Rocket Shot Hikes Hopes Of Officials

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—The American project to put man on the moon today suddenly seemed more certain of success after one more test. A few seconds after 11:00 a.m. U.S. space officials sitting before TV sets here broke into a subdued babble. "Go, boy, go," one breathed. "The Cape Canaveral, Fla., air force first flight version of the huge Saturn rocket roared into the sky in a flight so successful it was now being called a test. The odds had been 50-50. It was one of the first first-flight successes in rocket history. And now the first of a rocket in the Saturn's giant weight-lifting class. This Saturn will not take man to the moon. But later, when it gets all its stages, it will be used for crucial first tests of the Apollo space craft being designed for moon missions. One official of the national aeronautics and space administration (NASA) said this was the kickoff. "We're on our way to the moon," he said. After nine more flight tests, Saturn will be first of a rocket in the Apollo space craft into orbit around the Earth preliminary to a moon landing attempt. The first Apollo orbital flight probably will be in 1968 or 1969. Then, perhaps, in 1968, an advanced Saturn will push three men into orbit around the moon.

Is Fallout Cause of Cancer? Possibility Noted by Leader

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—In the radiation-bearing fallout from Soviet nuclear tests powerful enough to cause cancer, the possibility of a link between the fallout and cancer in children throughout the world was noted today by the new president of the American Cancer society today. "This prediction is based on the assumption that the Soviet Union's present mad dash does not lead meanwhile in the autumn and complete annihilation of the human race," added Dr. Thomas Odell who took office today. "We do know that in the last 10 to 20 years there has been a sharp rise in the incidence of cancer in children and in deformed births," Dr. Odell said in a statement released to news-

General Says U.S. to Fight If Necessary

A resume of activities of the American Legion national executive committee meeting Wednesday in Indianapolis, Ind., was given by Douglas Kramer, Twin Falls, member of the Legion's national committee, Thursday.

Kramer said Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman, joint chiefs of staff, in a closed session told the group that detailed plans have been formulated to launch this country into nuclear war if necessary and to take affirmative action if free access is destroyed in Berlin.

"The distressing thing to me is that while we are being assured that our nation is prepared militarily to fight the red menace, we continue to make concessions," Kramer asserted.

"The latest concession was our refusal to vote on the question of admission of Outer Mongolia to the U. N."

"At the national convention in Denver, Colo., in September, the convention adopted a resolution from the Idaho American Legion requesting our government to oppose the admission of Outer Mongolia to the U. N.," he explained.

Kramer noted that Eugene M. Zuckert, secretary of the air force, spoke at a banquet hosted by the National Commander Charles L. Bacon. Zuckert praised the Legion's advocacy of military preparedness, he said.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

BY J. F. TERBORST

DENVER, Oct. 27—Where the boys are, the girls are. And the labor department lexicon, the geography of industry is shifting to eight states along the South and western rim of the United States.

This is the report of a little-noticed study by Seymour Wolfstein, deputy assistant secretary of labor, who is the government's expert of job and manpower statistics.

What Wolfstein is saying is so significant that it merits close attention—particularly in the Atlantic and Great Lakes states where America's industrial might has always been concentrated.

In the last four years, 1947 through 1950, Wolfstein reports that the big growth in nonfarm employment has been in the Southwest and South.

MIGRATION ROUTES CHANGE—He draws two conclusions. One is that there seems to be an "empty out" in the industrial belt. The other is that employment in the country, an eventual end to the "have" and "have-not" states.

The second big implication is that the U. S. is moving into an era where there appears to be a broadening in the traditional pattern of worker migration.

"People coming from the farms may not be moving for the first time, but they are moving before—the great industrial and financial complex of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania... or the Great Lakes states... where there will be many more job opportunities."

INDUSTRY EXPANDS—In the postwar years, industrial employment has risen by 22 per cent for the nation. But eight states have led all the rest in the rate of growth, at least double the national average. These are California, Texas and Florida—industrial competitors for the Great Lakes-Midwest Atlantic states.

But five others, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, Colorado and New Mexico, have had some of the highest rates of growth in the country and not only because of defense installations—but right across the industrial board.

Wolfstein says that out of every six nonfarm jobs are found in California, Texas and Florida. There were, in all, 20 other states which showed an industrial job gain above the national rate.

BIG STATES LAG—But none of the states in the Great Lakes region—Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin or Indiana—New York, Pennsylvania—were able to match the national average growth rate of 22 per cent.

Wolfstein terms this "particularly significant." In 1947-1950, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin made history by holding the most factory jobs in the country. "But they lagged for economic reasons which have reduced the number of workers needed, particularly in the metal industries."

"People who migrate around the country usually do so for economic reasons. They go where the jobs are or they move because they have a chance for a better job."

So the old swing from the South to the North and West, and then toward across the South and to the Pacific coast.

Wolfstein calculates the trend will continue to 1960. He says that the national growth rate are able to diversify their industry sufficiently to hold their share of manpower and the industrial dollar.

VIEWS OF OTHERS

ONLY NIXON HURT

The Republican ruckus in California, wherein former Gov. Goodwin Knight claims the offer of a pardon to the late President Richard Nixon is a typical political hassle. The Democrats enjoy it.

However, there is one thing certain about it all. The only person who is likely to be hurt is Mr. Nixon himself.

Knight has nothing to lose. If he finishes second to Nixon in the primary, no indication is given that he will be anything more than a spectator. If he wins, it will be a boost to his career, which isn't going to include anything beyond the boundaries of California.

But Nixon, whose hopes for another chance at the presidency are closely tied to what happens in his home state in 1962, has a great deal at stake. He is not particularly anxious to see a Republican primary, the current incident will make it more difficult for him to defeat his Democratic opponent, incumbent Gov. Pat Brown, in the general election.

There is no way for most people to assess the validity of Knight's charges. But if they are without foundation, it is a most serious disservice to Nixon. It is a long time to overcome the charges that were leveled at him during the years he sought, and was elected to, the vice presidency. It is a long time to overcome the charges that—Mankato (Minn.) CHIBLING MUST BE STOPPED

Unemployment is a problem that will confront the United States for a long time to come, even in times of prosperity.

Rwan Dilge, commissioner of the bureau of labor statistics, U. S. department of labor, said that point in a talk before the North Idaho Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

He said the annual growth in the labor force and the annual growth in the number of unemployed is higher than before when times were good.

He said a heavy burden of cost in unemployment compensation payments to those who are not working.

But it also means that every effort must be made to stamp out dishonesty on the part of many who get unemployment compensation under false pretenses.

Speaking at the same meeting in Lewiston, La. Knuck, labor relations director for the Morrison-Knudsen company, said there are many instances where workers have decided to quit their jobs and employers have later found out they have been laid off, so they could qualify for payments.

He also said an impression is being created that unemployment has its reward and not its penalty.

Ferretting out the chislers is a task for everyone, most especially employers. If they condone chisling, it will spread—Spokane Chronicle.

IN EVIDENCE OF RECOGNITION

A gubernatorial official, Margie Arnslett, chief of the division of labor in the department of health, education and welfare, left her office in Washington, D. C., to attend and participate in a conference on social welfare in Boise this week.

Among other things, she told this conference that Idaho has one of the "best practical" business training programs in the United States.

We have no doubt that the commendation is based on accurate information and that it's entirely deserved.

Among Idahoans there are many who are under obligation, that's gratefully acknowledged, to the ministrations of practical nurses; so this evaluation is especially timely.

POT SHOTS

Dear Shooter!

The other night one of the kids lugged a college yearbook out of a closet where it had been tucked away and forgotten these many years. After the kids had gone to bed, the Missus and I started thumbing through the book.

It was a nice way to spend part of an evening and I recommend it highly to anyone who wants to lako into their trip down Memory lane just now and then.

But there was one thing that struck me right between the eyes right from the beginning. It was the girls had long hair and boy did they ever look good! Dog-early in the morning, they look like girls, not like boys who forgot to get a haircut.

It was a nice way to spend part of an evening and I recommend it highly to anyone who wants to lako into their trip down Memory lane just now and then.

KITTENS FOR KIDS DEPT.

Dear Pot Shoter!

We have 11 lovable kittens up to give away. They are various colors and all long-haired. Phone 326-2773 to send your check. Memory lane just now and then.

Four kittens, ordinary garden variety and part wildcat, need homes. One is black and white and two black. In the morning or evening, phone 326-2773.

TOO MUCH CORDUROY

Dear Pot Shoter!

Now that winter weather apparently is just around the next corner or two, let's all hope for plenty of snow this winter. The idea is particularly to provide wide more irrigation water but to smooth out some of these roads around here.

The willing to bet that mile for mile of surfaced road, those in the immediate vicinity of Twin Falls have just as much corduroy as any other place in the state. Anyone wants an outstanding example, just let him drive along the Pole Lane in the vicinity of Washington street north and Blue Lakes north. If any of your teeth are loose, it would be advisable to get them fixed when you keep your speed around 10 miles per hour.

If those terrible bumps aren't going to be eliminated, the road should be posted for slow speeds and to warn the unsuspecting.

WEATHER INDICATOR

Sir:

While driving home the other afternoon, it dawned on me that the weather is going to be like in the next couple of weeks.

In the first place, the pleasant season goes Saturday morning. Hence, Saturday will be a nice day until about 11 a.m. From then on, it will be windy and perhaps a little rain.

Another weather indicator is the number of leaves still on the gutters around the city. Quite obviously, there will be considerable rain, particularly in those parts of the city where gutters drain to the east.

You'd think the weatherman would pay attention to important signs like these.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

BY HAROLD THOMAS

Written for Newspaper Enterprises Assn.

Q—What would cause an acute iritis? After my first attack, when I almost went blind, I was completely examined by my doctor and he could find no cause.

Then I went to a surgical clinic, where they moved the left lobe of my eye back into place. For a while I saw a little better and then I got another attack.

I can hardly see and my doctor doesn't know what to do.

Be sure to alert the consultant to the difficulty of the presenting problem. As it is, the consultant is required to save your sight. This is a very serious condition. How about drugging the iritis with cortisone? I have heard that it might be of some help. I would be willing to act as a guinea pig if any one thinks I should try it for restoration of my hearing.

A—I wouldn't give up so easily if I were you. Nor would I volunteer to act as the guinea pig. In the first place, you are not a doctor and you are not a member of the iritis club. You are not a member of the iritis club. You are not a member of the iritis club.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S VIEW

Editors a little younger than the generation which was taking turns at bat in Roosevelt's reign have asked for my authority in making the history of the country than actually wanted to arrange the withdrawal from continental Europe of American troops after World War II. In that event, Roosevelt would have had to face a little opposition in a sweep to the African continent, which Roosevelt maintained in the south and Gibraltar in the north.

The Morgenthau plan, which Roosevelt stayed at the Quebec conference with Churchill in 1945, but later abandoned, was set forth in typewritten script in a small volume called "Germany Is Our Problem," published by Harper and Brothers in 1946.

A note explains that the typewritten script is a reproduction of a photostatic copy of the memorandum summarizing the Morgenthau plan, which Roosevelt took with him to Quebec. It is a plan for ferocious revenge on the German people. The advantage to the Soviet empire is clear all the way, but most obvious in the last two paragraphs. These concern the reduction of the forces of German civilization to practically nothing.

The text of the last two paragraphs is: "Although the Morgenthau plan would have full military and civilian representation on whatever international commission was set up to carry out the program, the primary responsibility... should be assumed by the United States. Specifically, it should include Russian, French, and British representatives."

By his plan, Russia obtained what she wanted most of all. From the Morgenthau plan, the Soviet Union and control all of it. From the Morgenthau plan, the Soviet Union and control all of it. From the Morgenthau plan, the Soviet Union and control all of it.

Morgenthau wrote that in September, 1940, Roosevelt called him to outline his program for Germany which he called "the Morgenthau plan." In his memoirs of this secret war, Morgenthau expressed a deep opinion of Morgenthau's plan. Morgenthau said: "Roosevelt knew I had saved a great deal of money for the state. He had observed and noted the operations of reparations and funds could not be diverted from the other aspects of Germany's future."

By his plan, Russia obtained what she wanted most of all. From the Morgenthau plan, the Soviet Union and control all of it. From the Morgenthau plan, the Soviet Union and control all of it.

BONN, Germany, Oct. 27 (REAP)—Communist interference with all the principal allies was denied. Berlin's barriers are part of a campaign to destroy the city's economy. It is being resisted with U.S. aid.

It looks dangerous, but there is no reason to believe the Communists are going to be carrying out a campaign to let their wives reach the point of an exchange of fire.

This is the point: The Russian government has been unwilling to let the western allies see the East Berlin situation. They are not to let their wives reach the point of an exchange of fire.

Allen McComb, about 35, died in the veterans hospital, Boise, this morning. He was shot in the neck.

Barberis said witnesses told him McComb came to the Patrick apartment last night, brandishing a pistol. As others in the room attempted to disarm McComb a shot was fired from Patrick's pistol, the sheriff said.

No charges have been filed but the sheriff said investigation is continuing.

Tenor Is First on Program For Valley Concert Season

Another season for the Magic Valley Community Concert association will begin Monday night with Metropolitan tenor Albert DeCosta as the opening performer.

DeCosta will be heard at 8:15 p.m. Monday at the Filtration auditorium. He is the first of four performers who constitute the association's 1961-62 season, announced Mrs. David Read, association president.

Critics have acclaimed him for having a dramatic tenor voice of Wagnerian volume and honed notes. He is noted for being at home in the German or Italian operatic style.

DeCosta's debut in a major role at the Metropolitan opera was as Walther von Stolzing in "Die Meistersinger" for which he won unanimous welcome into the depleted ranks of the Helmsdorfer.

President to Avoid Fights In Campaign

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—President Kennedy does not intend to get into a political scrap with Dwight D. Eisenhower in the current election campaign. Nor does he intend to fire straightaway at Richard M. Nixon in his Los Angeles speech next month.

As leader of the party in power, Kennedy does intend to boost its candidates and programs.

Sources familiar with thinking at the White House and at Democratic headquarters so describe Kennedy's position in the light of these developments:

Former President Eisenhower's stamping for Republican candidates and his fresh attacks on the Kennedy administration; and Kennedy's warmly expressed support this week of Democratic candidates in New Jersey and Texas, where Eisenhower is actively working for their GOP rivals.

Kennedy reportedly has been surprised at some of the points Eisenhower has hit in the last six weeks. Over that period the former president has charged Kennedy with inaction and uncertainty on foreign problems, scoffed at his pet peace corps project, questioned his space program, and denounced his fiscal policies as confusing and extravagant.

While surprised on occasion, Kennedy is understood to be neither dismayed nor especially disturbed. As a veteran in politics, he regards criticism from the leader of the opposition as natural. With Nixon, the former vice president and GOP presidential candidate, now an announced candidate for governor of California, the Democratic picture Eisenhower as the leader.

Late Payroll For Session Is Submitted

BOISE, Oct. 27 (AP)—A legislative payroll which likely won't be paid until 1962 was filed three months late yesterday.

Art Wilson, secretary of the senate, signed the $978 payroll for senate attaches who worked during the special session of the legislature last August.

The house payroll of $1,269 was presented to State Auditor Joe R. Williams the day after the session ended. There was no explanation for the delay in filing the senate payroll.

Williams said he will "just put them in the pile and wait for the next session of the legislature to give us authorization to pay them."

The lawmakers adjourned their two-day special session without appropriating money for their salaries. Gov. Don Wilder said later it was not legally possible for the auditor to use money left over from the regular session to pay any of the bills of the session.

Williams has said he would welcome a friendly lawsuit against him to test his ruling. But no such action has been taken.

Guard Will Stay At Coastal Base

BOISE, Oct. 27 (AP)—Present plans call for Idaho's newly called up national guardsmen to remain at Fort Lewis, Wash., where they will train.

Lt. Gen. John L. Ryan, Jr., commanding general of the U. S. sixth army with headquarters in San Francisco, made that statement during a visit here yesterday. He conferred with Idaho military leaders.

"In general," he said, "present plans call for units to remain at the stations to which they are assigned. Depending on situations, there may be some reshuffling."

He said plans also call for keeping the national guard units intact.

Pledge Is Made Again by Nixon

SEAN DUNCO, Calif., Oct. 27 (AP)—Richard M. Nixon said yesterday that only "something like a physical disability" would prevent him from serving a full four-year term if he is elected governor next year.

Some of his political opponents have suggested Nixon would leave the California governorship as a springboard to the 1964 Republican presidential nomination. But, in yesterday's statement, Nixon appeared to eliminate himself from consideration even for a possible presidential draft.

The former vice president indicated that if he is elected governor he will expect to have an important voice in selecting the 1964 Republican presidential nominee.

Area Poultry Farm Has Automatic Feeders

The automatic feeder at the Hagerman Valley Poultry and Fruit farm, one-half mile north of town on highway 30, is used by Mr. and Mrs. Juan Moore in feeding approximately 24,500 chickens. 11,000 Eggs Are Gathered Daily on Large Hagerman Valley Poultry Farm

HAGERMAN, Oct. 27—A little more than 10 years ago, Juan Moore gave up a steady job as an Idaho Power company operator and the largest for 20 years to go into a venture which has become one of the largest family owned businesses in the area.

Moore was graduated from the University of Idaho with an engineering degree, prior to his years with the Idaho Power company. He now has the largest producing flock of laying hens in southern Idaho.

The Hagerman Valley Poultry and Fruit farm, just one-half mile north of Hagerman on highway 30 is owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Moore. They have 24,500 chickens.

Two-thirds of these are birds in production, and the other third are growing stock. From this flock, the daily number of eggs gathered ranges from 10,000 to 11,000.

The Moore eggs are produced strictly on a quality product basis. This means that no bird is kept longer than 18 months, and only 12 months of this time laying. No hen is kept laying longer than 12 months, thereby keeping the quality of the egg at the very best standard.

Every 10 weeks, the Moores get 3,500 day-old Kimber chicks from Merrill Poultry farm and hatchery in Paris and sell the 18-month-old hens to Bertie's poultry.

These chicks are fed and cared for six months before they are at full production. A regular program of vaccination is used to prevent the common poultry diseases. De-beaking is done before they start laying to prevent cannibalism.

The house these birds, it takes 13 square feet of floor space per bird, making a total of 31,000 square feet of housing, which is divided into seven, well-lit houses. They are automatically ventilated with fans.

House No. 8 is in process of being built and it will be equipped with automatic feeders. The other houses are being converted to automatic feeders. Clear, running spring water is in front of the birds at all times.

"The entire operation has been built on a quality basis, and that's what has kept it moving," Moore states, "because the quality is good, there is a big demand." The Moores plan to build to a flock of 28,000 birds.

To feed the 24,500 chickens, 17,000 pounds of feed are used each day. Community type nests are used. The eggs are gathered four times a day, year round, in wire baskets, and placed on a

Wisconsin Solon May Propose Strong Controls for Dairy Product Imports

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—Sen. William Proxmire, D., Wis., may propose putting stronger teeth into controls over dairy product imports.

A spokesman for Proxmire says the senator is considering introduction of a bill giving the agriculture secretary complete authority over dairy import regulation.

Proxmire's interest reflects the dim view many American dairy leaders take of the present import controls. The frozen bulk eggs have to be blended thoroughly, as the whole yolk, when frozen with the white, is tough, unless blended, Moore explains.

The liquid eggs have to have the yolks broken. This operation is done every day, enabling the bakeries to have just as fresh a product as the whole egg user, the Hagerman man says.

Moore is a director of Idaho Best, Inc., a farmer feed and egg cooperative, with headquarters in Caldwell, with branches in Twin Falls and Idaho Falls.

In 1956, the Moores built a modern ranch type home, doing much of the work themselves. This is set off by the flower gardens of his wife whose specialties are gladioli, iris and chrysanthemums. These surround the patio and flank the drive way, to make a spectacular approach to the home.

The Moores have one son, Mike, 18, who is a senior at Hagerman high school.

Some Progress Is Predicted Toward Solution of Surplus

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—Government farm economists said today that some progress would be made this year toward solution of the nation's number one farm problem—its wheat and feed grain surplus.

A new agriculture department report estimated that the surplus of feed grains might be cut about six per cent during the current marketing year as a result of the administration's program to reduce feed grain acreage.

The feed grain surplus amounted to 85 million bushels when the marketing year opened on Oct. 1, Department experts said they expected the carryover to be down to about 80 million bushels by next October.

The reduction in sight for 1961 was much smaller—about 50 million bushels, or about one-half of one per cent of the current surplus of 14 billion bushels.

Report Given on Spud Inspection

REPORT, Oct. 27—Reports from a recent potato inspection made by the Magic Valley Potato Marketing association shows an average of 50 to 55 per cent No. 1's, according to Dale Miller, president of the organization.

Miller stated that an earlier report released by one of the area processors showed a lower percentage of No. 1's.

He said that most of the growers in the area covered by his organization were pleased with the season's contract. Growers expressed the opinion that the inspection was tougher this year than in former seasons, he said.

Miller urged growers to acquaint themselves thoroughly with the diversion program, and find the time to check closely on the inspection of samplings on contract plots, so that they might benefit from the inspection service. He added that in past years, in many instances, the benefit had gone to the buyers and sellers rather than to the grower.

He also suggested that, where possible, farmers use county sorters in their cellars, and reserve the No. 2s and 3s for direct diversion to the starch or alcohol plants.

Department Aide Notes Success of Grain Plan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—A recent harvest-time crop report has noted a success sign on the 1961 feed grain program, according to Charles E. Murphy, assistant secretary of agriculture.

"It is now clear," he said, "that feed grains consumption during the coming year will exceed 1961 production, creating a long-line trend."

He put the cost of the new program considerably below the savings which will result for taxpayers.

One benefit listed by the acting secretary includes a sharp rise, probably a billion dollars or more, in 1961 farm income over that of 1960 as a result of feed grains production adjustment and other price support actions, as in the case of soybeans.

Other benefits listed are supply and price stability for feed grain buyers and the consumers of livestock, dairy, poultry and

Deep Well

FAIRFIELD, Oct. 27—Well drillers have just completed a 6-inch domestic well on the Florence Gaskill farm.

They had to go 380 feet to obtain water this time. The original well was 80 feet deep and when it went dry a few years ago it was drilled to 60 feet and then it went dry last year.

They have been hauling water for cattle and household use. Charles Gaskill, who farms the place for his mother, said they "never dreamed" they would have to go deep to strike water.

Surplus Dumped Before Agency Office

Ferris Leach, manager of the Hilldale, Mich., agricultural stabilization and conservation office, looks at 80 bags of wheat dropped in front of his office by farmer Ralph Shinnberry. The wheat has been stored since 1954 when the government slumped a lien on it claiming Shinnberry had violated his farm quota.

Along Fences, Canals

Mr. and Mrs. George McCoy, Hansen, who have been living on one of Mrs. Peter-Linck's farms for the past nine years, are retiring from farming. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sievers, who have been farming the Wayne Butler place, will move to the Link farm. The McCoy's farmed for Mrs. Link the past 15 years, nine on the present place.

L. W. (Bill) Moore, Hansen, has brought his cattle in from Lunsford, eight miles southeast of King Hill. Some of the bests are averaging 33 tons per acre down to 17 to 18 tons per acre, according to Lee Trail, Harold Van Sickle, Rodney Rubery, Karl Anderson and Elbert Lawson. The bests are hauled by trucks to Glenora Farmery where they are shipped by rail to sugar factories in Magic Valley.

H. A. Thamerer, who lives south of Hansen, had 16 acres of spuds which averaged 20 sacks to the acre. The 4's are being sorted out at 32 per cent of No. 1's. Guy Wilburn, who is running the B. G. Wolter potato cellar at Hansen, states the Thamerer spuds are the best he has handled so far this year.

Stockmen are bringing their cattle out of the ranges in the mountains and turning them on all available pasture on Camas prairie until they can be shipped to winter feeding quarters. Quite a few bands of sheep are still on the prairie prior to moving to lower elevations.

The best harvest is in full swing on the ranches in Pasadena Valley, eight miles southeast of King Hill. Some of the bests are averaging 33 tons per acre down to 17 to 18 tons per acre, according to Lee Trail, Harold Van Sickle, Rodney Rubery, Karl Anderson and Elbert Lawson. The bests are hauled by trucks to Glenora Farmery where they are shipped by rail to sugar factories in Magic Valley.

An extra good "coyote crop" is reported by Mr. and Mrs. George Crockett, who live on a rocky creek south of Hansen. Mrs. Crockett reports seeing some of the animals every time she is out in the field. It is the first time in about 15 years they remember so many. The Crocketts don't mind the scolding at night because the predators control mice and other small rodents.

A heavy straw crop is being taken from one of the grain fields on the Fred Cillion farm south of Filer.

Mr. and Mrs. Andy Harrell, ranchers near Rogerson, have a son, Keith, attending Filer school, who is fond of football, so Mrs. Harrell has taken an apartment in Filer for Keith and herself during the football season so he can practice. They go out to the ranch on week-ends.

C. H. Wilson, Filer, sold some calves last week and was quite pleased with the price they brought.

Administration Preparing to Appoint Advisory Unit on Chicken Marketing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The Kennedy administration is preparing to appoint an advisory committee to consider proposed market stabilization programs for broiler chickens. The committee could recommend that Congress authorize the adoption of federal marketing orders for broiler chickens and chicken hatching eggs, which could include authority for marketing controls on handlers, but not on producers. The advisory group could not recommend immediate steps to put a market control program into effect without congressional action. There is no authority for such programs for chickens or current law.

sources from spokesmen for broiler producers. Any steps toward adoption of a program controlling broiler chicken sales are likely to meet strong opposition from some farm groups. The broiler industry itself, in spite of prices which have been below production costs for many growers much of this year, had not been united on what to do. This summer, during congressional debate on the 1961 farm act, most major broiler industry groups went on record against any marketing orders or any other form of regulation. Late last month, however, producer spokesmen from five southern states met in Washington to discuss the poultry industry's troubles. They indicated they were considering proposal of a nationwide program to manage broiler supplies and stabilize prices.

hatching eggs authority to adopt marketing orders if they can't get them. An advisory committee last week indicated it will soon make a formal proposal for adoption of turkey control orders. USDA technicians are now preparing a detailed draft of proposed marketing orders for programs for the turkey committee.

36 Herds in 3-County Area Lead Production

JEROME, Oct. 27.—Of the 60 herds in the Gooding-Lincoln-Hotel area, 36 herds are averaging more than 200 pounds of butterfat for September. The top herds include: The Andersons, Holsteins, with 32 registered Holsteins, averaged 215 pounds of milk and 49.7 pounds of butterfat. Ray Martin, Hunt, with 10 registered Holsteins, averaged 192 pounds of milk and 47.7 pounds of butterfat. Gordon Martin, Hunt, with 20 registered Holsteins, averaged 187 pounds of milk and 47.1 pounds of butterfat.

Now, he says, like Silvas, he can't walk the 1,000-foot distance before the water is through. Gabriela showed a reservoir and pump pipeline which accomplished the same purpose as that installed by Kerner on his farm. Baneroff showed a reservoir which, at present, stores water for livestock. When he completes his project, he will have installed a pump and pipeline which will save 30 to 50 acre feet of water. The exact amount will be determined by the type of irrigation system.

Cope said of these practices, "They all are useful. In years of plenty of water, they will help accomplish a little better use of water and save time for the farmer, and in a year of water shortage they are especially valuable to insure against total crop failure." Taking the tour were residents of Lincoln, Gooding and Twin Falls counties. Noon luncheon was served at the Wood River Center Grange hall.

Efforts of Individual Farmers for Saving Water Seen in Lincoln Tour

SHOSHONE, Oct. 27.—A little planning and work on irrigation structures can bring savings in time, money and much needed water, it was demonstrated on a tour of irrigation construction practices conducted last week by the Wood River soil conservation district. Farms visited included those of Oscar Kerner, Paul Baneroff, Arch 1st Jones, Corwin Silvas, Ralph Ward-Cufford Davis and John Ostola in the Shoshone-Dietrich areas. Actual pumps, pipelines, irrigation reservoirs and concrete-lined ditches on these farms were shown, and an explanation of how they worked was given.

water out the other end and onto the land it used to irrigate. Corwin Silvas showed a pipeline which has eliminated more than a mile of ditch which for years supplied his farm with irrigation water. The old ditch wound through neighbors' farms, over lava rock and over hills. The loss of water through seepage was terrific, he said.

Now, by use of approximately one-half mile of pipeline, Silvas runs his entire stream of water into the intake end of the pipe and gets the entire amount out to the crop feeding irrigation. Silvas says, "I used to turn the water into the ditch at the head-gate and three or four hours later a little of it would be down to where I could use it. I spent days and days cleaning out the old ditch. Now I turn the water into the pipe and before I can walk to the end of the pipe, the water is there, ready for use."

Some of his fields, which were irrigated three or four days to irrigate, even with a water shortage this year were irrigated in one or two days. He has about 90 per cent water delivery.

Davis, on the Ralph Ward farm in Dietrich, showed a concrete-lined ditch. This ditch replaces an old open ditch which was wide and deep. He used to turn the water into that open ditch

Archie Jones showed a pipeline which in itself is not spectacular, but did exhibit perfectly the "value" of expertise. Jones had built a large ditch fill to carry irrigation water across a low spot on his farm. In 1959 the fill was 18 feet high in the center and, during the winter of 1959-1960, the fill settled a foot or so and now the water has to get water across the coming irrigation season.

During the season of 1959-1960, Jones could not turn his entire stream of one and one-half inch and two feet of water across the fill. If he had, the fill would have broken and his crops would have burned. In 1961 Jones gave up the fill, tore it out and installed his pipeline. There had been too much expense with building and rebuilding the fill.

His comments, "Never use a deep fill for an irrigation pipe. It's cheaper to install the pipeline in the first place. I turn 70 inches of water into the intake of my pipe and I get 10 inches of BOISE, Oct. 27 (AP)—Idaho's fish and game commission decided Thursday to oppose a wilderness bill, but it refused to take that position in the congressional hearing on the controversial legislation, but did not to make the stand until the hearing next Monday and Tuesday in McCall. A member of the commission will appear at the hearing, which will be conducted by Rep. Gracie Pirost, D., Ida.

McCormick, Ramos Lead In "Gophers"

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—There is a good reason why pitchers Pedro Ramos of Minnesota and Mike McCormick of San Francisco were named as the top recorders in the 1961 baseball season. They were too generous with homerun services.

Ramos yielded 39 homers to lead the American league while McCormick topped the National with 33, figures compiled by the Associated Press revealed Thursday. Ramos, who set an American league record by allowing 43 gopher balls in 1957, has served up 209 homers in seven big league seasons. The "Twins" right-hander also paced the circuit in 1958. He finished the past campaign with 20 defeats and 11 victories.

Saimas Named College Grid Back of Week

By The Associated Press
George Saimas, Michigan State, the shining star of the game of the week, was named Thursday the back of the week in the 1961-62 season. The 20-year-old fullback broke loose in the second half to rip apart the top-ranking Spartans to a 17-7 victory over the sixth-ranked Michigan Wolverines.

The quick-striking, 186-pound junior, the campus champ in dancing "the Twist," showed his shaky hips to the Irish defense in leading off scoring runs of 24 and 25 yards within two minutes and 46 seconds. He streaked 46 yards to the final quarter to help set up the insurance field goal. In all he carried 14 times for 147 yards, six of which were in the final quarter with a rock-ribbed defense.

College Football's "Big Four" Rated Favorites This Week-End

By The Associated Press
The "big four" of college football—Michigan State, Mississippi, Texas and Alabama—shouldn't be concerned over whether they can win again this week but only by how much. All are favored by two touchdowns and up over their unfortunate opponents. The powerful Spartans of Michigan State, who have rolled up 96 points while yielding only 10 in their four straight victories, hope to solidify their No. 1 ranking against Indiana, a team that has lost three out of four, at East Lansing, Mich. already.

UCLA-Stanford Tilt Tops Slate on Coast

By The Associated Press
UCLA, the pre-season pick to win the Big Five conference title, launches its Rose bowl bid against Stanford at Palo Alto at football fever otherwise drops a degree or two along the West Coast this week-end. A pair of intersectional scrambles, with more prestige than significance, mark the schedule, with California and Oregon State play a suddenly dangerous Penn State at University Park and winless Illinois appearing in Los Angeles against Southern Cal.

Jay Is Best Pitcher in National Loop

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—Joey Jay, the Cincinnati Reds, 21-game winner, was honored by the United Press International's board of baseball experts for the second time when he was named the National league's pitcher of the year.

Jay, previously picked by the UPI board for making the major league comeback of the year, led offensively in the Big Five conference in the Big Eight and until recently stood out as a national power. Colorado is a six-point choice.

Give 'em a pumpkin and they're happy! This might be the motto of parents at Halloween time as seems there's nothing quite like a real pumpkin to add realism to the "spooky" time of year for children. Getting their pumpkin ready for the Halloween season in our cover picture this week are Shannon, Green, 3, and Jerry Green, 5, children of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Green, Twin Falls. Jerry worked hard carving a face in the pumpkin, but Shannon seemed more interested in counting the seeds inside.

Danny Kaye Declares He "Can't Win"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP)—Danny Kaye, who has been plunking around at Paramount studios, grabbed a golf club and fluffed the air like maybe he was Arnold Palmer on the first tee.

Confessed that he had broken an imaginary par, he dropped into a crouch and knifed.

"It's hard to figure out," he said.

From the look of his backswing Danny should have been talking about his golf game. But something else was on his mind.

"You can never be sure what the public wants in the way of entertainment," he went on. "After I made seven pictures for Sam Goldwyn the critics said I was doing the same old stuff and that I should try something new."

"But my movies were making money and I stayed with the successful formula."

"Finally I made 'Me and the Colonel' and I made a picture. The critics like it but it was a bomb at the boxoffice."

"I want back to the way of comedy I've done all my life in 'On the Double.' It's making a lot of money, but the critics think it is now, because my dignity."

Comedians can't afford dignity.

Danny is a case in point. Audiences love to see him running around the screen in long underwear. But it is not more than that to be a great comedian. Even if, perhaps especially, Khroustchev could look funny in long, woolies.

"I can't win," Kaye said, eyeing the golf club appreciatively. "I've had more money than a fortune in movies and drew national-wide acclaim last year for the best TV special."

Korean Star Studying at U.S. College

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—Take Audrey Hepburn at the start of her career, remove her from Hollywood and put her in a quiet college campus in Seoul, and you have the situation of Korean movie star Chae Chai.

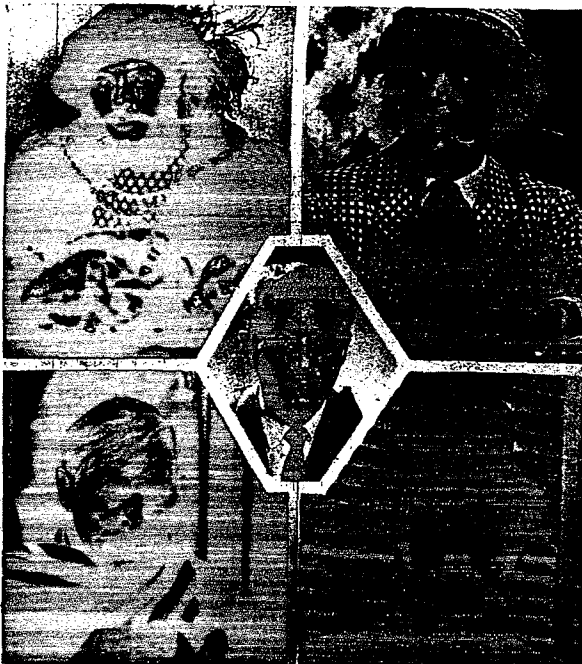

Miss Choi, already at 22 a veteran of 29 films and winner of a best-supporting actress award in Korea, has decided her career to study English at the Georgetown university institute of language and linguistics.

Chae (which means wise woman) has her eyes on the success stories of other Asian actresses, including Yoko Kishida, who has found fame and riches on Broadway and in Hollywood.

But she says her heart belongs to Korea and has no intention of deserting the film industry.

The actress came here on an American Adult Education Exchange, Inc., fellowship. Already she can hold a conversation in English, treating the language with the delicate, wary absorption of an antelope nibbling a piece of grass.

"I couldn't study in Korea," she told UPI, explaining her decision to come to the United States. "I was too busy. Here I have time."

But Miss Choi has little time for anything except her studies—three hours of classes a day and then three hours in a language laboratory with headphones and a tape recorder.

In the evening she does homework. Her social life is therefore limited mainly to the week-ends, which is not time enough for the host of admirers she has acquired at Georgetown university.

Ounce of Prevention Worth Wound

BY KAY SHERWOOD

In the busy, "growing children" household, emergencies are routine. It's a rare day without a minor accident. Fortunately, it's usually nothing more serious than a bruise, laceration or skinned shin, but the minor nature of most of the complaints may encourage a careless attitude toward home accidents and their treatments.

When our daughter acquired a Pinto pony recently, the first thing the insect did was to nip the hand that feeds him. It wasn't a serious bite, in our opinion, the skin was just barely broken.

Wound Washed We washed the wound and would have forgotten about it except for a chance meeting with the family doctor. He took instant interest and insisted on bringing her right over for a tetanus shot.

Included in the office call was a short lecture on the potential dangers of all animal bites, as well as the cuts or punctures usually sustained from nails or barbed wire around a barnyard. This incident did direct our attention to home accidents, how we might prevent some, how well prepared we were to handle sensibly those that might occur. Older children "on their own" are no longer under the close and protective supervision of mother as they were as toddlers, and can profit from accident prevention reminders and knowledge of the rudiments of first aid.

Remind Children They can be reminded to keep the play yard at home or school clean of sharp rocks, broken glass, gardening equipment. They can be reminded to handle a bicycle so safely that it becomes second nature to ride cautiously in traffic.

Many similar simple preventive reminders will help to avoid some of the serious accidents.

When the inevitable scrapes, cuts and bumps do occur, what shall we tell the children to do? I tell mine to report any accident to me, to the mother, to the grownup friend—whatever adult is near. If an adult isn't around to supervise first aid treatment, they should know how to wash a cut with soap and water, how to apply a simple bandage.

It helps both for them and for your peace of mind if you have a modern first aid manual and easily accessible place either at home or in the car. A small basket, in which I keep the basic items plus the manual, will fit anyone can find it in the kitchen.

Rapid Jump for Oldsters Noted

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—The older group in the population has had a very rapid growth, the bureau of the census reports.

Between 1950 and 1960, when the population of the nation increased by 18.5 per cent, their number of persons over 65 increased by nearly 35 per cent. Their rate of increase was only slightly below that for the persons at the other end of the age scale, children under 15.

Popularity of Skiing Creates Demand for Stylish Fashions

Skiing, practically the only mode of transportation for winter-bound people not so many decades ago, has become an exhilarating pastime—often a fashionable thing to do. As the leisure of our modern life increases, skiing's popularity upsurge creates a demand for clothes to suit the activity—and with it, a new fashion concept. And the fashion news for 1961-2 is exciting: Clothes for ski and apres (after) ski have such eye-appeal and functional beauty that they will be worn by many who have never even seen a ski slope.

Knots of ski apparel are beauty, warmth-without-weight and impeccable fit. Much of the beauty is in the fabrics. There are new silks and super-nylon, pascals, jacquards and like-but-fabulous jurs.

Imported from Italy, Holland, Austria, Switzerland and England are textured tweeds, luxurious wools, hand-tufted cronsteds, cotton poplins, and irreplaceable elastics (stretch) Helanca. To swelling of bumps. In our manual are also listed names and telephone numbers for emergency use to call the doctor, police, fire, ambulance, close friends or a hospital.

Daughter is introduced to first aid information by wise mother, who keeps first aid manual and basket of supplies ready and accessible at all times.

Some homemakers find a regular first-aid kit packed by the manufacturer to be adequate but I have trouble keeping a compact kit neat and properly stocked with ready-made bandages, cotton, sterile gauze pads, antiseptic first aid cream.

Instead, the packages can be put in bathroom medicine cabinet but this isn't always a satisfactory nor easily accessible place either. An easy solution for me is a small basket, in which I keep the basic items plus the manual, will fit anyone can find it in the kitchen.

Look Ahead At Plumbing And Wiring

Looking ahead to the next home you'll be moving into? Be sure you look far enough to find out whether existing wiring, plumbing and other facilities are adequate for your family's needs.

That's the advice of a leading long-distance moving firm which provides a consulting service designed to help make moving easier and more pleasant.

The moving men do not book up the housewife's appliances of the do-it-yourselfer's power tools, but they have found in moving thousands of families each year that frequently, existing facilities are inadequate.

This is particularly true in some older homes where the wiring will not handle the electrical requirements of such things as air conditioners.

There also is the possibility that the existing plumbing system is not equipped for today's automatic washers or that the facilities are inadequate for a water softener or a big water heater.

malian and Comparative," by W. James Leach. "The Exploration of Space," edited by Robert Jastrow. It is a donation to the library by Mrs. D. W. Lambert.

Three books are of current interest, according to DeVolder: "Foreign Aids: Our Tragic Experiment," by Thomas S. Loeb; "Europe Today," and "Politics is Your Business," by William H. Baumer and D. G. Herzberg, a guide to practical politics for businessmen.

"Two books of interest to businessmen are, 'A Handbook of Public Relations,' edited by Howard Stephenson, and 'A Practical Approach to Marketing System for the United States,' edited by James W. Bell and Walter E. Spahr.

Other additions include, 'Book of Tennis,' an illustrated book on how to play this sport by the staff of Sports Illustrated;

Library Adds 28 New Books To Collection

The Twin Falls public library has added 28 new books to its collection, Arthur H. DeVolder, library director, announced Wednesday.

Travel books head the list with S. Ewell offering "Golden Way and Mirador," about Peru, and "Guide the Caribbean," by Bradley Smith.

Persons interested in history and biography, "Hannibal," by Leonard Cottrell, tells of Rome's famous enemy while, Charles Paul's "And Four to Grow," a biographical sketch of a family's emotional growing pains. "I Love You, Honey," by the Sea-Port of circus life by Connie Clausen, plus Chow Chung-Chang's, "The Lotus Pool," a story of a Chinese girl, complete this section of the new selections.

Four titles in the social science field have been added: "Woman," by Dr. Joyce Brothers; "The Pioneers in Mental Health," by Robin McKown; "Man in Process," by Dr. Ashley Montagu, and "Abominable Snowman," by Paul S. Anderson. A compilation of legends of sub-humans on five continents.

In "The Ruins are Inhabited," by Muriel Beadle, the reader learns of the English, English education and the rigors of receiving a Noble prize. "The Origins of Great Civilization," by Chester C. Starr, is another addition to the library's shelves.

For apres-ski wear, there are full sweaters, tunics, cardigans, and knit blouses to match sleek stretch pants or slender skirts for an ensemble look.

Accessories include, hats, hats and more hats. Some delightfully many, huge and magnificent as royal military headpieces, others simple and cozy as sailors' watch caps. . . all chic, colorful and becoming. Equally important are gloves and mittens.

These are ski and apres-ski clothes, designed for the slopes and the ski lodge and for non-skiers to wear casually as spectators. These are warm, colorful, coordinated and will be worn for sports-car riding, hiking in the country, on dog-walking jaunts and just as probably on chilly, winter-morning strolls to the supermarket.

Quilted Fabric Dresses Furniture

KAY BIERWOOD
Quilted fabrics are bringing a new dimension to traditional slip covers. A nice, soft, elegantly comfortable dimension that can turn the plainest chair or sofa into a posh-looking center of attention.

One reason for the growing demand for quilted fabrics is the current emphasis on patterns in room decor (quilted under-mattress patterns), and on period settings. Quilted coverings as such are nothing new.

Easy to handle—Just synthetic fiber fillers which give a rickety, fluffly look to the fabrics are new and to the delight of those who sew, are said to be easy to handle.

Some of the points about quilted fabrics may be of value to you whether you sew your own slip covers or have them made. Some solid-colored and some printed fabrics are available ready-quilted; many more suitable fabrics are not.

Paper Towels And Tissues Can Be Handy

Chicago, Oct. 27 (AP)—Paper towels and tissues are useful for a wide variety of household tasks. Here are some suggestions from one manufacturer.

Use lint-free paper towels for window washing. They're highly absorbent. Wonderful for cleaning mirrors and silver, too.

For quick clean-up of ash trays, empty, then wipe out tray with tissues.

Soothe the leaves of indoor plants with tissues dipped in sudsy warm water and blot with tissues.

To avoid rinsing loose hairs down the drain after a shampoo, wipe the washbasin clean with two or three tissues. Loose hairs will cling to the damp tissues.

Hot ink stains with tissues before attempting to clean with detergent and water. Work carefully with the tissues from the edges of the stain toward the center to prevent ink spread.

Whisk dirt out of hard-to-reach corners and carved furniture with a piece of tissue twisted around an orange stick.

Use of Lenses Recurring Problem for Photography

By BART KINCH
A recurring problem among amateur photographers who own cameras that accept interchangeable lenses is: What additional lenses do I need?

The answer in some cases is none. In others, several. It depends on the photographic abilities of the individual.

Many amateurs feel that after they have taken a few rolls of film with a camera equipped with its normal lens, they have exploited all the camera's possibilities. They are wrong. There are, of course, other students of photography who have reached this stage.

Having a specific use for additional lenses is the key phrase. There is little sense in purchasing, for example, a 135-millimeter telephoto lens for $150 or more if it will be used only once or twice a year.

However, if the user plans to

Use of Color in Small Rooms May Provide Lively Interest

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—Walls, ceilings and floors may provide lively interest in the smallest of rooms through the use of color as illustrated at the recent American Institute of Interior Designers show.

Orange, red, green, blue and even black were used in handsome backgrounds for furnishings of every vintage and style, and furniture often rivaled the background for color interest.

Fabric, cork, weathered boards were used on walls, country beams went to ceilings of chic 18th century settings. Floors were blue, red, green, yellow, white, wood effects.

Red and green mixed in elegant harmony in many rooms. If green wasn't to be found on walls, it was sure to be spotted on the floor, or a bed or in a drapery fabric. A popular place for the use of red was in upholstery on chairs in vibrant or subdued reds or in the use of painted ceilings.

Harvey Prober's exhibit was particularly noted for its use of red in upholstery on chairs in vibrant or subdued reds or in the use of painted ceilings.

Vivid colors were used together. Shocking pink and orange came off in surprising harmony.

Billion Mark Hit in Payments

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—Nearly a billion dollars a month now is being paid in social security to 13.5 million older persons and the disabled who are generally retired.

Robert M. Ball, deputy director of the bureau of old age and survivors insurance, social security administration, cited the statistic in a report to the National Council on the Aging.

Rise From Modeling Job To Stardom Is Tradition

While Susan Hayward was still in her teens the red-haired beauty and the camera struck up a lasting friendship that would someday lead to screen fame in Hollywood.

Susan, now starring in Universal-International's "Back Street," was a photographer's model in her native Brooklyn, without any motion picture aspirations, and may never have been Hollywood if her photograph hadn't appeared in a national magazine.

That particular publication was seen in Hollywood by producer David O. Selznick and the then unknown photographer's model was brought to Hollywood to be tested for the role of Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind."

Miss Hayward merely became another Hollywood statistic in that global search for an acting discovery. The role subsequently went to British actress Vivien Leigh and it left dozens of screen hopefuls in Hollywood to find fame for their own in the latter category Susan Hayward figured quite prominently.

The recent actress went on to enjoy long-term acting contracts with three major studios: Warner Bros., Paramount and 20th Century-Fox, in addition to a long term pact with Walter Warner, a top independent producer.

Later, when Miss Hayward's acting agreement with 20th Century-Fox expired, Universal-International producer Ross Hunter was quick to take advantage of the availability of the actress and immediately signed her for the starring role in Pannell Hurst's classic story "Back Street." Miss Hayward's co-star in the dramatic new film are John Gavin and Vera Miles.

In "Back Street," Susan will be seen in the role of Rae Smith, young fashion designer in London, Nebraska, who falls in love with a department store tycoon only to discover he is married. How the ill-fated affair continues after she wins professional success in New York, Rome and Paris, until his tragic conclusion many years later, is to be enacted with all the emotional depth that kept the Pannell Hurst love story in best-seller lists for season after season.

Popular Road To Retirement Is His Path

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP)—The words were familiar. So were the surroundings. But the face was different.

The face was the handsome one belonging to Eileen Zimba-latt. He had a dead look as he remarked: "I think I will quit the business."

Zimballatt was following a grand tradition. Actors have been rebelling at Warner brothers since the golden days of Errol Flynn, Bette Davis, Humphrey Bogart, Lauren Bacall, etc., etc.

These stars had been followed in later days by such recalcitrant TV cowpokes as James Garner, Clint Walker, Wayne Preston, etc., etc.

TV alights to rebel. He is Stu Bailey, leader of the "77 Sunset Strip" show that has launched a mess of other private eye programs. Now the leader wants to quit.

Actors often talk about quitting; few do. So why should you place any credence in the Zimballatt report because he did quit once? That was after the death of his wife.

"I was out of acting for five years," he said. "I did nothing for the first year and a half. Then I studied and did some teaching at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia (where his famed father has taught music). I came back to acting because I missed the companionship and sociability of the entertainment world."

ACTRESS PLAYS AUTHOR'S HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP)—Eddie Bracken guest stars as Ace Johnson, who taught the New York gang boss when he sets out to get rich as a prohibition beer baron in "Another Time, Another War" on "The Roaring 20's" Saturday, Nov. 4 on ABC-TV.

Television Notebook

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—Be-for the Smothers brothers, Tom and Dick, had made their initial appearance on Steve Allen's ABC hour Oct. 11. Allen had signed them to be on 13 of his shows this season. Their performances will be fitted around their prior commitments in night clubs and theaters.

Yves Montand, the personable French singer actor who opened his one-man show on Broadway Oct. 21, has been signed for one of his rare television appearances as star of a "Times Special" on the ABC network Nov. 23. Theaters and the one-hour show will be recreation of his songs of past Broadway musicals.

"General Electric Theater" on CBS will have an original musical play called "Tippy Top" later this year. Conventional Red Buttons will star in this story; as a character imagined by a lonely little boy who needs help in growing up. William Bendix and Scott Brady are other stars scheduled for later appearances on this program. Both will be in "We're Holding Your Son," drama of juvenile delinquency in the higher brackets.

Art Carney will serve both as narrator and performer for "Pads and Puddles," the fare on NBC's "Post Show of the Week" Dec. 17. This is a semi-documentary look at America's love for novelties of all sorts as reflected in its popular music over the past century. Barbara Cook, Alice Ghostly, Elton Roberts and James Hurn are other stage personalities who will perform.

SPORTS SHOW RETURNS HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP)—"ABC's Wide World of Sports," a 90-minute Sunday sports special which will take viewers to outstanding sporting events all over the world.

On My Own Time

By BOB HARTLEY

The hottest TV property seems to be "Sing Along With Mitch." Nielsen television survey reports that 35 per cent of the homes were watching two weeks ago. We had an opportunity to talk with an advertiser who sponsors a sizable portion of the show. It was bought at the instance of the advertiser, not recommended by the agency, and he feels even with it being the No. 1 show that it is not a good buy for his product—beer. He calculates that the audience is made up of good, steady people, probably a bit older than average and that they are not the beer drinking market. So you see, having the No. 1 show does not mean everybody's happy.

Our hat's off to George Foran at the Turf Club for his continued efforts to bring top-notch entertainment to Magic Valley. The next attraction he has booked is comedian-singer Paul Desmond. Magic Valley will feature a steady stream of top-notch acts and therefore can vouch for his style of entertaining. He is appearing with Frank Sinatra and is sandwiching the Twin Falls engagement in between Sinatra's shows. Also he has appeared with Johnny Mathis, James Kelly and Jimmy Rogers. Filming in between Desmond's sets Nov. 8-11 will be the Billy Stewart trio. The trio has appeared with Stan Keaton, Alvin Key and Benny Goodman, among others. They'll appear Nov. 8 and 7.

The Pulse survey organization came up with an interesting study released last week. It found that most persons were looking forward to the start of the 1961-62 television season. In a 300-person sample in New York City, 80 per cent of 10 were unable to name a single new program for the fall season. Whether this would be true in other areas is pure speculation. Let's face it, some of the new programs aren't worth remembering.

Book and roll combos looking for a million-dollar future are alive and well and usually for every 50 cents you'll find only one worth its salt. Many of these combos are college courses that are sold through Magic Valley Christian college come one of these groups bent on a career in records and personal appearances. If you're interested in any of these, here's a group you might want to know more about—the Glenwoods. One thing about this college combo is that the money earned usually is spent at the college and if for no other reason you would be a sound investment.

Here's a new twist. Consumers in southern California can now obtain auto liability insurance by saving their trading stamps. A consumer who submits six books a year and who is injured in an accident will be eligible for payments of $150 a month for 12 months.

First run movies will flood Twin Falls soon. Right now we can't touch for fun that is showing, "Back Street," at the Miller-Vu and "Paris Blues," at the Orpheum. But coming up within the next week are two more top box office attractions. "The Hustler," now rated No. 1 attraction in the U.S. and "The Devil at 4 O'Clock," a Frank Sinatra and Spencer Tracy film, both are headed for Twin Falls. Being close to Salt Lake City has its advantages in the type of movies we get and when we get them.

Sunday's two-hour-long presentation on CBS-TV of "The Power and the Glory" has a rather peculiar cast, from the standpoint that many top-notch performers have taken supporting roles. Such names in show business as Julius Harris, Keenan Wynn, Roddy McDowell and Thomas Gomez will back up Sir Lawrence Olivier, who is cast as a clergyman in a hostile land. Public relations information claims that the stars were willing to take backseats because of the privilege of working with Olivier, who is a great testimonial to the actor's ability, as actors are harsh judges of contemporaries.

The first Community Concert association program of the season will commence at the home of the Elder high school auditorium and it appears they have an outstanding performer for the event. Albert Da Costa, tenor, is the attraction. He made his Metropolitan opera debut as Walker von Glotzing in "Die Meistersinger" and he was cast as a Metropolitan regular. There is no better qualification than having sung successfully at the Metropolitan opera. It means music lovers are in for a treat Monday night.

They're having quite a Halloween celebration tonight and Saturday at Lynwood shopping center and you've got to hand it to the merchants for coming up with something that appeals to children. There will be costume parade, a serpentine dance and, of course, treats for the children.

We wonder if Casey Stengel is returning to baseball because of his new position as manager of the Los Angeles Angels. He has a position behind his new book. Oh well, we suppose it's good to have him back.

New Halloween Idea Is Caldron For Centerpiece

Looking for something different in the way of a Halloween decoration?

Here's an idea that's sure to excite the child and please neighbors, too. Get several pieces of dry ice, each about the size of an ice cube, and heavy paper that has been treated with a special solution behind his new book. Oh well, we suppose it's good to have him back.

Add more dry ice as it becomes necessary. A five-pound supply should last about three hours. You can add more to the occasion with a wicked witch which you can either buy in a store or make yourself out of paper.

Keep Your Baby Clean and Warm

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—Baby, during his first year of life, has only two requirements for clothing: cleanliness and warmth, the National Baby Care council said.

Baby's needs can be met best by a minimum of clothes that allow for growth, are easy to put on and take off, are washable and are suitable for the weather.

The council said over-dressing baby makes him fussy.

French Opera Recorded; Singer Exhibits Talents

POPULAR By WILLIAM D. LAFFERTY Rod McKuen has so many talents that it is difficult to say which is his greatest. He has written both music and prose, has acted in movies and on TV and has made a number of these records as a soloist.

His latest LP, "Stranger in Town," (Kapp) not only brings out McKuen's luster as a singer but as a stylist, specialist or whatever you may wish to call it.

In this grouping of originals as well as music by other composers, McKuen concentrates on the despair of loneliness. Yet he is able to project the sometimes numbing misery of being alone and the acute and feeling of pity from the listener. And, instead of sympathy, Rod seems to find a feeling of understanding.

"That Old Feeling," a popular standard which has been sung by almost every singer of note gets a new shading from Rod. And McKuen, in handling "She Was Too Good to Me," demonstrates why Richard Rodgers and Loesser were as unbeatable a combination as Ruth and Gehrig or Laurel and Hardy.

Happy music is the theme of another set in "My Dance Dance Dance" by David Carroll (Mercury). While this selection is tailored for dancing, it makes good listening for wallflowers and those too lazy to move. And nobody would wince too much at Carroll's deft handling of "Muskrat Rambles."

FM Reported Very Popular in Britain; BBC Controls It All

By PRESTON MCGRAW In Britain, they call vacuum tubes "valves" and radio "wireless." So, as you might expect, they don't call frequency modulation "FM." Britons call FM broadcasts "the VHF service," and VHF, or "the VHF service," is reported very popular in Britain. The British Broadcasting Corporation controls all FM broadcasts. It operates 21 transmitters that provide service to 97 per cent of the population.

BBC is installing 21 more FM stations, part of them low-powered satellites in small communities, in an attempt to provide complete FM coverage by 1963. The two giants of the BBC's FM network are the Wrotham and Holme transmitters, which are rated at 120 kilowatts effective radiated power, each.

A feature common to British FM is the radio's use of at least three different programs on a common antenna. The BBC transmissions cover

Suicide Problem In Detail by Journalists

Trailer Within — Our Suicide Problem, by Edward Roth Katz and George W. Allen. Available in paperback. Two journalists, both of the New York World-Telegram, present the results of more than 12 years' study of the suicide subject, suicide. One of the main points they make, however, is that it should not be considered that suicide is an ailment abroad in superstition and folk lore which should be brought out into the open as the various and other diseases that were once hush-hush.

The authors uncovered many little-known facts that spring in suicide season, rather than cold, gloomy days in winter, that suicides can be committed with whole families forming pacts; that there are fashions in suicide, with men tending to the more violent and women to easier methods; that for the most part, suicides are sane; that notable behind provide curious and illuminating clues to the reasons for suicide.

Tabulate Just How Much You Own

Even a young family which is having its possessions appraised by a mover for insurance purposes can be amazed by the total value of furniture, clothes and knickknacks.

Replacement costs for your household and personal effects could easily run three or four times what you would imagine. It makes good sense, then, to take pencil in hand and do a conscientious estimating of the worth of the family belongings.

The advantages of such a list could be many. When moving to another house or apartment, for instance, any lost goods can be readily checked for insurance action. Even if no move is contemplated, a list can be invaluable should a fire or theft ever take place.

Here's How

How to make an inventory? First, get the experience of Jean Kinkead, women's consultant for Travelers Insurance, comes this advice:

Write on separate pages of a large pad of paper the names of the various rooms in the home, as well as cellar, attic and garage if they apply. On a page entitled "miscellaneous" will be listed sports and hobby equipment, jewelry, furs and luggage.

On the right-hand side of each page make heading for "when purchased" and "original cost."

Go to Each Room

Pad and pencil in hand, enter the first room, noting down the name and other floor coverings. Then walk around it, listing on the first trip furniture, lamps and books. Then, around again for bed-room. The list items in the closet, then go to the next room.

If you can't remember what you yield for "certain things" — say, if they were gifts or antiques — do not enter the price. Complete the list. Then estimate the cost of those items you had trouble with.

If necessary, call in help, such as a friend who knows antiques.

Receipts Can Help

Your canceled checks or filed receipts should help in most cases. A handy aid in your estimating job will be a mail-order catalogue. You often can find a comparable article there.

When your list is finished, keep it handy if you move. As you unpack, check off the various articles.

You should review and revise your inventory list from time to time — especially if you redecorate the home or make a number of substantial purchases.

Keeping track of just what you have in your home or apartment can prove valuable in case of fire, moving damage, etc. Go through each room of the house and make note of each item, its cost and replacement value. It could save you a future headache.

You Can Get Rid of Boxed Look in Room

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 (AP)—Wallpaper with a three-dimensional look can relieve the box-like look of apartment rooms and give them the appearance of architectural features.

One of the most effective wallpapers for this purpose has a realistic over-all brick pattern. It looks best on a single wall that is not too large. An excellent spot for it in many apartments is the back wall of a dining alcove, which is recessed off the living room. Using brick-patterned paper seems to push the wall back and create a feeling of separateness between living room and dining alcove.

In a larger room, scenic wallpaper, the mural type in which there is no repetition of design, creates the same effect of adding depth. The large design of the scenic paper could be overpowering in a small room, but used on a single wall of a large room, it adds almost as much depth and vista as a picture window.

Most mural-type wallpaper must be applied professionally and accordingly is costly. But there is a new pre-pasted type which comes in continuous strips for easy use by the home handyman.

The paper is in three coordinated patterns—a trellis with leaves, trellis without leaves and a border pattern of iron grillwork. By using combinations of the three patterns, it is possible to create a number of different garden-like effects.

Aching Feet Make Women Unpleasant

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 (AP)—when your feet hurt, you're a grump. Most women will vouch for that. There's scientific reason for it, said Dr. William H. Scholl, a foot specialist. He pointed out that tired, aching feet exert pressure on tiny nerves connected to the central nervous system, resulting in an overall feeling of exhaustion and frequently, crankiness.

With the holiday shopping season coming up, Scholl suggested these precautions against aching feet:

Wear heels no higher than two inches for shopping. Spike heels inhibit the ability of the natural arch to absorb shocks.

Protect sore spots on the feet before going shopping with corn and callous pads, mole skin or arch supports.

Be sure your stockings are long enough. Too-short hose can be as uncomfortable as tight shoes. Sprinkle on foot powder before donning stockings to absorb perspiration.

Jazz Figures Prominently

Jan made is featured quite a bit in the film, "Paris Blues," now showing at the Orpheum theater. Stars in the new, money-making film are Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward, who have appeared in other top box-office movies. (Staff engraving)

Jazz Musicians Might Change Their Tune After New Movie

Jazz musicians contend that their story hasn't really been told but after they see "Paris Blues" perhaps they'll change their tune. Producers think they have succeeded in telling the story, although to do so they picked only one aspect of the jazz idiom, the migration of American musicians to Paris over the last few decades.

Within that framework—and working with stars like Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward and Sidney Poitier—they have finally managed to get at least some of the language of jazz onto the screen. It is a motion picture that speaks boldly, so personally, so exciting that it involves the moviegoer every minute.

The United States—and that even includes the movie themselves—has done as much to help create international understanding and good will.

Now, the prime case in point is Louis Armstrong who, for almost half a century, has been synonymous with jazz throughout the world, even behind the Iron Curtain. Jazz is Armstrong and Armstrong is jazz—so much so that they were confused from the outset that having Satchel "Paris Blues" would be the single greatest guarantee of authenticity. Fortunately he agreed, and he was so enthusiastic about our story that he interrupted one of his arduous state department tours to come to Paris.

Autumn Flowers Can Make Magic

BY KAY SHERWOOD
Pue touches add a more hospitable look to a home than a bouquet of flowers. I've seen the magic work countless times in our homes. The living room is cleaned up for company, the dinner table is set neatly; the general effect is orderly, but flat. The festive welcome comes with a bright bouquet and fresh greenery or, in autumn, lovely fruit arrangements.

By the very nature of gardens, most of the bouquets we pick include a mixture of flowers. Marigolds, mums, cornflowers, zinnias, strawflowers, daisies and dahlias; the autumn list is varied and colorful.

If the pickings are skimpy, I piece out with a few sprigs from the florist, and I'm not above adding an artificial peony.

Although the autumn seasonal bouquet is logical and lovely in most of our home, only recently has it been praised "high fashion" by interior decorators and hailed as the "new look" in flowers.

One explanation from florists is that casually but carefully and skillfully arranged bouquets of seasonal flowers have been noted in the White House.

Added to this, say the decorators, is the blending of period furnishings which are not suited to the very formal, almost stark line arrangements shown with modern pieces.

Whether my homemade combinations of marigolds and sunflowers will bring high fashion into our house, I rather doubt. I have more enthusiasm than talent with flowers.

But in the hands of an artist, these mixed bouquets can be breathtaking. Colors are mixed as freely as flower species.

For example, in a casual bouquet arranged by a topnotch designer, I noted this combination: Gold marigolds, yellow statice, feathery orange celosia and orange fritoma predominated, with sharp accents of euryops purple lustrus and blue cornflower. Toning down this riot of color were gray artemisia and green bells of Ireland.

Containers are the other side of the casual effect. I mean, vases are all right, but it's now more fashionable than ever to cull the cupboard for pretty pitchers, bowls, turquoise, cups and what have you to show off the flowers. Sure, I know you've been doing this for years.

If you are reluctant to arrange flowers directly in a favorite silver, china or glass bowl, here's a trick that works.

Measure the container depth and width. From a florist you can get a thin plastic shell which will approximate the size. An arrangement in this shell, homemade or florist-made, can be fitted into the more decorative container but water, flower-protecting chemicals and the wire, clay or plastic used to hold the stems in place are safely corralled.

Incidentally a thoughtful gift for a close friend or relative is a "special occasion" bouquet planned to slip into one of their prized containers.

To Battle Wright

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP) — Eddie Sallim, Argentine middleweight champ, makes his first United States start when he faces rugged Teddy Wright of Detroit Saturday, Oct. 28, at Madison Square Garden, N.Y., in a 10-round mid-dnight bout to be nationally televised on "Fight of the Week."

Wright, 34, won the American middleweight crown last year. He has only lost once in 34 bouts since turning professional in 1958. In his last fight, Aug. 12 in Buenos Aires, he defeated Mario Paracetti in 10 rounds. Winner of 31 fights with two draws, he has scored 14 knockouts.

Getting Home Ready for Winter Means More Than Just Placing Storm Windows

The experienced homeowner makes use of his time before the cold snap to get his home in shape for winter. He knows that minor repairs made now will avoid the need for major repairs later.

Getting ready doesn't end with the obvious job of putting up storm windows. Check the windows themselves. Is putty old and cracked? If it is, you've located the source of future drafts. Chip out the old putty and re-putty the windows.

Check around the window frame and around the door as well. If the old caulking has dried out and has begun to pull away, scrape it out and re-caulk.

While you have the caulkng pan out, check other points that may need caulking. These include joints between porch and home, steps and home, siding and foundation and any other openings where air and moisture can get in.

Examine siding for loose boards. Remove or replace. If you have masonry walls, replace loose mortar and fill cracks. Wet down masonry before applying exterior house material and fill with fresh material. Use ready-mix patching materials to weld in any just add water for small jobs.

Check foundations and fill cracks. A clear masonry sealer will keep out moisture.

Pick a fairly calm day to check roof and gutters. Loose shingles should be sealed with cement or sealed down (or both). Ridges in roll roofing should be slit and sealed with roofing cement.

Check for roof leaks by looking for stains on ceiling and walls. Sodor. Flashing around chimney and in roof valleys should be painted if you find bare spots.

Use Tubal Liberty Be liberal in the use of asphalt paint on flashing and around chimney. Cover nail heads with it to prevent rusting wherever you have done any repainting.

Clean out gutters and continue cleaning until the last leaves are off the trees. Repair wherever necessary with asphalt-impregnated patches of canvas, glass fiber or metal. Make certain that gutters are secure or they will not withstand snow and ice. Cut off the water supply to outdoor faucets. Drain these and outdoor sprinkler systems. Call around the pipe where it comes through the wall.

Minor repairs around the house can mean avoiding major repairs later. And there's more to repairs than just putting on storm windows. Winter preparations, for those who really care about the home, are shown here.

Repair cracks in driveway and sidewalks. Chip out and remove loose material. Wet and fill with patching material.

Congo Is Scene For Movie Idea
HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP)—A Columbia motion picture company has down to the former Republic Congo—the first unit to make a picture there since the country's independence.

The Dino De Laurentis company is filming the picture, "Congo Viva." Some of the scenes also will be made in the former French Congo.

Steel Shelter Urged

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—The American Iron and Steel Institute, in cooperation with the office of civil defense, has prepared a new booklet designed to help Americans survive a nuclear attack.

The booklet emphasizes avoidance of gamma rays which like X-ray, are highly penetrating and can cause serious damage to living tissue. Radioactive materials that give off alpha or beta particles present no problems to persons under shelter.

The booklet, soon to be available through state and local civil defense offices, says a steel fallout shelter structure covered with sand or soil has many basic advantages, including efficiency, economy and sturdiness.

Wagner-Wood Split-up Is Mystery for Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP)—In movieland a broken marriage is like a broken balloon — a big noise, quickly forgotten.

But not the marriage of Natalie Wood and Bob Wagner. The reasons are still a mystery. And the aftermath is a lulu, even for Hollywood. It has the whole town talking.

Instead of the usual triangle, the Wood-Wagner bustup is a square. The other two sides are performers Joan Collins and Warren Beatty.

The quartet members all are handsome, young, talented specimens on their way to the top of the glamor business.

Until last June 20, the marriage of Natalie and Wagner was what Hollywood calls idyllic. Then they split up practically overnight. Movie magazines were caught with their rotogravures down.

Natalie says she has no immediate plans to file for divorce but that also can change overnight.

"We've agreed on a property settlement," she says. As to the reasons for the split, she says nothing. Nor does Wagner.

If Hollywood custom prevails, the world may never know. When divorce comes, the charges probably will be that old standby—mental cruelty.

"Hawaii" Movie Is Planned

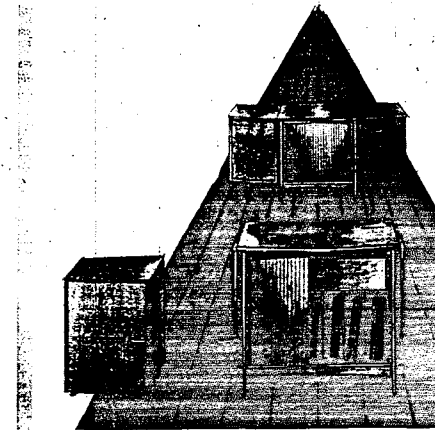

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP)—Like to see "Hawaii" in two evenings? It's possible, but as of now you'll get the film in one sitting.

Faced with the task of putting the immense James Michener novel on the screen, producer-director Fred Zinnemann toyed with the revolutionary idea of doing it in two complete movies.

His backers, United Artists and the Mirisch company, went along. Now United Artists has changed its corporate mind. The present concept is a one-evening movie. That is the reason for the change of writers from a two-evening man, Daniel Taradash "From Here to Eternity," "Platoon" to Dalton Trumbo ("Spartacus").

It's possible that we might go back to the two-evening idea—if we get a tremendously exciting script," said Zinnemann. Meanwhile he will not make his moves until he has the script in hand.

"I am in no hurry," he said.

Jayne Mansfield Is New Kind of Hollywood Star

BY HUBBARD KEAVY
HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP)—When you get within the high, pink walls and approach the all-pink mansion you expect an all-pink hostess. But she is sun-tanned and her blond, blond hair is in careful disarray, and she is wearing an orange bikini. Her name is Jayne Mansfield. She is lying on her stomach near her heart-shaped pool. My visit was to find out about a new kind of star, one who opens shopping centers, huge new department stores, new cafes. She seems to turn up at everything new, to turn the spade or cut the ribbon or push the button to start wheels turning. In five years, Jayne has made one Hollywood picture, several in Europe, but in southern California she has attended hundreds of openings. "Now," said Jayne as we finally sat down with two musical

Everyone will be dressed in the prevailing style of the decade, now considered ludicrous by today's moderns.

Humane Western Is Latest Plan

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP)—White hot branding irons have been replaced by paint brushes in TV westerns according to the American Humane association. The association says two brands recently were painted on cattle for a scene in the "Cheyenne" TV series at Warner Bros. Studios. When it is necessary to show the actual branding, hot irons are applied to boards lying on the ground behind the steers.

Benny Starts 50th Year in Showbiz; Being "Butt of Jokes" Has Paid Off

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP)—Television is supposed to be sure death for comic. Excepting Jack Benny, He's just started his 50th year on home screens, his 30th in broadcasting, his 50th in showbiz. Says his best friend, George Burns: "Jack is such a nice guy that he dazes them not to laugh. Finally, the audience never Jack—gets nervous and starts laughing hysterically." For Benny, every knock is a boost. He is the all-time champion payer, butt of all jokes—even in real life. He'll be 66 next Valentine's day. He looks and acts 50. Well, almost. "In fact," says Jack, "I would not mind being 39 again if I felt as good as I do now."

"Stone Age Presley" Is Back in Town

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP)—John Boles, who can smile when he is called "the Elvis Presley of the stone age," was back in Hollywood this week for a sentimental visit. The tag was hung on him recently by a Houston newspaperman. Boles takes it in good humor. In fact, he smiles all the way to his oil wells. Hollywood hasn't seen much of John Boles in recent years. He is remembered as a robbert, a devilishly handsome leading man who could lead desert wars with his baritone "The Desert Song," act fatherly to Shirley Temple, "Curly Top," "The Little Rebel" or husbandly to a host of anguished actresses. He's still in Russell in "Craig's Wife," Barbara Stanwyck in "Stella Dallas," etc. etc. He returned here to help celebrate another of his old tear-jerkers, "Back Street." Boles was the apex of the triangle that included Irene Dunne and Doris Lloyd in the 1911 version. Charles Boyer, Margaret Sullivan and Nella Walker played the same game in the 1941 remake. Now Rom Hunter, the noted examiner of tried-and-true movie plots, has devised a 1961 version with John Gavin, Susan Hayward and Vera Miles. Boles was invited to help beat the drums and to attend the premiere. Members of the British parliament booby up their fellows with "hear, hear," which became "cheers" in the record debates.

Use Lacquer for New Binding Life

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—To put new life into the bindings of old leather bound books, try treating them with lacquer. Lacquer is especially useful in treating books that have become powdery and are almost ready for rebinding. The U.S. department of agriculture reports that clean the books well. Apply oil if you wish. Then spray or brush on two thin coats of lacquer, allowing the first to dry before applying the second.

Despite the border crisis that affects their every day existence, the governments of West Germany and Berlin continue their stamp output. The latest is a continuation of their new definitive series featuring portraits of world-famous Germans and consists of two new stamps. One, a 30 Pfennig, honors Lennand Kant (1724-1804), famous philosopher who has been compared with Plato and Aristotle.
