WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP)—The United States has resumed its program of financial aid to the government of Laos and will supply advisers of the troops which helped put it in power.

The resumption ends a 10-month suspension which was announced after the Soviet Union had announced an offer to fill the financial gap left by suspension of U. S. aid.

Decision Based on Talks

State department officials said the decision to resume the $100-million-a-year military aid program was based on talks in Washington last week between U. S. ambassador Premier Souvanna Phouma and J. Graham Parsons, assistant secretary of state for the Far East.

Parsons, who had been in Laos, was formally announced Oct. 17. It was a result of a conflict between troops of Gen. Phouma's government and their military advisers, Capt. Keith Lee.

The captain had led an Aug. 9 coup which ousted the pro-western government of Laos and installed the neutralist government headed by Souvanna Phouma.

Parsons had refused to take part in the new government. U. S. officials feel that Keith Lee has openly collaborated with the communist-brokered Pathet Lao rebels.

Efforts to cure the breach apparently have failed, but the decision was made that Keith Lee's troops would have to be paid so long as they are a part of the royal army.

Parsons said as his prime purpose the development of a unified effort by Laos authorities to maintain independence against communist pressures.

Report Given on King Hill Events

KING HILL, Oct. 18—Mr. and Mrs. Odey Cox and family, Kenneth and Barbara, and the Young Men's Christian Association of King Hill, will give a report on the events of the past week at the Young Men's Christian Association of King Hill, 435 Second avenue north, at 8 p. m. Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox are former King Hill residents who moved to Twin Falls County in June 1958.

Mrs. Charles Parish and Mrs. Vernon Parshley were in charge of the program. Bobby Parshley played guitar solo and Rex Chlain sang. Delmore Miller and Becky Cox played piano solos. Recitations were given by Sherry Rubery and Clara Robbery. A duet by Phyllis Dickson and Deborah Miller was given by Jill Parshley closed the program.

A gift was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Cox by Mrs. Parshley on behalf of the community. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Parshley, Mrs. Thomas Chlain, Mrs. Rosemary Parshley, Mrs. Parshley and Mrs. Jerry Parshley.

Ignored Parking Ticket Costs $10

A Twin Falls man was fined $10 for ignoring parking on Oct. 10, Monday, because he ignored the original ticket, issued Aug. 10.

Carl J. Easter, 435 Second avenue north, also paid $10 overtime parking fines for six tickets issued subsequent to the Aug. 10 violation.

The complainant charging Easter with overtime parking was cited by Police Chief Howard W. Gillette.

Divorce Claims Mental Cruelty

Mrs. Mary E. Jacobs filed a divorce suit against Roy W. Jacobs in Twin Falls district court Monday. He is charged with mental cruelty.

They were married in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., on May 30, 1954, and have two daughters and a son, the suit states. Mrs. Jacobs asks custody of the children, payment of $50 monthly support for each child, award of the couple's household goods, payment of $175 attorney's fee and court costs.

She is represented by R. E. Sayson, of the Twin Falls law firm of Bazborn and Bazborn.

Fined for Lights

BURLEY, Oct. 18—Donald D. Wolf, 17, Heyburn, was fined $2 and costs by Burley Justice of the Peace Alfred Crane, Monday morning on the charge of failure to stop lights at the intersection, cited by State Patrolman B. G. Harding.

District Court Has New Flag

District Judge Theorem W. Ward, right, and William Ivan Johnson, bailiff, examine new 50-star flag displayed in district court Monday. Johnson purchased it Monday at the suggestion of Judge Ward. It is made of nylon and measures five feet by three feet. Four 50-star flags have been on order for some time, Johnson said. One was intended for district court, another for probate court, and two, measuring six by eight feet, for the magistrate on the courthouse lawn. (Staff photo-entourage)

Englishman Objects to Tax, Establishes His Own State

BROWNSTON, England, Oct. 18 (AP)—From the security of his new capital here, Harold Hill Wheat, chief executive of the independent state of Shorsham, criticizes his home, cold war hostilities.

Wheat objects to paying taxes. He says money the government collects in taxes should be spent on medical research—not diesel-bomb.

Mrs. Charles Parshley was here, proclaimed Brownston his new capital, and announced. All this property was bought in the name of the independent state of Shorsham. The British government does not recognize it. So how can you tax something that does not officially exist?

Wheat's rumpus with the West Sussex council was over a high wall he put up around his Shorsham home. When the council told him to knock the thing down, he said nuts, or something like that, and the council did not. He proclaimed his home an independent state—within the British commonwealth, of course.

He armed a garrison of his friends with shot guns and stationed a couple of rusted old arranged cars and a Sherman tank. The war, in the garden. They weren't armed, was just a gesture of defiance to authority, he made clear.

Well, the great deterrent of Wheat's cavalry could not thwart the power of the law, and Wheat had to go on.

Drinking Is OK

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 18 (AP)—It is all right to drink liquor in Mississippi as long as you don't possess the stuff, the state supreme court ruled yesterday.

The suit came to the aid of J. T. Hutson who gave away some valuable property while too drunk to know what he was doing. When he tried to recover the property a lower court turned him down because, it said, he was obviously violating Mississippi's state-wide prohibition law against possession of liquor.

The supreme court ruled that the law prohibits only possession of whiskey. There is no law against drinking it.

Dealer Honored

FILED, Oct. 18—Mrs. August Burtz, former independent dealer in Watkins products, was honored recently by E. L. King Jr., president of the direct selling firm for her outstanding sales and service. She received a president's award pin and certificate.

Court Pushes Aside Bid to Bar Johnson

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP)—The supreme court has rejected a bid to bar William I. Johnson from running for a federal office at the same time. Johnson, who is running for the House of Representatives in the 19th district, was not allowed to be heard by the justices of Michael L. Schwab, a Dallas lawyer, who said that his construction of an amendment of the constitutional voting laws.

The high court refused to interfere with an order of U. S. District Judge Don H. Roy, Jr., in Dallas. Schwab's suit to prevent Johnson from seeking the two offices in the 19th district. Roy said that in his opinion there is no substantial constitutional question involved in the case.

Johnson, Democratic judge of the senate, is running for reelection to the senate while running for vice president in the Democratic ticket.

The Texas election code prohibits one man to seek election to two federal offices at the same time.

Collision

MUSKOGEE, Mich., Oct. 18 (AP)—A North Central Airlines passenger plane made an emergency landing at the Muskogee county airport last night after its windshield was shattered by a flock of geese.

The pilot and copilot are treated at a hospital here for facial injuries. None of the 21 passengers was injured.

Pay Counts

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 18 (AP)—W. H. Milliken, Jr., New York, ran into a young man carrying a handful of Kennedy-Johnson campaign literature into the lobby of a Dallas hotel.

"Want some of that?" the boy asked.

"You're on the wrong side," Milliken growled, pointing to the Nixon button on his lapel.

"Oh, yes, folks are voting for Nixon, too," the boy said. "I get paid for this."

Car Burns

BUHL, Oct. 18 (AP)—The Buell fire department answered a call to the Buell residence, at 1330 Eleventh avenue here, at 7:30 a. m. Monday when a 1958 Ford Ford told local farmers that his 1957 Oldsmobile was out of gas and he poured gas into the tank to get the car started. The car backfired and set the car around the car burning on the driveway. The firemen were able to extinguish the blaze before any serious damage resulted in the car.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—A question that is being widely asked at Washington is: Can the Kennedy-Johnson ticket give the Democratic Party a chance to win the election in the coming year?

The answer is being given by the Mexican government.

Although the Eisenhower trip has been labeled as nonpolitical, it has a political purpose. It is a "spectator" errand in 1964, the Democratic year in their terms. "Madison Avenue" is determining effect to wrest a vote of confidence in the administration from the American domestic and foreign policies.

Mr. Packer, his aides will see and hear a more aggressive and confident Chief Executive than they have in the past. He has finally and fully identified himself as the future and the fortunes of the Republican Party.

WASHINGTON

BY PETER EDSON

This analysis does not show much change from '56. Of the more than 300 papers reporting less than one per cent say they have shifted from Republican to Democratic and less than one per cent have changed from independent to Republican. All other were in the East and Midwest.

In the Midwest and South, however, over three per cent of the papers have shifted from Democratic to Republican support on national issues. Southern papers reporting this change make clear they still support local Democratic candidates and issues.

The reasons which editors give for their political preferences this year include many of the arguments heard in any campaign discussion. Papers that have been Republican or Democratic for from to 100 years proudly stick to their party. They frequently reject prevailing opinions in their areas.

In addition to this, editors cite many shrewd reasons for their beliefs. Unfortunately, they can't all be given here. But in their own words, the country is "not as good as it used to be." Some of the outstanding points were raised for and against both tickets:

One of the most frequently given Republican arguments given in that "Lodge is the best man of the year." Otherwise the Nixon-Lodge "experience" line runs strongly. GOP conservatism and fiscal responsibility are also stressed.

Negatively, Republican editors say they are frightened by a Democratic program. Kennedy has made too many promises... much big government... too much spending... too much left leaning and labor domination... too much socialism.

Democratic editors oppose the Republicans because of poor GOP performance... Eisenhower's "loss" of a district of Nixon... the need for a change.

In Kennedy's behalf it is claimed that he has the treasurer, that he has the more dynamic personality... the country is "not as good as it used to be." Some of the outstanding points were raised for and against both tickets:

And it is pointed out that the Democratic majority in Congress need a Democratic president to work with.

Editors who are following the independent line get in some of the best hits against both parties. "Typical comments: 'We're not satisfied with both... we don't want to split the vote... we don't want to give the choice to the "least offensive" or "pick the least offensive".'

From much holidays a few are celebrated in Japan, did not like all banks and most banks... news close.

OUR ORDER CHANGETH

It is often remarked this fall that a good many American hearts seem not to be stirred by the two 1960 nominees for president as they were in the past by Eisenhower, Stevenson and Roosevelt.

A tendency exists to ascribe this to some major deficiency in the two candidates. Vice President Nixon is the first time. But by any fair appraisal they are two of the ablest, best grounded men who ever aspired to the White House.

It's forgotten that the men of big stature who preceded the present nominees were themselves not always thus measured. Roosevelt, the four-term New York governor when he ran in 1912 the first time, was no great national figure. He is remembered for what he became, not what he was.

Stevenson was very much an unknown in 1952 his "first try"—then he then had any stature at all was due largely to former President Truman's thinking in him. That he so soared as quickly as he did was due in no small part to the fact that his fight for national figure was not an articulate people with access to the public prints.

As for Eisenhower, he came to the 1952 presidential race with a national hero's reputation. Nixon and Kennedy have no such reputations, nor do they enjoy the kind of sponsorship Stevenson gained. They are in Eisenhower's shoes.

There's something else. In 1960, with candidates 47 and 43 years old, we are making the "generation jump." It is happening, in fact, not only at the presidential level, but on lower political planes. Younger men are in the ascendancy.

The national conventions, unmistakably responsive to popular wishes, chose Nixon and Kennedy in full deliberate awareness. But, nevertheless, for millions accustomed to the older, more established public images, the new generation of leaders takes some getting used to.

Old landmark figures have or are about to recede into the past. The comfort and assurance they afford tends to go with them. The new men are not established, not well fixed in mind. It will take time for them to gain real identity, to prove themselves, and thus to inspire fresh confidence on a new level.

Yet Americans moving toward the presidency Nov. 8 must realize that this will surely happen. There is no turning back. No figures are not established at the stage. Between these two young men the choice must be made.

"BIG BUSINESS" COMPLEX

You can expect to hear anything in a political campaign.

At Pocatello recently, according to the Associated Press, Republican Democratic congressional member, the following criticism of Rep. Hamer Budge, his Republican opponent:

"Budge has little concern over the fate of the small business man, the farmer, or the laboring man. His heart only goes out to the big business interests which do little toward the economy of Idaho.

No big business is not established in Idaho? Contributes little to our economy?

If so, why not do away with our new state department of commerce and development? We are the current trip to the Pacific coast by an Idaho delegation trying to bring more new industries to our state?

Mr. Harding is quite out of tune with the song the Democrats were singing in the last election. They couldn't heap enough condemnation on the Republican administration for what they described as its failure to bring more new industries to Idaho.

We are in desperate need of new industries, they argued, to round out our economy.

It seems to make a difference whether one is primarily interested in the state's economic welfare or in defeating his political opponent.

PLIGHT OF RAILROADS

In view of the railroads' importance in our national life, it is almost incredible that the interstate commerce commission should be one of the most ineffectual, most unproductive and most procrastinating agencies of the federal government.

It dawdles. It delays for months in acting on applications for rate increases or reductions, on elimination of services and on seemingly essential mergers. Frequently, the patient has died or reached the verge of collapse before the commission decides to apply the requested remedy.

One explanation, of course, is that the ICC has been regarded as a refuge for the dejected, hack politicians. It is many years since an acknowledged expert on transportation has sat on the board.

The house and senate interstate commerce commissions, although this problem falls under their jurisdiction, show no concern.

Rep. Oren H. Harris of Arkansas, head of the house body, finds that there are more headlines in the newspaper and more spectacular subject, but has no interest as maintenance of a sound transportation structure.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson of Washington, chairman of the senate committee, although able, is indolently indifferent.

A TIME OF CRISIS—The Eisenhower confidence from the stamp of major victories which in his opinion, the United States scored over Nikita Khrushchev and his communist satellites at the meeting of the United Nations general assembly in New York.

Although he agrees with Vice President Nixon and Senator Johnson that his successor faces a time of crisis with Russia and Red China over Berlin and Cuba, he believes that the West has no moral support of most of the new and uncommitted members of the United Nations.

AN ANGRY PRESIDENT—The Eisenhower aggressiveness results from his personal resentment of the Kennedy-Johnson charges that he has defaunted his duties by building up the national defense and strengthening the domestic economy. In the view of many Republicans, the president is the struggle for control of the executive branch of the government.

He also resents their contention that he has led the country into a recession. He has been at his suggestion that every federal official dealing with finance, business and industry—James O. Eastman, Simon D. Noyes, and others—statistics proving to his satisfaction at least, that the nation has not fallen into a recession.

WE STILL LIKE IKE—The Republicans' faith in Ike Eisenhower has not been shaken. In every GOP campaign headquarters and literature from Bangor, Me., to San Diego, Calif., the "Blow-up picture of the president is larger and more prominently displayed than those of Vice President Nixon and Senator Johnson. And "We still like Ike" banners everywhere.

Pamphlets entitled "Why you should vote Republican" contain as their main theme the January speech in which he reviewed and extolled the administration's performance at home and abroad. Speaker Rayburn and "The New Yorker" have lauded Nixon with the reminder that he Kennedy record. The President intends to throw that laud back at them.

Views of Others

QUALIFICATIONS
 The subject of higher qualifications for certain public officials is getting attention—and rightly so—in many circles these days.

Latest to speak on the matter was District Judge Judge Curtis W. Meier, of the Canyon County where he holds court often. He said the time has come for Idaho to set up mandatory qualifications for judges of the state.

Judge Norris said JPs should be better educated and have more familiarity with the law. He added that county commissioners should take a second look at salaries being paid justices and not try to carry out economy moves at the expense of justice courts.

Actually, qualifications for justice of the peace have been under consideration for a long time. The Canyon County lawyer did have given the subject considerable study—and currently is talking about a plan aimed at raising standards in the county.

There are several reasons for higher standards in the lower courts. Among them are:

1. The need to raise public respect for courts and the most citizens have contact.
2. The need for better understanding of the law in courts which bring the most frequent complaints—classified or not—that individuals' rights are being ignored or violated.
3. The probability that better administering of justice at lower levels would reduce the number of appeals to state and federal higher courts.

The matter of raising standards should be of interest to everyone.

And while we're on the subject of higher qualifications, we might look at other offices too.

Some years ago, a meeting that probate judges were qualified lawyers.

Others are singling out the problem of getting well qualified coroners—some by insisting that coroners hold a medical degree.

And lawyers, for their own well-being and protection, should keep looking that all seekers of public offices be qualified to serve—mentally, emotionally, morally, and by education or valid experience.

Government today, in its various forms, is far too complex and costly to be handled by poorly qualified men and women. We're no longer in the backwoods—but past the middle of the 20th century.—Nampa Press-Free.

BASEBALL'S RED WILLIAMS

When will baseball find another Ted Williams? Wherever America's national pastime is enjoyed this question is being asked today following the famous Boston slugger's retirement. To many it is a question that will never be answered.

For it is the end of an era in professional baseball. For it is the end of an era in professional baseball. For it is the end of an era in professional baseball.

Others are content with the fact that Williams has always been an active, exciting, outstanding performer. The game never has enough of his kind.

In spite of occasional temperamental outbursts that might have turned the fans against some players, they loyally to one of the game's greatest has never been shaken.

It is an interesting coincidence that Williams' departure from the game coincided with his final day in a Red Sox uniform he refused to respond to the warm, standing ovation the crowd gave him. Surely anyone who had hit the 52nd home run of his career on his final turn at bat and the crowd stood chanting "We want Ted!" he must have been coming to climb the dugout steps and wave a sincere "Thank you" toward the stands. But he was Williams in the very end, the big, powerful man of many moods.

It was typical, also, that he made that final turn on his plate a memorable one, hitting a prodigious home run. Perhaps it was his way of thanking the Fenway crowd, and crowds everywhere.

They will remember Ted Williams, they will talk and write about him for as long as baseball is played, for he is one of its greatest.

When will baseball find another Williams? Never. For in sports as in the arts no truly great performer is ever replaced.

But somewhere on the end and loss of America today, in the loss of a great player, there is a major lesson, gifted and eventually seeking—as Williams was—to excel in his craft by another Williams. But in his own way he will make his own tremendous contribution to baseball. — Christian Science Monitor.

Jackson VanVey was retained as ward clerk.

No Joke

SPOKANE, Oct. 18.—(AP)—A sure and put it in the tail of the plane—it's the one with the bomb in it," said a man as he checked his luggage for West Coast flight to Boise today. The remark, apparently meant as a joke, drew FBI agents and local police to arrest two planes and the luggage of several passengers. No explosives were found and the undisturbed men were permitted to continue to Boise. The plane, which had already been delayed by fog, was held up for only a short time.

Hearing Set For Delivery Service Plan

BOISE, Oct. 18.—Larry Matson of the Matson Delivery Service, Twin Falls met with the Public Utilities Commission today to discuss his application to the public utilities commission, from which he is seeking a permit for a small parts daily delivery service to Boise. Matson pointed out a hearing would be held at the Twin Falls city hall at 1:30 p.m. Thursday. He would deliver all packages under 100 pounds in weight to Boise, with one delivery scheduled per day. At last week's meeting chamber members voted to recommend the public utilities commission, give Matson's permit favorable consideration. During the meeting Monday noon several chamber members volunteered to attend the hearing Tuesday. Robert Bailey reported arrangements are being made for a special football game to be played here Nov. 4 at a fund raising event for a new electric scoreboard for the local athletic field. He pointed out further details on the game will be announced in a few days. The local chamber had previously voted to sponsor advance ticket sales if a game could be scheduled.

State Can't Pay For Hot Lunch

BOISE, Oct. 18.—The state has no way of paying for hot lunches for students in the Kellogg school district, D. F. Emmet, Kellogg state superintendent of public instruction, said yesterday. The International Union of Mine and Smelter Workers recently criticized the local school district and the state for not making hot lunches available in the strike-bound Kellogg area. The Kellogg school district discontinued its hot lunch program after it determined many children couldn't afford the 25 cents per meal and the district didn't have funds to support the program.

Jury Says Stray Bullet Kills Man

MALDEN, Oct. 18.—A coroner's jury ruled yesterday that John Earl Brown, 35, Malden, was killed by a stray bullet fired by an unknown person. Oscar Stimpson officiated and gave the welcome. Other speakers were Bishop Herbert Petersen, Malheur, President Valdo D. Benson, Canyon; Warren Hansen, Rexburg; and parents of Elder Thorne, Mrs. and Mrs. Buford Thorne. The luncheon was given by his grandfather, William Cowley, and the benediction by his paternal grandfather, John Thorne. The prelude and postlude were played on the organ by Elder Turner's cousin, Conrad Turner. His brother, Steven Thorne, played in an organ-piano duo with the elder Mrs. Velma Allen was soloist for the evening. Elder Turner will serve two years in the Northern California mission. During the preliminary service, Mrs. Deloris Thorne was sustained as a counselor to the Relief society and the membership of Mrs. Lyle Barney was received into the ward.

New State Land Rent Fee Set up

BOISE, Oct. 18.—A new schedule of rentals for state-owned land here will be ready for consideration by the Idaho board in time to become effective Jan. 1, State Land Commissioner John O. Walters said. He said the schedule he will recommend to the board will be based on a study by the land department personnel which has been in progress for the past year. He said, "It will not be based on an arbitrary increase over the present figures but will be intended to reflect the comparative value of the land which is vored by the leases."

ANOTHER HOMEOWNER REPORT ON ELECTRIC HEATING!

"Electric heat has meant so many added comforts to us, we want everyone to know the wonderful advantages we enjoyed this past winter. Warm floors, complete sleeping comfort, carefree operation and reasonable operating costs are just a few of the enjoyable features of electric heating.

"Our family has had fewer colds and winter pains and aches than in any past winter. Our guests from southern climes did not complain of the cold winter weather as they have during visits in the past. You can certainly count us as satisfied electric heat customers."

Progress Is Reported at A-Ban Meet

GENEVA, Oct. 18 (AP)—The United States, Britain and the Soviet Union have achieved "a landmark of sorts" in the long-drawn nuclear test ban treaty talks, Western spokesmen said here today.

The two documents detail the legal framework for a nuclear test ban control system setting one of the major issues blocking a treaty.

U. S. delegates Charles C. Siver and related treaty article do not guarantee the efficient functioning of a control system but without them it could not function.

The two documents detail the legal status of a control organization and its chief administrator and the entire control staff. They were based on drafts submitted by the United States and revised to include amendments proposed by all three powers.

They give the nuclear test ban control organization and its staff approximately 116 of the local privileges and immunities as those held by the United Nations and U. S. officials. They also establish the control organization as a so-called legal personality with the right to conclude additional agreements with parties to the project treaty.

T. F. Man Granted Lookout Contract
J. H. Seaver, Twin Falls, has been awarded the contract to build a two-story punice block lookout at Fort Boise, according to Russell Lyons, engineer for the Sawtooth national forest.

The new lookout will have a stateroom on the ground floor and the lookout on the top floor. The lookout is located in Elmore county about 90 miles from Mountain Home.

Lyons said Seaver plans to start work on the lookout building as soon as possible, and if the weather remains good, Seaver hopes to have the building completed this fall.

Writer Says U. S. Citizens Are "Wasteful Consumers"

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (NEA)—The following morsels of information have been gathered by a reporter named Vance Packard.

They come from his latest book, "The Waste Makers," which heaped halfway up the bestseller list in its first two weeks on sale.

Packard's thesis is that we have been made a nation of voracious, wasteful, compulsive consumers. The angry accusations against Packard and Tim Madson, author of "The Way We Live Now," have touched some raw nerves.

And the sales of the book show even if it's our own.

Packard says we have yielded to campaigns aimed at making us need more of everything. For example:

A study shows that telephone calls are increased about 20 percent by the use of phona in color rather than black.

Auto mufflers are now burning out far faster than they did 10 years ago—spending the way to a half-billion dollar industry. Meanwhile, gas mileage has dropped about 18 per cent, so you need approximately 100 more gallons per year.

A throw-away spirit has crept into our lives, Packard finds. More goods come in disposable metal cans, pans, tin, squirtable containers. Many must be thrown away with usable foods still in them. The toll is $500 per American family a year just for packing.

We didn't get to this state by accident, Packard finds. We are involved in a huge adolescence campaign, often marked by confusion, chaos and credit buying.

Stereo was brought in to rescue lagging Hi-Fi sales. But stereo has almost saturated its market, so for three a year.

A guided missile engineer says that TV sets could be built to run for eight years without need for repairs. Coin-operated washing machines are usually made to last a lot longer and take more abuse.

By 1953 at the present rate, for goods resulting from a 100-percent increase in production. The cost is about $100 million.

Appliance repairs are difficult anyway. There are more parts, less accessible, harder to purchase, more expensive than they were a decade ago.
