Willingness to Cooperate in Censoring Idea Is Expressed

NEW YORK, April 29 (AP)—A group of newspaper publishers and top executives of the industry has expressed a willingness to cooperate with President Kennedy's proposal for self-censorship of security by the news press.

The group suggested that the rules should be defined by the president and the industry until they had had time to study the President's proposal in more detail.

James S. Conley, publisher of the San Diego Union and Tribune, said in the first time the President's proposal was discussed voluntarily.

"Each newspaper publisher will have to consider the situation and determine how he will handle the matter," Conley said.

Benjamin M. McKelway, editor of the Washington Star and president of the Associated Press, said he still believes in freedom of the press.

"I know of no responsible newspaper which would print material damaging to the interests of the country. The old problem is: What is that damaging to the interests of the country? I think that the job of protecting security is being done by the government. A specific proposal will be presented with great interest," Frank J. Sliemers, general manager of the Associated Press, said.

"Any responsible publication would refrain from knowingly disclosing information which damages or jeopardizes the national interest. The problem centers in distinguishing between that which might damage or jeopardize and that which does not."

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

(On Sunday, Ray Tucker answers readers' questions of general interest in the "Tucker's National Whirligig" column. Questions may be sent to him at 1928 Mill Street, Boise, Idaho.)

WASHINGTON—"Do you think," asks J.D. Tula, Okla., "that congress will pass the complicated tax program requested by Kennedy and your opinion?"

Answer: I imagine that congress will pass it. The president only has a small portion of what he asks for. The House and Senate Finance Committee, which handle revenue measures, are not inclined to make such far-reaching changes in the tax system as President Kennedy proposes.

JFK AND THE COUPON—OPPOSES—Both conservative and liberals seem to oppose the five percent extra tax credits for firms which expand their plants. Corporations would prefer acceleration of the tax credit system, pointing out that they have an excess of capacity now. So, why build more facilities? Labor thinks that corporate taxes should be increased.

The proposal that dividends be withheld at the source will cause all kinds of costly complications. It means more paper work for firms already overburdened in complying with red tape and bureaucratic regulations. It will work a tremendous amount of pain on the millions who own a small amount of stock.

Besides, a long delay before shareholders could get the full amount of their dividends with request for refund. And I doubt the administration's contention that coupon clipping will be a major source of their dividends.

Frankly, I do not think that congress will approve either of these changes.

INDUSTRIAL EXILES AND UNEMPLOYMENT—The really constructive problem, in my opinion, is that which subjects American firms migrating abroad to the same system of taxation and employment as the industrial exodus which means the loss of jobs, taxes, purchasing power and income to American workers.

As of today, the profits of migrating firms are not taxed until they are returned to this country. But American-owned companies or expanding facilities overseas are building plants or expanding facilities overseas, for most foreign countries levy no taxes on profits when they are sent out of the country.

Instead of returning profits to the United States to be taxed, they spend their earnings abroad. And free traders to the contrary, these profits totaling $1 billion dollars over a three-year period are being sent out of the country.

Frankly, I do not think that congress will approve such a whip.

NEW FACES OF 1961—It is my impression that the Evans-Charlie show," suggests Mrs. G. Butler, "has changed more as a result of criticism than of its own merits."

Answer: It seems to be so. The new plan is to have spokesmen for the various factions appear in order to leave the Hellock-Dirkzen ultra-conservative. They have already had former Vice President Goldwater and Governor Rockefeller, as well as other notable liberalists.

In my opinion, the enlarged show is a direct result of criticism. I ought to know. A spokesman for the Republican House policy committee promises to compare the Evans-Charlie show with the Hellock-Dirkzen ultra-conservative. It is my opinion that the Evans-Charlie show would never have had such a success without the criticism of the Hellock-Dirkzen ultra-conservative.

VIEW OF OTHERS

RED ECONOMIC GAIN

Claims made for progress of the Russian economy have not always been as realistic as they seem. The government has been noted from time to time.

And just as the Russian economy is being compared by a Soviet economist appeared to confirm western impressions that there have been many exaggerations of its growth in the Soviet Union.

Just now a new U. S. study, reported in the New York Times, indicates that a great deal of investment in industry and in agriculture, there may be solid substance in Soviet boasts.

U. S. departments, however, are skeptical. They have concluded that "the annual expansion of Soviet industrial capacity is as great as that of the United States."

Their figures show that new Russian industrial investment in 1959, measured in constant American prices in 1955, totaled $2.9 billion, compared with $1.6 billion in 1958. In 1959, the United States had led $1.8 billion to $1.6 billion in 1958.

Some investment in agriculture in 1959 totaled $1.1 billion dollars, compared with $4 billion for the United States.

U. S. investment in 1959 and 1958 to a total of $3 billion dollars; in this country the increase was $1 billion dollars.

We must be realistic. We must not allow ourselves to be misled by the Soviet's total up to meet ours in "the early years of the revolution."

Even allowing for substantial margins of error in comparing Russian-U. S. growth figures, this is a sobering report. It allows little room for the kind of cynicism, non-belief or skepticism that Americans have sometimes expressed over Nikita Khrushchev's promises.

Instead, it again focuses a clear, harsh light on the nature of the challenge that Russia has thrown down to the United States and its western allies.

PUT A FLAGMAN ON MONSTER TRUCKS

We are suggesting an amendment to the house-approved bill authorizing 60-foot-long monster trucks. There is a way to make the bill more realistic. We suggest that the bill be amended to add an amendment that all vehicles over 50 feet in length should be preceded by a flagman.

This amendment is the law which made the king of highways in England safe from huge monster trucks. The invention of the steam locomotive and the perfecting of the automobile led to a monster truck.

The truckers' lobby is too potent to give up that easily. The man with the red flag would increase employment for the country's police force. The low speed of the 60-foot monster at a competitive disadvantage, surely the state which imposed the burden of such a law should be ready to accept the competition up again.—Des Moines Register.

FREEBORN FOR AXIS SALLY

"Axis Sally," who worked for the enemy as a radio propagandist, directing her efforts at American troops in the Mediterranean theater, was a free-born American. After having served her stretch for treason from the enemy's point of view, she was a good American citizen. She was the only woman in the Axis who was a free-born American.

The American army had her—and either she or whoever she was with—was a free-born American. She was a free-born American. She was a free-born American.

It is a concentration camp that feeds itself. For all the talk of free-born Americans, it is not so close to the truth to be funny.—Baltimore Sun.

Fortunately, 13-year-old sons seldom are a match for their fathers. If they were, it would be awfully hard on the fathers.

There is no doubt that boys in this age are much more knowledgeable than their fathers. They are much more knowledgeable than their fathers. They are much more knowledgeable than their fathers.

PARRIS—The collapse of the French government has left this deeply shaken capital not only with any sense of elation but rather with a sense of gloom that once again the worst has not happened.

What has seemed to be imminent disaster has turned out to be a joke. There is now in retrospect a sense of relief and a sense of relief.

The sessions began Tuesday with a coffee hour served by the women of the Gooding church. A communion service was conducted by the Rev. Paul Lafuze, pastor of the Gooding church, who spoke on the theme of the conference, "to serve all others."

Mrs. George Likness, Buhl, reported on the jurisdiction meeting at Phoenix, Ariz. Her theme was "to be at home with our neighbors." Margaret Tothman, Payette, formerly of Fruitland, reported on her experiences in Bolivia where she served a three-year mission as instructor of nurses at the Methodist hospital in La Paz. Tothman was partially supported in her work by contributions from the 55 societies in the Idaho annual conference.

The Tuesday afternoon session included routine business and election of officers. Mrs. Mason presided at a meeting at Buck Hill Falls, Pa., by the board of mission of the Methodist church.

Mrs. Leonard Clark, Payette, conducted the Tuesday evening session. An address was given by Mrs. Paul Ludlow, Nyssa, Ore., on the youth program of the church. Mrs. Tulton Smith, Caldwell, told about the Methodist church she attended recently at the United Nations.

She pointed out that the objectives being raised to the leadership of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld are "to bring peace and a testimony to his effectiveness."

Mrs. Spore said, "We need people who are in the United Nations—people who will see to it that our foreign policy leaders to act in the UN rather than unilaterally."

Seasons Wednesday included a luncheon by Mrs. Elva Mason. Mrs. Elva Mason, Buhl, presided at the luncheon. Mrs. Harold Johnson, Gooding, and a pledge service conducted by Mrs. W. E. Powers, Pocatello.

Care of Your Children

When parents are divorced the child is often in a state of confusion. It is well known that when a child is put on a visiting plan, there is no doubt about it. But surely some consideration can be given to the children that allows them to remain in the home of their mother and father. This is a problem for the parent who has the child for the greater part of the time. One parent, usually the one who has the child for only a brief time each year, is likely to bring the child to win his allegiance and character. Children like to get gifts. They want everything they see until they are taught some proportion and sense of value. After a while to say, father, the child comes home laden with dodges that his mother cannot afford there is trouble ahead. All this is well known. What can be done? Some doctors are sure, no doubt about it. But surely some consideration can be given to the children that allows them to remain in the home of their mother and father. 1884 Photo Shows Shaft Room of Minnie Moore

W. W. Carmichael, British engineer in charge of the Minnie Moore mine during the five years from 1884 to 1892 while it was owned by the British firm of Dent and Palmer, gave this photo to Nell Campbell for Christmas in 1884. None of the men can be identified. The picture was taken in the mine shaft room of the original Minnie Moore workings, which have long since been obliterated. The picture is now the property of Mrs. Ruth Myers, Nell Campbell's granddaughter. (Blatt engraving.)

and silver ore of greater value than any other mine in the Wood River district. Yield of the mines in the district in 1881 was 11,000,000 and a great part came from the Minnie.
A half interest in the mine was sold that year to Henry E. Miller and he came to Bellevue to spend the summer. He found veins and judging at the home of an Irish widow who operated the boarding house at the mine. As the spring dried into summer Henry Miller fell in love with the Irish widow's daughter. She was very young and had not received a formal education.
Goes to School
And so he sent the Irish children to a fashionable boarding school where she received the education and polite necessary to become the wife of a man in Miller's position in life.
On their frequent trips to Europe after their marriage, she studied foreign languages. Her vicious manner and personality carried her to the top of the social ladder in this country and abroad. Her clothes were Paris originals. Her three-story home which at that time stood in the center of a hand-picked block of ground in Bellevue and is now the ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Stewart, just south of Bellevue, was furnished with suites of furniture purchased in Europe and the Orient. Odd pieces came from the four corners of the world.
Operates Ranch
Annie L. Miller never lost her Irish sense of humor. After her husband died and she again was reduced to poverty, she operated the ranch they had bought near Bellevue until she died.
She worked with the men in the fields during the harvest and the evenings relied on her chivalrous partner from Paris. She wore jewelry during working hours and her ermine stole in the evenings. The story-book romance of her life was an intimate part of the lives of Bellevue and the Minnie Moore.
First Strike
The stage was set for the first strike in the history of Alturas county at Broadwood when the miners of the Minnie Moore and the Queen of the Hills left work beyond the Minnie fault. Their work was predicated on the belief that the Minnie and associated faults had a large component of strike-slip.

Accordingly, part of the work was done west of the old Minnie Moore shaft where the Allen shaft was sunk to a depth of 600 feet and several thousand feet of drifts run from there. This work failed to recover the Minnie Moore ore shoot and work was stopped prior to 1922.
Shaft Sunk
In 1922 the Federal Mining and Smelting company, a branch of the American Smelting and Refining company, sank the Rockwell shaft near the mouth of Galena gulch, some 1,700 feet east of the original Minnie Moore shaft, to explore for the extension of the Queen of the Hills vein on Minnie Moore ground.
Three years later a crosscut was started on the 450 foot level of the new shaft, called the Rockwell shaft, to explore for the faulted extension of the Minnie Moore ore body. This work was predicated upon a strong easterly movement on the Minnie and associated faults. With failure at hand and exploratory funds exhausted, the work was abandoned in 1941.
In 1949 the Silver Star-Queens Mines company, through an agreement with the Walker Engineering company, Redding, Calif., rehabilitated the Rockwell shaft to gain entrance to the deeper levels of the Queen of the Hills mine.
Work Successful
Their work was successful in deputies were stationed armed with rifles and revolvers.

No Agreement
When no agreement could be reached, Mr. McDevitt, making a violent speech, stated the miners would get $4 a day or blood would run in the streets of Broadwood and Bellevue. He concluded by calling on the men to capture the mines. The union flag was unfurled and after several minutes ranged behind their flag. Sheriff Purer and his deputies were here in back the crowd. As a last resort United States District Attorney James H. Hawley addressed the union members.
As time passed and no agreement could be reached the mine superintendents reiterated they only wished to run their mines as they should be confusion reigned. Finally Governor Curtis and Brig. Gen. Britain, with United States troops, came to Broadwood. The mine was taken over and the strike ended in March, 1885, at the rate of $3.50 a day.
President High
Nicholas G. Werry, Bellevue, who this year celebrated his 90th birthday anniversary, is perhaps the only man living who was present when an underground river broke into the mine. He is the youngest man on the job, and remembers when they blasted on the 1100 foot level, to return and find the tunnel filling with water. Quickly the mine superintendent was called. He ordered the pumps put in and taken to the 1100 foot level. From the 1,000 foot level the pumps were taken to the 900 level, then to the 800 and finally the 700 foot level. Here there was an outlet for the water.
Until the time the so-called Minnie fault was encountered the mine had produced 23,000 tons of silver-lead ore. The net smelter payment was approximately nine million dollars. Metal prices during that period averaged 50 cents an ounce for silver and five cents a pound for lead. Today's metal prices for a similar amount of ore would bring approximately 22 million dollars.
Beginning in 1923, five different operators made successive and ceasing attempts to recover the Minnie Moore vein and ore shoot movements along the various faults that has placed the continuation of the vein at its present level. During the past eight weeks the company has been engaged in a second drift, using two drifts for two shifts per day.

Today two families reside in what was the old mining camp of Broadford. They are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moore who claim an 80-acre tract in the remains of the company and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnston and their family. Still standing are the remains of one of the houses of the early days of the mining camp.
Cabin Built
Across the Broadford shaft, in the two miles of meadow lands which are covered each spring with rich alfalfa washed down by flood waters of the Big Wood river perhaps a dozen persons have their houses. Several families from Macie Valley have purchased lots in the wooded areas for building summer cabins.
The Rockwell mansion has been taken over by the Church of God and the early days of the Bellevue-Broadford area, concluded by saying, "Make no mistake about it. The same rich ore which made the Minnie famous in the early days will be discovered again. Broadford has been from the tip of Van Winkle steep and, although the rough-and-ready life of the '80s will never be revived, it will be a center of activity again."
The properties owned by the Silver Star-Queens company consist of 20 patented and 21 unpatented claims covering Galena and Lee gulches.
In November, 1900, E. Z. Rockwell and associated purchased the property and after several years of exploratory work found the continuation of the ore beyond the Rockwell fault. Ore again was shipped.
In 1904, 60 per cent of the mine's stock was sold to Charles M. Schwab for $800,000. The following year the ore body again terminated against what was known as the Minnie fault between the 900 and 1,100-foot levels.
Too High
Thurston stated the old timers, in looking for the Minnie Moore vein beyond the Minnie and associated faults, did their work at too high an elevation. The combination of doing their work too high and thinking that a large horizontal movement took place along the fault, defeated them. Both normal and reverse faults are in the Minnie and South fault systems and it is a combination of

Trustee Vote Set May 8 in Burley Area

BURLEY, April 29.—Deadline for candidates for a school trustee election in the Burley area is set for May 8. The election is May 8. Petitions may be obtained from the central school office at 220 West 15th street, incumbent Mary Wilson has filed. Over three extensions east of Overland avenue and north of 7th street.
Polling places are the Oakley high school gymnasium, Burley high school, Burley Junior High school, Burley elementary school and Alamo elementary school.
Voters also will be asked to approve a five-mile maintenance and operation levy. It is legal for the district to levy up to 30 mills for this purpose without an election. At the district hearing on April 10, the school district voted the 30-mill levy and voted to have an election for an additional 10 mill levy. The levy is based on the assessed valuation of the school district which is 15 million dollars.
The 30-mill levy will raise approximately $450,000 and the additional levy will bring in $700,000, according to school officials.
Absentee ballots may be cast at the central school office beginning Tuesday, according to action taken at the last session of the legislature.
Persons eligible to vote are those

Fish Taken From Recently Treated Reservoir Examined

Fish and game department conservation officer, Wallace H. Lester, examines string of fish taken by Dick Robinson, Boise, during special opening of C. Ben Ross reservoir in Adams county April 1. Since this is a small body of water, the department stocked it with catchable trout following chemical treatment to destroy rough fish populations last fall. Normally, fingerling rainbows are planted in rehabilitated lakes and reservoirs, followed by a year or no fishing to give them time to grow. This year the law has been amended and requires all anglers to stop and report if a check-out station is in direct line of travel to or from fishing spot if department workers are on duty. Spring Fish Outlook Is Brightened By Series of Mild Winters in Idaho

By JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish and Game Department
Ocala May day festivities in north Idaho will be heightened again this week as anglers go down to the lakes in boats to launch another special trout season in the five uppermost counties of the Panhandle region.
Which means it's time to take a look at angling prospects now in the spring, even though stream fishing remains closed everywhere in year-round waters until the general statewide trout season begins at daylight on June 4.
Terminal dates are Nov. 30 for special trout season on most lowland lakes in the counties of Boundary, Bonner, Kootenai, Benewah and Shoshone; and Oct. 31 for the general statewide season, including northern rivers and streams.

That, in general, is the seasonal framework for trout angling this year and, in all truth, it is no basic departure from past years. Since it is not possible to mention all variations in every locality in a survey article written for fast, popular consumption, the fish and game department publishes a folder every year giving full particulars about seasons and regulations in all localities of the state.
The 1961 Idaho fishing seasons and regulations, illustrated with a state map outlining all major drainages, is available from license vendors.
This folder is valuable particularly to anglers who want to know about waters that remain open for fishing for some or all species the whole year round. Remember, you can be sure if you read it in the official regulations!

Idaho's spring angling outlook mainly is good as a result of a series of mild winters which have been kind to fish and wildlife species. Just as big game animals and upland birds thrive in response to a succession of moderate winters, so do Idaho trout.
Only more so. Contrary to popular opinion, fish perish in severe cold even though becoming dormant and requiring little food. They need oxygen. Months of frigid temperatures produce excessive winter kill in shallow lakes. Ice sometimes forms solidly on stream bottoms and may kill a large percentage of the fish in the stream.
Dormancy naturally interrupts growth. This, in a sense, represents a loss in pounds of fish to anglers. During open waters such as those of the past several years in Idaho, with periods of warm weather breaking up cold spells, the fish come through in good shape. Some species even put on new growth.
Such considerations are important to sportsmen. They also are of great concern to a legion of other Idahoans, among these are resort operators, merchants and service trade handling boats, motors, tackle, motor, lodging and even outfitters and guides.
Winter survival of trout is a crucial consideration to fisheries management workers because millions of hatchery-reared trout—some 720,000 pounds of them in all—are released every year. Three million of these are catchable over six inch long. The bulk, however, is fingerling rainbow trout, released as part of the statewide rehabilitation program for streams, lakes and reservoirs.
For example, some of the best cutthroat trout fishing in the state inches. Fingerlings planted during the spring of 1960 entered the creek as catchables over six inch by August.

Altogether, the Idaho fish and game department has rehabilitated 63 lakes and reservoirs since the program began about a decade ago. During the past biennium, about a dozen streams and 12 reservoirs and lakes have been treated. The big ones are Magic, Morrison and Oakley reservoirs.

Drought conditions in eastern Idaho, now in the third consecutive year, likely will begin to affect normal fish stocking practices throughout the state. Generally most streams and lakes are stocked in June, July and early August. Some of the lakes and reservoirs, the big ones, receive just one planting during the season, while streams as a rule get several stockings with fewer fish released on each trip.
Fingerling trout are used to restock rehabilitated lakes and reservoirs because cost is a big factor. Instead of rearing trout to at first it was anticipated that such a low bag limit would be a deterrent to anglers but this was not the case. Fishermen appeared happy to catch three cutthroat weighing a pound or more apiece.

To date, Island park in Fremont county is the biggest body of Idaho water to be rehabilitated. Its nearly 8,000 surface acres and 17,200 acres were free of water in the fall of 1958 were chemically treated and restocked with millions of fingerling rainbow trout in the follow-up program. This now is hailed as an unqualified success story.
Creeks census last summer showed that the trout catch per hour was greater than for any year since the record-keeping began.
Rainbow trout planted as during 1959 and taken at the start of last season averaged slightly over 11

4-H Leaders Are Feted at Yearly Event

GOODING, April 29 — Eighty leaders, junior leaders and 4-H guests attended the annual Idaho 4-H leaders recognition banquet last week at the Tuttle Grange.
Vernon Ravenscroft, master of ceremonies, introduced Virgil Kennedy, University of Idaho extension service farm management specialist, who spoke on "Careers Ahead."
He noted that the training of 4-H youth is very important because of the ever shrinking farm population. Only one of every four farm youths will be able to farm, he stated. However, three of every four farm youths will be employed in a farm-related business.
Kennedy further noted that because of the rapid change going on today it is almost impossible for young people to choose a career and expect to spend their lifetime in that work.
"For this reason it is important in our 4-H program to teach young people that change is inevitable and that if they develop good character traits and learn to get along with other people they will be able to adjust to any given career opportunity," he declared.

E. Eldredge, Idaho Power company, praised the leaders for the work in training 4-H members.
Jerry Hamilton, county commissioner, created leader awards to O. R. Oates, L. Cline Mink, Richard Strickland, Richard Tachman and Mrs. Earl Nielson for five years of 4-H club leadership and to Mrs. Mrs. McNulty, Mrs. Hurbert Wood and Pures Schiller for 10 years of club leadership.

Nancy Nielsenegger spoke, a musical duet was sung by Bonnie and Donna Pope. Novelty number by Connie, Shanna and Julie Gledits, humorist reader, Marilyn Flynn, and vocal solo by Marilyn Aufderheide, accompanied by Susan Orth.

The banquet was served by women of the Tuttle Grange under the direction of Mrs. W. H. Hawkins.
In ancient Sparta, newborn infants were brought before a council of inspection. If weak or defective, they were huried from an cliff on Mt. Taygetus.
catchable size six inches and over in the hatcheries, then releasing them, fingerlings are planted and nature does the rest.
The policy now is to plant catchables on a "put-and-take" basis in rivers and streams, with fingerlings being reserved mainly for restocking lakes and reservoirs.

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT Les Outz Has Won Wide Acquaintance In 20 Years as Blaine County Sheriff

HALLEY, April 29—Les Outz, a man with a big hat and a big smile, probably can walk a Halley city block faster and greet more persons by their given name than any person in the Wood River area.
He is calm and mild-mannered and a new acquaintance would hardly guess that Outz served Blaine county as sheriff for 20 years, directed farm management and, with characteristic vitality, he currently is tackling the business of retirement.

He and his wife operate a shoe shop in Halley, but the reloading room and racks of guns in the back of the shop probably give a good indication of Outz' plans for the future.
Outz didn't run for reelection last fall. He decided he was going to spend more time enjoying some of the pleasures that convinced him Idaho was a good place to live.

Outz first discovered this in 1916, when he and a friend, Joe Deas, former Halley resident who now lives in California) stopped in Halley on their way to Alaska in search of gold and adventure. Outz was 23 years old.
Born in 1893 in Nickelplate, O., Outz was raised on a farm and attended public school in Laramie, Wyo. He worked in a professional team in Cleveland.
He played baseball and worked part-time as a car motor mechanic. He did this for two years and then was lured by tales of Alaska. He got as far as Halley and had been here a week.
He first worked for a contractor and then on several area ranches. He enlisted in the army at the beginning of World War I. He was assigned to the 10th engineers and sent to France, between 1917 and 1918, and then was awarded the Purple Heart.
After the armistice, he returned to Halley. He and Doug, who also served in France, started the law-tooth motor company. In 1920 Outz married the former Mary Welch.

They have two children, Dorothy Ann Outz, who teaches in Bannock high school, Bellevue, Wash., and Les O. Outz, who is a civil instructor at Sun Valley.
Outz first ran for sheriff on the Democratic ticket in 1927. He was elected and served a two-year term. Outz began full-time work in 1928 as sheriff of Blaine county in 1941. The term of office ended Jan. 2.
His activities as a law enforcement officer ended, he says he is going to spend more time wood hunting, fishing, trap shooting and managing the shoe shop. Ann

New Mobile Telephone Units Are Being Installed in Cars in Twin Falls Area

Two employees of the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company inspect the transceiver of the new mobile unit. The unit will first be put into use May 4. At left is Warren Samuels, sales engineer. Bill Evans, mobile radio installer, points out some of the circuits in the transceiver. The transceivers will usually be mounted in the trunk of the car. (Staff photo—rearranging)

Magic Valley Is Second Bell System Area to Have Mobile Telephone Units

A new telephone service now being offered to residents of Magic Valley is a mobile telephone unit. This is a mobile telephone unit and is the second such system in the entire Bell Telephone System, which provides approximately 60 percent of service in the United States.

The first system was installed in Boise last fall. The unit consists of a telephone mounted on the dashboard of a vehicle and a small transceiver, usually located in the trunk.

The subscriber uses the telephone just as he would a conventional telephone. It even hooks up to the subscriber's car horn if he leaves the car.

By the end of last week five of the units had been installed. The units will go into operation May 4.

The Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company permits only one mobile unit per subscriber. The units are used by subscribers in a great deal of local and long distance travel.

They note there are many business men who will be aided by having a telephone at hand at all times—such as contractors, farmers, implement salesmen, men who service appliances, stock buyers, and company personnel, men with large land holdings and veterinarians.

The system is new, differing greatly from the older, manually-operated type that originally was offered in some areas of the country. The older type required a battery of operators who were hired by the federal communication commission to operate short-wave radios.

The new method is a direct dial design that automatically couples the user with the regular telephone system. The system works practically in this area until the change-over to the dial system.

The user picks up the telephone, dials the dial tone and dials any of eight exchanges in the valley—Twin Falls, Blain, Burley, Marsburg, Jerome, Wendell, Eden, Hazelton, and Kimberly—Hansen. If he wants to make a long-dis-

Charles W. Westbrook, Twin Falls, gets ready to dial a number on his mobile telephone unit. This is one of the first ones installed in the area. It is a new design for mobile telephone units, and Twin Falls is one of the first districts in the Bell system to install the telephone channels. Westbrook is a salesman for the General Electric Supply company. He supplies the electrical contracting trade in Magic Valley. His says his car will now become his office. (Staff photo—rearranging)

Arabic Show Is Slated for May 7

RUPERT, April 29—The Intermountain Arabian Horse association will hold a show at the Minidoka county fairground May 7, according to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bell, Rupert, chairman for the event.

Highlight of the show will be the crowning of the queen recently picked by the group at Jerome. She is Anita Garcia, Pocatello.

Eleven classes of purebred and half Arabian horses will be shown in the ring, with about 50 owners exhibiting some 40 entries.

Mrs. Bell notes that the purpose of the show is to acquaint people of the community with the Arabian horse.

The show will begin at 2 p.m. and a session for children will be held at 4 p.m. There will be a variety of prizes, including western pleasure, English pleasure, Arabian costume, and a session for children to characterize real or fictional persons. There also will be judging in reining, jumping and barrel racing.

The "mink frog" is said to have been closely resembling the horse produced by hammering a long nail into heavy timber.

School Event Draws Crowd

SHOSHONE, April 29—A capacity crowd turned out to see the senior high school class play presented Tuesday night at the Lincoln school auditorium.

Title of the play was "Vindicta Creepers" and featured 14 students in the cast headed several who helped with the production.

Carl E. Kinney, class adviser, who directed the play, was presented a gift by the group. Sandy made the presentation between the second and third acts.

Cast members were Charles DePaw, Joe Harris, Earlene Flinn, Linda Solares, Judy Silvy, Janet Croft, Rick Jacobson, Karen Webb, Leslie Larson, Karl Johannson, Karen Byard, Lloyd Hansen, Isabel Guerrero and Richard Stowd.

Dana Anderson was student director. Juanita Hagen and Sharon Peugh were in charge of makeup; Byron Hall, Larry Eldredge, Bob Rosenthal and Mark Cope handled the stage properties, and Jean Gehrig was prompter.
