Valley Residents Voice Opposition To Highway Plan

Representatives of 10 Magic Valley communities agreed Tuesday night to oppose a bill amending the state highway laws. A hearing will be scheduled by the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce before the highway committees of both houses of the Idaho legislature. The bill, H B 61, is presently before the Idaho house, John Hahn, chairman of the Twin Falls chamber's highway committee, told the group. It calls for amending section 40-121, Idaho code, "as relating to the determination of the state highway system of the Idaho board of highway directors, by providing that where alternate routes are available, the route which does the least injury to improved, or cultivated lands shall be selected."

It was introduced by Reps. James G. Martin, Jerome county Republican; Frank W. Hirsch, Bear Lake county Republican, and Charles Powers, Custer county Democrat. All are first-term representatives.

Representatives at Tuesday night's meeting were from Blaine, Kimberly, Rupert, Heyburn, Wendell, Shoshone, Murtough, Piler, Jerome and Twin Falls. Of the 24 persons present, no one spoke in support of the bill.

Hahn, chairman of the meeting, explained the Twin Falls chamber opposes the proposal, and seeks a "sampling of Magic Valley opinion."

He said the bill contained "underlying dynamite... which would slow construction of roads down to nothing." Hahn asserted the proposal would create "constant litigation," thereby tying up highway progress for years.

George Blick, Twin Falls county senator, suggested the joint highway committee hearing. Hahn explained, Blick told William Grange, Twin Falls chamber manager, the hearing could be set up "with a few days' notice." Grange will contact Blick Wednesday, Hahn said, and notify chambers of the 10 towns of the time and date of the hearings.

Cassia Senator Charges Burley Mayor With Lie

BOISE, Jan. 25 (UP)—Sen. K. C. Barlow, R., Cassia, today said on the senate floor that if press accounts were correct, recent statement by the mayor of Burley was a "fabricated lie." Mayor J. Leonard Salmon had accused Barlow of "bad manners and complete disregard for facts" in his stand on a bill which would curb Idaho cities in extending municipal utility service to adjoining areas. Salmon charged that it was either because a Burley city official "dared to challenge him in the last election" or revenge because the city annexed land north of the Snake river instead of placing the emphasis to the southwest where Barlow owns a 40-acre tract within a quarter mile of the city limits.

"I have been in public service for 45 years," Barlow said, "and this is the first time that anyone has accused me of using my office for personal gain."

"It's true I've defeated 27 candidates as mayor and senator. I have served in 10 regular sessions and six special sessions and am now dean of the senate."

Referring to his 40-acre tract, Barlow said, "I bought this piece of property in 1917 and have owned it ever since." Barlow said this land was "none of his (Salmon's) business."

"The unnamed person he (Salmon) talks about is his city attorney," Barlow said. "That man has been defeated four times, twice for prosecuting attorney and twice for state senator by myself."

Pirated Portuguese Ship Flees Into Atlantic With Three Navies in Pursuit

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Jan. 25 (UP)—The U. S. navy today located the hijacked Portuguese ship Santa Maria 930 miles out in the Atlantic today where it had fled after outwitting the American, British and Dutch navies. The 20,000-ton luxury liner seized Sunday morning by an armed band of rebels pledged to the overthrow of the Portuguese government was halfway across the Atlantic toward the Portuguese Cape Verde islands when discovered. A U. S. navy destroyer raced after her 500 miles behind with no hope of catching up. Two U. S. navy destroyers sped from the port of Abidjan on the Ivory coast of Africa on an interception course. But for the moment the rebel-held liner was in the clear.

Portuguese scout destroyers and frigates into the Atlantic today to protect its African holdings, the Cape Verde islands, the Azores, Portuguese Guinea on the tip of Africa just east of the Cape Verde, and Angola to the south. They, too, presumably would try to intercept the Santa Maria.

Portugal feared the rebel band led by Capt. Henrique Galvao might attempt to seize one or more of these territories and launch a rebellion against Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar. If Galvao did so he would have more than 900 hostages—600 passengers, including 26 Americans, and 360 crew members.

The navy pointed out its search had covered 22 million square miles, and said the ship probably could have been located sooner if a hostile ship had been involved since far more planes and ships would have been searching.

In Sao Paulo, Brazil, exiled Portuguese Gen. Humberto Delgado said today the hijacking of the Santa Maria is only the first step in a "long" operation to liberate Portugal.

"We need transportation and we have got it," the opposition political leader said. "Maybe in some weeks the world will know many things about us it does not now know."

The Santa Maria's sister ship, the Vera Cruz, arrived at Delgado spoke and police threw a protective cordon around it and carefully checked the documentation of its 1,600 passengers.

They said they acted at the request of the Portuguese embassy but found nothing wrong in the ship's papers, and that it could leave as scheduled.

Delgado assumed full responsibility for the rebel seizure of the Santa Maria, an operation he said had been planned for the past five or six months.

The rebel captain said he would scuttle the luxury liner if a warship approached.

The U. S. navy vessels were proceeding under orders to board the vessel if necessary since Portugal has appealed for help on the grounds seizure of the ship was an act of piracy.

In Washington, a U. S. navy department spokesman said there were no precedents for the action but if American warships catch up with the Santa Maria it will be asked to stop and return to San Juan. If it refuses, no one knew what would happen.

Farm Confab For Richfield Has Speakers

RICHFIELD, Jan. 25 — Two speakers were heard and a film shown on balanced livestock feeding at the Richfield farm institute Wednesday morning in the Grange hall. The two-day session concluded this afternoon.

Wade Wells, livestock specialist with the University of Idaho extension service, talked on the market types of animals. He pointed out consumers demand young, tender, fleshy beef and also advised the sheep industry to revolutionize to attract consumers.

Lean pork is now in demand, the specialist said, but stressed that some fat is needed to improve the flavor of pork.

Paul Jacobson, Lincoln county veterinarian, discussed changes in veterinarian practices, noting that more specialists are needed to keep up with modern improvements.

He asserted for every dollar spent in veterinarian fees, farmers realized $7 return in added production.

The veterinarian also discussed cancer in cows, stating the eyes of cattle are especially susceptible to the disease. There is no cure, but cancer can be controlled, the speaker noted.

He also pointed out vitamin A deficiency in livestock is caused by aphid or other insect damage to forage crops.

The speakers were introduced by Grand Stevens, Lincoln County Farm Bureau president, who is serving as chairman of the institute.

Irrigation methods, fertilizer economics and insect eradication were discussed Tuesday afternoon at the annual event.

The institute, sponsored by the Richfield Grange, Lions club and Lincoln county Farm Bureau, was opened by Lincoln county agent Howard Manning, who showed a film in the Grange hall. After the film Walter E. Peay, Twin Falls bureau of entomology, advised farmers to inspect crops often in order to kill insect pests in the early stages.

He noted that they are easier to kill early in the season and that crop damage will be less than if they were killed later in the season. He told the group about the types of insecticides and stressed precaution in using them.

J. D. McCullum, Twin Falls, representing the Stimplot Soil builders, gave economics in use of fertilization and stressed the individual needs of each farm.

Darrell Larson, Boise, University of Idaho extension service irrigationalist, talked on the amount of water needed in farming and pointed out methods for conserving water. He noted that it takes 1,000 pounds of water to produce one pound of grain.

Some 35 farmers attended Tuesday's institute session.

A women's institute session was held at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Grange hall club room. Highlights of the women's meeting was discussion by a University of Idaho home demonstration agent.

A group luncheon was held for both groups in the Grange hall.

Board Says Milner Pollution to Be Cut

BOISE, Jan. 25 (UP)—The Idaho state board of health said yesterday that industrial and sewage wastes now being discharged into the Milner reservoir on the Snake river will have to be drastically reduced.

The board made the statement in a board meeting and said that action was necessary in order to protect the city of Twin Falls' water supply during the periods of minimum river flows.

A 99 per cent reduction of wastes is recommended for that portion of the Snake river below American Falls reservoir, with at least 50 per cent waste reduction in the area above American Falls.

Dr. Terrell O. Carver, Idaho administrator of health and secretary of the state board, said the pollution is caused both by a marked increase in the waste load discharged to the river and by the greatly reduced water flows through the reservoir.

Much of the increased waste load, he said, results from a large increase in potato processing, particularly in the Burley-Heyburn area, but contribution also is made by domestic sewage and by pollution from the upper Snake river area.

"The state board of health and the department of health are developing control measures to meet this pollution emergency," Dr. Carver said. "And the industries and communities discharging wastes into the river will be notified of these within the next few days."

Challenge to Soviets Eyed By Kennedy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (UP)—President Kennedy was reported today preparing to challenge Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to prove in Laos that he really wants to negotiate cold war settlements.

Kennedy might make the statement at his first presidential press conference tonight, administration sources said.

The new President was said to consider current diplomatic moves to end the civil war in Laos a crucial test of whether a reasonable accommodation with Russia is possible.

This test is focused on a compromise British proposal to Russia to send the three-nation international control commission back into Laos to try to arrange a cease fire.

Under the British plan, endorsed here after a shift in U. S. policy in the last days of the Eisenhower administration, the commission would recognize the king as the central authority in the tiny Asian nation, thus settling out of the dispute over whether the regime pro-western Prince Boun Oum or Soviet-backed neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma is the legal government.

Kennedy administration officials said Soviet rejection of this offer would be a demonstration to the world that Khrushchev's peace talk is nothing but propaganda.

Solons' Look At Stamp Bill Is Postponed

BOISE, Jan. 25—Early caucuses stalled lawmaking in both branches of the Idaho legislature today, leaving untouched on the senate calendar a measure outlawing trading stamps.

The trading stamp bill was about halfway down the senate's third reading calendar but it was doubtful it would be reached before afternoon. The caucuses came shortly after morning roll calls in both the house and senate.

In the senate, the party discussions were reported considering what steps to take as a result of the partisan controversy which flared yesterday over the bill proposed repeal of the $10 "head tax."

In the house, Democrats were reported discussing proposed rule changes which would make it more difficult to compel a committee to give up a bill which had been referred to it.

Republicans were reported considering action on the bill, scheduled for final action tomorrow, which embraces Gov. Robert E. Smylie's proposed construction program at state institutions.

Outlawing of trading stamps was up for consideration amid charges of "low, inexpressible-type lobbying" in connection with the measure.

2-Drink Man Is Target of Proposed Bill

BOISE, Jan. 25 (UP)—A bill designed to take off the highways drivers who consume "one or two highballs" is being readied for introduction in the house by Rep. Arvil Millar, R., Bingham.

It would make a misdemeanor the driving of a motor vehicle when the driver has, by chemical analysis, a blood-alcohol content between .05 and .15 per cent, he said.

Present laws limits penalties for driving while intoxicated to persons whose blood-alcohol content is .15 or more.

The penalty, should the bill pass, would be a fine of up to $50 and or imprisonment in a county or municipality jail for up to 30 days. The license of anyone convicted under the Millar bill would be suspended for 30 days.

A "hardship" provision in the bill would allow a person convicted under it to drive to and from work, providing the trial judge recommended it.

"The sole purpose of my bill is to cut down on highway accidents," Millar said. "It's aimed at people in that twilight zone who are high but not drunk and are a risk on the highways."

"This would take in the 'one-or-two' beer drinkers, or the person who has one-or-two highballs," he said.

Goldfine Hearing Postponed Again

Charges Are Dismissed for Iowa Official

SHELDON, Ia., Jan. 25 (UP)—A U. S. commissioner dismissed charges today that Harold Kistner, Jr., ousted president of Northern Biochemical corporation, helped Mrs. Bernice Geiger embezzle two million dollars from the Sheldon National bank.

Commissioner Wilford Foker ruled at Sioux City, Ia., that the government failed to substantiate its charges that Kistner aided Mrs. Geiger, 58, who admitted embezzling the funds from her father's bank.

The bank has been closed since the embezzlement was discovered early last week.

The federal deposit insurance corporation announced the bank would begin paying off depositors at 9 a.m. tomorrow in the embezzled Sheldon National.

For depositors with balances under $10,000, it promised full recovery from a week of makeshift accounting since Mrs. Bernice Geiger, 58, admitted illegally channeling more than two million dollars out of her father's bank.

But maximum $10,000 individual coverage from the depression-born FDIC offered only partial recouping for "merchants," churches, schools and civic groups who put more than $10,000 in the bank that the depression couldn't close.

Its big depositors included the Northern Biochemical corporation, Elliott Roosevelt, Northern's 8 (Continued on Page 2, Column 5)

Pocatello Voters Approve Issues

POCATELLO, Jan. 25 (UP)—Home owners approved two city bond issues Tuesday but rejected a third.

Rejected by a vote of 1,501 to 1,140 was the largest item of the three—a proposal to spend $425,000 improving and straightening the Portneuf river channel for flood control and other purposes.

The voters approved spending $225,000 to build a new library and $180,000 to replace seven miles of water line and build a two-million-gallon reservoir for water from Mink and Gibson creeks.

The library issue drew a 1,828 to 875 favorable vote, and the vote on the Mink Creek project was 2,108 to 600.

Hall Facing Court Trial On Robbery

GOODING, Jan. 25 (UP)—Rodger Hall, 23, Crescent City, Calif., waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to district court Wednesday morning by Probate Judge James Gossett when he appeared on charges of robbery.

Hall was extradited from California to stand trial for the robbery of Dr. John Hunt, Portland pathologist, on Aug. 24, 1959. The California man was acquitted of murder charges in the robbery, slaying by a district court jury here last Dec. 9.

Hall was returned to Gooding county jail last Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Verne Royce who took him into custody at Eureka, Calif.

A petition signed by Prosecuting Attorney Andrew James and Deputy Prosecutor Charles Shaw asking that they be dismissed from the case because of their connection with the previous trial was filed with District Judge Charles Scoggins. Shaw defended Hall in the murder trial.

Wednesday, Judge Scoggins appointed Ceoll Hobdy, who was defeated in last November's general election in his bid for reelection to the prosecuting attorney post, as special prosecutor for the case.

Mrs. Emory Smith, Salt Lake City, is in sheriff's custody on a $5,000 bond.

Research Proves Otter Massacre Site On Oregon Trail, Society Is Advised

Extensive research has shown conclusively that the ill-fated Otter massacre on the Old Oregon Trail did, in fact, occur at the site visited by members of the Twin Falls County Historical society last fall.

This was the conclusion given by Mrs. Hugh O. Boone as she reported to society members at the regular bi-monthly session Tuesday evening at the Bishop Rhea auditorium, Episcopal church of the Ascension. Mrs. Boone shared the program with Florence Sanderson and Bonnie Elnoff. The latter two showed color movies they had taken during the massacre field trip.

The show also included scenes of other historic spots in this section of the state. Mrs. John E. Hayes introduced the program which attracted 150 people.

Mrs. Boone started research on the Otter question when it was realized a monument erected near Murphy, in Owyhee county south of Boise, stated the massacre took place on Sinkler creek near there in 1864. Local society members, and those in charge of the field journey last fall, believed from research that the event took place

3 Machinery Firms In T.F. Are Merged

Merger of three Twin Falls businesses concerned with manufacturing and selling of machinery was announced Wednesday by Robert Curl and Oliver Molyneux, who will operate the merged firm under the name of Curl Manufacturing Company, Inc. Molyneux said the merger was effective Jan. 1, but the final transaction was completed at a meeting Tuesday in Twin Falls. The new firm merges the Molyneux Machinery company, Curl Manufacturing company and C and N Wholesale company. Curl will continue as manager and Molyneux will be in charge of sales. Both men were associated in operation of the wholesale company before the merger.

"The companies were doing practically the same thing and we decided to merge them for expansion purposes," Molyneux said. Molyneux said "expansion" referred to volume, although new distribution, shipping and parts departments are planned. "The new firm will continue to use buildings in the 1900 block of Floral avenue. The Molyneux and Curl businesses are next door to each other and the wholesale business was conducted in the Curl building.

"We will be adding sales personnel, but all employees of the three companies will be retained," Molyneux said. "The new company will employ about 25 persons full time with additional seasonal help. Molyneux started his business here in 1948; Curl in 1953, and the wholesale firm was started in 1957.

Cold Spreads Across Texas; East Shivers

By The Associated Press

The eastern half of the nation shivered through its seventh straight day of subzero cold today and a paralyzing storm smashed an icy path across Texas.

The Midwest, the East and the Northeast, continued to suffer in the nation's longest and coldest midwinter spell.

The Texas storm covered much of the state with snow and ice and stretched to the southern tip of the state near Brownsville. Highways were covered with ice. The freezing rains, which continued through the night in some sections, crippled traffic and snapped power and phone lines. At least six deaths were attributed to the storm.

Temperatures on the south plains of Texas hovered near the 10-degree mark and winds up to 60 miles an hour lashed Floydada where nearly 24 inches of snow fell. Parts of Oklahoma and New Mexico also felt the fury of the storm.

Yesterday at Laredo, Tex., the mercury climbed to 80.

The frigid weather in the North, with temperatures far below zero, extended from the Plains to the Atlantic coast. Readings ranged from zero to more than 20 below in Midwest areas and from zero to 10 below from the eastern upper Great Lakes to New England.

Cold wave warnings were in effect over most areas from the southern half of the Plains into Virginia and the Carolinas. Near-zero weather edged into Kentucky and northern Virginia. The freezing belt covered areas southward into the central Gulf. Southern Florida escaped the chilly weather.

No immediate general relief from the season's longest and coldest weather appeared likely.

Eager's 1961 Falcon collided with a 1961 Chevrolet driven by Martin A. Hill, Pocatello. Damage was estimated at about $200 to the Falcon. The Chevrolet retained about $350 damage.
City police reported the road was snow covered and slick. Both cars braked before the impact, they said.

Solons' Look At Stamp Bill Is Postponed

Solons' Look At Stamp Bill Is Postponed
stamps from the state after July 1, except for those which are redeemable by the merchant issuing them.
Sen. Cyril Chase, D., Benewah, one of the six sponsors of the bill, said he was receiving numerous letters and telegrams regarding the bill.
He said they included "definite misrepresentations of facts." "The activity continues," he said, "he will ask the legislature to issue subpoenas for those responsible, calling them to testify before a senate investigating committee."
The bill banning the stamps is similar to one introduced in the Utah legislature. Both are based on Wyoming's law, which was upheld by the Wyoming supreme court only Monday after the court granted a second hearing.
Merchants contend the stamps are necessary to meet competition and result in increased overhead, with the end result of increased prices and the added cost being paid to the trading stamp companies.
Backers of the proposed constitutional amendment removing the state superintendent of public instruction from the list of elective officials made no attempt to gain reconsideration yesterday of the vote by which the proposal was defeated Monday in the senate.
Sen. Rodney A. Hansen, R., Minidoka, chairman of the senate education committee, said he was sure that "no one has changed his mind." He added that although Democratic senators insisted their vote against the proposal were not on a partisan basis "we all know, and the people of Idaho know, where the vote came from to defeat this measure."
Sen. A. W. Nagle, R., Bonneville, the senate president pro-tem, said that since the proposed amendment was defeated there was no point in considering its companion proposal, which would have given the state board of education power to appoint a superintendent. He got unanimous consent that the second measure be withdrawn.
Approved by the senate were bills revising the definition of game birds, requiring all printed election campaign material show the name of the person or organization responsible for it, and making it unlawful for persons under 21 to buy or drink alcoholic liquor.
Three memorials were introduced in the house, one urging congress to speed legislation authorizing construction of Burns Creek dam. The others called for protection of the domestic mining industry and a higher price for newly-mined gold.
Rep. Ralph Litton, D., Fremont, introduced a proposed constitutional amendment which would give public schools a share of revenue from gasoline taxes and motor vehicles registration fees. Such revenue now is earmarked for highway construction.
The house authorized the purchase of insurance for members and attendees for the session. The vote was 41 to 6. The insurance will be obtained from the Continental Life and Accident company, Boise.

Group Votes Opposition to Highway Bill

Group Votes Opposition to Highway Bill
son, Wendell, a former state senator, asserted that only out-of-state traffic could benefit by passage of this bill. Jackson claimed that the proposal would force any new road construction through desert lands, far from any population centers. Jackson said he is in the real estate business, and also owns a farm.
Another opponent warned that speedy action was necessary because "56 per cent of both houses are farmers, and this bill might look good to them."
Hahn contended this was dangerous to the public interest of the state and, "in my opinion, the majority of the people in this state do not want this bill passed."
Jackson warned that speedy action is needed.
This has gotten through the printing committee of the house already," he explained, "which indicates it has quite a bit of backing. The printing committee serves as a clearing house for bills, and it would not have been printed if it had no backing."

North-Siders Lash C. of C. Meeting Here

North-Siders Lash C. of C. Meeting Here
Irving McDonald, president of the First Segregation association, which opposes the interstate highway route south of Eden and Hazelton, issued a statement Wednesday labeling the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce meeting Tuesday night a closed meeting of a "small group of partison and willful men."
Following is the statement:
"In spite of the fact that a prolonged and often misleading public campaign has been carried on in opposition to the action taken by the village of Eden and Hazelton and the farmers in the area concerning highway routing, we have refrained from publicly answering any of the statements that have been made. The action taken by the highway committee of Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce last night cannot be ignored, however.
A headline blurted out that representatives from 10 communities voted to oppose our highway bill. It was obviously intended to convey the impression that a majority of the population of these communities oppose this measure. Nothing could be further from the truth. A small group of partison and willful men met at a closed meeting and this action was taken. There was no public announcement that a meeting was to be held; no invitation to interested citizens was extended. In fact, no one was invited or allowed to attend who was even inclined to support house bill 61 (HB61). We were not even invited to explain our position to this group.
"To report to the highway committee of the house or senate, or to the public at large, that expression from this type of meeting represents anything more than the expression only of the individuals involved is absolute bunk. To even suggest that this group has any public support of any kind is political funny business at its worst.
"The Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce knows full well that the last time they held a public meeting which was sponsored by the Agricultural division of the chamber, that the group there which was not handicapped, voted unanimously to oppose construction of an interstate highway on the south side of the river and that, instead, highway 30 should be improved. Obviously, this group which was not carefully picked, opposed unnecessary destruction of valuable and improved lands.
"The charge that our bill, which reads as follows: 'That where alternate routes are available, the route which does the least injury to improved or cultivated lands, shall be selected,' will stop further highway construction is so obviously ridiculous propaganda that it need not be answered. All it will require is that the highway board have darn good reason to destroy lands. There is not a thinking taxpayer who would not support this position whether he is a town dweller or a farmer. Unnecessary destruction does not benefit any of us."

Rotary Hears About Spread Of Red Ideals

Rotary Hears About Spread Of Red Ideals
Al Reading, owner of the Wendell Irrigation, showed slides on "How communism has spread over the map" during the annual farmers' luncheon of Rotary club Wednesday noon, and urged those attending to realize erosion in federal government.
Reading said the U. S. government is based on the fundamental belief in God, while communism is not. The constitution of this country set up checks and balances in the three branches of government, leaving the residue powers for control of government to the people, he noted.
However, the greatest government erosion is among the people, he said. The people have deviated and allowed the encroachment of the three governmental branches upon their responsibilities and privileges.
Reading noted the main belief of socialism is that the government can do things better for the people than they can. As state budget director, he said, "I found out that the government was the most inefficient way to accomplish things."
He commented that the progress of Russia is stated on a percentage basis. This is misleading, he asserted, because their progress began from almost nothing. Russia had to rise because it could sink no lower, he declared.
Visiting Rotarians were Ryan Mallon, president of the Hailey club; Howard Parish, president of the Buhl club, and George Cannon, South Lake Tahoe, Nev.

Date and Site For Massacre In '60 Proved
The research substantiated local thinking, so far as Mrs. Boone is concerned. She said the accounts, written soon after the massacre, stated it occurred on Sept. 13, 1860, "about 20 miles below Salmon falls." This statement was made by a soldier named Snider, the first to reach the Umatilla agency on Oct. 3, 1860. She said this soldier was from Fort Hall and so "would no doubt be familiar with the country." She added that the Otter massacre was the only Indian trouble noted on the Oregon Trail during 1860.
"It might be that some of the survivors were picked up near the present community of Murphy when soldiers from the agency arrived there," Mrs. Boone said. "But there still remains the difference in dates. However, my findings leave no doubt in my mind that the massacre occurred where the local society thought it took place, and in the year 1860."
Following the meeting, Mrs. Lacy-Nelson, 222 Polk street, Twin Falls, said she agreed with Mrs. Boone as to the location and date. She stated her father, George H. Abbott, was Indian agent at Umatilla at the time of the massacre. She wrote an account of the massacre for the Hailey "History of Idaho." Her account was from notes her father had given her and stories he had told her of the conflict.
Following the program, President Juneau H. Shinn announced the meeting was adjourned by vote until 8 p.m. next Tuesday at the city hall. Members will adopt a new set of bylaws necessary because of incorporation. A report also will be made on recommendations of the nominating committee and new officers will be elected. There will be no program Tuesday night. Harry Povey, local attorney, is preparing the proposed bylaws and donating his services to the society.

Rayburn Gets Set for Ballot To Pick Boss

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP)—Speaker Sam Rayburn today staved off a crushing blow to his prestige and possibly to the prospects of President Kennedy's liberal legislative program.

Little more than three weeks after electing the 70-year-old Rayburn for the 10th time to his post, he today decided whether he or Rep. Howard W. Smith, D., Va., 77, and another old pro of the congress will be its real boss.

Today, however, Rayburn postponed the house vote until Tuesday because of bad weather and illness.

Impartial nose counts today indicated the outcome would be close. Smith's partisans claimed the votes to win by a narrow margin.

Rayburn wants control of the committee and would get it through appointment of two new Democratic members. Otherwise, he said yesterday, Kennedy's legislative proposals couldn't be assured of a chance to come to a vote in the house.

Deductible

BOISE, Jan. 25 (AP)—Manager K. E. Miller of the Idaho State Automobile association reported today that some car expenses are deductible on income tax returns even if the car is never used for business purposes.

"Perhaps the major item for most motorists who itemize their deductions is the state gasoline tax of six cents per gallon," Miller said. "The amount of gasoline used can readily be determined by computing the total number of miles your car went during the past year and dividing by the number of miles your car gets per gallon."

He said that registration fees and any local taxes, as well as interest paid on money borrowed on the security of the car, also are deductible.

WITH ALL GOOD WISHES

Dwight David Eisenhower goes to his Gettysburg farm with all Americans wishing him well and voicing their thanks for a half century of public service ably, earnestly and devotedly performed.

He leaves the White House virtually as popular as when he entered it eight years ago. Not even Franklin D. Roosevelt maintained his standing with the people at so generally high a level over the years.

Eisenhower's days in the White House were marked by many grave trials and many odd, ironic twists of circumstance.

He was the military hero summoned to high office as a nonpolitician. Yet many students of the American presidency see politics as the president's great lever with both congress and the people.

Eisenhower nevertheless sought to lead the nation without the uses of politics. Aware of why he was chosen, he tried to keep himself above the political arena.

This happened also to suit his inclinations. He disliked politics, and his concept of the presidency led him to favor presenting and gently urging his programs—but only occasionally pressing for them.

By the same token, he was ever the man of human decency who tried to persuade his countrymen not by pressure but by example. He was a symbol of freedom who counted on his mere presence, at home and on good will tours abroad, to set forces of good in motion.

If, as some say, he early intended to remake the Republican party, he did not pursue this goal long. The candidate of his party's liberals, he came to be judged, in domestic matters, as more conservative than the man he beat in 1952 for the nomination, the late Senator Taft.

His real preoccupation, in any event, was the dogged pursuit of lasting peace. He was the dogged soldier, one of the architects of battlefield victory in World War II, who had learned to abhor war and wanted above all else to hand down peace as his presidential legacy.

In his farewell to the American people he candidly confessed his great disappointment at having missed his goal. He spoke with evident sadness of all that remains to be done.

The good will he has spread to all corners of the earth, and can still spread as a distinguished private citizen, he has been unable to convert into the precious currency of enduring peace and understanding. It could have been the most remarkable monument ever earned by a soldier.

But Eisenhower knows he has earned the deep gratitude of Americans for the full dedication with which he served in the frustrating, lingering half light of cold war.

He performed his duty as he saw it, never deceiving the people as to his beliefs or purposes, or the state of his health. They are grateful he could surmount three major illnesses and keep at it.

To a nation in 1952 weary of war and crisis and bickering politics, he brought a relative breathing space and set a quieter tone. Whatever else the historians decide, surely they will agree he gave the country the kind of government it wanted.

What they will puzzle over longer is whether, at all stages of this critical time, he gave the nation the government it needed. And they must also answer the tantalizing question whether any man could have.

POLITICAL CONTROLS

The congressional blocs in both parties have long been irked by the greater influence that governors, state and country bosses exercise in national politics. But the personnel on the national tickets last year appears to mark a change in the great game of politics.

The governors and their local allies have virtually controlled both parties since the turn of the century. Besides dominating the national conventions—except with regard to somewhat meaningless platforms—state organizations have usually named one of their group to run for high office.

The list is long—McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Wilson, Hughes, Harding, Cox, Smith, Coolidge, FDR, Landon, Dewey, Stevenson, and numerous contenders who never got the nomination.

Now, inasmuch as national and foreign issues command the stage as never before, the congressional factions believe that they should be the top dogs.

They recall that the time was when the men at Washington were the powers in both national and local politics—men like Platt of New York, Penrose of Pennsylvania, Brandegee of Connecticut, Wadsworth of New York, Edge of New Jersey and the elder Lodge of Massachusetts, to name only a few.

The governors' great advantage, of course, derives from the fact that they are closer to the people and have control of so much patronage. Even when a senator has close contact with the man in the White House, a President does not have the disposal of as many bread-and-butter jobs as a governor.

Politics being a selfish and cut-throat game, the odds appear to lie with the local powers in this kind of donnybrook.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—In their analysis of the United States during the dramatic transfer of responsibility, Dwight D. Eisenhower and President John F. Kennedy might well have been talking about two different countries.

The important and disturbing fact is not that the new and old chief executives differed so sharply, for each was expressing his own political and philosophical viewpoint. They were still campaigning against each other, and mapping the future battleground for their respective parties.

The really significant and bewildering factor is that each based his conclusions on data supplied to him by economic researchers and advisers presumed to be expert and experienced students in these fields.

ADVISERS UNLIMITED—Eisenhower had at his command all the facilities of the federal government's vast array of fact-finding agencies—state, treasury, commerce, agriculture, etc. Never before has a president had so many sources on which to base his judgments.

Although on the outside looking in, President Kennedy's wealth and professional associations enabled him to call upon the most brilliant storehouse of talent ever possessed by an incoming chief executive. FDR's famous "brain trust" was a kindergarten by comparison.

According to Eisenhower, this nation is in blooming health. We are not suffering from a recession, merely a sideways, rolling readjustment. He anticipates a prompt pickup and a new burst of prosperity. He feels that he has left the country in a strong and sound condition, and that there is no need for extraordinary rescue efforts by his successor.

He advises only orthodox and conventional policies for the future—balanced budgets, strict economy at Washington, reliance upon private initiative and industry, and greater assumption of responsibilities by cities and states.

CLAIMS AND COUNTERCLAIMS—Despite his regret over no progress on disarmament or with Russia, Eisenhower is not upset over world conditions.

He maintains that the United States is stronger, militarily, than ever before. He rejoices that he has been able to keep the peace during eight years of recurring crises. He sees no gap between American and Russian missile development. He has permitted a minimum expansion of the national defense establishment.

The Kennedy experts reject every one of these contentions. They believe that the United States is sick, that it suffers from a serious economic decline which may get worse before it becomes better. They contend that there is grave hardship in many areas, with almost five million unemployed and many more on part-time.

They feel that the nation's national resources have been neglected. They maintain that there has been a callous disregard of the more unfortunate elements of the population—the old, the needy, the jobless, racial groups and the underprivileged in general.

FRONTIERS COST MONEY—As remedies, they propose transfusions of several billions in social, economic and humanitarian projects to move the United States to "new frontiers." In that process, they are willing to forego balanced budgets, to incur deficits and to impose higher taxes through a revision of the revenue-producing structure.

In the foreign field, the Kennedy administration finds no cause for complacency or satisfaction. It insists that the United States has lost prestige abroad because of the Eisenhower policies. It bewails our weakened position in the United Nations, and anticipates the admission of Red China.

It regards the crises in Cuba, the Congo, Laos and Berlin as constant seats of limited or large-scale war. It believes that the former administration has mishandled all these threats to national security and world peace.

In short, not since FDR's paternalistic "let Uncle Sam do it" New Deal supplanted Herbert Hoover's policy of reliance on "rugged Americans" has there been such a contrasting image of America by the past and the future directors of the nation's destinies.

VIEW OF OTHERS

UNIONIZE IDAHO FARMS

An interesting development along the widening road of labor unionism is the announced plan to organize farm workers. The fact that our legislature has received a right-to-work bill aimed exclusively at agriculture suggests there is at least some alarm among the farmers. The idea is fascinating.

A five-day situation on the farm, limited to eight hours, and following the usual union demand that the employer limit his activities to signing the pay checks, would be something to see. The harvesting of crops might survive restricted employment schedules but something would have to be done about the dairy cow that has been milked on a 12-hour schedule since her first calf. Just how a union hand, with an eight hour shift, would be able to operate the milking machines at 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. stretches beyond the imagination of any contract author. Of course, there could be two shifts of workers, one to milk in the morning, another to milk at night, and a third crew to milk on the off days. But what that would do to the price of milk also is beyond imagination. Even double-taxed beer would be cheaper.

Farm union organization may come along in some states where large corporations operate comparatively large farms. Fact of the matter, they may be the source of inspiration for growing band of union organizers who prosper on abnormal conditions. Those who read "Grapes of Wrath" learned something of sorry American history that demanded correction, and if the unions are moving into similar situations, certainly no one in Idaho, our farmers included, should be concerned.

But it will not follow that any union organization will ever be successful in organizing farm workers in Idaho. The handling of harvested products might come under union command but not the individual who works by the month and receives his housing and many of his needs in the way of food. It would be far easier to unionize housewives.

Nonetheless, there is no harm in Idaho being on guard. In the meantime, the farmer industry will best ward off possible trouble by maintaining fair and reasonable working conditions—the kind that never generate the necessity of the workers enjoying the sing-song of the organizer.

Employers often create unions.—Boise Statesman.

GREEN AROUND THE CITIES

After it is too late, many cities will find that they have expanded until there is no country within a reasonable distance. Parks will meet only a part of the need for open space. Therefore bold new measures are being advocated for land acquisition, before all the farms near cities have been cut up into building lots. One of the more interesting ones is the Greenbelt around Ottawa, described in a booklet published by its National Capital commission.

The problem facing Ottawa was like that of most large cities. Urban sprawl and unsightly ribbon developments along the highways on the outskirts were threatening. There was a practical limit to the extension of sewer and water facilities. It was held desirable to place a limit on the size of the central city. An attempt to have adjacent communities establish zone rules was ineffective.

The final solution will be far-reaching. Land was bought at market prices. Its inner margin is six miles from the city's center. The Greenbelt is two and a half miles deep, and forms a 37,000-acre belt around Ottawa. Some farms in the Greenbelt have been rented to previous owners. Some have been consolidated into more economic units. An airport, parks, beaches, and golf courses have been established. Ottawa's example should encourage others to take heart when they visualize the future of their communities.—Hartford Courant.

FAMOUS LAST LINE

How about another great GENTLEMAN IN THE FOURTH ROW

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

Last November eight rioters who had conspired to dynamite and set fire to portions of a cotton mill in Henderson, N.C., were escorted to prison to serve from two to 10 years. There was a farewell demonstration of sorrow by relatives of some of the men.

Official, professional union members of the Textile Workers' union conducted a demonstration "that included a mob chant, 'solidarity forever,' which has been a war Westbrook Pegler cry of communist mobs for years from six to 10 years, four local disturbers, five to seven, and the low man on the pole, a local dupe, got two to three. Both supreme courts, state and federal, had turned them all down in appeals and Gov. Luther Hodges, now secretary of commerce, denied executive clemency.

This is a development in a campaign of northern unionists to dragon southern workers into authoritarian northern unions, concentrated in New York and Washington. It is an incident in a long war of terrorism.

In June, 1951, criminals on the union side killed a woman employee at Berrinton, Ga., named Nellie Tucker as she was riding toward one of the Berrinton mills. A gang mobbed her car and dumped it in the fashion profected in Flint and Detroit in Roosevelt's wild '30's.

There were four other women but no men in the same car. Miss Tucker's head was crushed and she apparently died instantly. A. B. Hammond, the general manager of the mills, wrote that the pickets "stood around the automobile and sang songs and refused to help us turn the car upright."

The Berrinton mills later were sold to the Henderson, N.C., cotton mills and the violence spread to Henderson.

Twelve rioters were indicted in the Berrinton murder, but only one went to trial. He was convicted of involuntary manslaughter, served one year of a three-to-five year term, and was pardoned in response to political agitation directed from Washington.

In 1955, after this fall-guy was let out he got permanently drunk. He committed suicide the following Christmas, leaving a wife and five small children. There was no expression of sorrow at that Christmas-tide for Miss Tucker, long in her grave, but unioners shed a few official tears for the suicide's children.

As to whether his conscience goaded him to his final act there was local speculation. But he was an ignorant, local rank-and-filer, and expendable.

Three or four homes of other Berrinton workers were dynamited at night, a waterline was blown up, an act of terror typical in southern union apostolates of recent years, and a number of non-strikers, who refused to join the union, suffered the normal wear and tear of persuasion by clubs.

None of the strikers ever was hired back by Berrinton, the union never got a contract and the other defendants in the mob who were indicted quietly faded out.

Their cases may be almost as tragic as that of Nellie Tucker. For it was apparent that excited workers on both sides were victims of organized agitation by professionals from "outside."

In the more recent troubles in Henderson, big-shots from Washington created an atmosphere that discouraged some regular workers. There were many explosions, windshields of workers' cars were pierced by steel balls and rocks. Men were shot and slugged—and farmers from the out-back went to town to earn wages that exceeded their normal income.

During the war when the industry was heavily concentrated in New England, a regional director who lived in Worcester, Mass., was identified as the bargaining agent for a patrol of prostitutes there. He had a police and FBI record.

And Worcester also was the home grounds of Tim Flynn, another criminal, whom the late Philip Murray, as chief of the entire CIO, selected to replace Harry Bridges as boss of the CIO in California. Murray apparently knew Flynn's criminal record when he appointed him.

In the Henderson case, Boyd Paton, director of the union for both Carolinās, who got six to 10 years, held a "news conference" here, departing by car for prison. He said, "Let this hour be one of dedication that the effort to organize the textile workers must be continued" and so forth at considerable length.

The AE reported that William Pollock, the national president, said, "We're going to see that the families of all these men are not going hungry." Action was in abeyance to pay full salary to all three "national" men during their absence in prison.

45-Year-Old Pine Placed Near Hospital

Members of the Twin Falls Grange led by T. (Pete) Creed, second from right, are shown placing two large 45-year-old pines on the east side of Maglo Valley Memorial hospital Tuesday. Resident, 102, Gives Trees From Yard for Hospital Use

Members of the Twin Falls Grange led by T. (Pete) Creed Tuesday moved two 45-year-old, 20-foot high pine trees from the front yard of the home of Herschel Sonner, 102, to a new site on the east side of Maglo Valley Memorial hospital.

The trees had been slated to be removed during widening of the highway east of Twin Falls. Instead they were donated to the hospital by the elderly valley resident with the Grange handling all preparations for removal and replanting.

They were moved in a large truck by Grange members. The truck was loaned for the job by Doyle Sligar and Keith Sligar, operators of the Thousand Springs resort at Hagerman.

NEW YORKERS GO THIRSTY

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (AP)—Hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers went thirsty and unwashed yesterday in a large part of downtown Manhattan as the result of a break in an important water main. Heat, electricity and phone service also were affected in some areas.

Manville Has Scorecard on His Troubles

CHAPPAQUA, N. Y., Jan. 25 (AP)—The following story requires a scorecard.

—Thomas F. Manville, Jr., aging 66 years, playboy and heir to an immense fortune, who gets "lonesome" when not married.

—Anita Francis Roddy-Eden, his ninth wife age 38, who once said she wanted to be his widow.

—Her twin-sister, Juanita Ingraham.

—Joan Wynn, 17, a "sweet girl," the daughter of Ed Wynn, owner of New York's Hed Wynns club, who was a one-time girlfriend of teen-age singer Fabian.

—Pat Gaston, tall Texas showgirl, Manville's wife, No. 10.

—Now to the story. Manville, who is not reluctant to call newspaper offices to report in detail on his domestic affairs, was sued in Los Angeles for one million dollars yesterday by Mrs. Anita Manville, No. 9.

She charges he obtained a Reno divorce fraudulently in 1955 by having her twin sister, Juanita, impersonate her at court.

Manville replied at his home moved in shocked tones. "I am very discouraged that she didn't sue me for five million dollars," he said.

Mrs. Manville, the ninth, claimed that since Manville obtained the divorce fraudulently, he didn't really obtain it and that means they are still married. So where does that leave his present wife, No. 11, Christina?

"You can tell everyone," Manville said. "That Tommy isn't interested in Anita or Christina. He's going to marry Ed Wynn's daughter, Joan."

Wynn confirmed he had been asked for his daughter's hand. "I'm waiting to see what happens," he said. "Tommy is a good friend of mine and Joan is a sweet girl."

Back at the ranch, Texas wife No. 10, Pat, apparently couldn't care less if her marriage, already dissolved by divorce, was further blasted by annulment on the ground that Manville already had a wife when he married her.

But Christina says she still loves Tommy and doesn't want to leave him, not even for a lot of money, as Tommy has reported.

"Think you have the story straight now?"

"Like Pirate Story, but Not Funny," Man Calls Hijacking

CASTRIES, St. Lucia, Windward Islands, Jan. 25 (AP)—Joao Peres de Sousa, 29, lay in a hospital here today with a .32 caliber bullet lodged near his spine and two bullet wounds in his chest and arm. What started out to be a peaceful pleasure cruise in the Caribbean turned out to be a nightmare for the young navigation officer of the Santa Maria, the Portuguese luxury liner hijacked Sunday by pirates.

Although his doctor says his condition "is definitely improving," Peres could not wipe out the memory of the night of terror that ended when 70 Portuguese rebels took control of the ship.

"It was all very sudden," he said. "I was in the chart room plotting the ship's course at 1:30 a.m., Sunday, when I heard two shots."

"Almost at the same time, the bridge officer opened the door to the chart room and shouted 'call the engine room'—and collapsed dead at my feet. I made to go below and heard more shots. Then something hit me and I lost consciousness."

The navigation officer and another crewmember were wounded when the rebels, armed with hand grenades, tommyguns and pistols, took over the ship with 600 passengers aboard.

THE AVERAGE ANCIENT ROMAN LIVED TO BE 22

The American born in 1961 can look forward to a life span of nearly 70 years. Since 1900 alone, average life expectancy has climbed on incredible 20 years. Medical progress is the great key to these revolutionary gains. New research and new knowledge today promise even further advances. Nevertheless, neglecting to see a physician in time to benefit fully from modern medical science is cheating many not only of average years, but of extra years. Clearly, the great step toward better health and longer life is simple: regular medical check-ups.

Law Professor To Be Picked For Tax Post

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP)—Mortimer Caplin, 44, a University of Virginia law professor, has been chosen by President Kennedy to be internal revenue commissioner.

The White House announced that Kennedy will formally nominate Caplin, a Democrat, shortly.

Caplin, whose home is in Charlottesville, Va., teaches corporate and tax law in the university law school.

A native of New York, Caplin was educated in public schools there. He received a bachelor of science degree in economics and political science at the University of Virginia in 1937. He won a law degree at the same university three years later.

Caplin worked as a law clerk to a federal judge before joining the law firm of Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton and Garrison in New York City, after graduation from law school. During World War II he served as a lieutenant, junior grade in the navy and was decorated for bravery during the Normandy invasion.

After the war he returned to the New York law firm and continued private practice until 1950 when he joined the University of Virginia law school faculty.

Author of numerous articles in the field of tax and corporate law, Caplin is director of the Virginia conference on federal taxation, an organization of attorneys and certified public accountants.

BUFFALO, Jan. 25 (AP)—A reflective highway paint that gives drivers a sharp view of the road at night has been developed at Cornell aeronautical laboratory here.

The laboratory said the paint, applied to that it reflects only the light from the driver's own headlights, will be tested by the New York public works department this summer.

Special Aide Is Asked for Theft Retrial

Twin Falls County Prosecuting Attorney James J. May has requested appointment of a special prosecutor for the retrial of John Hoppie, Buhl, accused of sheep theft. District Judge Edward H. Heap will make the selection.

May explained that his father and law partner, J. Alfred May, had represented Hoppie, and Idaho statute requires that a special prosecutor be appointed because Hoppie had been a client of May and May.

Hoppie was convicted of sheep theft on Oct. 28, 1959, in district court. He was accused of stealing animals belonging to Shelby Williams, Buhl, during January, 1959.

The case was appealed to the Idaho supreme court, which set aside the conviction last month and ordered a retrial. The higher court ruled the district court erred in not allowing Hoppie to testify to his intent when taking the animals.

Hoppie is free on bail awaiting the new district court trial. Prosecuting Attorney May said. Hoppie is also free on bail awaiting trial on a cattle theft charge in Camas county.

GEM CLUB TO MEET

WENDELL, Jan. 25—Keith D. Turner, principal of the Lincoln school, Twin Falls, will show a film on his "Brunau survival trip" at the Magic Valley Gem club meeting at 8 p. m. Thursday at the Wendell city hall. Members are asked to bring rocks for the baby rock show.

More Troops To Quit U.N. Congo Force

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Jan. 25 (AP)—The United States of America and the United Arab Republic will go home from the U.N. force in the Congo, cutting it to 17,653 officers, troops and technicians.

Ceylon, Ghana, Indonesia and Morocco have been threatening to pull out 6,213 more men.

The six countries support deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba for leadership of the Congo.

U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold's spokesman disclosed arrangements were under way for a UAR pullout. He said UAR Delegate Omar Loufi last Friday had asked Hammarskjold to send home the 497 troops in the force before Feb. 1, and Hammarskjold "promised to investigate the transport possibilities for an early repatriation."

Authoritative sources said Guinea's contingent of 738 will leave the force early in February.

Since the force was formed last July, 12,410 men have been withdrawn. Mali and Senegal pulled out 577 troops in November, Yugoslavia 21 airplane pilots and technicians in December, and Burma nine staff officers this month. In a rotation operation, Ireland has reduced its contingent by 733.

All but one per cent of harness horses racing today can trace their ancestry to the great Hambletonian.

Community Concert at Burley Saturday Features Dancers

BURLEY, Jan. 25—The beautiful and fiery flamenco star, Pilar Gomez, and a company of young artists will present a program of imaginative song and dance as the second attraction of the Mini-Cassia Community Concert series at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Burley high school.

This is the company's first tour season. They will be costumed and choreographed by their artistic adviser, Federico Rey, and Miss Gomez.

They will present a repertoire which will include presentations from the folklore of Andalusia, the Basque country and Mallorca, rarely-seen Mexican folk dances, the ever-beautiful classic Flamenco and entertaining satires of more modern-day works, including those of "the roaring twenties."

Miss Gomez is famous in the U. S., Canada and Europe where she toured with success for several seasons as the half of the "Rey and Gomez" dance duo. Field Burns

BUHL, Jan. 25 — The Buhl fire department was called at 8:45 p.m. Monday to the Carl Harder ranch six and one-half miles west of Buhl on the Deep Creek road, when Mrs. Harder became alarmed that a blazing stubble field would burn their barn and other out-buildings.

The Harder's son, Howard, had tried earlier in the day to ignite the field but it would not burn. But winds apparently whipped up the smoldering field, report Buhl fire officials. No damages were reported.

Club Begins Talking Test

Robert Colner won the first round of a speech contest at a meeting of Twin Falls Toastmasters club 149 Tuesday night, and Victor E. Kendall was approved as a new member. Colner was one of three speakers who launched a local contest to pick a contestant for a district Toastmasters event in February. He talked about President John Kennedy's problems, the biggest of which, in his views, will be Mrs. Kennedy, a person he described as having interests not at all similar to a politician's. Lloyd Webb and Jerre Cover were his competitors. Webb spoke on tensions in Latin America and Cover on where the new secretary of agriculture, Orville Freeman, stands as he takes over. Others who participated in the meeting were Richard Cook, table topics master; John Roper, toastmaster, and John Leinen, chief evaluator. Hoffa Denies Charges He's Theft Backer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP)—If he went back and made that report lies a liar.

This was Teamster President James R. Hoffa's shouted reply to testimony that he sent word to Anthony 'Tony Ducks' Corallo, New York mobster, that it was all right for Corallo to rob or steal from 'Teamster local' 239 in New York City. Hoffa 'don't get caught'.

The statement was attributed to Hoffa during a conversation among Corallo and Bernard Stein, local 239 secretary-treasurer, and Mack 'Tane' local 239 director of organization.

A partial transcript of the conversation as recorded by New York City police was read at a hearing before the senate investigation's subcommittee yesterday.

Called as a witness, Hoffa challenged the subcommittee's authority to investigate his alleged dealings with Corallo, but was overruled.

Hoffa then charged the subcommittee with violating the law to obtain the recording. He described the transcript as a conglomeration of words that no sane man would utter.

Founders Date Is Observed for PEO Sisterhood

A joint founders day meeting was featured last week by Twin Falls chapters D, AI, AO and BE of the PEO Sisterhood at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension auditorium.

The program, "A masterpiece of love," honored the seven college girls who founded the Sisterhood in 1869 at Mt. Pleasant, Ia. Members of chapter BE presenting the program were dressed in gowns of that period.

Members of chapter D were in charge of table decorations; chapter AI, refreshments, and chapter AO, serving. A trio staging for the program was comprised of Mrs. David Mead, Mrs. Keith Turner and Mrs. Ann Friesdon. Mrs. Donald Young was program chairman and accompanist.

PEO is an organization of women dedicated to educational and charitable purposes. Its more than 3,600 chapters are located in towns and cities in most of the 50 states, including Alaska and Hawaii, and many Canadian provinces.

Cotley college, a junior college for women, in Nevada, Mo., has been owned by PEO since 1927. Four Idaho girls attend Cotley this year.

The earliest project was the educational loan fund, designed to assist young women in attaining an education beyond the high school level. This fund is available to any eligible local girl. There are 1,200 borrowers at the present time and since 1907 over five and one-half million dollars have been loaned to 12,780 girls.

Idaho PEO maintains a home in Caldwell for elderly members desiring the companionship of others in the Sisterhood.

One of the most worthwhile projects of the PEO is the International Peace Scholarship plan. Believing that education is fundamental to world peace and understanding, members contribute funds for the purpose of providing scholarships for selected women from other countries for study in the United States and Canada.

SPOKANE, Jan. 25 — At home here at South 939 Lincoln street after a wedding trip to British Columbia are Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Clemons. The couple was married Dec. 30 at St. John's Cathedral.

The bride is the former Penelope Hoag, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Hoag, Spokane, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Blythe O. Clemons, Gooding.

The Rt. Rev. Russell S. Hubbard, Episcopal bishop for the Spokane district, officiated at the double ring rite. Poinsettias and miniature spruce trees banked the altar and carried out the red and green color scheme used for the wedding.

The bride chose a gown of candlelight slipper satin with a fitted bodice. Satin rosettes at the back of the waistline secured the chapel train. Her illusion fingertip veil was held by a cap of seed pearls. She carried a cluster of white roses and stephanotis on a white prayer book. Her jewelry included necklaces of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Wade Humphreys and maid of honor was Nancy Sutherland. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Lee A. Larsen and Marilyn Olsen, both Seattle, and Karen Sattler, Spokane. Each of the attendants wore a scarlet-satin gown in the same design as the bride's dress with a flat bow of matching material as a headband. They carried colonial-nosegays of scarlet carnations and white chrysanthemums.

Duane Clemons, Gooding, a cousin of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushering were John B. Morrow, Max Wade Humphreys, William Mac Boyle and John Q. Adams.

The bridegroom's mother chose a gown of rose beige lace and the bride's mother wore a dress of pink champagne satin. Their corsages were pink-elfe roses.

There were 250 guests at the reception at the Cathedral crypt registered by Sheryl Michaels and Randy Michaels. Gifts were displayed by Mrs. Lawrence Briney, cousin of the bride.

Serving wedding cake were Mrs. Kenneth Polo and Mrs. Barbara Rometch, cousins of the bride. Assisting were Mrs. John B. Morrow, Gloria Gowanlock, Mrs. John H. Morrow, Mrs. J. L. Rometch and Mrs. David Kaye.

For the wedding trip the bride wore a two-piece blue tweed ensemble with mouton jacket.

The new Mrs. Clemons attended Washington State university, Pullman, and the University of Washington, Seattle. She is employed here by Old National bank.

The bridegroom is associated with Astma Life Insurance company. He is a graduate of the University of Idaho, Moscow, where he was affiliated with Sigma Alpha Epsilon. He is a member of the Young Republicans, Life Underwriters, Masonic lodge, and Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI

It is not always apparent but even people, who, like me, keep talking about the rights of children do think about the rights of parents. They certainly have some and they should be considered by everybody who comes in contact with fathers and mothers.

Begin with the schools. Parents have the right to know how their children are doing in school. Report cards are not always as informing as they might be. A child whose monthly reports gave no hint of trouble is left back at term end. Any such prospect should have been seen by the teacher and the parents informed long before term end.

The head of the school should set aside some time each week for parents to make appointments with him so they can talk over anything that troubles them about their children and he should be able to talk intelligently about that child. That means he should know every child in his school unless he happens to be in a big city school with thousands of them.

Then one of his assistants can be present at the interviews and he should know the child.

Parents have a right to know that once they send their child to school he is in the care of the school people and will not be sent out on an errand, will not be sent home during school hours without an escort or a telephone call to make certain someone is at home to receive him. They do not expect that a child will be allowed out of their charge to anyone but themselves.

Too, parents have a right to expect the teaching of their children by the teachers to be thorough. They do not expect to have to teach reading, or arithmetic or any subject matter. They expect, and rightly, that the teacher will assign homework only after it has been thoroughly taught in the classroom. The reasons are obvious.

Parents have a right to be heard by their boards of education. These gentlemen and ladies sometimes forget that their first obligation is to the children in their care and that the parents have first interest in those children. Parents pay for their schools in the hope that they will serve their children well now and in the future so they have a right to feel that they share in all that affects their school.

And parents have not only the right, but the duty to assert those rights. If they don't they have no right to complain about injustice.

Taylor Hits Field Goal In Final 13 Seconds as Minico Nips Burley 52-51

RUBERT, Jan. 25—Senior forward Mike Taylor hit a field goal with 13 seconds left in the game to give the Minico Spartans a 52-51 squeaker over the Burley Bobcats Tuesday night. The result—another in a long line of Minico-Burley tight ones—kept the surprising Spartans in a tie for the Big Seven conference lead with Oakley while the Bobcats, who entered this game as slight favorites on the basis of previous showings, almost pulling ahead in the game when they went ahead on free throws by Glenn Church and George...

The victory marked the high point of the Spartan season. Minico, relying heavily on underclassmen and untired men, dropped seven of its first eight games. However, the two-time defending league champion, after bowing to Oakley, has won three in conference play against one loss. Minico jayvees made it a clean sweep by winning the preliminary 41-35.

BOISE, Jan. 25 (AP)—Ernest E. Day, president of the Idaho Fish and game federation, said Tuesday the proposed legislation in the state house of representatives to make the commission posts elective ones "would set wildlife conservation in Idaho back 30 years."

Commissioners are currently appointed by the governor and the three appointments were confirmed earlier this month by the state senate. In a prepared statement Day said the wildlife federation at its December convention in Boise endorsed the present fish and game commission and the department director, adding: "We oppose any change in their methods and operations. The sportsmen want their fight to take fish and game matters—the conservation of wildlife resources—out of politics with the passage of the initiative act back in 1938."

"Some people think that making commissioners elective by the people rather than appointed by the governor would make them directly responsible to the voters. "It would have the opposite effect, would place politics squarely in the middle of the fish and game management, and would substitute untrained management for professional career-service people. We are opposed to politics in wildlife conservation."

Grid Loop Okays Plans to Stock Minnesota Club

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (AP)—The National Football league Tuesday decided on a formula to stock the new Minnesota franchise—each team except Dallas to make a list of eight players, three to be chosen by the Vikings, who will pay a total of $550,000 to the other NFL clubs for the players, about $15,611 a man. Last year, when Dallas was added to the league, the club was picked from a list of 11 players from each of the other teams. But commissioner Pete Rozelle pointed out that Dallas did not participate in the draft.

The Vikings already have picked up 20 players not secured yet in the draft and have obtained quarterback George Shaw from the New York Giants. The league also voted that players who were injured late last season must be included on the regular roster. Injured players were placed on the reserve list.

The clubs will have to have their lists in Wednesday, and the Vikings will have until noon Thursday to make their selections. The selections won't be made public, Rozelle said, until the trading club has told the players. General manager Bert Rose, coach Norm Van Brocklin and talent scout Joe Thomas will make the selections for the Vikings.

Whole Blood Uses Outlined at Minidoka Memorial Hospital

Mrs. Norma Garatea, supervisor of nurses at Minidoka Memorial hospital, explains the storage and use of whole blood to Mrs. Ray Burton, chairman for the Red Cross blood program. Mrs. Garatea pointed out that blood and blood derivatives play an important part in the care of patients, whether surgical or accident, or those requiring special treatment. Mrs. Garatea said blood is available for everyone who has need of it, and the blood bank depends on donations entirely for replacements. (Staff photo-engraving)

Official Back

HAGERMAN, Jan. 25 — At a special meeting of the school board members last week it was reported that Supt. Cleament Prince is back on the job on a full time basis after recovering from a heart attack. Vernon Ravenscroft reported on a meeting in Boise with the highway board relative to road locations in the village. A washer and dryer have been ordered for use in the home economics and athletic departments. Sparrows Point, Md., is the site of the world's largest steel plant. Employing 27,000, it has a capacity of 8.2 million tons a year.

SPEAK AT MEET
ELBA, Jan. 25 — Mr. and Mrs. Don Chandler, Ruel and Ray Barker attended LDS services in Yae, Utah, Sunday. The Chandlers and Ruel Barker were speakers at the sacrament meeting.

Minidoka Residents Urged to Give Blood at Rupert Jan. 31

RUPERT, Jan. 25 — Minidoka county residents are reminded of the visit of the Red Cross bloodmobile scheduled for Jan. 31 by Mrs. Ray Burton, chairman for the local blood drive. She reports the quota has been lowered from 150 pints to 125, and urges all who can to plan now to donate blood.

In outlining the great need for donations from the county, Mrs. Burton pointed out that during the period 1959-60, Minidoka county residents used 788 cubic centimeters of gamma globulin, representing 393 pints of blood. In addition to this and other derivatives, the county used 232 pints of whole blood, and during that time, just 361 pints were collected in the county.

Hospital personnel report plasma is used routinely in the case of accident or shock as a standard by measure until whole blood can be obtained, and that fibrinogen is used to control hemorrhaging, and serum albumin is used for burns and shock.

Mrs. Burton reported that in Minidoka county, seven children and one adult are receiving gamma globulin regularly, with one boy needing four cubic centimeters twice a week. If it weren't for the blood program, the cost to the parents would be around $27 per week, a sum which the parents could not afford. The adult is having five cubic centimeters per week, and one other child receives three cubic centimeters each week. The chairman urges all individuals who can to contribute. Organizations are asked to arrange for group donations by contacting Mrs. Burton.
