U.S. Concerned by Dominican Problem

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—Reports of the resignation of Rafael L. Trujillo, Jr., as chief of the Dominican army were regarded in the government here as a step supporting U.S. fears of a plot to establish a new dictatorship in the Dominican Republic. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, in an extraordinary public statement, warned today that the return of two members of the late dictator Rafael L. Trujillo foretold a possible attempt to create a new dictatorial regime. Rusk said an American government is considering measures which might be taken to prevent the possibility of a "diversion" of power in the Dominican Republic.

Two Failures Mar Missile Programs

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Nov. 18 (AP)—The fizzle of a Ranger deep space shot and failure to recover a biomedical package from the Pacific ocean today marred an otherwise successful week for United States rocketmen. The Ranger failure will delay an effort to launch an instrument package on the moon during a heavy launching schedule by the last four days. Advances were made toward a space navigation system, a missile-killer rocket, spy satellites and a punchbun weapon. The big setback came today after an Atlas-Agena rocket zoomed away from the cape in an attempt to propel a 15,000-pound payload more than half a million miles into space. Purpose was to test techniques and equipment for future lunar and interplanetary missions. The Agena second stage section, a "parking orbit" and in effect became a mobile launch platform in space. But when the engine failed, the Agena engine failed. The Agena engine failed, but without required velocity, it remained in a low earth orbit, following the meen course of the Agena.

Late Rainfall Aid to Many Idaho Farms

Many farmers say the rains came in some areas, however, preliminary estimates of the December crop are expected to be a bumper crop for the state. The department's crop reporting service for Idaho reports preliminary production figures are certain one of the best years in quantity of Idaho production. Nevertheless, crop losses and increased costs are still being reported. An estimate of the effect of water shortages on the crop is being completed.

Divorce Plan of Governor Stuns Nation

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—The announcement presented by Nelson A. Rockefeller that he will be divorced stunned political circles here and abroad. The question of how the 1964 presidential picture will be affected, a second question, being the subject of social circles, was what lay behind the rift in the 31-year marriage.

Both Rockefeller and his wife were in seclusion and unavailable for comment on any aspects of the situation.

The main political fact facing the governor was that he was a Republican—a presidential nomination in 1964, that no divorce man has been elected to the White House.

He was divorced from his wife Mrs. Blanche Rockefeller in 1953. She was a Democrat. They were Adlai E. Stevenson in 1952 and 1956 and James H. Cox in 1960.

An aide to Rockefeller said the divorce "absolutely will not affect his political career."

Toastmistresses Hold Meet. Here

"Count your blessings" was the timely theme chosen for the Twin Falls Toastmistress club meeting Friday morning in the Pine room of the Igeerson hotel.

Mrs. Kenneth Shaw, toastmistress, introduced Mrs. B. F. Harbison who gave the ice breaker speech. Mrs. Hugh Call spoke on "Count Your Blessings." Mrs. W. H. Hatcher chose "The Blessings of Life" speaking of the variety of life upon the Earth and some curious creatures that are very necessary.

Mrs. Hugh Boone led an interesting—luncheon—discussion on the variation of the root word "pute." Mrs. Boone chose Chinese proverbs to be interpreted into today's English, for table topics.

Mrs. Norman Hertzinger was speech evaluator and timer.

ship, dependability and personality. She is active in Girls League, concert choir and Off-beats, a Junior society. She has received the Quill and Scroll "outstanding student" award and is on the school's honor roll. She is princess of Bethel 19, Job's Daughters. (Staff engraving)

Tradition ...

Is An Important Part of Each Malco Dealer's Success

The hearing aid dealer works best when he enjoys the complete confidence of the medical profession and the hard of hearing. He cannot afford to risk his community business reputation with an "off" brand that may be here today and gone tomorrow.

Each year Tradition becomes increasingly important in the hearing field—not the Tradition of age alone, but that of accomplishment. Malco's Tradition is firmly built on achievements—solid engineering, quality products and dependable customer service—for nearly a quarter of a century. We at Malco of Twin Falls hope to maintain that Tradition through honest service and ethical standards.

Real Art

Even those who have developed a good taste for fine art are likely to gasp at the price paid for Rembrandt's 'The Astronomer'...

It's too bad Rembrandt Harmensz van Rijn could not know of the sale. He was supposed to have sold the painting originally for something like $7,800.

Besides the unbelieving gasps, the immediate result of the sale will be to send throngs of people to New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art just to see what a $3,000,000 painting looks like.

The auction itself may provide an important lesson on the value of art, although the cultural benefits may be somewhat slower in accumulating.

All of which is likely to provide a real inspiration for struggling artists and parents who believe their children have some artistic talent.

Painters were busy painting in jails in various works of art featuring Stalin, streets are being renamed, and the reds undoubtedly are having their version of book burnings.

Anything and everything remotely associated with the name of Stalin must be changed or abolished.

Without bitterness or self-pity, James Thurber must have been a great success in his own field.

It is a form of humor which is also a way of expressing material against a criticism of life at the bottom of it.

Each Thurber fan has his own favorite. His sketches, his humor, his time out and his reports, along with thousands of inimitable cartoons and drawings, have filled more than 100 books.

WHIRLIGIG

(James Free will answer readers' questions on national and foreign policy in this column. Questions may be sent to him at the Seattle press office, 1000 First Avenue, Seattle, Wash., D.C. 98101.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—"When the communists first put up that 'Chinese wall' dividing East and West Berlin," writes James Free, "why didn't we send over a few atomic bombs and knock the wall down?"

These are very close to the same words used by the U. S. commanding general in Berlin when I was there recently. Generally, the answer is that we did not have the atomic bombs in Berlin at that time.

FAUCIET PRESIDENT.—"My impression is that President Kennedy goes out of his way to avoid fights with congress," writes W.S.M. of Denver, Va. "Is that right?"

Poor Man's Plato

BY HAL BOYLE NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The man who has been called the 'poor man's Plato' is today in the average budget office today in the married room.

Light-fingered Larry—the fatherly type. As his arm gently caresses a girl's hair, he says, 'Here are some new snapshots of my great-grandmother. I've had a lot of fun taking them.'

Big Shot Bert.—The firm's top salesman is especially in good luck today. He says, 'I've just closed a big deal. It's a real triumph for me.'

Lunar Lew.—The full moon does something to him. He says, 'I've just had a very good idea. It's a real triumph for me.'

Pinching Pat.—'My wife always says I'm a pincher. I've just found a way to stop her. I've just found a way to stop her.'

Bug-eyed Ben.—Instead of watching the clock he watches the girl. He doesn't say anything but he looks at her all the time.

Anniversary Abner.—The senior vice president feels one of the best days of his life. It's his anniversary. He says, 'I've just had a very good idea. It's a real triumph for me.'

There they are—the clowns married wives over secretary knock. She also knows another thing. It's her anniversary. He says, 'I've just had a very good idea. It's a real triumph for me.'

That's the budget in a nutshell. It's a real triumph for me. It's a real triumph for me. It's a real triumph for me.

World Corners

By PHIL NEWSOM UPI Foreign News Analyst Philosophically, it may be said that Nikita Khrushchev's decision to return to the world to communism results in two kinds of 'falling dominoes'.

One is the nuclear fallout. It is a fallout that is spreading around the world from West to East. It is a fallout that is spreading around the world from West to East.

The other, equally poisonous to the free world, is political. It is a fallout that is spreading around the world from West to East.

This week, a thingy 'thingy' called 'the world' has been talking by its 1948 treaty of friendship and mutual cooperation with the United States. It is a fallout that is spreading around the world from West to East.

A Russian note cited as the result of a military attack by Western Germany and Allied states—specifically, Norway and Denmark—has been received by the United States.

With the NATO of the Russian note, President Uho Kekkonen and his foreign minister, Antti Karjalainen, now would destroy the military alliance between Sweden, Norway and Denmark into urgent consultation.

By coincidence or not, it also came nearly two weeks after Kekkonen's visit to President Kennedy in Washington. It is a fallout that is spreading around the world from West to East.

Kennedy concluded that meeting with the Soviet Union. It is a fallout that is spreading around the world from West to East.

Elder Spencer W. Kimball, left, a member of the council of twelve apostles of the LDS church, confers with Lloyd A. Hamilton, standing, first counselor in the Twin Falls stake LDS presidency, and Robert W. Ballou, right, second counselor. Youth Loses Haircut Tiff First Round PERHY, Ga., Nov. 18 (AP)—Young Stanley Sorrells lost the first court test over the way he combs his hair. The 17-year-old likes the ducktail style, his teacher didn't.

Superior Court Judge W. D. Aultman dismissed Friday a suit to enjoin three Houston county school officials from interfering with the youth's education. The judge said the suit was improperly filed against individuals in lieu of suing the board of education.

Walter C. Sorrells who brought the suit on behalf of his son, said he planned an appeal.

Young Sorrells was suspended from Perry high school three weeks ago because he refused to obey a school order to get rid of the ducktail.

However, he was readmitted last week after his father and Eric Sorrells worked out a temporary, compromise hairstyle in the judge's chambers.

Rail Asserts Control Loss Will Be High

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18 (AP)—A Santa Fe victory in the battle for control of the Western Pacific would cost Southern Pacific from 10 million dollars to 20 million dollars a year, an SP official said Friday.

William O. Peoples, an SP vice president, gave the loss estimate. He said Southern Pacific now handles 70 per cent of the shipments en route jointly, served by SP and WP.

Peoples testified he feared that if Santa Fe won control of WP's lines, shippers would divide the freight evenly between the two big competitors.

SP hopes to merge with WP and eliminate duplicating facilities. Santa Fe wants to extend its lines into Utah and the Pacific Northwest by taking over the Western Pacific.

B. F. Blazinski, another SP vice president, said Santa Fe would divert freight from the Utah gateway and its present southern routes to get revenues from full west coast to Midwest routes.

At present, some WP freight is sent along other lines whose representatives have said they would lose at least 17 million dollars if the practice stops.

Hearings Examiner Paul G. Altman has said he intends to end the 10-week-old hearings before Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Granville, 74, Hurt by Auto

Mrs. Mattie Granville, 74, struck by a car at 6:35 p.m. Friday at Fourth street and Second avenue west, was expected to satisfy good condition Saturday evening at Magic Valley Memorial hospital, where she was taken for treatment of a concussion.

Mrs. Granville was hit by a 1958 Oldsmobile driven by Alvin A. Kimbrey, witnesses said. Police a car had stopped when Mrs. Granville stepped down in front of the stopped car. She was struck by the Oldsmobile.

She told officers the other car blocked his view and she was unable to see Mrs. Granville. No citations were issued.

Retired Man Builds House For Caroline

BAK JOSE, Calif., Nov. 18 (AP)—An 89-year-old retired electrician operator and life-long Republican, has built a pink and blue doll house for Caroline Kennedy, the daughter of a well-known Democrat.

H. L. Allen, who has come to support himself, spent last year building the three-room home. It is complete with walls, carpeting, furniture, stoves, dressers and doors that work, and a little hand doll.

Allen said he spent a great deal of time on the house and had fun while doing it, but his relatives are trying to detain him from sending it to Caroline for her birthday anniversary Nov. 27.

He said the President's daughter will be flooded with gifts and cards, and may never see the doll house.

But Allen said he was going ahead. He has written a letter to Mrs. Kennedy asking permission to mail the doll house.

Another problem to be faced by school officials is that of some one to give lessons who will probably be added to the physical and chemistry classes, with no room or facilities to handle the increase.

The school head said that a number of solutions were under consideration by school officials, including double shifts. This will pose a serious problem of finding sufficient teachers to staff the extra shift, he said.

Also would present the same problem as to teaching. "Something drastic will have to be done within the next three or four years," he said.

In the discussion of civil defense, the audience was divided into small groups to formulate questions to ask the panel. Most asked question was what the local school authorities had planned in the way of handling the students in the event of a nuclear attack.

In reply to the question about the school plan, Ingersoll said that the plan is to take the students to the school bus and use the bus as a shelter.

Asked if the school planned a practice evacuation, Ingersoll said he did not feel that was necessary because the drivers were well acquainted with the routes.

Program numbers included a piano solo by Janice Gordon, and vocal solo by Edna Smith, Camas, county agent. Mrs. Forrest Butler, chairman of the women's division, supervised the program, county chairman.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Edna Smith, Mrs. Edna Benmeyer and Mrs. Frank Mackley.

Editor, Times-News:
I read with regret again this week in your issue of Nov. 14 a service station robbery in which a man was killed. Revenue Ruling On Taxes Proves Puzzle for Man

Editor, Times-News:
When it comes to paying taxes, I know a man who is paying $20 per month rent on a three-room, unfurnished apartment which would be $240 a year rent and can't be deducted from income tax. The revenue man said this apartment is worth twice that, at least $400 per month, that will be $4800 rent. This same man is being paid $20 per month for fixing the furnace which is $240 a year but the revenue man said it's worth $400 a per month. So he figures $4800 and he charges him on $20 per month more than was ever paid, still they collected taxes on $20 per month that was never paid and $20 per month on my rent that I don't pay.

Writer Explains Stand on Taking Children to Hills

Editor, Times-News:
In answer to Mr. and Mrs. Allen Draper, Burley, I meant children not old enough to have a gun of 22 caliber, for as I was told, the children referred to were, as I took it, not more than 5 or 6 years of age at most. Who knows where a bullet will land when it leaves a gun and does not drop a deer? Why take a chance on a small child getting the lead?

BUTTER BAKED and Better!

MORE FLAVOR MORE TURKEY

The whole turkey is plump, juicy and tasty when you baste, bake and brown it with butter. No shrunken drumsticks, no dried out white meat. And, ONLY butter gives turkey that wonderful old time holiday flavor. Follow the five steps given here and serve the grandest turkey ever.

PERFECTION in five steps.

1. First, stuff and truss your turkey. For basting and staining, first to place on level of drumsticks, breast and wings. This does two things: first, a protective coating of butter fat from the start, helping to prevent drying out or juice loss during the stages of roasting, and imparts a rich, butter flavor. Now place your turkey on rack in shallow pan, breast side up.
2. Then you butter it. First, soften butter. Spread over entire turkey, especially on legs and drumsticks. Use only unsalted butter. This does two things: first, a protective coating of butter fat from the start, helping to prevent drying out or juice loss during the stages of roasting, and imparts a rich, butter flavor. Now place your turkey on rack in shallow pan, breast side up.
3. Cover your turkey with moist cheesecloth dipped in melted butter. Arrange the cloth to cover your entire bird. The butter on the cheesecloth bastes the turkey, helps to protect it from drying out and shrinking.
4. Brush frequently with melted butter, during roasting, right over the cheesecloth. Do not cover roasting pan or add water. Do not inject with liquid. Roast at constant temperature: 325° F. for 8 to 3½ hrs. for 10 to 12 lb. bird; 375° to 4 hrs. for 10 to 14 lbs.; 300° F. for 4 to 4½ hrs. for 14 to 18 lb.; 4½ to 5 hrs. for 18 to 20 lb.; 5½ to 6 hrs. for 20½ to 24 lb. turkey to serve.
5. Add the final touch. When your turkey is done, remove it from roasting pan to serving platter. Place in serving oven 10 to 15 minutes to firm up and absorb the juices. This makes carving easier. Just before carving, place a pat of butter on the breast of your turkey and let the melting, golden goodness add an extra touch of flavor and a golden gloss.

Lister Brings 'Unsung' Porter Songs to Life

Johnnie Lister, Sun Valley musician, was presented in a program featuring the "little-known" songs of Cole Porter, by the Twin Falls Federated Music Club last Monday afternoon at the Bishop Rhea auditorium.

He was accompanied by Carl Paulsen, piano; Walter Peterson, bass fiddle, guitar and cello. The hour-long program covered every possible type of song that Cole Porter, considered a giant in his field, ever wrote.

One song from the movie "You'll Never Get Rich," seen in 1941, was called "Dream Dancing." Another with a Chinese flavor was called "Lotus Bloom."

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Rosen and Mrs. and Mrs. W. G. Bates, all Wendell; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Peterson, Murtaugh; Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Colby and Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Rosen, all Jerome; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clinger and Mrs. Erma Druskell, all Shoshone; and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Wall, Hansen.

He wrote melodies that ranged from Oriental, English, Spanish to just plain good American Jazz

Later, who has been a Cole Porter fan for years, sang "Zou Zou" of the lyrics, and in this way, presented another facet of Porter's talent. Two of the several songs he sang were "I've Got a Shooting Star in Scotland," and "Far Away."

In his presentation of the various Porter numbers, Lister explained the clever chord changes the composer made in some of his songs which added a charm to them. One such number, Lister pointed out, was "I'll Be Home for Christmas," published in England in 1928.

Later worked on this program for months gathering information and the music for each number. He made no apologies for his enthusiasm for Cole Porter's works, and states that they reflect his (Porter's) complete and excellent musical training.

Prior to the program, a short business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Don Miller, president of the club.

Refreshments were served.

Q—Does pumpkin have any nutritional value?

A—In general, nutritionists would say that fresh oranges have a slight degree more vitamin C. But remember this: the original content of vitamin C in the fresh fruit determines the amount that will be in the canned or frozen juice made from it.

The modern canning and freezing methods cause very little loss of vitamin C, which usually is destroyed more quickly than other nutrients. Considering the importance of vitamin C in your children's diet (and your own), it is far better to use canned or frozen juice regularly if the problem of cost or convenience might prompt you to skip squeezing fresh oranges for breakfast, or the budget may not permit them. In these cases, frozen and canned juices, saving either time or money, become "nutritionally important."

Idaho Veterinary Meet Held Here; Papers Are Presented

Approximately 60 veterinarians from Idaho attended the Idaho Veterinary Medical Association's annual winter meeting Saturday and Sunday at the Turf club, Twin Falls.

Three technical papers were presented Saturday by Dr. Wayne Blinn, Logan, Utah, U. S. department of agricultural staff member; Russell Linstrom, Paul, and R. H. Daniels, Idaho Falls, public health engineer for the atomic energy commission's Idaho operation office.

Dr. Blinn discussed poisonous plants in Idaho and their symptoms on livestock which range from "hog cholera" to "African Swine Fever."

Also Sunday morning the newly proposed hog cholera program recently passed by congress will be discussed with an emphasis on how the state agriculture department can operate more with the Idaho swine industry and practicing veterinarians.

There will not be an election of officers. Officers are Dr. Thornburg, president; Dr. Phil H. Oraves, Idaho Falls, vice president; and Dr. A. F. Schneider, Boise, secretary-treasurer.

Friday federal and state veterinarians met for a work conference to discuss new regulations relative to the control and prevention of sale of extensively progressed cancer eye cattle through certain trade channels.

The spring meeting will be held June 21-23 in Sun Valley, reports Schneider.

Pravda Attacks

MOSCOW, Nov. 18 (AP)—Pravda accused the United States yesterday of persecuting members of the communist party, asserting this was "a shameful self-exposure of vaunted American democracy."

The communist party newspaper apparently referred to the U. S. restrictions on communist members register as agents for a foreign government, but did not say so.

Election Set For Rayburn Job in House

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 18 (AP)—Texas Gov. Price Daniel yesterday called a special election for Feb. 23 to name a successor to Speaker Sam Rayburn in the U. S. house of representatives.

"With the knowledge of the members of the Rayburn family and staff," Daniel said, "I have decided promptly in this matter due to the fact that this is the last day on which to call an election in time to prevent the district from being without representation during much of the next session of congress."

The election will be held in the seven-county fourth congressional district in North Texas.

"Daniel said that by acting the election date at Dec. 23. "There will be time for both the first election and a runoff — if necessary — to be held before Feb. 1."

Any runoff election would not be possible after Feb. 1 because of the change in Texas poll tax laws—New—laws—would not be available until after April 1, thus delaying selection of a representative to prevent the interruption of the next session of congress to under way.

Speaker Says U. S. Secrets Will Be Kept

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 18 (AP)—The president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors said Saturday the press can and will "protect information vital to national security" if that information is made available.

"When information is hidden or covered up, disclosure becomes a game between reporter and news source. When all the facts are laid out, the pressure for exposure is reduced."

McKnight, executive editor of the Dallas Times Herald, made his remarks in a speech prepared for the Associated Press Managing Editors association. He appeared on a panel with Carl Rowan, deputy assistant secretary of state for public affairs and a former newsmen.

McKnight told the editors the most effective voluntary control of the press "may operate only in an atmosphere of free access to information."

Rowan said in his prepared remarks that the Kennedy administration has asked "that the press not be so free with information damaging to national security."

He told the editors: "It is possible for you to give the public more information and at the same time be less free with articles that serve the interest, not of the American public, but of the enemy."

"What we asked was quite simple: That reporters and editors themselves weigh their stories against the national interest. This does not mean suppress stories, he said, but when in doubt, do some more checking. Get some guidance."

The panel was moderated by William B. Dickinson of the Philadelphia Bulletin. On the panel with Rowan and McKnight were Clark Mollenhoff, Washington correspondent of the Cowles Publications, and Arthur Byrnes, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs.

Soviets Plan Moon Shoot For January

MOSCOW, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Soviet Union plans to send a man around the moon next January. It is not planned to land.

According to these reports, "Lunastut" has completed training and is at the moment in space base at Baikonur in Kazakhstan, waiting for the launching.

The man will return to earth first-hand observations of the moon before the Russians' automatic astronomical observatory there, since reports the Russians are said to have built two of these observatories.

Sources said the Russians have no plans at present for a human orbit of the Earth, but claimed the reason no man has yet been there, since reports because there was an explosion of the man that caused much radiation.

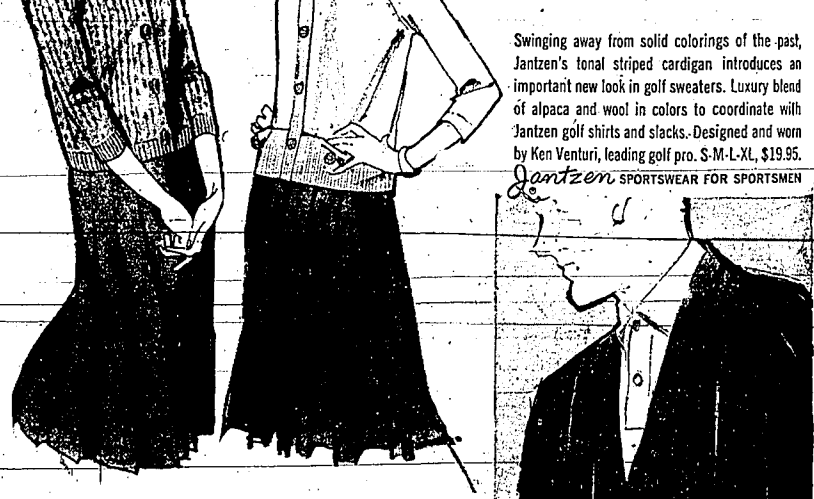

The reports added the Soviets have no plans to land a man on the surface of the moon before 1964.

Shoots Four-Point Buck

Mr. W. Chamberlain, Ketchum school teacher, shows the four-point buck he shot this fall in Green Horn gulch, south of Ketchum. Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain met at Sun Valley, were married there and reside in a rustic home near Ketchum. In addition to being an avid outdoorsman, she also teaches fifth grade in Ketchum. (Sun Valley photo—staff engraving.)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Diminutive Mrs. Dee (Veronice) Chamberlain, in hunting garb, looks like a model from a sports magazine. But when she goes hunting with her husband—which is often during the open season—she carries her own .201 caliber rifle as they hike through the mountains, kills her own deer just like her husband does it out. This year she bagged her four-point buck near the head of Timber gulch, which goes west from U.S. highway 92, about six miles south of KETCHUM. Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain met at SUN VALLEY, were married there and reside in a rustic home near Ketchum. In addition to being a homemaker, she has taught the fifth grade in the Ketchum grade school the past six years.

She is an avid outdoorsman and spends much of her leisure time with her husband fishing or hunting. Getting her deer is not a new experience for Mrs. Chamberlain. She has been "lucky" on several hunts.

Mrs. Chamberlain has a son, Jack Brown, who is a student at Idaho State college, Pocatello.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Larson, HAGERMAN, bought a pinto mare for their girls from E. W. Moore. The girl rode her that evening, and put her in the corral for the night.

In the morning, "Dimples" was gone. They hunted the area around their home, going as far as WENDOTA, to no avail.

Thinking someone might have picked her up and she might go through the sales ring in JEKOPOLIS, they checked on "the brand there."

A rancher, Ray Alexander, who lives two and a half miles south of Hagerman, heard of their loss and asked if the horse had a rope around her neck. It turned out that Dimples had gone from the Larson ranch, six miles north of Hagerman, in the TETTER area, down the grade into the valley, around the town and that far beyond before someone saw her or took the trouble to band's right arm was injured and later to be amputated since he could no longer farm, they moved to Marsfield, near Declo, and operated a small grocery store. He died in 1913 leaving his widow with six small children, one a two-week-old baby.

Since there was no cemetery in Declo the body was taken to Oakley. A sheep wagon with a white cover hid the bed and stove inside provided transportation for the widow and her young children on their journey. Funeral services were held in Oakley on Thanksgiving day. Mrs. Clark points out the vast changes in household living which have occurred during her life. She recalls it used to take all day to do the washing as water had to be pumped or hauled, heated on a wood or coal stove and the clothes were scrubbed on a washboard.

"Then they were put in a boiler of water for 'dothes never were clean without boiling.' By the time they were rinsed and 'bleed' and hung on the line, the day was gone. Now Mrs. Clark watches television while she washes in an automatic washer. The Declo woman has been an active worker in the LDS church and served as first counselor in the Relief society for 11 years, spending much time caring for the sick and needy. During the flu epidemic in 1918 she worked diligently to help those in need and when her brother's wife died, leaving six small children and a month-old baby, Mrs. Clark took the baby girl and raised it with her six children.

Friends say she had worked hard and made many sacrifices to educate her children, all but one of whom are graduated from colleges. All are now married and Mrs. Clark has 28 grandchildren and 32 great-grandchildren. She lists her faith, friends and flowers as her greatest pleasures and many persons have enjoyed her flower bulbs and plants she has given so generously. For many years she has been a member of the local club Thursday noon.

Each spoke briefly. Gray told of experiences of his boyhood, which was spent in Hailey. In the absence of Paul Jones, program chairman, no program was presented.

Idaho Power Men Learning First Aid

Willie W. D. Cutbirth, the "victim," rests on his back, members of a large first aid class being held by the Idaho Power company start to lift him from the floor. The men, clockwise from the left are R. C. Barnes, Halma, Ore.; C. J. Bohannon, Star; Bill Bergadine, Twin Falls, one of the instructors, and Vern Gardner, Boise. The course is being held in the crew room at the Idaho Power service center. The 47 students in the class come from all over central and western Idaho and eastern Oregon. (Staff photo-entouring)

Some 50 Power Firm Employees Hear Of First Aid Procedures in Classes

(Continued From Page 21) In first aid class, Lulluff notes that Oregon has a state law that requires business to carry a first aid kit and that notes they recently lost a first aid course. Some many of the men in this area work in Oregon, Lulluff says the company decided to provide them with the necessary training while they are here. The course has been under way since early in November. In order to teach such a large class, Lulluff has retained the services of several instructors. He is helped by E. R. Bazom, Bill Bergadine, Mattie Fox and Frank Mogen. Lulluff teaches the lecture part of the course and the other two help him with demonstrations on how to apply first aid. In smaller groups—the more practice how to apply splints and bandages, stop bleeding, provide antiseptics for poisoning, provide first aid for heat exhaustion, transport the injured, apply artificial respiration and the first aid practices associated with electrical shock. The men finished the American Red Cross standard course, which is a 10-hour course, last week. Now they are working on the advanced course, which requires 16 hours of study. The men will be tested, two cards, valid for two years. The meetings last from 7 to 10 p.m. The lecture takes about 30 minutes and the remainder of the time is devoted to practice

Gooding Has 800 Pupils at Career Event

GOODING, Nov. 18—Approximately 800 high school students attended the Annual Career Day at the local high school here Tuesday.

Exercises also were conducted in the Methodist church. Dr. Koller, superintendent of Gooding schools, said the event was the best attended in the school's seven or eight years. Advanced students of the state deaf and blind school also attended. Erwin H. Schwiebert, candidate for governor, pointed out to students that with some 40,000 different kinds of jobs from which to choose, "career choice" is no easy decision.

Noting that the purpose of the day was to assist having students become "round pegs in square holes," Schwiebert said, "Only intelligent, capable and a high level of productivity can guarantee prosperity. No machines can ever displace an outstanding man or woman."

Colleges represented were University of Idaho, College of Idaho, Idaho State college, Twin Falls Business college, Ricks Junior college, Boise Junior college and Northwest Nazarene college.

Occupations discussed were accounting, stenography, bookkeeping, clerical, Schwiebert, aviation, Don Cooper, West Coast Airlines, agriculture, Kenneth Hansen, state department of vocational education, University of Idaho, medicine and dentistry, Dr. J. F. Hoelinger, Wendell, and Dr. George Hueblich, Gooding; dietetics and nursing, Mrs. Maude Weber, Gooding.

Gossett, Gooding county probate judge; journalism, Dr. Wescho, Northwest Nazarene college; veterinary medicine, Dr. John Strandi, Gooding.

Albino Raccoon Gets Lunch on Top of Cage

William Pawson feeds his albino raccoon on top of the elaborate cage he made to keep the animal secure. Pawson caught it on Halloween night in the Shoshone Falls park. It was in a tree and Pawson saved the limb off and then his son, Charlie, caught it in a shirt. So far the animal has adapted quite well to captivity. (Staff photo-entouring)

Later that evening he locked it in an outbuilding on a neighboring farm. The next day he took it to a veterinarian's, where it was

Election Set

W. Gardner, Willis Cassin and Earl Gillette.

An error in the ballot for the election Oct. 14 has resulted in a second balloting. The three supervisors elected Nov. 20 will serve four-year terms starting Dec. 15.

bandered for a few days. Pawson says he has had raccoon pets in the past, but they always succeeded in getting away. "This one won't get away," he maintained. He built a stout, roomy cage of heavy lumber and screening, complete with two locks on the door.

Pawson says the young animal is calming down and shows signs of becoming a good pet for his three youngsters.

To date, the animal hasn't been named, and until it declares its sex, it probably won't have a name. Pawson explains he suspected the children name it "Florida." But it was pointed out that is a girl's name. And so far nobody has been able to decide just what name would fit best.

Two Women Prepare to Decorate Cakes

Mrs. M. W. Cranney and Mrs. Edward Warr, Oakley, get ready to decorate one of the many cakes they decorate for weddings and other special occasions. They have been doing this as a hobby since the 1920's. By 1940 they had decorated 148 cakes, and then Mrs. Warr says they decided to stop counting. Decorating a wedding cake isn't a matter of just squibbling frosting on a cake. It takes as many as five days to decorate cakes, and some will weigh 35 to 40 pounds. (Staff photo-engraving)

Protection for Hen Pheasants to End As One Permitted in Each Bag Limit

By JIM HUMPHREY
Idaho Fish and Game Department

Idaho's hen pheasants may become wary as their ringered counterparts streak through corn fields, fence rows, ditchbanks and other cover ahead of hunters and dogs, waiting until the last possible moment to flush out the game with a flurry of wings. The erstwhile hallowed hen pheasant's complete protection from shotgun pellets throughout the pheasant hunting season in Idaho, just a fortnight ago, upland game bird hunters expected this season on hens in the five northern counties of the panhandle for the first time in many years. Saturday hunters began taking some of the drowsy birds of the pheasant population in 10 southern and western counties and on Nov. 23, seven other counties will be added to the list where a hen-in-the-bag will be legal within prescribed limits.

In view of the fact that three counties—Cama, Teton and Bear Lake—have no pheasant shooting at all, 22 having limited hen pheasant hunting in the last few days of the season actually outnumber those which do not. Seven other southern Idaho counties will have hen-in-the-bag provisions from Nov. 23-25. These are Blaine, Cassia, Goodwin, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka and Twin Falls counties. On Nov. 23, the daily bag limit will be four pheasants, one of which may be a hen; and from Nov. 24-25, the possession limit will be eight pheasants, two of which may be hens. The blanket prohibition against shooting hen pheasants was ordered by the commission in 1949, and going back to 1941, the limit was allowed in the daily bag limit statewide. And as early as two decades ago, hen pheasants were allowed in southern counties, and one each in the others. It is noteworthy that similar limits were provided in Blaine, Kootenai and Latah counties as far back as 1933. Limited hen hunting was taken in stride by veteran pheasant hunters last year. Pheasant check station results during the limited hen hunt of 1960 showed that hunters were getting one pheasant for each hen bagged. The hunter checks also indicated that the hen provision appreciably improved hunter success on the last two days of the season, as compared to the normal poor success that characterized the pheasant hunting on cocks only. Matter-of-fact releases for the state's press, radio and TV outlets stressed recent studies on population turnover in pheasants. These show that limited hen shooting can be allowed on established ringered populations without harm to next year's crop. The reason is that they are extremely short-lived, literally "birds-of-the-year" in most cases. Every year about two-thirds of a pheasant population, hens included, will not be around the following spring for the new breeding season. This occurs every year whether they are hunted or not. It is nature's way of creating living space for the next generation. Limited hen hunting substitutes harvest by man for this natural loss. As in all game management measures, whether for birds or mammals, the purpose is to provide more hunter recreation and allow fuller utilization of the resource while maintaining adequate brood stocks. What causes natural pheasant losses? Many things, including inclement weather, disease, food and water shortages during critical periods of the year, and predators. The list is long. Game birds, more than any other form of wildlife harvested by hunters, must be considered an annual crop. If the fall population of adult birds and their young is not harvested, much of the surplus will be wasted through natural losses during the winter. It is in good business for hunters harvest the crop.

Size of Task Doesn't Hamper Oakley Women in Decorating Wedding Cakes

OAKLEY, Nov. 18.—This is a job that carrying a sick baby, said one man a few years ago as he carried a heavy, awkward wedding cake from the home of Mrs. Edward Warr, Oakley. Wedding cakes are big and awkward and they require a lot of work, but since the 1920's Mrs. Warr and her sister, Mrs. M. W. Cranney, have made and decorated wedding cakes as their hobby. They have made and given away literally hundreds of cakes. Mrs. Warr laughs and says that by 1940 they had made 148 of the cakes. They were making as many and keeping so busy she decided to stop counting. But although it is work, Mrs. Warr and Mrs. Cranney both admit they have enjoyed the work. This work is under way in the homes, they admit, but of the elaboration where the cake is the center of interest, it is a job to forget all the previous work. In addition to wedding cakes, they also have made many golden wedding anniversary cakes. Mrs. Warr says, "I don't see one as a life-giving satisfaction." Mrs. Warr says, "I think that a couple has lived together for 50 years and celebrates their anniversary is something to be proud of and we get a real deal of pleasure out of making part in it." Both learned to decorate cakes from their mother, who, in turn, learned the art from a Swedish woman in Utah before the turn of the century. Both women were born in the Oakley area. Their father, the late W. S. Matthews, came to the area in 1880. Their mother decorated quite a few cakes for people in the area and both women note they just got out of her hobby when they got older. Making a wedding cake isn't a matter of squibbling icing over a cake. Sometimes it takes days to decorate a cake, depending on the weather. If the weather is humid, it takes longer because the icing applied they must dry before layers are added. It might take as many as five days to finish a job. The weather, size and shape of the cake all affect how long it will take to finish the cake. And because it takes so long, it is necessary to bake a cake that will stay moist. "The fruit cake is the traditional wedding cake," Mrs. Warr says. "And they are actually better if they are made two to three weeks before they are decorated." For many years the women baked all the cakes they gave away, but that took too much time. Now they just decorate the cakes, but still keep plenty busy, especially during the summer when there are so many weddings. Mrs. Warr notes the largest cake they made required 54 eggs and four pounds of butter for the cake and icing. The size of such cakes present a problem, especially in the days of economy-sized cars. Often the cake has to be cradled in the lap of a passenger while the driver creeps across a bumpy road to a reception. One time Mrs. Warr was carrying one of those 35-pound cakes to a reception. The car hit a pothole, lurched and the cake crashed against the dashboard of the car, breaking off the side of the cake. Mrs. Warr carefully picked up the pieces, rushed home to the stove, heated it and spent the remaining few minutes rebanding the cake and drying the icing by the side of the stove.

Fish and game department conservation officers this fall are checking for elusive hen pheasants such as this one in half of the state's 44 counties where they are legal largely the last few days of the hunting season. Prior to the resumption of limited hen hunting in 1960, the dowdy female of the species had not been included legitimately in the Idaho bag limit since 1949. Revolt Springs up Against Reading Teaching Methods

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. (AP)—In an outright revolt against present day methods, a growing number of public schools are changing the way they teach children to read.

They are going back to the practice of teaching first-graders to recognize words by the way they sound instead of the way they look.

If the trend continues, it could bring about the most drastic change in elementary school education since the 1920s.

At the very least, it means another public airing of the most bitter dispute in education, the argument about the "phonics" first, or the "whole-word recognition" or "look-and-say" systems.

A group of specialists entered the fray late last month with publication of seven reports which charged that at least 25 per cent of American youngsters are seriously retarded in reading, and that an additional 40 per cent are not reading as well as they should.

Their reports, under the title "Tomorrow's Illiterates: The State of Reading Instruction Today" were sponsored by the Council for Basic Education and published by Little Brown and company. Blame is laid on 30 years of misguided reading instruction by many schools, and the majority of textbooks.

Critics of the entrenched "look-and-say" method will get further ammunition in a book out next Monday called "What's Wrong With That Johnny Doe?" Random House. In it Arthur S. Trace, Jr., an English professor at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, compares the reading books used in the United States and the Soviet Union and comes up with some startling statistics.

The vast majority of readers in this country, Trace says, introduce only 300-400 new words each year, so that by the end of the fourth grade the pupil has been given a reading vocabulary of about 3,000 words.

By contrast, Trace says, Soviet pupils taught to read by a phonics system get a 2,000-word reading vocabulary in the first grade and 60,000 of 10,000 words by the end of the fourth grade.

It must be observed that many of the stories in those U. S. are to an enormous degree little bits of trivia, innuendo, and otherwise devoid of either pleasure or profit.

The disagreement on the proper approach to reading instruction produced headlines for the first time in Wisconsin when the Twin Lakes school board adopted the 23-year-old McGuffey Readers as basic texts for the first eight grades.

"We chose the McGuffey Readers because we have gone to the full phonics approach to reading," explained Dennis Reule, president of the school board. "We had difficulty in finding a textbook which used the phonics approach."

The literary works in the McGuffey, we feel, are very good wholesome Americana, rather than the watered-down, inane mash you find in the modern books.

The decision did not sit well with State School Supt. Angus Boothwell. He threatened to withdraw the school districts' aid—about $10,000 a year. County Supt. Margaret Gustafson said the McGuffey Readers have to go. They do not provide for the development of reading skills as we teach reading today. They are not set up to develop what we call "interpretation skills."

Boothwell's approval of McGuffey for "selective assignments" and as library references on the Twin Lakes school board agreement not to use the readers in new textbooks.

What is the essential difference between the two schools of thought on how Johnny should learn to read?

Phonics is the science of sound. When children are taught to read by the phonics-first system, they learn how the different letters and combinations of letters are pronounced. When they run into a strange new word they tackle it syllable by syllable.

In the look-and-say method, children are first given 80 to 100 new words to be recognized on sight. Only then, and then only casually, is phonics introduced.

When they encounter a new word, the children try to get its meaning from "context clues" or suggestions outlined in an illustration or diagram.

This, of course, is over-stimulating.

Both systems use phonics as well as context-word recognition. Both have as their goal the ability to read rapidly and with comprehension. The primary issue is when phonics should be introduced and how much it should be emphasized—for the besting reader.

There is a definite and discernible trend across the country toward earlier and stronger emphasis on phonics. Phonics-first has been adopted in Des Moines, Ia.; Phoenix and Scottsdale, Ariz.; La. Orange, Ill.; Washington, D. C.; New Castle, Pa.; Boothbay Harbor, Maine; Twin Lakes, Wis.; Spring Valley, N. Y.; Bossier Parish, La.; St. Louis, and scores of other communities, including a dozen more in the Chicago area. Still it is much too early to sound the death knell for the look-and-say method.

Look-and-say is deeply entrenched in the public schools and ardently defended by teachers and superintendents. Many of them learned to read that way themselves, and practically all of them were taught to teach reading that way. They say the phonics-first approach is dull and boring, and likely to put a permanent brake on a youngster's reading skill, speed and interest.

But there may be portent for the future in the comments of two school superintendents who made the switch.

Supt. Frank E. Doran, Boothbay Harbor, Me., "Parents who reported on a questionnaire have expressed their satisfaction and in many instances their amazement at the progress of the children in reading and in spelling."

Says Supt. John H. Harris, Des Moines: "The gains are everywhere. The increase in the children's reading ability has been fantastic, and their spelling has improved tremendously."

The Des Moines city schools began their phonics program on a modest scale three years ago.

"It started out with a half-dozen volunteer teachers, and we now have more than 90 such teachers," Harris said. "The pupils like it very much. So much so, in fact, that we have had to spend thousands of dollars for more books—our pupils are reading complete books by the end of the first semester of the first grade."

But there has been one pocket of resistance, Harris said—the publishers of textbooks.

"I suppose their resistance is only natural," he added. "But we have found the normal elementary school readings wholly inadequate for our new program."

Hawaiian Volcano Crater Is Newest National Park

HONOLULU, Nov. 18 (AP) — Hawaii's newest national park is Hawaii's fabled "House of the Gods" — Haleakala — a volcanic mountain born in volcanic eruptions of fire and molten rock.

The "House of the Gods" is about 123 miles from Honolulu. It was dedicated July 1, the 30th pride of the U.S. national park service. The 10,000-foot volcano was last active 211 years ago.

The view from the summit — a crater — is 2,000 feet deep — is one of the most beautiful on earth. Some say it rivals the Grand Canyon for scope and beauty.

More than half of New York City's Manhattan borough could fit into the 18-square-mile cavity. The view, looking through the black fields of an observatory, sometimes heated by winds of 100 miles an hour, gases into an irregular, pumice-filled cleft dotted with clusters of many hues. Black black hills and slopes stretch nearly to the limits of vision. It looks like a surreal world, inspired by a night-mare. It is a silent desert of weird yet beautiful desolation.

The feeling is this is what the moon must be like.

Here scientific certainty and Polynesian mythology conflict. For Haleakala is the playground of the demigod Maui, mischievous trickster and captor of the sun. Legend says it was here, among the lava wastes, that Maui stalked the rays of the sun. One by one he captured them, binding them together until the hobbled sun turned the sun back, after extracting a promise that the fireball thereafter would travel more slowly across the heavens, to enable Maui, Maui's mother to dip her tree-bark tape cloth.

The road to Haleakala's crater climbs steeply 30 miles through lush green plantations and ranchland, through the clouds, to the park's summit at 10,000 feet. It is so sudden that elevation. Eileen miles farther in the alpine zone, is the bleak summit and Haleakala observatory.

The ascent from sea level to 10,000 feet is so sudden that many sightseers suffer from oxygen starvation on arrival. They soon get used to it, however, if they don't overexert themselves.

The view from the observatory is breathtaking, but the real thrill of the crater was reserved for hikers who want to see the crater from the best possible place — inside. Thirty miles of rough but well-marked trails meander through all sections of the cavity.

Park rangers maintain three snare cables inside, at opposite ends and in the middle along the crater wall. Hikers use the cables free of charge and need only permits from park rangers. Supermarket
 Opening Set
 Soon at Buhl

BUHL, Nov. 18 — One of the most modern supermarkets in the West End, Erv's Supermarket, has been completed and will open for business Monday, according to Governor Robert E. Egan, owners-manager.

The new supermarket is located in the former Ford car agency building on Ninth avenue north. The building has been completely remodeled, included in the 10,000 square feet of floor space are the first in-store bakery for the West End, a 12-foot reach-in air curtain dairy case, a 24-foot self-service meat counter, a 10-foot three dock refrigerated delicatessen case, a 24-foot frozen food case, a 16-foot ice cream case and 34 feet of produce display.

These features were detailed after a study which was delayed in grocery businesses as the most logical and convenient way for center shopping, the owners note.

Floor tile, wide aisles and modern fluorescent lighting are featured throughout the store. The building, which measures 28 by 110 square feet of floor space, is a modern construction and the exterior surface has a combed plaster finish. The store, which faces Locust street, has a large parking area. A grand opening is planned for the near future, they said.

Saddle Bronc Champ Receives Saddle

Larry Robinson, ICA saddle bronc riding champion, poses with the trophy saddle awarded him. Robinson was graduated from Twin Falls high school in 1957, and started to follow the rodeo circuit when he was a junior in high school. Since then he has made a living for several months out of the year as a rodeo contestant. (Staff photo-engraving) own, but he still compares himself better than many young colts.

He is gentle in the chute—businesslike. He knows his job doesn't begin until the chute gate is opened. He stands patiently in the chute while the cowboy gets his seat. He makes no effort to crush the cowboy against the side, as some broncs do.

Robinson says "Bingo" leaves the chute so fast that cowboys have to lean outward to stay with him when he makes the first leap. From then on it's all business, and much of the time "Bingo" proves he is a champion.

Pope says he first bought him when he was a two-year-old colt at Wells, Nev. He recognized him as a good horse then.

He was right, for the horse has been good all his life with measured "backing" horse at the age of three years, while most bucking horses mature when they are about five years old.

His popularity and respect was evidenced when 15 cowboys from all over the Northwest chose him unanimously as the best saddle bronc rider and "pick of best buckle." The saddle is carried with the ICA trophy saddle recently on display at Peterzen Western Apparel store.

Robinson is the son of Howard Robinson, long-time rodeo competitor. He started competing in area rodeos when he was a junior in Twin Falls high school. He was graduated from high school in 1957.

Since his junior year he has made his living during the rodeo season as a rider. His younger brother, Gary, also rides. They were nip and tuck in the race for champion saddle bronc rider until Gary broke his neck in June in a swimming accident.

Robinson makes his living on the rodeo circuit in Idaho and surrounding states during the spring, summer and fall. During the winter, he works at the Amalgamated Sugar company.

But Robinson and all cowboys in this area who take the rodeo circuit seriously, stay in shape in the "winter" by sponsoring their own rodeos on Sundays. This year, according to Robinson, the regular Sunday rodeo probably will be held in Glenns Ferry.

Photographs of Brother and Sister Illustrate Book

Peggy and Tom Kolouch, daughter and son of Dr. and Mrs. Fred Kolouch, beam over a copy of a new book that features photographs of the brother-sister team. The book is a beginner's book on skiing. Photographs of them illustrate the text. The photographs were taken last spring at Sun Valley. (Staff photo-engraving)

"Gentleman" Bronc and Bronc Buster From Area Get Top Gem Rodeo Honors

How would you like to work 300 seconds a year and then be named a champion? Sounds impossible, but that is about the length of time "Bingo" worked this year, and recently he was named the saddle bronc of the year by the Idaho Cowboys association.

The time figures are about right for a bucking horse is ridden for 30 seconds and "Bingo" made about 30 appearances in regional rodeos this year.

The big, stout gelding was chosen champion at a recent meeting of the association in Twin Falls. And another champion from Twin Falls also was honored—Larry Robinson, who won ICA champion-ICA saddle bronc rider for the year.

"Bingo" has dealt Robinson his share of trouble this year but Robinson still was able to accumulate enough points to win the championship. At a Labor day rodeo Robinson drove "Bingo" a number of times out of the chute and was tossed off after four seconds. The fall broke Robinson's arm, but with the points he had accumulated, and because he continued to ride in later rodeos with his arm in a cast, he was able to top the winner's trophy belt and saddle.

Robinson says he has drawn "Bingo" number six times, and he has managed to ride him three times. A cowboy could harbor a grudge against a good horse like "Bingo," but Robinson and other cowboys admire him.

He is a strong buckler, who gives them a chance to win points, but he still is a gentleman.

How can a horse be a gentleman? There is a style to being a good "Bingo" just as there is a style to doing just anything of value. "Bingo" has style.

The fact that he has been ridden about 300 times in recent years and has only been ridden on the 10-second whistle on 10 occasions shows he knows how to buck.

But he has cowboy and spectators for other reasons, too. This is where being a gentleman comes in. "Bingo" has never fallen on a cowboy. He is a big, stout horse, but he still is as agile as a cat and always keeps his feet.

This agility and speed make him a wicked horse to ride, but he can also save the cowboy broken bones. Some horses will either accidentally or purposely step on a rider after he has been thrown. But "Bingo" main desire is to get the rider off his back—that's all he cares about.

Once he throws him he loses interest in the rider and will even go out of his way to avoid hurting him.

Both Robinson and Jake Pope, who is a rodeo producer and who has owned "Bingo" for 11 years, says they have seen the big horse leap like a cat to avoid stomping a cowboy who has been thrown in front of him. This is where the agility that can throw the cowboy can also save him.

And, for a bucking horse, "Bingo" is gentle. He won't lead, he'll natter, and he has a mind of his

Gooding Slates Spring Air Fete

GOODING, Nov. 9—Directors of Gooding Chamber of Commerce voted Tuesday to sponsor the first Idaho 1957 air breakfast in May.

Valdo Gray, president, was authorized to notify Chet Moulton, state director of aeronautics, that Gooding Chamber of Commerce is happy to sponsor the breakfast.

A discussion was held relative to all free telephone service from Gooding to Shoshone. Gray appointed Harley V. Crisp, Dee Keller and Earl Skidmore to a committee to contact Bud Cheney, Gooding Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph manager, regarding this service.

T.F. Brother and Sister Team Model For Photos in Ski Instruction Book

Two Twin Falls youths, Peggy and Thomas Kolouch, daughter and son of Dr. and Mrs. Fred Kolouch, are featured in a new book on skiing.

The book, "The Young Sportsman's Guide to Skiing," is being published and photographs of the brother and sister team are used to illustrate the book's many lessons, geared for the beginning skier.

Photographs for the book were taken last spring at Sun Valley by Fred Lindholm, photographer for the Sun Valley news bureau. The book was written by Bill Wallace, sports writer for the New York Herald Tribune.

Appearing with the young skiers in the photographs is Mel Hammond, ski instructor at the resort. Through the medium of photographs and text, Peggy and Tom Kolouch and Mel Hammond take the reader through a full course on skiing. The student is taught, how to walk on the flat and on to the methods involved in making Weidens turns.

Better models could hardly be found, for both youths started skiing at the age of four. Peggy now is 17, and Tom, 14.

They were asked last year by Mrs. Dorley Taylor, director of the Sun Valley news bureau, if they would model for the photographs. Both of them not only were thrilled and add that this is one of the highlights of many years of skiing.

The photographs were taken in early March. They spent about two and one-half days with the photographer and instructor. There was a shooting script and they were busy most of the time prancing the photographer with the proper action shots to illustrate the text of the book.

The book has 10 chapters, entitled: America Loves to Ski, What It's All About, The Equipment, The First Lesson, Going Uphill, The Second Lesson, The Third Lesson, The Last Lesson, When Skiing Gets Hard, and Practice and Progress.

There also is a glossary and index.

The book is one of a series in the Young Sportsman's Library, which deals with various sports. The series is published by Thomas Nelson and Sons.

The purpose of the book is to give the beginner sound funda-mentals in the sport and the reader is given fundamentals by watching and Tom go through the all beginners face in becoming accomplished at. In addition to offering in the sport, the book is a brief history of skiing review of skiing in the States.
