Utah Couple Buys Ranch In Montana

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Nov. 11 (AP)—Sale of the Stanton cattle ranch, southwest of Great Falls, Mont., to Mr. and Mrs. Matt S. Brown of Ogden, Utah, has been announced.

The ranch was reported to be about 450,000 for 17,000 acres and about 40,000 head of cattle. Sale of the ranch in the Cascade and Adel areas was announced by trustees of the Stanton ranch company. The ranch since the death in 1956 of Tom Stanton, Great Falls, Idaho, widow resides in Lincoln, Mont.

Mr. and Mrs. Browning said the holdings will be called the Bar B ranch company. Mr. Browning was for 20 years, Browning was manager of a large family-owned ranch in the Big Hole valley in Montana. This company was started by the father and became one of the nation's largest cattle companies in the nation, holding up to 10,000 animals. The holdings were liquidated in 1954. Mr. Browning retained the Bar B registered brand and a ranch in Utah.

Two Drivers Are Rescued After Mishap

AMERICAN FALLS, Nov. 11 (AP)—A farm worker rescued two men from their burning truck Friday following a highway collision.

Both truck drivers were hospitalized, one in serious condition from burns.

They are Louis B. Panopolis, Panopolis and Wayne Butler, American Falls.

Panopolis was believed the most seriously injured. Idaho state police officer James Hager said the accident occurred when Butler, driving an empty potato truck, pulled onto U. S. highway 30 a few miles west of American Falls. The truck was hit by a loaded gasoline tanker driven by Panopolis.

The truck skidded into a borrow pit, side-by-side and burst into flames—apparently by the gasoline tanker's ruptured engine fuel tank.

Wally Kohn, working in a nearby field, saw the accident, rushed to the scene and pulled Panopolis from the burning truck. Then Maupin helped rescue Butler, who was unconscious in his seat.

Panopolis' injuries included a burn on the hands, arms and face. The 100 gallons of gasoline which was up the tanker's cargo did not burn.

Idaho Pilots Registration Fees Upheld

BOISE, Nov. 11 (AP)—An attorney general has ruled that the state department of aeronautics may collect a $2 pilot registration fee, even though it is not needed for the search and rescue work for which it is earmarked.

Chief Monton, state aeronautics director, said the fee has been in effect for a number of years and the funds collected have been used to finance search and rescue operations. However, Monton said that because of trends in the state's low-income population, he could be asked the 1961 legislature to authorize a sliding scale, based on income, depending on need.

Instead, the legislature approved a boost in the amount approved at $2. Monton said. He then turned out, Monton said, the demand for search and rescue assistance has been light this year. The $2 fee has provided sufficient revenue.

He asked the attorney general whether he could be obligated to collect the $2 fee, Monton said.

"I know the industry won't object to paying the added cost but I hate to collect it if it is not needed. But I guess a law is a law."

Atty. Gen. Frank L. Benson said in his opinion for Monton that the department was obliged to collect the $2 fee, since the legislature made no provision for any lesser amount.

Monton said about 2,000 pilots register each year. The registration period begins Dec. 1 and new licenses must be obtained by Jan. 1.

Schedule of College Classes Discussed

Arthur Klinkopf, coordinator of the Twin Falls adult education center, discusses the proposed class schedule with interested students. The courses will start in January and will be held at the Twin Falls Junior High school. Courses will be taught by Idaho State college staff personnel or qualified personnel from Magic Valley. From left, are Mrs. John Coleman, Klinkopf and Vera Hoag. They are all students in a University of Idaho extension course that is being featured. Staff photo—courtesy.

Adult Education Classes Expected To Begin in T.F. Early in January

Plans for the new Twin Falls adult education center, sponsored by Idaho State college, are moving along and classes will begin in early January.

Arthur Klinkopf, coordinator, says classes will be chosen soon after a public opinion survey from the various colleges and divisions of Idaho State college. A number of students already will determine classes.

Klinkopf has started to sample public opinion concerning classes. The center in Twin Falls will provide classes for residents in the central and western part of Magic Valley, serving the area between Bliss and Hazelton, and from Ketchikan to the Nevada border. A Burley-Rupert center will serve residents of Minidoka and Cassia counties.

Klinkopf has called a meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Twin Falls junior high school auditorium. He urges all persons interested in enrolling to attend and voice their preferences on classes.

Courses will be chosen according to interest. Klinkopf notes that a minimum of 18 must enroll in a course before it can be offered.

The primary difference between center courses and extension courses is that resident credits can be earned. Courses will be offered in both the college of liberal arts and the college of education.

Klinkopf has prepared a checklist of the courses and sent copies to superintendents of the various schools in the area. Persons who can't attend the meeting can pick up a checklist at a superintendent's office, fill it out and mail it to Klinkopf at the Twin Falls junior high school. The checklist amounts to an absentee ballot, on which the student can check his preference, or write in course titles that interest him. Practically any course offered at the college, except the laboratory and technical courses that require elaborate equipment, can be offered if there is sufficient interest.

Klinkopf says a great amount of interest has been expressed in the new center and estimates about eight courses will be offered. The majority will be three-hour courses meeting once weekly at the Twin Falls junior high school. Klinkopf will schedule the first class meeting and the instructor and students will determine future sessions.

Young Troubadour Speaks To Burley Group Thursday

BURLEY, Nov. 11—West coast, north, south and wayside songs will come in for a share of the spotlight as Jack Dooch, young American troubadour, regains members of the Knife and Fork club with a series of interesting experiences Thursday evening at the Elks dining room, Burley.

"A wide traveler despite his youthfulness, the early twenties, Dooch has led a life of interesting adventure while engaging in a variety of profitable vocations, local club officers note. He was born in Birmingham, Ala. but received his college education from Lewis and Clark college, Portland. Later he secured his MPA degree from Cornell university, Lafayette, Ind., and engaged in religious and community theater work in Topeka, Inds.

Dooch is the author of several short stories published by popular magazines. The stories were based on his actual experiences in the cities and "hinterlands" of America. Presently he has a novel that is being reviewed for publication by Random House.

In the continual search for unusual and stimulating and delightful attractions for audiences, a search that frequently takes associated staff members halfway around the earth, national officers feel that they have uncovered one of the most unique and, at the same time, most pleasing, speakers that club members have been privileged to hear.

"The American Scene," the topic of Dooch's talk, is the novel that is being reviewed for publication by Random House.

Dooch has gathered together a collection of Americans that is both whimsical and pleasing. It includes some of the most charming "Americanisms" and amusing anecdotes. Club members have increasingly been demanding "something different and more of the old thing," so here he is, club officers explain.

Dental Case Heard Again

BOISE, Nov. 11—The Idaho supreme court heard for the second time Friday arguments involving the validity of a 1957 law which seeks to prohibit dental technicians from performing work normally done by dentists.

The suit was brought by Thomas L. Berry, Boise, and George S. Snyder, Twin Falls, both operators of dental laboratories, against the state department of law enforcement.

In a third district court, Judge Merlin S. Young granted an injunction which limited the activities of the dental technicians to perform but also ruled that the 1957 law was invalid.

Both sides appealed. The supreme court, following its first hearing, reversed the trial court. Insofar as it held the 1957 act void but upheld the district court in prohibiting Berry and Snyder from advertising certain services.

The court later granted a rehearing, and Friday it took the new arguments under advisement.

Reader Contends Magazine Article Was Misunderstood

Editor, Times-News: Oh, my! I read with consternation the recent letter to your paper signed by Adelaide LeMoyné of Hagerman. Obviously, this well-meaning American does not have her "facts" straight.

Mrs. LeMoyné takes Good Housekeeping magazine (1948 issue) to task for using its readers to send to the government printing office for a 30-cent booklet entitled "The Communist Party of the U.S.A.: Authoritative and Fascinating, This 101-page booklet tells what the communist party is, how it works, what makes a communist tick, what the implication from Mrs. LeMoyné's letter, that she believes this booklet to be propaganda favoring the communist party, U.S.A.—had she taken Good Housekeeping editor's advice and sent for and read and READ this booklet, she would have found it to be a handbook for Americans—prepared for the use of the subcommittee on internal security of the senate committee on the judiciary and printed as a senate document.

It is a fabulous expose of the communist party in America and its readers will gain much accurate knowledge about the conspiracy; fewer Americans would be falling for its wiles.

There is in the very situation there was a person with good intentions as evidenced by her interest in informing others regarding the very article that should be condemned and condemning the very booklet that should be praised and read by every American.

Mrs. LeMoyné mentions the October issue of the Saturday Evening Post and a story there by Miss Lardner, in which she (quote) "the trials and tribulations of the young people that did join the communist party."

This man served a year in prison for refusing to tell congress whether he was ever had been a member of the communist party. Thinking Americans will see through this man as one who senses the true roots movement of informed Americans to counteract the communist conspiracy in the U.S.A. and whose prime purpose is to obtain sympathy for those persons "duped" into accepting communism.

Write to Sen. Henry Dworshak, 800 Idaho building, Boise, and ask him to obtain for you, from the house-un-American activities committee, the record of communist affiliations of Miss Lardner, Jr. Find out who this man who "pleads" the case of some misguided youth.

Who would like to close by making a quotation: "The Average American is unaware of the amount of misinformation about the communist conspiracy in the U.S.A., which appears in the public press, in books and in the utterances of public speakers. In part, this misinformation is consciously planted by members of the communist party, whose calculations have the greatest effect in poisoning the channels of American public opinion."

The above quote is in part of the foreword to the booklet "The Communist Party of the United States of America—What It Is, How It Works—Handbook for Americans."

MINICO BEATS BURLEY TO TAKE CROSS STATE LOOP CROWN

McClusky, Cox Trigger Bruins' Score Explosion

Seniors Dave McClusky and Jack Cox provided four explosive touchdowns in the Twin Falls-Bonneville game last Saturday at the undermanned Bonneville stadium in the season finale for both clubs. McClusky, playing brilliantly in his last game as a Bruin, went 65 yards with a pass interception and 57 with a scoop-up fumble and unleashed scoring passes to senior Gary Dalton and Mike Archer. Cox belted home a 41-yard pass to Twin Falls' second carryer of the game and later romped 75 yards on a pass interception.

The victory was the sixth of the year for Twin Falls, all coming on shutout performances by the defense, against three losses and a tie. Coach Paul Clayton used all 50 men on his bench and at times used an all-sophomore alignment at a final at the Beau. Linebacker Dave King, Jim Thorne, Buddy Bengoecha and Bob Molyneux realized ball packing situations by carrying on straight fullback dives.

Using an all-senior alignment, the Bruins kicked off after McClusky had faked a reverse for no gain, he handed off to Cox on the next play and Cox breezed home free.

On the ensuing kickoff, Bonneville made a punt on its own 22-yard line to the Bruins 43, where McClusky intercepted a punting pass and went 85 yards. In the second period, Kent Kleinkopp kicked a 35-yard field goal to set up another opportunity. After getting one first down, McClusky threw a spiral to Gary Dalton who gathered it in and went 50 yards.

With less than three minutes to go in the half, the Bruins took over on their own 27-yard line. Four plays later, McClusky hit Mike Archer with a 47-yard scoring strike.

The Bruins ate up all but 25 seconds of the third quarter in the Cougars' possession. McClusky, McCollum and Ross Ebert checked off the yardage and 17-yard scoring burst.

The 44-point total was the largest scored by a Bruin team since last year, when they scored 45 against Blackfoot.

After the game, McClusky and Cox were congratulated by the Bruin coaches and fans. McClusky was named MVP of the game.

The game was held at the Bonneville stadium, which was packed with fans. The weather was clear and the game was a great success for both teams.

McClusky and Cox were the key players in the game. McClusky's interception and Cox's fumble were the turning points in the game.

The Bruins' defense was outstanding, holding Bonneville to zero points. The offense was led by McClusky and Cox, who combined for 125 yards.

The game was a great example of teamwork and skill. The Bruins' coaches did a great job of preparing their team for the game.

The fans were very supportive and the game was a great success for both teams.

McCollum Turns Corner on 42-Yard Run

Twin Falls speedster McCollum turns the corner and heads up the field on a reverse play during the Bruin-Bonneville game Saturday. McCollum was colared after a 42-yard gain but he set up one of seven touchdowns in the Bruins' 44-0 romp. The victory gave Twin Falls a 6-3-2 season record, the best in 10 years. ### Atwood Leads Jerome Past Indians 26-13

JEROME, Nov. 11—Senior halfback Bob Atwood broke loose on a touchdown run of 85 and 30 yards today to carry the Jerome Tigers to a 26-13 victory over the Bull Indians.

Until Atwood made his first solo dashes, the game was hard fought on even terms. His first run broke a 13-13 draw just as the fourth quarter began and his second merely led the cake to coach Bob Matthews and his sometimes hard-used charges.

Jerome opened strong, scoring midway through the first period on a 22-yard dash by Karl Melton. The conversion attempt failed. Bull bounced right back when a short Jerome punt gave the Indians possession on the Tiger 30-yard line. The Indians punched down close and sent halfback Ned Rutherford in from a yard out. That ended the half 13-6.

Jerome got a big break as the third quarter opened. The Tigers kicked off to Bull but two plays later recovered a fumble in Indian territory. Nelson again led the honors, after a series of line plays, going in from 12 yards out on a counter play, swing pass from Skip Hall to Tim Lavazza got the extra point.

Seconds later the Tigers presented an equal opportunity to the Indians. Jerome tumbled on the 20-yard line and Bull used it as a springboard to go for the Tiger killer. A job pass to Gary Oppinger covered the last nine yards of the short drive and Bill Hatfield tied it with his conversion boot.

The fourth quarter began right after the kickoff. Three plays later, Atwood burst through a hole and scampered 58 yards right up the center. He then plunged for the point and with the game tucked away, Jerome went looking for insurance. They forced Bull to punt and then moved gainward. Two passes from Hall to Steve Teague proved instrumental as the Tigers moved to the 30-yard line. Then it was Atwood's turn again and on the same play pattern he bolted into the end zone.

Atwood's performance was the key to Jerome's victory. He scored two touchdowns and led the team in yardage.

The game was a close contest until the third quarter, when Jerome pulled away. The Indians' defense was strong, but Jerome's offense was too much for them.

The game was a great success for both teams. The Tigers' defense was outstanding and the offense was led by Atwood.

Two Last-Period Touchdowns Let Spartans Cop Win

BURLEY, Nov. 11—The Minico Spartans came from behind with two fourth-quarter touchdowns today to whip Burley's Bobcats 20-7 and claim the Cross State conference grid championship. The entire game focused on a fourth down and 11-to-go situation which the Spartans made pay off in the clinching touchdown. It was the second straight win for Minico in the severely fought cross-river duel and the first time since 1939 that a Minico or Burley team has beaten Burley on the Bobcat home ground.

The big play of the game came in the fourth quarter when Kevin Ferry wedged into the end zone from a yard out. It stayed like that for a while, although Burley found a short passing attack that carried to Minico's 32-yard line before time ran out.

In the third period, Burley recovered a Minico fumble on the Spartans' 20-yard line. The Bobcats went to the seven-yard line where Bill Clossen flopped a lateral to Grant Martinson, who went over. Neal Oros booted the conversion that loomed large until Berry's kickoff.

Minico's clinching touchdown came after Burley's kickoff. With time running out, Burley's thirty-yarder went on passes, went to the air again. Bill Manning picked off a pass and returned it to Burley's 30-yard line. The Spartans ground in from there to gain the insurance touchdown.

Female Talk Over Radios Is Not Liked

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—FEMALE SCIENTISTS reported today that a woman's voice has a "radio" effect in commanding a man's attention.

"But, the scientists said, female voices have other drawbacks that might rule out the use of women broadcasters on aircraft or spacecraft warning systems.

A research study for the air force published by the office of technical services says that women's voices lack "harmonics" and this makes them difficult to understand over the radio.

"The study notes, however, that women radio operators might be used to broadcast emergency warnings on military channels because their attention-getting voices would distinguish such warnings from routine communications.

The scientists concluded, however, that the best voice would sound mature and strong. They added that a man's voice would prove more acceptable to other men over a long period of time.

Boys Enjoy Flying Squirrel Pets

Boys, bending over, and Bill Hoops hold two flying squirrel pets they have owned about a month. The boys consider them good pets, but the little nocturnal animals persist in eating about at night and sleeping in the daytime. The squirrels can't actually fly, but they do have a large fold of skin that stretches from front to back legs that enables them to glide. (Staff photo-enshraving.)

Pet Flying Squirrels Are Pesky—but Entertaining

The boys have had the pair for seven months and they are just as enthusiastic about the little critters as they were the day they arrived. They are good pets, but they have their faults. For one thing, they prefer to roost at night. A cage restricts them, but the little animals spend most of the night chasing about the cage, playing, eating and sometimes fighting. The boys point out the squirrels are supposed to be a pair and they hope for a litter of small squirrels in the near future, but the little couple shows signs of instability. In the case there is a small boy, the squirrels bed down in this during the day and early morning. There is a small piece of sheeting in the box. The squirrels use this just as humans would a blanket. They enter the

Basement Fallout Shelter Being Built for Tuberculosis Hospital

GOODING, Nov. 11—The Idaho State Tuberculosis hospital is one of the first state institutions in the state to take precautions to guard its patients and outpatients from the possibility of radioactive fallout, and it will have the first community fallout shelter in Magic Valley. A project is underway at the hospital to make the basement area of the new hospital building fallout-proof. Officials at the hospital insist that the project has certain faults, but they are in a step in the right direction and it is all they can afford at the time. Two men on the hospital maintenance crew are busy making plywood shields, covered with a layer of lead, to be used to block the basement windows of the new building. The shields probably wouldn't completely block out a big dose of radiation, but it would block out a small amount and would materially reduce the amount of radiation. It is the plan of Dr. K. A. Tyler, medical director of the hospital, that if war should come and there was a serious amount of fallout in the Gooding area, patients, who usually are ambulatory, could be transferred to the lower basement area, where they could stay until the radiation level dropped. Dr. Tyler says, "The patients in this hospital are our responsibility and we have been considering a plan to protect them for over a year." He says last summer the staff decided to undertake the present project in hopes that it would help in the event of war. Work on the shields started last month. According to John Miller, hospital engineer, they are about 75 per cent completed and will be finished in about two weeks. The shields consist of a sheet of 1/2-inch-thick plywood, covered with a layer of lead sheeting one-sixteenth of an inch thick. The lead is glued to the plywood. The weight of the shields varies with the size of the window, but they all can be handled by one man. They are designed so they can be wedged into the window and the weight of the shield holds them in place. In many of the rooms in the basement, where little light is needed, the shields will be put in place as well. In other rooms they can be stacked in the corner where they take little room, and then be placed in position within minutes. Dr. Tyler says protecting the basement area from fallout would require much cooperation, but he says this will be done. The shields are being made in the hospital area. The shields are 18 inches high. (Continued on Page 11)

Dr. K. A. Tyler, medical director of the Idaho Tuberculosis hospital, inspects a sack just made by Mrs. Nellie Oehner, Gooding. The sacks will be used for sandbags. The sandbags will block the exits of the hospital in the event of dangerous fallout. The sacks are made from army surplus mattress coverings. (Staff photo-enshraving.)

"No people are just too busy to stop and talk and whittle. They just keep going," says Bill Montgomery, a man who has become an expert at the forgotten art of whittling. Montgomery is one of those individuals who continues to whittle. In the past few years he has decorated literally dozens of gun stocks and decorative pieces with his whittling or carving. Montgomery laughs when he speaks of his hobby. Now it is rather uncommon to find a man talented at whittling, he says. But it wasn't a few years ago. He has lived in the Twin Falls area all his life, and says until recent years, even in the downtown area in Twin Falls, it was common to see men "sit and whittle." But this has changed. Asked about his interest in the hobby, Montgomery says he believes whittling is just a trait of the west and that when he was a kid it was a common hobby. All you needed was a pocketknife and a piece of wood. He first started carving about 20 years ago, when he lived in Ogdon. He says he actually became interested in wood carving after watching an expert leather carver at work. A short time later, he drew a design on a 22 caliber rifle stock and then went to work with his knife. He carved several stocks on "his own" rifles. They were "steeply grained" and relatives and before long he was constantly working on a gun stock. They were "steeply grained" and relatives and before long he was constantly working on a gun stock. Montgomery usually has worked with just a utility and a metal punch. He has made some special tools to put in special shapes, such as gears. It has been strictly a hobby with him, and much of the carving has been on such objects as cake of soap for young nephews and nieces. Schools Have Carvings Mrs. Montgomery says she doesn't suppose there is a schoolroom in the town that hasn't been decorated with one of his carvings at one time or another. Our young relatives always asked him to carve something for special class occasions. He has done to the gun stocks, Montgomery has carved numerous decorative plaques. He has carved replicas of practically all the guns in the western states.

The letter-section rifle was the first gun stock he carved. He says he has carved about 50 stocks, in addition to a multitude of decorative stick-nicks for the house. (Staff photo-enshraving.)

Shortage of Teachers in College Due

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 11 (AP)—Help wanted: Young men and women with vigorous minds, dedicated to intellectual pursuits and helping others learn. Need not take pauper's oath, but those interested primarily in money should not apply—20,000 to 30,000 openings each year. If you haven't yet seen such a plea for college teachers in your local newspaper, keep looking. The shortage threatens to become so acute that no beta will be overlooked. There's no question of the need. Between now and 1970, the number of college students is expected to jump from about four million to six and one-half million. It may go as high as nine million. This doesn't necessarily mean that the number of college teachers must be doubled to keep pace. But it does mean many more thousands than are now in sight will be needed. To help ease the shortage, the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship foundation here at Princeton had adapted a technique used by colleges to recruit. The Wilson foundation has organized a talent search on college campuses throughout the United States and Canada. Faculty members are urged to nominate outstanding students or graduates for one of the 1,000 Wilson fellowships awarded each year. Fellowships pay full tuition and fees for one year of graduate study, $1,500 in cash, and an allowance for dependent children. This falls considerably short of the four-year, free-ride given many worthy and needy applicants. It is only a start on what often would be needed. (Continued on Page 11)

Jerome Revives Rug Making

Mrs. Gerald G. Dyson, young Jerome mother, is giving a modern twist to the old art of hooking rugs. By using a new-type needle she saves considerable time over the old method. The Jerome woman predicts demand of hooking themselves to making small rugs, homemakers soon will be starting room-sized hooked rugs. The canvas is fastened upon a frame. (Staff photo-gravure)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

William Fisher, long time BURLEY resident who celebrates his 88th birthday anniversary Monday, still is an active and energetic man. He often talks about his favorite hobbies, fishing and hunting. He never misses the opening of fishing season, and goes deer hunting every year — he did miss out on the deer hunt this year, but only because of the terrible storms in the south hills, and already is thinking of going next year. Fisher was born near Ogden, Utah, Nov. 13, 1873. He married Sarah Jane Ginnart there on Dec. 28, 1895, and came to the Burley area in 1905. They obtained a farm in the SPRINGDALE area and lived there for a number of years. In 1906, there were no canals on the south side of the river, and when the Burley Irrigation district started building canals, Fisher helped construct the first ones in the area. He also worked for the TWIN FALLS Canal company on the Miller dam and the North Side canal project. In 1911, they sold their Springdale farm and bought property in the Burley townsite, where he still resides. Mrs. Fisher died in 1920. Fisher worked for the Portland Feeder company for a number of years. He was foreman in Burley and also in PAUL. For a few years previous to his retirement, he worked for the Shelby Procurement company. Fisher has two daughters, both living in Burley. Mrs. W. E. Wilks and Mrs. Charles Larsen, and one son, Robert Fisher. He has 14 grandchildren and 29 great-grandchildren. He plans to celebrate his birthday anniversary by having fashioned of two pieces of hardwood. It has an eye on one side. A broad needle is at one end of the wood and a small metal bar on the other side. Mrs. Dyson merely slides first the needle and then the bar into the canvas. The bar makes each loop uniform. When watching her make a design the needle goes click-click rapidly across the canvas. The grandmothers used to sit with the rug on their laps. With this needle the rug canvases must be placed on a frame. The advantage to the new method is in time saved. The resulting rug is just as attractive, she notes, and it is possible to place the loops even closer together. The rugs usually are clipped when completed. With the newer faster method Mrs. Dyson predicts women will be making room size rugs instead of the smaller size. The next couple of years are pointed to be the most important economically in the history of youngsters without a help. Fisher Springs, explained Mayor, the "major" dark-haired and pretty wife smiled wistfully.

National Guard and Reserve Callups Digging Deeply in U.S. Communities

BY ELTON FAY Associated Press Writer

The scenes are as familiar as the old movie, but they still have bite—when it's your husband time leaving, your town drained of young men, your son whose plans are suddenly overturned. "I doubt if any other guard call-up could have dug as deeply into a community as this one has," said radio executive Clark in Winner, S. D., at 100. "I'm losing my doctor, my dentist, and my son is leaving his science teacher. He leaves more than disapp-

"I've had lots of offers of help, but nobody has volunteered to help with the spankings," Hider Springs, Ark., a one-time health resort, was an economic limbo until work started of young men, your son whose plans are suddenly overturned. "I doubt if any other guard call-up could have dug as deeply into a community as this one has," said radio executive Clark in Winner, S. D., at 100. "I'm losing my doctor, my dentist, and my son is leaving his science teacher. He leaves more than disapp-

2,800 tourists the first year the dam reservoir is filled. These men will miss out if they're gone very long."

In Afon, Wyo., activation of the 102nd engineer's battalion affected nearly a fourth of the town's families. "Most of the boys had wives and children and several had businesses," Mayor Marvin Sessions said. "He knows the heartbreak first hand. His son Noel, 24, is a dispatch sergeant in the 102nd. The younger Sessions has operated his own service station for two and one-half years and was just getting it on its feet when the call up came. Noel and his wife have a boy 7 years old. He's had to substitute his station. It's really thrown a monkey wrench into things," the Mayor said.

The monkey wrench has been thrown impartially, although it has havoc is far more noticeable in small communities than in large. As explained by Peterson, reserve officer the hop-scotch pattern is the result of a mobilization system based primarily on two factors:

1. The specific needs of the armed forces for certain types of units and individuals to bring divisions and sub-division size units up to full combat strength.
2. The state of readiness, in training and equipment, of a unit. If its efficiency is high, the outfit stands high on the priority list and is picked first.

If you're good, you go. The 15,000 reservists who have heard the call, including whole divisions from Wisconsin and Texas, can take pride in that.

"It is completely impartial, depending on what unit can do the best job for the army," a reserve official says.

Requests for deferments have been few. It is rare that one case involved an outfit of 33 men from a small farm community. They would have been put on active duty at the peak of the wheat harvest. The army says command recommended deferment until after the harvest and the army department approved it.

The G-2 department does not deny that the impact may be hard on some small communities, but officials say this is the way of requirements and efficiency can be considered.

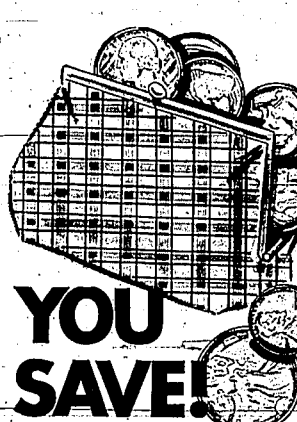

The Associated Press made a spot check around the country of the result of the call-up program. Towns and farm areas states reported that the impact was light. About 2,000 men were called up in New York City, but from a population of more than seven and one-half million, they scarcely caused a head in turn. But there had been there were communities scarcely hit at all.

Winner, S.D., Hiber Springs, Ark., Afon, Wyo., were among them. Others affected by the community loss were De Soto, Mo., where 100 men were pulled out of a community of 5,000. Norton, Kans., which lost about 10 men out of a population of 4,000 and Medford, Wis., 50 men from a population of 3,200.

Bitterbrush Is Part of Range Program

Fish and game department spokesman says this stand of seedling bitterbrush is part of range reestablishment program over this state. In years to come, well-managed stands of quality big game forage will take over the entire job of winter nutrition. For elk this will mean willow thickets kept at proper heights by pruning and possibly fertilizing. For deer it will mean permanent stands of well-thinned shrubs which have given high promise in experimental areas during recent years. (Staff engraving) use only. Emergencies are bound to arise in the future, but they can be met more effectively if ranges and birds are properly managed between emergencies. Two other essentials of good and elk management are good records of the annual kill by hunting and information on population trends to show whether herds are increasing, decreasing or remaining static. Other useful information used by Idaho game managers includes herd composition — the proportion of bucks to does to fawns — seasonal forage preferences, deer weights, the rate of natural mortality, degree of competition with livestock and other game, among others. New items of importance continue to show up, but an understanding of herd composition, animal reproduction and the harvest potential have combined to give Idahoans excellent hunting.

The 1948 winter "was the toughest since '39," according to the "Twin Falls Review" — of that decade. "Cattle and birds suffered. Domestic stock suffered. People suffered. It was a ringer for winter of a cold snap." Despite supplemental feeding programs deer died by the hundreds in Idaho and by the thousands elsewhere in the entire mountain West; not to mention many other Northern tier states. These losses meant little in terms of hunting, since the estimated Idaho deer harvest for 1949 was 22,000 — and in 1950 it jumped to 23,000.

Pictorial Display Explains Problems in Space

Girls look at a pictorial display of photographs, drawings and text which explains the problems of exploring space. The display was shown in the Buhl high school sponsored by the Brown foundation, Walla Walla, Wash. It was a non-profit institution created to educate the public, particularly students, about the space age. The director of the foundation, Harry Brown, travels around the Northwest giving talks and displaying the pictures, models and meteoric samples. (Staff photo-entraving)

Model of Saturn Included in Display On Space Being Shown Area Students

(Continued From Page 19) The program is usually presented in an assembly, and an informal display of the materials. Johnson gives a talk to the students explaining recent space activity. He says "my talk points out if America is to have a space age, it will be built by American people and in order for this to happen the American public must be acquainted with space activity." He notes that he tries to tie in all his talks with recent news events concerning space. After the assembly, the students have an opportunity to view some of the displays. There is a display of 100 meteorites, and about 100 placards illustrate pictures and text that show and explain how space is explored. It takes the students about 30 minutes to browse through the display. Older students help Johnson explain the various displays. The model of Saturn is one of the most popular items. It was constructed by the foundation. Information for the construction was procured from the government. The program was presented at Hillier and Flitt, schools before it moved to Buhl. After the Twin Falls school, it will move on to other valley schools. The Hansen and Murtaugh schools will have a combined program, Nov. 13 and 14; Shoshone, Nov. 15; Kimberly, Nov. 16; Idaho state school for the deaf and blind, Nov. 17; Dietrich and Richfield schools, Nov. 20, and Valley high school, Nov. 21. The New York Turf Writers' Cup, a two-mile hurdle race, has been won three times by P. D. Adams and A. P. Smithwick. Allegheny college is in its 10th year of intercollegiate football.

Not All Wildlife Takes Winter Nap; Adaptations Necessary for Survival

BY JIM HUBBARD
Idaho Fish and Game Dept.—The snow reveal that not all wildlife creatures are taking the long seasonal nap or have fled thousands of miles to warmer climes where food is no problem. Like the poetic finger of fate that writes and moves on, the tracks give mute testimony about far-reaching food chains — the progress and the spread during the stark story of survival during the harshness of winter. This is a saga no less remarkable than the intricate bird migration and the equivalent marvel of nature's aloft-homes-hibernate.

over sixty percent of the year's growth of twigs is eaten each winter. Winter ranges become overstocked and overused when snow forces heavy deer concentrations. During the severe winter of 1948-49, for example, supplemental rations were fed to some Idaho deer and elk to prevent the destruction of the range itself. That many game animals were prevented from starving to death, thus saving the next season's venison crop for sportmen, actually was a result of secondary importance. Supplemental feeding of big game animals has had a minor place in the overall big game program in the west, but it has been a stop-gap measure in some areas where game animals were mired in deep snow with little or no natural forage. In Idaho plans are maintained each year to meet local emergencies in selected areas if they arise. Hay and stock cubes are stored at strategic game concentration areas in various parts of the state. Snow-cats and other suitable equipment are ready to roll where needed, despite indications in this and other states that supplemental feeding in most cases is more detrimental than beneficial. If ranges continue to improve, as they have in the last five years, the time will probably

Blind and animals that remain active during winter have special adaptations. The rump grouse, for example, remain in the woods all winter and grow long scapula on their toes. These are veritable snowshoes to support their weight on the soft, universal stuff that insulates all living things beneath by trapping air in each intricate snowflake. This slows the transfer of heat and cold, shielding dormant plants and animal hibernators from ground frost and lashing winds. In this and other states that supplemental feeding in most cases is more detrimental than beneficial. If ranges continue to improve, as they have in the last five years, the time will probably

Phonics Are Subject for Burley Meet

BURLEY, Nov. 11—Teachers of the D'Worshak elementary school presented the program at the PTA meeting Wednesday evening.
Mrs. Ida Horne had charge of the program, "Reading as Taught in Our Schools," which was presented by the teachers representing all six grades of the school.
Mrs. Roy Guebel, first grade teacher, discussed what the year child learns about phonics. She discussed sight vocabulary, forming new words, rhythmic and "consonant" rhyming of words and unlocking compound words.
Mrs. Richard Arbogast, second grade teacher, explained the use of complete, context clues, phonics, rhymes, vowels, consonants, combined words, words confused, and the meaning of words. She told about the difficulty many students have in sounding out words when the rules do not apply.
Mrs. Dolores Adams, third grade teacher, distributed home-work and parents were instructed to mark vowel-long or short. She wrote the first syllables of a lot of words, to write the opposite of different words and to write the prefix of a list of words.
Mrs. Elaine Mahoney and members of her fourth grade class showed symbol emphasis, accent marks and vowel sounds.
Mrs. Max Thurman's first grade class explained how the learning of knowledge of phonics was carried through in every subject taught in the school and summarized the phonics program.
The importance of the phonics program was emphasized by Mrs. Harriet Woodard, sixth grade teacher.
Merrill Robinson, school principal, told of the needs of the school and the cost of the program. After a group discussion of the best ways to raise money for some of the needs, Kendall Dwyer, PTA president, stated that he would appoint a committee to draw up a plan for next year's projects.
Mrs. Gordon Nielsen reported on the school's PTA membership and announced that a membership drive would be held "2001" Group Singing was led by Mrs. Max Turner with Mrs. Hal Matthews at the piano. Bob Thompson, accompanied by Mrs. Jack Cervin, sang two numbers.
Refreshments were served by the first grade room mothers.

The cage which is open at the top, pull in the blanket and tuck it around them before they retire.
One night the boys heard a loud scratching and scuffling from the cage. This continued for some time and then stopped. The boys figured the fight was over. But, like some humans, the fight had just reached the end of the first round.
"In the morning the boys peered into the cage. The female squirrel was sleeping soundly in the box and the male, curled up in his sheet, was stepping in the corner of the cage, a victim of female wrath.
Although he spent the night on the doorstep, the boys say they made up the next day.
When they first got the pair the boys kept them in their room. But as soon as the lights were turned off the nocturnal animals began to get active. All through the night they chewed on nuts and raised all kinds of commotion. Like a bunch of drunks, they dozed in jail, they rattle and bang on the bars all night.
But the noise they make at night is forgotten when the little animals entertain the boys after school. They sleep during the day and come out from under the cover in the late afternoon.
The flying squirrels don't actually "fly." But they do have a large fold of skin that extends from their front to back legs, which enables them to glide for long distances. They will climb on the curtains and then sail across the room and make a soft landing on the carpet.
The squirrels are everywhere. One night the boys spent hours looking for one of the squirrels. Mrs. Hoops says she finally told them they had to go to bed and to continue the search in the morning. Douglas reached in a drawer to get his pajamas. He put them on, only to find the missing squirrel in the shirt pocket.
Although the boys are looking forward to having a batch of flying squirrels about the house, Mrs. Hoops says, "Two are enough."

Maid Shortage in Europe Is Sign of Booming Prosperity

By The Associated Press
Europe has a maid shortage, so it is.
This seems domestic news, but it is in fact the greatest sign of a boom in Europe. It stems from political and economic revolution which has led to 15 years of peace since the end of World War II.
In a word, Europe, unified as never before, is booming.
"I've found the corner are the great highways, gleaming kilns and split-level living that have made America's standard of living a thing of the past."

Query Noted On Insurance

William Grange, secretary-manager of the local Chamber of Commerce, reports a number of calls on an insurance firm which has been sending out letters to self-employed contractors, inquiring that the letters are being sent from the Idaho contractors board.
John Mollitor, Dolan, executive secretary of the general contractors and registrars of the state license board, was contacted by the Twin Falls Chamber and he said, "Letters being received by self-employed contractors in the area with the implications that they are coming from the Idaho contractors board, and dealing with the subject of disability compensation, have never been approved by the organization and are being used without the authority of that organization."
Mollitor added the board definitely did not recommend the insurance company, nor give permission for the use of the name in letters sent out by the company.

Indian Claims Are Forcing Extension for Commission

By JOHN KAMPEP
 WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Indians claims commission, set up in 1946, has until 1977 to complete action on suits filed by tribes against the government. Congress, in its past session, granted a three-year extension in the life of the commission. Otherwise it would have gone out of business in 1962.

It was the second extension since the three-member commission began hearing and ruling on claims filed by Indians for lands and rights taken by the government in the days of the Old West.

The senate interior committee, approving the latest extension, said Indian tribes have filed 222 claims which were consolidated into 886 cases. Of that total, the committee said, the Indians had been awarded $27,116 in 22 cases. There are 468 cases active and pending before the commission; 211 of them are being tried "strongly," the committee said, "that the claims commission act was passed by congress to give the Indians their day in court to present their claims of every kind, shape and variety."

"Until all these claims are heard and settled," the report said, "we may expect the Indians to resist any effort to terminate federal supervision and control over them."

Many cases are postponed at the request of tribal and government attorneys, the committee said.

The commission, headed by Arthur V. Watkins, former Republican senator from Utah, reported that more than half of the $27,117.16 was awarded in 1959-60, largely through compromise settlements.

"Congress has appropriated the money to cover these awards and the money has been deposited with the treasury to the credit of the Indians," the commission said.

Some of the commission's decisions are appealed to the federal court of claims and it takes from 10 months to a year to dispose of the average appeal.

An estimated 1,200 separate hearings should be held in cases still before the commission.

In most of the cases, Indians ask damages for lands taken by the government, which the tribes claim they owned and occupied for centuries.

The Indians use anthropologists, historians and appraisers to gather evidence to support their claims. In order to defend the United States against the claims, the justice department is required to duplicate some of these activities.

Years of research and preparation precede trial of some of the cases.

The commission said that all the lands in the continental United States west of the Mississippi river, except in Texas, plus millions of acres east of that river are subject to Indian claims.

The commission estimated it would take 10 years—not 6—to complete its job.

Shortage of Teachers in College Due

becomes an eight- or 10-year effort to earn a Ph. D. degree. "We want to get 1,000 started, and another 8,000 excited," says Dr. Hans Rosenhaupt, director of the foundation. "Once they get started, we can only hope they'll keep at it."

The $200 foundation wants to get excited are those who are recruited for college teaching careers but don't quite make the grade as fellowship winners. They are encouraged to seek other help to get started on their graduate studies.

There are surprisingly few restrictions on the fellowship winners. They don't even have to be teaching, only that they will consider it. They go to the graduate school of their own choice. Although the emphasis is on recent college graduates or college seniors, there is no age limit, and no limit on the number of years the candidate has been out of college.

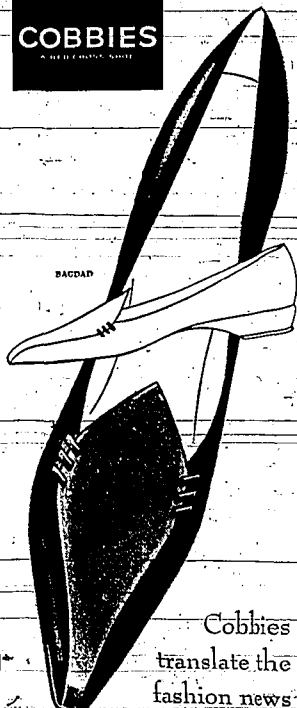

Recent fellowship winners include a mother of eight children, a former motel owner, 38, a former civil servant, 44, and a former policeman, 36.
