Stakes Are High

Now that candidates are announcing plans and politicians are speaking up like candidates, the time has come for action on Idaho's jerrybuilt tax structure. In the next few months, some sort of logical program should be devised so next year's candidates in Idaho can express themselves and taxpayers will have time to be informed of the finer details and what they mean to them.

MAGAZINE EXCHANGE

I saw a copy of a magazine called "Magazine Exchange" in the "newspaper" writes Mrs. M. W. Covina, Calif. I know the vendor is a local American, so how come communist magazines can be sold here? It is printed in Russia, isn't it?

SOLD OUT IN HOUR—September, incidentally, was the month in which the "newspaper" was sold out in an hour. The old editions are sold in bookstores and markets for three rubles apiece—six times the newsstand price of 50 cents. The total sales exceed the newsstand sales by hundreds of thousands, USA figures.

THE WASTELAND
Once upon a time the whole of our continent was a wasteland. In order to save it, the hardy and venturesome, its timbera untouched by the lumberman's axe, its plains untroubled by the farmer's plow and its hillsides unutilized by the miner's shaft, in Senator Morse's phrase, it was a place of grandeur.

HAZARDOUS PROBLEM

Drivers will cheer the news that Idaho is gradually fencing off its highways to keep range cattle from wandering into the path of speeding cars. In sections where arterial highways cross open rangeland, cattle create a hazard for the usual "watch for stock" signs along the highway and painted on the roadway itself aren't much help.

TIMES-NEWS PUBLIC FORUM—VOICE OF THE READER

He Asks Smylie What's So Monstrous About New Bill

Editor, Times-News: I would like through your column to ask Governor Smylie just what is so monstrous about the bill that stops the free public owned land?

There are said to be 200,000 people in Magic Valley alone. I doubt if there are 1,000 of the big stockmen who own the forest service grazing permits stacked up on sight. What about the rights of the other 199,000? Do they have any rights? They pay their taxes so the forests are as much theirs as the cattle and sheepmen.

Now, if you again, do they have any rights? Haven't they a right to kill as deer as the ones a year? Haven't they a right to expect the forest service to see they have hunting, fishing and recreation in their beloved forest without a band of sheep in the way?

If the forest service men were given the chance, they would see

Solons Making Usual Jaunts, Woman States

Editor, Times-News: Now that congress has adjourned—it seems that some of our illustrious lawmakers are making jaunts, again on their tax-paid junkets abroad.

Of course, I'm referring to the ones who were kept waiting by the "Congress" in Rome. So far, I've not been able to figure out just what their mission was in the first place. For all we know, however, our foreign aid dollars may be at work over there in the movie industry! If so, that's no more far-fetched than what we read in this week about the huge shipment of Metrolac to Viet Nam. Sounds as though we are aiding the "over-developed" as well as the "under-developed" there.

As for the political scene, I'm getting a little tired of the Republicans rapping the Kennedy administration for its shortcomings. Mistakes have been made, but I don't think it is fair to

GOP Meet Was Interesting Spectacle, T.F. Man Notes

Editor, Times-News: To place himself in position for the consistent part of the announcement has been the emergence of the "old Nixon." Only this time his questionable activities for the time being have been directed toward former Republican Gov. Goodwin Knight. Mr. Knight has undoubtedly

Idaho Realtors Express Thanks On Convention

Editor, Times-News: The Idaho Association of Realtors, its officers and directors wish to express their sincere thanks to the Times-News for the excellent coverage you gave our recent convention.

Our convention this year was outstanding with an excellent program of well known speakers from throughout the United States.

The city of Twin Falls through its merchants, hotels and motels and the Twin Falls board of realtors all made us feel welcome and did an outstanding job of making arrangements for the convention. We did not have a single complaint. We were very pleased with the publicity you gave through the convention.

MARION J. VOORHEES (Secretary-Treasurer, Idaho Association of Realtors)

He Sees Increased Taxes in Proposal for Levy on Sales

Editor, Times-News: For the past six years the people of Idaho have been conditioned for a sales tax. Press releases by the state and by organizations whose members stand to profit by increased taxes have hooded the news. Recently the pace has been accelerated by inspired jaunts and one gubernatorial capital. Editorial comment by the Times-News makes it imperative that the groups who do not stand to profit by increased taxation have no means of price fixing most unfair. The wage earner, the farmer, the fact that any producer cannot pass his costs or the price he pays onto someone else.

The present economy of Idaho is based squarely on its farms, ranches and timber resources. We have no huge petroleum fields, coal or iron ore. Freight rates prohibit incorporation of these raw materials in manufacturing. Industrial development is therefore limited to plants which compensate for the already existing facilities. It is to the interest of all that we develop those plants which will develop the needs of new business and in some measure, protect the investment of those who are here now.

Wider Coverage of the Event, It's Hoped

The Twin Falls Times-News is to be congratulated for its news coverage of the event, but I have waited patiently for some editorial comment to no avail. Perhaps then, some observations from one who was pointedly omitted from the great list might be in order.

Undoubtedly the most preposterous portion of the show is taking place not on stage at all, but in the wings in California. The Republican top man, Mr. Richard Nixon, has admitted publicly the success of his "CHERRY" administration by forcibly removing himself from consideration for the 1964 race. MR. C. H. HARRIS (1070 Second Avenue West, Twin Falls)

Idaho's Welfare Bill is at Least Consistent in One Respect

Editor, Times-News: It is with Idaho's welfare bill that I have the most ill-fated interest in his list of supporters in the senate. It doesn't treat him well. This anti-welfare bill group has been the most vicious, well-coordinated and absolutely false of any special interest lobby in a long time. Once again it appears that the head of the Idaho Republican local association, the indefatigable Governor Smylie, has been the big wreck by making that sounded like a kickoff speech at Burley in his campaign for Senator Church's office, but as usual with Governor Smylie, who can tell. In a dozen years of public office no one has yet

Writer Thrilled By Free Exhibit At Planetarium

Editor, Times-News: It was the privilege of Mrs. Barbara Bailey and myself to take a large group to Herrett's planetarium and observatory last week. We were thrilled and excited about the wonderful things we saw and heard.

We were greatly impressed by the ingenuity and generosity of Norman Herrett in making his unselfishness have furnished our community with an opportunity rarely offered. Free admission to the area of this site. He offers his facilities to all interested, responsible people. The program can be arranged for groups throughout the valley.

We are grateful to the young lecturers, Mr. and Mrs. Thur Bullard, David Benedict and Bill Moore. They handled their subject matter and the crowd very well.

If this letter in any way stimulates an interest in taking advantage of this unique opportunity, I am sure it will please Mr. and Mrs. Herrett. The program is well received and a genuine interest and appreciation of this wonderful planetarium.

Extra Power Of De Gaulle Has Expired

PARIS, Sept. 30 (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle's four-month-old special powers which permitted him to rule France as a dictator expired tonight.

The president assumed the powers during the abortive re-election of the Republic, a vote of the generals last April in Algiers. He announced 10 days ago that he would give them up at the end of the month and confirmed the decision with a decree.

Under the French constitution the president can take over the special powers when the institutions of the Republic, national independence or territorial integrity are threatened.

After the Algerian crisis ended, parliamentarians started suggesting that the president and his special powers.

Protests reached a crescendo Dec. 12. Most deputies boycotted the session of the National Assembly on agricultural policy. They complained there was no point in attending if they could not vote a resolution expressing their opinion.

Government officials announced last night, however, that many of the decrees put into effect by De Gaulle will remain in force.

The 14-14 draw waged between the Twin Falls Braves and the Shoshone Indians was a game that was played in a way that was not seen before. ## Indians Stun Oregon State In 34-0 Upset

COORVILLE, Sept. 30 (AP)—Stanford University's Oregon State 34-0 today and emerged as the West Coast's football power.

It was the second straight upset victory for Stanford, which downed Tulane 9-7 last week. Oregon State was favored by two touchdowns and for two quarters dominated the game. Then quarterback Rod Seagr of Stanford led an amazing upsurge.

He passed for one touchdown and ran for another, and Oregon State back on its heels throughout the second half.

Spartans Beat Jerome in League Debut

JEROME, Sept. 30—The Milton Spartans bowed into the Cross State conference season in a winning way and broke a two-year flinch held by the Jerome Tigers in taking a 19-0 decision last night.

With both teams missing their major running stars, the game developed into a battle of midget running and Jerome punting.

Milno broke into the lead just before halftime when the Spartans blocked a Jerome punt and recovered on the four-yard line. Fullback Kevin Ferry jumped across from there.

In the third period, Ferry found daylight on a fullback plunge and burst 15 yards up the middle for the insurance touchdown.

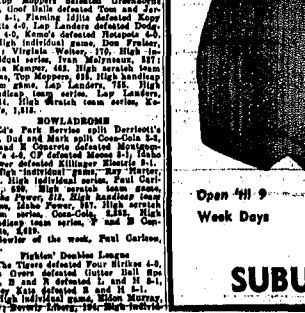

Milno was minus the services of fleet Ray Schnabel who was injured last week atampa. Jerome's leading ground palmer, Tim Lavens, was stricken by an ankle injury. The Tigers also lost the services of five men on grades.

With time running out, Halley turned to the air. Young and Ridgeway made nifty catches and added valuable yards after the rout. The ball in the air for the 27-yard line. Then Milton's Jerry Terry on the 47-yard scoring pass over the line. Ridgeway punted the extra point score.

Members of Surgical Department Meet Monthly for Discussions

Magic Valley Memorial hospital surgical department committee meets monthly to discuss all matters pertaining to the department. There are 22 doctors in the department. An important phase of the meetings deals with educational matters. This is the time when doctors who recently have had special training pass the information on to their colleagues. Here Dr. Harry Brumbach gives a talk on closed chest cardiac resuscitation, a new and revolutionary method of dealing with cardiac arrest. This method could eventually take the place of heart massage, but it is still in the experimental stage and still must be evaluated. Dr. Brumbach just returned from a special course on the subject in Seattle. Other members seated at the table, from left, are Dr. Morton Cutler and Dr. Dean Atfleck. Kennedy Had Trouble in First Try With Congress

By ARTHUR EDSON WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—As it must for all presidents, time has flown by for the political yardstick to John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

He did measure up in his first test with congress. Although the question is simple, the answer can be astonishingly complex. For political yardsticks are made of rubber, gutta serena, stretch over every conviction and prejudice. People tend to evaluate a president not on a match-on-what he does but on what they believe he should have done.

So during the next few months unit congress returns in January. Democrats gloating over Kennedy's legislative failures. Republicans gloating over his successes. For-out liberals protesting the diet was mighty lean in view of those fat campaign promises. For-back conservatives complaining everything is still moving too fast.

Kennedy was able to get legislation he wanted, or reasonable facilities, in such assorted fields as housing, minimum wages and help for depressed areas. Regular appropriations bills went through without much hanky-danky. But he fell short in what he had asked for in foreign aid. He failed to get medical help for the aged. He flopped completely with his education bill.

Although throughout the campaign Kennedy had argued that what this nation needs is leadership, he made no dramatic speeches and raised no ruckus when his legislation was blocked.

O'Brien serving as the White House go-between, an argument can be made that never before have Kennedy's legislative program been so well organized.

As a presidential spokesman, it's Larry O'Brien's job to push along Kennedy's program and to pull together all those who can help. O'Brien offers a bit from some of the eager, energetic beavers around Kennedy.

For one thing, at 44, he's a bit older. For another, he's an Harvard man but a graduate of the well-known Northeastern university.

This husky, almost six-footer from Springfield, Mass., for almost a decade has been winning friends and influencing voters for J. F. Kennedy.

Now aided by Mike N. Manator, who looks after the senate, and Henry Hill Wilson Jr., who has the almost impossible job of vetting a 437-member house, O'Brien goes about spreading the old oil that eliminates frictions.

and stay here, too. While the minimum wage bill was before congress, he suggested to bobby layton that maybe they were out of step with their constituents. "I said to them, how about raising this a little and see what reaction you get?"

"The interesting thing is," he grinned, "some didn't. A higher minimum wage bill became law. But O'Brien knows that no matter how hard a president and his aides try, on some issues some congressmen won't budge. He tries to carry his pleas so far they become obnoxious.

Naturally this has to be a two-way street. A senator is interested in who gets a judgeship. A representative wants a favor. Rep. Ken Hechler, D. W. Va., had 30 young people in from Parkersburg, W. A., and hoped to have them shown around the White House in style. "I ran into Larry and told him my problem. He went right to the phone dial 169, the White House number, and in 10 seconds it was all arranged. They even got in the cabinet room, and were photographed outside the White House."

Fricker's conclusion: "It's the little things that endear a congressman." Yet for all these pleasant little haphazard favors, Kennedy still hasn't gotten much that he has asked for. He has carefully avoided friction, and has never tried to put the heat on congress with a direct appeal to the people.

O'Brien doubts whether such an appeal would work anyway. "I think it's pointless," he said, "to go to the people with the idea of prodding the congress." Yet so many legislative road signs are marked, "beware, danger," it seems safe to guess that Kennedy will often be tempted to (Continued on Page 24, Column 2)

Banquet Honors Banker For 50 Years of Service

Guy Shearer, 76, president of the Fidelity National bank and vice president of the Blue Lakes Country club, will be honored at a banquet Monday night at the Blue Lakes Country club. Shearer is celebrating his 50th year as chief executive officer of the bank. He was born and reared on a farm in Illinois and after finishing his public schools he attended the Chicago Law school. He was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1909 and practiced in Chicago for two years. In the meantime his father and brother, visited this area and their stories of the country aroused his interest. Shearer says he was hired of Chicago and wanted to come west and see what the country had to offer. He found what he wanted here. On October 1, 1911, Shearer took over the Fidelity bank. He has been at the head of that institution since that time. Through the years the bank has grown steadily and given continuous and uninterrupted service. In 1917 the Fidelity bank became the First National bank of Twin Falls. In 1933 the bank's name was changed to the Fidelity National bank of Twin Falls. The main office of the bank was moved to Twin Falls, and the Fidelity bank in Idaho was converted to a branch of the Twin Falls main office. Throughout this growth Shearer has directed the bank's growth. He is still active as the bank's president and chairman of the board. Shearer always has been (Continued on Page 24, Column 2)

Campaign Being Pressed to Build Community Center in Valley Area

"Our ultimate goal is a future Christian Community center for the city of Twin Falls which will encompass all of the necessary activities of a joint YWCA-YMCA. This is not an idle dream nor one which cannot be realized in the very near future. Money is available, people are available, and need is great.

The board's statement says, "The Joint Y board recognizes that the city of Twin Falls and Magic Valley need a Christian center of family activity. The will of the late Evangelina M. White (she died March 31, 1960) specifically set aside a large trust fund, the money from said fund to be used by the Young Men's Christian Association and Young Women's Christian Association of Twin Falls, Idaho, in building a permanent community center. In the event these two organizations did not draw the 10 years following her passing, said fund to be used by the Young Men's Christian Association and Young Women's Christian Association of Twin Falls and are working together for the betterment of the people of Twin Falls and the community, and particularly for the benefit of the youth."

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 30.—Thousands of Americans yearn for a second home. They speak of it vaguely as the vacation house, or the leisure time home, or the beach or mountain cabin. But what they are really thinking about, say merchants who hope to turn a profit from this yearning, is a pleasant, well-equipped house whose location, and modest, also recommend it for a permanent retirement home when a job no longer keeps them tied to town. Three years ago the Douglas Fir Wood Association published a book that suggested a dozen different plans for what it called leisure time homes. It has sold 70,000 of these at a dime each. Ralph Buisson, Portland, one of the designers whose plan was listed in the booklet, has sold 40,000 to people in nearly every state. West Coast Lumbermen's association offered free plans for a 400-sq.-foot, cabin, and has sold 200,000 second-homes a year, says Arthur W. Priddy, vice president and representative for West Coast. "Many people will find their second homes a second chance to enjoy life and a higher interest rate. People do get financing, however. Mostly it is because they have a good credit rating or have enough equity in their principal home so that an increased mortgage on it will finance the second home. In some cases credit unions will supply the money. There are certain conditions, FHA mortgage guarantees are available. However, it is done, second homes are being built. In the country's national banks, she says they have been going at the rate of 400 a year for years. Last year, she says, there were 100,000 second homes built. (Continued on Page 24, Column 2)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Finola Keating, a blue eyed, dark haired amazeur from County Cork, Ireland, is enchanting residents of Magic Valley. The 21-year-old international farm youth exchange student has stayed with four different Magic Valley families. She came to TWIN FALLS Tuesday night to spend her final three weeks in the area with Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Garland and family. Her previous hosts were Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Chaffield, RICHFIELD; Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Harrison, PAIRFIELD; and Mr. and Mrs. Frank GANNETT, who were her first adopted family in the area. She stayed in each home for three weeks.

She will leave Magic Valley Oct. 14 to go to Tampa and then spend some time in San Francisco with a brother.

Finola's blue eyes sparkle when she says, "I love the way the Americans go." If you have some place to go, Finola explains, you just pack a punch and are off. In Ireland they don't do that, nor do they travel so far.

Mr. and Mrs. Chaffield took Finola to attend the Catholic convent and academy at Cottonwood. The most beautiful altar I have seen in this country," she says about the altar the Benedictine sisters brought piece by piece from Switzerland.

However, there are also some things about America Finola criticizes, namely teen-age marriages, "when they don't support themselves." The sisters who work in the head of the family," she said.

"In the U. S. often times, the children are the boss of the home. I think this is not right," with her quick smile, she added, "I don't always see them the boss, but sometimes."

Finola thinks the most unusual thing about Idaho is the sagebrush and desert. Ireland gets 36 inches of rainfall annually, "but they have no sagebrush under grass. Their main crops are wheat, oats and barley. And the few crops are sugar beets and potatoes."

"However, I had to come to the U. S. to meet about Irish potatoes," she laughs. Finola also said it was unusual to travel a long distance without seeing the sea, as Ireland is flanked by the Atlantic, English channel and the Irish sea.

There are numerous lakes and fishing is one of the main industries. The most important industries of Ireland, though, are agriculture and tourism.

Finola has had the equivalent of a junior college education in her own country. She lives on a 200 acre farm. In Ireland the equivalent to our 4-H and FFA consisted of the Young Farmers.

Their county fairs are open to everyone, with no special privileges. "Perhaps there is a special young farmer's division in Dublin but in County Cork everyone competes with everyone," she said. Cows are given instead of ribbons, and there is no competition in County Cork.

Finola loves the American hamburger—however she eats it bare, with only salt and pepper. She says she hasn't had any good one since she came to the country. The best chili is different. She promised one of her host families to send them some from Ireland, so they could taste the difference.

When Finola leaves next month, many people in Magic Valley will remember her soft Irish voice and gay enthusiasm.

Numerous reports were received in the area this season of an elusive blackbird was spotted in widely separated areas. It was pure white, and traveled

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

"Trust in the Lord"

By ROBERT SCHROEDER, Pastor, Trinity Lutheran Church

"Behold, God is my salvation; I will trust and not be afraid; for the Lord Jehovah is my strength and my shield, and he has become my salvation." Isaiah 12:1

Trust—and faith are synonymous terms. It is impossible to please God. The fact of trust or faith is the key to the salvation of the religion of Jesus Christ.

I am appalled at the lack of this ingredient in the people of our nation. We shake with fear and trembling when Khrushchev twices his tongue. America never was this way until in recent years. I believe that this has come about because our faith in the personal, almighty Lord Jehovah has been transferred to the United Nations and the workings of men.

Khrushchev has threatened us with a 100-megaton bomb and all that he is trying to reach that goal. I am aware of the destruction that can be caused by such a bomb, but we need not panic in the aftermath. If our faith in the almighty God, our faith can be restored if we turn ourselves before God.

The first thing that needs to be done if we are to have such faith, is to have Christ, as our Saviour through faith. We cannot have faith in God unless we are convinced that Jesus Christ is in God, only as we are accepted in the beloved, who is Jesus Christ.

This is the new birth. A person who is not born again cannot rely upon God because God says an unclean person are not recorded. It is true that Jesus Christ brought out reconciliation of man to God through his death on the cross, but man must accept this work of Christ through faith. When any man accepts Christ as saviour he is born into the family of God and God declares him as his heavenly Father.

The Bible tells us that there are some who are of "your father the devil." It is very important if we are to have faith in God, that we transfer our family relationship from the devil to God.

As we are right with God we would not need to fear the Russian threats of nuclear destruction. God could destroy man's missile on the launching pad or in flight. He could destroy manned bombers. He did. He did not stop. He is still working.

In Ezekiel's day, Jerusalem was surrounded by the Assyrian army. One night the "Angel of the Lord" went out and slew 185,000 men. I want to point out that God did it all in favor of faith and repentance on the part of Jerusalem. The soldiers of God die all the time today. America must bend the knee in humility and confess her filthy sins to God; seek his forgiveness and put her trust in God.

America is no different than any other nation in history. She must either repent or perish. What will you do about this? You are America. If America is to survive, we must come to know Christ as personal Saviour. The destiny of America is in your hands. When each of you is right with God, then we can expect our God to help us and "that right early."

God reigneth over the heathen; God sitteth upon the throne of His holiness." Psalm 47:7. This will be sure if our trust is in the Lord.

Builders say a bare shell can be put up for $2 to $3 a square foot. Hittentown says the completed house can usually be put up for $5 to $7 a foot.

This puts a price tag in the neighborhood of $5,000 on the second home, assuming it is in a "choice" area. People who live in

1. A panel of highly controversial legislation.

2. A number of Democrats more interested in their own reelection than in anything Kennedy proposed and

3. Many Republicans reluctant to give Democrats a smidgen of help in an election year.

Worse, from Kennedy's standpoint those off-year elections usually go against the party in power. It wouldn't take many losses in the house to give Democrats the power to block any New Frontier measure.

This, and the consequences were discussed with O'Brien. For a moment the kindly smile left O'Brien's face. "That's exactly right," he said. "But, as he reaches up and unloosened his tie, a little further."

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT

Elsie Lindgren, Distinguished T. F. Teacher, Gives Much Time to Society

ELSIE LINDGREN

During the years she has taught in Twin Falls, Elsie Lindgren has distinguished herself not only in the minds of the hundreds of students who have passed through her classes, but also the members of Delta Kappa Gamma, national honor society for women teachers, an organization to which she has taught much of her time in past years.

Miss Lindgren has taught in the Twin Falls high school since 1943, and during that time her career has been highlighted by a Ford foundation scholarship and a three-year term as international vice president of Delta Kappa Gamma.

She currently is chairman of the nominations committee for the sorority, and in this capacity and as a speaker for various conventions she travels throughout the country.

Miss Lindgren is from North Dakota. She was born on a farm near Park River, in the Red River valley. She attended a country school during her first four grades, and then finished public school in Park River.

She taught for one year and then attended college for one year at the University of North Dakota. Then she dropped out of school again and taught for two more years, and then returned to teaching. She was in North Dakota for five years and then came to Idaho.

Miss Lindgren says she came to Idaho for the same reason as many others—the simple desire to go West. She got a job through a teachers' agency, at Hansen.

She laughs when she tells about the way she was chosen. The members of the school board at Hansen couldn't decide between Miss Lindgren and another applicant. So they drew. She drew it easily but not unprofessionally, by calling the janitor in to the meeting and letting him make the final decision.

She got the job, thanks to the janitor. She taught the eighth grade at Hansen for the next six years in 1939 and 1941, then joined the Wendell school system, where she taught English and math for one year. Then she was chosen principal of the Wendell elementary school and served in that capacity for the next three years.

But Miss Lindgren says she has always preferred actual teaching to administration and in 1943 she came to Twin Falls. She has taught English in the high school here since then.

English always has been her favorite subject. She points out that it is a great field and one that respects the products of so many cultures that it is an important part of any person's education. It deals with the ideas, the poetry, the literature and the histories of so many people that students can't help but enrich their lives by studying it.

She says she has always tried to make all her English courses basically courses in the humanities, courses that delve into the cultures of all countries and ages and give a picture of humanity as a whole.

During the summer months since she has been teaching, she has continued her education. She received her degree from the University of Washington when she was at Hansen, by attending summer school and by taking extension courses. She also has done graduate work at the University of Washington, the University of California at Berkeley and at Boston University.

In the winter of 1952-53 she took a leave of absence from teaching and used a Ford foundation scholarship awarded her. Two scholarships were awarded to teachers in Idaho that year.

The way the scholarship was set up, the applicant had to submit a plan of their own that would govern their year in school. Miss Lindgren submitted a plan that she would teach in March, after winter quarter, and then she spent six weeks observing English classes in New England schools. The following six weeks she traveled through Europe. It was her belief, she said, that it was her plan, that the travel would certainly aid her education in such a way that she could pass on what she learned to her students.

She traveled through France, Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Holland, and England.

Her work with Delta Kappa Gamma has taken much time and devotion. The honor sorority limits membership to 100 over 10 per cent of the women teachers in any system.

Its major purposes are to improve the quality of the teaching in our schools, inspire teachers to improve their teaching, broaden the education of teachers, work toward improving the respect and dignity of the profession and to honor those who have done outstanding work.

Miss Lindgren travels to conventions frequently, usually as a guest speaker. She will speak before the Illinois state teachers' convention, Gainesburg, Ill., Oct. 15. She has traveled to 13 states in the past three years. Because her travel must be limited to the week-end, she usually travels by air.

Most of her speeches are inspirational talks, and they often deal with the problems of teachers in the contemporary world. Miss Lindgren also is a member of the Idaho Education Association, a life member of the National Education Association, a member of the National Congress of Teachers of English and a member of the American Association of University Women.

The board points out that the first thing is to become a working group. And the best way to have a strong working group is to develop a membership.

A membership drive will begin in October in an effort to enlist as many families, individuals and commercial establishments in Twin Falls and Magic Valley as possible. When the membership drive is completed, temporary headquarters for the Joint YWCA-YMCA will be set up in the present YWCA building with future expansion plans to be announced for the acquisition of larger quarters in a downtown area to provide space for a temporary building and YWCA-YMCA joint program.

As soon as the drive has been completed and temporary headquarters established, a secretary and director will be selected in an effort to build a working unity of both YWCA and YMCA under the joint direction of the board.

The board members stress that the membership drive is not being used as a fund drive for the collection of money for a building fund. Members are being contacted for the specific purpose of lending their aid, both financial and physical, to the establishment of a sound Christian activity center.

The declaration concludes that Twin Falls and Magic Valley can use a large, adequate, modern Christian endeavor center which will give all of the families of Magic Valley and Twin Falls an opportunity for recreation on a planned, intelligent and time-tested basis. A solid foundation cannot be secured without a broad base of membership.

Course includes instruction in all areas of the hospital, with 600 hours of academic instruction and 1,200 hours of clinical instruction. During the first six weeks, students will spend four hours in class and four hours on the floor. During the rest of the year, they will spend two hours in class per day, with six hours on the floor.

The class is being held in an empty nursery section of the Magic Valley Memorial hospital maternity ward, with one room for academic classes and an adjacent room for demonstrations. Manikins are used for demonstrations for practice in giving shots. After six weeks there will be a camping ceremony, with a graduation service concluding the one-year course. Miss Dean gives frequent exams and the students are graded. The practical nurse advisory committee meets once a month to help Miss Dean establish class schedule and review grades. This is the ninth class in practical nursing that has been offered by the hospital. In past years, 125 licensed practical nurses have been graduated. According to T.F.H., about 40 percent of the graduates stay here, the remainder work in nursing homes, go on special duty, or simply care for their own families. About 40-45 licensed practical nurses are employed at the hospital. This amounts to about one-half of the hospital's nursing staff.

Student Practical Nurse Learns Baby Care

Mrs. Esther Robbins, left, a new practical nursing course student, works with Marilyn Dean, who instructs the course. Mrs. Dean is showing Mrs. Robbins proper methods of caring for a newborn child. There are 15 students in the class, which just started. The 18-month course has been offered nine years at Magic Valley Memorial hospital. (Staff photo-engraving)

While they are students they are paid 75 cents an hour to help defray expenses. There is no tuition for the class, but the cost of uniforms, books, test fees and other expenses amounts to about $90 for the course. Miss Dean says that the course is an end in itself for some students, but he notes that some of the students take it to see if they want to attend and take training and become registered nurses. One girl in a recent class took the class, saved her money, decided to become a registered nurse and then went on to school. Although the practical nurse training doesn't apply towards a degree as a registered nurse, the training is still valuable. After they get their licenses they will get about $100 a month for a 40-hour week, and after three years they will make about $220 monthly.

The course throughout the state is governed by the state department of vocational education, the office that sets the standards. Each year the Magic Valley Memorial hospital has a class of 15 students, the most they can handle. And their record is good, for since they have been offering the course not a student has failed to pass the state examinations.

Man Fined for Assault Charge

BURLEY, Sept. 30 - Fernando Fernandez, 20, Minidale labor camp, was fined $35 by Police Judge John E. Bowen for disturbing the peace by assault and battery on the Cope Coburn club. It was reported Fernandez assaulted Humberto Chavez and Indalecio Chavez. The latter was taken to Ochs Memorial hospital where he was reported in good condition with minor wounds. Vidal Martinez, 22, Wilson labor camp, who also was involved in the incident, was fined $35 by Judge Bowen. Investigation into the case is continuing.

Changes Not Expected for Rupert Road

RUPERT, Sept. 30 - No extensive changes in the traffic control system on the newly improved section of highway 30 through Rupert are expected, according to Ellis Mathes, member of the planning and traffic division of the state highway board, who met here Wednesday with interested persons.

Local merchants whose business is located on the strip of highway had objected to the traffic control pattern used, saying that they were losing business because the controls made it impossible for prospective customers to turn across traffic into the parking areas.

Special complaint was made against the raised concrete dividers at the next approach to the city. Mathes said that he did not agree with the objections, as the dividers and controls are a safety measure.

He said that he would present the resolutions of the local group to the highway board but that he could not personally recommend the changes sought.

Laverne Duffin, local attorney, who was representing the group, explained the petition presented by them and pointed out that upon completion of the new Interstate 15, 30N would no longer be a through highway. It really would become a dead end road, more of a city street than a highway.

One complaint of the group was that the painted dividers create a traffic hazard by giving some drivers the impression they could not be crossed while others followed the patterns. One business representative said that the volume since the dividers had been installed.

The state highway board will be in Twin Falls Oct. 10, Mathes reported, and members can be contacted further on the matter.

"Borrowed" Tomato Won Prize

The camera lens cheats a little and accentuates the size of a tomato held by I. T. Creed. Creed recently played a prank on a friend and "borrowed" a tomato from his garden to enter it in the Blackfoot fair. The huge tomato was the largest entered and won a blue ribbon. (Staff photo-engraving)

I.T. Creed Likes to Boost Area at Fairs, Even With Others' Produce

A man never knows when he'll be a blue ribbon winner, especially if he is an acquaintance of I. T. Creed, one of the state's more aggressive county fair exhibitors. Creed proved this recently when he presented the M. L. Dick family with a blue ribbon and a $5 award, won at the Blackfoot fair. The family didn't even know that they were entered, much less that they were winners, until Creed told them.

It seems Creed found out they had some rather large tomatoes growing in their backyard during a conversation with members of the family. A grocer and admirer of elephantine (and quality) vegetables, Creed picked up his ears.

The more he thought about it, the more he became convinced the tomatoes should be entered in the Blackfoot fair, which was held Sept. 12. On Sunday before the fair he drove by the Dick residence. The family was out of town so Creed snoped around the garden, found a giant tomato, and left for the fair loaded with garden products that would represent the type grown in Magic Valley. Creed says, "There was this big Electricity is one of the few items selling at less than pre-war prices. Idaho Power electric rates are one-third below the national average. This bargain was made possible in part by the high use of electricity in the average home—about twice as high as the national average.

The result: a high standard of electrical living with a multitude of labor-saving appliances throughout the home. You live better electrically... and at a bargain.

Problems Begin After Animal Is Killed

Fish and game department conservation officers urge all big game hunters to consider ahead time what they will do when they get an animal down—how they will get him out and back to camp. In rough country without horses, it sometimes is necessary to "boon" all meat sections to cut down on unnecessary weight. At the very least, game should be "hog roiled," skinned, propped open and hung to a tree, if possible to thoroughly cool. Moose and sheep may be quartered as well for game cooling. Above is Carl Whitmore, of Brimmond, showing the proper spread of a bull moose with his rifle. (Fish and game department photo—staff writing)

Back Country Trophy Hunts Require Stamina and Considerable Planning

By H.M. HUGHES
Idaho Fish and Game Department
It is easy to bag big game animals on their summer ranges, particularly trophy bighorn sheep and mountain goats. These will usually be seen within a few score yards of the hunter, and the hunter is often allowed to approach within a few score yards of the animal before showing any trace of alarm.
The problem always has been to get up to them, meeting the animals on their way from sun to winter range. They are always on top of the world at the rim of the range where they will spend the winter. Some of the canyons walls average over 100 feet above sea level and at 8,000 feet is no more than a couple of miles. The South fork tributaries cut into the huge Idaho batholith, a vast rock mass measuring 10 by 240 miles. It is one of the world's largest single bodies of granite.
The East fork of the Salmon was at about 6,000 feet through the high range. There are about 11,000 feet in the cloud mountains, the summits of the high range. And even higher. There are snowbanks throughout the high range country. They may be remnants of wind-blown, drifted snow in crevices or the remains of debris that always collect in the base of narrow chutes and in a basin.
Wild sheep frequently eat snow rather than descend to the creeks for water. During the week-end of the high range, a biologist, it was common to find bands of bighorns clinging themselves on large rocks, or sticking up sprays of crust while running and over its surface.
The means of transportation, the means of food, the means of shelter, and other essential factors among the greatest of concerns in the back country. On the long walks, or maneuvers a raft down a river—then a day's accounts tell of big sheep on prairies and valleys miles from the nearest mountains. Thus they have been graphically restricted by the technical and physical aspects of their ancestral range now are found exclusively in high country. Characterized by subalpine valleys surrounded by steep and studded with spires of rugged rock these present day ranges are rimmed with small basins gouged out by ancient glaciers. A chaos of talus and outcroppings of barren granite everywhere.

Here in the high country food spoils in the mountain trail, frozen at night, gets soaked when rained or fording rivers. Porcupines, packrats, and bears sometimes raid grub boxes and otherwise raise havoc with the outfit. Yes, it is easy to bag big game animals on their high summer ranges when finally face to face with the curious, unwary quarry.
But the trip to the high country and return trek with meat and trophy separates the men from the boys. However, it is more than likely that memory of the stately ram, lordly moose or elk will be at least equated by remembrance of mountain peaks, glittering lakes and untrampled meadows. In recalling, one never feels hardship.
 Idaho law, of course, precludes abandoning game meat for the sake of trophy horns or antlers or any other preventable cause. Consequently, hunters often "boon" their game by removing all flesh from the skeleton. Even bonded or striped, meat must be cooled overnight before packing it out. At the very least, an animal must be "hog dressed," skinned, propped open for better ventilation and raised from the ground. Heavy animals such as moose and elk must be quartered, cooled overnight before packing it out. Here game sacks are essential.
These primary big game sections in the back country are not week-end affairs and the Idaho fish and game department each year attempts to acquaint hunters with some of the problems that indubitably will be encountered. Urging all hunters to study the regulations carefully and to watch out for signs indicating divisions between the Sept. 15 areas and later big game openings. Director Ross Leonard adds:
"The animals are on their high summer ranges and are scattered more than any other time. Most of the hunter-access points to the primitive areas are off ridges. This means an uphill pull with the meat if the hunt is successful. The weather is hot, requiring immediate removal of

Radioisotopes Used in Hospitals

Radioisotopes emitting penetrating rays of radiation are used by some 400 hospitals throughout the country for the treatment of cancer in teletherapy units. Here a patient is being prepared for treatment with radioactive sodium at the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, Oak Ridge, Tenn. (Atomic Energy Commission photo—staff engraving)

Radioisotope, By-Product of Atomic Age, Becoming Very Versatile Tool

What in the world is a radioisotope?—one of the most highly disturbed in this imbalance of nature. It is a safe bet that you do not know what a radioisotope is. About 100 scientists discovered that two samples of an element which looked exactly alike and behaved alike chemically, differed radically in their physical makeup, including their ability to give off radiation.

They learned that the reason for the difference was a variation in the structure of the atoms making up the two samples. Scientists labeled these chemically alike—but "atomically" unlike—substances "isotopes" from the Greek "isos," meaning same, and "topos," meaning place.

This "isotope" is the name given to a substance which, although it differs physically from another substance—belongs in the same place with the other substance in the chemical table of elements.

Of the atoms of the element hydrogen in water, for example, one in every 4,260 is twice as heavy as the ordinary hydrogen atom.

This is because the heavy hydrogen atom has one proton and one neutron in its nucleus, as compared with only one proton and no neutron in the center, or nucleus, of the "regular" hydrogen atom. This heavy atom of hydrogen is known as deuterium. This isotope of hydrogen behaves chemically in the same way as does the lighter form of the element. Take water, for instance.

As every high school chemistry student knows, plain water is composed of two atoms of hydrogen to every one of oxygen. Deuterium also will combine with oxygen to form water, but when it does the result is a product called "heavy water." Heavy water has chemical properties similar to those of ordinary water but it differs in physical properties such as its ability to slow down neutrons in an atomic furnace, or reactor.

There is, incidentally, about one pound of heavy water in every three tons of ordinary water. Heavy water has an important use in the U. S. atomic energy commission's program to develop electric power from the atom. Most natural isotopes are stable. But some isotopes are not stable. They give off radiation because of an imbalance or improper ratio of protons and neutrons in their centers, or nuclei.

These are known as radioactive isotopes or—for short—"radioisotopes." Dr. Paul C. Aebischer, director of the division of isotopes development of the national atomic energy program.

Man makes radioisotopes in reactions by bombarding stable, non-radioactive materials such as carbon with neutrons. Under this bombardment the nuclei of the atoms making up the stable material acquire additional neutrons and become out of balance or unstable.

The newly unstabilized nuclei, bristling off energy in the form of alpha and beta particles and gamma rays, all of which are called "radiation." Some radioisotopes tend to return to stability quickly. It is this radiation that makes radioisotopes of such value. One reason for the importance of isotopic radiation is the fact that it can usually be detected and followed by the use of instruments.

A frequently used analogy illustrating this point is that of the crocodile that swallowed the clock in "Peter Pan." Throughout the story, the ticking of the clock discloses the presence of the crocodile. Just so, the radiation "ticking" of radioisotopes can be used to trace their presence inside other materials. Radioisotopes whose radiation is used for this purpose are called "tracers."

Mixed with materials in small amounts, radioisotope tracers can disclose where the materials go or what happens to them in their industrial, agricultural or biological processes.

In industry, for example, a radioisotope introduced into the metal from which piston rings are made can help in engine wear studies. As the rings wear, the radioactive metal can be traced by instruments in the lu-minating amount of wear thus measured.

In agriculture, radioisotope tracers mixed with fertilizers have been used to trace the path of fertilizer through the life processes of plants, and in medicine tracers aid the physician in studying life processes in the human body. The rays of cobalt 60 and other radioisotopes are used to destroy cancer cells.

Radioisotopes aid in the space age, too. They generate, fueled with radioisotopes, convert heat from the radioisotope into electric power, which powers transmitters aboard satellites. Such devices supply years of power.

Other uses of radioisotopes now under investigation are concerned with water resources development; control of water and air pollution; preservation of food; development of a "detective bean" that will disclose the presence of explosives in baggage on board airplanes and a method to identify the origin of opium—an aid in drug traffic control.

This radioisotope, whose name has long been a puzzle to many, is now developing into one of man's most versatile and well-known tools.

Appreciation for Red Cross Blood Given by Burley Pair

BURLEY, Sept. 30—Two Burley residents who have received blood transfusions in recent accidents or illnesses joined Saturday in urging support for the Red Cross bloodmobile blood-drawing here from 2 to 6 p.m. Monday in the Elks hall.

"People who give blood to us who really need it are wonderful people. It is only then you realize how many good people there are and it's heart-warming," states Mrs. Edward C. Harmon, who underwent open heart surgery last January.

Dick Biel, who was injured in a farm accident last spring near Murtaugh and spent 75 days in Cassia Memorial hospital, also expressed appreciation to persons who have given blood to the Red Cross.

Mrs. Harmon, her husband and their 6-year-old son, Tommy, have resided in Burley for the past three years, where her husband is employed by the bureau of reclamation. Mrs. Harmon's heart condition resulted from rheumatic fever when she was a child.

When it became necessary to have open heart surgery, she was given a three to one chest valve which was closing was opened. After surgery she was taken to an intensive care room where she was under 24-hour care of nurses and a doctor. She remained in the hospital about 28 days. Most of this time was spent in an oxygen tent. In May she returned to the hospital with a kidney infection and received an additional four pints of blood.

Mrs. Harmon spent seven months in Seattle with her sister, Mrs. Howard Aker, and has been back home in Burley since August.

During her convalescence she attended classes sponsored by the American Heart association for patients who have had cardiac surgery. Classes include methods of planning work to conserve energy, such as sitting down to do dishes and to iron, how to dress easier, and how to manage work with a minimum of exertion.

Biel's accident occurred last May 20, when he was crushed between two tractors. He was working on an "H-ton tractor, when it rolled toward him, pinning him. The tractor crawled over him and upon the other tractor. Somehow he was able to pull himself under the other tractor, where he was found by his brother, who rushed him to the Cassia Memorial hospital.

He had lost so much blood en route he was given six pints of blood before the doctors could get a blood pressure reading. He
