves into a good stand. He points out that under these conditions it seems best to make an attempt to re-establish native salt shrubs and revegetate the area from seed since the native shrubs don't need themselves into a good stand. He points out that under these conditions it seems best to make an attempt to re-establish native salt shrubs and revegetate the area from seed since the native shrubs don't need themselves into a good stand.

The experiments began in 1955. Each year the same field has been grazed light, moderately or heavily. In percentages of forage utilization, light grazing was about 50 per cent, moderate was from about 70 per cent, and heavy was from 85 per cent on up.

The spring gains were highest for the cattle and the fall grazing resulted mostly in maintenance feed, since the plants were mature then and lower in protein. The highest gain per acre was 64.7 pounds for spring grazing and the lowest was 24. The highest fall gains, also for 45-day grazing periods, was 28.5 pounds. Sharp notes one spring rain was heavy in the area and the field was understocked. When clippings of forage were measured, it was found that the forage utilization came out zero. In short, there was more grass after the 45-day grazing period than there was before the cattle were put out in the pasture.

While all kinds of measurements were being taken, soil and water consumption the soil was ablated. Astonishingly, water consumption during the spring grazing was seldom more than five gallons per yearling steer, and more often at about three and one-half gallons. Average consumption during the fall was about the same. Salt requirements per head per month were from one pound to one and one-half pounds.

The national level provided the animal by the grass was discussed by Dr. T. Donald Bell, University of Idaho head of the department of animal husbandry. Dr. Bell said a bulletin detailing the information would be published within a few months. He pointed out that grass within the same field, in different areas, often will yield different levels of protein. He said that generally the animal requirements for growing cattle were undoubtedly supplied by crested wheatgrass in the spring. In the fall, Dr. Bell said there probably is a sufficient amount

Prices Look Good for Magic Valley's Hay as First Cutting Goes to Ground

Hay, generally, was the dominant crop in the minds of many farmers this past week through out Magic Valley as the first cutting went down for curing over more areas than the week before, and the prices look good. Here and there, particularly in Twin Falls county, a few fields were cleaned up, being baled and stacked or even piled loose. But in the main, it won't be until next week that balers will be heard bumping up and down the fields if it doesn't rain. More hay has to go down yet in the northern area of the valley, and north of Rupert and down south into Raft river country, but by the end of the past week, some hay was down everywhere. Fine interest to farmers with hay to sell or who wanted to buy for their livestock, was the price of hay in the field, rumored for over a month had that first cutting hay was going to be as

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT

"Farm Bureau Meeting" Turns Out to Be Surprise Party Given Monsignor

On June 10 the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edmund H. Coody entered the St. Edward's parish, well prepared to give an invocation for a Farm Bureau meeting. He was rushed for time and shortly thereafter he was surprised by a group of Farm Bureau members but, rather, 600 parishioners, peace and sang, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." It was a surprise party, honoring his 35th anniversary as a priest. He was welcomed by Mrs. W. J. Coody, president of the Farm Bureau.

The rest of the evening was given over to a dinner and program in honor of Monsignor Coody.

All of his career has been spent in the Idaho diocese.

He came here July 15, 1929, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Rev. Mrs. Joseph P. O'Leary.

Born and raised in Bridgeport, Conn., Monsignor Coody is the son of a police force lieutenant in Bridgeport. His father was a member of the force for 41 years. There were two children in the family. His sister Mrs. Helen Murphy is currently a director of the National Council of Catholic Women.

After graduating from Sacred Heart grammar school in Bridgeport, he worked for three years, first in a grocery store and then in a department store. He worked until 1924 when his father died. He wanted to finish high school and enter college. He had received the degree to the Mrs. H. H. Hartman led group.

He entered Mount St. Mary's high school and college at Emmett, Idaho. He started as a freshman in high school in 1915 and by doing an extra year was managed to be graduated from high school in 1919. He then entered the St. Vincent Seminary in 1922, earning a B.A. degree. He received the seminary and entered the MA degree in education.

After he was ordained in 1923 he immediately came to Idaho. His first appointment in this diocese was at St. Maries. In a few months he was moved to Stone where he was an assistant at St. John's cathedral and an instructor at St. Joseph's high school for boys. The school was new when he got there and just Monsignor Coody benefited at the next meeting at Mrs. Victor Peterson, leader.

The Country Crocks club, led by Mrs. Elmer Correll and Mrs. Albert Hills, learned how to make cookies and discussed requirements for the fair. Christine White demonstrated how to wash dining room plates. Karen Paskin set the table.

Shirley Fuller and Judy Trah led the picture of the Holy Scriptures when they met at Mrs. Trah's home. Full call for the fair. Members will be shown their material. Carol Grayson and Ben Coody will give demonstrations. Ella Fyke led group singing. Judy Beth and Barbara Bohl served refreshments.

MSGR. EDMUND H. COODY

and the late Monsignor O'Toole were added to the convent. The Rev. Msgr. Coody was appointed to the parish in 1924. He was pastor and also taught religion classes in the school.

In 1947, he received the title of Monsignor of the parish double in the year of 1951.

In September, 1951, Monsignor Coody received his first pastorate and was sent to Moscow, where he was pastor of St. Mary's church. While he was in Moscow he took advantage of being in a college community and completed work on a master's degree in history and economics, using some credits he had earned in a previous summer school session at Notre Dame.

He received his degree in 1952. His thesis documented a portion of the history of the Catholic church in the Wilhelmette valley in the early part of the 19th century.

Monsignor Coody has always been interested in history and in 1936 Caxton's published his book on the history of the old Sacred Heart mission at Cataldo.

In January, 1959, he was appointed to the parish of St. Stephen's church in Pocatello where he remained until the summer of this year. During the time he was pastor there the sanctuary was renovated. Four chaplains were added to the school, and six rooms biology classes. Monsignor Coody is also the church dean of Magic Valley. This gives him supervisory authority over the parishes at Halley, Shoshone, Burley, Rupert, Gooding, Jerome, Wendell and Hammett. Once a year he will visit these parishes and review records.

At Twin Falls his major duty is as pastor of St. Edward's church. He is assisted by the Rev. John W. Korff, S.T.L.

Two of his major duties are church services and administration of the work of the parish. This is considerable for there are about 2,000 members of the parish.

In 1958, he is Principal of St. Edward's church, the parochial school, with an enrollment of approximately 400 students. Seven priests immediately report to Monsignor Coody and the Rev. Father Koelsch teach the religion course.

Monsignor Coody also teaches the six-week adult education courses in religion in the fall and spring. The courses are designed to provide members with additional teaching on their religion. Class members are drawn from all over the diocese. At the last sessions an enrollment of 95 was not uncommon.

Mrs. remainder of Monsignor Coody's time is taken up with a myriad of duties, working with church members, baptisms and christenings, conducting funerals and all the various church social activities.

Decree Given in Campbell Estate

A decree of final distribution of the estate of Clarence L. Campbell was filed in probate court Friday giving the residue of his estate to his widow, Mrs. Ruth C. Campbell.

Mrs. Campbell received a lot in the Murrigh subdivision to Twin Falls, 1933 Nash automobile and household furniture and fixtures in the house located in the subdivision.

Mr. Campbell died intestate Dec. 20, 1950.

Aboard Carrier

Three Magic Valley boys are accruing aboard the navy attack aircraft carrier, USS Bon Homme Richard, operating with the 11, 8, 6th fleet in the western Pacific.

They are Bill Mallock, machinist's mate, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Mallock, Twin Falls; Robert Y. Bailey, hospital corpsman first class, son of Mrs. Annie Bailey, Kimberly; and Larry A. Johnson, personnelman third class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Johnson, Wendell.

School Administrators Aren't Busy Usual Vacation; Summer Is Busy Time

Another thing that must be done during the summer is planning the inservice training of teachers before school starts and continues throughout the year. Kleinkopf notes, "At the orientation sessions we point out the silent and desired projects until noon. James Jones and Rebecca Jones gave demonstrations. Ellen Jenkins showed how to stain a jacket."

Ada Watson gave a talk on home care at the meeting of the 4-H Club led by Mrs. Paul Howell when they met at the Clotel. Mrs. Watson explained the use of a tracking sheet. Mrs. Watson was club secretary. Mrs. Holloway and Karen Stepanek reported on the pasters training meeting.

Crews Capture and Tag Young Pronghorn Fawns

Roger Williams, Idaho fish and game department biologist, adjusts an aluminum ear tag while Conservation Officer Harold Morche holds an antelope fawn captured during the annual spring "round-up" of newborn antelope as a part of the statewide game census and survey work. Tagging crews are sent to the hiding places of fawns by other men who watch the area with high-powered spotting scopes. As soon as the antelope mother nurses her baby and hides it for awhile, the tagging men are directed to the spot. The young fawns are not very fat at this stage of life. (Fish and game department photo—staff engraving)

Game Biologists Live-Trap Pronghorn Fawns to Adorn Them With Ear Tags

By JIM HUBBARD
Idaho Fish and Game Department
Antelope nurseries in the upper valleys of the Palouse and Little Lost rivers of south-central Idaho had its first private early this month when a score of game biologists trapped 42 pronghorn fawns less than a week old and placed them with small aluminum ear tags.

there presently is a loss of roughly half the fawn crop from the Little Lost and 37 on the Upper Palouse, a total of 83.
The study, undertaken again this year, is designed to determine the quality of vegetation, having a strong effect on the reproduction and growth of the species.

Fischer has seen three coyotes during a four-year total of 21 weeks in the areas. None of them were seen during 17 1/2 hours of aerial survey, judging from signs there may be more about them.
