Storm Delays Store Construction at Burley

The partly-completed construction was delayed in a windstorm late Tuesday. Vern Carlson, of Carlson Brothers, Inc., contractors, said the timberlock walls were up and the framework laid for the truss roof. Wind lifted the framework of the roof, causing the walls to topple. Buried in the debris is a Farmhand lift and some steel scaffolding. Steel girders had not been installed as the construction was not far enough along. The storm has delayed completion date from Aug. 15 to Sept. 15, Carlson said. The building is 50 by 120 feet. T. F. Man Comes to Defense Of Local Police Department

Editor, Times-News:
I have heard those accusations and know I have conferred with Gillette but four or five years in his tenure of over 20 years. I do not believe he could call me to a quick meeting on the street. But, when the "news" is taking liberties with my integrity, that is when I go berserk.

Personally, I have met a man who would have to be called a "news" man. I have seen him in the office of the law for several years.

For we have a demand against "news-racers" from the past and "news-racers" from the present. I have seen the man who has been in the office of the law for several years and who has been in the office of the law for several years.

I have always found the police force efficient and courteous. I have never seen a man who has been in the office of the law for several years and who has been in the office of the law for several years.

Beatty-Cops Metric Mile As American Track Team Moves Ahead of Poland

WARSAW, July 29 (AP)—The touring United States team, victorious in Russia, England and Germany, built up an 8-3 margin over the powerful Polish aggregation today and led 68-49 in points after the first half of a two-day international meet. Wilma (The Wonderfull) Rudolph, darling of last year's U. S. Olympic team, accounted for a pair of victories that left the American girls only a single point, 26-25, behind the Polish ladies after five events in their meet. The Polish women won three events in which Miss Rudolph did not run.

Biggest surprise of the day came when Jim Beatty, San Jose, Calif., took over for the ailing Floyd Burison in the 1500 meters and beat the famed Polish runner Witold Baran, in 3 minutes, 40.8 seconds. Baran and his coach were certain all week that Baran would beat Burison, holder of the American record.

But Beatty spun through the metric mile and won by about seven yards, reaching the tape in a time that gave him a share of Burison's American record. Miss Rudolph led the 400-meter dash in 1:15 seconds and was chased to the tape by her teammate, Willy White, Chicago, who registered 1:15. Then the two combined with Vivian Brown, Los Angeles, and Ernestine Pollards, Chicago, for a triumph in the 400-meter relay. The foursome was clocked in 4:45 seconds, while the Polish quartet took 4:55.

Nine more men's events will be contested Sunday. It had been expected that 100,000 fans would jam the huge stadium but gloominess held the attendance to about 70,000.

Cliff Cushman, Grand Forka, Minn., struck by a query stomach, the shot with a heave of 61 feet, forgo the attempt, long enough to tempt through the 400-meter dash in 1:15 seconds and was chased to the tape by her teammate, Willy White, Chicago, who registered 1:15. Then the two combined with Vivian Brown, Los Angeles, and Ernestine Pollards, Chicago, for a triumph in the 400-meter relay. The foursome was clocked in 4:45 seconds, while the Polish quartet took 4:55.

BARBER HAS PGA MARGIN

5-Foot, 5 Inch Player Has Two Shots Over Field

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP)—Jerry Barber, a watch-fob golfer, today, by shooting his second straight sub-par round and taking the halfway lead in the PGA championship with a score of 136. The 5-foot, 5-inch, 137-pound mite from Los Angeles, beaten in a hole-in-one break finish in the same tournament two years ago, added a 67 to a first-round 69 for a two-stroke lead over Doug Sanders and Don January, tied at 138.

Barber shot a second-round 68 and January with a chance to tie the record 65, took a bogey at the 11th for a 65. January took the limelight from his playing partners as he defeated the new British Open champion, who shot 72 for 145, and Master's winner, Gary Player, South Africa, who had a 74 for 146.

The first round leader, Art Wall, Jr., Pocono Manor, Pa., could do no better than a 72 after opening with a 67 and finishing fourth place at 139—one shot ahead of a trio, tied at 140. They were leading champion, Jerry Barber, who had 68-72; respected Ernest Vossler, 68-72; and Doug Sanders, 69-71, who came in with a 68 after a first round 72.

The second round, postponed from Friday because of a heavy cloudburst, was played in oppressive heat and humidity. Barber's hole-in-one was a 17-foot putt from the edge of the green. He also had a hole-in-one on the 18th hole, a 17-foot putt from the edge of the green. He also had a hole-in-one on the 18th hole, a 17-foot putt from the edge of the green.

Less than half a dozen among the nation's leading tournament and teaching professionals were expected to break the 25-70 par of the tradition-rich Olympia Fields Country club course.

Don Sanders and Art Krull, both included former U.S. Open champion Cary Midway, who was playing 69 placed him at 43, and Bud Holscher, Hollywood, Calif., who bounced back with a 68 after opening 74 for 148.

The spotty fairways were filled with pine marks from the heavy traffic and frequently well-hit shots fell into almost impossible lies.

The tournament is still a wide open affair as it swings into Sunday's hole-in-one.

The 141st was the new U.S. Open champion, Gene Littler, Dunbar, Pa., who shot 69-70 for 139. He was followed by Tom Weir, Jr., who shot 70-70 for 140.

Barber, a bespectacled little man of 45 who looks more like a bank clerk than a professional golfer, today shot his best round in a brilliant recovery after a butchery first round in the 45-74 hole-in-one.

He became distracted by a cormorant hooked on the 18th hole, and he missed the hole-in-one on the top of an ugly fairway trap.

There, standing precariously with one leg in the bunker and the other on the bank, he looked in a four-way hole-in-one on the green on the 45-yard hole, then chipped up to within four feet and sank his putt with 30 seconds to go.

Barber had birdie putts on the front nine of 10, 20 and 25 feet, and on the short hole-in-one, which he described as "the best of my life."

Sanders, last year's runner-up, also shot a 32 on the outgoing nine.

He set a bogey at the 10th where he drove into the trees and at the long 11th had a hole-in-one. He also had a hole-in-one on the 18th hole, a 17-foot putt from the edge of the green.

Sanders acknowledged that he was upset by the incident but he salvaged his par. The spectator was taken to a hospital.

Dr. George Davis won the 72-hole Lakes Country club men's 72-hole handicap tournament last week with a final score of 255.

The total game Dr. Davis his first tournament victory. It also gave him a healthy margin over runner-up Dave Barry, who had a 271.

Frank DeLuca and R. M. Serpa shared third spot with 272 while Robert Stuyder posted a 276.

Judge Maintains Ban On NFL-CBS TV Deal

PHILADELPHIA, July 29 (AP)—A federal judge has ruled that the National Football League cannot have a contract with the Columbia Broadcasting System. But a league spokesman says road games will be televised this fall as before.

Legion Slates Tournament This Week

The third district Legion baseball championship playoff will begin at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Twin Falls club meeting hall. The tournament will be played on the Legion field south of the enclosed park.

NFL clubs will have to negotiate individual contracts with CBS unless Grims' denial is upheld by a higher court. The ruling followed two days of testimony in which NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle said that unless the package deal was approved, half of the league's 14 teams would be without TV in 1960—an economic disaster for the league.

Another NFL spokesman said that the National Football League cannot have a contract with the Columbia Broadcasting System. But a league spokesman says road games will be televised this fall as before.

The spokesman added that Grims' denial of the NFL appeal to reconsider his previous decision was based on evidence eight years old and not on current issues. The previous decision banned package contract sales, but it eliminated competition among the teams and controlled prices.

The judge's ruling could affect the sports contracts of the National Basketball Association, the American Football League and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Grims also rejected a second NFL appeal to wait until Dec. 1 to decide whether his earlier decision should be modified.

Increase for Lincoln Tax Rolls Shown

SHOESHONE, July 29 — Need and personal property tax rolls of the county, completed the past week by Mrs. Lucille Kiser and another, shows an increase of $8,681 over the 1949 rolls, for a total of $2,066,464.

Utility valuations will be made by the state tax commission and added later. Normally the assessed valuation of Lincoln county is about six and one-half million dollars.

As usual, the biggest items on the roll are lands and buildings. This year's roll lists 42,275 acres of irrigated agricultural land, $969,520; 7,212 acres pump irrigated land, $106,295; 6,205 acres irrigated grazing land, $77,450; 1,162 acres non-irrigated agricultural land, $5,615, and 67,182 acres dry grazing land, $73,400.

Equities in state lands amount to $277,733 valuation. Business lots are assessed at a total of $38,885 and residence lots at $69,195.

Improvements on lands constitute a big item. Farm improvements amount to $18,468; business improvements, $183,465; town residences, $251,140.

Merchandise assessments amount to $185,000, service stations, $10,000; machinery, $168,565.

There are 3,677 milk cows, $128,695; 8,622 range stock, $90,550; 3,014 yearlings, $60,280; 207 range and dairy hogs, $1,660; 3,735 common sheep, $11,200; 333 hogs, $3,380; 82 bucks, $1,104; 101 horses and mules, $1,104.

Other valuations are for furniture and fixtures, automobiles, printing plants and other forms of property.

The figures do not give an exact account of cattle and sheep because some of them graze in other counties, or more than one county. When the grazing season is over, the migratory livestock will be taxed on the subsequent property roll, with each county getting its share.

Family Needs Stored Food, Aide Asserts

BURLEY, July 29 — "Citizens should have enough food stored to last their families for at least 30 days," warned Norman Nielson, Cassia county civil defense chairman, when he spoke to the Fabens club during its Friday luncheon meeting at Cousin Roy's.

"The food does not have to be fancy and can be dried, beans, peas and jerky. It should be stored in the basement. We must be prepared for any emergency," Nielson said. He noted that this had been a new achievement from civil defense headquarters.

Clive Holland, who is in charge of fair book sales, reported that the books would be on sale at the fairgrounds on Thursday night and the remaining shirts of the fair club members have been assigned, different shifts for selling the books.

Dr. G. R. Patrother reported that a young heifer calf had been purchased by the club and would be presented to a 4-H club member during the fair.

William E. Toolson, local pharmacist, explained that it cost $3,000 to make each batch of a certain drug, and noted that the minimum of 200 white mice were used for the biological assays.

"When many of our new drugs are introduced on the market they are high, but many of them are reduced in price by continued research and production. When penicillin was first on the market it cost $20 for 100,000 units. Today that same amount in tablet form costs 20 cents. When cortisone was first on the market it cost $200 a gram and it is now $10 a gram, he declared.

Ninety per cent of the 1,600,000 prescription-filled in a day in the country could not have been filled 10 years ago for the drugs did not exist, he asserted.

American tax payers were saved 64 million dollars burden because of the decrease in the population in the mental hospitals. This has been brought about by the use of tranquilizer drugs, Toolson noted.

Toolson was introduced by Carl Holland, program chairman. Announcement was made that next week's meeting would be a picnic in the Salmon park and transportation will be furnished from the hotel for those needing it. Cassia county fair board will be in charge of the program and will introduce personnel from the fair. Fred Allen will be in charge of arrangements.

Wagon's Metal Rim Found on Cellar Floor

I. T. Creed, left, and C. L. Luke inspect an old metal rim from a wagon they found on the floor of one of the cellars of the old Stricker store at Rock Creek. A group of volunteer workers, who are already getting ready for the 1963 Idaho centennial celebration, are rejuvenating the two cellars that are just north of the original store. They are cleaning them and replacing the original dirt roofs that have deteriorated in recent years. The one-room store was built in 1863 and was the first trading post in Idaho territory west of Fort Hall. (Staff photo—enlarging)

South Hills Camp Holds Varied Activities for Camp Fire Girls

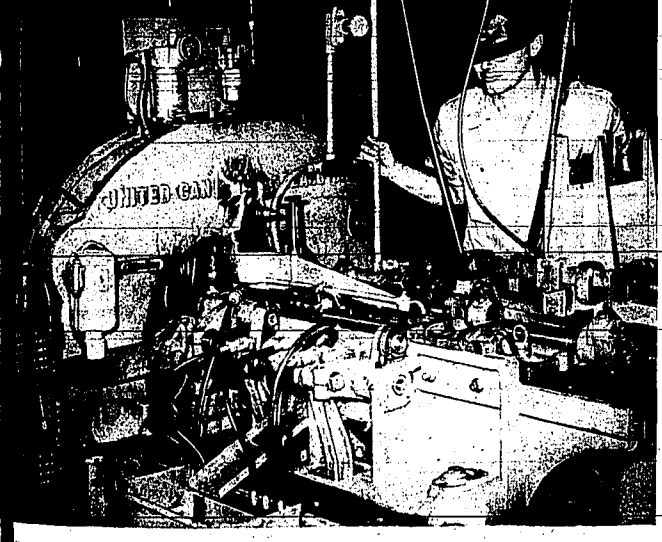

For the past month a total of nearly 200 young girls from the Magic Valley area have taken to the south hills and spent time in the woods learning how to be better Blue Birds and Camp Fire Girls. The camp was open from July 1 until August 1. The month of activity was divided into three one-week groups and one four-day session for the Blue Birds. The Blue Birds were at the camp from July 5 to 8. They are composed of girls from 7 to 10 years of age. The Camp Fire Girls are from 10 to 18 years. The camp is under the direction of Marion Schroyer, Anchorage, Alaska, who has served as camp director for the past five years. During the school year she teaches elementary education, but with a minor in outdoor education.

The director and campers at Camp Tawakani in the south hills look at the new spring the campers developed this summer. The water from the spring will flow through the campgrounds and form a small stream, which the girls landscape later. Johnson, Politics Master, Plays Hard Game as U.S. Vice President

BY ARTHUR EDSON
WASHINGTON, July 29.—The black limousine, wearing discreet but businesslike red curtains, was poised, ready for action, in front of the Sheraton hotel. Johnson hurried Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, who had finished a 30-minute speech, to his campaign headquarters. Johnson was missing a step. He was asked to speak along by the crowd. Johnson said, "because I'm more to be done." Johnson stepped into his Cadillac, stepped 150 feet across the road, and stepped out of another 30-minute talk. Topflight politicians drive themselves all these about them relentlessly. Their ceaseless quest: To latch on to more power or at least hang on to what they have. Of this incredible lot, Johnson stands the creditably most of all. Here he is, 53 next month, victim of a severe heart attack in 1955, beaten by John F. Kennedy for the presidential nomination. It looks like a splendid opportunity to slow up a bit. Yet Johnson steps into the vice presidency catch up on sleep. Johnson took a helicopter from the airport to report immediately to President Kennedy. Since his tuxedo was brought to him, he had time to go to the White House. He greeted there so he could attend the Cherry Blossom festival and crown the queen. At 8:30 the next morning he met with a Texas church group with another Texas delegation, huddled off to discuss his trip with the senate foreign relations committee, grabbed a plane for Dallas where he threw out the first ball to open the Southern association season, met with Democratic leaders, and spoke to a Jefferson-Jackson dinner that night. The following morning he was back at the White House, conferring again with the President. During the campaign a man who was working for Johnson in Texas was awakened by a phone call from his boss here in Washington. "It was 4 a.m.," this man recalled recently. "From then until 8:30, Johnson talked steadily, doing me things to do." "I got into the office the next morning around nine, a little peeved, and when someone asked me why I looked so rocky," explained a had been on the phone (Continued on Page 11, Col. 1)

It cost $24,000 and it forms about 10 highly critical functions. Small steel cans are fed into one end of the machine. The amazing machine feeds to work and performs all the work on the can in a fraction of a second. (Staff photo—enlarging)

Hobby Shop Newest Attraction at Jerome Hospital

Sister Mary Adeline and Mrs. Harry Morris stand by the hobby display case at St. Benedict's hospital. Money from the sale of the hobby items is to be used to purchase air conditioners for the hospital. The hobby shop had just been added. Members of the Hospital Guild make the items, materials for which are purchased by the hospital. A snack bar also is operated by the Hospital Guild. Located at the north wing of the hospital, it is open to the public. (Staff photo-entourage)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

One of the newest and most thriving businesses in JEROME is the snack bar and hobby shop at St. Benedict's hospital and open to the public. It is managed by Mrs. Harry Morris.

Members of the Hospital Guild and about 15 handicrafters devote their time. The Jerome Jay-C-Rites operate the shop one day a month. Mrs. Morris said, however, there still is a need for volunteers and anyone interested may contact her at the hospital.

The snack bar was built and donated by the Jerome Civic Club. They spent $600, converting one end of the dining room into the bar. Members of the Civic club did the painting. Mrs. Clark Hise spearheaded the project, which was turned over to the Hospital Guild last May 15. Mrs. Hoyd Freeman painted a large mural that is behind the counter and Mrs. Bill Bucks upholstered the furniture.

The hobby shop has just been added, under the jurisdiction of Sister Mary Adeline. The hospital purchases all of the material and members of the Hospital Guild make the various items. Money from their sale will be used to buy air conditioners for the hospital.

The display case is filled with hook and woven rugs, fancy pillow cases and towels, jewelry, copper pictures, foam rubber flower bud vases, colonial nests, foam rubber pillows, wood fiber pillows and aprons. One of the most interesting is the "beeswax candles."

These candles have no odor or dripping and burn much longer than the ordinary candles. The wax they are made of is imported in the hexagon shape of wax in the hive.

The snack bar serves ice cream, floats, milk shakes, sandwiches, soup and salads. A typical noon meal includes beef stew on toast, potato salad and cucumber salad as side dishes, ice tea and jelly for desert.

Last week some people from Mountain Home were riding at Earl Jolly's ranch and Ben Ellis noticed the dog and asked whether a person she also makes the wild birds she hears in the trees. Like parakeets too. Tom won't talk when people want her to, but instead will wait until she is in the mood for talking and then will go through her entire repertoire. She likes people, though, and loves to be noticed by them.

Tom is kept in a large cage in the backyard. In the winter the cage is covered to keep the bird protected from the cold. She is rarely taken from her cage; however, one time she did escape without their knowing it.

The Parrot's son, Dick had come out to talk with the bird and was carrying on an animated conversation with her on the way. Then suddenly he noticed that the answers were coming from a different corner of the yard and upon investigation, discovered that "somehow" she had escaped her cage and was walking around the yard.

He doesn't know if the dog became frightened of the firecrackers or someone picked him up. Probably they will never know but the couple is happy to have the pet home.

TRAINS IN GERMANY
-BUTLE, July 20—Spec. 4/cel. Jim L. Kistler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Kistler, 217 Twelfth avenue north, Buhl, participated with other personnel from the eighth division 20th Infantry in annual army training tests near Weiskand, Germany. Kistler is assigned to the infantry company A.

Dick states he had no trouble picking her up and putting her back in the cage but they have taken precautions that she does not escape again as they do not want to lose their pet.

For several years Tom laid a number of eggs each summer, but the last year has discontinued the practice. Since she has been kept penned up, she is not quite as large as most of the wild birds.

Being caged though has no way dimmed her enthusiasm and zest for living and she dently likes to have her wild friends come and talk "bird-talk" with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Nick Robinson, KING HILLS, believe in the kindness of fate. They call their small, spitz dog on the Fourth of July and combed the community in search for him, but to no avail.

CORVAIR WINS AGAIN

LADIES' PRIZE—4,200-MILE TRANS-CANADA RALLY!

CORVAIR BY CHEVROLET

The smiling lady you see at left is Denise McCullough. With navigator Starr Hammer, she's just driven over 4,200 miles in seven days. One reason for winning the smile is that she and Starr won the coveted Coo Dames in this rugged Trans-Canada Rally, topping every other women's team entered. Another reason is that they beat some 90% of all the men's teams entered. In a rally, of course, you're given specific speeds (within legal limits) at which to complete each portion of the route. A minute early, a minute late—and you're penalized. Total penalties for Denise and Starr (remember, this event was 4,200 miles long) four minutes. Four.

Their car was a rally-equipped Corvair Monza Four-Door. This Trans-Canada Rally, competitors told us, was one of the most scaring tests of car and crew in the world. They fought mow and dust, mountains and lonely plains, all the way from Montreal to Vancouver, British Columbia.

"The Corvairs won the respect of everybody. And 'everybody' includes some of Europe's finest rallyists, not to mention a goodly portion of Canada's population. But then, winning respect is an old habit of Corvair's. If you don't believe it, try a drive in one at your Chevrolet dealer's. You'll soon be a true believer.

"Beach Bums" Along West Coast Give Bad Name to Sport of Surf Boarding

LOS ANGELES, July 20 (AP)—Call him Pippy. He's 15. Just getting back a nature album. He'll never graduate from high school. They rarely saw him this summer.

He spent most of the spring on the beach, waxing his surf board, leaning to drink cheap wine, waiting for a set of big boards to come booming in toward the sea.

Pippy is a surfer.

There are 20,000 surfers in California, a number of surfboarders are to differ as much as the corners of streets.

But for some—Pippy—life has become more than a sport. It is a way of life. Newspaper writers have given a name to their bizarre code: "the cult of the surfer."

It is the so-called cult-followers of southern California editors and law enforcement officials are worried about. In some towns in some schools, and in some police stations, surfer has another meaning: beach bum.

Lawless, unruly, teen-age drinking, sex parties—these are the things charged against the surfer by many police and property owners.

Yet making and selling boards is a million-dollar-a-year business and still growing. Twenty thousand surfers obviously can't all be bums. Even those who do take the breed admit the trouble-makers are in the minority.

One high school principal from Los Angeles spends every summer, when he can afford it, surfing in Hawaii with his son.

Take a look at surfers in action. You'll see them every summer day now at their favorite surfing spots from the Mexican border's Tijuana Alps (a corruption of Aloha) north to San Francisco's Marin Peninsula. The waves already seen improvement. Youngsters became part of the surfing crowd by the social pressure to join and conform. Many surfers are a symbol of membership, but don't know how to surf and "cheap." Old to use it. The symbol, incidentally, hears are highly prized. So are comes high: about $100.

One girl's explanation recently that there are three groups in high school: the surfers, the ho-dads, and the so-called. The ho-dads, also known as ho-daddies, are the hot-rod and car-club enthusiasts. They like well-built, Elvis Presley-type pompadour, boots, jeans or panned slacks, drive pickup trucks or cars with speed-up motors and flames painted on the hood, and to be rock in.

The so-called, pronounced, for some tribulation reason, as so-cets are the "sooty types"—the ones who belong to gun clubs and get good grades. Surfers and ho-dads have another name for them: "Kooks."

Some people think the older surfers are the ones who infect the younger boys with an ambition not to have any.

Maurice (Red) Guyer, the head coach at Laguna Beach high school, has a bitter distaste for these older surfers—the kid surfers.

Guyer knows all about the case of Pippy. His older brother won honors at Guyer's school and went on to get top grades in college. "This Pippy fellow, that's not his real nickname, should be playing basketball on my kids here. Sure, he's not a m m e ends, they put on a look-up you can't see. He's a surfer and start football practice next year. No Pippy. He's down on beach. The school should be teaching him to surf. Maybe to steal. Him and college? He'll never finish the school."

He already likes and plays. He's getting shifty-eyed. "Ho's a bum."

Plant's Elaborate Machinery to Produce 90 Million Cans During Next Year

This is an overall view of the new Producers Container Company Green Giant plant in Buhl. The company started production in May and plans to produce about 90 million cans a year.

Most of the cans will be used by Green Giant. There is a total of about $265,000 worth of elaborate machinery in the plant. (Staff photo-encouraging)

Floyd Commons, Buhl, an employe in the new Producers Container company plant, works here at the double seamer, an automatic machine that cost $16,000. The can cylinders pop into this machine at the rate of about 400 a minute. One end of the can is crimped on the cylinder by the machine. (Staff photo-encouraging) ject air into the cylinder. If the can admits air, it is automatically rejected. The final machine is the palletizer, or stacker ($13,015), which places the Niblets cans in stacks containing 4700 cans. A fork truck picks up the cans from the palletizer and hauls them into an adjoining "store-room" where they are piled to the ceiling, ready for the canning factory and the dealers' shelves. Throughout the construction process the cans undergo a constant quality check by the crew which makes minor adjustments on the machines in order to turn out a uniform product. The factory is running with a single crew, working a single shift. But in the near future there will be two shifts and the factory will operate from 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Retired Aide Will Address Burley Club

BURLEY, July 29—Ralph W. Haamussen, who retired as lieutenant colonel from the army last February, will be the guest speaker during the Burley Chamber of Commerce Monday luncheon meeting at Coastway. He will speak on his experiences and give his impressions of the present world situation. Haamussen is presently employed as credit manager for J. R. Simplot Botuliners.

New Product Is Added by Plant

HEYBURN, July 29—A new line of processed potatoes, "popato gems," will be added to the products of the Heyburn Simplot company this fall, according to Hugo Dalogio, personnel manager of the plant. This new line, a frozen potato ball, will be added to the other two lines of frozen french fries. The new atmosphere plant now under construction is about 35 to 40 per cent completed and will be ready for use by fall as a storage for raw potatoes and will be ready as a cold storage by the first of the year. The automotive shop now under construction at the plant is about half completed. The starting date for processing potatoes is set tentatively for Sept. 1, and the number of employees called back to work will depend on the quantity of potatoes received at that time and other factors.

Sentence Levied In Forging Case

Robert Gene Cantrell was sentenced to 18 years in the state penitentiary by District Judge Theron W. Ward, after he was convicted of forging. On May 10 Cantrell attempted to forger a check for $500 drawn on the Twin Falls Bank and Trust, and signed "Joe Carl." He pleaded "not guilty." June 9 and a trial was held Tuesday. The 41-year-old Jewett found him guilty.

Fire Demolishes House at Camas

FAIRFIELD, July 29—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the two-story rural home of Eric and Mrs. Lee Tucker and family. Neighbors rushed to the aid of the family and removed all the furnishings from the lower floor but the contents of the second story were lost in the blaze. The house was insured but not the contents. A bunkhouse and some sheds containing small tools and equipment also were consumed. It is thought that the fire started in the bunkhouse which was close to the dwelling. The county fire truck answered the call and at dusk the equipment was still spraying water on hot spots to keep it from spreading to the remaining barn and machine shed as there was a brisk wind blowing. The Tucker family will move

Folk Dancing Taught at Area Girls' Camp

Camp in South Hills Provides Varied Activity for Camp Fire Girls of Area

(From Page 17) One of the other new projects at the camp has been the new rail fence the girls built. It runs through the center of the camp, along a little stream. Each day the girls set a position of their time to work on the rail fence, under the guidance of the counselors. They have sawed and prepared the poles for the fence. The little stream that runs along the fence is another result of the girls' work. They cleared a box at the upper end of the camp, removing a vast amount of litter, and produced a small spring that feeds the stream. A new nature trail, with various curves and twistings that have symbolic meaning for Blue Birds and Camp Fire Girls, also has been constructed. It leads from the center of camp to the new spring. The girls have a long day at the camp. They arise at 6:45 a. m. and pursue various activities until 10:20 p. m. The daily program is filled with such topics as camp songs, woods and nature lore, handicrafts, nature museum, folk dancing, weather study, flag study, dining hall decoration and preparing the daily camp newspaper. Each day is concluded with the evening campfire, which features a different program each night. During the week there also are special programs, such as talent night and "sit night." On "sit night" the members have a parents' night. The week's activities terminate at 9 p. m. Saturday and the girls ride home with their parents.

Lyndon Johnson, Master at Politics, Playing Hard Game as Vice President

(From Page 17) Politicians want power, and power is what a vice president wants. Johnson's chores include presiding over the senate (this is so boring he sneaks away as quickly as possible), voting in those rare instances in which the senate acts in a tie, heading the equal job opportunities and peace advisory committee, and sitting in on the national security council. These are worthy jobs, but to an ambitious politician they are no more than colonial rackets are to a big game hunter. As he hustles about on affairs both foreign and domestic, there is no word, publicly at least, on the plans and hopes for Lyndon B. Johnson. Nor is there any way to answer these two questions: Can any man survive the pace that Johnson sets for himself? A friend claims Johnson is unlike other mortals. "The only way you can kill him," he said, "is to force him to remain quiet." Will Kennedy continue to keep him in the spotlight? But hope is eternal, especially in a politician's breast. In a recent off-the-cuff speech, Johnson blurted out:

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT David L'Herisson, Jerome, Was Born To Pioneering, Cradled in Commerce

JEROME, July 29—David L'Herisson, Jerome business man, says he was born to pioneering, cradled in commerce and had an early introduction to rugged labor. Somewhere along the way he must have drawn from the fountain of youth, for only his repertoire of endless experiences hints of his age. Of all the active businessmen in Jerome, he has the most years of continuous service. However, L'Herisson has forced him to slow down and spend fewer hours at the furniture store. L'Herisson was the oldest of three sons, born to pioneer parents in Wallace, Pa., in 1881. His father owned and operated the general store on the bank of Red river. This business was established by his grandfather at the time when the only link between southern and northern Louisiana was by navigable rivers and bayous. His great-grandfather came from the east during the reign of Napoleon, before the Louisiana purchase in 1803. L'Herisson started grade school at a state teachers training college. He attended a parochial school in St. Louis, Mo., until L'Herisson's father died when he was 14. Two years later he left home.

DAVID L'HERISSON

His first business venture began when he formed a partnership in the drug business in 1903 in Louisiana. Prior to this he took special courses at the State Normal. In 1906 doctor L'Herisson sent him to Colorado to heal malaria scars on his lungs. There he purchased a small orchard. L'Herisson says after two years he had recovered his health but lost his money. He first visited this area Oct. 1, 1903. Jerome was an ocean of brushwood accented by half dozen crude homes and three or four business houses. This nucleus was surrounded by temporary homes of other enthusiastic pioneers. He arranged to have a building built on property that is now the parking area next to the Ford garage. L'Herisson decided all the tent dwellers would need to buy furniture when their homes were built, so he returned to Denver to purchase his stock. One of his prized possessions is freight bill No. 1 of the Idaho Southern railway. This was for his first shipment of furniture and the equipment for the first funeral home in Jerome. No special training was required then, to run a funeral home, except the possession and readiness to set a casket. In 1916 laws were made requiring certain specifications. He returned to New Orleans to take an embalming course at Tulane university. Though he has not been active in this business for many years, he still holds the seventh oldest mortician license in Idaho. On Dec. 24, 1908, he married Adeline LaPage at the Cathedral of Denver. They arrived in Twin Falls by train Dec. 30, 1908, and continued their trip by horse-drawn carriage via Blue lakes grade, made even more terrifying, to his bride because of ice and snow. L'Herisson and Ed Churchman owned, but did not operate, the first saloon in town. This was the first in Southern Idaho to sell a large class of eastern beer for five cents. He was also a partner of William Peters in the water company until the city purchased it. L'Herisson can be credited with many progressive projects, including his efforts to make Jerome a county. He was a volunteer fireman and one of the town's first fire chiefs. He helped found the Chamber of Commerce and was among its first presidents. L'Herisson arranged for the land, established the cemetery and laid out the first grave. He is still a member of the cemetery board on which he has served for 33 consecutive years. He helped build the original St. Jerome's Catholic church. The day the church was plastered, L'Herisson carried a sack of coal on his back from the lumber yard to build a fire to keep the plaster from "freezing." His efforts combined with those of other businessmen of Jerome founded the Jerome Candler company which was later sold and is now known as Volvo Products. It was his foresight which halted construction of the young courthouse in the north park, which would have destroyed this new popular public picnic site. Court action was instituted by L'Herisson and Frank Daley on the grounds that on Jan. 25, 1912, the Twin Falls North Side Investment company had purchased deed of transfer of the two parcels to the village of Jerome. The deed would place the purpose other than any other buildings the transaction would become void. The plaintiffs maintained the county courthouse was not a village in the true sense of the word, nor would placing the county jail on a portion of the village. The plaintiffs were James A. Booth, James A. Booth, Jr., and James A. Booth. The plaintiffs were set to go ahead with the construction of the new jail. A feeling of hostility against them was so strong that they were convinced that they would be mobbed. They appealed to the court for a final decision. At this point the Jerome city commissioners purchased the other site for the building, ending the controversy. L'Herisson says he is a classic example of the old saw argument and lose a friend. He lost many friends because of his furniture and real estate business. He found the healthful climate, the making business did not improve his income sufficiently. He was forced to go to work with a survey crew and over the next few years he added her own department. A showcase stocked with women hats, purchased four at a time from a Salt Lake City mail order house.

In 1918 he had the present L'Herisson furniture building built. For several years the postoffice occupied a portion of the first floor and the courthouse the upper floors. At present the furniture store occupies the entire first floor, balcony and downstairs space. Through his tireless efforts and progressive attitude his business has grown and considered one of the fine furniture establishments in the area. Mr. and Mrs. L'Herisson have three children: Mrs. W. T. Gill, Salt Lake City; Mrs. F. J. Thrus and Charles A. L'Herisson, both Jerome; several grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Can't Get Auto Insurance? Under Age, Over Age, No Driving Record? Treatment of Anderson Reservoir Planned

Fish and game department spokesman says Anderson Ranch reservoir and feeder streams in southwestern Idaho will be chemically treated this fall to eliminate big populations of snakes, squawfish and stunted perch if drought conditions continue and there is a drawdown to the minimum 21,000 acre-foot pool. Anderson reservoir was an outstanding trout fishery until rough species took over. Chemical rotenone will be used on the tributaries, toxaphene in the reservoir. (Staff engraving)

Quality Angling Aided by Removal of Undesirable Fish Species by Nature

By JIM HUMPHREY
Idaho Fish and Game Department

Nature is taking a hand this season in the statewide program to restore top quality trout and salmon populations by removing undesirable fish species in Idaho's reservoirs and streams.

The results indubitably will be beneficial to anglers and to the fish and game department to rebuild the fishery as soon as possible.

When a fish population perhaps either from chemical treatment or lack of water, immediate plans are made to replace it. This often poses perplexing problems. Orders for fish eggs must go out in the fall of the year. The eggs are hatched during the winter and grow into fingerlings two or three inches long by spring.

Hatchery operations are geared to meet the stocking needs of all waters in the state during the coming season. But nobody can predict what the water situation will be at that time.

For example, Magic reservoir in southeastern Idaho was treated last fall to purge an overpopulation of stunted perch which impoverished the water for trout. Rehabilitation work started during the lowest water level in two decades, because the relatively small volume reduced cost to a minimum.

Some 2 1/2 million eggs were ordered, a maximum allotment. Fingering from these eggs was large enough for planting by April 3. They also were beginning to crowd the hatcheries, had to be released somewhere soon. But the water situation in the reservoir and on the watershed because of the prolonged drought, was not favorable.

The perplexity, however, became a relief wrapped in an enigma when viewed in total perspective—all other waters in the region were falling far short of meeting urgent irrigation demands. Moreover, these waters already were receiving their full allotment of fish, could not step up their needs to match the available supply and absorb another 2 1/2 million fingerlings.

Consequently a compromise solution was reached by mid-May which amounted to calculated—but good—risk. Biologist Stacy V. Gebhardt, Jerome, reports that total of 1 1/2 million fingerlings years fishing is good—during dry years fish move out of the reservoirs and in some cases are lost entirely.

On the credit side of the ledger are brighter prospects. Millions of rough, undesirable fish almost literally will "blow the dust" this summer and fall. When a normal water year arrives, most reservoirs will be stocked with fingerling trout, and in a couple of years, fishing will be as good or better than ever. The elimination of competing fish species for food and cover will see to that.

was released in Magic—a total of 6,000 pounds—and the remaining half of this allotment was planted elsewhere.

The fingerlings have grown since May and now average about 1 1/2 or seven inches apiece. Because of the dearth of water, the "no fishing" signs have come down at Magic and there is no creel or possession limit. It's wide open.

Gebhardt explains that only 2 1/2 per cent of the original plant at Magic—less harvesting—now in order for the department to recover its initial investment of 6,000 pounds. This is the practical viewpoint as opposed to "guesstimates" as to the weight gained by the fingerlings since May—minus natural mortality— for a hypothetical sum of about 100,000 pounds of trout. Admittedly, replacement costs of 100,000 pounds of fish "this" also from state hatcheries would be $100,000.

"That, at least, is the reasoning behind Gebhardt's statement that if only 6,000 pounds of fish are salvaged before Magic goes dry, we still will break even on our original investment."

He adds that in planting irrigation reservoirs the department knows that ownership and all primary use of the water is for irrigation.

"He says, "During good water

years fishing is good—during dry years fish move out of the reservoirs and in some cases are lost entirely.

On the credit side of the ledger are brighter prospects. Millions of rough, undesirable fish almost literally will "blow the dust" this summer and fall. When a normal water year arrives, most reservoirs will be stocked with fingerling trout, and in a couple of years, fishing will be as good or better than ever. The elimination of competing fish species for food and cover will see to that.

Drawing for Project Will Honor Aides

REPORT, July 29 — Plans for honoring bureau reclamation officials in conjunction with the land drawing for land on the northern shore of the Snake River Reservoir Reclamation Appreciation are being made for Aug. 19 by the Bureau's Chamber of Commerce.

The drawing of the day will be the unveiling of a memorial to the late Julius C. Jensen, Salt Lake City, who donated the site, proving the feasibility of such a project in the area. Warren H. Hays, Idaho's reclamation commissioner, is chairman for this memorial project.

Hays' program will include a tour of the project, a no-host luncheon under the direction of the chamber board of directors, the drawing at 2:30 p. m. and a banquet honoring the bureau scheduled for the evening, with a home-stayed ball to climax the day's events.

Robert Jones, of the employment security office, and Larry Campbell, president of the chamber, are in charge of the program for the drawing, and Mrs. Lloyd H. Chamber, secretary, will be in charge of special music for the occasion.

Wayne E. Johnson, manager of the Idaho Power company's local installations, and Venice Smith, Minidoka county extension agent, will be in charge of the tour arrangements, and John Schwab and Wayne Hill will direct arrangements for the banquet.

Bell said that the banquet would be held early, probably at 6:30 p. m., with the dance to follow. The drawing will be held in the civic auditorium.

Bell, general chairman, reports that the office of reclamation, under the direction of Robert E. Smylie, had been invited to attend the drawing. He had contacted the director of the bureau of reclamation in Washington, D. C., for a representative.

Chamber committees are working with bureau officials in the area formulating plans for the observation, Bell said.

Detail Used in Cellar Construction

Just as they were in the heyday of the Oregon trail, the Stricker store and stage station were built "down to the dirt" rather than on a foundation. Cered says most of the wear on the back of the store was caused by winds from the west, which have eroded the soil.

One of the interesting things about the cellars—one of which was used for food storage and the other for liquor—is that they were built without the use of nails or mortar.

The floor of the cellars were chipped out of solid lava rock to a depth of about five feet. Cered and C. L. Luke, another worker at the site, note that the floor probably was blasted out of the rock, but the rock shows no evidence—that original builders used a drill to place the dynamite charges. Cered says the cellars were simply dropped into cracks in the rock and then tamped off.

Above the surface of the soil the buildings are built of lava rock for another five or six feet. The rocks are so carefully fitted there was no need for mortar, for in the place of mortar small crevices were wedged in crevices.

The walls still are in good shape. The "Orange" friends to just replace the soil, roots and clean up debris that has fallen from the old roofs onto the floor of the cellars.

The original store still is in rather good shape, but the Grange workers are going to reconstruct the front porch and replace the lumber roof beams with the original log pole type and add a hitching post for effect.

By the time they finish the old store and cellars the site will be pretty well restored, with the exception of the saloon. Now there is a space of a few yards from the store to the first cellar. In the old days the saloon stood in this area. It was attached to the back of the store and reached to the first cellar, where the liquor was kept.

The original store was built in 1865 by James Bascom. It was the first trading post west of Fort Hall, and the station for the pony express and the Ben Hilday stage line. It was built by the famous Oregon trail.

Herman Stricker bought the store from Bascom in 1876. It was called "in those days," the Rock Creek station and served as the supply house for the travelers, ranchers, prospectors and other early-day pioneers. This property was donated to the Daughters of the Utah Pioneers by the sons and daughter of Herman Stricker, who still live on the original ranch adjoining the site of the store. The Grange has volunteered to assist the group in keeping the old landmark in good repair.

After the cellars have been rejuvenated, the next thing on the agenda, according to Cered, is the placing of a roadmarker, one mile east of Kimberly, to point out the store to travelers.

The majority of labor on the cellars has been done by Grange members, men who belong to Trooper 3, a non-military organization composed of local employment-security agents. The project and Trooper 3 members have done the majority of the work. The organization is composed of members of the squadron who have attended at least five summer camps at Owen Hill. This is one of the organization's public service projects.

Other reservoirs and lakes may go dry but nevertheless will be a lower than normal water level, drastically curtailing trout stock for next year. The study destroying all fish populations. One cultural trout pond, ending natural trout production. These, too, must be replaced with hatchery stock. In all such cases it is the legal responsibility of the Idaho fish
