WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—A new land management conservation policy aimed at protection of underground water resources was announced today by the Secretary of the Interior. The plan will give more protection for farmers and other users on or near public lands. It also will assure that the department's programs encourage conservation and prevent unnecessary depletion of underground reserves. Under the plan, agricultural entries will not be allowed on federal lands with declining water tables. The policy clearly did not call for adequate protection for farmers and other users on federal lands, "Udall said.

Power Threat

An aggressive effort by the Kennedy administration to federalize power in the United States is documented in an article appearing in the September issue of Nation's Business. The magazine says the U. S. government, by linking present public power systems and addition of new generation facilities, would be in a position to force investor-owned utilities out of business.

"The point at issue no longer simply involves the possibility of the federal government or local political subdivisions getting more and more into the electric utility business," Nation's Business says. "It now involves the future course of central government in promoting a national system of transmission lines, constructing generating capacity for its own sale rather than as by-product of dams built for flood control and irrigation, and developing nuclear power plants."

"There will be no single legislative or administrative effort to federalize the power industry. Instead there will be a series of steps, which individually may not appear to be a serious threat to the industry," Nation's Business warns.

All of which serves to point up that there is no end to the federal government's power monopoly on the part of those who realize that control of electricity is tantamount to total control of a region or nation. Those citizens who still believe that private enterprise is a cornerstone of this nation's freedom and economic position face a never-ending fight to maintain private enterprise.

Apparently one of the big factors in the public power scheme is vast expansion of the federal power transmission system. As Nation's Business points out, such lines would permit wider marketing of public power at the usual subsidized rates, gradually forcing investor-owned utilities out of business.

An example cited by Nation's Business is the current effort to build a 1,000-mile, high-voltage transmission line to carry surplus power from the Bonneville power administration facilities in Oregon all the way to southern California. A final report on feasibility of the project is due about Nov. 1.

"Bonneville has been operating in the red and under a line would enable it to break its excess power and improve its balance sheet. It could also become the first in a series of federal inter-ites in the western states," Nation's Business notes.

Another such public power scheme is pending for the Upper Colorado River area. It would require an estimated $187-million-dollar transmission system between the various dams, government customers and other power systems. Nation's Business reports, "Five utility companies in the area have joined forces in offering their transmission facilities, at economical rates, to the business and residential users which they say would save taxpayers $14 million dollars. The interior department has rejected their offer."

With an administration so obviously dedicated to expansion of public power, citizens who believe in private enterprise will have to remain alert to counter such ventures into socialistic experiments. Elimination of investor-owned power companies would be only the first step. The power-hungry bureaucrats who would control the electrical industry would never stop with a public power monopoly. To the contrary, such an accomplishment would only make success easier. From that point, what's to prevent gradual federalizing, nationalizing or outright government seizure of the steel industry, auto industry and any and all other industries?

Bureaucratic dabbling in socialistic experiments has a way of mushrooming beyond any controls.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

BY J. F. TERHOEST
 (Ray Tucker is ID)

WASHINGTON—Last fall, the people of the United States elected a "peace" leadership... get this country moving again... a time for greatness. The people accepted their half of the bargain when the moment of truth has arrived for John F. Kennedy.

Not since 1939 has the world teetered so close to the brink of another world war. Not since World War II has there been such a need for greatness—nor such an opportunity.

Somewhere, somewhere, Kennedy must come up with the spirit, the idea, the leadership which will bring the free world, the initiative solve the problems of crisis and seize the initiative from the Soviet-Bloc block. It must be bold. It must be honorable. It must be right. It must be soon.

PLANS DRAMATIC ACTIONS — With Kennedy's acute awareness of history, and the lead between the East and the West, it can be said that he sees the need. He is, at this moment, contemplating several unprecedented courses of action. He is, in fact, personally before the United Nations in New York with a new disarmament plan in an opening wedge. But it is enough to start things moving now.

What might be the result? The United Nations secretary general, unexpectedly opened a Pandora's box of evils which compound the lead between the East and the West, and the question of Red China's admission to the U.N.

Last year, the Afro-Asian nations upheld Hammarskjöld's veto in the face of Soviet opposition, because they liked the way the Swedish diplomat was handling the Congo.

There has been a show-down invasion by U.N. forces when the death of Hammarskjöld, by U.N. itself is shaky. It may be that the Afro-Asians will bow to Soviet will if the alternative is that of the death of Hammarskjöld, which they have a powerful voice. The need for presidential initiative is here.

BERLIN CRISIS — On Berlin, the U.S., Britain, and France have agreed that freedom of the city is not negotiable. Is there any way out short of a war? Kennedy and Hammarskjöld both believe negotiations must be worth trying. De Gaulle, France, says no, not now. Kennedy's great moment exists here, too.

The German Bundestag elections have sapped Chancellor Adenauer's leadership even if he remains as the grumpy, 65-year-old leader of the Christian Democratic Party. He does not live by election, but by the will of the people, strong symbol is needed. The President of the U.S. must be it.

Is the U.N. the emotional issue of Red China's admission comes at a time when even a firm hand at the helm cannot prevent debate. The U.S. no longer has the votes to keep it off. The U.S. position is a show-down. Red China, U.N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson is working for approval of an interim committee to study the admission of new members.

But this is postponement, not solution. And it comes when powerful voices, notably Sen. Barry Goldwater, Arizona, a possible Republican vice-presidential pick, is advocating a position, this in the country.

FINANCIAL BLOCUS THREATENED — It is simply that the U.S. government has a choice. Our government will, from that moment until the action is revoked, suspend its political and financial relations with the U.S. and the U.S. Goldwater's theory is that the U.S. cannot exist without U.S. participation and dollars, and that the other countries know it. But what if Russia is not interested in dollars, and the U.S. is not interested in Russia's goods?

In this controversy, and in all the others which have the free world reeling, the President has an opportunity to give to many men. The hour is ripe for greatness. Many think Kennedy said for this moment. Now it is here. The world is waiting.

VIEWS OF OTHERS

BEAT IDAHO'S IDAHO ON MOVE — The Idaho Press has reported that the state's largest newspaper is to move to the valley town of Teton.

The General Foods corporation announced the purchase of land for development of a new potato processing plant. Shelley heard that it is being considered for location of a large new potato processing plant at the Idaho Falls area. The reasons are mostly the constantly re-arranging of the Idaho potato industry.

SUDDENLY, WE'RE NOT HUNGRY — Today we're going to only eat peas as to the No. 1 expense item in the family budget.

You're right, it's taxes.

The Idaho Press presented the heaviest outcry! The Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc. slips the nasty news to us that food—taxes are going to be a household budget item—now far outstripped by taxes.

In 1960, the country's tax bill was 113 billion dollars—compared to a food bill of 78 1/2 billion. This year the tax bill is 117 billion and the food bill was 117 billion and the tax bill came to only 124 billion—a figure which seems almost unbelievable today. Now the tax bill is at least 20 per cent greater than the food bill, and the difference is growing wider.

Tax collectors take at least one dollar out of every dollar you receive, have been so for years. The buck goes for a variety of taxes—necessarily included in the end price. And to list all these taxes, it would take a book as big as the size of a barn door—Star Valley, Wyo., is independent.

THE BUREAUCRAT ETERNAL — Over in Great Britain officials informed a couple of young ladies that their mother had died. They went to the funeral, but the woman who was living with one of them and hadn't even been near the water. At the inquest, however, the woman remained completely loyal to the verdict and said if the woman wanted to come to life again she would have to apply to the courts for an order to quash the findings of the inquest. As he was called in to testify, the woman said she was concerned. The bureaucrat is eternal and much the same wherever you find him.—Memphis Commercial Appeal

COSTLY GENEROSITY — It is not the tragedy that America must occasionally suffer, but the tragedy that it has learned to live with. The tragedy is in the realization that the more you give, the more you lose. The tragedy is in the realization that the more you give, the more you lose. The tragedy is in the realization that the more you give, the more you lose.

COVERING THE CAPITAL WITH PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The biggest man in the United Nations today is 175 feet two inches tall. He is Peter Edson, a French-speaking Moslem of Algerian descent.

During the dispute with France over the port of Bizerte, Tunisia, Edson accepted a loan from the United Nations to help Tunisia. He also attended the 1958 Belgrade conference of the 23rd session of the General Assembly. The other possible source of opposition to Mongi Slim might come from the French, against whom he has been waging political war for 25 years.

After completing his formal education in mathematics and law at University of Paris, the young Mongi Slim returned to Tunisia to work for the Constitutional Liberal Party. He also worked for the Tunisian independence, in cooperation with the French.

Edson became permanent secretary of the party committee. He organized party cells in Tunisia and headed with the French. He also worked for the Tunisian independence, in cooperation with the French.

There is no provision in the U.S. Charter for naming a successor of the secretary-general in case of death.

Article 94 of the charter says that the secretary-general shall be appointed by the general assembly on recommendation of the security council.

There is no provision in the charter making the choice of secretary-general a recommendation of the security council, or giving any of the permanent members a veto. The appointment must be determined by majority vote, 8 to 5 or better.

This condition operates as a kind of blockade to any candidate for secretary-general.

In the case of Mongi Slim, if the U.S. votes against his appointment, it might block the election of any candidate for secretary-general.

 WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—Until the middle of next month Germany will be ruled by a lame-duck government.

After that, answers must be sought for the long-delayed problems.

The more pressing the Berlin crisis becomes, the more the Soviet threat to East Germany even will be recognized.

The chief problem is the West's free access to Berlin.

Between the East and West, there is a strong economic tie, which requires open communications. The same principle could be a decisive bargaining point in the Berlin talks.

The Adenauer government took initiative, but never decided steps for membership in the West. Poland over the last Oct.-Nov. elections.

TIMES-NEWS PUBLIC FORUM—VOICE OF THE READER

Dangerous Rail Crossing at Hansen Is Cited by Writer

Editor, Times-News: Yesterday, Sept. 21, a train hit a gasoline truck driven by a young friend of mine. This could have been a very serious accident, but fortunately the driver was able to walk away and is now recovering in his hospital. I know many people are going to say "good heavens, how could it happen to get hit by a train!" Please allow me to set them straight.

Don't think this sort of accident is rare, then there are many residents of Hansen who can tell you of many near hits they have had at this crossing, where are more at fault but were more lucky. Yes, I said lucky. There are three trucks to cross and there is no blinker light, no bell, or even a good reflector light warning of a train track. At night this is particularly hazardous as the train is on a light under the train, and you go full speed ahead thinking the track is clear. This may account for the fact that you only need to have it happen once to know that it is true.

For those who wish to know, this crossing is the one on the road to Magic Mountain, which is a lot of traffic this winter.

It took several fatal accidents to get rid of the yellow light, but now you have to wait for this to happen before this crossing is investigated and blinker lights are installed.

MRS. PETER M. LINK, JR. (Hansen)

Area Police Judge Comments On Traffic Court 'Leniency'

Editor, Times-News: Some time has elapsed now since the trial incident which took the lives of six people in the Magic Valley. Failure to yield the right-of-way was the cause of the tragic accident. It was only a month prior to this accident that another woman was killed under the same circumstances.

The county has replaced most of these yield-the-right-of-way signs and placed stop signs there. It is going to solve or even lessen the number of lives snuffed out. As the present police judge of Castelford and former justice of the peace I still keep note of the traffic fines imposed on violators.

The present justices of the peace now have offices to add to the dignity of the courts. Fine and costs are $7 and $3 costs enough for failure to yield the right-of-way or even for running a stop sign. It is a disgrace for these same violators I also see, part of the fines suspended and in other cases where the judge imposes fine and jail sentences to suspend the fine and jail sentences then why the suspension. If they can't pay the fine they have to go to the county jail. If more traffic judges would get the "get-tough policy" on moving traffic violations they might put some fear on these violators. If this tough policy interferes with one's other jobs or possibly with his party in such an accident, these accidents don't happen to just other people.

I realize traffic fines may send more to jail, but what we need in our county is a work farm similar to that of the state, where, whereby anyone sentenced to serve fines and jail sentences could be put in the poor fund to take care of the needs of their families. I feel sometimes some of these serving time for forgery and petty larceny are making a plenty of it playing cards knowing at the same time the county is taking care of their families.

I feel to suspend part of a fine or jail sentence to a driver, driving a child with a whipping who has disobeyed and time and time again the same thing happens and a whipping is never administered. The traffic violator soon feels like the traffic judge is a "good Joe" and subconsciously keeps on like he always does. The only way to get them to think it is to dig down in their jeans until it hurts.

I don't want to leave the impression that I think all traffic violators are criminals because I don't. They are the average run of citizens who carry the costs of life on their mind while they are driving which sometimes ends up with traffic violations or even accidents. I feel we should all be careful to leave these cars behind when we get behind the wheel of a car.

"Outdoor Living Edition" Is Praised by C. of C. Manager

This number of cars represent an estimated 135,828 people served by our tourist booth.

Light Signal on Uphill Lanes Is Asked by Writer

Editor, Times-News: I have met truck drivers on the highway who signaled for me to go around when they knew of a three-lane road—two lanes up hill and one down.

What I would like to see this time of year when the sun is only 30 to 45 minutes high and shining down the middle of the road, is for everybody to turn on their lights.

You can then see the car that is coming and also see the red taillight if you are coming in back of another car. It may seem out-of-place, but when we preach and talk about the need for improvement it is a good idea.

Several have been doing it so why not all. The life you save may be your own.

Steer Grounded After Tussle With Farmers

A star-climbing steer offered farmers J. O. Eslinger and Malvin Eslinger, Twin Falls, something to worry about besides H-ombs and high taxes Saturday. The steer climbed a slatway into the loft of a barn on the Eslinger farm Saturday morning. The problem was how to get the animal back down. With American ingenuity they started slacking hay from the ground up to the loft. The steer, being suspicious of this type of exit, however, required some help pushing in the right direction before it would leave via the small door. The hay trick worked though, once again proving the old adage what's up eventually comes down, and the summit-seeking bovine is now grounded—the Eslingers hope permanently. (Staff photo-enslaving)

GOODING, Sept. 23 — Need for establishing a mental health center in Magic Valley, with the possibility of branch offices in Gooding and Burley, was stressed at a meeting of the Gooding County Mental Health Association at the Lincoln Inn here Wednesday night. Dr. Luther Thompson, director of the south central district, described some of the administrative and mechanical problems involved in establishing a center. Dr. Thompson is hopeful that such a center may be established with qualified personnel. Many of the people attending made a tour of Tyler hall at the State Tuberculosis hospital which has been suggested as a possible location for a mental health center in Gooding. Jack Sienick, Boise, acting director of the mental health division of the Idaho department of health, was the main speaker. More than 60 persons from throughout Magic Valley attended, including state legislators, county commissioners, clergymen, public health nurses, educators and other interested persons. Emerson Pugmire, Hagerman, chairman of the south central district health unit, was master of ceremonies. Mrs. Harold Henderson, Gooding, using charts, pointed out the number of persons from this area who are patients at Idaho State hospital south of Boise, and the industrial training school at St. Anthony. Sienick explained that the mental health division has a projected 20-year program for the establishment of mental health centers throughout the state. In 1961 the Ada county center began at Boise. Since that time one has been opened in Pocatello and one is now beginning in Lewiston. In addition to these Idaho Falls has shown an interest.

The centers are financed both by the counties through mill levies and through funds supplied by the state health department. With so many counties cooperating in Magic Valley, only about three-fourths of a mill would be needed from each county to make such a venture financially feasible, the official said. Sienick said that ideally a center would be for purposes of treatment, consultation and community education. Eventually the staff might include a part-time psychiatrist, a clinical social worker and a psychologist. In such an area, he continued, it is possible that the best arrangement would be to have the main clinic located at Twin Falls with branch offices in Gooding and Burley. It was noted that even though there is some expense involved in operating such a center, total expense to the state would be less considering that fewer patients would have to be referred to hospitals for care where the cost per patient per diem is $2.00.

WHAT CAIN'S NEW TWO YEAR MAYTAG WASHER SERVICE POLICY MEANS TO YOU...

A MESSAGE OF VITAL INTEREST to Every Homemaker Who Owns or Ever Intends to Own a Washing Machine

Practically every survey made by the washing machine industry or independent research organization pinpoints one very important fact in the thinking of the homemaker of America.

YOU ladies want to know why "they" (the washing machine manufacturers) "don't make them like they used to." It would be easy for these manufacturers and their dealers to say "You can't offer all of the automatic and labor-saving features that homemakers want and demand without having trouble." Yes, manufacturers and dealers could say this, and some do.

It's mighty easy to find excuses and with some of this you must agree. You must agree until that washday morning when your automatic breaks down on the first load, you have to wring your clothes out by hand and you still have three more loads to do.

Then you wonder—"Why can't they make them like they used to?" Here at Cain's we say, "Maytag is not just making them like they used to—but making them better." Making them so much better that we are offering not the normal one-year service plan, but TWO FULL YEARS' SERVICE WITH EVERY MAYTAG AUTOMATIC AND WRINGER-TYPE WASHER.

Simply that when you buy a Maytag washer from our store, it is our responsibility to keep it in perfect running condition for two full years.

If at any time during the two years after your Maytag is installed you should have trouble, we will service it at no cost to you.

Our factory-trained serviceman is as close to your Maytag as your telephone. Why are we making this offer? Why are we daring to "break all the 'old rules' of washer service?"

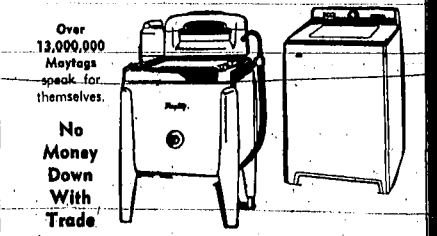

First of all this offer is based upon fact and we do not make it lightly! Washing machine sales and service are our business. We stock parts for the first Maytag washer. If we didn't believe that the Maytag washer we are offering you today was so completely dependable and trouble-free, we would not and could not afford to make this offer. However—we do believe that this is the most dependable Maytag ever, and our service records prove it.

These service records reflect the perfection in quality control at the Maytag factory.

Don't you want the satisfaction of knowing that you have purchased the most dependable, most trouble-free washer your money can buy?

Don't you want the satisfaction of knowing that your new washer is backed by a firm that believes "Service is the unseen value in the appliance you buy?"

Believes it to the point that it backs it with a complete parts inventory and one of Magic Valley's largest and most complete service departments. We think you do... and this is exactly what Cain's new Two-Year Maytag Service plan means to YOU.

Over 13,000,000 Maytags speak for themselves. No Money Down With Trade

EASIEST TERMS

*The Maytag warranty gives one year on all parts plus an additional four years on the transmission assembly. Cain's now backs this with two full years' service.

Bakery Department Added to Local Store

Slicing loaves of bread from the new Lynwood Bakery store, from left, Mrs. Helen Oyer and Mrs. Robert Young, proprietors of the new bakery. The bakery is one of several new innovations at the Lynwood store, including extensive remodeling to accommodate the new bakery, new cash registers and new checkout stands with conveyor belts to move products from the cashier to the checker.

New Bakery Is Completed at T.F. Store in Lynwood Area

A major remodeling and redecking project was recently completed at the Lynwood shopping center Safeway store, according to Lee Vanderdoes, store manager.

Biggest change at the store was remodeling of a former produce storage room to accommodate a new bakery, one of five new gateway bakeries in the food chain's 80 Safeway division stores.

Other innovations at the store include seven new stainless steel checkout stands and four new stands were replaced by more efficient units with short conveyor belts to move products from the cashier to the checker.

Bakery Manager George Canoy notes that the bakery produces about 350 loaves of bread each day, including several unusual varieties such as apple cinnamon, Dutch crutch and cinnamon, besides standard sandwich bread. The new plant also features decorated wedding cakes, which can be ordered one day in advance.

T.F. Library Receives 12 New Books

Twelve new books have been added this week to the Twin Falls public library, according to Arthur L. DeVolder, library director.

"A Nation of Sheep" by William J. Lederer, which deals with American foreign policy and the relationships with peoples of the world and effectiveness of our foreign aid policy. "Builders of Empire" by Verne A. Michelis, telling who the new leaders are and what they think, and "Background of the 'New Ground,'" an anthology of articles from the New York Times magazine are the three books of timely interest.

For those interested in scientific advancement, Willard Bascom's "A Hole in the Mountain" is the best of the "Mondro" project in which scientists are boring a hole five to six miles down the earth's crust to reveal information on geology, oceanography, drilling techniques and other scientific data.

For those interested by other scientific techniques, "A First Course in Sound Recording" and "Reproduction" is helpful, while communications through books, newspapers, magazines, radio, television, films, schools and libraries are studied in "Freedom and Communications" by Dan Lacey. More information on libraries is available in "Public Libraries for Everyone" by Hawthorne Daniel.

"The Navigator," "Prison Diaries" by O. K. Armstrong discuss battles that have meant much in the development of U. S. history.

Other current selections include "Who With the Vikings" by E. S. Marshall, who tells the discovery of North America five centuries prior to Columbus landing; "The House of Old Vine" by Norma Lott; who presents a vivid and colorful picture of the 18th century in England; and "Heaven by the Home" by Marina Delaney, who tells a fictional account of a woman who leaves the life of a theatrical star to enter a cloister.

Lincoln Fair Board Lauds County Agent

SHOSHONE, Sept. 23—Members of the Lincoln county fair board, at a meeting Thursday night, expressed appreciation to County Extension Agent J. Howard Manning for the outstanding work he has done at the county fairgrounds since his assignment here. Manning will be leaving the county soon for Twin Falls where he will be assistant agent.

The group decided to install new glass blocks for the windows at the restrooms. There has been a lot of vandalism there, and not only have the glass windows been broken out of the building, but the masonry panels, inserted by FFA boys in place of the glass, also have been broken as well as the cranks that open the windows.

The two doors to the women's department display building have also been broken by vandals and must be replaced, it was noted.

There was discussion regarding need to purchase booths for the dog and bingo booth stands; to be rented to organizations during the fair. The cost will be investigated, and the matter will be taken up in the spring.

Also considered was the need for bleachers to be used at the animal judging arenas, and the shack racks need repair to prevent overflow of water.

Some type of railing, or rope fence, will be prepared to run along the 4-H clothing projects, but a permanent type railing will not be considered as it would prevent the building being used for other purposes during the year.

After discussion regarding the amount of money to pay for points earned by youths at the county and district fairs, the board voted to pay 40 cents a point.

Combined holdover stores in Jackson and Pocatello, Idaho, were valued at $1,200,000, according to a report by a year ago.

Stores in American Falls and Walcott is now 11,000 acre-feet compared to 10,000 acre-feet a year ago.

WHAT WILSON-BATES NEW TWO YEAR MAYTAG WASHER SERVICE POLICY MEANS TO YOU...

A MESSAGE OF VITAL INTEREST to Every Homemaker Who Owns or Ever Intends to Own a Washing Machine

Practically every survey made by the washing machine industry or independent research organization pinpoints one very important fact in the thinking of the homemaker of America.

YOU ladies want to know why "they" (the washing machine manufacturers) "don't make them like they used to." It would be easy for these manufacturers and their dealers to say "You can't offer all of the automatic and labor-saving features that homemakers want and demand without having trouble." Yes, manufacturers and dealers could say this, and so do.

It's mighty easy to find excuses and with some of this you must agree. You must agree until that washday morning when your automatic breaks down on the first load, you have to wring your clothes out by hand and you still have three more loads to do.

Then you wonder—"Why can't they make them like they used to?"

Here at Wilson-Bates we say, "Maytag is not just making them like they used to—but making them better." Making them so much better that we are offering not the normal one-year service plan, but TWO FULL YEARS' SERVICE WITH EVERY MAYTAG AUTOMATIC AND WRINGER-TYPE WASHER.

Simply that when you buy a Maytag washer from our store, it is our responsibility to keep it in perfect running condition for two full years.*

If at any time during the two years after your Maytag is installed you should have trouble, we will service it at no cost to you.

Our factory-trained serviceman is as close to your Maytag as your telephone. Why are we making this offer? Why are we daring to "break all the 'old rules' of washer service?"

First of all—this offer is based upon fact and we do not make it lightly! Washing machine sales and service are our business. We stock parts for the first Maytag washer. If we didn't believe that the Maytag washer we are offering you today was so completely dependable and trouble-free, we would not and could not afford to make this offer. However—we do believe that this is the most dependable Maytag ever, and our 1960 Maytag records prove it.

These records show that we made less than one service call per Maytag washing machine sold during 1960.

Don't you want the satisfaction of knowing that you have purchased the most dependable, most trouble-free washer your money can buy?

Don't you want the satisfaction of knowing that your new washer is backed by a firm that believes "Service is the unseen value in the appliance you buy?"

Believes it to the point that it backs it with a complete parts inventory and one of Magic Valley's largest and most complete service departments. We think you do . . . and this is exactly what Wilson-Bates new Two-Year Maytag Service Plan means to YOU.

Elegantly Fused

ISC DUMPS MINES; OREGON BURIES IDAHO

42-Yard Punt Return Is Highlight of Bengals' 50-6 Revenge Decision

POCATELLO, Sept. 23 (UPI)—Idaho State college rolled over visiting Colorado Mines 50-6 today as the Bengals unveiled several new offensive weapons that they threw the entire bench into the battle. The Bengals gained 435 yards on the ground to the visiting Oregridgers' 134 yards in offensive play. ISC scored early in the first period and never let go of the lead. Halfback Herman Noblisse went through tackle for three yards and made the extra-point attempt on a pass from quarterback Chuck Forrestal. The longest run of the game came in the third period when receiver Earl Thornton took an Oregridger punt and returned 42 yards for the touchdown.

Wisconsin Sputters Past Redskins 7-0

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 23 (UPI)—Wisconsin's sputtering offense clicked for only one touchdown, on a 42-yard pass from quarterback Ron Miller to end Pat Richter, today for a 7-0 victory over underrated Utah. The Utes displayed a sophomore passer with plenty of promise, Gary Hertzfeld, who took advantage of a break late in the game to drive his team to the Badger 18 before a 34-yard scoring touch-down was thrown back with 22 seconds to play.

Orange Uses Fumbles To Top Oregon State

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 23 (UPI)—Syracuse's alert defenders set up two touchdowns by All-American halfback Ernie Davis today as the powerful Orangemen defeated Oregon State 19-8 in an intercollegiate football game when played only a little more than half the time on offense, broke off tackle for a 10-yard scoring run in the first period and packed the ball five straight times for the final Syracuse touchdown.

Oregon State, operating out of the 2-formation for the first time under coach Tommy Froth, got its only score on a fabulous 36-yard run by quarterback Terry Baker. That touchdown and Baker's two-point conversion put Oregon State ahead at 8-7 in the first period.

But Syracuse got back in the lead in short order after tackle Stan Sokol recovered a fumble on the Oregon State 21 and quarterback Dave Barrett scored from a yard out.

It was another fumble recovery—this one by guard Leonard Slaby—that led to the first Syracuse touchdown. Slaby got the ball on the Oregon State 15. Quarterback Gary Pallow made five. Davis raced in to score.

Syracuse put Oregon State in the hole early in the second half when halfback Dick Easterly intercepted Baker's pass on the Oregon State 41.

"Twice the Easterners drove inside the Oregon State 10 but were held off. Terry Easterly returned a punt-17 yards to the Beaver 18 and Davis took over.

He ran for gains of four, four, five and three yards and carried the ball in for the two. Baker, whose passing game was thwarted by the hard-charging Syracuse game, brought the crowd to its feet late in the first quarter.

It broke away from six Syracuse defenders at the line of scrimmage, picked up a couple of blocks and scored unopposed. Syracuse, hampered by penalties, lost another scoring chance in the first period after Barrett passed to end John Mackey on the Oregon State five.

But Oregon State's Hank Rivers intercepted a pass on the goal line.

Oregon State threatened late in the game when it moved to the Syracuse 11 but the Orangemen held.

Ducks Amass 544 Yards in Scoring 51-0 Whitewash

EUGENE, Ore., Sept. 23 (UPI)—The lightning-quick Oregon Ducks exploded for six second-half touchdowns to post a 51-0 victory over undermanned Idaho before 17,300 opening day football fans today. Sophomore halfbacks Mel Renfro and Lu Bain and junior quarterback Ron Veres paced the Ducks attack. Renfro scored Oregon's first touchdown on the second time. The Ducks got the ball by scampering 60 yards. The fleet halfback, one of the all-time Oregon scorers, set up another tally in the third period with a 42-yard punt return and a 26-yard run from scrimmage.

Pirates Score Early, Drop Carey 12-0

CAREY, Sept. 23—The Hagerman Pirates struck for two touchdowns in the first quarter and then battered the Carey Panthers on even terms to carry a 13-0 victory Friday afternoon.

Hagerman took the opening kickoff and marched 55 yards in seven plays. Bob Simmons went in from three yards out and Ken McGinnis converted.

Carey bunched back with a sleeper play right after the kickoff and the pass settled for yards and an apparent touchdown. But it was nullified on a penalty. The pass went to Lynn Cook to Ed Williams.

Minutes later, Darwin Pugmire got the last Hagerman score on a 12-yard run to cap a drive that started with a Carey fumble on the 45-yard line.

Although Carey moved the ball well at times, the Panthers were unable to score. They had one other touchdown with runs of one, five and 18 yards, respectively.

Filer Claims 27-0 Victory Over Wendell

WENDELL, Sept. 23—The Filer Wildcats picked up a touchdown per quarter last night and handed the injury-riddled Wendell Trojans a 27-0 setback.

It looked for awhile as if Stanford would run the string to 12 when Tulane grabbed a 7-3 lead in the third period. The touchdown was set up when sophomore Stanford quarterback Steve Thimlow nudged an attempt pitched to Mike Barnes to the Indians' two-yard line and Tommy Cato recovered for the Orangemen. Stein smashed over from the one two plays later and Charles Connell kicked the extra-point.

The Indians' victory marched Dan Lammeris skirted end and hit paydirt from five yards out with Lorain adding the extra point.

Lorain engineered a quarterback rollout go for eight yards and the third score in the third period. A pass from Adam Baege capped the drive effort in the last quarter. Pedrow converted on that touchdown.

Wendell, with two backfield players out in injuries, moved in the other direction and Ross added the 25-yard line three times but couldn't muster the final scoring punch.

Pioneer Study on Sagehens Being Made at Game Farm Near Jerome

JEROME, Sept. 23—A pioneer study on a native game bird, sage grouse, or as they're widely known, sagehens, is underway at the state game farm southeast of Jerome.

The study, under the direction of Duane Pyrah, game biologist, eventually will provide evidence that will be used in later studies of the sagehen. As Pyrah says, "This study is what you would call the ground level for later studies. We will be able to eliminate biases and make a better study."

The project, which actually started last year, is one of the first detailed studies of the sage grouse. And it is just the beginning of many more.

Studies Growth Rate

Pyrah, with the aid of Loren Pitts, has been making an exhaustive study of growth rate and molting patterns of the sage grouse—the farm-raised sage grouse themselves is a milestone, for little experimentation has been done along this line.

It has been believed for a long time that the birds couldn't be raised in captivity because the wild diet and living circumstances just couldn't be provided artificially. But, so far, Pyrah has disproved this.

Myths About Birds

For instance, Pyrah notes there are a lot of myths concerning the birds. Some persons have maintained the birds can't live without a good supply of ants in their diet, and without sawdust during their early life.

So far this hasn't been true. The healthy birds he has raised have been fed a combination of pheasant feed, chopped alfalfa and chopped meal worms.

He has varied the amount throughout the growing period. They were fed more often when young birds.

Studies Two Things

There are two things Pyrah is studying — molting patterns and growth rate. When certain facts are established concerning the way the birds molt and the speed with which they grow, these known factors will equip the biologist with tools that can be used in the field.

The ultimate purpose of the study is to make sure there are always enough sagehens to provide open seasons.

Field Work Needed

Although much of the work towards this goal is under way now at the game farm, there remains much field work.

Since May, Pyrah and Pitts have kept detailed records concerning the growth of the birds. Every two weeks each one of the 25 birds is weighed and measured. They have been kept under close study since they were hatched. Some cocks now weigh nearly four pounds.

Records Kept

During incubation, the growth of the birds' skeletons and the pattern of molting have been carefully documented. Every two weeks they are weighed, their 10 primary wing and tail feathers are measured, and the length of their feet, legs and wings are measured.

By noting facts about the birds at certain ages, it will be possible to learn more about the sage grouse in the wild state. For instance, (Staff photo-engraving)

New Dormitory Provided for Girl Students at T.F. College

Three students at Twin Falls Business College lounge in their rooms in the new dormitory provided by Mr. and Mrs. Merle Hartzell, 293 Shoshone street north. There are 10 girls living in the dormitory. It is owned and operated by the Hartzells and is approved by the college. They have dormitory regulations, just as most college dormitories. The girls are, from left, Kay Skinner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Skinner, Salmon; Sandra Rupert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vinson Rupert, and Barbara Linard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Linard, both Rupert. Dormitory Established Here for Girls Attending College in T.F.

One of the newest additions to Twin Falls is a girls' dormitory, the first one in the city. It is operated for girls who attend the Twin Falls Business College.

Named Hartzell hall, it is located at 293 Shoshone north and is operated by Mr. and Mrs. Merle Hartzell.

According to Sterling Larsen, president of the college, the school has tried to get a suitable dormitory started for several years. One of the problems has been to find a home close to the school where there was proper supervision, and one that would be economical to operate.

The dormitory didn't have to be elaborate, he says, but it did have to meet the above requirements.

At Hartzell hall the girls have the second floor of a large private home. The floor has been completely renovated and furnished. It is clean and bright and offers the girls all the comforts they would find in a dormitory anywhere.

There are 10 girls living in the new dormitory, which opened when the fall term started, Sept. 18.

All of the girls are from neighboring Magic Valley towns.

Rooms are divided so there are from two to three girls in each room. They have ample closet and study space and there is a large kitchen in the middle of the second floor.

The girls "not only sleep and study there, but they have dinner there, too." (Continued on Page 24, Column 1)

War Danger, Fallout No Joke Now; Residents Rush to Build Shelters

Sheriff James H. Benham, who is also Twin Falls county civil defense director, shows some pamphlets he has on hand in his office. The pamphlets answer all questions concerning hazards presented by fallout, and also point out how the average citizen can prepare to protect himself and his family. In the past few weeks the number of persons requesting information has increased 10 fold on some days. (Staff photo-engraving)

It seems atomic attack and the danger of subsequent radioactive fallout in this area is no longer the joking matter it was to citizens just a few months ago.

Since the Berlin crisis and the resumption of atomic tests in Russia, local citizens have changed their minds on a lot of things—and one thing in particular—fallout shelters. Persons interested in getting details on how to construct shelters and hide from invading fallout have walked into Sheriff James Benham's office in the county courthouse daily and picked up the printed booklets available.

Benham also is the county civil defense director, and he keeps a large supply of pamphlets in his office that explain the dangers of nuclear attack, the radioactive fallout that follows and how to lessen the dangers of living after a nuclear holocaust.

Requests increase

Until recently, there were only two or three visitors a day at the office in search of the material. Some days that number increased to 10 fold. He estimates that between 10 and 20 persons request pamphlets on "fallout" each day.

Most of the requests are for the pamphlets that tell how to build shelters. The pamphlets describe construction details and offer a list of materials needed.

Deadly Serpents

Benham says the people visiting his office are from all walks of life and of all ages. And they are serious in their search for material. A few months ago some of the persons who built shelters tended to be apologetic, they were slightly embarrassed at their precautions and offered excuses. But Benham says this isn't true now. They are deadly serious in wanting to know what they can do to protect themselves and their families, and they aren't embarrassed about their concern.

What's in It for Us?

Benham points out that within just a short distance there are two prime targets—Mountain Home. Ground winds aren't the winds that always present the greatest danger. It is the "high wind" from 30,000 to 100,000 feet that carry the radioactive material and sometimes drop it on the countryside, sometimes hundreds of miles away.

"It is fallout in its entirety of radioactive debris that is dangerous, the accompanying wind is a secondary hazard," Benham says. "Ground winds aren't the wind that always present the greatest danger. It is the 'high wind' from 30,000 to 100,000 feet that carry the radioactive material and sometimes drop it on the countryside, sometimes hundreds of miles away."

Area School Teacher Returns to Scene of Her Early Student Days

"My father says I'm right back where I started from, but I don't think so. This time I'm on the other side of the desk."

This is a comment by Bernice (nee) Whittlesey regarding her present position as a second-grade teacher at Washington.

Yet, in some respects, she is right back where she started from. For she now teaches in the room where she formerly school, she was both pleased and surprised.

Teaching in your old elementary school is an experience. She points out that working day in the surroundings where she spent several years of her life serves to refresh her memory on her early school years and call up many recollections of grade school life.

The room in which she teaches room 17, recently has been converted into a classroom as a result of the squeeze for space. In the past it was used as a multipurpose room, where the children spent their time during bad weather. The room now forms two classrooms.

It also was the room where she had her first teaching experience. (Continued on Page 24, Column 2)

U.S. Emigrants Enjoying Good Life "Down Under"

BRISBANE, Australia, Sept. 23 (AP)—Howard Gardner (Bill) Ludwig, 46, a native-born American in Hawaii in July 1957 and survived his future.

He had risen to chief warrant officer. He had a pension of $280 a month. He was 46. He had a wife, five children, and a car.

The navy would fly him and his family to Australia to provide a new life.

Should he take his family back to Santa Barbara, Calif., where he was born on Bath street. Or should he take them to Los Angeles where his sister, Helen, lives.

"Or should they go back to Brisbane, the sub-tropical Australian city where he had lived and worked for 10 years in 1946 during World War II.

The Ludwig happened, for one thing, that Bill Ludwig would go further "Down Under" than he would in the United States.

So the family became seven of the 1,241 American immigrants, diplomats and resident businessmen who came to Australia from the United States in 1957.

They got here well before Alan Yankus, the best-known American migrant who came from Dowagiac, Mich., in 1958.

He migrated to Australia to provide a new life.

Yankus now is working for an "airline" department store—$440 a week.

Bill Ludwig quickly got a job as storeman-clerk in a department store of Brisbane, a city of 600,000. He stockpiled his pension.

By September 1959, they had enough for the down payment on the "Verona Service store," a corner grocery in the suburb of Verona, four miles out of the city. He borrowed $67,700 from the bank to complete the purchase.

Today, with the pension still coming in, Ludwig is booming in the shop, and the bank loan being paid off, they are on top of the bottom of the world.

Not all the Americans who have migrated to Australia are as satisfied as the Ludwig family. Some have gone home. Some have stayed, though wishing they were back home. Registered unemployment in Australia at the last count was 2.7 per cent of the work-force.

But the success of the Ludwig family is by no means an isolated example of Americans coming to Australia and doing well.

The family lives in a six-room frame dwelling attached to the shop. It has electricity, a hot water system—and a berry den in the garden path.

"The climate" says Bill Ludwig, "is like Southern California, except that it's better, it's the bank to complete the purchase."

Ex-Tuttle Postmaster Cuts Cake

Mrs. Lulu Ravenscroft, former postmaster at T. Tuttle, prepares to cut a cake in observance of her 85th birthday anniversary earlier this month. Born of Scotch and Irish parents, she came to Filer in 1914, later moving to Tuttle where her husband, the late T. L. Ravenscroft, farmed for many years before his death. The couple also operated a hardware store as well as the postoffice. (Leda's photo—staff engraving)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

High school class reunions, which are held each year in many Magic Valley communities, often serve to point out the outstanding accomplishments of some of the alumni. Such was the case when the TWIN FALLS high school class of 1914 held its reunion recently. One of the graduates, Fland Knapp Miller, now president of the Miller Construction company, Los Angeles, born in Lebanon, Ky., Miller comes from a family steeped in the annals of construction history. It is estimated the Miller family has been in the construction work for the past 200 years.

Even though he came from a well-established family, when young Miller came to the United States in 1911 he was entirely on his own and worked at odd jobs, such as a soda jerk in Alabama and salesman of patent medicine in Missouri. But some remarkable stories of life in the West caused him to make his way to Boise where his brothers and cousins maintained a branch office of their construction firm, North Pacific Construction company.

When he arrived the office was closed, since the company was working in Twin Falls on a school project—the very school which Miller had just graduated from. The building, on Shoshone street north, is now the Twin Falls Junior high school.

The first permanent building erected by the firm was the former WENDT hotel, built in 1910. The structure later housed the old St. Valentine's hospital and now is the Magic Valley sanatorium, a nursing home at 21st street.

Young Miller got his first taste of the business as a water-boy and housekeeper, soon advancing to bookkeeper. Later he advanced to supervision and estimating and became a full-fledged partner in the firm.

A building boom attracted the company to establish headquarters in Los Angeles in 1921. Since then, the firm and its branches have constructed many outstanding landmarks across America, including a bureau of reclamation project on the Rio Grande river in New Mexico and the Great Salt Plains dam near Eudora, Okla., the Ninth street viaduct in Los Angeles and the original installations at March field air force base near Riverside, Calif.

Probably the most advanced accomplishment of the Magic Valley graduate is the revolutionary development in tunnel construction known as the "Miller Mole." Miller took a $400,000 gamble on the idea and it paid off. The machine set a new record for soft rock tunneling.

The construction official told classmates here that he is paying for the education of 21 children.

honored on her 85th birthday anniversary Sept. 21. Postmaster—Mrs. Ravenscroft ran a hardware store in conjunction with their farming. They started the business in 1922 in a building they purchased and moved to a site on the ranch near their home.

The postoffice had been across the road in the SAKIN HOME was moved into the hardware building and Mrs. Ravenscroft became postmaster in 1921, after her daughter, Mrs. Fay Crawford, resigned.

Mrs. Ravenscroft and her husband, the late T. L. Ravenscroft, and two children came to Tuttle in March, 1919, after purchasing an 80-acre tract of land that had one small field clear of brush and a small house in which to live.

That small structure still serves as a garage on the now productive farm bought by the Ravenscrofts from Frank, and his wife in 1937. It still is famous by them.

Mrs. Ravenscroft was born in 1876 in Eureka, Kans., and her sense of humor is attributed to her Irish ancestry. Her mother was born aboard ship as her grandparents were en route from Scotland to the U.S. and her father was born in North Ireland.

After their marriage on July 30, 1899, in Eureka, the young couple lived briefly in Washington and Oregon before coming to FILER in December, 1914.

Mrs. Ravenscroft served as postmaster until 1943 when the hardware business was sold to Mr. and Mrs. Brown Douglas and Mrs. Douglas was appointed to the postal job.

Other children of Mrs. Ravenscroft include Mrs. Flossie Farnsworth, Wendell, and Mrs. Murtal Clippner, Modesto, Calif., who comes each year to help her mother celebrate her birthday anniversary.

Another son, Fred, was killed in an auto accident on his 18th birthday anniversary. She also has seven grandchildren and 18 great grandchildren.

Still in good health, Mrs. Ravenscroft has a retentive memory, recalling old times as well as keeping up with current activities and family and friends.

GUEST LEAVES HAGERMAN, Sept. 23 — Mrs. Reed Allen, coming after having spent the past five weeks visiting her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Allen, here.

A 30-foot killer whale, a carnivorous mammal of the Antarctic seas, has been known to attack the giant blue whale, which sometimes reaches 100 feet in length and weighs 185 tons.

American Emigrants Enjoying Life 'Down Under' in New Australia Home

(From Page 21) They appear to be loving life, just the same as most other middle-class youngsters in the United States and Australia. Patricia, Brisbane, born, went to the United States with her mother when she was 11 weeks old, and had all her early education there.

Patricia now goes to St. Ursula's Roman Catholic college, a few miles from home, by train and street car. She hopes to become a school teacher. Her sisters and brother attend the local St. Joseph's primary school. They walk the half-mile each way because, says Mrs. Ludwig, "I believe in exercise."

Says Bill Ludwig on the subject of education, "It's far better in Australia than in the States. Children here get a more complete education and there is more individual teaching. Children have more homework."

The Ludwig family work hard and their children are most Australian.

Their store is open from 6:45 a.m. to 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays, and until noon Saturdays.

Despite competition from self-service chain stores going up in Brisbane suburbs, the Ludwigs have nearly doubled their business in 8 months. Their recipe: Hard work and a smile.

The Ludwigs hope to return to the United States for a holiday in a few years.

"But we'll come back to our home here," he says. "I wouldn't live anywhere else except in Australia."

School Improved

PAUL, Sept. 23—Eugene Humphries, principal of the Pioneer school, reports the school has a new lunch room and a better parking area is being planned. Several trees are being removed to make additional space available. A new fence is being built around the playground.

Elaborate Records Kept on Growth of Birds

Duane Pyrah herds his flock of sagehens into the coop, where he will take elaborate measurements of the growing birds and also weigh them. Since May he has studied the birds. These are practically the only sagehens now in captivity, and some of the first ones raised at the game farm. The eggs were taken from wild nests north of St. Anthony last spring. Pyrah was aided in his search for nests by sheepherders who were ranging flocks in the area. (Staff photo-gravings)

Pioneer Study on Sagehens Is Being Made at Game Farm in Jerome Area

(From Page 21)
It is possible to estimate the age of a wild bird when it is captured, it will be possible to determine when the bird was hatched. This will aid in establishing nesting patterns for certain areas.
The more that is known about the growth and maturation rate of the birds, the more that can be discovered about how the birds fare in the field and how conditions govern their growth.
So few studies have been done concerning the birds, an exact knowledge will be of benefit to bird biologists.
Pyrah has studied sage grouse since his college days. He was graduated from the University of Idaho in 1954. His master's project was a study of the birds. He then worked for the Idaho fish and game commission—the Wyoming fish and game commission and returned to Idaho, always working with sage grouse.
So far as he knows, this is the only study being done on the birds and he has practically the only sage grouse in captivity.
Although some of the birds at the farm were trapped in the field, most have been hatched from eggs taken from nests. Only the birds raised from the egg can be a part of a controlled scientific experiment.
This year he is working with birds that were hatched at the farm last May. The wild birds and the birds that remain from the study last year will be used for an egg-laying study in the near future.
The manner in which Pyrah got the eggs is a good example of how the layman can cooperate with the fish and game commission. All of the eggs were obtained in the country north of St. Anthony with the aid of sheepherders. Pyrah asked several of them to tie a yellow streamer on a sagebrush near any nest they happen to find. The men cooperated and in a short time Pyrah had all the eggs he needed.

Pyrah says the study will be done again next summer with another flock of young birds. This will provide statistics that range over three groups of birds and three years. This also will make sure that the molting pattern isn't subject to bias between the separate years.

F. Southwick Has Worked Almost 20 Years as Leader for 4-H Groups

BUHL, Sept. 23—A person might think that after nearly 20 years of 4-H leader work a man would start to run down. But not Frank Southwick. He already has second generation members in his club. And this is probably a good thing for the 4-H club, for Southwick is a rare leader.
He currently is the co-leader of the Sunnyside livestock club. The other leader is Mrs. James McArthur.
He has led the club since 1953. The club is large and has 30 members who come from homes covering a 40-mile radius. Club members have about 100 projects, representing 19 different types.
Southwick's experience dates back to 1931, when he was young man. He joined a 4-H club in the Buhl area, the Buhl Progressive Dairy club.
He was reared in the Buhl area, after moving there when he was just a baby. His father, F. E. Southwick, moved to that area from near where he had farmed. Southwick attended grade school at the Blue Lakes school and later in Buhl. He was graduated from Buhl high school in 1934.
He farmed for a short time and then took a dairy short course at the University of Idaho in the winter of 1935-36. He worked as a production tester for the dairy herd improvement association in the Pocatello area for nearly a year.
He returned to Twin Falls county where he has farmed south of Buhl since.

FRANK SOUTHWICK

He was the leader of his first club when he was still a member of the club. This was in 1934. It was a dairy club and he led it for two years. He then took on the leadership of the Buhl Progressive Dairy club and led it for several years.
He led clubs through the late 1930's and 1940's and in 1947 he started the Buhl Dairy Maids club, one of the first all girls clubs in the area. He had six members in the club, and in the next few years they did quite well for themselves.
For two years they won the state awards in dairy demonstration and went on to the Pacific International Livestock exposition in Portland. All told, five teams during his career—as a leader have won state contests and gone on to the exposition in Portland.
In addition to working with various clubs, in—the past, Southwick has also served as a superintendent of 4-H livestock projects and as superintendent of the agricultural demonstrations at the Twin Falls county fair.

This kind of work takes plenty of time. He has two regular meetings a month with his club, plus about two work meetings each week. He tries to keep his club busy 11 months a year. This is a good record, and Southwick believes that activity leads to the development of a good club. The smaller projects can be undertaken during the winter and during the school months. Members can concentrate on the livestock projects later in the year.
Southwick, obviously, has a strong regard for 4-H work. Commenting on the work, he says, "I don't care if they forget part, or of all of what they undertake during a project. But they do a project they have at least learned how to complete a job. They also learn how to win and lose. Anyone can win, but it takes a good sport to lose."
He points out that even if the club members don't go into farming, they will at least accomplish something by learning how to do something themselves. It is one part of their schooling that is not compulsory, but a phase where they learn by doing.
In the time he has been active as a leader, the activity of the 4-H club has increased greatly. To illustrate, he points out that in the late 1930's there were

Permits Show Rupert Boom For Building

RUPERT, Sept. 23—Building permits approved this week by the Rupert city council totaled more than $100,000.
The largest single permit—$50,000—was for the Rocky Mountain Chemical corporation for extensive remodeling of the present plant facilities to include a frozen French fry line to its present operation of extracting alcohol from cull potatoes.
Next largest was for $28,000 to Inland Warehouse terminal for construction of a 40- by 210-foot warehouse at Eighth street and Scott avenue. A permit for $12,000 was issued to Hal Mechem for an addition to his grocery store building.
Other permits include one to Lewis Calton, 101 First street, for a garage and shop building. This permit is subject to approval at a zoning hearing Monday evening.
A city ordinance requires such a hearing since the proposed site is in a residential area. Calton presented a petition signed by neighbors giving their approval for the building at the time he submitted the request, he said.
A permit was issued to George Russell, 423 Second street, for $50 for a carport; J. A. Peterson, 324 Maple street, utility room—$1,000; George Crulshank, 923 First street, utility room, $400; James Borchart, 724 Third street, addition to dwelling, $2,000; Fred Tolman, 320 Second street, carport, $80; Mel Anderson, 1018 A street, addition to dwelling, $800; George Barnard, 1005 D street, addition to dwelling, $100; Ray Staker, 117 Third street, addition to dwelling, $500; Donald Kester, 100 S and highway 30, $3,000, office building.

FINED AT GOODING
GOODING, Sept. 23—Kenneth Shanley, 35, route 1, Rhoadson, was fined $25 and sentenced to 30 days in the Gooding county jail by Probate Judge James F. Gosselt for being drunk in a public place. The jail sentence was suspended upon payment of the fine.
Only about 30 head of 4-H livestock at the fair—a number far surpassed in recent years.
Although Southwick says he is working with a second generation of club members, he still is going strong and says he will continue as a leader and hasn't even given thought to ever cutting down on the amount of time he devotes to the club each year.

Kitchen Facilities, Study Areas Provided for Girls in New Dormitory for T. F. College

Two girls start supper in the dormitory's new kitchen. They are Henna Jones, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oran Jones, Hallock, and Sharon Carotte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie

Carotte, Rupert. The 16 girls in the dormitory have divided into two groups and each group prepares their own meals. They split the cost of food. (Staff photo-engraving)

Sterling Larson, president of the Twin Falls Business college, left, and Merle Hartzell, who with Mrs. Hartzell, operates the new dormitory, talk with one of the girls living in the dormitory. She is Sue Gifford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Gifford, Burley. She is studying at a desk in the corner of the dormitory's study area. The girls occupy the second floor of the building and Mr. and Mrs. Hartzell live on the first floor. (Staff photo-engraving)

Dormitory Established Here for Girls Attending Twin Falls Business College

vided into two "families" and they do their own cooking. They usually prepare all three meals in the dormitory. Each "family" takes its turn in the kitchen and all five girls work on the meal. They buy food and bring canned foods from home. They split the cost of purchased food five ways in each family. So far, the girls say, this arrangement has worked out well.
The girls have closing hour regulations. They must be in the dormitory by 10 p.m. on week days and 12:00 p.m. on week ends. Lights must be out by 11 p.m. on week days.
When the girls leave the dormitory at night, they sign a signout book at the door. This tells when they leave and re-turn, and also lets the girls know when the door is locked at 10 p.m. The girls have their own private entrance.

Larsen is enthused about the new dormitory.
"It makes for a more satisfactory living arrangement for girls attending college," he says. "They are under supervision and at the same time they have the experience that comes with sharing and cooperating with others, which in itself is a maturing process."
In the past the college has always helped the students find housing in the community, usu-ally in private homes or apartments in private homes.
The college has an enrollment of 150 students this fall. Larsen estimates about 80 per cent of the students are girls or women, and over half of them must find housing.
Larsen says another dormi-tory, next door to the present dormitory, will be ready next year. This will accommodate another 10 to 15 girls, and Larsen says this will take care of those at the school who desire dormitory living.
Both dormitories will be open throughout all four school quarters.

Sign-out Book Used

Barbara Lamore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lamore, sign the sign-out book at the dormitory's private entrance. All girls sign the book when they leave the dormitory in the evening. This tells Mr. and Mrs. Hartzell whether all the girls are in when they lock the door at 10 p.m. (Staff photo-engraving)

Washington School Teacher Returns To Scene of Her Early Student Days

The children practiced dancing. The children always enjoyed going there when the weather was bad, but she laughs and says the weather, as she recalls, never was bad enough to suit the children's pleasure.
This is the second year that she has taught. Last year she taught at the Lena Whitmore elementary school in Moscow. She is a 1954 graduate of Twin Falls high school and a 1958 graduate of the University of Idaho.
She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma and after she was graduated, she spent two years, during the school months, traveling as a field secretary for her sorority. She was one of three such field secretaries. During those two years she traveled over most of the U.S., visiting chapters in 35 states.
It was her job to counsel the chapters she visited on all chapter problems, check their books and see that they followed con-situational procedure. She notes it was interesting work, but she did tire of traveling so much.
She then taught in Moscow and this summer returned to Twin Falls.
When she returned to Washington school this fall she found she had not only returned to the place where she gained her early education, but she had become a colleague of a former teacher, Mrs. Larry Hall, who was her own third-grade teach-

Water Samples Tested in Health Department Laboratory

Mrs. Vera Metz puts some test cultures in the incubator at the laboratory. The water, sent in to be tested for purity, has been put in the test tubes with broth. After a period of incubation, the tubes will be checked to see if harmful bacteria have developed. The laboratory facilities are available to the public and officials urge anyone who uses well water and has cause to doubt its purity to bring water to the laboratory. (Staff photographing)

Testing Water Supply of Area Wells Is Job of District Health Department

Officials of the south central district health department point out that a safe water supply is one of the foundations of family and community health. This is a fact that should not be argued. Nevertheless, there are many families in this area that flirt with bad health by using water from wells that is either bad or, at best, hasn't been checked recently. Checking water samples is just one of the jobs of the department, and citizens are urged to use the facilities and services offered.

Bacteria of this type can find its way into a family water supply many ways, but the underground rock structure of this area compounds the problem of keeping such bacteria out. Seepage from barnyards or inadequate private sewage treatment facilities can follow the many fissures in lava rock, sometimes for miles, and eventually enter a water supply. This type of contamination can result in many kinds of sickness—infectious hepatitis, polio, typhoid, paratyphoid, amebiasis, dysentery and many kinds of parasitic intestinal worms. By simply availing themselves of the services of the department, the dangers of contacting such diseases through a contaminated water supply is lessened. Keith A. Harvey, assistant director and district supervising sanitarian, points out that persons who live in an area that is rocky, where homes are serviced by private wells and where there are deep holes in the soil should guard against contamination.

Tags Should Be Ready for Inspection

Idaho fish and game inspectors remind hunters that they must stop at checking stations in direct line of travel. To speed up the routine checks, hunting licenses should be ready for inspection and game should be loaded. Last year more than 25,000 big game animals were checked through the stations and much time was used "digging out the tags." Above is Jay Fore, Mountain Home, waiting for checker at More creek station east of Boise. (Fish and game department photo—staff courtesy.)

Sportsmen Appear Willing to Accept Use of Tough Fabric Big Game Tags

By JIM HUMBRED
Idaho Fish and Game Department
Those tough fabric big game tags evidently are here to stay and most sportsmen appear relaxed and willing to accept the inevitable. The once stormy controversy over relative merits of the old metal looking tags versus "paper" survives mostly in memory of the recent past. Indeed the fabric tag, now being used for the fourth time to claim Idaho big game animals, is proving satisfactory both to hunters and the fish and game department. One big reason is the built-in efficiency it gives to the hunter report card system. Combining big game tag and hunter report card in a single unit, this system was used in this state on deer and elk during the 1957 season. Separated from the report card by a perforated line the tag was torn off, filled out and locked to a downed animal with a simple one-way snap device to fulfill the requirements of the law.

Whether they hunted or not, tag purchasers mailed the other half, a postage-free business reply report card. Some sportsmen requesting information on a few basic items. It showed the hunter's address by county, whether or not he hunted, date and sex of kill. The Idaho fish and game commission quickly switched back to the familiar old metal box report tags for the 1958 big game season. Distributing hunter report cards separately, because sportsmen unused to wind-up basis of mail from all parts of the state. The paper tag-report card combo was no good in the field. The tag was dragged off or otherwise lost before reaching the checking stations. Meanwhile legislative action amended the law requiring tags to be looked-up on all parts of the state. This removed the biggest weakness of the tag-report card system and the next hunting season Idaho adopted wrap-on fabric tags similar to those used in several other western states. Despite the faltering, inauspicious start, the 1958 fabric tag was well received by most big game hunters because it was tough, waterproof, and would not drag off when properly wrapped and wired or tied to a hunter's joint, rib cage or other secure place on the carcass. It was much improved over the earlier snap-on version. The chief virtue of the combined tag and report card is that both are together as one unit until the kill is made or the season is over. Then the hunter has the card in hand and is more likely to tear it off and get it in the mail than if it remained in a "safe place" at home. The result in 1959 was that card returns to department headquarters at Boise were sufficient to provide fast, dependable harvest information for each game management unit in the state at the various seasons progressed. Quick, reliable harvest information on a unit basis is highly important to game management. To equal the amount of information winds and then settles on the countryside. Radiation caused by fallout can threaten the lives of humans and animals and can contaminate crops and the entire countryside. According to a booklet published by the department of agriculture, available at Benham's office, during a 1954 test at the Eniwetok proving grounds in the Pacific, the area where fallout would seriously have threatened the lives of no protective measures extended about 140 miles downwind from the point of explosion, and was up to 20 miles in width. A strip of land this size could stretch from Mountain Home, through Mars Valley, to a point east of Rupert. It would include most of the towns in the valley. More and more citizens are realizing this potential danger. The number of pamphlets requested during the number of times Benham is asked to speak before groups indicates this. Next week he has a speaking engagement at the Idaho State Fair. He had in his office 2,500 copies of the pamphlet telling how to build a fallout shelter.

Increase for Rupert Firm Starts Oct. 1

RUPERT, Sept. 23—An increase in subscribers' rates was announced this week by Don Dickson, manager of the Rupert Mutual Telephone cooperative. The increase, effective Oct. 1, is the result of legislation passed by the 1951 legislature, Dickson explained, which made the cooperative companies in the state subject to ad valorem taxes. The tax is something new, Dickson said. In the past, such companies have not been taxed. The requirement will cost the company around $25,000 annually, he said, which makes it necessary to raise rates to assure the company is able to meet the tax. According to the directors, the law made the tax retroactive to January, 1951, and since the company has in the past been furnishing service at cost no allowance was made for paying taxes. Assessed valuation of the company is listed at $280,253.81, making the taxes for this year $25,000. Directors expect a saving of $5,000 this year for the company through the meetings with state officials. They also stated that the increase in rates would not cover the annual tax, but that through increased business and careful management, the company plans to absorb the balance. Dickson pointed out that with the announced raise, service furnished by the company would still average some 20 per cent below similar services furnished to the area.

Processing of Beet Crop to Start Tuesday

RUPERT, Sept. 23—Processing of the 1951 sugar beet crop in Cassia and Minidoka counties will start Tuesday, according to E. Blauer, Burley, district manager for the Amalgamated Sugar company. The Twin Falls and Paul plants will accept beets only as fast as they can be processed. Blauer said, until weather conditions will allow planting. The total crop for the Minidoka area includes 22,000 acres and for the Twin Falls area, 12,000 acres. Blauer said better than average growing conditions had helped produce an unusually good crop this season. The new pulp drier constructed at the Paul plant is expected to be in operation some time in October, Blauer said, and in the meantime wet pulp will be stored in the silo and sold to farmers. Fieldmen in charge of the various receiving stations for this run will include Leonard Wilder, Adelaide, and Kimama; Richard Holyak, Max and Hawley; Ross Hunsaker, Matt and Schow; Garis Roberts, one of the Gooding chamber at the monthly meeting Tuesday, and Walter Tolson, Star and Burley. Alex Coleman spoke to the local chamber against the Wilderness bill before congress. He feels if this bill became law, it would transfer the power from the legislative branch to the executive branch. It would be a form of socialism, he declared. This bill will take from congress all the power over the amount of the natural resources of the world. It would be about 64 per cent, Coleman stated.
