Cuba May See Reds All Sugar

HAVANA, Oct. 4 (AP)—The real purpose behind Ernesto "Che" Guevara's visit to Moscow is to negotiate the sale of Cuba's entire 1951 sugar crop to the communist government through a gigantic barter deal, government sources said yesterday.

Guevara, a national bank director for the Soviet Union, is expected to take part in the New York meeting of the Soviet-Vietnam economic commission.

It is believed that Guevara is using the observance as a cover for his real mission and has been taking the Kremlin into account all the sugar Cuba produces in return for the Communist bloc's supply of imports. He is also expected to discuss the proposed plan, but will not sign any paper with Guevara until the Communist bloc agrees to purchase the sugar.

Such a deal would mean that Cuba's sugar would go to the Communist bloc, and the Communist bloc would supply Cuba with goods and services. It is expected that the deal will be completed by the end of the year.

THE REAL DIFFERENCE

Both presidential candidates quite wisely make much of the need of America to be strong both militarily and economically. There is only one difference between the scale of strength, and how we can become stronger.

Great stress is laid on the fact that we are a free nation, and that the Government, both men agree that our national safety—and the free world's—depends on our winning this competition. Few would quarrel with this.

Yet in all the general emphasis on the economic aspect of this competition, a major point is consistently overlooked. It is this:

If there were no threat of war, if disarmament were a reality, then the necessity of out-running Russia economically would not be so vital.

Russia has thoroughly demonstrated that a slave society can largely master the problems of building an effective industrial system. It ought to be remembered that the United States has not been able to do this.

Many new nations around the globe may be forgiven for wondering what there is to choose—on strictly economic grounds—between two great rival societies, one free and one Communist.

In terms of productive measures, the differences may indeed not be great one day from the other. It is the way in which America and its friends really have to offer the uncommitted and emerging peoples is not just an example of superior economic control and wisdom, but a superior way of life.

The heart of our system is freedom. And this is something in which the Communists could not outrun us if their society were to last 100 years.

Who, knowing man's unquenchable thirst for liberty, can imagine that we will not have an undying appeal for struggling mankind so long as we preserve and enhance our freedoms?

Let the Communists produce as they will. We will probably go on outproducing them anyway.

But even if they should outmatch us in the factories, they can never compete for men's hearts and minds as can those who live the free life. The Communists are unopposed to the life and the cause of liberty.

THE "PRIMITIVE" WAY?

Once known as "primitive man," the American Indian may yet teach his "white brother" a lesson in economics. This is especially true if Americans at home and the poorer nations abroad follow the example set by the Navajo Indian Tribe in Northern Arizona and New Mexico.

For many years, the government Indian service provided minimum standard facilities, well-intentioned advice on farming, and occasional medical care. This was all complicated by the sprawling, sparsely settled reservation, the example of a stubborn conviction that a man's wealth was determined by the number of horses he owned.

For a few years ago private enterprise recognizing the vast oil and gas potential moved into the reservation, resulting in the Navajo Tribal council receiving more than $70,000,000 in royalties.

If the Indians had followed the example of their "white brother," this money would have soon been dissipated, but they were wise to have a man named Paul Jones as chairman of the Navajo Tribal council.

Tired of seeing the Indians dependent on government handouts and private charities, Jones decided to bring private enterprise principles to the reservation. Among the first projects completed was a seven and 24 million dollar sawmill built near Fort Defiance, Ariz. Now processing more than 36 million board feet of lumber annually, the mill provides jobs for 380 Navajos who formerly were recipients of government aid or were employed in menial jobs off the reservation.

Jones then worked three years on an arrangement, resulting in an agreement with a large power company to build a huge generating station on Indian lands. Coal from the reservation, mined by a second company, will provide the fuel. The station will provide additional industry and health services, more jobs, and finer educational facilities. The new nation within our own borders is well on its way to a prosperous and happy future. secure in the knowledge that it has solved its own problems and is not dependent on the government.

LOG JAM IN COURTS

Short of ending their freedom to a foreign enemy or home-grown dictator, the way for a people to lose their rights is in justice to allow their legal machinery to go down.

An official government report says that nearly 71,000 cases are backed up in federal courts. The average wait for a hearing is 30 months. It is as long as three years in some states.

Chief Justice Earl Warren: "Delay in the courts is bad, because the lapse of time frequently causes deterioration of evidence and makes it less likely that justice will be done when the case is finally tried."

And, congress, when it is in session, judges pending cases by sitting to create additional judgeships.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—The 1960 presidential election threatens to develop into another indecisive "me too" affair in the pattern of the 1948 contest, unless one or two candidates distinguish themselves more realistically and frankly than they have done in the past.

It is not surprising that the present campaign and popular reaction throughout the country support a major unmentioned or unmentioned question concerns the issue of a few integrated labor unions to paralyze the national economy. The gold and the red are all being used to the attack and the Democrats are being used to the attack.

Credit Firm Is Happy to Back 4-H, FFA Sale

The Southern Home Products Credit Association of Twin Falls is proud of 4-H and FFA accomplishments in the livestock industry and happy to support the annual 4-H stock show, December 1-3 at the Idaho State Fairgrounds, Boise. The association paid $2,881.16 for 19 animals at the recent 4-H and FFA sale here and purchased three fast steers at a similar sale in Boise. The firm paid $12,531.31 for nine steers, 10,700 for seven lambs and 11,840 for three pigs at the Twin Falls sale.

"We have, for many years, supported the livestock industry of southern Idaho and we are proud of the fine showing being made by the junior members of this industry in 4-H and FFA work," Stansell declared.

In the future all to the U. S. at world price.

But the American mainland, hopes to acquire firms from here and set new producers who can operate profitably, selling at the world price. They probably will begin a permanent firm to get an export to the U. S. sugar market which protects them. So the U. S. sugar consumers aren't likely to get a better deal no matter which way the Cuban question is settled.

Library Holds Film Showing For Art Guild

The Twin Falls public library is the first film showing of the Magic Valley Art Guild since its inception in the children of the library.

The three films—each selected with various phases of art—were "The Portrait by Lajos Mészáros," "Explosion" by Hans Gasser, and "Watercolor" by Rex Brand.

The three color films were loaned to the art guild by the Granger-Companys, Inc., of the City. The company loaned the films to the art guild for $25.00.

It is hoped that other art groups covering various phases will be shown later this fall.

Mr. Harold Moore, executive secretary was the first public showing utilizing the film loan program. The film was donated to the library by the Kiwanis club in June.

ANSWERS NEEDED

These neglected issues are being given priority in the very heart of national security and progress.

The United States cannot "move forward" and keep behind of Russia, China and the Soviet Union, unless a constructive solution and answer can be found for these questions:

- How can a single labor group—the Transients, the Longshoremen, the Stevedores, the railroaders, the electrical employees, the truckers, the seafarers, the sailors, the life in time of peace or war?
- How can the congressional structure and procedure be changed so that the government in the national interest cannot be blocked or defeated by a bipartisan bloc or by a few all-powerful Communist members?

Neither candidate has answered or even approached these questions.

(Revised by Victoria Newman Sandilands)

NO MOSES FOR THE PARTNER

There's been some disappointment that the presidential candidates, Republican Richard Nixon and Democrat John Kennedy, in recent weeks at the National Party of Congress, South Dakota—traditional show place for political action—have not mentioned the other candidates, have somehow "failed" to give agriculture a new direction.

It is interesting that neither candidate has had down a "positive, point-by-point, comprehensive program for agriculture" and has not burdened the other candidate with the same.

The "fact" is that neither candidate has had down a "positive, point-by-point, comprehensive program for agriculture" and has not burdened the other candidate with the same.

THE FLAMMAGE ISSUE

At least something has been said in the campaign so far—or nearly so.

Jackie Kennedy, said by some commentators to reluctantly buy her clothes from swank New York and Paris couture, has told the press she does not wish to be the wife of the Democratic candidate. She has said she will not be the wife of the Democratic candidate.

It is not surprising, since the wives of the candidates have become such an integral part of the campaign, that the wives of their husbands, the candidates, are so vulnerable to such trifling criticism. Mrs. Kennedy, however, when she asked, "What is an ordinary girl can be smoked in 18 minutes, according to statistics. If you don't run out of matches."
