Adequate Blood Bank Supply Necessary, T. F. Man Attests

The importance of having an adequate supply of blood in the local blood bank is realized by Ronald Cutler, manager of the Twin Falls office of the employment security agency.

In January, 1950, he underwent heart surgery at the LDS hospital, Salt Lake City, for a sponge graft. During the operation he received 16 pints of blood from the Red Cross blood program. In December, 1950, the sponge graft, a plastic sponge-like substance, became ineffective and had to be replaced. Fourteen pints of blood were given him during the second operation, which also took place at Salt Lake City.

While no blood actually was shipped from Twin Falls to Salt Lake City, 22 pints of blood donated by Twin Falls residents were credited to the Salt Lake City Red Cross blood bank through the Twin Falls chapter of the American Red Cross to replace the blood used by Cutler.

Cutler used 22 pints of blood in only two operations.

Mrs. Benson, executive secretary of the Twin Falls Red Cross chapter, noted Wednesday.

Due to a shortage of water, H. M. Griffith, canal manager, has asked farmers to curtail plantings, especially those farmers who are in a position to be able to deliver sufficient water for the entire growing season.

Dale Kunkel, reporting on the wheat allotment situation, advised members that farmers will have to contact the agricultural stabilization and conservation office individually in regard to their allotments.

The Magic Valley Cowboys currently are in the fifth round of the Pioneer League. They will play their final games out of first going into Saturday night's game with the Idaho State Bengals. Jack Baggett, catcher, has been injured and his horses right on top.

The Cowboys have been plagued by injuries. Barry Fullerton, a catcher, had to be scratched for a second game Thursday night. At least eight other players have been injured and have not returned to the team.

The Cowboys have been out of at least five in a comparable hitting range in the past week. No one has topped them in homerun hitting in that range.

It's right there where you can find the trophy of the situation. In their last stand here, they struck eight homeruns over the wall and got a net return of nine runs. In other words, they had a net profit.

Thursday night the Cowboys got a net profit of 21 runs. They scored only the ninth but did score only two runs. The ducks were out of the game for the first time in two years. There was some good news.

There was some good news. John Valladares, Idaho Falls shortstop, made the team. With a new pitcher, called for the job by Bobby Sanders, have been so good. These figures do not include the two and three-run blasts of Richie Allen.

Littler Takes 54-Hole Lead For Colonial

FORTH WORTH, Tex., May 13 (AP)—Gene Littler charged past Mike Souchak into the lead at 64 holes in the 84-hole Colonial national invitation golf tournament today.

Littler shot a three-under-par 67 for a 209 total. Souchak followed a disastrous trail that included three bogeys and wound up with a 73 for 212.

Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper also made short work of the floundering Souchak and tied for second place with 210, each shorting out of Saturday's play.

Doug Sanders, who had a three-under-par 67 to match Littler, was in fifth place with 211.

Tied with Souchak at 212 were Alan Leonard and Gardner Dickson. Each shot 65.

It was the lightest round in Colonial's history with the lead fluctuating through the first nine holes. Palmer's 24 put him ahead by two strokes.

Littler's only hole in a hat-putting streak, one-putting six holes in a row, moved ahead on the 13th hole.

The Singing Hills, Calif., professional, birdied 10 and 11; Palmer bogeyed 12, 13 and 14; Leonard and Dickson were tied at 104.

Souchak bogeyed three and on the 13th hole he had his little bogey but shot him out of a chance of leading the tournament. His lead was against a fence, and he had to put left-handed. He got on in three and three-putted.

BORAH COPS THEIR REGIONAL TRACK CROWN; T.F. SECOND

Moffitt Collects Discus Title Again; Eaton Takes Championship in Shotput

The Borah Lions roared their way to their third-straight-southeast-central-regional class A track and field championships and became immediate odd-on favorites to wrap up their third straight state title. The Lions amassed 62 points Saturday against Twin Falls from the fourth district, the best athletes the third and fourth district could muster for the first time in a long time in its putout power.

Perennial Discus Champ

George Moffitt, Borah all-around athlete, once again showed the take-off point he has used in the past three years to dominate the fourth district, regional and state meets in that event. Moffitt picked up his third regional crown Saturday and will be seeking to regain the state title he held as a sophomore two years ago. (Staff photo-engraving)

Four Cowboys Hit at 300 or Better Clip

Four Magic Valley Cowboys are hitting over the 300 clip after 14 games, according to figures released today by William J. Weiss, Pioneer league official statistician.

The hitting leader, based on 14 or more games, is Eddie Reed, Great Falls, at .417. Tom McCraw, Idaho Falls' first baseman, leads in total bases (97), triples (8), runs batted in (59) and homers (10). Since the statistics were released, McCraw pitched up another homer to make it six for the year but Sanders, thanks to three in one game, has moved into a tie.

Ron Pearson, Idaho Falls' superlative lefthander, dominated the league pitching department. After winning over Magic Valley Tuesday night, Pearson ran his number of wins to six games and leads in earned run average (.210), strikeouts (38), complete games (five) and innings pitched (38).

Morris Cigar had a 500 ERA as of Monday but he gave up seven runs against the Magic Valley Tuesday night and now is in the lead with a 5.32 and Brian Ross is four even. Rossy are among the leaders.

Three North Carolina State Players Found in Scandal

"Watch Out Below!"

RALEIGH, N. C., May 13 (AP)—Three North Carolina State college basketball players were charged Saturday with participating in the fixing of basketball games.

The college administration and the state bureau of investigation identified the trio as Alton Muehlebauch, New River School, and Terry Litchfield, Louisville, Ky.

They were charged with accepting money to influence the outcome of basketball games.

SBI chief Walter Anderson told a news conference that Lou Zink, now a student at Los Angeles State college, has been charged with bribery. Anderson identified Barsank as the contact man.

Asked if there were a connection with the national basketball fixing scandal, Anderson replied, "I think there is a connection between this and the investigation of the New York district attorney's office."

The current basketball season, broken by district attorney Frank B. Hogan of New York, on March 17, had involved 12 players from seven colleges before Saturday's announcement here.

Chief Anderson Muehlebauch was accused of point shaving in North Carolina State games last season against Georgia Tech, Duke, Wake Forest and the University of North Carolina Feb. 15.

Charges against Muehlebauch, Litchfield and Barsank were based on the games against Duke and North Carolina.

Hoss Leads Bruins to District Golf Crown

Vandals Edge Oregon 3-2 In 12 Innings

BURLEY, May 13—Senior Carl Hoss fought rain and cold Friday afternoon to fire a one-over-par 73 and lead the Twin Falls Bruins golf team to the fourth district championship. But it was a tight battle with the home-standing Burley Bobcats, who tumbled the Burley municipal course with a 328-215-113 score.

Both pitchers went all the way, with winner Steve Hincey pitching out the victory in the eighth inning. He pitched no-hit ball in the closing five innings and allowed just five hits for the two Oregon runs.

Denny Peterson dropped his first one of the season, giving up nine hits.

Chuck White got the winning run in the eighth inning over the center fielder Ed Davidson to bring in Dick Mooney who had angled the Pacific Coast league to a 2-1 lead after four innings but the Vandals caught up in the last of the ninth.

The Ducks, which had a 3-1 lead in the series, moved on to Pullman for games with Washington State Monday and Tuesday. Oregon—010 010 000—2-5 Idaho—001 000 001—0-2

Holstein Unit Leader Talks At Area Meet

RUPERT, May 13.—The dairy industry has come a long way in growth and development of milk products, but still has a long way to go. G. W. Richards, director for the National Holstein Association, told members at the banquet meeting held preceding the state association-sponsored sale in Rupert last week.

Richards was the main speaker at the banquet held at the St. Nicholas parish hall for association members who has stock assigned to the Saturday sale. Ed Cooper, regional director, said the Holstein breed is still the top milk producer and that the bull calves have a higher resale value than any other breed.

A total of some $18,000 was paid for the 47 head of registered stock put on the block with the highest price paid by Sherris of Sherris, the executive treasurer of the Idaho association, for Hous-ton Violet, a heifer consigned by Frank W. Houston, Jerome. The price paid was $850.

The highest price was $710 paid by Darrell Kerby, Lenore, for a heifer, Carnation Pooca Leasee Pomilia, and by the Carnation Milk Farms, Carnation, Wash.

According to officials, the average price paid at the sale was $410, as compared to an average of $372 paid at the last association sale held in 1959.

In addition to the 44 heifers offered, there was one bull consigned by Thomas E. Moberly, Rupert, which sold for $206, and three young calves selling for $120, $100 and $50.

Joe Flood, Rupert, member of the state board of directors, was in charge of sale arrangements, and William T. Stevens, Meridian, was sales manager. J. P. West-spoon, Rupert, was auctioneer, and singers were Lyle Barton, Rupert, and Joe Church, New Plymouth. Leadmen were Riley Mikelson and William Wright.

Additions for Minico School Are Approved

RUPERT, May 13.—Plans for an addition to the present vocational agriculture shop facilities at the high school and for storage space for the hot lunch program were approved last week by the Minico county school board.

Canden Meyer, superintendent, said that the estimated cost for the two projects is about $22,000. The board also approved plans for increasing the number of students attending 8 o'clock classes next year as a means of alleviating the crowded situation on the bus.

Meyer said that students from Rupert, Heyburn, Paul area near the high school are being transported to the early classes, allowing the buses to reach the outlying area between 8 and 8 a.m. for the remainder of the students.

The pointed-out that at present, the district has sufficient buses to transport 2,700 students and there are 3,250 needing transportation. Additional buses would be needed to handle the load would cost the district around $80,000, he said.

The agriculture shop facilities would be located just north of the present facilities, Meyer said, with preliminary work being done by vocational agriculture students.

Leigh Ingersoll, high school principal, recommended a change from a six week system, which he feels would solve some of the problems, especially during the fall harvest season when absences run as high as 80 to 70 per cent. When this happened near the end of the nine week period, it was very hard to conduct school and to give examinations, he noted.

The board approved this recommendation, and set the harvest vacation from Oct. 21 through Oct. 23, with the extra time to be made up at the end of the school year.

Old Buggies Are Assembled for Twin Falls Historical Society Display

E. T. Creed, an active member of the Twin Falls County Historical society, assembles some of the buggies he recently bought to Twin Falls from Wisconsin. Creed intends to put all the buggies in working shape and display them at the Twin Falls county fair. He is going to put them near the historical society's museum building on the fair grounds. Creed says he is collecting buggies because of a long-time interest in them and as an investment. He believes they will increase in value. Creed believes the buggies will be of special interest to members of the younger generation. (Staff photo-Engraving)

T. F. Collector Finds Assortment of Buggies, Sleighs During Journey

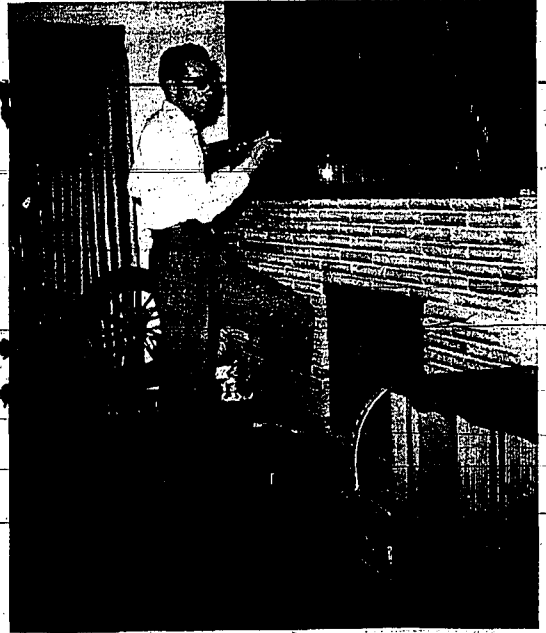

There will be an extensive display of buggies and sleighs at the Twin Falls county fair, thanks to E. T. Creed, who just traveled hundreds of miles in search of turn-of-the-century relics.

He just returned from St. Croix, Wis., where he spent several days searching barns and bargaining for buggies and sleighs. He returned with four buggies, two sleighs and an old foot-operated Creed intends to spend the next few months rejuvenating the buggies and sleighs and then display them near the Twin Falls County Historical society building at the county fair.

Creed found the buggies when he was visiting in Wisconsin last summer. He spent 10 days looking for the buggies on his special trip to the east. He bought the buggies

Muzzle Loading Rifle Added to Fireplace

Bill Jacobson prepares to hang a muzzle loading rifle on the wall above his fireplace. Jacobson is a shop teacher at the Twin Falls high school. For over a year he labored on his home. He literally built and furnished the three-bedroom home. He did about 90 per cent of the carpentry work on the house and furnishings. He says he built the house and furniture so he would get exactly what he wanted. He built every article of furniture in the house from the spinning wheel and the high dolly cabinet to the small wooden case that houses the door chimes. (Staff photo-Engraving)

T. F. Shop Teacher Built Own House and Furniture

Bill Jacobson, with his own two hands, has literally built and furnished a three-bedroom home. Most homes built by the owners look like they were built by the owners, but not Jacobson's. The entire house and furnishings show the workmanship of the master craftsman. Although some electrical, concrete and plumbing work was left out on him, Jacobson did about 90 per cent of the carpentry work on the house and built all the wooden furnishings. Jacobson is a shop teacher at the Twin Falls high school, a perfect fit for the man who built his own home. He got most of the major work on just as he would get exactly what he wanted. "What I've gotten is what I wanted and the way I wanted it," he says. He has taught in the Twin Falls school system since 1957. He bought his lot at 1224 Alder drive in June, 1959, and started work on the house shortly thereafter. He usually works as a finish carpenter for the Nelson and Miller construction company during the summer. But he didn't on three different farms. Included in the buggy purchase was a wealth of harness, sleigh bells and other items.

Creed says he made the trip for buggies for two reasons—so they could be shown at the county fair and because he considers them an investment, something that will gain value with age.

Creed says he has an extensive collection of wooden wagon on wheels. He is going to utilize the wheels and make a fence to go around the wagons during fair time.

Creed believes the buggies should be of interest to the many young people who visit the fair who don't live when buggies and sleighs were popular vehicles.

Mrs. O'Leary Is Praised For Work in T. F. School

Mrs. Vera C. O'Leary was serving her 30th year as a school teacher when poor health compelled her to leave her position as junior high school principal. She had served as principal since 1952.

MRS. VERA C. O'LEARY

Mrs. O'Leary now is living with her son, Paul, in Salt Lake City.

A pioneer in Twin Falls education, Mrs. O'Leary was a pioneer in the Twin Falls tract. She was born Sept. 7, 1891, at South Bend, Wash.

The family moved to Rock Creek in 1903. Her father, Almond Campbell, ran a butcher shop in the pioneer town. In 1906, the family homesteaded near Heyburn. Mrs. O'Leary and her two brothers, Robert and Byron, attended schools in Rock Creek, Heyburn and high school in Shoshone.

By 1911 the family had moved to Topeka, Kans., where Mrs. O'Leary was graduated from high school in 1912. She entered Washington State college in 1912.

She taught mathematics at the Spring Hill high school, Spring Hill, Kans., for one year and then returned to Idaho. She taught at the Rupert high school for one year, moved to Heyburn and taught in the Heyburn high school for two years. She taught mathematics and English.

By 1927 she had moved to Twin Falls, where she taught mathematics and English in the Twin Falls high school for three years. She then accepted the position as principal of the junior high school, a position she held for 25 years.

During her years as a resident of Twin Falls she was active in many organizations. She is a lifetime member of the Presbyterian church. For many years she taught Sunday school, at Heyburn and Twin Falls. She is a member of the American Association of University Women and was active in committee work for the association.

Mrs. O'Leary is a member of the Business and Professional Women's club. She is an honorary life member of the Twin Falls Junior high school PTA.

She is a member of Gamma chapter, Delta Kappa Gamma, an international honorary society for women teachers. She has been a member since 1946 and she served as president from 1946 to 1951.

Speaking of Mrs. O'Leary, Ernest H. Ragland, superintendent of schools, has voiced the sentiments of her co-workers. "Her record indicates that she was keenly conscious of the need for periodic summer school work from time to time as she spent many summers at the University of California at Berkeley and also at the University of Idaho, where she was awarded her master's degree in 1946. She did additional summer school work after that at the University of Montana and Idaho State college.

"It has been truly said that experience is a good teacher. Mrs. O'Leary learned much as she directed the junior high school program through many years following its organization in the early 1920's.

"Enrollment grew and grew and always Mrs. O'Leary was the capable organizer, and director who could assure a systematic and orderly program."

"Few times, indeed, did Mrs. O'Leary fail to look ahead in her planning. She had unusual capacity to plan and foresee the needs for the future. She set a standard in that respect that gave dignity to public education and that all teachers and administrators could properly strive to attain."

"No one who knew Mrs. O'Leary well could fail, I think, to note the high order of professional ethics she practiced daily and throughout the years.

"Her record will be remembered throughout the lives of teachers and students who knew her best as a loved and respected leader. She would rank high by any standard."

Era Recorded By Paintings Of Remington

By MILES A. SMITH, Associated Press Arts Editor

In the days of the real Old West, men were men and women had sense enough to stay out of their way.

It's just possible the women folk didn't care for the aroma.

For Indians, cowboys, trappers, soldiers, scouts and prospectors were men with the bark on, as it were. A man on a sweetly horse, chasing a dusty, unglamorous buffalo, was no glamor boy.

The he-man observer who recorded the era of bloody scalp and thundering hooves in the West and Southwest was Frederic Remington.

Had No Art Education. He was born 100 years ago, come Oct. 1. He had practically no formal education in art, but before he died at the age of 48, his paintings, drawings and bronze sculptures had made him internationally famous and wealthy to boot.

A centennial exhibition of his work is being held from May 1 to Oct. 15 at the Whitney Gallery of Western Art in Cody, Wyo. That is the town founded by his old friend and horse buddy, Buffalo Bill. It is near the east entrance of Yellowstone park.

The thing to remember about Remington is that he was careful to draw and paint the real thing. When he drew a picture of a horse and rider, it was a certain horse with a certain twitch in its nostrils; and a certain man with the right kind of buckskin garment fastened the right way, and with a specific glint in his eye from peering through the dust toward a water hole.

His Work Was Paralleled. There was another artist of the same era whose life and works were a close parallel with those of Remington. His name was Charles M. Russell, and he too was born in 1861, living until 1926. The Whitney Museum has many of his work.

Russell was a real Montana cowboy, but Remington came from the East. Born at Canton, N. Y., the son of a newspaper publisher, he later lived in Ogdensburg, N. Y., for a time and was graduated from Yale, became a good heavy-weight boxer and made the Yale football team of 1878 as a "runner."

Two years later he first rode a horse called "Old Tom," the name of a famous water camp.

Leaves for West. In 1880 Remington found that the land of love was not going so smoothly in the case of a young lady named Eva. So he took off for the West and made a long tour on horseback "doing a few golds" on the side.

He had the sense to realize that the days of the red man and the distasteful accents were numbered. He wanted to make pictures of everything before it was too late.

Remington, with his natural talent for drawing, was as much a historian at heart as he was an artist.

Two years later he first rode a horse called "Old Tom," the name of a famous water camp.

View of Narrows on Wood River From Old Highway

This is a view of the narrows on Wood river as seen from the old highway 22 miles northeast of the Shoshone Narrows. The narrows are often just a few feet wide, but in some places are more than 100 feet deep. The Wood river changes from a wide, shallow river to a narrow, deep river in a few feet. It runs through the narrows for a short length and then flows through a normal river channel again. These pictures were taken when the water was turned out of the channel and impounded in Magic Trench. The depth of the canyon at this point can be seen by noting the relative size of the person standing in the bottom of the canyon. Below center of the photograph, you can see the depth of the narrows as they drive by. (Staff photo-Engraving)

Upside Down Canyon on Big Wood Decorated by Strange Sculpturings

One of the most overlooked natural wonders in this area is the deep slice in the surface of the desert northeast of the Shoshone Narrows. This canyon is known as "The Narrows." It is the spot in the desert where Big Wood river goes crazy and forms one of the most unusual canyons in a land where unusual canyons are the norm. The canyon has sometimes been referred to as the "upside down canyon." In the space of about one-half mile the river plunges from its regular wide but shallow bed into the slice in the Earth's crust. The river tunnels into a canyon that defies reason. At one point the river bed is about 100 feet wide and about four feet deep. Suddenly the canyon turns on its side. It is from two to four feet wide and about 100 feet deep. At many points a man can stride the canyon, yet he could hardly survive a fall to the bottom. The water whips and boils through the slice, and the bottom resumes its way across the desert. But in the short canyon the water creates strange carvings in the lava rock. Small potatoes have been found by the water, current, and erosion in the rock surface. Some of the holes are several feet deep and perfectly round. At the bottom are many small, round, hollowed-out spots. (Continued on Page 21, Col. 1)

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

"Life in Christ" is a book that whoever believeth in Jesus should not perish but have everlasting life. "For as much as one of the great texts of the Bible, on its truth hangs all the footing of the Christian church, and the person of this will know Bible Verse tells all the hope and confidence of life in heaven after death."

It is in the "only begotten Son" that we can live this life with pleasure and can look forward to life hereafter with greater pleasure. It is because of His love that in His death He made possible "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." Jesus Christ died to give us the credit for this, but God, even our Father, has helped in this thing. You see, His love and His help enters into all phases of our lives here in this life. We cannot afford to neglect the help of God, nor especially can we help to ignore the great love He has shown toward us in making possible existence with Him in life after death through Christ our Lord.

The physical cause of original sin is ever with us. All must look forward to that time in life when we leave this world and go to another world of a different kind of work and on in this world. The oldest person now living is around 110 years of age, but even that person knows that there comes an end to this present life. The physical cause of sin is ever with us, but the spiritual freedom of sin's curse is made possible in the Lord Jesus Christ.

We see in John 3:16 another great truth, it is God that has made possible hope in this life and hereafter.

Spinning Wheel Is Added to Home

Jacobson inspects a spinning wheel he just finished, one of the latest articles of furniture he has made for his home. Jacobson has been working on furniture for his home for many years. He has built the house and completely furnished it, now he has started a completely new set of furniture. The spinning wheel cost him only $15. (Staff photo-entgravings)

Shop Teacher Built Own 3-Bedroom House and All Furniture to Go in It

March, 1960. In the meantime, Jacobson has continued to work on the interior.

He has built practically everything, including the little wood box that houses the door chimes.

Jacobson comes from a family of contractors and carpenters and takes great delight in doing the work himself. He has worked as a carpenter since 1916 and put himself through Utah State university working as a finish carpenter. He would attend classes for a few hours and then work on a nearby construction project for a few more hours.

Actually much of the house was built around the furniture Jacobson has made. He started making the furniture several months before he and his wife were married. By the time he started the new house there was enough furniture to fill it.

Now that the house is completed, except for some minor finish work in the basement, Jacobson doesn't have any projects to keep him busy. So he is beginning to make a completely new set of furniture for the new house. The first set was hand modern. He is replacing it with American provincial.

He says, "I'm just getting tired of the design and the light color. I suppose that in six more years I'll be tired of the American provincial."

Jacobson explains one reason that he does the work himself is that he just wouldn't be satisfied with something someone else had built as long as he can do it himself.

He likes a challenge and enjoys planning and making the furniture. But he adds that the final finishing bores him. He explains he is anxious to get on to another project.

He recently completed a maple cabinet, for his record player, and a spinning wheel. He designed the wheel from a photograph and did all the wood and metal work on it, turning it out in about three days. It cost him $15.

He says if he purchased it, it would cost him about $50.

Jacobson says the only thing the house needs now is some new carpet. He says he has no intention of becoming a rug weaver, but he just wouldn't be satisfied.

Jacobson shows the bed he designed with storage area underneath and in the head board. Jacobson has done about 90 per cent of the carpentry work on his house and the furnishings. Jacobson comes from a family of carpenters and contractors and is happy only in a home that he has built and furnished with his own hands. (Staff photo-entgravings) standing as fulfilling the requirements of a dedicated public servant.

Mr. E. J. Sommer, president of the Junior High PTA, says, "A well-loved and faithful teacher and educator has left the Twin Falls junior high school. For many years, one has never attended a function at the school without seeing Mrs. O'Leary there, overseeing the children, calling each child by name and maintaining discipline and order in so large a school."

"Mrs. O'Leary is familiar to many parents, and even grandparents, who were in school when she was a young girl. For many years ago.

Always with the interests of the children first in her mind, she attended every school function, and every PTA meeting held in the junior high school. This truly remarkable woman could be indeed called a dedicated educator."

A plan has recently been presented whereby families, individual parents, or groups may present a gift to the junior high school in honor of Mrs. O'Leary's service to the school. The plan has been devised by the members of Alden Della Kappa, national teachers honor society.

There are two ways contributions can be made—by actual money donations or by donating books suitable for junior high school students. Donors' names will be on a gift certificate inside each book. Gifts may be made by contacting the dean of girls or the principal, or by phoning Redwood 3-5111.

Fishing Is Fun for Some, for Some It Isn't

Fish and game department workers say fishing is fun unless it is done from daylight till dark six days a week. After the object is to catch as many native cutthroat trout as possible and tag them for future identification along the 100-mile expanse of the Middle fork the Salmon river. During the two-year project, a dozen float trips on rubber rafts were made by crews averaging six to seven men, who tagged 2,240 cutthroat. Underlying purpose of the project was to determine whether increased angling pressure is damaging the fishery. From left to right the men are Leon Murphy, fisheries development supervisor, Jerry Mallet and Fred Kinzel, biologists. Idaho has two rivers in which cutthroat are self-propagating. (Fish-and-game department photo-staff entgravings)

Idaho Has Two of Nation's Few Rivers With Self-Propagating Cutthroat Trout

BY JIM HUNNIBELL

Idaho Fish and Game Department has two of the nation's few relatively few rivers with self-propagating cutthroat trout populations left in a primitive state and the fish and game department wants to keep it that way.

These are the Selway, a tributary of the Clearwater, and the equally-famed Middle fork of the Salmon, the legendary "river of no return." Here upwards of a thousand fishermen a year float on rubber rafts through the turbulent heart of Idaho's million-acre primitive area on the remote Middle fork.

What the increased pressure and catch along the 100-mile expanse of the Middle fork have done to the cutthroat fishery is not known for sure. Neither is the prognosis for the future. But the department is moving ahead to find the answers to both questions.

Two years ago a study program was launched. It took the form of trips on rubber rafts, starting at Indian creek on the upper Middle fork six days later the men were picked up in trucks at the confluence of the Middle fork and the main Salmon river, expected to begin all over again.

This was work, although the terrific fishing, 20-foot cutthroat trout angling and tagging was the purpose of the trip.

Altogether during the two years, there were a dozen trips for six or seven men each. James G. Simpson, chief of fisheries management, was one of the "Indians" last year to gather information first-hand. Jerry L. Mallet, now a graduate student at the University of Idaho, was project leader both years.

The program cites two objectives of the Middle fork study as follows:

1. To determine the accuracy of claims by guides, outfitters and sportsmen that this outstanding cutthroat trout fishery is going downhill.
2. To determine the extent of the growing public use of the Middle fork by white water enthusiasts.
3. To determine the migration patterns of cutthroat trout and Dolly Varden.
4. To determine the extent of rough fish populations in the Middle fork.
5. To determine the spawning success of cutthroat.
6. To determine fish kills resulting from angling. Reports say trout and other fish, after being caught on multiple hooks, often are mortally injured and die even though given their freedom and the opportunity to bite again another day.
7. To determine the extent of the trout fishery's impact on the trout and other fish, after being caught on multiple hooks, often are mortally injured and die even though given their freedom and the opportunity to bite again another day.

The Middle fork study program succeeded in tagging 2,240 cutthroat trout, of which 140 have been recovered by the department to date. Incomplete analysis of these data shows that about 60 per cent of the cutthroat trout migrated downstream and something like 25 per cent moved upstream.

Preliminary figures show an average movement of downstream migrants of about 15 miles, although the range varied from 10 to 28 miles, while upstream average movement of spawners was about 45 days before they emerged to be approximately 20 miles.

The cutthroat trout were tagged for the same reason migratory waterfowl and big game animals are marked for future identification.

reely is found in that part of the river. Studies indicate the cause may be changing ecological conditions. These include higher water temperatures, more silt, municipal and industrial pollution and competition from other kinds of fish. In any case, "cuts" today are found mainly in the high country which remains relatively uncharged by agriculture and industry.

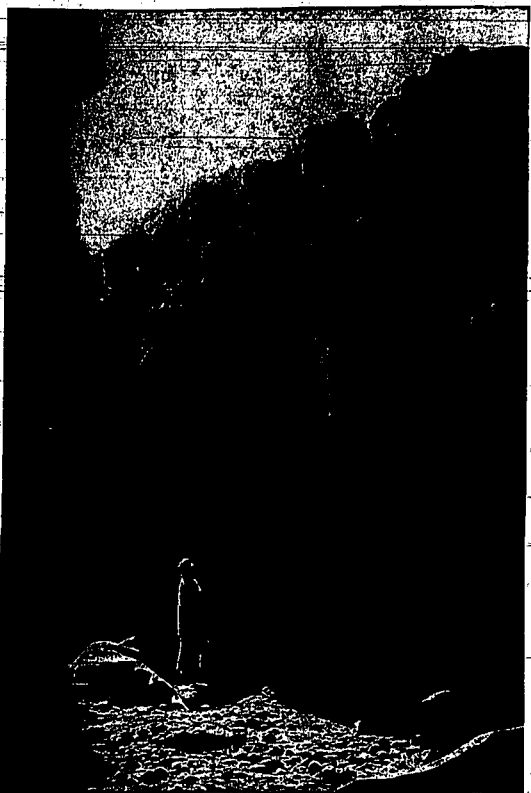

Henry Lake near Island Park in Fremont county has been the main cutthroat spawning station of the department since 1924, although some fertilized eggs will be produced at Lake Cooclella in the Panhandle this year. These waters were rehabilitated by eliminating all fish in 1937 and reworking with the north Idaho strain of cutthroat. The department has high hopes for this new source of spawning.

Water Now Flows Through Canyon

A woman stands in the bottom of the canyon and looks toward the rim high above her. If the water was turned into the canyon she would be many feet under water. Water mark can be seen on the sides of the canyon. Water has sculptured the lava rocks in the bottom of the canyon in many of the shapes. This area is near the intersection of old highway 93 and the new section, north of the Shoshone ice caves. (Staff photo-entouring) smooth by the water, just as if they had been in a rockhound's rock tumbler for centuries.

Until May 3, while the water was impounded in Magic reservoir, the canyon was dry, except for a few puddles of stagnant water. The bottom of the canyon could be seen, revealing how the water has eroded the lava rock, creating designs like a mad sculptor. Until highway 93 was re-routed through the desert it passed directly over the canyon. Now, in order to see the narrow, a person must turn off highway 93, north of Shoshone ice caves, and then double back south on the old highway for a few hundred yards.

Speakers included Monroe Adams, Paul Anderson, Letty LeBeau, Marlene Bean, Gary Robins and Bishop Joel Rasmussen.

Benefits for Federal Help Are Reported

CAREY, May 13 — Advantages of federal aid to schools were presented Tuesday night to Blaine county teachers by Ezra Moore, Burley, during the monthly teachers meeting conducted by Ronald Peck.
Moore stated that money should come from where money is made — educate children where children are. He brought out that a child educated in a certain community does not necessarily remain in that community so that it may benefit from the education which he has served the child, and for which the community has had to pay. He also emphasized the fact that there is a definite variation of wealth in the states, which federal aid equalizes.
Committee reports were made by Dean Miller, Halley, on child welfare; Vernon Ezter, Halley, on finance; Ray Jefferson, Ketchum, on national relations.
Lester Lewis, Bellevue, TIPS; Bob Day, Carey, teacher welfare; Pat Bell, Halley, public relations. Miss Miller reported that workshops may be held in the fall under the direction of the state supervisors.

Buhl Jaycees Seek Support In Bond Bid

Buhl, May 13.—The Buhl Jaycees and Jay-C-ettes plan to solicit the support of the community in passing the $485,000 school bond election on May 19, announces Lee Souza, Jaycee chairman.

Souza notes that both groups favor the passage of the election and will assist the local school board and Citizens committee in a concentrated effort to get the bond issue passed.

The school bond election calls for constructing a new 30-classroom elementary school building, changing the F. H. Buhl school to a junior high school, in addition to remodeling and renovating both the F. H. Buhl and high school buildings.

Souza notes that Buhl citizens have the responsibility to insure that the school buildings and equipment which is deemed necessary to meet proper education standards. He pointed out if the Buhl community is interested in future economic development, passage of the bond issue is a necessity.

The Jaycees and Jay-C-ettes will personally contact all property owners prior to the election in an effort to advise them on the bond issue, answer questions and remind voters of the time and date of election.

Pamphlets will be distributed during the final week containing pertinent facts to the election and transportation to the polls will be furnished by Jaycees and Jay-C-ettes.

Madden Leads Cassia Group On Grassman

BURLEY, May 13.—During an organizational breakfast meeting for the Cassia county 1961 grassman of the year program held at the National hotel Tuesday morning, Rex Madden, manager of the Cassia county Pomona, was elected chairman for this year's local event. Don Chisholm, representative of the state Chamber of Commerce was named co-chairman.

The four subordinate Granges will sponsor the program in cooperation with the Burley Chamber of Commerce, other farm organizations and sheep growers and federal agencies. Glenn Bodily, county agent, was elected secretary.

Three men from Boise were present to promote organization of the event. They were Paul V. Naah, secretary of the state grassman committee; Ralph Samson, extension service and Hugh Hough, assistant chairman of the state committee. It was noted that this was their 21st organizational meeting in the last few weeks.

Southern Idaho is divided into four districts and each district will have a winner in the grassman of the year contest who will receive $100. They will compete in the state event in Boise where the winner will receive $100. Presentation will be made this fall during a state Chamber of Commerce meeting by Mr. Harris, Burley, state president.

The organizers emphasized that the intent of the contest is to do the widest possible use of accepted farm practices. Naah stressed the fact that contestants need not have large operations to enter. Samson noted that they had entries with 65 acres who had gone just as far as larger operators.

Because of the enthusiastic participation in the program there has been a "tremendous increase in the production of grass," Samson stated.

Recognizing and practicing good farming methods are the best results of the program at the county level, Hough declared. Chisholm pointed out that local contestants should take pictures at various stages of crop development. It was agreed that the four winners entered for final judging should be done in one day. Other concerns now in obtaining participants, he noted.

Announcement was made that a tour of the Dick Galbraith ranch, winner of last year's title, will be made at 9:30 a.m. June 15. The ranch is in Celaya county.

Cassia county committee members who attended the meeting were Jack F. Wilson, bureau of land management; Wade Baker, R. Neil Sampson, Gordon J. Price, all soil conservation service; Charles Kida, Idaho soil croverer; Al Schaufelberger, Chamber of Commerce; Jack Jordan, Cassia National bank; Ted Hopkins, extension service, and Vard Chalburn, Albion, Idaho Cattlemen's association.

Twin Falls Spud Processing Plant Plan Announced
Sale of stock will begin this week for a potato processing plant to be built in Twin Falls by Northwest Agrichemical Corp. announced here Monday.
With the tremendous amount of local interest, Warren said, the company will have sufficient money to break ground in 30 days.
Northwest Agrichemical has purchased 20 acres of ground immediately west of the Twin Falls municipal office, Warren noted.
The stock will be sold in 200,000 shares of $2.00 each, the brokerage firm hopes to sell 100,000 shares of stock at $2 million with an approximate net of 750,000 shares.
The firm will be able to operate between 3,000 and 5,000 tons a day during the peak of the 20-day season. During this season, a work force of 100 will be required.
The corporation emphasized that Northwest state engineer Paul F. Williams has been consulted on the plant and city requirements. The plant will require a 20-acre site and will have its own primary city sewer lines which are to be constructed.
Warren holds from the plant will be used as livestock feed or sold to other processors, he said, and F. Williams, Twin Falls.

Blaine Locale Plans Contest For Grassman

HAILLEY, May 12.—At a noon-hour lunch held at the Star cafe at noon Wednesday, the 1961 program for the county's Grassman of the Year contest was formulated. Grant Cook was selected chairman of the committee for one year. He appointed Lloyd E. Smith, manager of the local Idaho Power company, to represent the business organizations of the county; Martin Young, master of the Upper Big Wood River Grange; Wayne Clark of the Blaine County Cattlemen's association; Clifford Orchard of the Farm Bureau; Pete Centurias, sheepman and state representative; L. S. Adamson, Idaho Dairymen's association; William Mowbray, chairman of the Blaine county soil conservation district.

Norman Warren, Blaine county agriculture agent, volunteered to act as secretary for the association. Hugh Hough, assistant chairman of the state committee, Boise; Ralph S. Samson, of the University of Idaho extension service, Boise; and Paul Nash, secretary of the Idaho Grassman committee, Boise, who conducted the meeting, all spoke and answered questions.

Hough stated the grassman of the year project has become a reality in all but one of the 42 counties of the state. There are no restrictions on the ownership of the land or the size of the ranch. The man nominated must have his headquarters within the county. Cook asked that the committee receive nominations prior to June 15. He also asked that the judges be representatives of the county organizations of the county promoting their support in advising committee members.

Nell Elmunda represented the Idaho Power company; Jerry Smith, Blaine county extension agent, the local PCB office; Jay Fry, Boise, the Idaho soil conservation commission; Chester Cline, the First Security bank; Savino Ubrugga, the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company; Richard Knauber, the Northwest national forest; Holger Albrehtsen the Bailey Chamber of Commerce, and Dale Robinson, Shoshone, the Bureau of land management.

Meanwhile they have appeared before all sorts of gatherings in Twin Falls and surrounding communities. They have performed for many school assemblies and exchange assemblies. They say that school activities always will have preference over other engagements.

They practice three or four times a week, in addition to their performances. Wendling estimates they probably spend a total of 10 hours rehearsing each week. They have made mistakes on the Friday night.

Dalton says one reason they cut down on the number of times they perform in a week is that they weren't getting enough time to practice and add new songs to their repertoire.

MAN SENTENCED
JEROME, May 12.—Edger O. Martin, Rupert, was fined $25 and sentenced to five days in jail Tuesday by Police Judge Fred Eberhardt for being drunk in public. Martin said he was serving out the fine in the Jerome city jail. He was arrested at 12:10 a.m. Tuesday in the 200 block of Main avenue west.

Patience and Quick Hand Pay Off for Man; He Nabs Albino Ground Squirrel

For the last three weeks Lorn Mitchell, ditcher for the Twin Falls Canal company, has matched wits with an albino ground squirrel. Until last week the tiny animal had won each match. But a

"Frosty" is standing rather well to his new home, but "Coco Puff," the family dog is a bit envious. Mitchell had quite a time catching the animal. He has been a ditcher for different companies for nearly 25 years. He says, "I bet I've seen a million ground squirrels in my lifetime, but this is the first albino I've seen."

The squirrel was first seen when it was partly grown last summer. Three weeks ago Mitchell decided he was going to catch it. He ate his lunch at the spot the animal frequents. Mitchell's method was to flood the animal out of his home. In a few weeks he has done this three times, but each time "Frosty" scampered to another hole.

Last week Mitchell dumped several gallons of water down the badger hole. "Frosty" had taken refuge in it. Within a few seconds the animal popped out of a hole 10 feet away.

Mitchell lunged and grabbed with his right hand. "Frosty" ran between his legs. Mitchell grabbed with his left hand and nabbed the squirrel animal by the head.

Within a few hours "Frosty" was in a bird cage. In the Mitchell home chawing on carrots and dandelions.

What are Mitchell's plans for the animal? "I'm going to sell stock in him," Mitchell quips. "I'm going to sell a million shares at $100-a-share."

Two days after he was captured, "Frosty" displayed an unusual lack of fear of a natural enemy. Here he rubs noses and makes friends with the Mitchell family dog, "Coco Puff." Mitchell spent several weeks trying to catch the wily albino ground squirrel. (Staff photo-enslaving)

Impromptu Singing Session Leads to Budding Career for High School Trio

About one year ago three Twin Falls high school students got together for an informal singing session—and they've been singing ever since. They call themselves the "Fireside Trio," a name that has become well-known to many groups throughout the community and Mesquite Valley.

The trio is composed of Dan Hartley, son of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Hartley; Hank Wendling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Wendling; and Gary Dalton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Dalton. They are all juniors in Twin Falls high school.

Hartley is tenor and plays the congo or bongo drums. Wendling is bass, plays the guitar and is practicing on the banjo. Dalton is a baritone. He sometimes plays a guitar, but usually sings lead.

The trio likes to sing folk songs, but the boys haven't restricted themselves to any particular kind of folk song. They now are busy accumulating a repertoire of folk songs from a multitude of cultures.

The trio's popularity has soared since an appearance at the annual while breakfast of the Twin Falls music club, early this year.

After the breakfast the boys were booked solid for two weeks. On some nights they had two engagements, but they are quick to decline that, they don't want the much too heavy. And they don't think that they belong, have that no matter how much they like helping us improve."

Wendling notes that the trio is getting so many requests to sing that Mrs. Lebovitz is going to handle their engagements from now on so there won't be any confusion.

The boys indicate they are glad to sing and perform, they still are students and must consider this first.

All of the trio members have had some musical training. Last year they got together for an informal singing session. This interest continued and soon they had formed the trio.

"They were sophomores then and one of the things that stirred their interest was that their class, the class of 1959, didn't give an informal singing group."

"Hartley is tenor and plays the congo or bongo drums. Wendling is bass, plays the guitar and is practicing on the banjo. Dalton is a baritone. He sometimes plays a guitar, but usually sings lead."

Plugged Barrel Causes Ruined Rifle

H. F. (Bill) Bally, Hansen gunsmith, holds barrel of rifle fired while section of brass cleaning rod was lodged in the barrel. The barrel didn't even bulge at the point where the bullet struck into the brass rod. Normally, the person who fired the gun under such circumstances would be injured severely. (Staff photo-enslaving)

Lesson of This Story Is Not to Carry Cleaning Rod in Gun's Carrying Case

HANSEN, May 13—During the deer hunting season of 1959 a local deer hunter in this area got a surprise when he pulled the trigger on his rifle. There was no sharp muzzle report, just a quiet hissing.

He came pretty close to blowing his head off by following a common practice—he carried a brass cleaning rod in the rifle carrying case. The rod was a sectional rod. During the trip to the hunting area one of the sections accidentally slipped in the barrel.

The hunter swung the lever down to eject the case. The case popped out of the action, followed by a blast of gas. Meanwhile, the deer got away.

The muzzle soon learned a lesson that should be of interest to other hunters.

H. F. Bally points to cut out section of rifle barrel, showing how brass cleaning rod and bullet completely blocked bore. All attempts to clean out the barrel failed, but the rifle wasn't damaged otherwise. (Staff photo-enslaving)

School Cook Given Bonus At Hagerman

HAGERMAN, May 13—Mrs. H. H. Travis was given a bonus of $103 by the school board members for her years of service as school cook at the board meeting this week.

Supr. Clement Prince states the school board members decided to regularly enrolled high school student must take a minimum of four solid subjects each year to graduate.

A course in journalism will be added to the curriculum next year. There are still two vacancies on the teaching staff to be filled.

A member from each club and group in the school district is asked to appoint a representative to serve on the Citizens committee.

The representatives of civic groups will be interested specifically in the consolidation of Hagerman and Bliss schools, and will report to Vernon Ravencroft, school board representative to the Citizens committee.

The school board will be reorganized at the next meeting, June 12.

Fined at Burley

BURLEY, May 13—Two persons were fined by justice of the Peace Alfred Crane for violations of the motor vehicle act.

They were Charles B. Warren, Burley, $17, for overload and $10 for failure to appear, and Theodore Tate, Twin Falls, $10 for failure to have tag on an overhanging load. Both were cited by state police.

Illustrate what happens when a bullet collides with a brass cleaning rod.

Bally notes it was unusual the barrel didn't bulge where the bullet slammed into the cleaning rod. Another marvel is that the cleaning rod was not flattened.

Bally says that under similar conditions most rifles would burst. And he adds that the incident points out why cleaning rods shouldn't be carried in the gun's carrying case.
